Senate hearing here draws about 1,000

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

Testimony gathered during senate field hearings Monday in Hereford could be "a valuable tool in reaching a final decision" if the matter of placing a nuclear waste dump in Texas goes to Congress for resolution.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, chairing the hearings on behalf of the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works, cited safety factor and economic impact as reasons for opposing the placement of the nation's first high-level radioactive waste repository in the Texas Panhandle.

"It seems to me at the outset of this hearing that somewhere in this vast nation, far from the Panhandle...there must be a more suitable location. If the siting process is such that one of the three prime sites is a productive, populated area of national importance, then I must question the process," Bentsen said in his introduction.

Gov. Mark White, making his second trip to Hereford since the 9-square mile area north of here was announced as one of the top three sites in December, was critical of the Department of Energy's assurances that the Ogallala Aquifer would be safe from contamination.

"First, much of the technology for both short and long-term shaft and repository sealing is untried," he claimed, "and in some cases unknown without large scale experimentation."

"And second, without the existence of a final necessary U.S. Environmental Protection Agency rule regarding the standards for groundwater protection, it escapes me how the DOE can believe, or expect us to believe, that adequate protection is achievable under the circumstances."

Concluding his remarks, White asked that "surely this expensive, poorly conceived and even more poorly substantiated intrusion on the most productive farmers and farmlands and most valuable underground water in Texas can soon come to an end."

Agriculture Commissioner John Hightower, who excused his late arrival by announcing that "we had a headwind blowing about as hard as a DOE press release", criticized the department's assessment of the dump's impact on agriculture.

"We may be rubes, but we know our business, and we know better than to buy bureaucratic descriptions like slight, negligible and not substantial. We realize that even without a leak, the public perception of possible contamination will have a major, negative effect on agriculture sales."

Hightower, as usual, drew laughs for comments like "who wants a tortilla with that surprise ingredient?" and "DOE analysts didn't want to get manure on their Guccis so they didn't talk to the farmers involved."

Hightower told Bentsen that "the unknowns in this experiment are too numerous; the possibility of the unforeseen occurring far too great of a risk."

"Put plainly, we don't think DOE knows what it's talking about, we can't believe their nonchalant assurances, and we don't trust them."

Lawyer issues memo on TRLA

By O.G. NIEMAN

The establishment of a "non-binding arbitrary mechanism" which would require Texas Rural Legal Aid to submit all complaints to arbitration prior to filing a lawsuit has been recommended by a staff attorney of Legal Services Corporation.

The recommendation, included in a report by Wendell R. Wylie Jr., staff attorney for the Office of Compliance and Review of LSC, is currently being considered by the interim president of the corporation. A copy of Wylie's report was received by The Brand Monday.

Arbitration panel proposed in Hereford

Wylie was in Hereford Nov. 15-18 1984, to listen to citizen complaints about the conduct of the Hereford TRLA office. He was assigned to make the study by LSC after local citizens presented a petition asking for "a full investigation of the legality and ethics of all TRLA activities, and all lawsuits brought by TRLA since it has existed in the county."

After the interviews here, Wylie went to Weslaco Nov. 19-21, 1984 to conduct interviews with Davie Hall, executive director of the TRLA.

In his memorandum to the OCR, Wylie states that it should be noted "that the period of interviews and discussions were intense but, one person, over a period of approximately one week, could not possibly conduct an investigation which would satisfactorily answer the numerous complicated and serious questions which arise concerning the conduct of business either in Hereford or systemwide.

"The task could best be accomplished by a comprehensive review of the management policies, decisions and goals in each of the TRLA local offices and at its head offices," wrote Wylie.

Wylie noted that the LSC has been studying alternative dispute resolution mechanisms for more than a year, "and is presently preparing to launch its mediation project." He adds that "an arbitration mechanism could be established in Hereford within a matter of weeks" if the various entities involved cooperate.

While the details of the arbitration mechanism will have to be worked out, noted Wylie, the following plan is proposed:

- (1) The local bar association would organize and supervise the operation of the proposed panel;
- (2) TRLA would be required to submit all complaints to arbitration prior to filing a lawsuit;
- (3) A panel of three attorney-arbitrators would hear every dispute. The disputing parties would each select one of the arbitrators and the bar association's representative would select the third arbitrator;
- (4) The arbitration mechanism should be located on premises provided by the bar association or at the local court house;
- (5) LSC would contribute $50,000

Commission approves new extension agent

Deaf Smith County Commissioners Monday approved the hiring of an assistant county extension agent, authorized the installation of a new sound system at the county's Bull Barn and pledged a $1,000 contribution to the Panhandle Rural Transportation System.

M. Davy Vestal, 22, a Baird native and graduate of Tarleton State University, will officially assume the duties of assistant county agent March 1. Vestal has been working as an extension assistant since Jan. 16.

Vestal told the court he recently earned an agricultural education degree with minors in animal science and meats production.

After being told by a representative of West Texas Rural Telephone that the Bull Barn's sound system is "for all practical purposes, gone," commissioners agreed that dismantling of the old system should begin while they "look for the money" for a new one.

Andrew Kershen appeared before the court to discuss the status of historical markers in the county and ask for three appointments to the Deaf Smith County Historical Commission.

Commissioners will consider replacing three markers which have been stolen or destroyed, at a cost of $575 each.

Alex Schroeter, Lois Gililland and Jack Nunley were approved as new members of the commission.

Sheriff Joe Brown was given permission to adjust salaries so that five of his deputies with the same duties would draw the same pay. Currently, three deputies make about $40 a month more than the other two.

The court voted three to one to donate $1,000 to the Panhandle Rural Transportation System, with Commissioner Austin Rose abstaining from the vote.

Commissioner Bill Bradley, a member of the Panhandle Community Action Agency board which will implement the program, said a van has arrived in Hereford and a driver has been hired.

The van will provide free or low cost transportation around Hereford and out of town for such things as shopping, personal business and visits to the doctor's office. Designed especially for the elderly and handicapped or those with no other form of transportation, the transit program is funded by the federal government and administered by a branch of the Texas Department of Agriculture to rural counties.

Is that all there is? That was our first reaction to the report and recommendation filed by the Legal Services attorney on his investigation of the complaints against Texas Rural Legal Aid in Hereford.

His solution is to form a local arbitration panel to hear all TRLA complaints. I don't have the answer, but forming another committee seems to hit a little short of the mark.

Hereford made the "big time" again Monday. You could tell by the number of television cameras (8), reporters representing the Associated Press, Time magazine, The Houston Post, and other prestigious places and, of course, the politicians who came to orchestrate the show.

As the local media representative, we were busy answering questions. How many people does the auditorium seat? (996). What is the correct pronunciation of the county—Deaf Smith or Deaf Smith? (We told them the folks may have called him Deaf back when he was a Texas spy, but it is pronounced as Deaf). Could we go out and shoot some pictures of the salt domes? (No, not yet!).

A knowledgeable gentleman from the Houston Post, Harold Scarlett, came by to use our office after the hearing. While we pounded away on

Two Presidents

Former President Gerald R. Ford (left) told reporters during a press conference Saturday in Amarillo that the farm program, along with everything else, will have to suffer if the federal budget is to be balanced. Later, he spoke for the inauguration of Dr. Ed Roach (right) as seventh president of West Texas State University. Roach said the higher education system needs to reaffirm its mission, which is to "create the future" and "exploit the opportunities." Steve Nieman of Hereford, president of the WTSU Alumni Association, was among the platform speakers at the 2 p.m. investiture.

Local Roundup

School board to meet tonight

Hereford Independent school board members were to face a lengthy agenda at their 5 p.m. meeting tonight in the district's administration building. A newly-formed citizens advisory group was expected to be in attendance.

Suicide ruled in local death

A Hereford man found dead Monday morning died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the chest, officials have said.

The death of Lorenzo Contreras Jr., 27, was ruled a suicide by Deaf Smith County Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal. An investigation was made Monday by Amarillo pathologist Dr. Ralph Erdmann, and an autopsy has been ordered.

Contreras was found at his home on 321 Ave. K shortly after 7 a.m. Monday. Funeral services are planned for Thursday under the direction of Gililland-Watson Funeral Home.

Five persons charged with theft

A vehicle description by store clerks and a high speed chase east of Hereford Monday resulted in the apprehension of five persons who have been charged with theft.

The four men and one woman were stopped about three miles west of Dawn and placed under arrest after a video cassette recorder with which they were seen leaving the TG&Y store was found in their possession. The VCR was valued at $400.

During the weekend, Hereford police made five arrests for driving while intoxicated and two for public intoxication. They also charged one person with having no liability insurance and another with driving while license suspended.

Raymond Cantu, 724 Ave. F, reported the theft of a $400 gas grill from his yard, while the burglary of a local meat market resulted in the theft of 56 pounds of prime rib roast.

towards the cost of developing and implementing this mechanism. Either cash or in-kind contributions should be requested from the City of Hereford, the county of Deaf Smith, the bar association, TRLA, and the Growers Association in Hereford.

Informed of the report this morning, R.C. Hoelscher, president of the Hereford Bar Association, said he felt local attorneys would be happy to meet and discuss the recommendation "should it be presented as a final decision" by the LSC.

Bruce Coleman, former county commissioner, responded to the recommendation by saying that "it's a beginning and could be very helpful if disputes are screened before they are filed."

"However, I don't think the recommendation on solving our problems goes far enough. Action should be taken on abuses of the office in the past," said Coleman.

"If the Legal Services Corporation will clean up its act, we need legal services for indigents in this community. If they don't police their own abuses, this would be a good time to cut their budget—a time when the Congress is looking for ways to trim the budget deficit," added Coleman.

Wylie submitted about 10 pages of typewritten comments on questions and problems presented in the interviews in Hereford. "I have made an attempt to minimize any assessment of these recitations in the statement thereof. The truth or falsity of these statements must be derived from the totality of the circumstances in which they were made," he states.

In his review of the history of the placement of a TRLA office in Hereford, Wylie notes the office was established because of Hereford's status as one of the major agricultural centers of the midwest and south, with the office's goals being an improvement in the conditions for migrant farm workers there and statewide.

"Hereford should, by no means, be considered a paradise for the migrant farm worker. However, it is equally not the type of town which has been built at the expense of the laborers. Some abuses exist, but for the large part, the business community and town fathers are aware of the delicate balance necessitated by the interdependence of the two communities which combine to make up the community of Hereford.

"The philosophy of the office reflects that of David Hall, executive director, TRLA, and is exemplified in the type of staff which has peopled that office since its inception—young, well-educated, liberal attorneys with an eye towards social impact litigation and class representation, almost to the exclusion of the individual seeking representation, conflict resolution or problem solving."

Other quotes from the memo: "The majority of the community, as represented by those interviewed, views TRLA as a divisive force, polarizing the community along racial lines, terrorizing the business community with the threats of long and expensive lawsuits, while not, themselves, having to come to grips with the economic realities of such actions and generally strangling the community and any opportunity for growth.

"But unlike many who have faced problems of this type, Hereford is not asking that legal services or TRLA be removed from its community. Indeed, the fact the TRLA brings to the attention of the community the shortcomings is viewed as a potential boon to the community. Many of the items raised by TRLA are grievances which must be addressed.

But, the community of Hereford would prefer that the efforts, energy and finances of TRLA be directed to righting the wrongs rather than what is perceived as TRLA's goal—financial over-compensation for TRLA and its clients."

The Wylie memo has one page on "client base" and points out the listed priorities of the office. It also noted that "individual services cases" are listed fourth on a list of four priorities.

"A case by case analysis will tend to show the development of a pattern—acceptance of those high profile cases which result in a large amount of publicity for TRLA, acceptance of cases on behalf of a few selected persons and rejection of cases from those who are not associated, in some fashion, with TRLA.

The report filed by Wylie contains examples of a number of cases. One page is devoted to the relationship of Jesus Moya with TRLA, described "as cozy at best." It was noted that Moya originally came to Hereford on behalf of the Texas Farmworker's Union and then parted company with TFWU to form the International Union of Agricultural and Industrial Workers.

Based on the interviews, a question of professionalism of the TRLA is raised in the memo. "Though the quality of work being done by this office is high, the question arises as to whether the Hereford staff attorneys actually conduct themselves as professionals.

"The appearance, for example, of a staff attorney at a deposition dressed in jeans and a tee shirt with the inscription 'F-You' would appear to be an unforgivable breach of the mandate that an attorney conduct him/herself in a professional manner."

The report also discusses two instances in which it appeared an attorney intentionally misrepresented facts to the court or in court proceedings.

A final decision on the implementation of an arbitration panel is anticipated "shortly," according to Wylie.

a fairly modern typewriter, Scarlett hooked a gismo to a telephone and typed his story direct to the typesetting machine in Houston. We gathered, however, that Scarlett was not all that enthralled with the use of this modern-day technology.

We do not mean to make light of the hearing. Data will be recorded which will be read by members of the Senate panel and passed along to members of Congress. Senator Lloyd Bentsen was the only member of the Senate committee at the meeting (unless some were seated in the audience), but we gather that is not an unusual occurrence.

Many of the citizens we visited with are still not too excited about the proposed nuclear waste dump.

They believe, from what has taken place, that it will never be situated in Deaf Smith County.

One man, for instance, said he was much more concerned about our public school system. "Students are fearful of the changes proposed because a lot of them are going to be removed from extracurricular activities—the things that make school a fun place to be," he said.

He added that he spent his time talking to State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, who was here to offer testimony for the Senate hearing. Sarpalius said the education committee is going through the entire school reform bill. "There will be some changes made," said Sarpalius, but what those changes are remains to be seen.

Farm Bureau Week observed

County Judge Glen Nelson has signed a proclamation designating February 11-15 as "Farm Bureau Week" in Deaf Smith County.

The week is part of a statewide observance during which county Farm Bureaus will make a special effort to enroll new members, according to Ralph Detten of Hereford, president of the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau.

Pat Robbins of Hereford is chairman of the membership committee which is responsible for membership acquisition and maintenance.

"With more than 300,000 member families on its membership rolls, the Texas Farm Bureau is the largest state Farm Bureau in the nation," the proclamation reads.

"The Farm Bureau is a grass-roots organization, and its foundation is the county Farm Bureau. There are 217 organized county Farm Bureaus in the state, including the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau," the proclamation states. Ralph Detten said the local county Farm Bureau has 1163 member families and is seeking to exceed that figure in 1985.

He said that the Farm Bureau is a general farm organization that seeks to improve income and living conditions of farm and ranch families. It represents the farmer and rancher at the local county courthouse, in Austin, and in the nation's capital, Washington, D.C.

Wright not fond of switch

AUSTIN (AP) — The decision by three Dallas County Democratic judges to switch to the Republican Party doesn't sit well with U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright.

"I don't think I would have much respect for a person who signed on to play with one team, then in the middle of the game ran over and put on the jersey of the other team," Wright said Monday.

"I think people have to be honest about where they are. ... I don't quit my church or other things in which I believe just because it loses once or twice."

Wright's remarks came in response to questions about last week's party switch by Judges Tom Thorpe, Mike Schwille and Don Koons.

Obituaries

CHARLES BYRD SPRADLEY

Charles "Chuck" Byrd Spradley, 64, of Albuquerque, N.M., died Sunday in Albuquerque.

He is survived by two sisters, Elizabeth Witherspoon and Nell Spradley, both of Hereford.

Graveside services will be Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. with military honors at the National Cemetery in Santa Fe, N.M., with a marine chaplain officiating. Services will also include a marine honor guard.

He served in the U.S. Marine Corp in World War II. He graduated from New Mexico State University in 1950, and was employed by the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Santa Fe for many years.

He was the captain and a member of the Santa Fe Sheriff's Posse and Polo Team. He owned a ranch in New Mexico and operated several in New Mexico, Texas, and Arizona.

Other survivors include a son, James R. of Albuquerque; two daughters, Dianne Jernigan of Los Lunas, N.M., and Carol Spradley of Albuquerque; a sister, Maurine O'Brien of Amarillo; his former wife, Ruth H. Spradley of Albuquerque; and two grandchildren.

LORENZO CONTRERAZ JR.

Lorenzo Contreras Jr., 27, of 321 Ave. K was found dead in his home Monday at approximately 7:30 a.m. Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal ruled that the death was by a self-inflicted gunshot to the chest.

Services will be Thursday at 2 p.m. at Templo El Calvario Asamblea with the Rev. Matilde Ortega, pastor, officiating. Burial will follow in West Park Cemetery under the direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Born Nov. 27, 1957, in Idalou, he moved to Hereford in 1960. He married Rosa Porras July 16, 1977, in Hereford. He was employed by Garrison Seed, and was a member of the Assembly of God church.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Lorenzo III and Jacob, both of Hereford; his parents, Mr. and Mrs.

Lorenzo Contreras Sr. of Hereford; five brothers, Larry, Johnny, Tony, Joe and Freddy, all of Hereford; and six sisters, Irene Camargo of Hereford, Elida Trevino and Adela Conde, both of Wauchula, Fla., Vera Mendoza and Linda Contreras, both of Hereford, and Angelia Garza of Michigan.

HEARING

of the DOE's Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management in Washington, D.C., took the stand near the beginning and again at the end of the two-hour hearings.

Purcell read from a typed statement, and answered questions from Bentsen and Arrowhead Mills owner Frank Ford.

"Although there might be some negative consumer reaction to regionally identified agricultural products at first," Purcell claimed, "our feeling is that as site characterization proceeds negative attitudes will dissipate as safe operations establish a positive record of site characterization and repository activities."

"The best antidote to fear, in our opinion, will be the record of safe operations to which the department, as well as EPA and NRC, the agencies that regulate our activities, are firmly committed."

Purcell also assured Bentsen that the DOE "will not recommend for development as a repository any site we do not have full confidence in."

State Sen. Bill Sarpalius presented a brief testimony, as did representatives for Congressmen Beau Boulter and Larry Combest and State Representative John Smith.

"This is not something that is funny to the people here, it is their future and their children's future," Sarpalius testified. "If Washington (state) wants it, why should we continue to give the people of the Panhandle the shaft?"

JESSIE DAVIS BOARDMAN

Jessie Davis Boardman, 99, of Washington, D.C. died Jan. 15 at Thomas House in Washington, D.C. of a cardiopulmonary arrest.

She had lived in Hereford from 1968 to 1977 when she resided at both King's Manor and Westgate. Services and burial were in Iron-ton, Mo.

Born in Morrisville, Mo., she graduated from Southwest Missouri State Teachers College in 1925. She earned a Master's degree at the University of Missouri in 1931. In 1949, Mrs. Boardman moved to Amarillo and taught psychology and English at West Texas State University. She retired in 1958.

She was a member of the Polk Street United Methodist Church in Amarillo and was active in the business and professional women's Sunday School class. She also was a member of the American Association of University Women, the YWCA and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

After leaving Hereford in 1977, she moved to Cleveland, Ohio, and Millersburg, Ohio. She moved to Washington, D.C. in 1980. Her husband, Albert J. Boardman, preceded her in death in 1920.

Survivors include a son, Thomas L. Boardman of Cleveland, Ohio; a daughter, Clara B. Traviano of Odenton, Md.; four grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

LOUIS R. HAGAR

Louis R. Hagar, 66, died Sunday. Services were at 2 p.m. today in Rose Chapel of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home with the Rev. Clarence Powell of Trinity Baptist Church officiating. Burial will follow in Rest Lawn Memorial Park.

Mr. Hagar was born in Hereford. He married Bettye Addington in 1956 in Lubbock. He was a long-time postal employee in Hereford. He was a veteran of World War II, and member of First Baptist Church in Kingland.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Michael of Fowler, Ind.; a daughter, Jennifer Penquite of Dallas; three brothers, Carroll of Fritch and Dick and Paul, both of Hereford; three sisters, Ruby Daubs and Fern Jones, both of Hereford, and Bess Cottrell of Lubbock; and eight grandchildren.

Richardson Seeds and vice president of People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories (POWER), criticized information he had read in the environmental assessment issued at the time the Deaf Smith site was announced as a top contender for the dump.

He claimed the document "grossly underestimated" the number of irrigation wells operating on the site and the number of head of livestock grazing within the area.

Don Hancock, a technical consultant for POWER who appeared on the panel with Richardson, told Bentsen that "DOE needs to decide now that the program given in the Nuclear Regulatory Act is unworkable."

Ford, who referred to the proposal as "insane," announced that "it's time that we stand up and say we're not going to have it here."

Arrowhead Mills does not intend to move, Ford said, "because we do not intend to lose."

Nearly 1,000 persons crowded into the Hereford High School auditorium for the hearings, which were announced late in January.

Hancock claims the DOE does not have time to do everything necessary to find a site by 1990, and even suggested that the program "be taken away from DOE."

Other local testimony came from Cal Jones, agricultural manager for Holly Sugar, who told Bentsen that he suspected business in Hereford would have to be "curtailed" if the dump is placed in the county.

Clear skies reported

A dome of cold, dry air brought clear skies to all of Texas today, with just a few high clouds noted over the Panhandle.

The dry air, clear skies and winds under 10 mph allowed early morning temperatures to drop into the lower 30s as far south as Corpus Christi.

In fact, overnight readings were in the middle 20s to lower 30s across all of the state except the lower Rio Grande Valley, where temperatures in the upper 30s prevailed.

The coldest reading early today was 22 at Junction at 4 a.m. At the other end of the scale was McAllen at 39 degrees.

The National Weather Service said Texans could expect mostly sunny skies today with slightly warmer temperatures, mostly in the 50s and 60s, with a few readings in the middle 70s along the Big Bend. No precipitation was expected in the state today.

A cold front will move into the state on Wednesday, the weather service said.

PROCLAMATION

With more than 300,000 member families on its membership rolls, the Texas Farm Bureau is the largest state Farm Bureau in the nation. As such, the organization is influential in both state and national affairs on behalf of agriculture.

The Farm Bureau is a grass-roots organization, and its foundation is the county Farm Bureau. There are 217 organized county Farm Bureaus in the state, including the Deaf Smith County Farm Bureau, which has 1,163 member families.

Because agriculture is important to our county, state and nation, and because the Farm Bureau is an important voice for agriculture, I, Glen Nelson, County Judge of Deaf Smith County, do hereby designate February 11-15, 1985, as FARM BUREAU WEEK in Deaf Smith County, and urge our citizens to give due recognition to its worthy efforts.

In official recognition thereof, I hereby affix my signature this 11th day of February, 1985.

Adrian couple win France trip

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

For most people, winning a four-day, three-night trip to France is only a dream.

But for Bob and Ann Wood of Adrian, who entered only once and then forgot it, that trip is a reality. On Jan. 14, Ann Wood's name was drawn for she and her husband to leave May 18 for a trip to France.

"I bought one case of R.T. French Co.'s Dijon mustard which entered my name in the contest," Mrs. Wood said, who owns Peggy's Cafe in Adrian. "I entered back in September, and then had forgotten about it until I received the notice in the mail."

She purchased the condiment through R.A. McAmis, the representative of San Jacinto Foods in Amarillo. Once her name was drawn, she had to meet certain eligibility requirements along with allowing the R.T. French Co. to use her name in its advertising.

Eighteen individuals will leave for the trip. One name apiece was drawn from each of four regions in the United States. Each of the winners may take their spouses. In addition, the sales representatives and their spouses, along with the public relations director of R.T. French Co. and his wife will go.

The Woods will fly to Paris, France, before travelling on to Dijon, France. Included in the package is a half-day tour of the Chablis-Meursault wine country, transportation within France by TGV — the 120-mph train service — and free time in both cities for sightseeing and shopping.

"We've decided to stay longer than the allotted time by at least one week," Mrs. Wood said. "We really want to see the Swiss Alps and the beaches of Normandy. We've never been to Europe."

"We want to get out of Paris and into the offbeat towns," she continued. "We want to see the countryside. History is not a big thing to me."

With her sister-in-law joining them in Paris, she has no apprehensions about the trip.

"I'm just ready to go," she enthused.

Mrs. Wood purchased Peggy's Cafe seven years ago because "there's not much else in Adrian," she said. Since owning it, she has come to really enjoy the people.

"I like meeting the different people who stop off of I-40, and the local people, too. This is just a little town coffee shop," she said.

Mrs. Wood handles all of the bookwork and ordering, and "pulls a shift" when no one else is there.

In addition to the cafe, both she and her husband frequently travel as sponsors for the senior class trips. Last year, they went on a Caribbean Cruise.

"We've been on 10 or more senior trips," she explained. "We've gone to New Orleans, San Diego and Disney World in Florida. The seniors have also gone to Hawaii, but we didn't go on that one."

Mr. Wood is a 20-year veteran vocational agriculture teacher for the high school. His course includes welding, woodworking, electric wiring, livestock shows and judging teams. Mr. Wood is the first and only ag teacher the school has had.

Perhaps the most unique aspect of his program is a cattle corporation. Sparked by an idea from Charles Hoover, general manager of Southwest Feed Yards, the cattle corporation started with a loan by First National Bank of Hereford.

For each share in the corporation, students must place in an escrow account approximately 30 percent of the money they will need to buy a 350- to 400-pound steer, medicine, ear tags, pasture and miscellaneous expenses for one year. The cattle are worked on a rotating basis.

According to Mr. Wood, this program gives students the opportunity to borrow money, establish credit, improve record books and a chance to show decision-making abilities and responsibility.

In addition to teaching, Mr. Wood farms approximately 400 acres where he grows wheat and milo.

"That's just a drop in the bucket in this area," Mrs. Wood laughed.

In their hours after work and on the weekends, the Woods built their house with lumber from an old grain elevator. Two years elapsed before all of the lumber was torn down and ready to use. The house was built in less than a year.

"We didn't have to buy any lumber," Mrs. Wood explained. "And we couldn't have bought any better wood. All of it was fir."

The couple split all of the work entailed in the building. The hired outside help only to brick the outside and install the central heating and air.

"I wouldn't do it again," Mrs. Wood laughed.

The Woods have two children. Janice lives in Fort Stockton, and has a son, Randy, 2. Ernie resides in Brisco, and also has a son, Ty, 4.

Mrs. Langley presides over Bay View meeting

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Gas pains

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the past 10 years, following gall-bladder surgery, I have suffered from chronic bloating and severe gas pains no matter what I eat or drink. This is painful, uncomfortable and depressing, since it does occur daily. I have had the upper and lower GI series and sigmoidoscopies. I've consumed roughage, even eaten bran (ugh!), all to no avail. Constipation is also a daily headache. My doctors can't seem to locate the problem, but I hope that you can help.

DEAR READER — Everyone forms gas or swallows air. Fortunately, the gas passes unnoticed in many people. However, if your colon tends to go into spasm, this will literally shut off the colon, converting it into a long balloon that gets further distended as more gas is formed. The result is pain and distention. If the spasm relaxes and the gas is expelled, the distention quickly disappears, but there may be residual soreness from over-stretching of the colon.

Your comment that you have daily constipation suggests that some such mechanism may be working in your case. Bulk sometimes helps because it improves the normal rhythmic contractions of the colon, preventing spasms from over-contraction of the muscles in the wall of the colon. If you don't tolerate bran well, you might try one of the bulk formers, such as Metamucil.

People seem to be more prone to this problem after gall-bladder surgery. They don't seem to tolerate food as well, perhaps because of interruption of the normal bile flow response to peak loads of food. Many people have lactose intolerance and find that milk and milk products are the chief offenders.

It is often necessary to do a fairly systematic study of what one eats and drinks to find which foods seem to cause the problem. I have discussed how this is done in The Health Letter, Special Report 23, Avoiding Gas and Distention, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You might get some help from anti-spasmodics that your doctor could prescribe. You could even try charcoal in Charcoaid or Charcoaps, but I think you will need some bowel training to get the best results.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What are carbohydrates and what foods are they in?

DEAR READER — Carbohydrates are a basic type of food, or are found in foods. Glucose, sucrose, galactose are the three simple sugars that are basic refined carbohydrate. They make up all the carbohydrates we eat. Table sugar, made up of glucose and fructose, is a typical refined carbohydrate. Carbohydrates are the main food element in cereals, vegetables and fruit. All sweets are carbohydrates.

Glucose, a typical carbohydrate, is made up of six carbon atoms and hydrogen and oxygen. Since hydrogen and oxygen make up water, a carbohydrate has often been called a hydrate of carbon.

Valentine party concludes meeting

Cultural Extension Club met in the lounge of the Community Center Friday with Nell Pope as hostess.

Mary Lou Spinhirne opened the meeting with the poems "Rest" and "Trees." Members answered roll call with "My favorite needlework." Virginia Sumner presented the program on needlepoint telling its history. She said that needlepoint is not a craft but an art, and that it is not expensive and may be picked up at any time without problems.

Committee reports were given, including that of Jewell Hargrave, council delegate. She announced the appreciation luncheon will be Feb. 25. All members are urged to attend in support of the club's nominee Nell Pope. Hargrave read committee recommendations from the council which were accepted.

A Valentine party closed the meeting.

Refreshments were served to those mentioned as well as Bertha Dettmann, Vernis Parsons, Jewel Rogers, Marie Thames, Winnie Wiseman, Fannie Townsend, Edith Hunter, Carrie Mae Doak, Raeline Smith and Louise Walker.

Alpha Iota Mu participates in service project

Alpha Iota Mu met Thursday evening in the Flame Room at Energas.

The Valentine Ball, sponsored by all three Beta Sigma Phi chapters, was Saturday from 8 p.m. to 12 a.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Ruby Sanders announced that the children's room the club provided at the hospital is almost ready for the children to use.

Members participated in a service project Saturday at Westgate Nursing Home. The chapter members and their children gave their adopted grandparents a Valentine which the children had colored.

After the meeting, Louann Eubanks and Ruby Sanders served refreshments to the members. Those present were Marge Bell, Holly Bixler, Michelle Brisendine, Jackie Fangman, Debe Graves, Jan Ramaekers, Janis White, Melinda White, Kay Williams, Ruby Lee and Dona Hendrickson.

The next meeting will be Feb. 21.

Bears win No. 2

Baylor shocks first-place SMU

WACO, Texas (AP) — The Baylor Bears used four freshmen and a junior college transfer to pull off a stunning 94-90 victory over Southern Methodist that has made a tight affair of the Southwest Conference basketball race again.

The loss Monday night, the third straight for the Mustangs, not only will likely drop them from the nation's Top 10 basketball circle but places them in jeopardy of losing the SWC lead if they stumble again on Wednesday night, when Texas A&M invades Moody Coliseum in Dallas.

Two weeks ago, the Mustangs were 15-1 for the season and 6-0 in SWC play and were on the verge of being voted the nation's No. 1 college basketball team.

An upset by Texas Tech in Lubbock on Jan. 26 derailed those plans and dropped SMU to No. 4. Then the Mustangs lost last Wednesday to Arkansas and on Saturday to North Carolina State in overtime to tumble to No. 9 in the rankings released Monday.

And then came Monday night's match-up with Baylor, which was last place in the SWC going into the game.

"I can't tell you what an empty feeling this is," SMU point guard Butch Moore said after the Mustangs' third straight loss. "It seemed like we were a half step off all night. We dropped the ball, we missed layups, everything."

Earlier in the conference race, SMU had demolished Baylor, 95-63, in Dallas.

"We're not freshmen any more. We're not junior college transfers any more. Tonight, we were winners," a jubilant Jim Haller, Baylor's head coach, exclaimed after the victory.

The upset threw the league race into a scramble. SMU fell to 18-5 for the year and 8-3 in SWC play, just a half game ahead of Texas A&M, which can move past SMU into first place if it can beat the Ponies on Wednesday.

"We ran into a great team tonight," SMU coach Dave Bliss said. "The last four games, Baylor has played super basketball. I think more than our situation, Baylor deserves a lot of credit."

Bliss added, "We've just got to bounce back. We're mentally tired. I've had us on the road for so long (four of the last six games), it will be good to get home."

Haller said his team went into the game expecting to win.

"After playing Arkansas into overtime and loirst of many such wins by these freshmen. To be winners, you've got to make the clutch plays. We made the big plays."

The win improved Baylor's record to 2-8 in the SWC, pushing them ahead of Rice into eighth place, and raised the Bears' season mark to 9-12.

"We didn't give Baylor enough respect," Moore said. "We gave up 94 points. That's the most we've given up this season. There's no reason for that."

Haller played freshmen Michael Williams, Eric Johnson, Frank Williams and Darryl Middleton, along with junior college transfer Edwin Mitchell, for the final 12:14 of a tightly-played game that saw 13 lead changes.

The Bears held a 76-74 lead with 3:34 left in the game when the Bears began pulling away at the free-throw line. Williams, a Dallas native, hit 9 of 10 free throws, Mitchell was 5 of 6 and Johnson added two more to thwart SMU's comeback chances.

"I wasn't nervous," said Williams, Baylor's best charity shooter (78 percent). "There was a lot of talk around the free-throw line, but it didn't bother me. I was feeling good."

The Bears held an 88-84 lead when SMU's Carl Wright drove the baseline for a bucket, but was called for charging with 1:07 left in the game. Wright's basket counted, but Mitchell hit the two free throws to give the Bears a 90-86 lead. Wright then missed a 15-foot jumper 10 seconds later before Williams iced Baylor's win with two more free throws with 32 seconds left.

All told, Baylor hit 28 of 36 free throws. They entered the game shooting only 62.1 percent.

"It's about time some of those free throws starting falling for us," said Haller. "How many games have we lost because of poor free-throw shooting?"

Williams, who also had a career high 10 assists, wasn't the only freshman to shine on this night. Johnson, who has been in a shooting slump all season, came off the bench to hit nine of 10 field goals and all six of his free throws to score a career-high 24 points.

Middleton also scored a career-high 12 points with eight rebounds, and his dunk gave the Bears a 83-76 lead with 2:15 left in the game.

The Mustangs got little help from 7-foot center Jon Koncak and Wright. Koncak scored 12 points and had seven rebounds, but fouled out after playing only 28 minutes. Wright hit only 5 of 19 shots and scored 12 points. His 1-for-8 shooting the first half kept him on the bench until the final 5:49 of the game.

Koncak hit a follow shot to give SMU its final lead, 60-59, with 11:54 showing. The closest the Mustangs could pull after that was 76-74 after Koncak's three-point play with 3:52 left in the game.

It was then that Wright may have sunk deeper into Bliss' doghouse. Wright fouled Williams and the Baylor freshman calmly hit both free throws, giving the Bears a 78-74 lead with 3:34 left.

It took Wright only 12 seconds before taking an off-balance shot. He missed the attempt and fouled Mitchell going for the rebound. Mitchell hit both free throws to give the Bears an 80-74 cushion.

Moore tried to rally the Mustangs, driving the lane for a bucket just six seconds after Mitchell's free throws. Williams then committed one of his three turnovers. SMU's Larry Davis missed two free throws, but teammate Johnny Fuller got the rebound.

The Mustangs failed to capitalize when Moore missed a 15-footer and Koncak then fouled out battling the 6-1 Williams for the rebound. Williams hit one of the two free throws. Fuller missed an easy shot, and Baylor's Paul Kuiper rebounded, hitting Middleton with an outlet pass for his easy dunk that raised Baylor's lead to six points with 2:15 left on the clock.

"I was so happy to all those zeros up on the scoreboard," said Middleton. "We finally won us a big game."

Player fulfilling dreams at Lipton tennis matches

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It was a dream come true for Mike Leach — and a nightmare for two members of Sweden's Davis Cup team.

"I was unseeded, unheralded and a naive country boy, and I won the NCAA (tennis championship) in 1982, beating Brad Gilbert in final," Leach said.

"When I went from the NCAA to the tour, I was the guy walking around the lockerroom getting autographs. There were guys I read about growing up.

"A couple of weeks after I joined the tour I went on the court against Vitas Gerulaitis. I was actually shaking on the court. He beat me so fast he didn't even shower."

With a serve faster than his quips, Leach pounded second-seeded Mats Wilander 7-5, 6-2 Monday to move into the quarterfinals of the inaugural $1.8 million Lipton International Players Championships, a two-week event with identical 128-player singles draws for men and women.

Also falling Monday were fourth-seeded Anders Jarryd of Sweden, a 6-1, 6-4 victim of No. 11 Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia, and the women's No. 3 seed, Wendy Turnbull of Australia, who lost to Yugoslavia's Andrea Temesvari 6-4, 6-3.

Other winners on a card that was curtailed by rain included Gerulaitis, seeded 12th here, Scott Davis and Sweden's Jan Gunnarsson in the men's singles, and West Germany's Steffi Graf in women's play.

Top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia lost the first set and was leading in the second 6-5 against

Associated Press Poll

Surprising Michigan moves up

By HARRY ATKINS AP Sports Writer

It has been eight years since Michigan has run with such fast basketball company and Coach Bill Frieder says he is a little surprised to find the Wolverines so near the head of the pack.

Michigan vaulted from No. 8 to No. 3 in this week's Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters, trailing only top-ranked St. John's and No. 2 Georgetown.

Oklahoma, Memphis State, Georgia Tech, Duke, Syracuse, Southern Methodist and Kansas round out the Top 10. Iowa leads the second 10, followed by Louisiana Tech, North Carolina, Nevada-Las Vegas, Tulsa, Villanova, Illinois, Oregon State, Alabama-Birmingham and Maryland.

It is the highest a Michigan team has rated in the weekly poll since 1977 when the Wolverines finished the regular season ranked No. 1, then bowed to North Carolina-Charlotte in the Midwest Regional.

"These things happen when you're on a winning streak like we are right now," said Frieder, who directed the Wolverines to a 23-10 record and the National Invitation Tournament championship last season. "The ratings are for the people and the fans, but they have nothing to do with winning basketball games."

Michigan, 18-3 overall and 9-2 in the Big Ten, is riding a nine-game winning streak and has won 27 of its last 31 games over the past two seasons.

The Wolverines, who lost veteran guard Eric Turner and center Tim McCormick, who made themselves available to the National Basketball Association draft ahead of time, have done it without a single senior in their starting lineup. The bench isn't deep, but so far it hasn't had to be.

Freshman guard Gary Grant more than made up for the loss of Turner and teams well with Antoine Joubert in the backcourt. Richard Rellford and Butch Wade have performed well at forward while Roy Tarpley, the team's biggest man at 6-foot-10, has made himself into a dominating center.

Frieder, however, declined to single out any one player.

"It's been a solid team effort," he said. "We're getting a lot of mileage out of a lot of people at different positions."

Could the big leap in the rankings give his players a big head?

"I don't think this rating will affect our players," Frieder said. "There's no question we're an improved team. We're playing very close to our potential. But, we've got to work very hard to keep it there."

"Our goal was to get into the NCAA tournament this year, but now we can maybe aim higher. We've got a chance to win the Big Ten, but we got to play five of our next seven games on the road — including our next three in a row."

St. John's received 63 of 64 first-place votes and 1,279 points from the nationwide panel. The Redmen are currently on the nation's longest Division I winning streak — 14 games — and they set a Big East Conference record with Saturday's 70-68 decision over Villanova, 11 consecutive league victories.

Georgetown, which received the other first-place vote, was named second on every other ballot to finish with 1,217 points.

Michigan finished with 1,044 points. The Wolverines, who beat Big Ten foes Purdue and Illinois during the week, have improved from 18th to 10th to eighth to third in the past four polls. On Thursday, Michigan will face Iowa, which trails by just one-half game in the race for the automatic berth in the NCAA tournament.

"I'm sure this will give Iowa incentive to knock off a good team," Frieder said. "You know, we can go in there and play well and still lose. We're just going to have to work hard."

One way or another

Mancini reaches for stardom

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Sports Writer

For a moment, Ray Mancini, the former lightweight champion, saw stars.

Movie stars. He had a chance to play the lead in a television movie — "I Walk In His Shadow: The Ray 'Boom Boom' Mancini Story."

"I was very tempted to say, 'Heck with the fight game,'" the 23-year-old Mancini said.

But Mancini put a shot at acting on hold in favor of a shot at regaining the World Boxing Association 135-pound class title from Livingston Bramble Feb. 16 at Reno, Nev. The movie, now in production, will be shown by CBS on Father's Day, June 16.

So the role of Mancini will be played by 18-year-old Doug McKeon, who played the boy in "On Golden Pond." Robert Blake of TV's "Baretta" fame will play his father, Lenny "Boom Boom" Mancini, the No. 2 lightweight contender in 1942, whose career was interrupted by World War II and who never got a title shot.

At first, Mancini wasn't considered for the role of himself.

"My agent told them they owed me a reading (for the role)," said Mancini. "But they said, 'He can't do it.'"

"When I went to read for it, the director said, 'Hey, do it again. That was pretty good.' I got three readings."

And he won the part. "Ray, we want you to do it," Mancini said the director told him. "Is there any way to push the fight back?"

"Is there any way to push the movie back?" Mancini asked. There wasn't, since shooting is scheduled to finish two days before the fight. So Mancini considered forgoing the fight he has wanted so badly since losing the championship when he was stopped in the 14th

The rain also halted a fourth-round match between two other former NCAA champions, Greg Holmes (1983) and Tim Mayotte (1981). Mayotte had a 1-0 lead in the opening set when play was halted.

Yannick Noah of France, seeded ninth, had his night match against Sammy Giammalva postponed.

Herd meets Tascosa

The Hereford Whitefaces look for win No. 4 today in Amarillo when they play the Tascosa Rebels in boys basketball at 7:45 p.m. in the THS gym.

The boys junior varsity also is to play. Game time is 6 p.m. The Herd currently sports a District 3-5A record of 3-11, just one game behind the Rebels (4-10). Both teams are coming off losses last week — Hereford to Palo Duro and Tascosa to Lubbock.

Earlier this season, the Whitefaces downed the Rebels, 64-63, in double overtime in the HHS gym.

"When I was 8 years old, I used to sneak a look at it," said Mancini.

He said that will be the opening scenes of the movie, which will end with Mancini winning the title in his second attempt on a first-round knockout of Art Frias May 8, 1982, at Las Vegas, Nev.

Mancini's first title shot came when he was stopped in the 14th round by Alexis Arguello, the World Boxing Council champion, Oct. 3, 1981, at Atlantic City, N.J. Arguello, who has retired from boxing, is playing himself in the movie.

"There'll be other roles for me ... hopefully," said Mancini of his missed opportunity.

But Mancini did play an indirect role in the movie.

McKeon went to Las Vegas while Mancini was training there for the rematch with Bramble.

Junior High Notes

Stanton girls host final three games

Stanton Junior High closed out the 1984-85 girls basketball season Monday night by hosting three games with Clovis Gattis at the Stanton gym.

Stanton won the eighth-grade contest from Gattis, 30-15, but dropped the seventh- and ninth-grade games. The Dogies were defeated 54-40 in the ninth-grade affair and 21-18 in the seventh.

Sharon Terry scored 11 points to get into double digits for Stanton's eighth-graders. Renee Mercer scored nine, and Carmen Brockman added five for the Dogies.

Although the local ninth-grade team had two players score in double figures, Gattis proved formidable. Stanton's Crystal Ball scorched the nets for 18 points, and Carolyn Rieves scored 14.

The ninth-grade team finishes the year with an 8-8 season record.

Alicia Redmon scored 14 of the Stanton seventh-graders' 18 points. Shonia Carpenter also scored two for the Dogies in a losing effort.

District champions win again Monday

La Plata Junior High's ninth-grade boys, district champs of 1984-85, capped off the season with a 74-29 thumping of Plainview Red Monday night in Hereford.

The ninth-grade Mavericks finished the year at 15-1.

Monday's game with Plainview saw four Mavs score in double figures. Rodney McCracken led the way with 20 points. Kevin Hansen scored 14, Trent Bowling 12 and Derrrel Page 10.

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — The Wayne Gretzkys, Mike Bossys and Marcel Dionnes are here. Would it be an All-Star Game without them?

Along with the veterans of these midseason affairs are a bunch of newcomers, first-time All-Stars who use words like "thrill" and "honor" and "reward" when asked about playing in the National Hockey League All-Star Game.

There are 15 players making their All-Star Game debut tonight in the Olympic Saddledome. They include NHL rookies Chris Chelios, a Montreal Canadiens defenseman, Kirk Muller, a forward with the New Jersey Devils, and center Mario Lemieux of Pittsburgh, the No. 1 draft pick last summer. And starting goaltenders Tom Barrasso of the Buffalo Sabres and the Prince of Wales Conference, and Edmonton's Andy Moog of the Clarence Campbell Conference.

"To play on the same team with players like Wayne Gretzky, Paul Coffey, Doug Wilson and Marcel Dionne is a thrill," admitted second-won a close one over Plainview, 44-43. Clint Cotten and Jason Scott each scored nine, and Kyle Andrews and Roger McCracken trailed eight apiece for La Plata.

The eighth-graders wound up the year in the second place with a mark of 11-4.

Plainview's only victory came in the seventh-grade contest. The Red team won that one from La Plata 40-16. Russell Backus led LP with 5 points. Dee Nall and Jim Andrews each scored four points.

year defenseman Al MacInnis of the host Calgary Flames. "And to play in your first All-Star Game in your home rink is an even bigger thrill than it normally would be."

MacInnis' Flames teammate, defenseman Paul Reinhart, also is among seven Campbell players debuting in this contest. The others are forwards Mike Krushelnyski of the Oilers — who have eight players here — Thomas Gradin of Vancouver, Paul MacLean of Winnipeg and Miro Frycer of Toronto.

For the Wales, Washington's Scott Stevens (defense) and Bob Carpenter (forward), right wing Anders Hedberg of the New York Rangers and starting center Brent Sutter of the New York Islanders, join the three rookies as All-Star rookies.

For Muller and Chelios, there has been a steady progression in their careers over the past 12 months. Last year at this time, Muller was skating for the Canada in the Sarajevo Olympics, and Chelios was a member of the American team at the Winter Games.

These days you can't afford to run a "one-man show"!

There was a time when a young farmer or rancher could pull himself up by his bootstraps and make a go of his operation by himself. But with increased competition, both from here and abroad, it's getting tougher and tougher to run a "one-man show." This is why your membership in the Texas Farm Bureau is so valuable to you.

The economic services of the Texas Farm Bureau more than pay for your membership. From the best insurance programs, available at competitive rates, to outstanding values in tires, batteries, and tillage tools from participating Safemark distributors, you are able to gain a competitive advantage over non-members.

Your voice becomes united with more than 300,000 other member families in Texas to be better heard in the marketplace and in the Legislature. You can participate in one of our 14 commodity divisions where you learn the very latest marketing and problem-solving techniques for your particular commodity.

But probably the greatest asset in being a member of the Texas Farm Bureau is that you play an active role in the future of Texas agriculture. Because our policies are made at the grass roots level by men and women like you. People who have the same wants and needs and share the same problems as you.

So if you're tired of going it alone, contact your local county Farm Bureau office today and join the winning team... the Texas Farm Bureau.

Your voice in Texas agriculture

Western illustrator exhibits works

LUBBOCK - Western illustrator Murray Tinkelman, famous for Zane Grey book covers, opened an exhibit of his work with a free lecture Sunday at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

Tinkelman began capturing the adventure and drama of the American West in the late 1970s when he began illustrating covers for Zane Grey novels. His growing interest in the West led him to draw rodeos and the Panamerican Indian movement's circuit of competitive dancing.

Tinkelman has published six books of his works and has received more than 150 professional awards for his drawings and photographs. His illustrations have been used by numerous national magazines and major publishers.

The exhibit includes 42 works of rodeo drawings, Zane Grey book covers and Indian dancing drawings. Historical artifacts to complement the art work will also be part of the exhibit. The historical and ethnological artifacts will give the exhibit a three-dimensional effect, according to Kristine Fredricksson, curator of history for The Museum.

Rodeo equipment and costumes will accompany the rodeo drawings. A 1939 movie camera along with still photos from Zane Grey movies, will also be part of the exhibit.

Tinkelman discovered the world of rodeos while researching for Zane Grey book illustrations. He then began drawing rodeo scenes and took the role of a journalist, depicting the scene as it happened.

"I fell in love with the subject," he said. "I felt like an artist-reporter recording something real and immediate."

He discovered the Panamerican Indian Movement's circuit of competitive dancing in 1983 at the Fourth-of-July rodeo on Cody, Wyo. His modern drawings of Indians ironically depict the age-old Indian ceremonial costumes worn with sneakers, dark glasses and digital watches.

Tinkelman's work has been displayed in museums and galleries around the world, including The Louvre in Paris; the Society of Illustrators and the Whitney Museum in New York City; and Marywood College in Scranton, Pa.

The Texas Tech exhibit marks his first museum showing in Texas. The works will be displayed through April 7.

The roman emperor Nero is said to have eaten leeks to clear his speaking voice.

Some American Indians used to believe that an eclipse meant the sun was being extinguished, so they tried to rekindle it by shooting fire-arrows into the sky.

Donating Check

Proceeds from a casserole auction and tasting bee, held recently by members of L'Allegra Study Club, were given to the American Heart Association research fund. Dorotha Prowell, treasurer of the Deaf Smith Chapter of the AHA, (at left), is shown accepting a check for $250 from Kitty Gault, club president. The fundraising event was held in conjunction with National Heart Month.

Club holds benefit auction

L'Allegra Study Club members recently held a casserole auction and tasting bee with proceeds from the auction going to the heart fund.

Seventeen members participated in the auction and a donation of $250 was presented to Dorothy Prowell, treasurer of the Deaf Smith Chapter of the American Heart Association.

Each member made two casseroles to bring to the meeting, one for the tasting luncheon and one for the auction. Bids were taken on each casserole and the highest bidder was announced before the next dish was presented.

ENMU sets talent day for seniors

PORTALES - High school seniors throughout New Mexico and West Texas are invited to compete for $16,000 in scholarship money at Eastern New Mexico University on March 2. The $16,000 will be divided into 80 $200 scholarships among 26 different areas of competition.

In addition to competing for a scholarship, students will also have an opportunity to tour the campus and meet with academic advisors in their area of interest. Presentations about financial aid and careers will also be given. Talent Day will conclude with the presentation of awards during the afternoon session.

In order to compete for a Talent Day scholarship, seniors need to complete an application and have an official high school transcript sent to the Office of Admissions, Station 7, Eastern New Mexico University, Portales, NM 88130.

For a Talent Day application or for additional information, seniors should contact their high school counselor, or call the ENMU Admissions Office at 1-800-FOR-ENMU (in-state) or 1-800-545-6896 (out-of-state).

Demonstrations and illustrated talks are two of the most effective methods of presenting information. People learn faster and remember longer if they see as well as hear - one reason that demonstrations and talks are a vital part of the 4-H program. The greatest value of method demonstrations and illustrated talks, however, are to the 4-H members who plan, prepare and present them.

Every 4-H member profits in some way from planning and presenting a demonstration or talk. Poise, confidence and self-assurance grow each time a person makes a presentation.

Through demonstrations and talks, 4-H members have the opportunity to:

- Work on something they like and in which they have an interest.
- Gain new knowledge and learn about a specific subject.
- Learn to plan and organize their thoughts so they can express themselves more clearly.
- Emphasize the major points of a presentation through the use of visuals or examples.
- Develop good judgment, speech and actions before an audience.

-Listen to the opinions of others.

-Teach and show others improved methods and practices learned through 4-H, thus performing a service to the community.

-Take part in interesting events and activities.

Method demonstrations and illustrated talks are planned presentations by one or a team of two 4-H's that teach information related to a project or activity. Simply, they are ways of showing and telling others how to make or do something and sharing useful information.

4-H's in Deaf Smith County will soon have the chance to participate in the Method Demonstration Workshops held each Wednesday at 3:45 p.m. in the Hereford Community center. These weekly workshops will begin Wednesday and continue through April, until County 4-H Round-up.

County 4-H Round-Up gives 4-H's the opportunity to present their demonstrations and talks before a true "audience." Following this local event, the 4-H's will then travel to WTSU, where they will compete in District 4-H Round-Up May 4.

Seniors who qualify, will then proceed to State 4-H Round-Up held at Texas A&M University in June. Those wanting additional information on 4-H method demonstrations should plan on attending the weekly workshops or contact Susan Raney at the County Extension Office.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

The Newspaper BIBLE

THE HOLY SPIRIT: TEACHER IN RESIDENCE

There is now no condemnation awaiting those who belong to Jesus Christ. For the power of the life-giving Spirit--and this power is mine through Christ Jesus--has freed me from the vicious circle of sin and death. We aren't saved from sin's grasp by knowing the commandments of God, because we can't and don't keep them, but God put into effect a different plan to save us. He sent His own Son in a human body like ours--except that ours are sinful--and destroyed sin's control over us by giving Himself as a sacrifice for our sins.

So now we can obey God's laws if we follow after the Holy Spirit and no longer obey the old evil nature within us. Those who let themselves be controlled by their lower natures live only to please themselves, but those who follow after the Holy Spirit find themselves doing those things that please God.

Following after the Holy Spirit leads to life and peace, but following after the old nature leads to death, because the old sinful nature within us is against God. It never did obey God's laws and it never will. That's why those who are still under the control of their old sinful selves, bent on following their old evil desires, can never please God.

But you are not like that. You are controlled by your new nature if you have the Spirit of God living in you. (And remember that if anyone doesn't have the Spirit of Christ living in him, he is not a Christian at all.)

Yet, even though Christ lives within you, your body will die because of sin; but your spirit will live, for Christ has pardoned it. And if the Spirit of God, who raised up Jesus from the dead, lives in you, He will make your dying bodies live again after you die, by means of the same Holy Spirit living within you. Romans 8:1-11

Bennett says

Parents 'Burned' by curriculum

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parents have been "burned" by schools using controversial teaching materials and are justified in keeping close watch on what their children study, Secretary of Education William J. Bennett says.

"If I were a parent with a child in school ... I would take a very close look at what my son was being asked to study, because there are lots of things in the schools that in my judgment don't belong there," Bennett said Monday.

At his first news conference since becoming the new education secretary this month, Bennett defended the Hatch Act regulations that require schools to get parents' permission before giving children any psychological tests or inquiring about their personal beliefs.

Twenty-five major school groups are lobbying to get the rules repealed. They contend conservatives are trying to use them to exercise veto power over school curriculum.

"It's not hard if one looks at the last 15 years in education to understand why parents were distressed about the things that were going on in the schools," Bennett said.

"Parents have been burned. Parents have looked at materials that students have brought home from school and have gotten upset. I think in many cases they're entirely justified," he said, without giving specifics.

He expressed the hope that parents and educators can return to a situation of "mutual trust."

Conservatives have charged that so-called situation ethics and amorality have seeped into the classroom in the guise of "values clarification" courses and exercises in which students are asked to act out certain circumstances and decide for themselves what is right and wrong.

Bennett, a former philosophy professor, said, "Just because a thing calls itself 'values' doesn't mean it's going to be constructive." He said schools should concern themselves with passing on Americans' shared values and "character development," but that "is not the same question as what kind of materials should we use."

Research suggests that "the most effective kind of moral teaching is the example of adults around (children), not games, not exercises, not simulations, but the presence in the classroom and at home of people who seem to take morality seriously."

Bennett said the outcry over President Reagan's proposals to cut loans, grants and other aid for more than 1 million college students "has been way out of line."

He said the cuts were justified by the federal deficit and by the government's desire to make sure that the neediest can afford some college. That is more important than making sure some students can go to the most expensive private institutions, he said.

And while he acknowledged that some families struggling to send their children to college may have "to tighten the belt even further," for others it will simply mean doing without luxuries, he argued.

Space toilet system simpler, works better

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — When the Soviets designed a toilet for their spacecraft, they kept it simple. As a result, it works better than the potty used on the American space shuttle, according to a French astronaut who flew on the Russian craft.

Frenchman Jean-Loup Chretien, who flew in the Soviet Salyut and Soyuz spacecraft, said the cosmonauts have a toilet system that uses air simply to collect the solid waste in a bag.

He told the Houston Chronicle that the bag is then sealed, placed into a larger bag which is later put into a big aluminum can. When the can is filled, it is jettisoned into space.

For the space shuttle, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration spent $12 million for a potty design by General Electric. As with the Soviet system, the shuttle toilet uses air pressure to collect the wastes, but processing and storage of the wastes is more complicated and less reliable.

Both spacefaring nations faced the same engineering problem in developing a space toilet. The human anatomy was designed to use gravity to dispose of its wastes. The matter is ejected and carried away by gravity, and, in modern society, flushed out of sight by water.

But in orbit, where there is no gravity, a new system has to be found.

The space shuttle toilet consists of a throne that draws air from the cabin. A user's backside is sealed to the seat and air pressure carries away the waste matter.

Wright offers budget plan

AUSTIN (AP) — When it comes to reducing the federal deficit, U.S. House Majority Leader Jim Wright says he may have a better way.

In a speech to the Texas Legislature on Monday, Wright said $230 billion could be saved by a 3-year ban on spending increases for domestic programs, a 3-year moratorium on further tax cuts, and stretching the military's growth plan for 4 years to 5.

"The result of those three actions, together with the savings in interest on the deficit ... would reduce the deficit by some $230 billion over the next three years. That's more than has been requested by (Reagan budget chief) David Stockman," Wright told a joint session of the Texas Legislature.

"It seems to me by doing it this way across the board, it wouldn't cause the economic tremors and social shock waves of some of the recommendations that have come forward," he told a joint House-Senate session.

Wright, a Fort Worth Democrat who served in the Legislature before his congressional career, said cuts in domestic spending alone can't make much of a dent in the deficit, particularly with Reagan's proposed increases in defense programs.

Domestic spending — not including such entitlement programs as Social Security — totals about $168 billion, Wright said, adding, "That's less than the deficit."

"I am not suggesting that we do away with any program. My suggestion is ... we don't spend any more than that ($168 billion) on the whole range of them," he said.

Wright said Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid and unemployment benefits wouldn't be included under his spending freeze because there is no way to limit the need for them.

"It's hard to freeze those ... without legally freezing the number of people who grow old, or put a ceiling on the number of people who get sick or the number of people who get thrown out of work," he said.

Eliminating plans to "index" income taxes — adjusting tax brackets up to adjust for inflation-sparked cost-of-living raises — and preserving some excise taxes scheduled to expire soon would raise $68 billion to $70 billion, Wright said.

He said Americans are willing to keep paying the current level of taxes if that money keeps the government from going further into debt.

"Mr. Reagan says he's adamantly opposed to tax increases ... I don't think people want any more tax cuts if we're not able to pay our bills," Wright said.

Relations improving between residents

PALACIOS, Texas (AP) — City officials who once worried that Vietnamese immigrants would monopolize this coastal town's shrimp industry say relations are improving between longtime residents and the refugees.

Six years ago, they were not so optimistic.

"There was a lot of resentment. They thought the Vietnamese would take away all the shrimping," said Mayor Leonard Lamar. "But we held a bunch of meetings, and we've tried to work things out."

Lamar was a council member when the conflicts began, and Public Works Director Bob Brewer said some of Palacios' 5,000 residents "are bad-mouthing him because of it."

"But those are the same people who want the Vietnamese out," Brewer said in a Houston Chronicle article published Monday. "The fact is that they're here."

The Vietnamese now constitute about 10 percent of the residents of this coastal town about 75 miles southeast of Houston.

Most of the refugees in the city are shrimpers, which some Palacios residents thought posed a threat to the American fishermen.

At first, the city's local fish houses, which handle some 4 million pounds of shrimp annually, wouldn't buy from the refugees. One plant, however, decided to accept the immigrants' catch and found more than 50 boats lined up outside its doors.

"They found out that the Vietnamese caught more shrimp and changed their minds," said Tran Dinh, a 30-year-old refugee.

Vietnamese now own half of the 200 boats in the town's harbor, and some shrimpers made as much as $50,000 during the last season.

And city officials say the refugees are fitting into other aspects of American life just as well.

"They don't even have any civil disturbances. They iron out their own problems," said police Officer Tommy Tobias. "They used to commit a lot of traffic violations, but even their driving has improved 250 percent."

School Superintendent George Holst said the children also have adjusted.

"Everything they can participate in they do well," said Holst. "They're assimilating real well. They may have been better behaved at first. But now they're like all the other children, except they concentrate more on what they're doing."

Dinh said the refugees don't really know how the Americans feel about them.

Homemaking Sewing Lab

Gov. Mark White has proclaimed this week as Vocational Education Week with the theme of this year's observance, "Vocational Education-Real Learning." Laura Rodriguez is showing a hand to Chad Fitzgerald as he begins his first clothing project in the homemaking sewing lab. Fitzgerald is one of many young men now enrolled in homemaking classes at Hereford High School.

Wayland Baptist plans Big Weekend

Two basketball games and a concert featuring Chris Christian will highlight Wayland Baptist University's annual Big Weekend celebration during the coming week.

The 12th annual event is slated for Thursday through Saturday and is expected to draw high school students from all across the Southwest, who will be given a brief glimpse at college life in general and Wayland life in particular.

Student visitors will begin arriving Thursday afternoon and will be housed in dormitories during their stay in Plainview. Each student will be assigned a "big brother" or "big sister" who will answer questions and serve as a guide for the weekend.

"We're anticipating a large group of students this year and feel they will be treated to a really enjoyable weekend," said Joe Provence, staff adviser to the Wayland Student Foundation, the sponsoring organization.

Following registration Thursday, visitors will eat dinner in the University Center cafeteria. Wayland's Pioneers will host the College of Santa Fe at 7:30 that evening in Hutcherson Center, followed by a get-acquainted party featuring the WBU vocal group, "Tribute," in the University Center game room. Friday's schedule begins with breakfast at 7:30 a.m., and students will spend the remainder of the morning visiting classes.

The afternoon is reserved for testing and auditions for scholarships, in addition to a mini-orientation session at 4 p.m. Friday evening, the Pioneers will again take the floor in Hutcherson Gym for a 7:30 p.m. basketball game against rival Dallas Baptist. A pizza party and movie are scheduled immediately after the game.

Special features of Saturday's agenda include a 10 a.m. reception and performance by the music ensemble, "His Brass," in the home of Wayland president Dr. David L. Jester; a 2 p.m. skating party; and the 7 p.m. concert with Christian and Wayland's own "Spirit of America." A nacho supper in the U.C. game room immediately following the concert will conclude the weekend schedule.

Cost of the entire Big Weekend package is $13 per student and covers housing, meals, and admission to all activities. Students or other persons desiring additional information may contact Provence at (806) 296-5521, extension 235.

Advance housing reservations are desired.

Wheelchair etiquette

Dear Ann Landers: Can you find space for something that will make life easier for the disabled? I hope so because most folks want to do the right thing, but they don't know what it is. Someone sent this to me when my husband had a stroke and I'd like to pass it on. -- SMARTER IN RAPID CITY, S.D.

DEAR RAP: You bet I'll print it. Thanks for sending it.

WHEELCHAIR ETIQUETTE

1. Always ask the wheelchair user if he or she would like assistance before you help. Your help may not be needed or wanted.
2. Don't hang or lean on a person's wheelchair. It is part of the wheelchair user's personal body space.
3. Speak directly to the person in the wheelchair, not to someone nearby as if the wheelchair user does not exist or is a mental defective.
4. If the conversation lasts more than a few minutes, consider sitting down or kneeling to get yourself on the same level as the wheelchair user.
5. Don't demean or patronize the wheelchair user by patting him or her on the head or shoulder.
6. Give clear directions, including distance, weather conditions and physical obstacles that may hinder the wheelchair user's travel.
7. Don't discourage children from asking questions about the wheelchair. Open communication helps overcome fear and misleading attitudes.

8. When a wheelchair user transfers out of the wheelchair to a chair, toilet, car or bed, do not move the wheelchair out of reaching distance.

9. It is OK to use expressions like "running along" when speaking to the wheelchair user. It is likely the wheelchair user expresses things the same way.

10. Be aware of the wheelchair user's capabilities. Some users can walk with assistance. They use wheelchairs to conserve energy and move about more quickly.

11. Don't classify people who use wheelchairs as sick. Wheelchairs are used for a variety of disabilities.

12. Don't assume that using a wheelchair is in itself a tragedy. It provides freedom and allows the user to move about independently. - EXCERPT FROM "WHAT DO I DO WHEN I MEET A PERSON IN A WHEELCHAIR?" (NATIONAL EASTER SEAL SOCIETY)

Dear Ann Landers: I have seen many letters in your column about poorly behaved children. Although I am in my 30s and have no children, I have observed many youngsters and would like to put in my two cents' worth.

Many of my friends, when speaking to their children, add "OK?" at the end of a sentence: such as, "Pick up your toys. OK?"

They seem to be asking for the child's approval.

Parents should say, "Do you understand?" and not ask if it's OK. What do you think? -- TIRED OF TANTRUMS IN TAMPA

DEAR TAMPA: I think you are onto something. Too many parents are afraid to be firm for fear their children won't like them. Actually, the opposite is true. Discipline is a special kind of love. Children need it and want it.

Are drugs OK if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers' (SET ITAL) all-new (END ITAL) booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611. ## Programs scheduled

Two UT Day Programs are scheduled this spring for high school juniors and seniors and their parents.

On Feb. 23 and March 23, prospective students can become better acquainted with the academic programs and student services available at the University of Texas at Austin in the sessions from 8 a.m. to 12 noon at the University Teaching Center. Topics which will be discussed include admissions requirements and procedures, on-and off-campus housing, financial aid and scholarships, and academic majors.

Interested persons may send a reservation letter or postcard to UT Day Program, Office of Admissions, UT Austin, Austin, Texas 78712-1159.

Reservations should be made by Feb. 19 for the Feb. 23 session or by March 19 for the March 23 program.

Participants are asked to indicate which program they wish to attend, along with name, address, date of birth, Social Security number, grade level, high school and number of people in the group.
