Plans underway for big Centennial events

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Publisher-Editor

Plans for Deaf Smith County's 100th birthday party continue to come together as the Centennial Committee prepares to host a full day of activities on Saturday, Oct. 6.

The election to make Deaf Smith an independent county was held on Oct. 3, 1890, but the birthday party will be on Oct. 6. A big parade, a brief program with the presentation and dedication of the bronze sculpture of Erastus "Deaf" Smith, food booths around the courthouse, and special programs at Deaf Smith County Museum will highlight the big day.

A progress report on the Centennial Committee plans was given this week by Ruth McBride, chairman. With all of the activities planned around the courthouse and museum on Oct. 6, 4th Street will be blocked off on the north side of the courthouse and Sampson Street will be blocked off in front of the museum. Food booths will be located in the off-street parking areas around the south side of the courthouse, where the dedication ceremony will be held.

"We can feel the excitement building," said Mrs. McBride, "and we hope county residents will want to get involved and participate in this very special event."

The Deaf Smith County Historical Society now has Centennial t-shirts on sale at the museum. They are priced at $15 each. The Hereford Board of Realtors is offering numbered Centennial plates, with the first 10 to be auctioned off at the dedication ceremony. Golden K Kiwanis Club will also be selling special Centennial caps.

Shirley Garrison, parade committee chairman, reported that invitations have gone out to many special groups to have units or floats in the big parade which is set to start at 10 a.m. on Oct. 6. A number of organizations have already committed to have entries. Many of the non-profit organizations that had food booths at the Town & Country Jubilee will be represented at the Centennial celebration. These booths will open at 11 a.m. on celebration day.

"Museum in Motion" will be the theme of activities at the county museum and at the Black House. Various presentations of old crafts will be conducted at the museum from 12:30 to 4 p.m. that day. These will include making butter the old-fashioned way, quilting, leatherworking, and weaving. Tentative plans call for a "gunfighters" group to perform.

The museum will have buggies to transport people between the museum and the Black House, and Bruce Parr will have his stagecoach here for free rides, sponsored by local businesses. The Senior Citizen Line Dancers will perform during the afternoon, and the Merry Mixers are scheduled to do some square dancing.

The Retail Trade Committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is urging local stores to decorate, serve birthday cake and dress in period costumes for the big day.

The Centennial Committee will meet again Sept. 19 at 3:30 p.m. in the Commissioner Courtroom to discuss more plans for the celebration day.

The Hereford Brand is preparing a special edition of the newspaper in observance of the county's centennial celebration. It will include many articles and photos concerning the county's history. It is to be published on Sept. 30.

Persons interested in obtaining a Centennial plate as a memento of Deaf Smith County's 100th birthday should place their orders this week, according to Marn Tyler, project chairman for the Hereford Board of Realtors.

The plates, priced at $20 each, are 7 1/2-inch white porcelain plates with a gold trim and feature a colored silk-screen illustration of the courthouse. A brief county history and the limited edition plate number will be on the back.

The Realtors received one sample plate Friday, and it can be seen at the First National Bank. Plates can be ordered from any Realtor, but orders will need to be placed this week to assure purchase of the limited edition.

The Realtors are sponsoring the project and part of the proceeds will be donated to the cost of the bronze bust of "Deaf" Smith, which is to be dedicated on Oct. 6.

All for the Herd, stand up and holler

Centennial plates offered

The Hereford Board of Realtors is selling Centennial plates to commemorate Deaf Smith County's 100th birthday. Juston McBride, Realtor president, and Marn Tyler, project chairman, display a sample plate received this week. The plates are $20 each and will be issued as a limited edition. Orders should be placed this week with any Realtor.

GOODBYE, NEW YORK!
HELLO, HEREFORD!

Billigs enjoying 'new' life here

By DANEE' WILSON
Staff Writer

The bright lights of the city that never sleeps may be adequate for the "Chairman of the Board," Frank Sinatra but not for Dr. Roger and Leslie Billig.

Roger and Leslie Billig have traded the city life of New York for the quite serene plains of the Texas Panhandle.

Dr. Billig, a urologist, and his wife moved to Hereford from New York City to escape the "metropolitan medical atmosphere."

The problem with metropolitan hospitals is they are more concerned with marketing the hospital and making money than with patient care, said Billig.

Billig has a copy of a Staten Island paper which he uses as a tool to show why he moved. The paper ran a section on the hospital where Billig was chief of urology. He was not pleased with the hospital's attempt at public relations and felt the piece was dishonest and misleading.

Some medical technology is turning into "gross unnecessary types of diagnostic studies," Billig said. One such example is using ultrasound for more than detection of prostate cancer.

"You're not going to change it," Billig said. "You can't change it and you can't survive morally in that kind of atmosphere."

"The only way to change is to go to a place where there is a need for you as an urologist not a place where they create a need.

"It even happens in Amarillo. I've seen advertisements for laser surgery for gall bladder disease. If you ask most general surgeons if they want their gall bladder removed by lasers I think you'll find most of them don't."

Billig said these are selling points of the hospitals and "are simply not needed."

Today, most hospital administrators have masters degrees in either marketing or public relations. In the past they had masters degrees in public health, said Billig. Today's hospitals are too concerned with marketing, he said.

CITY MEETS COUNTRY

Roger and Leslie Billig are making a go at country life upon moving to Hereford from New York City. Dr. Billig is the new urologist who set up shop at 110 North 25 Mile Ave.

Centennial Clips

March 30, 1891--Commissioners met to study plans for the courthouse. They accepted a bid of $41,900 for construction of the two-story, frame building. The county paid $75 for the lot. The lumber was hauled from Jones Lumber Co in Amarillo. The little town of La Plata grew rapidly; 28 buildings and 18 residences were built there before the demise of La Plata about seven years later.

Queen coronation to begin celebration

Activities will begin Thursday for the annual Fiestas Patrias celebration, the area's largest celebration of Deis y Seis de Septiembre.

Mexico declared its independence from Spain in 1810. Since 1953, Hereford's Hispanic population has held a celebration to commemorate the event.

Activities will include a special mass; crowning of the Fiestas Patrias queen, Rachel Alaniz; music; a parade; and special events at the Bull Barn next Saturday.

On Thursday, a special Mass will be celebrated at 6:30 p.m. at San Jose Catholic Church, 735 Brevard. The Most Rev. Leroy Mathiesen, bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Amarillo, will preside at the liturgy.

The Rev. Darryl Birkenfeld, associate pastor at San Jose, will be the homilist. The liturgy will include traditional songs. Alaniz and the 1990 princess, Bobby Jo Bordayo, and their families will be honored at the liturgy.

At 8 p.m. Thursday, the celebration will move to the San Jose Church Hall for the coronation ceremony.

Hereford school superintendent Charles Greenawalt will present opening remarks, and Alaniz and Bordayo will give the multi-media presentations originally given in the queen's contest two weeks ago.

Alaniz and Bordayo will then be presented in the regal "marcha" and

Club aids Centennial Committee

L'Allegre Study Club presented a check to the Deaf Smith County Historical Commission this week to help pay for the bronze bust of Erastus "Deaf" Smith, which is to be unveiled Oct. 6. Fred Rivera and Ruth McBride of the Centennial Committee, left, accepted the check from Kay Lynn Caviness, treasurer, and Sylvia Khuri, president, of L'Allegre. Vesta Mae Nunley, right, is also a member of the Centennial Committee. The check totalled $562.12 and represented proceeds from the club's Spring Geranium sale.

will be crowned by the 1989 queen, Independencia" and the "Tribuna Libre" re-enactments. Victor Holguin, a Hereford native, will present the "Grito de Mexico" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Admission to Thursday's ceremonies is $2 per person.

On Sept. 15, activities will begin with a parade at 11 a.m. through downtown Hereford. Cash prizes of $75, $50 and $25 will be awarded to the top three parade entries.

After the parade, events will be held at the Bull Barn, including traditional dancers, mariachi music, a comedy show by Ray Barbarosa, food and games.

At 2:30 p.m., State Rep. Lena Guerrero, D-Austin, will give address the crowd at the Bull Barn on "Political Involvement in the 90's."

A dance will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., featuring the group "Universo."

San Jose Church has sponsored the Fiestas Patrias celebration since 1953. It is one of the church's main fundraisers, but is more geared toward everyone becoming more aware of the city's rich Mexican-American culture.

Griffin & Brand join TDA program

AUSTIN--Griffin & Brand Sales Agency, Inc. of Hereford has been approved as a member of the Texas Department of Agriculture's "Taste of Texas" program.

"Taste of Texas" is a marketing program established by TDA in 1984 to identify and promote foods grown and processed in the state. Its goal is to foster the development of the state's food processing industry.

Ag Commissioner Jim Hightower said the approval of Griffin and Brand will enable the company to use TDA's trademarked red, white and blue "Taste of Texas" logo in its labeling, packaging, advertising and product literature. Only food companies whose products are produced in Texas qualify for the program.

"The goal of this program is to get more people to buy more Texas food products," said Hightower.

Griffin & Brand is a grower, packer and wholesale shipper of fresh produce, including onions, potatoes, cabbage, cantaloupe and bell peppers. Established in 1956, the company ships Texas products to all 48 contiguous states.

"The 'Taste of Texas' program is a great way to capitalize on the international mystique that Texas enjoys," Hightower said.

Men still in Dallas

Two Hereford men remain hospitalized in the burn center at Parkland Hospital in Dallas, suffering injuries they sustained in a flash fire Wednesday at Farr Better Feeds in Hereford.

Billy Hubbard, 48, of Hereford, is in serious condition, suffering from burns to over 70 percent of his body and lung complications probably caused by the fire getting into his lungs.

Sam Allison, 42, of Hereford, remained in critical condition at Parkland. He is also suffering burns to most of his body.

A third Farr employee, Lonnie Holland, 27, of Clovis, was in satisfactory condition at Deaf Smith General Hospital, suffering from more minor burns and a broken ankle.

Officials from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) were to have inspected the site, in southeast Hereford, on Friday, they have not yet issued an official statement.

BILLIGS

Escaping the metropolitan hospital atmosphere wasn't the only thing on the Billigs' minds when they chose to move to Hereford.

Both agree the general lifestyle of the people in the Panhandle is better than that of New York City. They were attracted to the dry climate as well as the fact there is very limited pollution, both noise and air.

"Climate was a very big factor and proximity to a metropolitan area if you want it without it being a plane trip was also a factor," Billig said.

"When you look around all these factors became Hereford," he said. "We're actually exchanges for you opening up a Cowgirl Hall of Fame restaurant in New York City," he joked.

Mrs. Billig said finding a beautiful home and having a puppy was easier to do here than in New York City.

"There is no commuting here," Mrs. Billig said. "Four minutes from home to work to the hospital. It's great!"

The Billigs feel there is a tremendous advantage in living in a small area.

"Hereford has a defined town and government," said Billig. "In a metropolitan area, even in the suburbs, there is no distinction between towns."

In a large city, you can't be a part of the community, Billig said. "Most people don't even know the name of their mayor. I was startled to find out the incredibly low turnout in city elections. I don't think people realize what their giving up. Here the voters have impact; in New York, they have no impact," he said.

The people of Hereford have impressed the Billigs. "Here the people are much more open and you can make a new friend every day," said Mrs. Billig. "Hereford is definitely living up to our expectations. We came to visit in April and I didn't want to go home."

The Billigs hope to become active in all aspects of the community, not just in their practice. They are very enthusiastic about becoming involved and being a part Hereford.

Billig said there are only two things he missed: the New York Times and a variety of ethnic foods.

"In New York you could walk down the street and have your choice of Italian, Mexican, Chinese, Japanese, Indian, about 20 different kinds of food," Billig said.

Other than ethnic food, the Billigs enjoy old movies, books, gardening cooking and swimming. Billig also has two sons.

Almanac: think earlier Thanksgiving

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) - Not one to tamper lightly with tradition, the Farmers' Almanac suggests nonetheless that the date designated for Thanksgiving is a turkey.

In its 1991 edition, just off the presses, the venerable publication says Americans should consider celebrating the holiday, the fourth Thursday in November, earlier in the fall.

An earlier date would rid Thanksgiving of pre-Christmas overtones, allow for more favorable travel weather and line it up more closely with the harvest whose bounty it is meant to celebrate, the almanac says.

The almanac says the second Monday in October, the date on which Canada celebrates Thanksgiving, might be an appropriate alternative. Almanac editor Ray Geiger invites readers to offer their own ideas.

"We're only suggesting that we examine this thing. We're not bold enough to say 'do it!'" Geiger said in an interview.

Thanksgiving, commemorating the feast held by members of the Plymouth Colony in Massachusetts in December 1621 to celebrate that year's harvest, has been observed at various dates over the years. It has remained at its current date since 1863, except for a brief period when President Franklin D. Roosevelt reset it for the third Thursday in November.

"Thanksgiving is a sacred holiday. What makes it sacrosanct is not that it is observed on a certain date each year, but rather what it means," the almanac says. "When one ponders the real reason for Thanksgiving, the date of celebration seems immaterial."

Geiger said the principal reason for change would be to separate Thanksgiving from the overlapping demands posed by the start of the Christmas season.

"You've got football, you've got Christmas pressing and you don't know whether you're celebrating Thanksgiving or Christmas," he said.

An earlier holiday would reduce the chances that travelers would encounter ice or snow while heading to family gatherings, Geiger said. And it would shift the holiday to a time closer to the end of the harvest, when the woods still are ablaze with colorful foliage, he said.

By contrast, fields and orchards are bare in late November and trees have lost their leaves. "When we celebrate Thanksgiving under these conditions, we seem to have lost our sense of timing," the almanac said.

The date change could mark the start of a new crusade by the 174-year-old almanac, which in years past has prodded the government to restore city names to postmarks and eliminate the nine-digit ZIP code.

Geiger's almanac is not to be confused with the Old Farmers

Almanac, the 198-year-old New Hampshire-based publication. Geiger claims a circulation of about 5 million for the 48-page publication, sold to banks, insurance companies and other businesses that distribute it to customers as a promotional tool.

Last year's campaign promoting the introduction of a coin it calls the Columbus Dollar as a replacement for the $1 bill is making progress, Geiger said, and bills introduced in the House and Senate are enjoying increased support.

That proposal, along with the shuffling of Thanksgiving, does not mean that the almanac is abandoning its longstanding profession of traditional values.

"Tradition is a must for us, but we're not blinded by it," Geiger said.

Almanac traditions include calendar data, puzzles, household hints, inspirational messages, one-line jokes and "favorite recipes."

Another tradition is weather data. This year's edition predicts a harsh winter - chilling news to households concerned about rising energy prices brought on by the crisis in the Persian Gulf.

Rockport going to the birds for annual celebration

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) - As many as 200 hummingbirds at a time gather at back yard feeders during September in the Rockport-Fulton area, and local residents think it's worth bragging about.

This weekend they're holding the second annual Hummer-Bird Celebration where visitors will have a chance to tour some of the choice hummingbird viewing sites.

The star of the show is the ruby-throated hummingbird, a species that concentrates in the area north of Corpus Christi on its southward migration toward Central and South America during the fall.

"They funnel down from the eastern part of the United States," said Betty Baker, chairwoman of the festival sponsored by the Rockport-Fulton Area Chamber of Commerce and the Coastal Bend Audubon Society.

As many as 13 species of hummingbird pass through the area during the year, but this is the season where the ruby-throated hummingbird dominates the scene.

The festival has two main purposes. One is to boost birding tourism in the area. The other is to make people aware that the hyperactive birds need more feeders to replace the flowers lost to human destruction of natural habitat.

It takes a lot of fuel to keep their furious wings going.

Visitors from as far away as North Carolina showed up Friday for the festival's first day, Ms. Baker said.

Rockport-Fulton already is known to birders as the staging point for boat tours to see a variety of coastal wildlife, including the endangered whooping cranes that winter at the nearby Aransas National Wildlife Refuge.

Festival organizers call it the Hummer-Bird celebration to include other types of birds in the act, Ms. Baker said.

Events at the festival that began Friday and continues through Sunday include field trips by bus to some of the choice hummingbird-watching sites; bay boat trips focusing on water birds and other wildlife; lectures on identifying, appreciating and attracting birds; and demonstrations featuring live hawks and other birds of prey in flight.

Jesse Grantham, who until recently worked from Corpus Christi as the Audubon Society's sanctuaries manager for Texas, said he thinks the area is using sound economic judgment with the hummingbird festival.

"I think they are showing a lot of these local communities how they can take advantage of natural phenomena like these hummingbird migrations to simulate their economies," Grantham said. "And when local people see what something like this can do for their economy...out of this there may grow a real appreciation for the environment."

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BETTER HEALTH

Dr. Gerald Glasscock

CHIROPRACTOR

IF CHILD OUT OF BALANCE

Whenever your child's body is thrown out of balance, his posture suffers and so does his back and other parts of his body.

The bad habit of slouching in a chair to read or watch television may cause this. So can carrying heavy loads of books to school. When this results in poor posture, backache or other symptoms of physical distortion, treatment may be needed to set things right again.

Backpacks for books are recommended because they help distribute the weight evenly. So is good posture -- standing erect, walking at a good pace and keeping the stomach in.

If your child's body is out of balance, however, sooner or later you can expect him to complain of persistent aches in his back or other parts of his body. This may suggest a possible spinal or pelvic problem that needs correction. Pain-killing drugs can reduce this discomfort, but they won't cure the cause. What may be needed is treatment to properly align the spine and sacroiliac and instruction in how to maintain good posture and good health.

Hospital issue

Some letters to the editor in today's Brand question, among other things, the position of the newspaper in printing "negative articles" about Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Is there a problem or not? We believe that a problem exists just in the fact that two doctors are leaving, and they have been the top two physicians in admitting patients to the hospital. We are not sure why they left—it depends on which "negative" report you believe. One side blames the hospital administrator and board for "running them off." The other side blames the doctors for wanting to "run everything their way."

The fact is, most people in the community don't know what is going on. That is evident from the number of telephone calls we have received. As journalists, we are not experts on the operations of a hospital. All we have done is bring to the attention of citizens that some people in the health care field believe we have some problems at the hospital. We did not set out to start a controversy; The Brand has not taken an editorial stance on the matter, and we would like to be part of the solution and not a problem. Some positive statements from the hospital board would be welcome.

This newspaper has always been a strong supporter of the hospital, and any search of the record will confirm that position. We have published positive statements, made at board meetings, when they could have been questioned. We think it is essential that we support the hospital in the interests of good health care for the community.

We understand, although the hospital board did not inform us, that the executive committee of the board met with doctors Friday and everything is okay.

For the sake of the community, we sincerely hope they are right.

Cutting waste

Remember the Grace Commission? President Reagan asked J. Peter Grace, one of America's top business executives, to chair the "President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control." It is better known as the Grace Commission.

The commission's job was to find ways to make government run more like business. They did.

In fact, they came up with a detailed plan on how to cut more than $424 billion in wasteful spending over three years. Think of it: this plan could almost eliminate the entire federal deficit! And it could be done without raising income taxes, without painful cuts in social or defense programs.

Grace claims it is a workable plan to nearly eliminate the deficit before it undermines our economy. The Commission details 2,478 waste-cutting recommendations.

Why won't Congress act on the plan? One reason is that Congressmen get more credit for wasteful spending than they do for good, farsighted, efficient management. And that ties in with another primary reason that Congress hasn't acted, YOU haven't insisted!

Congressmen understand one thing very well—Survival. And that means getting re-elected. The taxpayers are still the boss. If enough taxpayers demand something, Congress will do it tomorrow. Remember the law passed a few years back requiring that income taxes be withheld from interest on your savings account? Within a matter of weeks of the enactment, that law was repealed. Why? Because the American people didn't support it.

Grace is currently seeking support of the Commission Report through an organization he established, Citizens Against Government Waste. He is seeking taxpayers' endorsement of the report, and is also seeking contributions to mobilize public support for the elimination of waste.

If you are interested, write to: Citizens Against Government Waste, 1301 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Suite 400; Washington, D.C. 20036.

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS

A SLIGHT MISCALCULATION

by Dr. Richard L. Lasher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON -- Last year when Congress raised the minimum wage, I predicted the action would price some 186,000 teenagers out of the job market, with the harshest impact falling upon those who could least afford it -- minority kids in the inner city.

Simple honesty requires that I now confess I was wrong, wrong, wrong by a significant margin. The actual number of teenagers priced out of the job market was nowhere near 186,000. To the contrary, an analysis of Labor Department employment data for June shows that about 489,000 teenagers were denied the opportunity for employment when the minimum wage went from $3.35 an hour to $3.80 per hour.

A major flaw in everyone's calculations was failure to take into account the fact that teens are easily discouraged from even looking for work when fewer jobs are available. Even though there are fewer teenagers now than there were a year ago, a smaller percentage have jobs or are seeking work. In June 1989, 56.4 percent of the 14.2 million teenagers aged 16 to 19 either had jobs or were looking for work. This June, that had dropped to 52.9 percent of the 13.8 million in that age bracket.

But though I underestimated the total numbers of those who would be hurt by this foolish legislation, I was correct about who would get hit the hardest. A year ago, 624,000 black teenagers had jobs. In one year that total has fallen 12 percent to 550,000. While blacks comprise only 15.3 percent of all youngsters aged 16 to 19, they suffered 30 percent of the job loss.

Of course, none of this data makes the slightest impression on the hard-core liberals in Congress who are determined to foist their Big Government ideology on the American people regardless of the consequences. One would think that this cruel blow to inner city youth would stick in the craw of the liberals who fancy themselves great champions of minorities and the poor, but apparently not. When facts contradict liberal ideology, the facts are ignored.

One can only wonder what great schemes the liberal "friends" of poor and minorities have up their sleeves next. The only certainty is that with friends like these, the poor and minorities have no need of enemies.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

It is a well-known fact that negative comments can be made about a person for so long that the person begins to believe them. The same is true about a business. It is called verbal abuse. A child can be taken away from its parents for verbal abuse. If we are not careful, the same thing is going to happen to our hospital. And where will we be then?

I have worked at our hospital for eight years. I have been offered other jobs but I chose to stay here. I could go to work in Amarillo today and make a minimum of $500 more a month, but I don't want to leave. I want to stay in Hereford and I want to have a hospital to work at. If the negative comments do not stop that will not be able to happen.

Hereford lost one family doctor in August and will lose another one in October. These two physicians have practiced in Hereford for less than 10 years. We have a new family practitioner who recently moved to town and three others who have been here for about 23 years each. None of them plan to leave. It says a lot to me that the physicians who have cared for this community for so long are still here. They continue to care about this community and this hospital.

I have worked five days a week for the past three months. The morale problems I have seen were caused by a physician telling the staff that the hospital would be closed within six months. When you fear that you will no longer have a job, you also have a low morale. When you continually read all the negative reports in the newspaper and none of the "good things," you will have a low morale. This is not something being caused by administration or that can be solved by "going to the top." This is something that we as citizens of Deaf Smith County and patrons of Deaf Smith General Hospital can solve. Let's forget the negatives and concentrate on the good.

We have a good community, we have caring and compassionate physicians and health care workers. We have a HOSPITAL!! Let's do everything in our power to keep it that way. Do not listen to physicians, board members or reporters who verbally abuse the hospital. Tell them if they don't have anything good to say, to keep their mouths shut.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Chip Formby

Dear Editor:

Regarding the front-page article in Wednesday's Hereford Brand concerning health care in Hereford that the "problem" with our hospital was "morale," I would ask what is morale? The problem may not be morale but government control such as agencies called OSHA, Orba '89, Medicare Guidelines, Medicaid, etc.

Please consider writing some information articles for public education on the roles these agencies play and the effect they are having on our hospital and doctors in private practice. A research of their effect on hospitals should convince anyone that the days of "personalities" and "morale" controlling a taxing entity such as Deaf Smith General Hospital are gone forever.

Below are some questions you may or may not want to research.

What makes doctors stay in Hereford? Dr. Johnson opened private practice July 1965 (25 years ago); Dr. Payne, August 1967 (23 years); Dr. McBrayer, August 1968 (22 years); Dr. Perales, 1974 (16 years); Dr. Khuri, 1982 (8 years). What has made them stay?

Dr. Mims retired after 40 years of practice. Dr. Nobles retired after 40 years of practice. Dr. Wills practiced 40 years.

How many doctors have moved to Hereford expecting to gain economic freedom and have left the past 40 years? What makes some stay? Is it money? No, they can make more money elsewhere. Is it free time? No, they could work less hours and still make more money elsewhere. Is it community appreciation? It could have been in the past, however, for some strange reason they are now being attacked with "numbers" and questions regarding how many patients are seen.

Now, the doctors that are leaving Hereford have convinced at least one board member our hospital has a "problem" and may have to close...who said? How long have these doctors practiced in Hereford? How long have they stayed anywhere?

Do you suppose the hospital board member and the Hereford Brand are being used to create "sour grapes" by a "nomad" personality who happens to have M.D. behind his name?

Hereford has always been a pleasant community with a positive attitude and we've always prided ourselves that we have an outstanding small town hospital and outstanding physicians.

Let's not destroy our reputation and the efficiency of health care in Hereford with negative articles and partial truths. Let's see more articles on the hospital services, the challenges they encounter with conforming to government regulations, and what a great bunch of overcomers our medical community has working to serve us.

Sincerely,
Arvella Lauderback

Dear Editor:

The Hereford Outreach Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center needs compassionate individuals to volunteer their time. People in our community are being victimized and volunteers can make a difference in someone's life.

Formerly battered women have said that they would have left their dangerous situation sooner had they only known there was someone out there that cared and understood. Statistics show: one out of every two women will be battered by the man with whom she lives at some time in her life; one out of every four women will be sexually assaulted in her lifetime, and one out of four children will be sexually abused before the age of 18.

These people need you to help them take the step from victim to survivor. Individuals from all ages and backgrounds are encouraged to volunteer, each bringing his or her unique perspective into their work.

Individuals not inclined to work directly with victims may be interested in presenting community education programs and/or anti-victimization programs in the schools.

Hereford Outreach will be sponsoring a 30-hour volunteer training course beginning Sept. 27, free of charge. For those wishing to facilitate the the WHO(anti-victimization) program in the schools, there will be a 6-hour training in early October.

Please call 364-7822 for more information. There is no greater reward than helping someone in need.

BABBLING BROOKS

It's football season. In Hereford, that's FOOTBALL SEASON.

Of course, it hasn't always been that way. The stands at Whiteface Stadium have not always been packed with 4,000 rabid boosters hinging on every move of the Herd.

There have been lean years in the past. I watched from 20 miles down the road as the Whitefaces, in the days before Don (Hubba Hubba) Cumpston, back in the mid-to-late-70s when, well, lean may be a nice way of putting it.

But the Herd has been strong since that 1981 Class 5A state semifinalist team, and we hope the Herd will be strong for many years to come.

Every now and then, we hear a few "naysayers" going around talking about how we put too much emphasis on athletics, or maybe we can save some of this money we're spending if we don't hire as many coaches or have as many programs.

You may be surprised to learn that the athletic program costs very little money. A big reason for that is that we have such a strong showing at all of those football games.

Not only has our football program been successful, but the Herd has consistently had players and teams in many other sports advance regularly to regional and state competition.

You might think that those people in Wolfport or Levelland, Pampa or Borger, Dumas or Canyon, Lubbock or Amarillo, hate to face the Herd. They get just as fired up, and usually frustrated, when they face us in tennis and volleyball, cross-country and track, basketball and baseball.

And we sure as heck outnumber anyone when the Mighty Maroon Band, the drill team and twirlers take the field at halftime, or down out everyone during the game. You might be surprised, but there's a volleyball rivalry between Hereford and Dumas just as strong as the football rivalry was in the 60s when Hereford could literally taste those losses to the Demons.

Hereford is a state Class 4A power in cross-country. We may not have individual stars, but we have two of the most powerful cross-country teams in the state.

The road to Austin in all of our sports is paved through Hereford in Class 4A in those sports. The baseball program is one of the most successful in the Panhandle, and the basketball teams are improving.

Thanks to all of you who support the Herd so well in football, these other sports that are not so well attended are funded. Our huge junior high, freshman, sophomore and junior varsity programs in most of these sports can be afforded.

The success in athletics also trickles into the classroom. Excellence breeds excellence, and Hereford is as much a state (even national) leader in many co-curricular and extra-curricular events. We may not have 4,000 fans on hand when we compete in UIL or other activities, but there's as much effort put into preparing a successful debate or judging a steer as there is preparing for the Friday nights of fall.

It all relates, and it all relates to success. Whether you are competing under the lights, or it's just you and a judge in a classroom, or skillfully working with a saw or a lathe or a brush, we're all proud of all the successes of all of our students in any arena.

We don't expect excellence. We just expect the very best you can give us. And when you do, no matter what it's in, we appreciate your efforts.

Bush, Gorbachev arrive for summit

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) - President Bush arrived Saturday for his summit with Mikhail Gorbachev and said he hoped to "strengthen our common approach" to fighting Iraqi aggression in the Persian Gulf.

"If the nations of the world, acting together, continue as they have been to isolate Iraq and deny Saddam the fruits of aggression, we will set in place the cornerstone of an international order more stable and secure than any we have known," Bush said upon arrival.

In addition to the Persian Gulf crisis, Bush said he and Gorbachev would discuss superpower arms control, changes in Europe and the Soviet leader's economic reforms.

The sun peeked through overcast skies as the president's spanking new Boeing 747 Air Force One touched down after an overnight flight from Washington.

In town, the signs of summity were everywhere - from the American, Soviet and Finnish flags flying together to the extended hours that stores were staying open to cash in on the invasion of thousands of potential customers.

Several thousand people were in the streets around the presidential palace waiting for a glimpse of the American president's motorcade. The usual tight security was in place.

Gorbachev was to arrive tonight for his third summit with Bush, who noted their meeting comes as the international order is evolving in the post-Cold War era.

"This meeting comes at a critical time, at a moment when the actions we take can shape this new world for years to come," he said.

Even before the first handshake, a Soviet official raised the possibility the two leaders might decide to extend their talks into Monday. "It's unpredictable. It's up to them," said the official, who insisted on anonymity.

Gorbachev has been supportive of Bush's efforts to isolate Iraq in response to Saddam Hussein's August invasion of Kuwait. And even a joint summit statement reiterating a demand for an Iraqi withdrawal would be a remarkable event, marking the first time the one-time rivals have spoken jointly on a major international issue other than arms control in more than four decades.

Bush raised his hopes for a united U.S.-Soviet front against Iraq out of the Sunday summit.

"Here in Helsinki, President Gorbachev and I meet, hopefully to strengthen our common approach to this unjustifiable act of aggression," Bush said.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III was arriving Saturday from his tour of European and Middle East capitals seeking financial support for the deployment of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia.

Soviet officials were hailing the sudden summit as a landmark event denoting a new phase in superpower cooperation.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said in an interview Friday that the Soviet Union would be willing to send military forces to the Middle East under a military staff committee that included officers from the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council: the United States, Soviet Union, France, Britain and China.

Although the Bush administration low-balled expectations of a major initiative, even a joint statement reiterating the demand that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait would carry significance. It would mark the first time the Cold War rivals have spoken jointly on a major international issue other than arms control in more than four decades.

That would be a strong message for Iraq leader Saddam Hussein, U.S. officials said.

The leaders also are to use the summit to prod arms-control talks toward a treaty on conventional force reductions in Europe by year's end, administration officials said.

"It is an unstructured agenda," Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

While the Soviets have opposed Saddam's occupation of Kuwait, the summit gives Bush an opportunity to respond to Soviet misgivings about the U.S. military buildup in the region. Gorbachev has voiced concern about "unpredictable consequences" of military confrontations.

Iraqis will halt American flights

By CHRISTOPHER BURNS
Associated Press Writer

Hunger and hardship grew today for stranded refugees in Jordan as well as among diplomats and other foreigners holed up in Kuwait, whose Iraqi occupiers faced further pressure from a U.S.-Soviet summit this weekend.

Another freedom flight of Americans was expected out of Kuwait today, a day after the government of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein allowed 165 others to leave in a week-old airlift of foreigners.

But the exodus could slow. Iraq said today it will halt chartered flights to Amman beginning Sunday because of Jordanian complaints they are overwhelmed by the influx. An Iraqi spokesman said other flights will continue.

Five weeks after Iraq invaded Kuwait, thousands of Americans and other Westerners remain trapped in the two countries. Many are held as human shields if war breaks out.

Swedish and Norwegian diplomats said they planned to evacuate their embassies in Kuwait today but defied Saddam's order to officially close them.

Iraqi troops have surrounded the U.S. and other compounds.

President Bush arrived today in Helsinki, Finland, where he will meet with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Sunday to try to break the desert deadlock.

Bush told reporters upon arriving that he hoped during the summit will "strengthen our common approach to this unjustifiable act of aggression."

Moscow said Friday that it would be willing to provide troops for a U.N. peacekeeping force in the Persian Gulf - if they were under a joint command that included Soviet generals.

Financial support for the effort to counter Saddam's Aug. 2 invasion of oil-rich Kuwait grew by the billions Friday. Pledges came from Japan, South Korea and Kuwait, whose exiled leaders promised $5 billion. Saudi Arabia pledged several billion Thursday.

About 100,000 U.S. troops are dug into the Saudi desert south of the Kuwaiti border at an estimated cost of $1 billion a month. Scores of U.S. and other warships in the Persian Gulf region are enforcing a U.N.-sanctioned embargo against the Baghdad government.

The State Department meanwhile said Friday night the United States would "view with utmost seriousness" any Iraqi-sponsored terrorism. In diplomatic circles, such language is considered a grave warning of severe consequences.

Saddam, who seized Kuwait in a dispute over oil, land and money, has called on Moslems to wage a holy war against the United States and its allies in the gulf crisis.

A Jordanian border official said 225,000 Egyptian refugees were waiting to cross from Iraq but that Jordan was holding them back because it was overwhelmed by the 100,000 refugees already stranded in its desert.

"They are waiting under terrible conditions for permission to cross into Jordan to continue their journey home," the official said, who cannot be named under regulations.

"But we cannot cope with such huge numbers before the Asian evacuees already inside Jordan waiting for transportation to their homes are shifted," he added.

James N. Purcell, director of the U.N. International Organization for Migration, appealed urgently in Jordan for ships and aircraft to repatriate the Asians squatting in hot and dirty camps "before human suffering becomes a human tragedy."

The United States said Friday that it will dispatch 27,000 tons of rice, vegetable oil and wheat flour worth $12 million to the camps. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said in Washington. The food is to be shipped from ports by Sept. 30, a statement issued by the department said.

Other countries have pledged millions of dollars in relief, but distribution has been slow.

In Kuwait, a few foreign embassies - including the U.S. mission - were still defying a 2-week-old Iraqi order to shut their doors. But without power, water, telephone service or food, the diplomats were being forced to retreat. Norway said it planned to evacuate its embassy today.

The embassies have tried to stay open in part to avoid the appearance of having accepted Iraq's annexation of the emirate, and in part to try to provide protection to their citizens.

State Department spokesman Mark Dillen said U.S. officials hoped another group of Americans would leave Kuwait for Amman today, and fly to Charleston, S.C., later during the weekend, along with Friday's 165 arrivals.

As the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait stretched into a sixth week, President Bush was flying Friday night to Helsinki, Finland, where he will meet with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Sunday to try to break the desert deadlock.

No. 1 A&M Tigers roar past Navasota

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer
A&M Consolidated coach Ross Rogers got quickly to the point when it came to his quarterback, Tommy Preston.

"He's magic," Rogers said after the 6-2, 187-pound senior led the Tigers to a 24-6 victory over perennial rival Navasota in the season opener for both teams Friday night.

Preston, who many consider to be the state's best high school quarterback, dislocated his left shoulder three weeks ago and had only two days of practice going into Friday night's contest.

He ran only 12 plays, but led A&M Consolidated, ranked No. 1 among Texas' Class 4A teams, to 17 points.

He completed six of nine passes for 106 yards, including a 43-yard touchdown pass to Mike Pearce, and ran for another nine yards on two carries. His three incompletions were catchable.

"It wasn't a surprise to us," Rogers said. "We saw it all week long."

A standing-room-only crowd of 5,000 saw the game in Navasota, which is only 25 miles southeast of College Station. Navasota took the state's No. 3 ranking in Class 3A into the battle.

In other games, the top-ranked teams of Class 3A and 2A got the 1990 season off to a good start, but unranked Franklin stunned pre-season No. 1 pick Thorndale, 22-15, in a Class 1A contest.

Vernon, top-ranked in 3A, beat Altus, Okla., 35-26, while No. 1-ranked Groveton in Class 2A beat Coldspring 37-13.

Aldine, ranked No. 1 in Class 5A, waited until Saturday night to get its season under way. Aldine plays Houston Madison.

Elsewhere in Class 5A, No. 2-ranked Converse Judson beat San Antonio Holmes 35-15, No. 3-ranked Willowridge thumped Houston Stratford 27-6, and No. 4-ranked Odessa Permian defeated El Paso Irvin 27-7.

There was one upset in Class 5A. Fifth-ranked Marshall crossed over into Louisiana, where Monroe Neville came out on top, 21-14. Dallas Carter, rated No. 6, beat Killeen Ellison 29-12, No. 7 Arlington Lamar beat Irving Nimitz 26-14, and No. 10 Amarillo Palo Duro beat Odessa 20-7.

Defending Class 4A state champion Chapel Hill lost its season opener. The Bulldogs, who were ranked No. 2 in the state in The Associated Press preseason poll, had to go without star runningback Kendrick Bell, who is injured, against Henderson, ranked No. 8 in the state.

Henderson won 19-7. The last time Chapel Hill played Henderson was in the ninth game of last season, when Henderson also won, dropping Chapel Hill to 5-4 for the year. Chapel Hill finished second to Henderson in district, but won its last seven games to win the state championship.

Also in Class 4A, No. 3-ranked Lubbock Estacado beat Plainview 33-14, while No. 5-ranked Dallas Roosevelt beat Wilmer-Hutchins 12-0. But there was one upset in 4A. Austin Westlake, the No. 6 team, was upset by Kerrville, 27-22.

In 3A, No. 2-ranked Southlake Carroll barely held on, beating Coppell 16-14. No. 4 Mexia, like third-ranked Navasota, bit the dust. Mexia was beaten by Waco Connally, 9-7. Seventh-ranked Odem also lost, falling 32-26 to Port Lavaca. But fifth-ranked Ballinger beat Colorado City 26-12 and sixth-ranked Newton beat Nederland 13-6.

In Class 2A, second-ranked Pilot Point nipped at the heels of frontrunner Groveton by overpowering Paradise 46-0. Fourth-ranked Schulenburg also won impressively, shutting out East Bernard 33-0. Fifth-ranked Refugio was held to 17-7 tie with Sinton.

In Class A, No. 2-ranked Munday, a perennial Class A power, destroyed Haskell 64-19. No. 3-ranked Italy dismissed Blooming Grove 35-7. No. 4-ranked Farwell disposed of Plains 34-13, and No. 5-ranked Garden City routed Forsan 51-8.

There was one other upset in Class A besides No. 1-ranked Thorndale. At the other end of the rankings, 10th-ranked Coolidge was beaten 32-6 by Calvert.

Dodgers top Cincy, 3-1

By The Associated Press
Los Angeles has blown plenty of big leads this season. But this time, rookie Jim Nedlinger held on and so did the Dodgers, and they cut into Cincinnati's big lead in the National League West.

Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 3-1 Friday night in the opener of the three-game series at Dodger Stadium and trimmed the Reds' lead to 5 1/2 games. The Dodgers won despite four errors and sent Cincinnati to its fourth loss in five games.

"I don't want to talk about the pennant race," Reds manager Lou Piniella said. "I'll talk to you about the ballgame. We just didn't hit the ball."

In other games, Montreal stopped Pittsburgh 4-1, Philadelphia halted New York 4-1, Houston got past San Francisco 2-1, St. Louis downed Chicago 4-3 and Atlanta beat San Diego 4-1.

Nedlinger shut out Cincinnati on three hits for eight innings, but the Reds threatened in the ninth when their first two batters reached on a single and shortstop Alfredo Griffin's second error of the game.

Jay Howell got the last three outs for his 14th save.

Nedlinger (4-1) struck out three and walked none in his eighth major-league start. His longest previous outing was 7 2-3 innings twice, including a 1-0 loss at Cincinnati on Aug. 7.

Jose Rijo (11-7) gave up three hits in seven innings. He walked five and balked once in the first three innings.

Expos 4, Pirates 1
At Three Rivers Stadium, Montreal stopped Pittsburgh's six-game winning streak and beat the Pirates for the ninth time in 13 tries this season.

Despite the loss, Pittsburgh held its 3 1/2-game lead over New York in the NL East.

Oil Can Boyd (9-5) gave up three hits in 6 2-3 innings and Tim Burke pitched one inning for his 17th save in 22 opportunities.

John Smiley (-8) remained winless in his last five starts against the Expos and is 3-8 lifetime. Jerry Reuss pitched for the Pirates for the first time since 1978 and became the 22nd player and eighth pitcher to appear in four decades.

First baseman Sid Bream's throwing error allowed two runs to score in the fifth and put Montreal ahead for good.

Phillies 4, Mets 1
Jose DeJesus again shut down New York and Lenny Dykstra got three hits and scored three runs as Philadelphia extended the Mets' longest losing streak of the season to five.

New York, swept in a three-game series at Pittsburgh, has just three runs and 20 hits in its five losses.

DeJesus (5-6), who pitched a two-hit shutout against the Mets on Aug. 7, came back with a four-hitter. He struck out three, walked three and permitted just two runners past first after the first inning.

David Cone (11-8) struck out a career-high 12 in 6 1-3 innings for the visiting Mets. He passed Ramon Martinez of the Los Angeles Dodgers for the league strikeout lead with 193.

Astros 2, Giants 1
Ken Caminiti drew a bases-loaded walk that broke a scoreless tie in the ninth inning for visiting Houston.

The Astros loaded the bases against John Burkett (11-7) on two singles and a walk. Reliever Francisco Oliveras walked Caminiti on four pitches and Eric Anthony hit a sacrifice fly.

Danny Darwin (11-2) gave up seven hits and left after Matt Williams' leadoff single in the ninth. Williams eventually scored on three wild pitches, and Dave Smith got his 23rd save.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 3
Bob Tewksbury outpitched Greg Maddux and Tom Pagnozzi drove in two runs as St. Louis won at Wrigley Field.

Tewksbury (10-5) gave up five hits, including Andre Dawson's 34th home run, in seven innings. Lee Smith got his 25th save.

Maddux (12-13) gave up 10 hits in seven innings. He had lost only three of his previous 11 starts, compiling a 1.89 ERA.

Braves 4, Padres 1
Charlie Leibrandt pitched a four-hitter for his 100th victory as Atlanta won in San Diego.

Leibrandt (8-8) has not allowed an earned run in 25 innings. He struck out five and walked two in his fourth complete game.

Ed Whitson (12-8) lost for the first time in eight starts. He gave up four runs in six innings, but still leads the league with a 2.37 ERA.

A's beat up on Yankees

By The Associated Press
It's a down year for the New York Yankees and the Oakland Athletics are making it worse.

The Athletics, attempting to become the first team to sweep a season series from the Yankees, beat New York 7-1 Friday night. They lead the season series 10-0 with two games left this weekend at Yankee Stadium.

"I don't know if we're that much better than they are," said Jose Canseco, who doubled and hit his 36th homer. "They're a young team, trying to find their way."

Oakland, which has outscored the last-place Yankees 50-7, took a 7 1/2-game lead in the AL West as the Chicago White Sox lost to Toronto 3-1.

In other games, Boston beat Seattle 5-4 in 11 innings, Minnesota beat Cleveland 2-0, Baltimore beat California 6-2, Milwaukee beat Detroit 6-5 and Texas beat Kansas City 9-4.

Besides Canseco's hittng fireworks, Mark McGwire hit his 35th home run in the fifth inning. Andy Hawkins (5-12) got the loss.

Curt Young (8-5) was the winner and Todd Burns got his third save.

Blue Jays 3, White Sox 1
Mookie Wilson hit a two-out, two-run double in the seventh off Melido Perez (12-13), who had pitched 5 2-3 no-hit innings until Kelly's Gruber's double.

Todd Stottlemyre (13-14) gave up one run and four hits in eight innings at the SkyDome and Tom Henke got three outs for his 27th save.

Red Sox 5, Mariners 4
Carlos Quintana tied the score with a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning at Fenway Park and drove in the winning run with a one-out single off Mike Jackson (5-7) in the 11th as Boston snapped a three-game losing streak.

The Red Sox, coming off a three-game sweep by Oakland, maintained their 5 1/2-game lead over Toronto. Before the game, the Red Sox learned that 20-game winner Roger Clemens will miss at least two starts with tendinitis in his right shoulder.

Ken Griffey Sr. went 4-for-5, including a home run and RBI single.

Twins 2, Indians 0
Allan Anderson pitched a five-hitter over 8 1-3 innings in the Metrodome.

Anderson (7-17) was two outs away from his fourth complete game in his last five starts before Rick Aguilera struck out Sandy Alomar Jr. and Brook Jacoby for his 28th save.

Bud Black (10-10) pitched a six-hitter for Cleveland.

Orioles 6, Angels 2
Sam Horn had three hits and four RBIs, including a three-run homer, as Baltimore snapped a six-game losing streak.

Ben McDonald (6-4) gave up four hits and two runs in eight innings at Memorial Stadium to earn his first victory since Aug. 13. Gregg Olson finished for his 30th save, allowing one hit.

YOUR EYES

"PLUS" LENSES

Some children are so farsighted that they have trouble seeing clearly at close range or focusing on definitive words or phrases, although their distance vision is clear. The amount of energy the child has to exert to see the printed page clearly in the early school grades may cause headaches and discourage the child from reading.

Help is available. The optometrist may find it advisable to fit the child with a "plus" lens, one which brings the image forward to the retina to correct the farsightedness. Prescribed at this time, eye-glasses can improve the youngster's ability to see the printed page and allow reading to be enjoyable. Headaches, if they are visually related, tend to disappear.

Another reason for prescribing a plus lens for a young child would be to alleviate a muscle coordination problem or help with a perceptual problem. Each youngster's eye are different.

Sometimes after wearing a plus lens for a prescribed period of time, a child's near vision development improves enough to eliminate the need for glasses. Of course, the child's vision should be checked regularly, so that removal of the glasses is a professional decision.

Rams look to end 49ers dominance

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

It has become trendy to suggest that the San Francisco 49ers are ready to etch their place in NFL history as much because of Eddie DeBartolo as Joe Montana, Jerry Rice, Roger Craig, Bill Walsh and George Seifert. It became particularly trendy after DeBartolo was called before commissioner Paul Tagliabue for allegedly breaking NFL rules by taking money from his construction company earnings to lavish on his players - millions to sign Plan B free agents, thousands to treat the players and their families to a week in Kauai.

Wrong. As the 49ers try to become the first team ever to win five Super Bowls and the first two win three in a row, DeBartolo's generosity is an effect, rather than a cause. "I think the motivation comes from within us," says offensive tackle Bubba Paris, who has been part of the last three Super Bowl championships.

"Once you experience the elation of being on top you want to stay there. There's no worse feeling than going home knowing that somebody else has something that you had and want again."

The way the NFC shapes up for 1990, the hardest part may be getting there. As it has been for most of the '80s, it's clearly the dominant conference, particularly at the top.

Not since the Raiders won following the 1983 season has an AFC team won the Super Bowl. Only once, when Cincinnati came within 34 seconds of beating the 49ers, has an AFC team even come close. And for most of the past four or five years, the top five teams in the NFC have been as strong or stronger than anyone in the rival conference.

It looks the same this year. The 49ers, 14-2 last year, are not even prohibitive favorites to win their own division. The Los Angeles Rams need only consistency to reach their level.

In the Central Division, Minnesota has the players to go all the way and needs only more harmony and a better performance by quarterback Wade Wilson. The long-time patsies, Green Bay, Detroit and Tampa Bay, have all improved.

And in the East, New York, Philadelphia and Washington all have Super Bowl potential, particularly the Giants, who went 12-4 last season in what was supposed to be a building year.

But the NFC has to start with San Francisco and its quest for a "threepeat."

Physically, the elements are there - Montana throwing to Rice and John Taylor, with a new weapon in Mike Sherrard, who is healthy after missing most of three years with leg problems.

Defensively, the 49ers are stocked with unpublicized stars like Pierce Holt, Kevin Fagan and Chet Brooks plus veterans like Matt Millen, Jim Burt and Dave Waymer, picked up for leadership and experience.

And they seem to have the perfect coach - George Seifert, who took over for Walsh and refined what "the genius" had built.

But they may not even win the division because the Rams seem ready to blossom - in large measure from the fruits of the 1987 trade that brought them 10 high draft picks for Eric Dickerson.

"I think this is the year for a lot of the second- and third-year players we got from that deal," says coach John Robinson, whose team has made the playoff six of the last seven years, but only once as division champion.

Last year, the Rams went 10-6, beat the Eagles and Giants, then lost 30-3 in the NFC title game to the 49ers, with whom they had split during the regular season.

Everett trailed only Montana in the NFC quarterback rankings, throwing for 4,310 yards and a league-leading 29 touchdowns. His receivers - Henry Ellard, Flipper Anderson and Aaron Cox plus tight end Pete Holcomb - may be every bit as dangerous as the San Francisco crew.

Look for Cleveland Gary, last year's No. 1 draft pick to emerge as a franchise back after missing most of last season because of a protracted holdout. And look for improvement from defensive youngsters such as defensive end Brian Smith, linebacker Fred Strickland and defensive back Anthony Newman.

The rest of the West is ... the rest of the West.

New Orleans, 9-7 last year, would contend in most divisions. Here, with the unproven John Fourcade at quarterback, they can only hope for a wild-card playoff spot.

Atlanta, 3-13, is improved on paper. But new coach Jerry Glanville's teams have always been unpredictable and so are many of his players, like Deion Sanders, who wandered into camp two weeks late after leaving baseball.

The East is a two-tier division where the three at the top - New York,

Washington and Philadelphia - all play brutal football with only a touch of the panache of the warm-weather teams.

The Giants put some flash in their offense last year with kick returner-runner-receiver Dave Meggett and seem to have added more with Rodney Hampton, their No. 1 draft pick. He ran 89 yards for a touchdown the first time he touched the ball in an exhibition. Run is what they will do most behind a huge, young offensive line that may soon be the league's best, then sit back and let their usually solid defense do the rest.

Washington missed the playoffs despite a 10-6 record because it can't beat the Giants - the Redskins have lost seven of the last eight non-strike games. They have three veteran running backs - Gerald Riggs, Earnest Byner and James Wilder - to run Joe Gibbs' offense; a top-notch receiving trio of Ricky Sanders, Gary Clark and Art Monk; and a somewhat suspect defense.

Can anyone in AFC top Denver? Can Denver win a Super Bowl?

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

There was a subtle change at the Denver Broncos' training camp this summer.

Like fewer television trucks, fewer reporters, and a certain defensiveness among members of a team that has won three of the last four AFC championships.

That's what happens when you lose three Super Bowls by an average of 32 points a game.

"Sure, the Super Bowl stays in the back of our heads," says safety Dennis Smith. "You keep wondering why we played so badly each time. Was it just a bad day or was it us?"

Why the Broncos played badly may have to do with the difference between the two conferences.

Not only has an NFC team won the last six NFL titles, but only one game has been close - San Francisco's 20-16 win over Cincinnati in 1989.

It doesn't look much different this season, which is why people sick of seeing Denver getting run out of the Super Bowl should be prepared for a repeat. Not only is every other AFC team flawed in one way or another, but the Broncos made the Super Bowl in a rebuilding year, starting four rookies for most of the season.

Who will challenge? Perhaps someone from the balanced Central Division - Houston, under new coach Jack Pardee; Cincinnati, Pittsburgh or even Cleveland, if it can patch together an offensive line. Perhaps Buffalo or Miami in the East or emerging Kansas City in the West.

But all have problems - Houston needs help on defense, the Bengals have several injury-created holes, and the Chiefs lack a proven quarterback. Which brings us to (oh, no!) Denver.

"People forget that we're a young team," coach Dan Reeves says. "We've got a lot of second-year guys who should get better."

Principal among them is Bobby Humphrey, who ran for 1,151 yards as a rookie. He was joined in an all-rookie backfield by Melvin Bratton. Steve Atwater looked like a future Pro Bowler at strong safety and Dave Widell the same at guard.

This year, Reeves expects more of last year's rookie crop to emerge, particularly Warren Powers, a 280-pound defensive end who will add more beef to a still small defense. The versatile Karl Mecklenburg at outside linebacker will add more speed to the pass rush.

But the cornerbacks are still slow, a weakness exploited by Joe Montana in San Francisco's 55-10 Super Bowl victory. Also, rookie Alton Montgomery, drafted for corner, looks more like a safety.

Nevertheless, the key is still John Elway, much maligned for his Super Bowl performances but still a quarterback who can lift a team all by himself. If all three of his Amigos - Mark Jackson, Vance Johnson and Ricky Nattiel - stay healthy, the Broncos have one of the NFL's best balanced offenses.

"For as much as John has played under a microscope, he's still done the job," Reeves says. "We wouldn't have been to three Super Bowls without him."

If Kansas City had Elway, the division winner wouldn't be a question. Instead, coach Marty Schottenheimer is hoping Steve Pelluer can find the consistency he lacked in Dallas. If not, his quarterback is 35-year-old Steve DeBerg, with second-year man Mike Elkins a project.

Otherwise the Chiefs, who went from 4-11-1 to 8-7-1 in Schottenheimer's first season, are solid with Christian Okoye, the league's leading rusher. They also have an outstanding offensive line and one of the league's unsung defenses.

Linebacker Derrick Thomas, the latest Lawrence Taylor-clone, showed as a rookie that he may be the real thing. Defensive end Neil Smith turned it on his second year, and the Chiefs got a Plan B find in nose tackle Dan Salcaumua. Deron Cherry's knee is hurting and cornerbacks Albert Lewis and Kevin Ross were holdouts. If they're around, the secondary is strong.

San Diego, 6-10 last season, is also building around defense, particularly a front seven that features Lee Williams, Burt Grossman, Leslie O'Neal, Billy Ray Smith and rookie linebacker Junior Seau. The problem is the offensive line, which may make second-year quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver's learning period a little longer.

The Raiders are on an 8-8 treadmill that doesn't figure to change until they find a permanent home.

There are some good things about what was once the league's most feared team - Marcus Allen, Bo Jackson (when he shows up), Tim Brown, Howie Long and an offensive line that improved last year with the addition of Steve Wisniewski. But neither Jay Schroeder nor Steve Beuerlein has shown any long-term consistency at quarterback.

The best thing about Seattle, 7-9 last year, may be its rookies - defensive linemen Cortez Kennedy and Eric Hayes, linebacker Terry Wooden and safety Robert Blackmon.

If all come through, they provide a good foundation for rebuilding, which is what's going on in the Pacific Northwest with Steve Largent retired, Curt Warner Plan B'd to the Rams and Brian Bosworth gone to Hollywood.

Cleveland won the Central at 9-6-1 last year, only a game and a half better than last place Cincinnati, 8-8, as Houston and Pittsburgh also made the playoffs.

Look for Houston to stabilize with Jack Pardee replacing Jerry Glanville as head coach.

But it may take a while as the defense goes from a 3-4 to a 4-3 and the offense installs the run-and-shoot full time. Warren Moon is the perfect quarterback for the system if he stays healthy and the receivers - Haywood Jeffries, Drew Hill, Ernest Givins and Curtis Duncan fit the system.

Cincinnati is still talented, but the knee injury sustained during a basketball game to cornerback Eric Thomas will hurt the defense and Ickey Woods isn't fully recovered from the knee he hurt last year. That means James Brooks, at 32, will have to carry the load at running back again.

The offensive line is also thinner with Max Montoya Plan B'd off to the Raiders.

Pittsburgh started last season by losing two games by an aggregate score of 92-10 and finished 9-7. It made the playoffs, beat Houston and scored Denver, losing 24-23 at Mile High Stadium.

Tim Worley and Merrill Hoge look like an excellent set of running backs and Bobby Brister is a leader at quarterback if not a consistent passer. The secondary is good, but the defense still needs a pass rusher.

Cleveland has made the playoffs five straight years but has lost three

Aikman still looking for first win with Cowboys

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
IRVING (AP) - Troy Aikman can joke about it but it grates on him. He's a millionaire quarterback who has never won a game in the NFL.

Introduced at the Dallas Cowboys kickoff luncheon recently as the Most Valuable Cowboys' Player in 1989, Aikman quipped "I guess (running back) Paul Palmer couldn't make the flight in from Cincinnati."

Aikman will be 0-11 as a starting quarterback when the Cowboys open the season at home on Sunday against the San Diego Chargers at 3 p.m.

Dallas' only victory in a 1-15 rookie year for Aikman was 13-3 over the Washington Redskins. The starting quarterback was Steve Walsh, who worked the five weeks Aikman spent on the sidelines recovering from a broken finger.

"Aikman has the same record as Roger Staubach," quipped broadcaster Dale Hansen. "Each one of them has had three concussions."

Aikman has come close to winning but the Dallas defense let him down. Aikman set an NFL rookie record with 379 yards passing but lost to Phoenix. He was knocked unconscious as he delivered a 75-yard touchdown pass to James Dixon to give Dallas a 20-17 lead over Phoenix with less than two minutes to play. When he woke up, the Cardinals had rallied to win the game.

Behind an offensive line that had a different cast of characters almost every week, Aikman hit 155 of 293 passes for 1,749 yards. He threw nine touchdown passes but suffered 18 interceptions.

Staubach has been impressed by Aikman.

"He has a quiet confidence about him," Staubach said. "I think our personalities might be the same."

Aikman said he's ready to win. "I learned a lot the hard way in my rookie season," Aikman said. "I can read defenses better. At times last year, things were a blur."

Aikman will have to be productive for Dallas to have a chance against the Chargers while the Cowboys backfield introduces themselves to each other. Alonzo Highsmith was obtained in a trade from Houston and first round pick Emmitt Smith signed a four-year contract, all this week.

Timmy Smith and Tommie Agee were expected to start in the Dallas backfield.

San Diego will have a surprise starter at quarterback, Mark Vlasic, who beat out Billy Joe Tolliver in training camp.

It's Chargers running back Marion Butts who worries Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

"Butts impressed us when we practiced with the Chargers and played against them in a preseason game," Johnson said. "San Diego beat us in the preseason (28-16) so we know what's ahead of us."

The Chargers rated field goal favorites over the Cowboys who haven't won a regular home game since they defeated the Atlanta Falcons on Sept. 15, 1988.

New coaches face old teams

By The Associated Press
Jerry Glanville, Bruce Coslet and Joe Bugel have important things to remember Sunday - like which side of the stadium to stand on.

All three debut as head coach of a new team Sunday - Glanville with Atlanta, Coslet with the New York Jets, and Bugel with Phoenix - and all three have to face their previous employers.

The Falcons open up against the Houston Oilers, who Glanville coached for the previous 4 1/2 seasons. Coslet last was seen as offensive coordinator for the Cincinnati Bengals, New York's opponent.

Bugel molded the offensive line of the Washington Redskins, the Hogs. They were the dominant offensive line of the 80s; now Bugel must find a way through them on Sunday.

Glanville, at least, hasn't spent a lot of time talking about his first meeting against his former team.

"Anytime you leave one club and go to another club, the next time you play that club you have a special emotion," Glanville said. "The next five times you play them, that feeling is not there."

Houston coach Jack Pardee, who moved over from the University of Houston to replace Glanville, thinks the Oilers have that special emotion.

"This is their chance to show their former coach that they are as good or better than they thought they were," Pardee said.

Atlanta went 4-0 in exhibition games while Houston was 1-3.

Coslet, who created the Bengals sharp passing attack and complicated formations, will look to strike quickly against Cincinnati's strong defense. Actually, Coslet finds the Bengals defense surprising.

"That part of it has been very interesting," Coslet said. "I was so wrapped up in the offense (in Cincinnati) that I wasn't aware of all the stuff that we did defensively - all the little, fine points that you really have to be aware of."

The Jets spent the preseason deciding on several positions, particularly quarterback. Ken O'Brien, the starter for the last six seasons, will open again, but Tony Eason is waiting.

Bugel just wants a victory in RFK

Stadium, where the Cardinals haven't won since 1979.

"If our young guys don't grow up real fast, it'll be a long afternoon," Bugel said.

He made several changes, including waiving Gary Hogeboom, Earl Ferrell and Stump Mitchell. Bugel also redesigned the offense, using a couple of wrinkles from Washington coach Joe Gibbs.

Bugel has also told his players of the first year for him and Gibbs at Washington. The team lost its first five games, but finished 8-8 and won the Super Bowl the next season.

"When we went 0-5 that first year, Joe was the guy who pulled everything together," Bugel said. "We're going through that now here and I can thank Joe for teaching me how to persevere."

Other Sunday games will have Denver at the Los Angeles Raiders, Philadelphia at the New York Giants, the Los Angeles Rams at Green Bay, Minnesota at Kansas City, Indianapolis at Buffalo, Seattle at Chicago, San Diego at Dallas, Tampa Bay at Detroit, and Miami at New England.

San Francisco plays at New Orleans on Monday night.

YMCA sets youth leagues

The Hereford YMCA has opened registration for the 1990 boys flag football and girls volleyball leagues.

The flag football league will offer competition for boys in first-sixth grades. The league will have separate divisions for first and second grades, third and fourth and fifth and sixth.

AFC

times to Denver in the AFC title game. The Browns will have trouble making it six, primarily because the offensive line is in disarray, endangering the health of Bernie Kosar.

"We're not going anywhere if we can't block anyone," coach Bud Carson says.

That's why Miami, which lost four of its last five to finish 8-8, may go somewhere in the East. Despite leading the league in fewest sacks allowed every year because of Dan Marino's quick release, the offensive line has been a weak spot.

If rookies Richmond Webb and Keith Sims can step in up front, Marino may get a running game to go with the passing threat. Second-year-man Sammie Smith is the runner although he could be more durable.

That could be enough in a relatively weak division, particularly if the defense holds up. Last season it was bolstered by the pass-rushing of Jeff Cross and featured linebacker John

Six-year-olds may participate in the first-second grade division.

Players must provide their own shoes. Cleated shoes will not be allowed.

The volleyball league will offer competition for girls in first-sixth grades. The league will have separate divisions for first-third grades and Offerdahl and safeties Jarvis Williams and Louis Oliver.

If it doesn't, then it's Buffalo, which claims to have overcome the internal problems that dropped it from 12-4 to 9-7 last year. Despite a nucleus of real and potential All-Pro's in linebackers Cornelius Bennett and Shane Conlan, defensive end Bruce Smith, quarterback Jim Kelly and running back Thurman Thomas, the Bills underachieved last year.

This season, Buffalo lost two of its leaders from the defensive line - Art Still and Fred Smerlas. And Thomas and Will Wohlford, its best offensive lineman, held out. If Marv Levy can pull things together, Buffalo can win.

Indianapolis, 8-8, last year, took two steps back in hopes that it can take three steps forward someday.

The trade of Chris Hinton and Andre Rison to Atlanta for the rights to quarterback Jeff George makes this a rebuilding year by definition, particularly with Eric Dickerson's presence in doubt. The front seven is fourth-sixth grades. Six-year-olds may participate in the first-third grade division.

Players must provide their own shoes and knee pads. Only tennis shoes will be allowed.

Entry fee for the leagues is $9 per player. All players must be YMCA members. One-year memberships may solid, but there's not enough elsewhere to get very far.

The New York Jets, on the other hand, show signs of reawakening behind new coach Bruce Coslet. The strength is the receiving corps, where rookie Rob Moore bolsters Al Toon, but the offensive line and pass rush need too much work to make New York, 4-12 last year, an immediate contender.

New England, 5-11, also has offensive line troubles and is going with two old quarterbacks, Marc Wilson and Steve Grogan. Rod Rust is the new coach and may get a better season from John Stephens, who fell off after an outstanding rookie year. The playoffs, however, are a long haul away.

Predictions:
WEST: Denver.
CENTRAL: Houston.
EAST: Miami.
WILD CARDS: Buffalo, Cincinnati, Kansas City.
AFC CHAMPION: Houston

AL ROUNDUP

Brewers 6, Tigers 5
Robin Yount hit a three-run homer off Jack Morris (11-17), who tied the Yankees for the most losses in the majors.

Teddy Higuera (10-6) gave up seven hits, struck out six and walked three in 6 1-3 innings at County Stadium. Chuck Crim pitched 2 1-3 hitless innings for his 10th save.

Higuera had a two-hit shutout until Cecil Fielder's 445-foot home run to center field in the sixth, his 45th home run of the season.

Rangers 9, Royals 4
Charlie Hough won for the first time since Aug. 11 and Pete Incaviglia hit a pair of 400-foot homers as Texas won its third straight.

Hough (11-10) gave up eight hits in eight innings as the Royals lost their fifth straight. Tom Gordon (10-10) allowed 10 hits and seven runs in 4 2-3 innings for the visiting Royals.

H&R Block Income Tax Course Begins Sept. 10th

Thousands of people are saving money at tax time and earning money in their spare time as income tax preparers.

H&R BLOCK is offering a Basic Income Tax Course starting Sept. 10. There will be a choice of morning, afternoon or evening classes. Classes will be held at several locations in Amarillo.

The modest fee charged for this course includes all textbooks, reference materials and tax forms necessary for completion of the school. The fee may be paid by installment. The course is approved by the Texas Education Agency and certificates are awarded to all graduates.

The tax school will meet twice a week for 13 weeks and will consist of 75-hours of instruction. Experienced BLOCK personnel will teach current tax laws, theory and application, and electronic filing as practiced in BLOCK offices.

The course is programmed to teach students increasingly complex problems as study progresses. There is a classroom lecture on each subject and practice problems at every level. Some of the topics covered are filing requirements, itemizing deductions, farm returns, small business returns, rentals, royalties, and electronic filing requirements. Students find the course interesting and challenging.

Anyone may enroll. There are no restrictions or qualifications of any kind. The course is ideally suited for housewives, retired persons, teachers or anyone wanting to acquire tax knowledge or supplement their income.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with BLOCK. However, BLOCK is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H&R BLOCK.

Registration forms and brochures for the Income Tax Course may be obtained by contacting the H&R BLOCK office at 300 West 10th Street, Amarillo, Texas 79101 (806) 373-0777

NFC

Unlike the Redskins, the Eagles, 11-5, can beat the Giants - four straight over the last two years.

But they've faltered elsewhere because they're not deep enough to supplement Reggie White, one of the league's best defensive fronts, and quarterback Randall Cunningham, who had an off-year last season. The running backs are plodders and the receivers young.

Phoenix, under new coach Joe Bugel, will be phasing out old talent and phasing in new from last year's 5-11 team. Dallas, 1-15 in Jimmy Johnson's first year, is still starting from scratch.

Minnesota should win the Central. Herschel Walker, who never quite fit in after being obtained from Dallas last year, will have the benefit of a full training camp and has looked good as a receiver. The defensive line remains, with Philadelphia's, the league's best. Chris Doleman led the league with 20 sacks last year and Keith Millard was the defensive player of the year.

The key will be quarterback, where Wilson signed a new contract last year and slipped badly from his Pro Bowl level of 1988.

Green Bay, 10-6 last year, may need luck to equal that mark again.

Don Majkowski, a holdout in training camp, pulled out four of those games in the last minute and the schedule this year is a lot harder. Still, Tim Harris remains one of the game's best pass rushers and Sterling Sharpe has emerged as one of the best receivers.

Detroit, 7-9, may be the league's most improved team, with an offense finally added to what has been a good defense.

The Lions won their last five and six of the last seven as Mouse Davis' run and shoot began to work. While rookie Andre Ware is the quarterback of the future, Rodney Peete and Bob Gagliano are there for the present. Their main threat is Barry Sanders, who rushed for 1,470 yds as a rookie.

Chicago went the other way last year, starting 4-0 and finishing 2-10 after the defense fell apart when Dan Hampton injured his knee. Mike Ditka ran a rough camp, but the team is at a difficult stage - trying to integrate a lot of young players with veterans who may have a year or two left.

Another problem is quarterback, where both Mike Tomczak and Jim Harbaugh have played like backups.

Tampa Bay is on a 5-11 treadmill that could get better if Keith McCants and Broderick Thomas, the last two No. 1 draft choices, become the kind of bookend linebackers so much in vogue these days. It would also help if quarterback Vinny Testaverde finally fulfills his promise.

Predictions:
EAST: Giants.
CENTRAL: Vikings.
WEST: Rams.
Wild Cards: 49ers, Redskins, Lions.
NFC Champion: Rams.

'Smart' thermostats save money

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Newsfeatures

Homeowners know that money spent on smart thermostats can save many heating dollars at a relatively low cost.

But, there's just one problem - too many to choose from. Computerized, programmable, solid state, energy-efficient or just plain "smart," there are literally hundreds of thermostats on the market, all claiming to apply the latest technology.

Faced with all this sophistication, it's sometimes harder to remember that an automatic thermostat's job is essentially a very simple one: to turn down the heating or cooling system when it's not needed and back on when it is. Keeping that in mind, though, can help you save money and avoid some unexpected pitfalls when you go about selecting a thermostat.

Automatic thermostats save money because a cool house loses heat more slowly to the outdoors than a warm house. The cooler the house and the longer it's kept cool, the lower your heating bills. You could, of course, achieve the same savings without an automatic setback thermostat by simply turning down your manual thermostat whenever you don't need heat, and then turning it up again when you do. But you'd find yourself waking up to a cold house each morning, and coming home to a cold house each night.

Even under the least optimal conditions, a setback thermostat is likely to save you some fuel. It will guarantee you at least six or seven hours of sleeping-time heat reduction without having to remember each night to turn down the heat. Besides, you can cut back your nighttime temperature to as low as 50 degrees if you set the heat to rise before you do.

An automatic setback thermostat should save money without discomfort. What the thermostat must do to accomplish this depends on your house, your heating system and the way you live.

Turning down a thermostat doesn't really begin producing significant savings until the house has just about cooled down to the lower temperature selected. Until then, any reduction in heating costs during the cooling off period is offset by a corresponding increase while the furnace reheats the house.

Generally, masonry homes, or homes with steam heat, take longer to reheat than those with hot-air or hot-water heat. And the length of time required will depend on how many degrees you lower the thermostat setting for setback, the heating capacity of your furnace, the outdoor temperature and how well-insulated your house is.

The simplest way to tell is to try it. Manually turn down your existing thermostat on a cold day, and time how long it takes for the room temperature to drop to a new setting. Then, reset the thermostat and time the reheat portion of the cycle.

This determines the number of cycles per day that can do you any good. There's no point in paying extra for a thermostat just to get more cycles than you need.

Puff, fluff down pillows for more comfort

By READER'S DIGEST
For AP Newsfeatures

Down pillows and comforters are a joy to own and use.

Summer is the time to make sure they are clean and in perfect shape for another winter's comfort.

Pillows:

With normal use, down pillows need cleaning only once a year. To protect the outer shell from stains, keep it in a zippered, washable pillow protector, sold in linen departments.

Dry cleaning:

Before either dry cleaning or washing, be sure to repair any open seams or loose stitching. If you would like your pillows dry cleaned, find a reputable cleaner who is experienced with down products. Air a dry-cleaned pillow well before sleeping on it.

Washing:

Down pillows should be washed two at a time. To wash them in your home washer, follow these steps:

- Use the gentle cycle, warm water and a mild detergent. Use half the amount of detergent you would in a normal load.

- Agitate the water and soap until well mixed. Stop the machine, immerse the pillows and continue the cycle.

- To aid rotation, add a pair of clean sneakers without laces.

- Repeat the rinse cycle until the water runs clear.

- To dry the pillows, set the dryer on Low. Include the sneakers - they'll help fluff up the down.

Repair: You can make a temporary repair to a rip or an opened seam with pressure-sensitive cloth tape. To mend a rip permanently, use a fine needle and fine thread. About the two edges and close with tiny stitches. Then hand-stitch a fabric patch over the mend.

In time, a down pillow loses the ability to trap air. To revive it, try this:

- Put the pillow in the dryer with a sneaker or tennis ball. Set the dryer on Low and tumble for 10 minutes.

- If this fails, add more down. Shake the filling to one end of the shell. Open part of the opposite seam and insert the neck of another pillow or a bag of down in the opening. Add down a bit at a time. Sew up the opening with a fine needle and small stitches.

Comforters:

The best shell fabric for a down comforter is tightly woven cotton or a cotton-polyester blend. These let the down breathe and trap air properly, yet have fine enough thread counts so the down can't work its way out. Buy a washable cover to protect the shell from dirt and stains. Or you can make a cover by seaming two sheets on three sides and closing the fourth side with a zipper, snaps or Velcro. Clean and repair a down comforter as you would pillows.

Questions & answers

By POPULAR MECHANICS
For AP Newsfeatures

Q. - I have a new two-story house with a gas hot-water heater and a gas furnace. When the exhaust gases hit the clay chimney flue tiles, they condense. On the average, I collect half a gallon of water a day from the chimney cleanout pit. If I don't siphon the pit, the water seeps into the basement.

The furnace has an electronic flue damper. The vent conductor is 25 feet long, on a sloped horizontal run from the furnace to the brick chimney. The water heater is connected after the damper to the same vent. The chimney does not have a flue cap, but I get little or no rain in the flue that I can notice. Would capping a flue create a better draft? Would disconnecting the flue damper help? Or running a smaller diameter metal flue within the existing chimney?

A. - The problem is not with the chimney but with the length of the vent conductor running to the chimney. The exhaust gases give you an excessive amount of heat as they travel through the long pipe. You might think that's good, because you can heat the basement for nothing, since the exhaust gases are going up the chimney anyway.

However, water vapor is one of the byproducts of combustion in a furnace. By giving up their heat, the exhaust gases are cooled down to a temperature at or near the dew point. In other words, the temperature is too low to allow the gases to make it up the chimney without the water vapor condensing.

As a matter of fact, this is a problem often encountered after installing one of the various kinds of heat recovery devices on the vent connector with the hope of saving energy. Too much heat is extracted from the exhaust gases and the products of combustion condense before venting to the atmosphere.

I don't understand why your furnace is so far from the chimney. You didn't mention the height of your chimney, but it is probably no higher than 25 feet. According to the American Gas Association and the National Fire Protection Association, the horizontal run of a vent connector to a natural draft chimney should not be more than 75 percent of the height of the chimney above the connector. Unless there are design criteria with your system that you didn't mention, your vent connector is too long for a natural draft system and you may need to have a draft-inducing fan installed.

To minimize the condensation, you might try insulating the vent connector, or using insulated pipe. This will reduce the heat loss of the exhaust and keep its temperature above the dew point.

Q. - Would it be cost-effective to build a pre-cooler for a residential central air conditioning system? The system would cool the freon before it enters the air conditioner by running the copper tubing through a water tank.

A. - The system you propose is basically a water-cooled condenser in series with the air conditioner's air cooled condenser. While this will improve the system's overall efficiency, it probably would not be cost-effective. Water cooled compressors are no longer used for residential cooling, though older models are still in use.

It's time to get back in the groove and get involved in some of the library programs available to you. Story time is back in session every Thursday morning at 10. Parents and preschoolers are invited to come for a half hour or more of fun and entertainment.

This is a great opportunity for parents to introduce their preschoolers to the wonders of the library and the joy of books and reading.

Betty Stephan will treat your child to the art of story telling, teaching children about animal life, social graces and the joy of words. Films, songs, and other activities make the library a place of adventure for your child.

The family film, which is sponsored by the Friends of the Library organization, will begin again on Sept. 20 at 7 p.m. with the feature "Hot Lead and Cold Feet" starring Don Knotts, Jim Dale and Karen Valentine.

Jerry Brooks is a new Texas author I would like to introduce you to this week. Jerry's novel entitled Love is the Winner features a contemporary New Mexico rancher, Keith Connor of the Box C Ranch. The Box C is located out in the middle of nowhere about an hours drive from the small community of Shade Tree and two hours drive from Alamogordo.

Keith was raised on the Box C and inherited the ranch when his parents were killed in an automobile accident. Keith is divorced and has sole custody of his 12 year-old twins, Connie and Cody.

Uncle Jed and Aunt Flo Swenson look after the ranch while Keith worked as a civil engineer but each summer Keith and the kids returned to ranch life. Because of age and crippling arthritis Aunt Flo was unable to help look after the children and run the household. Connie had tried her best to do what she could but her best meal was peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

Keith had gone into Shade Tree in search of a housekeeper and left a notice penned up in all the stores and post office telling of the available job. One afternoon when Keith returns to the ranch house to discover a man and a young woman sitting on the front porch.

"Mr. Conner, my name is Francois Guidry...this here is my daughter Melina. I'm applyin' her for the job... She's sixteen-but she's a worker. Not much of a cook but she kin learn anythin'. She's smart and strong an will do what you tell her."

Dressed in dirty ragged clothes, the girl never moved. Keith opened his mouth to cut the man off but he continued. "She ain't been sick a day in her life."

She ain't uppity or spoiled by a lot of schoolin' neither...I'll leave her and you can try her. If she suits you, you can send me her pay. If she don't you can send her home. Won't cost you a cent. That's fair enough, ain't it?" "No. It's not fair," Keith exclaimed. "If she does the work she gets the pay."

As the haggard man leaves Keith looks the girl over convinced anyone that dirty would have no experience at house cleaning. Not having time to deal with her now he would just send her home in a couple of days.

The People's Republic by Paul Fusey Amor takes you back to 1959 Central China. The CIA has sent a courier in with a "simple task": to pick up a package containing top-secret Chinese documents and smuggle them out.

While traveling by train to Beijing, several floodings destroys the railway lines leaving the courier and hundreds of other passengers stranded. There is nothing left to do but to walk to the nearest town which is over 100 miles away.

The unnamed courier becomes guardian to the young woman train attendant that befriended him. Facing almost certain death by starvation because of the countries famine conditions, the courier knows there is no hope for rescue if discovered.

Ironically the courier becomes outraged with the famine and conditions under which the people have to live and is arrested for being a critic of the zealous bureaucratic regime. Sentenced to a prison camp on the Tibetan border, he has virtually no hope of getting free. This outstanding adventure is one you won't want to miss.

Pollution solution begin in the home

Many people are starting to think about what they can do to help save the Earth on a global scale. But the simple fact is that a better environment can begin right in your own home. Two-thirds of the groundwater and soil contamination comes from household pollution, and over half the phosphates in our lakes and streams are from household detergents.

One of the first lines of biodegradable, phosphate-and toxic-free household products was developed by Shaklee Corporation and include all purpose Basic H concentrated household cleaner, as well as a germicide, laundry products, dishwashing detergents and scouring cleaners.

Most detergents contain phosphates, which cause the "algae bloom" that kills lakes and streams. You may be using a high-phosphate detergent without knowing it, because the phosphate content of a detergent usually isn't listed in the ingredients. So if the label doesn't say "phosphate free" call the company and ask. And use the power of your purse to encourage manufacturers to take the phosphates out!

Many products in your home may contain toxics, but manufacturers aren't required to list toxic ingredients. Toxics present a hazard to the environment during their production and disposal. Some common household products that contain toxic substances are oven cleaners and air freshener.

Look for products that are packaged in biodegradable or recyclable materials. Check for a "recycled" logo or a carton that is gray inside. Plastic containers should have an SPI code on the bottle to help recycling centers sort the plastic efficiently. Avoid styrofoam whenever possible-it will still be around in 500 years!

You might not be aware that drain and toilet cleaners, floor and furniture polish and rug and upholstery cleaners are considered hazardous waste. Most of us dispose of these products by dumping them down the drain that this can result in serious water contamination. Water waste treatment plants aren't designed to handle hazardous materials. In the average city of 100,000 residents, 3.5 tons of liquid household cleaners are dumped into city drains every month, according to Environmental Hazards Management. Call you local wastewater treatment plant for information on safe disposal of liquid waste.

When female elephants fight, it is said, they usually try to bite off each other's tail.

Here's another necessity for your apartment.

If you are living in an apartment or duplex, this may be the first opportunity you've had to experience the terrific benefits of having natural gas in your home. You will find that for heating your home during cold weather, for hot water, or for cooking, nothing beats natural gas for convenience, economy, and efficiency.

With cooler temperatures just around the corner, here are a few reminders from your friends at Energas Company on the safe and responsible use of natural gas where you live.

Your furnace needs an annual check-up.

Your natural gas furnace has been sitting quietly all summer, waiting for the time it's really needed. And like anything that's been idle a while, your furnace needs a checkup before it starts back to work. You may want to check with your landlord or apartment manager about arranging for an annual inspection by a qualified professional heating contractor. Once it's been inspected, your furnace should require very little attention the rest of the winter.

A closet isn't always a closet.

Your water heater or furnace is probably in a closet all by itself. And that's the way it should stay. As tempting as it may be, don't use the space around a water heater or furnace for storage. Even if these major appliances sit in the open, the space around them should be kept clear to insure adequate air circulation.

If you smell gas.

We hope that you will never have to deal with a gas leak. If you do smell gas, day or night, exit the building then call your local Energas office immediately. Do not flip light switches or use any other electrical equipment. Do not light a match or a candle. Do not try to find the leak yourself.

For more information.

Get a free folder from your landlord or apartment manager. Or call your local Energas office.

Natural gas is the best energy you can have in West Texas for any home heating job. Just set your thermostat, and have a great winter!

Microwave hot spots can burn your baby

For the parents of hungry infants, the microwave oven might seem like the perfect device for quickly heating baby food and formula. But a nutritionist warns of the hidden dangers of microwaving baby food.

"When you microwave formula, the product may feel relatively cool on the outside of the bottle," says Dr. Madeleine Sigman, Penn State assistant professor of food science. "But inside there may be hot spots, where the microwaves have reached first or more efficiently. There have been actual cases where the mouths and throats of babies were scalded."

Sigman is researching the effect of microwave ovens on heated baby food and formula. She has found there are differences in the rate of heating at the top, middle and sides of the bottle.

"It's not a uniform heating by any means," she says. "So far we have found no acceptable way to heat bottled formula in the microwave."

Size and shape of containers affect the rate at which food is heated. Furthermore, the pattern, rate and speed of cooking vary among different ovens according to size, wattage, shape and even age of the oven, making it difficult to predict the impact.

Shaking or stirring microwaved formula does not solve the problem. Intense temperatures and rapid heating may destroy essential nutrients in baby food and infant formula.

"Infants receive such a small amount of food that any significant loss may deprive them of nutrients needed for their development," says Sigman. "Undernourishment might not seem as immediate a problem as burns from hot food, but it nevertheless becomes an important safety concern."

Until an acceptable method is found to microwave baby bottles, Sigman cautions that the old methods are still the best. "Put the bottle in a warm water bath or run it under warm water until it's warm. It may take longer, but you'll be protecting your baby from scalding and possible nutrient loss."

"Solving the problem of safely heating baby food is easier," she says. "Remember that it is already cooked and only needs to be warmed, maybe 15 to 20 seconds. Spoon a little into a smaller container instead of placing the whole jar in the microwave. Heating the food in a shallow bowl distributes the heat more evenly and causes little harm to the food, as long as you don't overheat it. Test the temperature before serving to make certain it isn't too hot."

Some baby formula manufacturers have responded to the problem of erratically heated infant formula by printing warnings against microwaving bottles of formula. However, Sigman says that when one baby formula company ran an informal survey, it found that more than 40 percent of the parents and caregivers who have access to microwaves were using them to heat formula.

"It seems clear that people will continue to use them despite printed warnings, so it's important to find a safe way to microwave formula."

LAS VEGAS (AP) - Elizabeth Dillenbeck, a 68-year-old amateur poet from Kansas, is the new World of Poetry Laureate.

Eleven judges chose her "Sea Wind, South Wind" over several thousand entries during the organization's sixth annual convention.

Dillenbeck, of Pratt, Kan., received a prize of $15,000.

Duggan, Lowrance nuptials spoken Saturday evening

During a candlelight wedding ceremony conducted early Saturday evening in Community Church, Delaina Sue Duggan of Amarillo became the bride of Garre Don Lowrance of Amarillo.

The marriage was officiated by the bride's father, Dorman Duggan, church pastor.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Dorman Duggan of 226 Greenwood and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Garre Lowrance of Amarillo.

At the church altar greenery accented the two brass spiral candelabra which were linked with a brass arch candelabrum and two large brass urns of white gladioli, white peonies, nerine lilies and mixed flowers of primrose and teal. The pews were marked by primrose bows and mixed flowers.

Angela Duggan of Canyon served her sister as maid of honor and best man was Derick Henry of Amarillo.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Brian White of Dallas, the bride's cousin. Bridesmaid was Shelly James of Canyon and junior bridesmaid was Christi Duggan, the bride's sister.

Groomsmen were Steven Lowrance of Amarillo, the groom's cousin, and Chad Maupin of Hereford. Corey Lowrance served his brother as junior groomsman.

Guests were escorted by Jason Brumley of Hereford, Brian White of Dallas, Mike Brumley of Hereford and Gil Hiltbruner of Amarillo.

Alyse Hiltbruner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gil Hiltbruner of Amarillo, was flower girl, and ring bearer was Linden Duggan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Duggan of Hereford. Lighting candles were Caleb and Joanna Brumley, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Brumley of Hereford.

Laura Schlabs and Eric Alexander, both of Hereford, vocalized "Our Love", "The Wedding Song", "Like Sweet Music", "My Treasure" and "I'll Still Be Loving You", which was the recessional accompanied by Eric Alexander on piano, Pat Michaels on drums and Shannon Wilburn on base guitar.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore an elegant designer's gown of white regal satin which featured a Queen Anne neckline with a high satin standup collar in back. The Edwardian sleeves fell gently to the bride's wrists. The fitted bodice was crowned with clusters of jeweled flowers and molded medallions enhanced with pearls. The fitted basque waistline was adorned with pearl swirls and the back of the gown was fashioned with a runner of small satin buttons. The full flowing satin skirt, detailed with Venice lace medallions and crystallized hand-bead designs, fell gracefully to the floor and extended into a full-length Queen's Court cathedral train made of satin and accented with European lace cut-outs running down the center from the waist and studded with pearls and jewels. Double borders of European lace finished the hemline of both the gown and train which also featured a waterfall cascade of ruffles on the edge of the train.

The full-length veil of bridal illusion with pencil edging formed a pouf at the back of the matching designer's headpiece which consisted of a pearl wrap headband delicately adorned with lily-of-the-valley and pearl sprays.

To complete her wedding ensemble, the bride also wore pearl drop earrings and a single strand of pearls.

She carried a traditional cascading bouquet of white roses, calla lilies, mock-orange, assorted greenery, stephanotis, pearls and white picot satin streamers tied with love knots.

Bridal attendants wore primrose tea-length satin lace dresses each designed with a sweetheart neckline, short puffed sleeves and full skirts fashioned with satin bows at the gowns' back. They each carried white lace fans with small primrose, teal and white flowers and stain streamers. Their headpieces were cascading primrose, teal and white dainty flowers with pearl swirls with jeweled accents.

Rebecca and Amy Solomon invited guests to register before the wedding and at the reception which was held in the church fellowship hall.

Kristy Mooney of Lubbock and Wendy Sanders of Hereford served the bride's cake and Cindy Cambell of Lubbock served the groom's cake. Punch was laded by Marisa Munn of Lubbock and coffee was poured by Lela Duggan of Hereford. Gina Bass of Amarillo presided at the gift table.

The bride's table, which was covered by a floor-length satin cloth with a gathered lace overlay, was decorated by primrose bows. Two silver candelabra, accented with greenery, decorated the table. The punch table was covered with a floor-length white cloth and was also decorated by a lace overlay and rose and teal bows. The silver punch fountain was accented with assorted greenery with rose and teal rosebuds.

The groom's table was covered with a floor-length white cloth, also decorated with a lace overlay and teal bows. Rose and teal balloons with iridescent streamers hung from the ceiling complementing the decor. Three ficus trees, trimmed with miniature lights, lit the reception hall.

The bride's three-tiered cake which was decorated with roses and rosebuds was separated by Grecian columns.

The cake also featured a free flowing fountain accented with greenery and primrose rosebuds. Two smaller heart-shaped cakes were featured with their bridal couple's names.

The groom's oval, double-layer chocolate cake was topped with chocolate roses at the initial "L."

Leaving for a wedding trip to Florida and the Bahamas, the bride wore a pink suit and shoes.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride, a 1986 graduate of Hereford High School, graduated from Amarillo College this year as a dental assistant. She is now employed at Sherwood Dental Center in Amarillo.

The groom, a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School, is now employed by Jimmy Fincher Body Shop in Amarillo.

Out of town guests represented Dallas, Arlington, Carrollton, Mineral Wells, Tahoka, Lubbock, Plainview, Clovis, N.M., Lamed, Kan., Gruver, Amarillo, Muleshoe, Friona, Dimmitt and Canyon.

Brown bag supper exchanged

Alpha Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority kicked off the 1990-91 year with a "brown bag" supper exchange recently.

The sorority sisters received new program books and discussed the upcoming projects and events. Lillie Shipman served as hostess.

The first business meeting was held on Sept. 4 in the home of Nan Gauthreaux. Among the topics discussed were the ways and means project and the continuation of helping to supply food and goods to the Good Shepherd as a major service project. Gauthreaux was named the chapter's new Valentine sweetheart. The meeting ended with a tour of the YMCA.

Officers for the 1990-91 year are Virginia Jackson, president; Lillie Shipman, vice president; Barbara Burkhalter, recording secretary; Beverly Redelsperger, corresponding secretary; and Murlene Streun, treasurer. City council representatives are Lynda Brown, Rosemarie Robinson, Virginia Jackson, Nan Gauthreaux and Gerry Taylor.

The 1990-91 international theme is "Celebrate the Magic." The next meeting is scheduled for Sept. 18.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am concerned about my sister. She is 51 and I am afraid she is going to drop dead one of these days trying to have a figure like the movie star on the work-out video. The woman eats like a bird and whenever I call her she is "busy" doing her exercise.

Extension News

BY BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent

Reducing the waste stream is the most significant of all the options to manage waste. If we never generate the waste, then we never have to devise ways to dispose of it.

To reduce the waste we produce usually means lifestyle changes. Reduce the amount you buy in the first place. Purchase only the amount you need. We can also reduce the waste we generate by becoming better environmental shoppers.

What can you do? You can start by analyzing what you throw away at home. Each person adds to the waste management problem. If each household reduces its waste, the problem will be reduced.

Think about the goods, services and activities you buy or support. In what ways do they contribute to the solid waste problem? How could you purchase and dispose of items in ways that generate less trash? What can you do to voice your opinion about solid waste issues in your community? For example, consider:

- * Buying goods in returnable and recyclable containers.
- * Requesting larger quantities and sizes of products by introducing a bulk section for grains, pasta, and other dry goods.
- * Ask manufacturers to consider these areas when designing packaging:
 - * Plan for recyclability, both in design and material choice.
 - * Eliminate excessive packaging.
 - * Have more reusable or refillable packages.
 - * Use creative thinking to find less wasteful solutions to theft prevention and shelf marketing.
 - * Substitute non-toxic pigments and stabilizers.
 - * Concentrate on the best and most efficient methods for minimizing the generation of waste.

These actions require cooperation among businesses, stockholders, government, employees, the general public, consumers and others. They also involve changes in lifestyles and values.

Select products that are durable, easy to repair, have good warranties, are energy efficient, functional, non-polluting in both manufacture and use as well as aesthetic. Items such as plastic plates, polystyrene cups, razors, pens, cameras, watches and other items all end up in the landfill. Invest in durable materials that you can use over and over again such as cloth napkins.

Neel to speak at meeting

Guest speaker for the Hereford Flame Fellowship meeting will be June Neel of Amarillo. The event will be held Thursday, Sept. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

Neel has been teaching Sunday school classes since high school and has supervised vacation Bible schools for many years. She has held children crusades in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Arizona and has taught the Happy Hearts Bible Club in Amarillo for the past 13 years.

parents of two beautiful girls and an adorable boy. But our joy turned to sorrow when our son passed away unexpectedly (sudden infant death syndrome). I don't believe we will ever recover from the loss.

The girls started school this year and now more than ever I am asked the question that just tears me apart: "Are they twins?"

Sometimes I answer, "Yes, they are twins," and later I feel a rush of guilt for denying the existence of our little son. Other times I say, "No, they are triplets," which of course leads to the logical question, "Where's the third?" I then must explain and it is painful, especially when the questioner is a total stranger to whom I owe nothing.

Can you suggest a response that would make both of us feel good? I need to know, not only for myself but for my girls, who will also have to face this question throughout their lives. Thanks for your guidance, Ann. -- Hurting in New Jersey

Women's meeting held Tuesday

St. Anthony's Women's Organization met following mass on Tuesday evening at the church. Charlotte Paetzold presided over the meeting.

The program on natural family planning was presented by Denise Marnell. Couples were invited to attend the next session of classes on Oct. 25.

Annette Albracht reported that Loretta Urbanczyk has taken over the care of the Vigil lights. Ann Lueb with family affairs asked for a replacement for her position. Romilda Friemel reported that a replacement was needed for Janice Banner on the right to life committee.

Linda Briones reported that the membership drive is underway. Paetzold, with the social committee, reported that the Senior Citizens meal will be Sept. 17 as the special event and the casserole sale is set for the first Sunday in October.

Guest Nicki Brockman was introduced and refreshments were served by hostesses Ida Schumacher, Lisa Blakely, Nora Perez, and Martha Lueb.

in infancy." If more question follow such as "what happened?" and you would rather not go into detail, say, "If you don't mind, it hurts to talk about it." Only a clod would press for more information after that.

My Laugh for the Day: A youngster had just returned home from his first long camping trip with the Boy Scouts. His doting mother, who had missed him terribly, asked whether or not he had become homesick.

"No," the boy replied. "The only kids who got homesick were the ones with dogs back home."

Non-residential beauty spot

Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union has been chosen as beauty spot of the month by the Women's Division beauty spot committee. The business is located at 330 N. Schley.

New Arrivals

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Pinnell of Clovis are the parents of a son, Derick Kyle, born Sept. 5, 1990 at Clovis Memorial Hospital. He weighed 7 lbs. 11 oz.

He has a sister named Beverly. Grandparents are Pat and Dollie Parker of Hereford and Don and Elaine Pinnell of Adrian. Great-grandparents are Frank and Dorothea Prowell of Hereford.

YOYO COLLINS

Public invited to meeting

YoYo Collins will be guest speaker at the First Baptist Church on Sunday at 6:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Collins was involved in an automobile accident May 14, 1977, which left him paralyzed. In 1980, he began presenting his testimony and singing in churches throughout the country.

He married Sandi on Oct. 14, 1980. They were featured in the 1986 June issue of Guide Post magazine and have been guests on several religious television programs. Collins served as president of the Oklahoma Conference of Evangelists in 1987 and 88.

Coliseum entertainment takes on different look

The Coliseum entertainment will take on a different look at the 1990 Amarillo Tri State Fair, scheduled for Sept. 17-22.

Rather than musical concerts alone each evening, several shows involving other acts of entertainment will be featured. Music, however, will be the order of the night for Thursday, September 20th when the big KHIVA Shrine Stage Band and the KHIVA Western Swing Band will perform.

The KHIVA Stage Band will have center stage from 6:30-8 p.m. and the Shrine Western Swing Band will perform from 9 p.m. until closing. The Stage Band features a full stage band instrumentation of four trumpets, four trombones, five saxes, drums, piano, bass guitar and tuba. The Swing Band was organized in 1988 and features five top musicians, some of whom have played with such bands as Bob Wills. Fair-goers may want to just sit and enjoy or to dance to the music.

Friday night, Sept. 21, will feature Gary Roberts performing his magical acts at 6:30 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. and then listening to the music of Rowdy Ace Band from 9 p.m. until closing. Roberts has been a featured performer at fairs, shopping malls, night clubs and on television all over the United States and Canada.

4-H meeting scheduled Tuesday

The first meeting of the 4-H Parent Leaders Association will be Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 7 p.m. in the lounge of the Hereford Community Center. The 4-H Parent Leaders Association is open to all parents, leaders and friends of 4-H that would like to assist in the support of the 4-H program.

The association provides financial and teaching support and is instrumental in recruitment of volunteers to assist 4-Hers in youth development activities.

For more information contact the County Extension Office at 354-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Questions to ask yourself about business insurance:

"What does an insurance company really know about your business?"

To tailor your coverage properly, a good company has to have a thorough understanding of your business, your people, equipment and inventory.

Independent agents know that the CNA Insurance Companies protect tens of thousands of businesses, large and small. And that we began nearly 100 years ago. They often recommend CNA because our knowledge and experience can help their clients.

For example, we can advise you of loss control measures to help you prevent risks. And, by reducing your risk, you're helping reduce the cost of your insurance. Ask Lone Star, an independent agent, about CNA.

Wedding cakes today edible architecture

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Talk about luxury! Its wooden base is gilded with real gold, its four tiers decorated with cherubs and cornucopias of sculpted faux fruit. A Florentine palazzo? No. A wedding cake.

Remember wedding cakes - those bland white layers covered with white butter cream icing and pastel roses? No more.

The unique wedding cake is sweeping the country, says Carolyn Bartel, home furnishings editor of Modern Bride, who recently surveyed cake styles for an article in the magazine's September issue.

For the June 9 wedding of Robert Kennedy's daughter Kerry to Andrew Cuomo, a 3-foot scale model of the wedding site, St. Matthew's Cathedral in Washington, was crafted to adorn the top of the cake. Pat Rocco is former executive chef of Andrew's father, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo. Rocco says it took him well over 200 hours to make the cake topper out of pastillage, a paste of sugar, gelatin and water.

Fantasy cakes, a tradition of a sort at celebrity weddings, now have worked their way down to the rest of society, says pastry chef Albert Kumin, chief instructor at the International Pastry Arts Center in Elmsford, N.Y., and former pastry chef at the White House.

Some of the more remarkable creations recently on display at Kumin's pastry school were: the four-tier Florentine palazzo, a cake adorned with birds and bows made out of spun sugar, another with hundreds of delicately colored, porcelainlike flowers sculpted from gum paste.

The four-tier palazzo, dreamed up by Bartel, was trimmed with white chocolate cherubs in pastillage and decorated with marzipan fruit spilling out of white chocolate cornucopias. It was decorated with "lace" piped out of royal icing and a white chocolate border brushed with edible gold dust.

Edible gold dust - at $3.80 an ounce - goes a long way. Kumin says less than 1/4-ounce was used in trimming the cake. Kumin's pastry school is also a professional bakery that turns out about 1,000 custom wedding cakes every year.

The traditional white cake had long ago given way to more choices - carrot, lemon, orange, spice, chocolate and mocha layers. But now comes the idea of mixing cake types and fillings to create more complex taste sensations. Since the average three-tier cake contains 13 separate layers and a four-tier cake might have as many as 20 layers, many combinations are possible.

During the construction of the Hoover Dam, concrete had to be poured continually for two years.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: For several years I have had a problem with my abdominals. My stomach is quite large. When I was younger, I was very athletic and very thin. I'm only 20 now, and I do some walking. I would like to know what I can do to reduce the size of my stomach. I have also had a baby, but I had a large stomach before I got pregnant. Could it be that all the muscle I had when I was in track and field has turned to flab?

DEAR READER: Have you gained weight? A person who was naturally thin and then gains weight may have a noticeable enlargement of the abdomen. If you have, you may need to lose the pounds you have gained to regain the waist you had. No amount of exercise of the trunk muscles can flatten your abdomen if you have excess fat inside the abdominal cavity.

Many track-and-field events do nothing to help you flatten your abdomen, other than using calories so you avoid gaining fat deposits. Walking, for example, will not use the abdominal muscles to any great extent and neither will running. If you get the fat out and off, then exercises that tighten the abdominal muscles can do some real good. While sit-ups and leg-lifts are often recommended, they have definite limitations. Leg-lifts do not use the abdominal muscles at all and sit-ups only use the upper part of the long vertical muscles. Doing these exercises are helpful to some extent only because you also tighten the lateral muscles of the abdomen when you do them. These are the ones you can contract and relax voluntarily as you "suck in your abdomen." I'm sending you a free copy of my new Special Report, How to Battle the Bulge, for details on which exercises do what for you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/104, P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908.

Muscles can lose their tone if they are not used and good muscle strength is important to good posture. Posture also has a lot to do with how trim your waist looks.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am somewhat confused by a recent column concerning drinking water. I understand that the calcium in the heart tissues, in the arteries and in the bones is good for you. The calcium comes from the food we eat. However, if it is found outside these tissues — calcium deposits associated with arthritis — it is not good for you. Doesn't "hard" water deposit its calcium and other minerals on the outside? Will drinking and cooking with only distilled water reverse the effects of medical problems such as gallstones, kidney stones, arthritis and hardening of the arteries associated with hard water?

DEAR READER: I have been surprised how many people believe that the calcium in joints associated with arthritis comes from water and food. It does not. Arthritic spurs are formed where the bone has been injured and regenerates. The calcium in the spurs comes from your bloodstream. The same is true of the rare states of calcium deposits in other tissues. That is not because the calcium level in the bloodstream is too high either. Rather it is a response to injury. The calcium level in the blood is normally controlled within a very narrow range regardless of your calcium intake. Calcium intake has nothing to do with either gallstones or arthritis, and unless it is associated with a large amount of calcium in the urine, it has nothing to do with kidney stones. Drinking hard water, or cooking with it, will not affect your health.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I just found out through blood tests that I have a non-functioning thyroid. This was discovered by a young doctor who was subbing for my regular doctor. I am a woman in my early 60s. What causes the thyroid gland to stop functioning? The younger doctor prescribed one 0.1 mg of Levothyroxine daily and folic acid. Today my own doctor was in the office and he prescribed three tablets of Levothyroxine a day and said for me to check back in a week with him. Do you feel three Levothyroxine a day is too much?

I understood that one starts out low and, if needed later, more is prescribed. I can never get a straight answer from my doctors when I ask questions. I am told, "You read too much." Why can't doctors agree on dosages?

DEAR READER: The most common reason a thyroid gland stops functioning is because it has been inflamed or because the body forms antibodies which gradually destroy the thyroid gland. The latter case is really an autoimmune disease, where your immune system attacks your body. There are various degrees of hypothyroidism (low thyroid function) depending on how much functioning thyroid tissue is present. The process of thyroid destruction can be gradual and sneak up on a person.

The amount of thyroid hormone replacement that is needed is based on the response of the patient. Commonly the patient is started on a small dose of Levothyroxine, as little as .05 mg a day. Then it is increased in .05 increments every two to four weeks until the normal thyroid state is achieved. The usual maintenance dose is 0.1 mg to 0.2 mg a day. But your doctor needs to judge how much you need on the basis of your response.

Giving too much thyroid hormone can produce the symptoms of hyper-thyroidism (overactive thyroid state). In patients who have heart disease along with a low thyroid state, doctors usually start with a very small dose to avoid bad effects on the heart.

Despite the question of your "reading too much," I'm sending you a free copy of Special Issue 32-04, Your Thyroid Gland. I believe the more patients know about their health and any medical problems they have, the better they are able to cope with them. Not all doctors think it is necessary for patients to know all such information. Others who want this issue can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/32-04,

P.O. Box 787, Gibbstown, NJ 08027-9908.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My wife's arms itch. There is no visible rash or anything that would indicate anything is out of the ordinary. She has seen our local doctor and specialists. All that ever happens is they make light of it and give her some salve or some pills which have no effect.

Living with this lady, I know she is in misery at times. She rubs her arms and even has scratched until they bleed. When I bring this to her attention, she says, "It is easy for you to say, 'Stop scratching,' but it is driving me crazy."

DEAR READER: Itching does occur without any visible rash or disorder other than scratch marks. This is called pruritus. Itching, like other sensations, results from stimulation of sensory nerves — but why? There is a long list of possibilities from various internal diseases to allergies or even sun sensitivity. It may require some real detective work to find the cause.

I don't know what specialists she saw but she should be evaluated by a dermatologist and probably an allergist as well.

DEAR READER: That is a lot of caffeine, particularly at the 1,000-mg-a-day level. Caffeine is a drug and is useful in some people to prevent excess drowsiness or narcolepsy. But there are rare individuals who have the opposite response and caffeine makes them sleepy. Dr. Quentin Regestein at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston reported several such cases in the American Journal of Medicine, November 1989, pp. 586, which your doctor may wish to check.

Hints from Heloise

Q. I have an all-time favorite book I purchased in soft cover way back in the '70s. Now it's really worn.

I have searched for a hard-cover edition of this book with no luck. Do you have any suggestions as to whom I could contact to purchase another copy? — Donna Favara, Hopatcong, N.J.

A. Check in your phone book for book dealers who specialize in older books that are no longer published or visit the book stores. Also, sometimes flea markets or thrift stores have old books.

If all else fails, you can try writing directly to the publisher. They might be able to help. Good luck! — Heloise

FAST FACTS

- Additional uses for twist ties:
1. Use as hooks for Christmas ornaments.
 2. Use wire to mend eye glasses.
 3. Organize loose keys.
 4. Hold stitches when knitting.
 5. Tie up extension cords.

CLEANING SHEEPSKIN

Q. My daughter brought me a couple of attractive sheepskin throws from her vacation in Australia. When she first brought them they were bright white and now they seem to be dull.

Do you have any suggestions on a cleaning method I could try? — Victoria

Lambrusko, Staten Island, N.Y.

A. This is a toughie! First off you would need to know exactly what tanning method was used before trying anything.

For this reason, we can't recommend a process, since we sure wouldn't want to cause damage to your sentimental skins. It would be best to take the sheepskins to a reputable dry cleaner. They have special cleaning processes and chemicals that they may be able to use.

One point to remember: Sheepskins do tend to yellow after they are cleaned.

— Heloise

SHOWER-CURTAIN REPAIR

Dear Heloise: I have a great hint for shower-curtain repair. I take a hand-held hole puncher and punch another hole about a half-inch away from the torn one.

This works perfectly and prolongs the life of my shower curtain. — Peggy Gauthier, Hessmer, La.

SOUND OFF

Dear Heloise: I'm really bothered by the flimsy pockets that more and more clothing manufacturers are putting in pants and jeans. Don't they know that everyone puts keys, coins and who-knows-what into pockets? The flimsy ones wear out immediately and are sometimes difficult to replace. — Jennifer Reese, Tulsa, Okla.

Dear Heloise: I'm writing this letter with a big thank-you for the school bus safety tips you had in your column. They are the best safety tips I've read.

My husband and I lost our beautiful 6-year-old daughter, Sandra, to a school bus accident. Let parents know that unexpected tragedies do happen and please repeat the tips for all to teach their children. — Becky Gifford, Balaton, Minn.

Here are the tips from Ryder Student Transportation Services that Becky was referring to. I ask that all parents with schoolchildren go over these guidelines with them. If your children do not ride a bus to school, they do ride one for field trips or sports events.

1. Arrive at your bus stop on time and wait a safe distance from where the bus stops. Five giant steps away is a good rule of thumb to follow.

2. When the school bus arrives, do not approach until the bus has come to a complete stop. If you must cross a street before entering the stopped school bus, wait for the school bus driver's signal before crossing.

3. After the bus has stopped, form a single line and board the bus. Go directly to a seat and remain seated and facing forward while the bus is moving. Never put your hands, arms or head out of the windows or throw objects out of them.

4. When it is time to get off the school bus, wait for it to come to a complete stop. Leave single file and after you have stepped off the bus, take five giant steps away and stay there until the bus has left. If you must cross a street after leaving the school bus, step off of the bus, take five giant steps toward the front side of the bus (do not stand in front of the bus) and wait for the school bus driver's signal that it is safe for you to cross.

5. If you left any belongings on the bus, do not run back after them. The bus driver may not see you and begin pulling away from the bus stop. (This is the most common reason schoolchildren are injured or killed by school buses.)

Teach these safety tips to your children and help them to ride a school bus safely.

I'm so sorry for the loss of your daughter and only hope these tips will save a life. — Heloise

ANSWERING-MACHINE REMINDER

Dear Heloise: I found a good way to remind myself of things to do that I think of while at work.

I have an answering machine at home, so I dial my phone number and leave myself a reminder message. When I get home I always listen to my messages first. I used to write myself notes about things to do, but I would usually lose them. The recorded reminder messages work well for me. — Joyce R., Old Bridge, N.J.

EASY MOVES

Dear Heloise: My husband broke his back in two places and I had trouble getting him in and out of his hospital bed at home.

I put a big plastic trash bag under him and could then pull him to the side of the bed where I could easily maneuver him into his favorite chair.

I also placed a plastic trash bag in his favorite chair and on the seat of the car. It saved him the pain of being pulled and scooted and it made my job so much easier too. — Alma Lammers, Munster, Ohio

Q. How long can hard-boiled eggs be kept after being cooled and refrigerated? — Jane Corlett, Louisville, Ky.

A. According to the American Egg Board, eggs that have been hard-boiled should be refrigerated and used within one week because the cooking removes the shell's protective coating. Fresh eggs, on the other hand, can be good for up to four to five weeks beyond pack date if they have been properly refrigerated and are clean and uncracked.

The pack date is located on the side of each carton. The number(s) will be from 1 to 365, which stands for the day of year.

The American Egg Board has a wonderful new eight-page illustrated booklet called "The Egg Handling and Care Guide." The booklet is free of charge and can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-sized envelope to Incredible Edible Egg #35, P.O. Box 755, Park Ridge, IL 60068-0755. — Heloise

I put them in my slow cooker, cover and set it on High. Let them warm for about an hour and the shells are crispy warm. — Julie Harris, Laredo, Texas

SHORTENING SUBSTITUTION
Dear Heloise: I would like some information on changing recipes to substitute oil for shortening. I think there are a lot of cooks who would be interested.

I thoroughly enjoy your newsletter. It has a lot of helpful hints and tips. — Lucile Kearney, Tupelo, Miss.

This is a healthy hint for all of us on low-cholesterol diets. You can substitute vegetable oil for butter, margarine or shortening. You may need to experiment with your recipes, but as a rule you should use one-third less oil. For example, substitute two teaspoons of vegetable oil for one tablespoon of solid shortening.

TACO SHELLS

Dear Heloise: My family would eat tacos every day if I would serve them that often. When I make them, I have found an easy way to warm the taco shells with no hassle.

TCFA convention Oct. 28-30 in Fort Worth

U.S. Rep. Guy Vander Jagt (R-Mich.) will deliver the keynote address at the 1990 annual convention of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, Oct. 28-30 in Fort Worth.

The convention's theme will be "Focus on Tomorrow."

Barry Asmus, a senior fellow at the National Center for Policy Analysis who will speak on "economics and the Spirit of Enterprise."

Following the general session, feeders will focus on issues during three breakout sessions.

--Dr. Lowell Catlett, professor of ag economics at New Mexico State University, will focus on the impact that biotechnology will have on agriculture.

--If you have a cooking flair, you can see one of the world's "hottest" chefs, Dean Fearing of The Mansion on Turtle Creek in Dallas, demonstrate new and innovative ways to prepare beef.

--Bobbie Sims, a self management strategist, will motivate, stimulate and energize TCFA members into seeing themselves as they never have before.

On Oct. 30, the annual TCFA Prayer Breakfast will feature Norm Sonju, chief operating officer and general manager of the Dallas Mavericks. Sonju, who helped build an expansion team into a playoff contender, will share his thoughts on "Winning at Life."

At the second general session, cattle feeders will Sen. Tom Raftery of Ireland discuss the European Community's hormone ban. Sen. Raftery is a past member of the EC Parliament and is a member of the Irish Senate. He will speak on behalf of the European Alliance for Safe Meat, a strong and vocal opponent of the European hormone ban.

That evening, cattle feeders sit back and enjoy the western music and humor of Riders in the Sky. With three-part harmony, traditional instruments and a keen sense of humor, Riders in the Sky will go back to the time when the good guys wore white hats and sang traditional cowboy ballads.

FFA members attend meeting

Several members of the Hereford FFA chapter attended the annual state convention this summer.

Attending were Brian Wilson, Greg Urbanczyk, Monroe Timberlake, Jeffrey Carlson, David Russell, Lori Urbanczyk, Jim Bret Campbell, Brek Binder, and advisors Kevin Kelley and Bill Binder.

Participants attended many different activities including leadership workshops and special sessions in which they helped elect a new state sweetheart and a state talent contest winner. They attended the award ceremonies for the state's top FFA students and elected a new state president.

In November, the chapter will send representatives to the National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rising energy costs prompted by the Mideast crisis are adding to production expenses this year, but a new Agriculture Department analysis shows net farm income is still edging higher than earlier expected.

"The Iraq situation pushed the price of crude oil up sharply," the report said Wednesday. "If a price increase of $10 a barrel is maintained for the remainder of the year, agricultural fuel expenses in 1990 will be 10 percent higher than in 1989."

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

- All 172 pages in full color
- Each page measures a large 15 x 11 inches
- Presents the entire state in stunning detail
- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

What they're saying about "The Roads of Texas"

"When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS... you'll wonder how you ever travelled the state without it!"
Texas Highways Magazine
October, 1988

"For details of Texas terrain, oil company maps and the State's Official Highway Map can't match THE ROADS OF TEXAS."
