Lewisville man named as new city manager

By JERI CURTIS
Managing Editor

Hereford city commissioners Monday night voted unanimously to hire Darwin McGill of Lewisville, Texas, as the new city manager effective April 1.

McGill, will replace retiring manager Dudley Bayne, was city manager in Lewisville for 7½ years. He was assistant manager of the city of Irving for nine years. Prior to that he was a personnel manager for that city for three years.

He is a graduate of North Texas State University and has begun graduate studies in public administration.

McGill was also employed by Goodyear for over eight years.

He told the Brand Monday night, in a telephone interview, that he was really impressed with the people in Hereford during his visit for the job interview. He was encouraged by the town's new city buildings and plans for a new fire station.

McGill and his wife Connie said the relocation will put them closer to ski areas and to their farm in Brownwood.

Mrs. McGill has resigned her post as vice president of marketing and cashier at the Western State Bank in Denton. She has been active in the United Way and the YMCA. She was a co-regent in the Elizabeth Duncan Chapter of the DAR in Irving.

Bayne is retiring after 29 years in the city manager chair.

Commissioners also voted to use

Brown Graham accountants for the city audit. The audit last year cost the city about $18,000 by that company, and was about $13,500 the previous year. David Emerick of Brown and Graham said the first audit usually costs more due to setting up the program and entering the data. He estimated that this audit would cost between $13,000 to $15,000 if no complications arise.

Kids, Inc., appealed to the city for a donation for its summer softball program. Last year the city donated $2,000 as a one-time gift to the organization and had not budgeted for it this year. Robert Ray, a spokesman for Kids, Inc., said the organization was trying to cut the pressure on the players to sell items to raise money. Commissioners were hesitant to make the grant because it might trigger other non-profit organizations to appeal for funds from the city. However, after the Kids, Inc., representatives left, the city voted to include the $2,000 in the budget for next year out of the parks and recreation department. Each year the project would be reviewed.

Earnest Langley, city attorney, noted that many cities have such recreational programs, but not with volunteer help. Kids, Inc. involves about 550 children in the sports activity.

In other city business the commissioners:

-Appointed Truman Hazelrigg to the planning and zoning commission.

-Accepted a $3,195 bid by Wayne Writ Electric to install automatic controls at the Moreman Street water tank.

-Approved a bid by Lupton Painting Co. to paint the interior and exterior of a 250,000 gallon water storage tank and install a climb prevention shield on the ladder legs to prevent vandalism. The bid was for $40,400.

-Gave order and notice of election and named Vance Crume as election judge.

-Authorized bids for a packer unit for truck.

Jail Work Begins

More than $1 million worth of renovations and additions to the Deaf Smith County jail began Monday, when the Sam J. Smith Construction company of Amarillo began knocking down trees and marking off space on each side of the present facility. The work should take about a year, and should bring the jail up to standards required by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards. Deaf Smith County Commissioners sold certificates of obligation to finance the work, which will include a new exercise area and room for 99 prisoners.

Making first bids

Two file for school posts

Two Hereford men making their first bid for public office filed Monday for election to the Hereford Independent School District board of trustees.

Steve Coneway, 38, will run for the District 1 spot held by the Rev. Henry Amar, and 40-year-old Bud Patterson has filed for the now-vacant voting District 3 office.

Coneway, who lives at 1160 Rio Vista Drive, is a Hereford native and graduate of Hereford High School. He and wife, Nan, are the parents of two children attending the local school system.

Coneway is a stockholder and president of Tascosa Industries Inc. of Hereford, and active on the Texas Water Well Association Board.

A member of the First United Methodist Church, he works with Boy Scout Troop 52.

Lack of communications is the number one problem between school district officials and parents, Coneway believes. He said he feels the mastery reading program has caused a lot of ruffled feathers, and "should have been discussed at public hearings" before it was implemented.

Coneway has attended the meetings of a newly-organized citizens advisory group, and commented that people at the meeting conducted themselves well and "acted in a mature manner." He said he feels many of their complaints about the school system were legitimate.

Morale of both the students and the teachers is down, Coneway observed, and he said he would like to see problems resolved and "get back to teaching the kids."

Mrs. Coneway teaches bi-lingual education at Aikman Elementary School.

Patterson is cattle nutritionist with Farr Better Feeds and has lived in Hereford the past eleven and a half years. He and his wife, Carla, live on Route 4, Yucca Drive with their four school age children.

"With four kids in this school system, I'm deeply concerned with the quality of education they and all of our students are receiving in Hereford," Patterson claimed. "I am concerned with the leadership of our school district."

STEVE CONEWAY

Patterson said he feels there is a lack of "concerted, unified effort in this school system," and that programs are being implemented without the knowledge of the board members and parents.

"We have definite communications problems between the administration, the teachers and the parents," Patterson continued. "I believe that the people of this community own this school district, and we deserve to be better informed about the curriculum, and the programs that our students are subjected to."

Patterson also claimed that morale is low among teachers, and that they are being forced to teach programs and concepts rather than the "sound, basic fundamentals of education."

Patterson is a deacon at the First Christian Church, and his wife works part time for the First United Methodist Church.

Coneway has a bachelor's degree from Texas Tech University, while Patterson holds a bachelors degree and is working on a mater's degree from West Texas State University.

Wednesday, March 6 is the last day to file for the April 6 elections. Posts on the Hereford City Commission, Deaf Smith Hospital District Board and Buffalo Lake Water District Board are also up for grabs, as is the Hereford city mayor's post. Mayor West Fisher is the only one announcing for re-election so far.

Judge appoints attorney for perjury case

Deaf Smith County Judge Glen Nelson has appointed an Amarillo attorney to preside over perjury cases involving Hereford Attorney Gerald Smith.

Qlo Crum, who Nelson said has extensive civil and criminal court experience, will serve as judge while Travis Ware of Lubbock has been re-appointed as special prosecutor.

The cases were transferred to county court following indictments returned Dec. 19 by a Deaf Smith County grand jury, which Judge Pat Boone Jr. of Littlefield determined were misdemeanor charges.

In March 1983, Smith was first indicted by a special grand jury on one count of aggravated perjury and two for official misconduct. Smith's attorney, Jim Brown of Canyon, secured the dismissal of those cases during pre-trial motions in October.

A Hereford man remains in critical condition after being injured in a one-car traffic accident Friday afternoon, while a second victim's condition has improved.

Jose Vasquez, 49, is in the intensive care unit at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, where he was transferred Saturday morning from Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Vasquez suffered multiple fractures after being thrown from his car as it left the road and overturned south of Hereford. He was pinned beneath the vehicle before being freed by the Hereford Volunteer Fire department rescue squad.

Ricardo Olivo, 24, was reported in stable condition this morning at DSGH. He was injured in a two-car collision early Saturday morning on West Park Avenue. Olivo was issued tickets by Hereford police for driving while intoxicated and crossing the center line.

HISD special meeting tonight

A special meeting of the Hereford School Board is set for 7 p.m. this evening at the HISD administrative offices.

The lone item on the agenda is the discussion of "revision of the instructional program." An advisory group of concerned parents appeared at the last board meeting and requested the trustees study the "methodology being used in our system, specifically the placement of elementary students and testing in general."

The advisory group made several requests, and trustees have already agreed to a special committee composed of trustees and parents to formulate a questionnaire for all school professionals.

Mark Williamson, assistant administrator, will present a program on the curriculum and discuss compliance to new state school laws.

Benefit game night March 1

A game night to benefit the American Heart Association has been rescheduled for 7 p.m. Friday, March 1 at the Community Center. Tickets are available at the door for $5 per person and $3 for senior citizens. Bridge and dominoes will be featured.

Tax Appraisal board to meet

The Deaf Smith County Appraisal District board of directors is to meet Thursday at 7 p.m. in regular session.

Board members face a short, routine agenda, including the paying of bills and an office report. The meeting is to be held in the district's board room, 402 W. Fourth St.

Correction

A story about the new Deaf Smith County United Way officers in Friday's Brand identified Raymond White as the chairman of evaluations and audit.

Actually, Raymond Artho was named to that post. The Brand regrets the error.

Soviets, U.S. resume talks

VIENNA (AP) — U.S. and Soviet delegates today resumed super-power dialogue on the Middle East after a seven-year hiatus, with the Reagan administration cautioning that it expected no diplomatic breakthroughs.

Chief U.S. delegate Richard S. Murphy and three American officials whose identities were not disclosed arrived at the Soviet Embassy, venue of the first of two planned rounds, shortly before 9:30 a.m.

Murphy, an assistant secretary of state, brushed past reporters waiting outside the turn of the century former mansion in the heart of Vienna's diplomatic district. He said he would have no statement to make.

The Soviet negotiating team is headed by Vladimir P. Polyakov, a ranking official in the Foreign Ministry. Neither he nor other Soviet officials met the arriving Americans at the entrance.

Both sides have imposed a virtual news blackout in Vienna on the planned two-day talks, saying all comment would come out of Moscow and Washington. The discussions were to

Purchase not linked to Saturn plant

DALLAS (AP) — An Electronic Data Systems official says that H. Ross Perot's proposed purchase of 6,300 acres of land in Collin County is unrelated to General Motors' plans to build a Saturn auto assembly plant.

"The speculation that this is for Saturn has just been unbelievable. But it's not," said Penny Pasquesi, director of public relations for EDS. "It's just a personal investment that has nothing to do with EDS."

Real estate sources told The Dallas Morning News that much of the property lacks adequate water and sewer service needed for a GM facility.

The automaker has been conducting a nationwide search for a 600- to 1,000-acre plant site for its new automotive division. GM officials say a location will be chosen by April.

Wherever it is located, the Saturn plant will employ about 6,000 people and several Texas cities are bidding to get it.

General Motors acquired EDS in October. Perot has been on GM's board of directors since last year.

Perot, EDS chairman, has agreed to pay more than $100 million for the tract concentrated in south Collin County just north of Plano, owned by Gulf National Land Corp., a subsidiary of Dallas-based Gulf Broadcast Co.

Perot already has numerous land holdings near the McKinney Airport. The new world headquarters for EDS is currently under construction on a tract not far from the land Perot is trying to purchase.

"Mr. Perot is a powerful Texan, and people conclude he will have something to say about it," Miss Pasquesi said.

Telephones at Gulf Broadcast and Gulf National were not answered early today.

Gunman fatally wounds man

DALLAS (AP) — The wife of a 38-year-old man who was shot and killed by a sniper on an expressway says she has no idea why someone would want to kill her husband.

"It's not like there was a reason," said Jack Vaughn's wife, Jean, following the death Monday. "They just took a wonderful man. He wasn't just an ordinary man, he was exceptional, and it doesn't make any sense."

Jack Vaughn died at Baylor Medical Center from a single gunshot wound to his head as he was riding to work on North Central Expressway in a car driven by his 31-year-old stepson, Larry Evans. A gunman in another car fired a shot.

"That guy has a gun," were Vaughn's last words.

The man, who moved from Abilene to Fort Worth in December, was in the passenger seat of a northbound car when he saw a man in the right lane pointing a gun. The shot was fired through the passenger's window shortly before 6 a.m.

Police said they were hoping to be contacted by witnesses who may have seen Evans' car or the auto driven by the assailant and two passengers.

Catholics get new bishop

HOUSTON (AP) — The Rev. Joseph A. Fiorenza was installed Monday night as the new leader of Catholics in the Galveston-Houston area.

Fiorenza, most recently bishop of the Diocese of San Angelo, succeeds Bishop John L. Morkovsky, who is retiring.

Public ceremonies marking the installation were held Monday night at The Summit arena in Houston.

At a private ceremony Sunday night in Galveston, Fiorenza delivered to Morkovsky the official letter from Pope John Paul II.

"The papal letter represents the unbreakable bond of unity between the bishop of Rome and the church in this diocese," Fiorenza said. "Without the papal letter, neither I nor anyone else can assume episcopal leadership over this historic and important diocese."

The new bishop's congregation numbers some 613,000 Catholics in the Houston area. At one time, the territory included the entire state of Texas.

But Fiorenza noted that Catholicism has grown so rapidly in this century that now 13 dioceses make up Texas.

It is not his first assignment in Houston. Fiorenza served as chancellor of the diocese from 1973 until 1979, when he took over at San Angelo.

The new bishop asked priests to work with him "to marshal our energies behind the many good and wonderful things being accomplished for God (in this diocese)."

At least seven activists arrested

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A law office said today six of its clients who are anti-apartheid activists were arrested today, apparently on treason warrants, and the wife of a seventh activist said her husband also was arrested on a treason warrant.

Police spokesman Lt. Henry Beck confirmed there had been several arrests, but said he had no further information. Lawyer Priscilla Jana's secretary said six of Mrs. Jana's clients had gotten word to her that they had been arrested on treason warrants.

According to Mrs. Jana's office, those arrested in Johannesburg include Popo Molefe, national secretary of the United Democratic Front; the Rev. Frank Chikane, also a top United Democratic Front official; Albertina Sisulu, wife of jailed African National Congress leader Walter Sisulu; Dr. Ismael Mohamed; Siza Njikelana, of the South African Allied Workers Union; and June Mlangeni, who works at the South African Council of Churches.

United Democratic Front treasurer Cassim Saloojee was arrested at his home at 4:30 a.m., also on a treason warrant, his wife said.

United Democratic Front official Rashid Seria said police raided the organization's office in Cape Town, as well as offices of community newspaper offices in Cape Town and Outshoorn. Seria said he knew of no arrests in the Cape Town area.

Thousands march in protest

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Some 10,000 Greek Orthodox clergymen and their supporters marched in protest against a high school textbook that they said supports Charles Darwin's theory of evolution.

They gathered at the campus of Athens University on Monday and then marched to Parliament to deliver a resolution condemning the textbook.

Led by priests carrying lighted candles, the marchers held banners saying "Out with godless books from our schools" and chanted, "Greece is a Christian country."

The demonstrators knelt outside the Parliament building, and sang hymns and the national anthem.

The textbook, "History of the Human Race," was introduced in Greece's public high schools last year. It was written by Leften F. Stavrianos, professor emeritus at Northwestern University and adjunct professor of history at the University of California at San Diego.

Schroeder's outlook gloomy

Haydon breathing on own

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Artificial heart recipient Murray P. Haydon's doctors beamed about his recuperation as he resumed breathing on his own, but a "discouraged" and fever-plagued William J. Schroeder may never be well enough to leave the hospital, doctors said.

Haydon could only mumble yes and no Monday after a respirator was removed from his irritated throat, but his condition "is so good it's frightening," said Dr. Allan M. Lansing, medical spokesman for the surgery team that implanted the Jarvik-7 heart on Sunday.

Haydon, 58, of Louisville, ate ice chips Monday night, his first step toward sipping fluids rather than taking them through a tube. Lansing said the "next plateau" would be riding Haydon of all his tubes and monitoring lines, except for the compressed-air lines that keep the heart beating.

Meanwhile, Schroeder, the world's second recipient of a permanent artificial heart, continued to suffer an untraceable fever and memory lapses and was described as "withdrawn."

"At the present time he spends most of his time in bed. The quality of life is not good," Lansing said Monday.

Schroeder, 53, of Jasper, Ind., was nearly well enough to go home when the fever struck him about two weeks ago, doctors said.

"This appeared to be a setback, as though he might never get out of the hospital," Lansing said. "I am not sure that he will go home."

Schroeder's problems began Dec. 13, when he suffered a series of strokes that damaged his short-term memory. He received the artificial heart on Nov. 25.

Dr. Robert Jarvik, who invented the artificial heart, said he spent some time with Schroeder last week. "He said a few words and that's all. He doesn't say complete sentences," Jarvik said.

"It's a very rough thing that's happened," he added.

At a Monday morning briefing, Lansing talked at length about Schroeder's discouragement, saying "the individual's spirit is a very important determinant of survival." Any patient who begins to lose the will to live "may lose his strength or he may commit suicide," Lansing said.

ATTORNEY

Brown argued that the indictments were poorly worded, and that the official misconduct charges did not constitute criminal offenses. Ware, appointed as prosecutor after Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul recused himself, generally agreed with Brown and said the indictments would be difficult to prosecute.

Despite the dismissal, a grand jury was convened to reconsider the evidence, with Boone re-appointed as judge and Ware again named special prosecutor.

The most recent indictments are based on Smith's alleged criminal defense work during the time he was employed by Saul as an assistant district attorney. That employment ended in March of 1983, and Saul later withdrew from his law partnership with Smith and local attorney Don Davis.

The indictments claim that although Smith testified during a pre-trial hearing in 1983 that he did not engage in defense work, he was at the time representing one Hereford man on a traffic charge and another on a school attendance charge in Justice of the Peace Court.

No date has been set for the trial.

SOVIETS

move to the U.S. Embassy on Wednesday.

U.S.-Soviet discussions on the Middle East were broken off in 1977, and a spokesman in Washington said the new talks would be "merely an exchange of views." Neither side has used the term "negotiations" to describe the talks.

The Reagan administration has cautioned against expecting breakthroughs, suggesting that the Soviets would not likely change key Middle East positions on which they differ with Washington.

The consultations coincide with a time of flux in the Middle East.

Israeli troops in Lebanon withdrew last week to a new line farther south. Israeli Prime Minister Simon Peres, now in Italy, is scheduled to go on to Romania, the only Soviet-bloc country that has diplomatic relations with Israel. A week ago King Hussein of Jordan and Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, agreed on a joint negotiating position for possible peace talks with Israel.

It is known that Israel is apprehensive about the discussions, but Jordan and Egypt are among the Arab nations that have expressed approval.

Among the topics that could be discussed are:

— The Israeli occupation of southern Lebanon and the West Bank of the Jordan River.

— A Soviet proposal to hold an international peace conference on the Middle East. It would include the Soviets and PLO, and is opposed by both the United States and Israel.

— The Iran-Iraq war, which is affecting neutral shipping in the Persian Gulf.

Iwo Jima veterans unite in memorial

IWO JIMA (AP) — American and Japanese veterans of the fierce five-week struggle to take this rocky speck of land returned today to place a memorial above the sands of Iwo Jima in hope so many lives — 27,000 — will never be sacrificed in war again.

Forty years ago today, three divisions of U.S. Marines waded through the Pacific, coming ashore the volcanic ash beaches, 660 miles south of Tokyo.

When the battle ended on March 26, 1945, nearly 21,000 Japanese had been annihilated after fighting from caves and tunnels and being cut off from reinforcements. About 6,800 Americans were killed in the fight, one of the bloodiest battles in World War II's four-year campaign in the Pacific.

American military strategists wanted Iwo Jima seized for use as a base to launch fighter planes to escort B-29 bombers on raids against major cities and industrial complexes in Japan's home islands. Japan surrendered in August 1945, after atomic bomb attacks on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

We have had a tradition here in Hereford which, until this year, we have been allowed to enjoy and participate in—I am referring to our "Meet the Herd" night for basketball.

The booster club usually gives this for the benefit of the community, allowing them to meet the players as introduced by the coach of each team. The players deserved to be recognized and applauded and we can show our support and appreciation for all their hard work.

I understand the head basketball coach, Mike Fields, was contacted by the booster club and he felt he was too busy the first week of the season. We never got the "Meet the Herd" night. I especially think it is unfair for the seniors.

We thoroughly enjoyed "Meet the Herd" night for football. The coaches, players, cheerleaders and band did a great job starting off the football season. We appreciated the talk Coach Taylor gave us about our new state regulations, preparing us for what can happen under the new system. The whole program was very well organized and very necessary. Perhaps we will be able to attend one for the track, baseball and golf players?

Our players are not named at the games—and interested spectators have to guess who the players are. When we played in the Clovis tournament, they named every player and had programs. I attended the last pep rally for basketball and the players were not recognized. Our coach did not have anything to say, and our players did not receive their number tags from the cheerleaders like the football players did.

They have been through a tough season and they never gave up. They should be commended. For your information, the senior boys are Mike Scott, Sammy Suarez, Kevin Redus, Daniel King, Dean Fuller, Mark Lomenick, Lee Brockman, Blair Rogers and Doug Owen. The senior girls are Darla Alford, Carla Alford, Stacy High, Lori Niblett and Kelly Mumau.

I would like to say, "Good luck" to next year's basketball team and their parents and the booster club—you're going to need it.

Thank you, Cecelia Fuller

Ann Landers

"Will I be next?"

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wish there were some way for me to let our young people know how foolish they are to be careless with their cars and motorcycles.

My 16-year-old son suffered a head injury two years ago and is still trying to recover. Besides the broken bones there is brain damage. He is tormented by memory loss, lack of coordination, changes in his personality, low frustration levels that lead to behavioral problems, and an extremely short attention span.

It is heartbreaking to watch someone you love struggle to remember the simplest things. The shame and anger when he fails is unbearable.

Nearly 700,000 young people (twice as many males as females) suffer head injuries every year. Most are 15 to 25 years old. I wish I could show ever teenage driver a picture of my son in the critical care ward with his head shaved, in a coma, with tubes coming out of every part of his body. They would probably say, "It could never happen to me," but they would be wrong. That is what my son thought. --HEARTBROKEN IN IDAHO me or cut me down. I wanted until she took a breath, looked her straight in the eye, smiled graciously and said, "You are absolutely right. I don't know how you stand me." This completely unhinged the old girl and she would go nuts trying to figure out how to respond.

After a while she knew she couldn't get my goat so she quit trying. We have a fairly civilized relationship now and at times I think she actually likes me. I hope you will print this letter for others who are where I was 10 years ago. It might be helpful. --VICTORIOUS IN DETROIT

DEAR VIC: Your suggested approach works well when dealing with almost all hostile people. As someone once said, "Be gracious and sweet to your enemies. It will drive them crazy!" Here's another letter on the same subject.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Miami", who has the obnoxious father-in-law: I have walked in those same moccasins for 10 years but decided long ago, for the sake of my good husband and wonderful mother-in-law, that I simply had to keep my mouth shut and remain civil.

His verbal assaults on me began with needling and gradually turned into gross insults. When I figured out the pattern, I absented myself after the first needle with the excuse that I felt dizzy (or nauseated) and had to lie down. The old goat was frustrated as hell but couldn't do one thing about it. He caught on after a couple of years. End of problem. --G.G. IN ALTANTIC-CITY

DEAR G.G.: Beautiful! That formula is a good one for similar situations. Thanks for sharing.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, LSD, speed, PCP, uppers and downers, glue and heroin? Are all these drugs dangerous? Get Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

4 Around the County

By SUSAN RANEY
County Extension Agent

Keeping records. It's a fact of life for millions of Americans. In order to be able to function in our society it seems that everyone has to keep records. Accountants, businessmen, doctors, farmers, historians, lawyers, and yes, even parents. Whether it's keeping track of expenses, writing a historical account of an event or doing income tax for the year, almost everyone has to be able to keep records.

4-H teaches young people the importance of keeping records, by including record books as part of 4-H work. Members are encouraged to keep records of what they learn the size and scope, expense and income and plans for expanding in each project they are enrolled in. All of these details are recorded in a project record form.

Once this record form has been completed, the member also fills out a junior or senior report form. This form is a record of all other 4-H experiences, leadership and community service activities that member has participated in. This along with project pictures, a 4-H story and the project form are all compiled into what makes a 4-H record book.

What seems like a chore to the 4-H member, doing a record book is actually a concise, clear and accurate summary of a year's 4-H activities. And although the record book takes time to complete, the benefits and rewards are well worth the 4-Her's effort to do one.

At the local level, a 4-H'er is awarded a project medal at the awards banquet when he or she completes a 4-H record book. Both junior and senior record books are sent to the district level for competition and from there, senior books are sent to a statewide competition. Senior record books are then selected to go onto a National competition and as an award, these state winning members receive an expense-paid trip to attend National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Illinois. Among other awards some state record book winners receive scholarships and cash awards.

Also - once a member has completed at least three year's worth of record books, they become eligible to apply for the 4-H Foundation Opportunity Scholarships. These are given to High School seniors and total over $70,000.00 in scholarships money.

So - compiling a record book can be profitable as well as give youth valuable record keeping skills. These skills will stay with them for life and if a 4-H record book can help pay the way to attend college - then aren't they well worth the effort of doing one? If you ask me - I'll tell you YES! I received an all expense paid trip to Chicago, Illinois to attend National 4-H Congress and my first semester of college was free because this 4-H'er completed her record book!

For additional information on the 4-H record book program, contact Susan Raney at the County Extension office.

"A regular routine of eating a variety of fruits, vegetables, breads and cereals, dairy products and protein, will supply all the nutrients you need when you're under stress."

Although protein, vitamin c and B-vitamins are sometimes claimed to be stress-fighters, Hunt says there is not enough scientific evidence to support those claims.

Facts presented on nutrition, stress

COLLEGE STATION - Some people overeat when they're under stress while others avoid eating.

"Either of these responses can hurt the body's ability to cope with the stress," says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Dr. Alice Hunt.

For short term stress, like that faced before an important business presentation or athletic event, the best foods to eat are those that are easy to digest, she says.

Stress diverts the blood supply away from the stomach and intestines where it is needed to aid digestion. So you may feel uncomfortable if you eat foods that take longer to digest.

Carbohydrate foods such as bread, cereals, spaghetti, macaroni, rice, potatoes and fruits leave the stomach earlier and are digested more readily than fats or protein, observes the nutritionist.

Foods that are high in fat take longer to be digested. Hunt recommends avoiding rich cookies and cakes, peanut butter, nuts, frankfurters, luncheon meats, gravy, yellow cheese an ice cream when stress levels are high.

"The best menu for coping with long-term stress created by financial difficulty, work or family problems is simply a balanced diet," she maintains.

Rule to keep coaches boxed in

By RANDY RIGGS Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN (AP) — Being on the NCAA basketball rules committee has its advantages, says Texas A&M's Shelby Metcalf, speaking not from first-hand experience but from watching Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton.

Sutton serves on the committee, which voted last spring to institute a coaching box this season designed to keep coaches on — or at least near — the bench, where they theoretically belong.

At a critical point in the Aggies' game with the Razorbacks in January at College Station, Sutton ventured past the little white line to debate a foul on William Mills. He was not hit with a technical foul for straying beyond the line.

"I guess Eddie's got diplomatic immunity," the A&M coach speculated several days after the incident. "I'm going to have to get me one of those hog hats because maybe they won't call you for it if you're wearing one."

Metcalf was joking. Sort of. At the time, it didn't seem like a laughing matter, especially since Arkansas escaped with a 70-67 win.

If Sutton did, indeed, have diplomatic immunity from the coaches box for his membership on the rules committee, it expired in Dallas three days after the A&M incident. Against SMU, Arkansas twice was called for box infractions. Sutton got a technical early, then the bench got one late, as SMU took a 3-point overtime verdict. Afterward, Sutton fumed that the Hogs were "hosed" by the officials.

Since those misadventures involving the box early in league play, things have quieted down. The conference doesn't know the number of box infractions — "That's a negative statistic. We don't keep that," Bob Prewitt, the SWC's supervisor of basketball officials, tried to explain — but coaches appear to be learning how to live with and within the box.

They should, because the rule was enforced on an experimental basis in the SWC last year. The box actually is a line that extends 28 feet from the baseline and ends at a point where, ideally, coaches can't get to the scorer's table. It was tried in the SWC last year, Prewitt said, because of the success the Southeastern Conference had with it in the 1982-83 season.

"I think it's a good rule," said Prewitt, the former SMU coach. "It defines limits on just how far a coach can go."

Some conference followers believe the rule was implemented here not because of the SEC's success with it, but because of a famous Sutton performance at the SWC postseason tournament at Dallas' Reunion Arena in 1982.

In the finals against Houston, the Arkansas coach did everything but moonwalk for the SRO crowd. Taking vociferous exception to an official's call, Sutton stormed onto the court, flung his red sports coat to the ground, strode angrily to the scorer's table more than once and generally conducted himself in a manner that has attained legendary status in conference circles.

"From what I understand, that was part of the reason we've got the rule," said game official Robert Ledbetter of Round Rock, a 17-year officiating veteran who has called SWC games for seven years.

Sutton, perhaps surprisingly, likes the rule.

"I know a lot of people in Texas think I'm a wild man, but I think it's a good rule because coaches have responsibilities they need to accept," he said. "What I did three years ago was wrong. I shouldn't have done it."

"The intent of the rule is not to call technicals if a guy happens to step six inches over the line. The intent is to keep coaches from going down to the scorer's table, like I did in Dallas against Houston."

Establishing intent and developing consistency in enforcing the rule are the two most vital aspects of it. As the Metcalf-Sutton drama illustrated, officials are feeling their way with the rule as much as coaches are.

"One of the problems we have is different officials enforce the rule with different degrees of intensity," said Bill Farney, the University Interscholastic League athletic director who acts as an SWC officials observer at some Texas home games. "The box is like the 55 mph speed limit. It's directed only at those who are going to abuse it."

"It hasn't gagged coaches. It's just taken the exhibitionism out of their performances."

Sutton noted, "Most coaches are actors, to a certain degree. They'll get up to make a point. Sometimes they'll act like they're jumping on the officials when all they're really trying to do is fire up their team."

"The officials need to understand all that, and most of them do. Still, they haven't been real consistent with how they've called that particular rule. Really, all it means is they should use common sense."

The rule is interpreted differently in different areas of the country. In the Big East conference, for example, "there are guys (coaches) running around all over the place," Sutton said. In the SWC, after the early season flurry, officials also seem to be taking a laid-back approach to enforcing the rule.

"In some early (SWC) games this year, we had some calls that seemed to have a direct effect on the outcome, and I hate to see that," Ledbetter said. "I have mixed feelings about it. The coach is there to make a living, and I like to be understanding when I can. I don't think a guy deserves a technical just for stepping out of the box, but the rules say we're supposed to give him one if he does."

"In the heat of battle people get excited," he added. "I personally think it depends on the situation. You have to use some discretion when you call it."

And don't accept any pleas of diplomatic immunity.

NBA roundup

Bird sits, misses record

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Larry Bird was one steal away from National Basketball Association history and was too tired to care.

Bird had 30 points, 12 rebounds, 10 assists and nine steals and Boston had a 22-point lead after the third quarter of Monday night's 110-94 victory over the Utah Jazz. But after playing 42 minutes the day before in a loss to the Los Angeles Lakers, Bird was in no mood for record-setting.

One more steal would have given him the first regulation "quadruple double" — double figures in four categories — in NBA history. Bird was told he had a chance for the record, but he chose not to play in the fourth period.

"I already did enough," Bird said. "If it had been close, I'd have been in there trying, but when you're ahead by 30 points, what do you have to prove?"

In other NBA games, Cleveland defeated Philadelphia 120-113, Detroit crushed Phoenix 122-103 and the Los Angeles Clippers tripped San Antonio 125-121.

The Celtics had only nine players in uniform because starters Robert Parish and Cedric Maxwell are injured and backup guard Quinn Buckner was ill. But Bird, and Utah's miserable shooting early in the game, kept Boston in control.

"Bird took it away from us," Jazz Coach Frank Layden said. "It was a great effort on his part. He played a lot of minutes yesterday in Los Angeles. But he knew his team was short a couple of key guys, so he went out and played real hard. He's as good as there has ever been," helps to win one like this. This game was way beyond my expectations."

Bird hit 13 of 22 shots from the field en route to his game-high 30 points, while teammate Kevin McHale added 29 points while hitting 11 of 17 field goal attempts.

Cavaliers 120, 76ers 113
Cleveland, which won at Philadelphia for the first time in 23 tries last Friday, made it two straight over the 76ers as World B. Free scored 35 points.

The Cavaliers trailed 43-30 in the second quarter, but a 21-2 streak put them ahead 51-45. Philadelphia then rallied behind Andrew Toney, who scored 23 of his 43 points in the first half, to lead 55-53 at halftime.

Rookie center Mel Turpin had 20 points and 17 rebounds for Cleveland. Pistons 122, Suns 103

Detroit scored the first 11 points of the game and went on to lead by as many as 27 in a rout of Phoenix.

Center Bill Laimbeer led six Pistons in double figures with 21 points, including 13 in the first half as Detroit opened a 71-46 lead. Just before halftime, the Suns trailed 69-42.

Louganis 55th recipient of Sullivan Award

By HANK LOWENKRON AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Greg Louganis, having achieved unequalled levels in men's diving, has abandoned talk of retirement and is eyeing new goals.

"I'm going to continue diving. I'm working with National Spa and Pool Institute to promote diving. We're promoting water diving safety," said Louganis, who became the 55th winner of the Sullivan Award as the nation's top amateur performer on Monday. Louganis, 25, received the award in his sixth year as a finalist. He placed first in voting by some 2,500 participants who made the choice from a group consisting of 10 Olympic gold medalists.

"I've had a big change in my plans. I really thought I would retire after the Olympics and last year's national championships," he said. "Now, I'm going to take it one year at a time. I'm going to go to next year, the world championships. If I do well, then I'll hang on for another two years (the 1988 Olympics)."

Louganis, the winner of a record 29 national championships who swept last year's Olympic diving competition, also plans to continue studying for an acting career and will soon publish his autobiography.

"I was afraid there was going to be a tremendous down after the Olympic Games," he said. "But they've had me going everywhere. Now when I go to the pool, it's like a luxury. It's kind of my sanctuary. I love

Man completes journey

MARINA DEL REY, Calif. (AP) — Boxers Ken Norton and Paul Gonzales were among those cheering on Jeff Keith as the 22-year-old athlete, who lost his right leg to cancer, completed a coast-to-coast run across the United States.

Mayor Tom Bradley also was on hand as Keith, of Fairfield, Conn., finished his 3,300-mile run Monday and got doused with champagne. President Reagan called a few minutes later from Washington to add his congratulations.

"Nancy and I prayed for you all the way," Reagan said. "We knew you had what it takes to complete your journey."

Keith, who began his run on an artificial leg June 4 at Faneuil Hall in Boston and averaged 16 miles a day, told the crowd, "Thank you. I know 'thank you' is an understatement, but I can't express the gratitude that I feel. I know that many doubted me. I know that many believed that I could not complete the run. I always knew I would."

"I wanted to get my message across to the world that I'm not physically handicapped. I was physically challenged."

Keith learned he had osteogenic sarcoma, or bone cancer, at age 12 after a hockey game. On Christmas Eve 1974, his right leg was amputated above the knee at St. Vincent's Hospital in Bridgeport, Conn.

He was escorted to the finish line by an entourage of fellow students from Boston College, where he was a lacrosse goalie. The trek was sponsored by the American Cancer Society, which said Keith raised $120,000 in contributions.

AP Top 20 poll

First three teams stay in place

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Sports Writer

St. John's, which registered three victories last week by a total of 43 points, remained atop The Associated Press Top Twenty today as the first three teams in the college basketball poll held their places from last week.

The Redmen, 22-1 and currently on the nation's longest winning streak — 17 games — received 59 first-place votes and 1,199 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters. St. John's downed Columbia 68-49, Pittsburgh 84-63 and DePaul 93-80 to remain atop the poll.

Georgetown, 23-2, which is second to St. John's in the Big East Conference standings, held the second spot in the poll as it received the only other first-place vote and 1,141 points. Michigan, 20-3 and the leader in the Big Ten standings, remained third with 1,044 points.

The first change in the poll came as Memphis State and Oklahoma switched places from last week's rankings. The Tigers, 20-2, who finished with 975 points, enjoyed Metro Conference victories over Cincinnati, Florida State and South Carolina in the last week, while the Sooners, 21-4 and 958 points, also registered victories over Big Eight foes Iowa State and Missouri.

Duke, 18-4, and Syracuse, 19-4, each improved one spot from last week's poll. The Blue Devils, who defeated Stetson and Notre Dame in a pair of non-conference games, received 913 points, while the Orangemen, 19-4, who beat Big East foes Providence and Seton Hall as well as Louisiana State, had 873 points.

Georgia Tech, 18-5, which lost its only game of the week to Virginia, fell two places from last week and was eighth with 720 points, while Southern Methodist, 20-5, held the ninth spot with 675.

Louisiana Tech, 22-2, which made its debut into the poll nine weeks ago, joined the Top Ten for the first time this season as the Bulldogs received 622 points. Louisiana Tech narrowly escaped defeat in two Southland Conference victories, an overtime decision over Southwestern Louisiana and a one-point victory over McNeese State.

Nevada-Las Vegas leads the Second Ten — which has three new members — followed by Tulsa, North Carolina, Iowa, Kansas, Illinois, Virginia Commonwealth, Georgia, Oregon State and Boston College.

Virginia Commonwealth, 20-4, and Boston College, 18-6, personally knocked out two members of last week's Second Ten. The Rams beat then-No. 19 Alabama-Birmingham 67-53 in a Sun Belt Conference game and the Eagles downed then-No. 16 Villanova 62-61 with a wild comeback in the final four minutes of the Big East clash. Villanova was also beaten by Georgetown during the week. Virginia Commonwealth had not been in the Top Twenty for three weeks, while Boston College had dropped out one week earlier.

Georgia, 17-6, one of four teams tied for the Southeastern Conference lead and in the Top Twenty for the first time this season, is the other new member of the second 10, replacing Maryland, which lost Atlantic Coast Conference games to North Carolina and Clemson.

Jennings wins honor

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Tech's Bubba Jennings has been named the Southwest Conference basketball player of the week for the second time this season.

Jennings claimed the vote among the SWC men coaches for the second time in four weeks. As a repeater for the honor, he follows SMU's Jon Koncak, who won back-to-back honors in mid-January.

Jennings, Tech's 5-foot-10 floor leader, hit 48 points in victories over Rice and Arkansas to keep the Raiders in contention for the SWC lead. One of the SWC's all-time free-throw leaders, Jennings went six for six during the week to give him a 87.2 percentage on 75 of 86.

Gooden, Mets reach agreement

'Youngster' may get half-million

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — At the tender age of 20, Dwight Gooden could be halfway toward becoming a millionaire.

After three months of publicized wrangling, including threats of a holdout by the rookie strikeout sensation, Gooden and the New York Mets reached agreement Monday on a one-year contract which, according to agent Jim Neader, could earn him about $500,000.

Gooden received slightly more than the $40,000 major-league minimum last season when he compiled a 17-9 record with a 2.60 earned run average and led the majors with 276 strikeouts, a record for a rookie pitcher. The hard-throwing right-hander originally requested in excess of $700,000 after Gooden was voted National League Rookie of the Year.

Neader said Monday that the agreement guaranteed Gooden an amount "slightly less" than the $350,000 pitcher Fernando Valenzuela received from the Los Angeles Dodgers in his second year. "All told, he will have a shot at around half a million dollars, maybe a little bit less, which we think is fair for him," Neader said.

No details were announced but the "agreement in principle" was believed to call for a salary of $300,000 with liberal provisions for bonuses based on performance. Before Gooden formally signs, however, Neader said, "We have to review the language of the clauses, which are in this case quite complex, and we have to make sure that everything is covered in detail."

He said he expected the signing to take place next Monday but he said Gooden would report to the Mets' camp with other batterymen on Thursday.

NHL roundup

Recognition both good, bad

By JOHN F. BONFATTI
AP Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The publicity that Buffalo goaltender Tom Barrasso, last year's National Hockey League Rookie of the Year, continues to receive may have worked against him against Edmonton.

That's because Oilers goalie Grant

Fuhr apparently wanted to show that he's no slouch, either.

"Grant got a little excited," said Edmonton's Wayne Gretzky, who scored his 57th and 58th goals of the season as the Oilers defeated Buffalo 6-4 Monday night to snap a rare two-game losing streak and clinch a spot in the NHL playoffs. "Tom's been getting all the praise, but I think Grant had a little extra on his mind tonight. Barrasso's been having an outstanding year but Grant was just pumped up."

The victory gave Edmonton 88 points for the season and ensured that the defending Stanley Cup champions will return to the playoffs.

Buffalo's Gil Perreault scored two goals, but would have had at least four had Fuhr not come up with sensational saves at key points. In particular, Fuhr stopped Perreault on a semi-breakaway when the Sabres were only two goals behind in the second period.

In the only other NHL game, the Philadelphia Flyers routed the Pittsburgh Penguins 8-2.

Flyers 8, Penguins 2

Thomas Eriksson started a first-period onslaught of four goals in less than five minutes as Philadelphia won its fifth in a row and extended Pittsburgh's winless streak to 12 games — 11 losses and a tie. The Flyers, 11 points behind Washington barely a week ago, moved within three points of the first-place Capitals in the Patrick Division with two games in hand.

The defeat was the ninth straight for Pittsburgh, which has lost 17 straight games in Philadelphia since 1974.

Texas Most Wanted Fugitive

ROEL REYES

EDINBURG, Texas -- Drug dealers live a paranoid existence. Not only do they live in fear of detection by the law, but they also have to worry about each other.

Every year in Texas there are hundreds of narcotics-related homicides. One such crime occurred more than a year ago near Edinburg, Texas.

Police reports indicate that two men were killed, apparently after a drug deal went awry, on September 23, 1983.

Detectives say the victims were abducted from their homes, then taken to a rural area outside McAllen. Their hands were bound behind their backs and the men were forced to kneel down on the ground. One of the victims was shot, while the second had his throat cut. Amazingly, one of them survived.

The Hidalgo County Sheriff's Department obtained arrest warrants for Roel and Ruben Reyes, charging them with Capital Murder, Attempted Capital Murder, two counts of Aggravated Robbery and two counts of Aggravated Kidnapping. Ruben Reyes was arrested at his job and is awaiting trial.

However, Roel Garza Reyes remains at large. Detectives believe he might be in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. He was last seen driving a black Cadillac, year and model unknown.

Roel Reyes is 28, 5-4, 180 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. The Hidalgo County Sheriff's Department advises that Reyes should be considered armed and dangerous.

This week Reyes has been made the subject of Texas Most Wanted. A $1,000 reward is being offered for the next 12 month period for information leading to Reyes' capture. Anyone with information about his possible whereabouts is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers program to become eligible for the reward.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Fisher

Mildew proves a stubborn foe

DEAR POLLY — Please help! Our climate is very humid and clothing that I've stored away is becoming mildewed. How can I prevent this? — ISABEL

DEAR ISABEL — First, you must thoroughly clean the clothing of mildew. This can be done by bleaching washable, bleachable fabrics in chlorine bleach (add a cup to a cup and a half of bleach to a normal washer load) and soaking washable non-bleachable fabrics in a solution of one-fourth cup hydrogen peroxide in two gallons water. Dry clean non-washable items.

To prevent further mildew, place small containers or fabric bags of silica gel in your closet or drawers. This is a drying agent that is available in hardware stores, some drugstores and some garden-supply places. This will absorb the moisture that allows mildew to grow. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — As a bride-to-be who wanted to be orderly in sending out invitations without forgetting anyone, here's what I did. The name of each guest or guest family was written on an index card, along with their address and the names of their children. I arranged these cards alphabetically and proceeded to address my invitations. Whenever my fiancé, mother or I thought of another guest, an invitation was made and another index card filled out. When the gifts began to arrive, I wrote what each gift was on the appropriate card. When I wrote a thank you for the gift, I marked an "X" beside this notation.

Now four years later, I still use my box of index cards to look up addresses, especially at Christmastime. When I meet new friends, I just add a card. Phone numbers, birthdays and other information can also be noted. My card file is invaluable. — MRS. S.W.

DEAR POLLY — This Pointer solved two problems at once! I had piles of recipes cut from magazines and also many lovely pictures done on construction paper by my children. I needed a place to store my recipes and these works of art. I glued the recipes on the backs of the pictures and stored them in a pocket folder with my cookbooks. I dated and identified each picture; they'll be wonderful to look at in the years to come! — JUDY

DEAR POLLY — When I stuff Christmas stockings, instead of putting in a lot of rich, sweet cookies and candy, I put in breakfast foods. I put in a small box of a favorite cereal, several kinds of fresh fruit, a sweet roll or doughnut wrapped in plastic, a hard-cooked egg with a Santa face drawn on the shell and a package of hot cocoa mix. If there's any space left, I add a small toy and some nuts. When they open the stockings, they take the food into the kitchen and enjoy their breakfast, which usually satisfies them until lunch. — JEAN

Olympic flame

The Olympic flame symbolizes the continuity between the ancient and modern Games. The modern version of the flame was adopted in 1936.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Cholesterol

DEAR DR. LAMB — What does cholesterol do? All they say is that it is bad for your heart. What does it do to the heart and how does it affect it? Does it affect anything else in the body? What foods have the most cholesterol? I would appreciate any literature on cholesterol.

DEAR READER — Cholesterol is a water-insoluble substance. Since it cannot dissolve in water, it has to be combined with a blood protein to become soluble in the blood. A fat particle is also attached to the cholesterol and blood protein. The resultant fatty-cholesterol particle can be deposited in the walls of arteries, and as the deposits build up, they block the artery. This process is called atherosclerosis.

The tendency to develop deposits in the arteries depends on the number of larger fatty-cholesterol particles (LDL cholesterol). The smaller fatty-cholesterol particles (HDL cholesterol) actually may help to clear the blood of fatty-cholesterol particles. Therefore, the more cholesterol you have — and particularly the more LDL cholesterol — the more likely you are to develop fatty-cholesterol blockage of your arteries.

High blood pressure also increases the development of these deposits, as does injury to the wall of the artery. You will understand cholesterol better after reading The Health Letter 15-2, Understanding Your Cholesterol, Triglycerides and Other Blood Fats, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Cholesterol really does not do anything to the heart. The disease caused by deposits is really a disease of the arteries, and it can affect any artery in the body. When it affects the arteries to the heart, it may block the arterial blood flow to a part of the heart muscle, which can lead to a heart attack.

Blockage in the arteries in the brain may cause a stroke. The basic arterial disease, atherosclerosis, causes both strokes and heart attacks. Arterial disease can involve the arteries to the legs, causing muscle cramps when walking, or can affect the arteries to the kidneys and other parts of the body. Because heart attacks are so common, people tend to forget that the disease is really an arterial disease.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell women that mammograms are not infallible. A lot of women are walking around today with breast cancers because they had negative mammograms.

My lump was found during an annual physical. I went to a surgeon who ordered a mammogram. It was negative, but he operated anyway and found a cancer within the lump of fatty tissue.

Within two days, I heard of two similar cases. One woman lost half a breast and the other woman's breast cancer was so advanced that she probably will lose her life. Both women had had negative mammograms.

DEAR READER — You are absolutely right. Very few tests are right all of the time. The best way to make a diagnosis about any suspect area within the breast is to look at it under the microscope.

Mammograms are great for detecting many early cancers of the breast that otherwise would be missed, but one should not assume that mammograms will detect all cancers. A mammogram certainly should not be the only means of diagnosis.

President Benjamin Harrison was the first chief executive to witness a National League baseball game. He saw Cincinnati defeat Washington, then a National League team, 7-4 in 11 innings, on June 6, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the U.S. Department of Energy will conduct public hearings in Texas at the following times and locations: Tuesday, February 26, 1985, from 4:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. in the Tulia High School Auditorium, 501 N.E. 4th, Tulia, Texas; Thursday, February 28, 1985, from 4:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. at the Hereford High School, 701 Union Street, Hereford, Texas; Friday, March 1, 1985, from 2:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. at the Austin Hilton Inn, 1 H-35 at Highland Mall, 6000 Middle-Fiskville Road, Austin, Texas.
The hearings will be conducted to receive oral comments from the public on the draft environmental assessments prepared for nine potentially acceptable nuclear waste repository sites. These nine draft environmental assessments were issued for public review and comment on December 20, 1984. The nine sites are: Vacherie Dome, Louisiana; Cypress Creek and Richton Domes, Mississippi; Yucca Mountain on the Nevada Test Site, Nevada; Deaf Smith and Swisher Counties, Texas; Davis and Lavender Canyons, Utah; and the Hanford Reservation in Washington state.
Telephone requests to speak at the hearings should be made by calling (614)424-4135 collect. Requests for further information should be mailed to: Jefferson O. Neff, Program Manager, Salt Repository Project Office, Chicago Operations Office, U.S. Department of Energy, 505 King Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43201-2693.

opportunity to present oral comments, the length of each presentation will be limited to no more than ten minutes and may be further limited for a particular hearing depending upon the number of people requesting to be heard.
Questions may be asked only by those conducting each hearing, and there will be no cross-examination of people presenting statements. Any further procedural rules needed for the proper conduct of the hearing will be announced by the moderator at the start of the hearing.
DOE will consider both oral and written comments received on the draft environmental assessments. The public comment period is scheduled to end on March 20, 1985. Written comments can be mailed to: Comments-EA, U.S. Department of Energy, ATTN: Comments-EA, 1000 Independence Avenue SW, Washington, D.C. 20585.
The specific environmental assessment being addressed in each comment should be clearly identified. As noted above, written comments on a draft environmental assessment may also be submitted at the public hearing.

At the hearing, those who have registered in advance will be heard first or at times reserved for them. Anyone present at the hearing, who would like to speak but did not preregister, may request an opportunity to speak. The moderator at the hearing will determine if such requests can be accommodated within the time period scheduled.

LA PORTE, Texas (AP) — The chemical that claimed 2,500 lives last December in an accident in India no longer will pose a threat in a Houston-area Du Pont Co. plant which uses it because a way has been found to disarm the killer substance, company engineers say.
Du Pont is spending $10 million to $13 million at its La Porte plant southeast of Houston to build a "closed loop" manufacturing process and hopes to have it operating by June 1, company officials say.
The Texas Air Quality Board issued a building permit last week and construction is to start immediately.
Methyl isocyanate, or MIC, a temperamental compound that is one of the most poisonous, volatile chemicals known, is used by Du Pont to make insecticide. Hundreds of tons of MIC once were stored at the plant beside the Houston Ship Channel.
But history's worst industrial accident changed all that.
Last Dec. 3, an MIC storage facility at a Union Carbide plant near Bhopal, India, leaked more than 25 tons of the chemical, sending a cloud of death spewing into a nearby residential area. About 2,500 died and another 3,000 were injured.
The accident sent a worldwide wave of shock through the chemical industry and caused a review of safety procedures at plants everywhere.
At the time of the accident, storage tanks at the La Porte Du Pont plant contained 120 tons of MIC, almost five times more than was spilled in Bhopal.
R.D. Stewart, manager of the La Porte Plant, said that once news of the Bhopal tragedy became known, he immediately made plans to dispose of the MIC through processing. The following days, as the MIC was reduced to an insecticide, were tense, he said.

"I must admit that from Dec. 4 to the end of January, I was concerned," said Stewart. "Bhopal was a shock to everybody."
Even though Du Pont had used MIC for 15 years without an injury-causing accident, Bhopal changed the company's view of the hazardous chemical.
"Pre-Bhopal, we looked at the factors and decided it (use of MIC) was worth the risk," said Stewart. "But after Bhopal, we took another look and decided that now was the time for a change."
MIC is a key chemical step in the manufacturer of Lannate, an insecticide that, ironically, was developed to help protect the environment.
Lannate is used on field crops to control chewing insects. The insecticide is short-life, with a half life of only 48 hours. It was developed to replace DDT, a long-life chemical that damages the environment.
Stewart said it was believed the environmental advantages of Lannate was "worth the risk" of transporting MIC halfway across the country and storing it here in huge quantities.
Properties peculiar to MIC require some of the most expensive precautions of any industrial substance. The chemical is toxic, unstable and flammable. Exposure to only 0.02 parts per million is considered hazardous.
MIC is so unstable that it must be stored at temperatures below 36 degrees and at a pressure of no more than 15 pounds per square inch. The chemical will react swiftly — by rapidly heating and expanding — at contact with water or with such common metals as zinc or iron.
Union Carbide is the only company manufacturing MIC in the United States.

Until last December, Du Pont annually purchased about 51 tank cars of the chemical and had it shipped from the Union Carbide plant in West Virginia. It was unloaded in a special rail yard at the Du Pont plant in La Porte and transferred through stainless steel pipes to the storage tanks.
The storage tanks, triple-walled and made of stainless steel, were kept only half full, with the empty bunker space filled with pressurized, dry nitrogen gas.
In 15 years of handling the chemical, Du Pont experienced only one spill. Eight ounces escaped in 1981 and evaporated before it could be neutralized. No one was injured.
Following the Bhopal accident, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration conducted an inspection of the Du Pont plant, the Union Carbide facility in West Virginia, and of three other U.S. plants where MIC is used. The agency reported that the safety design of the plants showed "the chances of an uncontrolled MIC reaction are extremely remote."

Nevertheless, Stewart said Du Pont decided to go one step further and develop a way to make Lannate without the need to store MIC.
The result is the "closed loop" process that allows MIC to exist as a chemical compound for only a few seconds. MIC is created inside a reactor and immediately is consumed in the next step toward making Lannate. The chemicals on either side of the reaction are much less dangerous than MIC itself, said Stewart.
No more than two to three pounds of MIC will exist at any given moment during the process, said Stewart. Never again will tons of the material be kept in storage at the La Porte plant, he said.
Stewart said the chemical industry has the best safety record in America, but the tragedy in India is leading to a lot of soul-searching by all chemical manufacturing firms.
The accident, he said, "has forced us all to go back and look at all our chemical processes. It's going to take years and years to overcome the image left by Bhopal."

PUBLIC NOTICES
"BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MUST KNOW"

Editor's Note: Public Notice advertising plays a unique role both in American history and in the process by which this country's democracy is preserved. Its one premise is that people must be informed if they are to govern themselves competently. Public Notice advertising first came into being with the Congress of 1792. That body, recognizing its responsibility to the people, required the Postmaster General to advertise for bids for the construction of new post offices. From that inauspicious beginning to the complex publication requirements in federal, state and local laws today, government officials have come more and more to understand their obligation to inform the public through Public Notice advertising. Newspapers over the years have been the vehicles by which these obligations have been fulfilled. They will continue to be as long as the public demands that it be informed frequently and by the best means possible.

Experts propose suicide prevention

HOUSTON (AP) — Experts say suicide-prevention courses should be a required part of school curriculum, but they disagree about how it should be implemented and at what age.
A program of training and a system for recognizing students at risk of suicide may be appropriate because of the rising number of teen suicides, says Janel Miller, a psychologist and a consultant to the Clear Creek School district near Houston.
"It's up 300 percent in the last 20 years," said Mrs. Miller. "The rate is pretty significant. It's pretty scary."
Legislators in California and Florida already have mandated suicide education programs in schools as the result of a growing number of teens who take their own lives.
In Texas, Sue Mihalik of the Texas Education Agency has proposed suicide prevention education beginning in elementary school. The Katy Independent School District already has started such a program and in Dallas, Judi Smith of Suicide Prevention of Texas is proposing suicide education be included in curriculums there.
Mrs. Miller says the Clear Creek School district is looking at the possibility of including suicide prevention courses in the junior high curriculum.
Clear Creek experienced six suicides among students or former students within a year's time, triggering a program of crisis intervention in the Houston suburban community.
Mrs. Miller said a program that would introduce the suicide prevention training in the 7th grade would be useful, but such a program in high school "is too late."
The psychologist said that a program in elementary school would not be useful because children that young have not yet fully grasped the fact of death, much less the concept of suicide.
Ms. Mihalik, however, believes that training to prevent suicides could start in kindergarten with decision-making and study skills, and later, at about age 9, the topic of suicide could be introduced.
"High school is way too late to start something like that," said Ms. Mihalik. "Students should be taught when they are young how to deal with various situations rather than waiting until they get into a crisis situation."

U.S. demands equal treatment in market

WASHINGTON (AP) — American officials say they won't play "Uncle Sucker" when Japan opens its telecommunications market to foreigners for the first time April 1.

Since the breakup of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. a year ago, Japanese manufacturers have flooded the U.S. market with equipment ranging from telephones to sophisticated switching gear. Now, the Federal Communications Commission wants U.S. manufacturers to have the same access to Japanese consumers.

The Japanese market for communications products is the second largest in the world, behind the United States. And to make sure U.S. manufacturers are treated fairly in that new marketplace, the FCC is studying retaliatory options in the event Japan does not give equal treatment to American and Japanese companies.

In ordering a study of those options, FCC Chairman Mark S. Fowler said he wanted to see how the regulatory program could be used "to assure reciprocal openness" and "a free and open marketplace."

"They're dealing with Uncle Sam, not with Uncle Sucker," Fowler said a month ago when he confirmed the still uncompleted study was being conducted.

Fowler has discussed the study with Commerce Under Secretary Lionel H. Olmer, who is leaving soon for talks with the Japanese.

Japan's telecommunications system will change from government ownership to private enterprise on April 1. At that time, the Japanese plan to start allowing a private inspection association, controlled by Japanese manufacturers, to participate in the certification process for foreign-made equipment that will be connected to Japan's telephone networks.

In an interview, Fowler said the Japanese inspection association would have authority to enter American factories. That prospect has caused some U.S. manufacturers to fear the Japanese could drag their feet in approving U.S. imports while at the same time getting a peek at new U.S. technology.

Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, estimates the telecommunications balance of trade deficit for 1984 was $1 billion.

"The problem is especially acute with Japan, which currently sends us $35 worth of telecommunications equipment for every dollar's worth we send them," Dingell said.

One option being studied by the FCC is slowing the processing of applications by Japanese manufacturers or making the FCC's acceptance procedures "a mirroring device" for Japanese certification rules.

Rule given on formaldehyde levels in mobile homes

COLLEGE STATION — A new government standard may make living in a mobile home a little healthier, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service housing specialist.

According to Dr. Jane Berry, a rule for formaldehyde emission levels is included in a revision of the Manufactured Housing Construction and Safety Standards from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

"For the first time, manufacturers of certain building materials and factory made housing will be required to produce products that emit formaldehyde at levels below that established by HUD," says Berry.

Formaldehyde is commonly used as an ingredient in pressed wood products such as particleboard, fiberboard and paneling, which are used for mobile home construction. But some of the formaldehyde does not completely bond in the mixture during manufacturing, she explains.

This "free formaldehyde" is then released from the products, especially when they are new, says the specialist. It may also react with water or water vapor created by Texas' hot, humid weather to produce formaldehyde gas.

Formaldehyde has been known to cause eye, nose and throat irritation. Some people also report headaches, fatigue, memory loss and other symptoms, Berry says.

People with chronic respiratory problems, young children and the elderly tend to be more susceptible to formaldehyde exposure, she notes. Since many young families and retirees select mobile home housing, this ruling should help protect these groups, Berry says.

In announcing new emission standards, HUD states that it does not take a position on whether formaldehyde causes cancer in humans. In addition, HUD believes that it is not possible to implement a standard that will protect everyone, because some people are more susceptible to it than others.

The new ruling also requires manufacturers of factory-built housing to offer a ventilation improvement option with each home, she says.

Since adequate ventilation is critical in reducing a buildup of formaldehyde gas, especially in a new mobile home, Berry urges buyers to consider such an option carefully.

Calliopian meets for holiday fun

Calliopian Club met Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Marjorie Mims.

In the absence of the president, the business meeting was conducted by the vice-president, Sheri Kerr. The club members voted to give a donation to Chemical People to aid the organization with its work in the local community. Several announcements were made regarding community activities to be held in the near future.

Mims and the co-hostess were in charge of the program. Games were played following a Valentine Day theme. Following the games, the decorated valentine box was opened and cards distributed to the members present. Refreshments were then served.

The evening was enjoyed by members Kathlee Parmer, Marye Fraser, Irene Coneway, Sue James, Elizabeth McDowell, Faye Holt, Wilma Nobles, Meredith Wilcox, Vera Threewit, Kerr, Audine Dettman, Kay McWhorter, Jane Gulley, Kathryn Ruga and the hostesses.

Next meeting will be Feb. 28 at home of Virginia Holmes.

Bippus gathers for combination club, town meeting

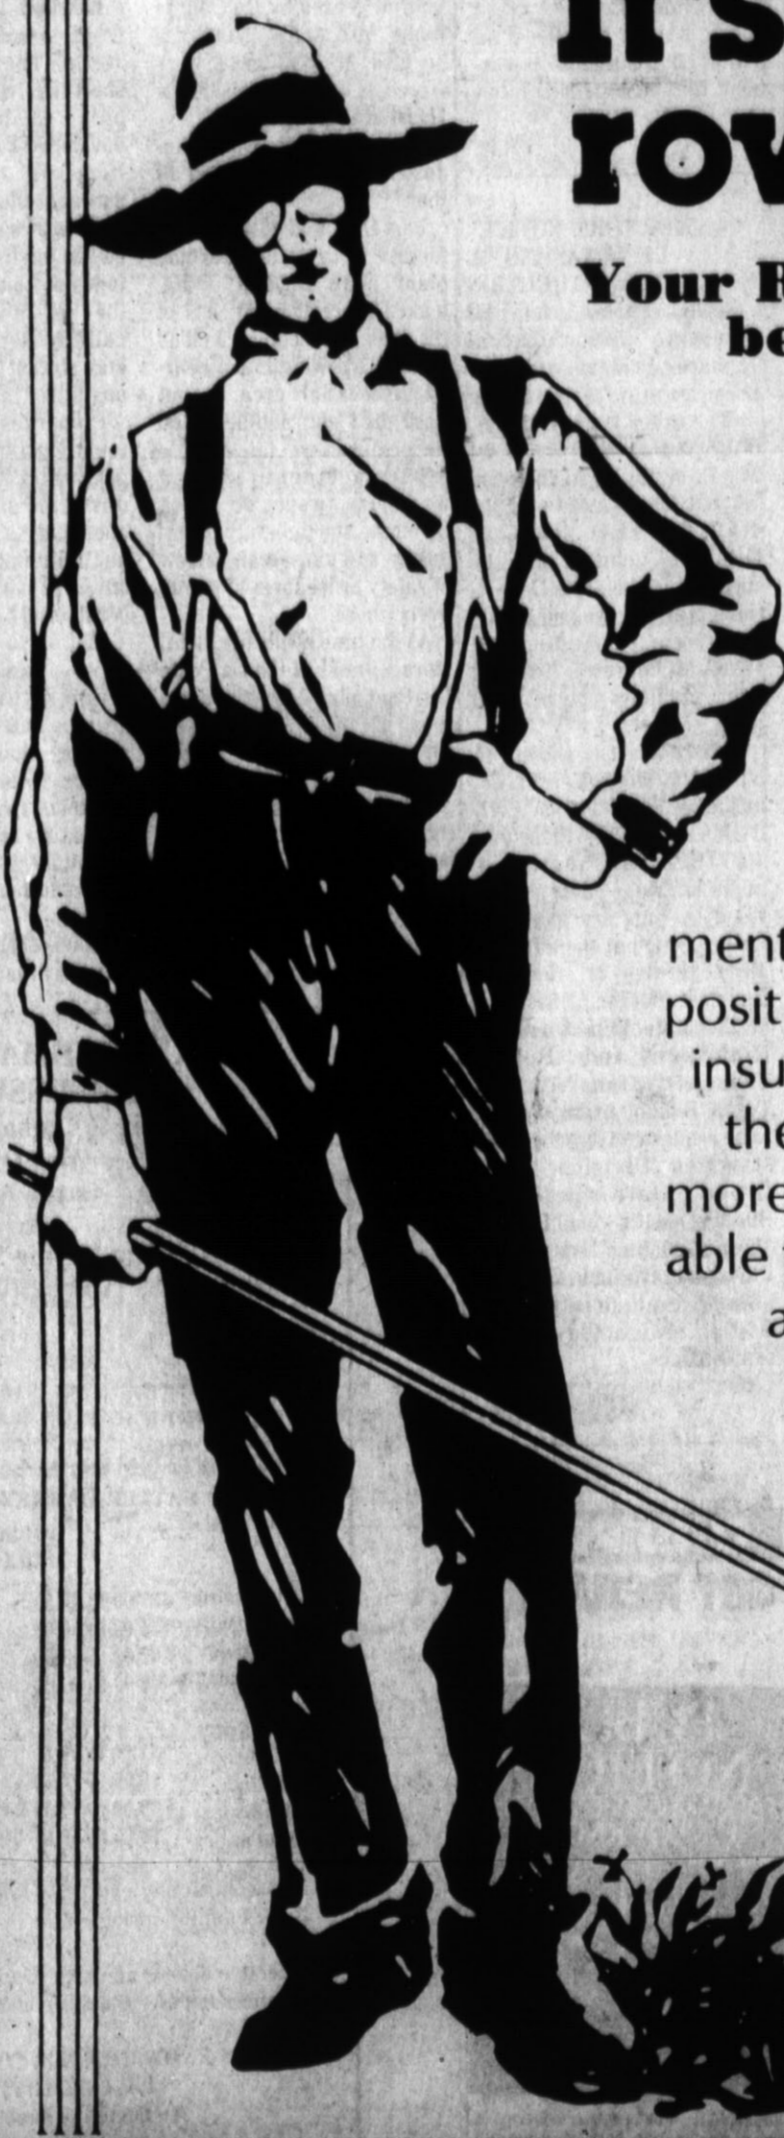

Bippus Home Extension Club met in the home of Julian Perrin Friday evening for a combination community meeting and extension club meeting.

After a meal of salads, sandwiches, cakes and cookies, many of those attending played 42 and other games while the six extension club members presented a regular meeting for February. During the business meeting, two projects were selected: making lap robes for Kings Manor and Westgate and planning a friendship program.

The Appreciation Luncheon, a county-wide extension club activity, was discussed and food and work plans were made for it. The revealing of secret pals for the past year took place at the end of the meeting.

Those attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Jim B. Bradley, Jerry Homfeld, G.V. Hall, Dan Hall, Junior Clark, Jack Weaver, Ernie Baird, Carl Perin, Charles Higgins, Julian Perrin and Mrs. Anna Kovac.
