Pregnant woman's death trial begins

By KIMBERLY THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A five-man, seven-woman jury listened to conflicting testimony Tuesday in the professional negligence suit being tried in 222nd District Court.

The surviving husband and six children of Noemi Frausto, who died in April of 1982 during her eighth month pregnancy, are trying to prove that Dr. Howard Johnson, Deaf Smith General Hospital and the Hereford Medical Clinic were at fault. The family is asking for more than $1 million in damages.

Testimony began with the oldest daughter, Iris Cantu, describing what happened during the three hours preceding her mother's death in the emergency room at DSGH. Cantu was living at the Frausto's 602 Avenue J residence at the time and went with her parents and sister to the hospital.

Cantu, who was married and said she was also in her eighth month of pregnancy at the time, said she was awakened at about 2 a.m. by the fering were not the result of labor contractions. Cantu said her mother was taken to the emergency room, and that she and her sister waited in the doorway while her father went into the room.

From her position near the door, Cantu testified, she saw and heard Morgan make three calls to Dr. Johnson to report on Mrs. Frausto's condition. Morgan later told the jury she made the third call shortly before the woman died, but that another nurse had made the first two calls.

The jury also heard testimony from J.O. Walls, a respiratory therapist at DSGH who responded to the ambulance call that night along with Morgan, who served as team leader, and several other hospital employees.

Walls said that while Frausto appeared to have symptoms of shock while being transferred to the hospital, her blood pressure and pulse were normal. Walls testified that he had been surprised to hear of the woman's death because her vital signs were stable during the ambulance ride.

Morgan, who said she and Frausto were "very good friends," testified she was with the patient during most of the two hours she was at the hospital. Morgan said Frausto was very upset and breathing rapidly, and that she stayed near the bed and held her hand "because Noemi asked me to."

Morgan also testified that she called Frausto's doctor in Friona about 4:10 a.m. and reported on her condition. She said DSGH was intending to transfer the woman to Friona before her condition worsened and she was placed on life support equipment.

Defense lawyers produced hospital records which showed that Dr. Johnson arrived at the hospital at 4:42 a.m. and Frausto was pronounced dead at 5:20 a.m. Cantu told the jury she believed her mother was dead by 5 a.m. and that Dr. Johnson arrived about that time.

Testimony was to commence this morning at 9:30 in the district courtroom. Judge Jack Young of Muleshoe is presiding over the civic court proceedings.

sound of her mother crying out with pain. She said the family called the ambulance after determining Mrs. Frausto did not have the strength to walk to the car.

When the ambulance arrived, Cantu testified, both the patient and the family asked that she be taken to Friona where she was seeing a doctor. Cantu said ambulance personnel told her it would be better to first take her to the local hospital, and the woman could be transferred later if she so desired.

While DSGH emergency nurse Doris Morgan later testified that the family was happy with that proposal, the lawsuit claims the failure of the ambulance team to take Frausto to Friona contributed to her death.

Cantu told jurors her mother was first taken to the obstetrics ward at the hospital, where it was determined the abdominal pains she was suf-

Concession Workers

Participants and visitors at the Hereford Young Farmers junior livestock show will be able to enjoy freshly-made goodies at the 4-H concession stand. Gertrude Grotegut (left) and Elizabeth Vogel, 4-H moms, got an early start Tuesday on chili and frito pies. Barbecue plates and sandwiches and corn dogs are among other items to be served today through Saturday at noon and during the evening shows.

Show running today through Saturday

The annual Hereford Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show gets into full swing this afternoon with judging continuing Thursday and Friday, and the show concluding with the auction Saturday afternoon.

The show is open to 4-H and FFA members from Deaf Smith, Castro, Parmer and Oldham counties. The broiler show was to begin at 4:30 p.m. today, followed by the steer show at 6 p.m.

The market hog show is set for 5 p.m. Thursday, and the lamb show is scheduled for 5 p.m. on Friday. A new feature to be introduced by the young farmers will be astro-turf on the show room floor.

Another change in this year's show is later starting times for the shows each day. This resulted from a stricter attendance policy mandated by a state education reform bill. HYF directors voted last year to hold the shows in the evening instead of during school hours.

Broiler show to begin this afternoon

The 4-H Parent-Leader's Concession Stand will again be featured at the shows. The stand opens at 9 a.m. each day and remains open until 11 p.m. The menu will include a barbecue plate, stock show chili, and other snacks. Proceeds are used to support local 4-H programs.

Judging the broiler show today will be Dr. Floyd Goland. Steer judge will be Dr. Steven Hammack, beef cattle specialist from Stephenville. John McNeil of Canyon will be the sheep judge, and T.D. Tanksley, Texas A&M professor, will judge the hogs.

General superintendents of this year's show are Bill Caraway, Gerald Marnell, Charlie Stengel and Ray Schlabs.

Division superintendents include: Steers—Rick Hales, chairman; Kevin Urbanczyk, Gerald Jesko, Bryan Reinart, Jeff Mercer, Lawrence Brorman; Barrows—Ray Schlabs,

Auctioneers for the show are Kenneth Gregg and Ted Walling. Jim Steiert is publicity chairman.

Deposits, loans listed

Cash deposits at Hereford's financial institutions were at all-time high of more than $288 million at the close of business Dec. 31, 1984, according to figures from yearend financial statements.

Both Hereford banks showed increased money deposits, rising a total of 11 percent over the end of 1983. The two banks had total deposits of $156,308,090. First National Bank had deposits of $94,335,527—an increase of $10.9

For past year

Texas Federal Credit Union had deposits of $12,818,232.

One banker here attributed the healthy growth in deposits to the "diversity of the economy in the area." A number of Panhandle banks had decreases in loans at the end of 1984, but loans were up $2.8 million at First National in Hereford, and loans at HSB were up slightly at $304,559.

Loans were also higher at the other three financial institutions here. Hi Plains showed loans of $72.6 million at the end of the year compared to $63.6 million at the close of '83. Security Federal had loans of $19.8 million compared to $5 million a year ago, and HTFCU had loans of $8.2 million against $7 million at the close of 1983.

While the overall deposit and loan picture provides a measure of the economic growth, the cash on deposit is typically higher at the end of the year. Also, a couple of local bankers pointed out that the Hi Plains totals could be misleading in judging local economic growth, since some of that deposit and loan money is out of the area.

The big swing was reported by Hi Plains Savings & Loan Association where deposits were listed at $104.5 million—up $35 million from a year ago. It marked the first time that a S&L here surpassed deposits of First National Bank. Security Federal S&L listed deposits of $14,761,200 for the Hereford office, and Hereford

Holly Sugar President John Bushnell had some very positive statements about the local plant when he addressed the Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association here Saturday night.

At a time when some pessimists in the community are listing Holly among the industries Hereford might lose, Bushnell announced that $3.3 million had been spent on the plant over the past three years, and another $6 million has been authorized for capital improvements this next year. Instead of message of gloom, that's a signal of the strong faith Holly Sugar Corporation has in the sugar beet industry in Deaf Smith County!

Bushnell pulled no punches during his talk. Pointing out he was the first Holly president to appear at the annual banquet in 19 years, he credited members of the local sugar beet growers' board for fighting to keep the plant here.

The sugar beet industry here was "teetering on the edge of disaster" seven years ago, said Bushnell, but leading growers and James Witherspoon, longtime executive-secretary of the growers association, helped turn the situation around. Witherspoon was a leader in organizing the growers' association and promoting

Water district officers elected

James Conkwright of Hereford was elected last week to serve a fourth term as director from Precinct 4 of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1.

The precinct is composed of Armstrong, Deaf Smith, Potter and Randall Counties.

Three Deaf Smith County men were also re-elected during Saturday's voting to second terms as county committee members. J.F. Martin, Troy Sublett and Virgil Walker were elected by the residents of County Commissioner Precincts 1, 2 and 3, respectively.

In Armstrong County, voters chose Tom Ferris, Kent Scroggins and Larry Stevens. Frank L. Bezner, Robert Lolley and L.C. Moore were picked for Potter County, while Randall County decided for Charles Khumert, Gary Wagner and Lyndon Wagner.

According to the water district, county committee members are to represent the wishes of the people of the county they serve to the district's board of directors. They also make recommendations on the validity of applications for permits to drill and complete wells within their respective counties and report violations of the district's rules.

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District is to meet Feb. 4 to canvass the election results.

Twenty-dollar bill discovered

Hereford police investigated several incidents Tuesday, including a $20 bill found near the Third Street and Lee Avenue intersection.

According to the police report, officers felt it was probable the bill belonged to a woman who had earlier Tuesday tried to pay her gas bill but came up $20 short. She had told the Energas worker the money had blown away.

Police also looked into one case piece of a lost purse, minor vandalism, assault and burglary of a motor vehicle.

OVERNIGHT LOW: 22 (normal: 22 record: -4 (1986))
OUTLOOK: A low in the middle 20s is predicted for tonight. Thursday is to be fair and have a high near 50.

Firm might drop stunt show

HOUSTON (AP) — A promoters' company is trying to decide whether it will discontinue an annual stunt show because of the death of a 37-year-old stuntman during an AstroDome performance. Karel Soucek plunged to his death Saturday after the padded barrel in which he was riding was dropped from the stadium's roof into a water-filled tank 180 feet below.

The barrel struck the rim of the tank, crushing Soucek's chest and abdomen and fracturing his skull, the Harris County medical examiner's office said. Soucek died about an hour after an ambulance took him to a hospital.

Pace Management Corp. has promoted the annual Thrill Show and Destruction Derby for 19 years, but may decide to halt the stunt program, a spokeswoman said Tuesday.

"We are reviewing it over the next 30 to 60 days," spokeswoman Susan Wolf said.

Ms. Wolf said Soucek was the first performer to be fatally injured in the history of the show. About 40,000 spectators were present.

Ailing trial courts need help

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice John Hill says that the Legislature must declare war on unnecessary court delays and increase court fees to pay for speedier justice.

Hill, in his first state-of-the-judiciary speech, on Tuesday described Texas trial courts as "our prime trouble area."

"I want to really underscore and emphasize today that our trial courts are ailing and need your help," said Hill. "In some areas, the situation is critical. Believe me ... the situation is bad and worsening, especially in some of our urban areas."

"Civil litigation takes too long and costs too much," said Hill. "We must declare war on unnecessary court delay at the trial level. Justice delayed is justice denied."

Spectators included state appeals judges, former chief justices Joe Greenhill and Jack Pope, Gov. Mark White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Hill, a former attorney general, said the state should provide district judges with an aide to handle paperwork. He suggested a salary of $27,500 for the job.

Sewage plan controversial

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — Conservationists and landowners say they will protest a proposal by Dallas city officials to dump 30 million gallons of raw sewage into the Trinity River next year.

Dallas officials are scheduled to go before the Texas Department of Water Resources Thursday to ask for approval of a plan to dump the untreated waste into the river while most of a city sewage treatment plant is temporarily closed for construction.

"Basically, we're opposed to discharges, not just this one, but all the discharges (requested by the City of Dallas) through 1986 totaling 1.8 billion gallons," said Victor Palma, regional program director in the resource protection branch of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"We would like to see them look at other methods. If they decide to discharge anyway, there are steps we would like to see them follow that are not listed on the permit request," he said Tuesday.

Under the city's plan, the sewage would be piped directly into the Trinity from a city pumping station.

Crashed plane's tape released

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Federal investigators on Tuesday recovered the "black boxes" from the crash of a turboprop airliner that killed 67 people and released a tape on which the pilot of the plane told the tower to deploy rescue equipment because "We've got to get back on the ground."

National Transportation Safety Board Chairman Jim Burnett convened a special meeting of the board later Tuesday night in Reno to investigate the crash. Afterward, at a news conference, he discounted speculation that a propeller on the four-engine plane had disintegrated before the crash.

"The propellers were intact at the point of impact," he said. But he did not rule out a problem with a propeller as possibly contributing to the accident.

"If a propeller is out of synch, vibration could result. It could cause a failure ...," he said.

On the tape, released by the Federal Aviation Administration, the unidentified pilot of the plane told of trouble shortly after takeoff because of "vibration on the aircraft."

Cold weather curtails launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The third straight night of freezing temperatures has forced a 24-hour delay of today's scheduled first U.S. military man-in-space mission, the first time in 46 astronaut flights that cold weather has postponed a launch.

Shortly before midnight Tuesday, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced that "extreme weather conditions in the area are projected to cause icing conditions on the external tank" that could be hazardous.

At the time the temperature was near freezing and dropping.

The launch was rescheduled for between 1:15 p.m. and 4:15 p.m. Thursday.

For security reasons, the Defense Department is keeping the exact launch time secret, to hamper Soviet efforts to monitor the huge $300-million spy satellite to be deployed from space shuttle Discovery by the five military officers flying the mission.

In the past, manned space flights have been postponed by technical problems, hurricanes and storms, but never by cold weather in generally sunny Florida. But a cold wave has lingered for three days in the area, dropping temperatures into the teens and low 20s, finally creating this "first" in the U.S. man-in-space program.

No abortion violence occurs

The 12th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision which legalized abortion passed without the violence some had feared, but with the certainty that both sides would be fighting through another year and demonstrating again next year.

"However sweet our victory now, the only approach we can have now is endless pressure ... so stay with us," Democratic state Rep. Jolene Unsoeld told 100 abortion rights advocates in Olympia, Wash.

"We're going to continue to take a stand," Nelson Cooney of Project Life told 350 shivering marchers at the South Carolina Statehouse on Tuesday, anniversary of the 1973 court ruling legalizing abortion.

The biggest demonstration was in the nation's capital, where 71,000 people marched to the Supreme Court after hearing President Reagan support their cause. But supporters and foes of legalized abortion pressed their case in dozens of state capitals, at family planning clinics and churches from Arizona to Maine and Oregon to Alabama.

"Reagan and Bush won so big partly because of their pro-life stand and Mondale and Ferraro lost so badly precisely because of their pro-abortion position," Dr. J.C. Wilke said in Washington.

A $60,000 settlement against Western Food Products Company of Dimmitt places more of a burden on packing sheds to follow laws regarding their workers' rights.

In Brownsville Federal District Court earlier this month, Judge Ricardo Hinojosa found the Dimmitt firm guilty of violating both the minimum wage laws and Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Workers Protection Act (AWPA). The suit, which involves 30 field laborers, was filed 14 months ago by Texas Rural Legal Aid.

According to Randall Marshall of the local TRLA office, monetary awards to workers are to be split into two categories. The first, consisting of 20 "family crew" members, are to receive $1,500 apiece. The other 10 were in "crew leader" groups and are each to be given $1,000.

The remainder of the $60,000 is for court and attorney fees, Marshall said.

In addition to the monetary awards, injunctive relief was granted for a three-year period. This, Marshall said he felt, is the most important part of Hinojosa's ruling.

Western Food must now provide services to its workers which had not been offered prior to the settlement, Marshall explained. Social Security payments must be ensured, minimum wage is to be paid, accurate and updated accounting records are to be kept and adequate recruitment information must be provided.

The major AWPA violation which triggered the suit, according to Marshall, involved recruitment policies. Potential or just-hired workers are entitled by the act to know in writing, among other things, how long they are to work, where the work is to be and if transportation and housing are available or to be provided.

Class members of the TRLA suit, Marshall claimed, "didn't get anything in writing" from Western Food.

Another reason litigation was filed against the Dimmitt shed was its insufficient record keeping, Marshall said. Accurate records must be kept on all workers and presented to them with their paychecks. Credited time, gross and net wages are among the items required to accompany receipt of wages.

"Without a doubt," Marshall commented, there are many problems with field workers being given minimum wage for work in the Panhandle. Some laborers are paid only one dollar an hour, he said.

Another problem for area field workers, Marshall pointed out, is lack of access to restrooms. Western Food, through losing the lawsuit, has been ordered to provide such facilities.

This month's ruling, Marshall said, "clearly places the responsibility in the sheds to assure that the (labor) laws are followed." For years, he added, sheds have been increasingly disassociating themselves from the farm workers.

Those family crew members involved in the suit were recruited from the Valley, Marshall said, while the other 11 were from Laredo. The crew leader members, he thought, performed some work in the Hereford-Dimmitt area for Western Food.

Between 300 and 500 field laborers were employed by Western Food in 1983, the TRLA spokesman guessed. Several of the workers were from Hereford and Dimmitt, he said.

Western Food Products Company has its home base in La Junta, Colo., according to Marshall, where it processes several types of vegetables. The Dimmitt operation features pickle production. Those workers involved in the suit were cucumber pickers.

Official word of the ruling, made Jan. 16 by Hinojosa, was not received by the local TRLA office until Tuesday.

Search for downed U.S. plane delayed

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Fog and stormy weather during the night forced U.S. officials to interrupt the search for a U.S. Air Force plane carrying 21 Americans that went down in the Caribbean about 500 yards off Honduras' coast, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

Robert Callahan, the embassy's press attache, said the C-130A transport was on its way to the Honduran coastal town of Trujillo from Howard Air Force Base in Panama when it splashed into the water about 11 a.m. EST Tuesday.

The embassy spokesman said the first reports of the plane going down came from Honduran fishermen, although no wreckage was sighted by searchers.

He said the search was suspended after several hours because of a combination of rain, fog, wind and high seas. The search was expected to be resumed today, as soon as weather permitted.

Callahan said the five crew members and 16 passengers were "all U.S. personnel, that's our understanding."

The plane was assigned to the 440th Tactical Airlift Wing, an Air Force reserve unit based at Billy Mitchell Field in Milwaukee, he said.

"No hostile action was indicated in the mishap," according to a statement issued by U.S. military officials at Palmerola Air Base, 90 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital.

The Americans were at the Honduran base for training exercises.

Trujillo is about 240 miles north of Tegucigalpa and is near a regional military training center for Honduran and Salvadoran troops.

Lt. Col. Gene Sands, a Defense Department spokesman, said earlier in Washington: "They're in the water. We can't even get in for sea rescue because of the weather."

The statement said the aircraft was on a "routine airlift mission" from Howard, headquarters of the U.S. Southern Command, which has jurisdiction over U.S. military activities in Central America.

An Air Force source in Washington, who spoke on condition he not be identified, described the flight as "a normal rotation of people."

Sands said it was unclear whether the plane crashed or ditched deliberately.

The United States has been holding joint military exercises with the Honduran army.

Losses of $1 billion predicted

Florida citrus damage worse than 1983

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — As the mercury dipped below freezing today, citrus growers rushed their icy product to market amid predictions that their losses from a three-day cold snap could exceed the $1 billion from the 1983 killer freeze.

Gov. Bob Graham declared a state of emergency Tuesday, and federal inspectors were sent to assess damage to citrus and vegetable crops caused by the state's worst cold spell in a century.

At 2 a.m. today, it was 33 degrees in Tampa, Orlando and Gainesville; 32 in Crestview and Sarasota; and 31 in Jacksonville, Daytona Beach and Melbourne, according to the National Weather Service.

Today is the third consecutive day that citrus fields are being ravaged by frigid arctic air. Record lows for Jan. 22 were set in 13 Florida communities, and the weather service warned that the cold wave was not over.

"Everybody expected low temperatures," Bernie Hamel of the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association said Tuesday. "But what really hurt the most was the duration. It just got down and stayed down."

State Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner said reports he received Tuesday led him to believe that the freeze could rank as the worst ever in Florida. He said the damage this time is "more widespread, more crops destroyed."

The 1983 freeze damaged or destroyed trees and fruit of more than 250,000 acres, causing more than $1 billion in losses, according to industry economists.

Wilson McGee, retired citrus executive, said the latest freeze has been "more democratic and systematic — it seemed to hit everywhere."

The Florida Crop and Livestock Reporting Service sampled fruit from 130 citrus belt sites on Tuesday. Eleven of the 32 citrus belt counties were not surveyed because they suffered such extensive damage during the 1983 freeze that there was not enough fruit to make a sampling valid, said Ernie Neff, a spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual.

But of those counties surveyed, 89 percent of the fruit samples contained some ice, indicating "a high percentage of the state's citrus crop was impacted," said Bobby McKown, executive vice president of Florida Citrus Mutual.

Much of the citrus fruit frozen on the trees can be turned into juice if it is harvested quickly enough. An estimated 75 percent of the orange crop is still on the trees.

Carl Reynolds, a DeLand-area grower, said Monday's cold persuaded him to get out of the citrus industry in which his family has worked for 52 years.

Government reports today

Rate of inflation best since late 1960s

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose a restrained 4 percent in 1984, giving the country its best three-year inflation rate since the late 1960s, the government said today.

Last year's increase, which reflected an across-the-board price moderation, was only a slight deterioration from the 3.8 percent inflation rate of 1983, the lowest in more than a decade. Prices had risen 3.9 percent in 1982.

When last year began, most analysts were predicting prices would rise around 5 percent as the economy waged its second year of recovery from the recession. Despite the strongest economic growth in three decades, however, inflation came in a full 1 percentage point under expectations.

Now, analysts predict more widespread price moderation in 1985.

"We don't really see any significant price increases in any of the categories," said Donald Ratajczak, head of the economic forecasting unit at Georgia State University. "The world trend in inflation is downward and our trend is even stronger because of the dollar."

Today's report was the second round of good inflation news in 24 hours. On Tuesday, using a different method of calculation, the Commerce Department put last year's inflation rate at 3.7 percent — the best showing for that index since 1967.

Today's Labor Department report said prices rose a small 0.2 percent in December, a gain that matched the increase in November and in three other months as the best of the year.

For the three years ending in 1984, consumer prices were up 12.1 percent, the best showing since retail prices rose just 11.5 percent in the years 1966-68.

As recently as 1980, however, prices soared 12.4 percent in a single year, following a 13.3 percent jump in 1979 as the Iranian revolution plunged oil markets into turmoil, creating gasoline lines in the United States and shortages around the world.

the crop for a more diverse ag economy.

Speaker of the House Gib Lewis has lost some credibility with folks in Texas. Before the session began, Lewis called in all the newly-elected legislators and lectured them about keeping a line on spending. On repeated occasions, Lewis had flatly promised that there will be no new taxes in 1985, and in order to meet budget demands, everyone would have to tighten their belts.

Everyone obviously doesn't include the Speaker. He spent almost $35,000 in items to make his Capitol apartment more to his tastes—which might be termed expensive. Expenses included a $3,700 canopy bed, more than $20,000 for drapes and other window dressing, more than $1,000 for a refrigerator and icemaker, and $699 for a flop-top bar and $560 for napkins.

According to some reports, the total bill for renovation work and furniture was about $160,000. Yesterday, Lewis defended his actions and criticized news reports about those expenses. He issued a lengthy statement blasting the news media for "implying" that "it was somehow wrong for the speaker to maintain an apartment in the Capitol."

Wrong again, Mr. Speaker. The law provides for the facilities. The question being asked is why does it have to be done so lavishly?

Gililland views arts as vital to life

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

"Arts are what keep mankind from swinging from the trees. The arts put a zest in life, help to create a diversion and provide excitement."

— Amy Gililland.
Although the first segment of her quote may sound a little exaggerated, Gililland knows the value of fine arts and is actively involved in promoting them locally.

One of the ways she communicates the arts is through Hereford Community Players. Beginning in 1968, members performed three shows annually over the next eight years, ac-ording to Gililland.

"We had problems finding a place where we could work for any length of time," Gililland recalled. "We really didn't have a place to store our props and the people were just getting tired. There weren't enough who wanted to work hard enough to keep it going."

Thus, the Community Players gradually faded out.

As a result of Gililland's interest in reorganizing the group, she has organized a production of Neil Simon's "Barefoot in the Park" for Feb. 16 and 17 at the Community Center. Hereford Community Players last performed this play at the Jim Hill Hotel Ballroom. The hotel since has been razed.

With Sylvia Emerick as producer and Gililland as director, the roles will be played by six local residents. Debe Graves was awarded the part of Corie Bratter, Harold Brigance will appear as Paul Bratter, Troy Waddell as Victor Valesco, Marci Hamilton as Mrs. Banks, Ruben Vargas as the telephone man and John Alkin as the delivery man.

"This play is one of the ways we are trying to resurrect the community players," Gililland said. "John (her husband) and I were instrumental in getting it started."

"After the auditions were held, we knew that there still is really an interest here for the group."

Gililland chose one of Simon's funniest plays, and its humor can be understood in this part of the country, she said. The play also was chosen because it has been performed previously and requires only six characters, thus presenting fewer scheduling problems, she added.

The play will be presented in three-quarter round, and the sets will come from individual's homes.

"It is so rewarding to see people from all walks of life come together and put together something so much more," Gililland said.

Gililland's interest in the arts goes back as far as she can remember.

Growing up on a farm near Dimmitt, her grade school offered auditorium class where the students wrote their own skits and plays.

In high school, she performed in one-act plays and enrolled in many of the drama courses. At Lubbock Christian College, she took all of the speech and drama courses she could fit in her schedule.

Her husband attended West Texas State University where he concentrated his course work in radio and TV, speech and drama.

"The theater is a continuation of make believe, and I don't remember a time when I was not interested in make believe," Gililland said.

"Plays are a good way of seeing how others live without having been there," she continued. "Participation in the theater can be a whole family event, too."

Not only does Gililland enjoy working with adults and bringing together different backgrounds and experiences, she also enjoys working with children. She frequently volunteers to help with the high school plays, and she and her husband work with stage make-up for many of the productions.

"I love to work with kids," Gililland explained. "I got hooked on theater when I was a kid. I realize that if you can hook them (children) now on it, they're hooked for life."

Although the majority of her time now is being spent with the play, Gililland also devotes effort to the Chamber Singers and to Community Concert.

Raised in the Church of Christ singing a cappella, she joined the choir at LCC. Today, she has been singing with the Chamber Singers for nine years. She is on the board of directors and is the public relations officer.

The Chamber Singers are to travel to San Antonio Aug. 2 for a concert at the Texas Choral Directors Association convention.

"We made a trip to San Antonio 10 years ago," Gililland recalled. "Then, it was our first big trip."

To prepare and raise money for the trip, the Chamber Singers will present a spring concert.

Gililland has also been on the community concert board for about six years. She presently serves as publicity chairman and as concert master, a title she refers to as "a glorified stage hand."

The next event sponsored by Community Concert will be Lawrence Welk Feb. 21.

In addition to local arts, she is the Deaf Smith County contact for the Texas Fine Arts Association, receiving and distributing information.

With acting and singing a vital part to her life, Gililland also draws and paints. She is a member of both Calliopean Study Club and Bay View Study Club. For those clubs, she tries to present programs on the arts. She also gives book reviews for other clubs in town.

She and her husband presently are involved with the training classes for the Stephen Ministry.

Gililland is the receptionist for Pat Walker's Figure Salon, a task somewhat new to her.

"It's the first time in 20 years that I've held a full-time job," she laughed.

Ann Landers Do something

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am one of millions who are so involved in their daily lives they don't have the time or energy to right the wrongs they see around them.

I am furious about our system of justice. I am enclosing two articles from the newspaper that speak for themselves. In one case, a driver paid a $9 fine for killing a young woman (he was exceeding the speed limit). In another case, someone was arrested for sitting in the wrong chair.

I have several attorney friends (one has won over $18 million in lawsuits), and they all agree that winning is simply a matter of convincing the jury (or the judge) of the merit of their case. Justice doesn't figure in anywhere. What matters is who can make the most effective presentation.

Having done a lot of traveling around the world, I have seen no place else I would prefer to stand trial. The United States is still the best country of all, but that does not mean everyone here receives justice.

Unfortunately, I am too tired to organize a group to fight for a better court system, but I sure wish somebody would. Too many victims receive unfair treatment. Any comment?—J.D. in Knoxville

DEAR J.D.: I asked a competent authority to respond to your letter. The comments that follow are from Wilbur F. Pell, Senior Circuit Judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago:

"Without a doubt, skill, efficiency and a convincing presentation help produce positive results, whether you are dealing with a judge or jury, delivering a sermon or selling merchandise. Ability pays off. But judges, being only human, are bound to arrive at different conclusions regarding severity of punishment.

"Both the administrative and legislative bodies are taking steps to achieve a greater uniformity of sentencing. For example, in the federal court system, institutes are held periodically to discuss methods and problems in sentencing.

"If your correspondent feels strongly that a citizens' group should be formed to give justice a better chance, he should find the time to do something about it rather than complain to Ann Landers."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last October my husband and his father got into an argument over how we should discipline our son. They have not spoken since.

The same thing happened with my husband's father and his father. They didn't speak for five years. My husband didn't want to take sides so he stayed out of it. His brother said he was chicken not to back him up and got mad at my husband. They don't speak to this day. My husband tried to make up with his brother last Christmas but he got hung up on and refuses to try again.

My father-in-law is not speaking to HIS father. It seems to be a family tradition. What can be done about such stubbornness?—Ashamed in Ariz.

DEAR A: Very little, unfortunately. How sad that people waste so many good years harboring grievances. Everyone involved in a family feud regrets that he or she didn't make up sooner. Show this to your knuckleheaded relatives. I hope it helps.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go?? Ann Landers' "New Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. For a copy, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Cooking program presented

"Cooking for One or Two" was the program presented by Susan Raney, county extension agent, when members of North Hereford Extension Homemakers Club met Thursday in the home of Naomi Brisendine.

During the program Raney stressed not to buy groceries when hungry and to divide large pieces of meat when brought home from the store. She also suggested wrapping and freezing the smaller portions of meat and not to cook in large quantities. Program chairman was Bell Reid.

During the business meeting with Brisendine presiding, members who had attended the recent officer training meeting reported on what they had learned. Also, the next meeting was scheduled Feb. 7 in the home of Brenda Campbell.

Edna Schulte was welcomed a guest by those present. They included Martha Lueb, Breanda Campbell and Candice, Evelyn Crofford, Pegg Hoff and Reid.

The first teabags were produced in San Francisco in 1920 by Joseph Krieger. Though they were originally designed for caterers, by 1935 most were sold for home use.

Whitefaces fall, 49-47

Bulldogs squeak by Hereford

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

PLAINVIEW — For 31-plus minutes Tuesday night, the Hereford Whitefaces and Plainview Bulldogs played relatively even in a District 3-5A girls basketball game.

No, make that dead even. But with :06 showing on the scoreboard clock, Plainview's Ramona Black nailed a 16-foot jump shot to lift the Bulldogs past the Herd, 49-47, in the PHS gym. It was altogether fitting that Black, who led all scorers with 16 points, should hit the last two points. Hereford coach Larry Sowers calls Black one of the best shooters in the district.

"They've got a good team," he said, "with good size and good athletes. That Black girl has to be as good a shooter in district as there is. But we should have had it (the game)."

Hereford led by as many as eight points in the fourth quarter, 45-37 with 3:54 to play. However, the Whitefaces missed the front ends of 1-and-1 foul shots three times down the rest of the stretch while Plainview sawed away at the lead.

Following a steal by a Plainview player, Becky Remington was credited with a tip-in to tie the score at 47. Hereford turned the ball over again with about 15 seconds left to set up Black's winning shot.

"I don't know how in the world we won," Plainview coach Kathy Harston said. "In the last two minutes, we finally got our composure and played some defense."

"Hereford is the best outside shooting team we've faced all year. I didn't know what to do against them defensively."

With the win, Plainview strengthens its grip on second place in league standings at 10-2. Overall, the Bulldogs are 15-7. Hereford, its playoff hopes somewhat diminished now, falls to 7-4 in district and 8-9 overall.

Head Fake

Adelia Rodriguez (24) gives a head fake to a Plainview opponent to drive the lane in District 3-5A girls basketball Tuesday night in Plainview. The Bulldogs won the game, 49-47, with a field goal in the final six seconds, holding on to their second-place standing

Edwin Moses pleads innocent Tuesday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two-time Olympic gold medalist Edwin Moses has entered a plea of innocent to a charge of soliciting a policewoman for prostitution and will be tried Feb. 8.

Moses was not present at the Municipal Court arraignment Tuesday. Deputy City Attorney Mike Wilkinson said California law permits a defendant's absence at such hearings in misdemeanor cases.

Except for saying, "We just want to try it in the courtroom," Edward Medvene, Moses' attorney, declined comment following the hearing before Judge David Doi.

A pretrial discovery hearing at which the prosecution is to make its evidence available to the defense will be held Monday.

Moses, 29, has won 109 consecutive 400-meter hurdle races since August of 1977 and captured the gold medal in his specialty in the 1976 and 1984 Olympic Games.

The charge of soliciting, which carries a maximum six-month jail sentence, a $1,000 fine or both, stems from a vice squad sweep in Hollywood early Sunday morning, Jan. 13.

Bulldogs lead early, hold on

Whitefaces lose at Plainview

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

PLAINVIEW — Some people truthfully can say the third time's the charm.

At least for Plainview, that is. Jumping out to a quick 18-5 lead in the first quarter, the Bulldogs held on to stop the Hereford Whitefaces, 63-55, in a District 3-5A basketball game Tuesday in the PHS gym. The game marked the third time this season the teams have met, Hereford winning the first two.

Missed free throws again plagued the Whitefaces as team members connected on only 15 of 30 charity tosses. Those 30 attempts included five front ends of 1-and-1s.

"They (the missed free shots) sure didn't help," Hereford coach Mike Fields said after the game. "But we just got going way too fast, not doing what we're supposed to do. We didn't have enough patience."

Fields added that scoring only 22 points per half of basketball — as the Whitefaces did in Plainview — wouldn't win many games.

The first half was disastrous for the Herd. Kevin Redus scored two points off an inbounds play to tie the score at 2. It was the last time the game was tied. After his score, Redus had a chance at some free throws, but hit only one of four attempts to make the score 4-3, Plainview.

Plainview then got two buckets by Andrew Jackson, two by Thomas Curry and Shawn Lance, and one by Richard Senter. Rodney Torres squeezed a basket in among the Bulldogs' scoring, and the score was 18-5 with 1:40 to play. Redus and Torres each added two more for Hereford, and Daniel King got in on the scoring act with two to narrow the first quarter bulge to 18-11.

But the damage had been done, and Hereford could never overcome the Bulldogs' lead. Plainview coach Dan Hamrick said the first half was one of the best 16 minutes this season for the 'Dogs.

"We played extremely well in the first half," Hamrick said. "We played in streaks, but we played well during those streaks. Hereford was a little cold shooting, but our defense had something to do with that."

Fields agreed that Plainview played well, and added that the Bulldogs had improved since the last meeting between the rival schools.

"We had to get out of our press tonight," Fields said. "It didn't seem to bother them at all."

Especially in the first quarter. The main scoring thrust for Plainview in that 18-point period was the fast break. At least 10 of the Bulldogs' points were a direct result of beating the press on a fast break.

And whereas Hereford's press was ineffective, Plainview's was more than adequate.

"Hereford didn't expect our press tonight, I don't think," Hamrick said. "This game was a reversal of the last time we played Hereford, when their press ate us up."

For most of the evening, the Bulldogs ran a three-quarters-court zone press. At times, Plainview would switch to a full-court zone.

"We shot the ball good, too, early in the game," Hamrick added, "and Hereford shot poorly. Neither team is a good come-from-behind team, but neither ever quits. Give Hereford credit."

For a brief time in the second period, Hereford threatened to get back into the game. The 'Dogs and Whitefaces traded buckets by Hereford's Bobby Baker and Plainview's Senter. The Herd scored two more by Redus, who put up an offensive rebound from inside. Senter got the front end of a 1-and-1 and then hit a short jumper to give his team 23 points.

But Hereford wouldn't die. Baker hit a free throw and two field goals from inside to draw the Herd to 23-20 with just more than three minutes to play. Redus had a chance to pull the Whitefaces to within one, but missed the front end of a 1-and-1 with 2:05 to go.

Plainview extended the lead to 29-20 on two baskets by Senter and one by each of Jackson and Willie Ansley. Baker got Hereford's final bucket of the half on an inside shot off the glass with eight seconds to play.

"I'd say that Richard Senter played the best half of basketball he's played all year," Hamrick said. "You know, Hereford's our rival, and the kids wanted to win pretty bad. Here'd beaten us twice this year, and our seniors wanted to end the year with a winning taste in their mouths."

Hereford was never closer than five points the rest of the way. Plainview outscored the Whitefaces 14-9 in the third period and 20-14 in the fourth.

Baker led all scorers with 16 points. Torres was close behind with 15 for Hereford, now 2-8 in district action and 8-12 overall. Plainview, 3-7 and 9-14, was led by Curry, who had 14 points. Other Bulldogs to get into

(See BOYS, Page 7A)

Box Him In

Hereford's Bobby Baker (24), Kevin Redus and Mike Scott (22) appear to have Plainview's Shawn Lance (40) surrounded underneath the Whitefaces' basket during third-quarter action Tuesday night in Plainview. The Whitefaces fell behind early to the Bulldogs, finally bowing 63-55.

Simpson, Staubach among five inductees

Former Heisman winners make Hall of Fame

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — O.J. Simpson, the first runner in the National Football League to gain 2,000 rushing yards in a season, is now the "first" former Heisman Trophy winner to make the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

"I've been teasing Roger (Staubach) every time I've seen him in recent years, because he announced his retirement within four or five months of mine," Simpson said Tuesday. "I told him he just didn't want me to be the first former Heisman winner in the Hall.

"But I still beat him. S-i comes before S-t, so I beat him alphabetically. I'm still the first Heisman winner to make it."

Simpson and the former Dallas Cowboys' quarterback were among five enshrinees named to the Hall Tuesday, according to Pete Elliott, the shrine's executive director. The others ARE National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle, quarterback Joe Namath and o-l-timer Frank Gatski.

Simpson, the 1968 Heisman Trophy winner at Southern Cal, became the first NFL running back to gain 2,000 yards rushing in one season in 1973, when he accounted for 2,003 yards with the Buffalo Bills. In 11 seasons with the Bills and San Francisco 49ers, Simpson accounted for 11,236 yards rushing and a combined 14,368 yards.

The 42-year-old Staubach will join

Bob Lilly as the only Cowboys' players in the Hall. Staubach, the 1963 Heisman Trophy winner at Navy, began his NFL career after four years of service.

In a nine-year period, Staubach played in six National Football Conference title games, leading the Cowboys to four victories and triumphs in Super Bowls VI and XII. His career pass rating of 83.4 was the highest in NFL history when he quit in 1979.

"This is something you dream about," Staubach said in Dallas. "It's fantastic. It is good to have it over with, a tremendous feeling. I wish my parents were alive to see it."

Rozelle, 58, has served as NFL commissioner for the past 25 years after his tenure as general manager of the Los Angeles Rams. He is the third NFL commissioner to be named to the Hall of Fame, joining 1963 charter members Joe Carr and Bert Bell.

Rozelle negotiated the first league-wide television contract in 1962, handled a 1963 gambling scandal, directed an interleague war with the old American Football League that led to the current merged alignment and helped to develop the Super Bowl.

In O.J. Simpson's record rushing year of 2,003 yards for Buffalo in 1973, he had three games of more than 200 yards and eight of more than 100.

Says information specialist

Excellent time to purchase wool clothes

COLLEGE STATION — The combination of unusually cold weather and traditional winter sales have made this an excellent time to buy wool clothes, says a Texas A&M University consumer information specialist.

"Often when you buy wool items on sale in south Texas, you can look forward to months of storing them in a closet until winter sets in again," says Beverly Rhoades. But this year looks like it will provide a longer wearing season, she adds.

Wool fashions are an investment in quality and long life, Rhoades maintains. When buying wool clothes — even on sale — consider the cost per wearing. Simply divide the total cost by the number of times you estimate you will wear the garment.

Because wool clothing is durable, resists tearing and often doesn't show wear, it can generally be worn for several seasons, she explains. So the per wearing cost of buying "investment" clothing such as a wool suit may be lower than the cost of less expensive clothing worn over a shorter period of time.

When shopping for wool clothes, look for the woolmark, which may be on the label or a hang tag, says the specialist. In addition, certain descriptive terms on the label may indicate wool quality origin or quality:

"Virgin" wool has never been used before. The term indicates use only and not quality.

"Reprocessed" wool has never been worn but is remanufactured from fabric scraps and is usually of lower quality than virgin wool.

"Reused" wool has been remanufactured from items use before and is usually of lower quality than reprocessed wool. It is often used in blends.

Wool is often blended with other fibers to produce fabrics which cost less than pure wool or to enhance care, appearance or wearability features for a particular type of clothing, Rhoades says. But if a garment contains at least 50 percent wool fiber, it will behave much like pure wool, she adds.

While consumers are out looking for a bargain at the winter sales, they could be contributing to the Texas wool industry, Rhoades observes. Texas is the number one wool producing state and it provides almost 50 percent of the nation's fine grade wool, she says.

According to the specialist, the $120 million dollar industry also employs about 10,000 Texans in fiber production, warehousing and some processing.

Records of people dancing exist in cave paintings in northern Spain. Scientists think these pictures were drawn about 50,000 years ago.

Nutritional state not revealed by hair

COLLEGE STATION — For years mothers have been telling their children to eat their vegetables so their hair will be shiny and their eyes will be bright. Perhaps that's one reason why so many consumers believe the claims made for nutritional hair analysis.

"Some relationship may exist between the state of one's health and the state of one's hair," says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Dr. Alice Hunt. "But there is no scientific data which would enable someone to diagnose the mineral level in the body based on a sample of hair," she adds.

Yet, according to Federal Trade Commission (FTC) estimates, consumers now pay more than $25 million to companies selling hair analysis services nationwide. The FTC has charged at least one of these firms with deception and asked the courts to freeze the assets of the company for use in possible redress.

According to Hunt, the companies use hair analysis services primarily to sell minerals, vitamins and other dietary supplements.

The mail-order services are often advertised in health-oriented magazines and at holistic health fairs, she says. Consumers send in a hair sample along with a fee for the "analysis." In return, they receive a computer printout and a recommendation to purchase vitamin and mineral supplements.

"But there is no legitimate test that can be done on hair to determine the mineral level in the body," Hunt maintains. And since there are no vitamins in hair, a recommendation to purchase vitamin supplements because of a hair analysis is equally misleading, she emphasizes.

The fact that consumers are willing to pay for these services shows a concern for their nutritional health and may reflect the mistaken belief that our food supply is deficient in vitamins and minerals, observes the specialist.

"Eating a balanced diet will normally provide all the minerals and vitamins a person needs," Hunt says. "People who are concerned about their nutritional status would be better off consulting a physician for legitimate medical advice than spending their money on needless vitamins and minerals."

Tickets for the performances Friday and Saturday are priced at $5 for adults and $3 for children under 12 years of age. Matinee tickets are $4 and $2.50. They are available at Thames Pharmacy, Caryn's Hallmark, Frosty's Meat Market or by calling 364-8303.

Super Bowl leads ABC to first ratings victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Super Bowl XIX had super ratings, when compared to mortal shows, but the dream-game-turned-rout never materialized as a record-breaker.

"Maybe the Super Bowl ratings have peaked," said Mike Eisenberg, CBS' director of audience measurement.

According to figures released Tuesday by the A.C. Nielsen Co., ABC's first Super Bowl had a 46.4 rating, tying last year's Washington-Los Angeles Raiders game as the No. 5-rated game of alltime and the No. 11 program ever televised.

The final episode of "M-A-S-H" is the No. 1 show with a 60.2 rating. The record Super Bowl broadcast was the 1982 game between San Francisco and Cincinnati, which had a 49.1 rating.

A rating point equals one percent of the nation's 84.9 million TV homes. There was speculation that the dream offensive match-up between Miami and San Francisco, teams that had lost three games between them, would draw a record Super Bowl audience.

But, with San Francisco so dominant, the game lost viewers, building to a high of 48.2 in the second quarter and falling to a 40.1 in the final minutes. An original episode of CBS' "Crazy Like a Fox" picked up some defecting viewers and ranked 24th for the week with a respectable 18.4 rating. The Super Bowl's 30-minute post-game show was the week's second-rated show with a 30.6.

ABC estimated that 110 million viewers watched some part of San Francisco's 38-16 rout. Advertisers paid a record $1 million for a minute of commercial time during the game. ABC sold all the time, although some normal sports sponsors, such as Chevrolet, decided the price was too steep and stayed away.

For the week of Jan. 14-20, ABC, which also was helped by the Super Bowl post-game show and the heavily promoted "MacGruder & Loud" on Sunday, finished with a 20.2 rating, its first ratings victory this season. CBS had a 17.0 and NBC a 16.5.

After 17 weeks of the prime-time season, CBS, which has won 13 weeks, has averaged a 17.1 rating, NBC a 16.1 and ABC a 15.4, an increase of three-tenths of a point from last week.

Public Safety troopers report on arrests in December

During the month of December, Texas Department of Public Safety troopers working on their days off made 104 arrests in Randall County and 77 arrests in Castro County.

Eighteen of the Randall County arrests were for driving while intoxicated, while 11 DWI charges resulted from the Castro County arrests.

The two counties were selected for a DWI crackdown and placed under a program called STEP (Selective Traffic Enforcement Project.) Funds totaling more than $144,000 will pay troopers statewide for overtime worked during the nine months the project is scheduled to run.

STEP is funded by a special grant through the office of Traffic Safety of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation and is scheduled to end in August of this year.

"What we're trying to do is inform the public that a person who gets in an intoxicated condition and drives a motor vehicle in these two counties is probably going to get arrested," said Sgt. John Lancaster of Randall County.

The two counties were selected for STEP as a result of a study of alcohol related accidents conducted by the Texas Traffic Institute of Texas A&M University.

According to Sgt. Harold Price in Castro County, "Even though we are out in force, we know we will never be able to apprehend all intoxicated drivers. However, if we can convince people that there will be serious consequences for those who drink and drive, it should go a long way toward solving this problem."

Moisture control important in homes during cold season

COLLEGE STATION — Water, frost or ice on the inside of windows is a chore to clean up and can produce conditions for the growth of mildew in your home, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service housing specialist.

Homeowners may not realize that it takes only four to six pints of water to raise the relative humidity of a 1000 square foot house from 15 to 60 percent, says Dr. Peggy Owens.

For example, a person breathing produces 1/2 pint of moisture per hour and mopping a 150 square foot floor will realize 4 1/2 pints of moisture into the air, she explains.

In addition to normally generated moisture, certain heating methods can contribute to moisture in the home, Owens says. In very tightly sealed homes with good insulation and storm windows, the use of an unvented kerosene space heater can double the amount of moisture vapor generated in the house each day.

"The presence of continuous condensation on windows is a good sign of excess moisture," Owens says. "If frost or ice forms on a glass or metal frame and sash and if paint peels and wood rots, there is certainly excess moisture."

If a single pane of glass gets so cold that moisture condenses and runs down it in the winter, then double glass and/or a heating vent located beneath the window can eliminate the problem, says the specialist.

But sometimes condensation will occur on windows even when the relative humidity in the house is low. In this case, condensation on windows results more from the cold window surface than from excessively high moisture in the room. Adding storm windows or polyurethane film to the windows, or placing heated air vents can solve the problem, advises the specialist.

If moisture condenses between the permanent window and storm window, or polyurethane film and the window, the warm, moist air from inside the house is leaking to the airspace between the two. To correct this problem, says Owens, seal the leaking spaces or ventilate the two windows. Ventilate the windows by drilling two three-eighths inch holes at the top and bottom of the storm windows or loosening them slightly.

When mildew or dampness is present on the ceiling or on the outside walls near the ceiling, there is a possibility that the insulation is not properly installed. In this case Owens advises repositioning the insulation in order to prevent cold wind from chilling the area where vapor will condense in your house.

U.S. workplaces get safer

(Source: U.S. Labor Department) NEA GRAPHIC
Work-related injuries and illnesses declined from 11 per 100 workers in 1973 to 7.6 per 100 in 1983. However, the Labor Department says this might understate the problem of long-term illness, since the figures cover only new cases — not complications from illnesses reported in earlier years.

'The Glades' a unique refuge in East Texas

QUITMAN, Texas (AP) — A few miles east of here is a unique habitat that lies in stark contrast to the piney forests this part of East Texas is noted for.

It is that uniqueness that recently put a gleam in the eyes of the Natural Area Preservation Association Inc. of Dallas when a 75-year easement on the 350-acre marsh was donated to the group recently by the Dallas Market Center and developer Trammell Crow.

The marsh forms an area called The Glades by the conservation organization, according to Edward C. Fritz, chairman of NAPA's acquisition committee. Fritz said the group's interest in the area stems from the fact it is the largest natural grass marsh north of the Gulf coast.

The Glades contains a shallow lake supporting a variety of wetland plants and animals, Fritz said. Alligators, egrets, racoons, deer and wood ducks inhabit the area, he said. "It's a one of a kind," said Scott Riddle, manager of Mill Creek Farms, of The Glades. Mill Creek is an 8,200-acre spread owned by the Dallas Market Center that surrounds the newly protected marsh.

"It's awesome, totally different," said Riddle, who first saw the undisturbed crystal clear waters about seven years ago on a duck hunting trip with his boss, Crow. Three years ago Riddle and his wife, Sandra, moved to Mill Creek Farms from Arlington when he took over as manager.

Riddle said granting the preservation easement is another in a long series of conservation measures that Crow has pushed over the years. He said Crow has "always had an interest in conservation."

While The Glades form a unique habitat, it is not an area that would likely appeal to just everyone, Riddle said. "You just have to be a person who appreciates its value," he said. It is a wild country, a home for poisonous water moccasins "this big around" Riddle said as he places the index fingers and thumbs of both hands together in a circle three to four inches in diameter.

In the summer it is a haven for mosquitos. But, along with the natural nuisances, there is a lot of natural beauty too, Riddle said.

The sugarcane plumegrass grows to a height of a person out in the water. Ferns, mosses and "wildlife of virtually every kind" abound in the area, Fritz said.

Among the unique aspects of the marsh are the floating islands of matted, decayed material that now support other forms of plant life. Surrounded by the head-high sugarcane plumegrass, The Glades is also home to one of the most primitive of plants, the little-known punctuated hornwort, Fritz said.

The area has been under study for years by various groups including those from Southern Methodist University, Texas A&M University and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Fritz and Riddle said. NAPA plans on assigning future ecological studies to find out more about the area, Fritz said.

Riddle said wood ducks thrive in The Glades due to the abundance of natural cover and a ready supply of one of their favored foods, acorns that fall from the many white oak growing in the swamp.

While Riddle said he has never seen alligators in The Glades, but he knows they are there from the tracks they leave behind and from the howling noises they make at night. He noted that the American alligator is native to this part of East Texas and is spotted occasionally on nearby Big Sandy Creek.

As manager of the land that includes The Glade, Riddle sees his job as not to pamper or try to change the uniqueness of the area.

"The Glade pretty much takes care of itself," Riddle said. "Our job is more to protect it, to make sure no one damages it."

He said hunting is not allowed in The Glade area itself. Even after The Glades are formally dedicated to the NAPA, they will not be open to the general public, Fritz said.

"It will be open by appointment only; we do not want to run the risk of the area becoming a picnic ground," Fritz said. To do so would infringe upon the delicate balance of nature that has developed in the self-contained ecosystem, he said.

Instead, Fritz said, The Glades will be preserved as a living laboratory that scientists, universities and school groups can use to further their studies and understanding of nature.

Fritz said as far as he knows the conservation easement made by Crow on The Glades is the first under a recently passed conservation law. He hopes the 75-year donation will facilitate future donations of a similar type.

After the dedication of the area it will be open to groups making reservations through Fritz at the NAPA office in Dallas by telephoning (214) 352-8370, he said.

World War I flier tours NASA to mark birthday

HOUSTON (AP) — Smokey Cameron, a former deputy sheriff who rode shotgun on stagecoaches in Arizona when it was still a territory, the great-grandson of the famous Chiracahua Apache chief Cochise, the man who demonstrated his mule-skinning skills at 12 to a skeptical Teddy Roosevelt — may have been born in the horse n' buggy days but he's hooked on new frontiers in space.

Cameron has been a big fan of the space program since it began in the '60s. Whenever the Mercury, Gemini, Apollo or Saturn rockets blasted into space, the former World War I fighter pilot was glued to his television set. It's the same now with the space shuttle takeoffs and landings.

Cameron has been talking about space and the space program for so long that his friends in Dallas decided to do something about it, like give him a surprise trip to NASA's Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center in Houston for his birthday.

Smokey's not exactly a spring chicken. He celebrated his 99th birthday recently with friends at the Kensington Manor nursing home in Pleasant Grove. As soon as the cake and ice cream disappeared, he was anxiously heading south on Interstate 45.

"Where do I sign up for a space shuttle trip," he quipped as Carolyn Huntoon, associated director of the Johnson Space Center, officially greeted Smokey and his VIP tour party.

Accompanying Smokey on his all-day tour were Richard Herman, nursing home administrator, his wife, Marie; Dorothy Schmude, a longtime friend representing the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Audie L. Murphy Memorial Post 1837 (Smokey's a life member of the post); Stella Luna, a protocol assistant in NASA's public affairs office; and Jerry Elliott, NASA's project engineer for astronaut crew equipment.

Before starting his behind-the-scenes look at the space center, Smokey presented Huntoon with an American flag he hoped astronauts would someday plant on the moon for him.

Confined to a wheelchair during the daylong tour because of phlebitis in his legs, Smokey's guide in the exhibits area of the Visitor Center was shuttle astronaut Michael Coats.

"That's a space-age version of a stagecoach," Coats said, pointing to a duplicate of the lunar rover. "You know we've left a lot of junk up there on the moon."

Smokey looked at the lunar rover, the rusted space capsule and the gallery of old spacesuits. "Wish I could go up with you sometime," he said.

"I wish you could, too," the Navy commander replied, "but I bet those World War I planes were probably more fun to fly than the space shuttle is. The planes you flew were the ones I dreamed about when I was growing up."

Born in 1886 in the Arizona Territory, Smokey (that's not a nickname) was the son of a full-blooded Chiracahua who married Edith Travis, a missionary school teacher.

At 12 and with only three years of school, Smokey was driving freight wagons. Later he was a deputy to John Slaughter, the U.S. marshal at Tombstone. As a young man, Smokey, a trick rider and rodeo performer, and his wife, trick shooter, joined a wild west show-ride and traveled throughout Europe and England. The show happened to be in England when World War I started. Never one to shirk a fight, Smokey enlisted in the British air corps, then transferred to the American unit when the United States entered the war. One day while Capt. Cameron was flying his Spad biplane over France, he was shot down.

"In those days, you knew who you were shooting at," Smokey told four-time space shuttle astronaut Robert Crippen as the two traded tales sitting at the consoles in Mission Control. "I knew it was Ernst Udet who shot me down and he knew who I was."

A year or so after the war, Smokey said, he and Udet met face-to-face again in France. "I'd gone over with the American Legion to decorate some World War I graves. Udet was there doing the same thing. We recognized each other and talked for a while. We even played pinocle together."

Crippen smiled and encouraged Smokey to go on. "While I decorating graves I discovered something — my own grave," Smokey told Crippen. "The marker said I was missing in action. I guess things got mixed up when I was shot down."

Like Coats, Crippen autographed several photos for Smokey. "When do I get to go to the moon?" Smokey asked. "I'm not sure," Crippen replied. "There's a very long waiting list."

From Mission Control, the group went to Building 7A (crew systems) where the astronauts' equipment is fitted, tested and readied for flights. "This is a rare privilege," Jerry Elliott said. "Almost no one outside NASA gets to see this area."

As the group crowded into a small room where the spacesuits are fitted, Kim Shapiro stepped forward to help Smokey try on a suit.

Smokey looked longingly at the suit and tried on the gloves, communications headgear and the fishbowl-like outer helmet.

"Once I got in that thing I might never get out," he joked as several photographers snapped his picture standing beside a white Mylar and Teflon suit being prepared for a new astronaut trainee.

When World War I was over, Smokey returned to Arizona and the family ranch where his wife and two children were waiting. After a band of Indians stampeded the herd of Hereford-Longhorns, which killed his wife and children, he sold the ranch and went to Alaska where he worked as a lumberjack and forest-fire firefighter.

Smokey never married again. After a few years in Alaska, he worked his way around the country until he settled in Dallas in 1964. "I came here for an American Legion convention, made some friends and stayed," said the man who worked as a security guard until he was 90.

The trip to NASA was a highlight in a life filled with adventures, Smokey said.

"They tell me I've been places and seen things that no other tourist here gets to see," he said. "I had such a good time I'd like to come back next year."

"ALL ISRAEL WILL BE SAVED"

But you must be careful not to brag about being put in to replace the branches that were broken off. Remember that you are important only because you are now a part of God's tree; you are just a branch, not a root.

"Well," you may be saying, "those branches were broken off to make room for me so I must be pretty good." Watch out! Remember those branches, the Jews, were broken off because they didn't believe God, and you are there only because you do. Do not be proud; be humble and grateful — and careful. For if God did not spare the branches He put there in the first place, He won't spare you either.

Notice how God is both so kind and so severe. He is very hard on those who disobey, but very good to you if you continue to love and trust Him. But if you don't, you too will be cut off.

On the other hand, if the Jews leave their unbelief behind them and come back to God, God will graft them back into the tree again. He has the power to do it. For if God was willing to take you who were so far away from Him — being part of a wild olive tree — and graft you into His own tree — a very unusual thing to do — don't you see that He will be far more ready to put the Jews back again, who were there in the first place?

I want you to know about this truth from God, dear brothers, so that you will not feel proud and start bragging. Yes, it is true that some of the Jews have set themselves against the Gospel now, but this will last only until all of you Gentiles have come to Christ — those of you who will. And then all Israel will be saved. Do you remember what the prophets said about this? "There shall come out of Zion a Deliverer, and He shall turn the Jews from all ungodliness. At that time I will take away their sins, just as I promised." Romans 11:18-27

In Bulgaria it was believed that running three times around a tree at sunrise would cure fever.

Turtles live longer than any other backboneed animal — about 120 to 150 years.
