

Labor camp sidesteps possible state regulation

The owner of the Hereford Labor Camp said Saturday a new state law on such facilities doesn't concern him because he is in the process of selling the houses in the camp to individuals.

"I have 150 days before I need to get a license, and by that time I won't own a single inch of the property, except for maybe one or two houses," said Domingo Pesina, owner of the camp.

"Then it will be up to the individuals to improve the property."

The Hereford Labor Camp has rows of outdoor toilets, which recently passed the Texas Legislature and went to the desk of Gov. Preston Smith for his signature.

Apparently, a sub-standard housing could continue to legally exist if the houses are owned individually by the inhabitant instead of rented or provided free to migrants. The Labor Camp is outside the city limits and is therefore exempt from any city ordinances.

Even if it were in the city, the city of Hereford has no building code. It does require a house to have plumbing.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Lauro Cruz of Houston, gives the state department of health the right to license, supervise and regulate labor camps and penalize owners of camps for violations of guidelines.

With the governor's signature, the proposal would become law next month, although operators of existing camps would be allowed a 150-day grace period in which to obtain a license.

A fee of up to $50 would be charged for the license. That would be charged if the camp contained family type housing (both sexes) of 31 or more dwelling units. If the camp had two to 10 dwelling units, the fee would be $20 and if from 11 to 30 units, $35.

The Hereford labor camp contains 34 dwelling units and would be classified under the maximum licensing group.

Dormitory type housing would be assessed a $15 fee if it accommodated 24 beds or less and $20 if 25 beds or more.

A representative of the state health department would inspect the camp to determine if it met "reasonable, minimum standards of construction, sanitation, equipment and operation." Any license granted a labor camp meeting the specifications would be valid for one year and would be nontransferable.

Pesina said he has already sold about 10 of the units and the land they are on. Most of the buyers, he said, will be permanent residents and not the seasonal workers that are here for only a short time each year.

The land and buildings are being sold according to the condition of the dwellings and the size of the lots. The better units are being sold for about $1,000 and others for as little as $500, he said.

"We are working on some of them and it is beginning to look a lot better than it did," Pesina said, "but the ones we sell will be the responsibility of the owners."

If Pesina sells all of the units between now and the end of the 150-day grace period, the property cannot be considered a "labor camp," and will not be affected by the regulations of the bill.

Pesina bought the labor camp in September of last year for $5,000 from a group of individuals.

The bill provides that the health department govern construction of camps; sanitary conditions; water supply; toilets; sewage disposal, refuse and garbage storage, collection and disposal, light, air; safety; protection from fire hazards; equipment; maintenance; operation of the camp, "and such other matters as may be determined to be appropriate or necessary for the protection of the health and safety of occupants."

Gates, flashers due for crossing

BY CHARLES RICHARDS
News Editor

County and city officials have taken steps to see that the Progressive Road rail crossing is made safer.

They met with K. C. May of Amarillo, superintendent of Santa Fe operations in this region, for almost two hours in the county courthouse Wednesday afternoon and agreed to put up 25 per cent of the cost each toward the estimated $37,000 expense in putting up flashing lights and gates at the crossing.

May said he has no authority to commit Santa Fe to accept those terms of a 50-50 split between local and railroad officials, but would take them back to his superiors. He promised to give local officials the answer of Santa Fe as soon as the determination is made.

"Surely I'll know something in two weeks," May said. "This is outside the budget, however, and they'll have to get the money from somewhere."

In the interim, the county and city commissioners made immediate plans to put a stop sign on each side of the crossing, which has been protected heretofore only by the traditional cross-ars.

Officers will patrol the crossing heavily the first week or so and issue tickets to make sure a full stop is observed before going across the tracks on Progressive Road.

A woman suffered a broken neck and a man died in two vehicle-train collisions at the crossing this spring.

At the urging of Bob Josserand of Farr Better Feeds, a business that uses the crossing frequently, May assured he would make sure that idle railroad cars are parked considerably farther back from the crossing than has been the custom. Josserand said the railroad cars have been left so close to the crossing that it kept motorists from seeing an oncoming train.

May opened the meeting by suggesting the city and county join in paying 90 per cent and Santa Fe pay 10 per cent of the cost of the lights and gates.

"That looks lopsided to you, 90-10, because you're the county and city, but it's not, because forever more Santa Fe bears the cost of maintenance and upkeep. I imagine it'll cost a minimum of $1,000 a year for that," May said.

"This is where Santa Fe feels we should not have to pay any more, as we have in the past. Transportation costs keep going up."

The cost for putting up flashers and gates are so high because of the intricate relays and cutoffs necessary on each side of the four tracks at Progressive Road, May said.

Several of the city and county commissioners expressed doubt that it is their role to be putting up even as much as 50 per cent of the cost.

May said Santa Fe has gone into arrangements with the City of Amarillo in the past for a 50-50 cost deal, "but I don't know if the railroad will still do that or not," he said.

"I don't see where it is our responsibility to even come up with even half of it. But I realize everyone is in a bind," said City Commissioner H. A. Cavness. "We can control this thing by ordinance, too, such as cutting the speed limit down so low. It would cost you more in the long run than $27,000. This sounds kind of tacky, but we are here to talk facts and not to get along."

May said he recalled seeing a 5 mph figure somewhere and told local officials he doubted they would be able to live with that because motorists would get pretty angry at a mile-long train taking 20 minutes to clear a crossing.

"We've never done this before and I still think it is the responsibility of Santa Fe. But I hate to argue about it, because we're talking about lives being lost. I suggest 25 city, 25 county and 50 Santa Fe to put up flasher lights and gates, and that we put up stop signs in the meantime."

The city is providing the stop signs, which are new, reflectorized to show up clearly at night. The county will put them up, since Progressive Road is under the county's jurisdiction. The east city limit runs along the west edge of Progressive Road at the crossing.

Local officials agreed to leave the speed limit at 70 miles per hour at the crossing, with the train slowing to 45 mph by the time it gets to the Bull Barn crossing, and down to 30 mph by the Lawton Street crossing.

The train will be able to increase its speed again after the Lee Street crossing, the last major crossing in town.

City and county officials gave May a firm "no" on his suggestion that local governing groups take on part of the costs of maintenance.

The 50-50 suggestion from the city and county "will make a big difference at this time. It will show something is being done," he said.

Bond forfeited Thursday on Joe Pat Anders

Dist. Judge Archie McDonald Thursday ordered the forfeiture of $5,000 bond for Joe Pat Anders, a 39-year-old Anton man who has been linked with the theft of up to $1 million in chemicals over the Panhandle the past several years.

Anders' trial was called for Thursday morning, but he did not appear. The judge asked for immediate preparation of the necessary papers to default the bond.

Anders was convicted at Vega last Oct. 6 for the burglary of 0 cases of treflan from around Wildorado in August and September of 1969. He appealed his 10-year prison sentence, but an appeals court upheld the sentence last month.

Graveside funeral services for Mark Wim Hagar, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael W. Hagar of Amarillo, were conducted Wednesday afternoon at West Park Cemetery by the Rev. Don Larkin, pastor of Avenue Baptist Church. Burial was directed by Gilliland Funeral Home.

The baby's death occurred in an Amarillo hospital. The parents are former residents of Hereford.

Most 'finished' cases are probation

Major cases dot '71 court docket

Seventeen cases have been disposed of in district court this year—three by dismissal and 10 by probation.

A jury acquitted one man, and returned an insane ruling against another man. That left only two of the 17 that actually were sent to prison, and one of those was on revocation of an earlier probation sentence.

Neal Duncan, who was arrested for the Graduation Day burglary of Spanglers Diamonds, Ltd., in Sugarland Mall last year, pleaded guilty in district court March 5 and after waiving trial by jury was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. The sentence was set aside for a five-year probationary period.

Arrested with Duncan was another senior who was to have graduated the day of the burglary. Prehn Nanninga pleaded guilty last October and got an eight-year prison sentence, probated for eight years.

Concluded late last year also, but not previously reported, was the marijuana possession charge against Dennis Latham, 21. Dist. Judge Archie McDonald dismissed the case last Nov. 25 on the recommendation of then-Dist. Atty. Jerry Tucker.

Chief of Police Don Brush, who wanted Latham to go to trial, was asking Tucker Oct. 21 not to allow Latham to plead guilty in exchange for a probated sentence, when Latham discovered the identity of an informer whose information led to the charges. Latham then said he planned to plead innocent.

He went before the grand jury again on Nov. 20, and five days later the case was dismissed.

Other cases disposed of in district court this year are:

April 23—Arthur G. Zuniga, theft over $50, pleaded guilty; jury convicted him, set sentence at two years, probated.

April 22—James A. O'Laughlin, theft by bailee; jury ruled him insane and recommended he be committed for treatment.

April 22—Israel Jacobo de la Cerda, DWI, 2nd offense, pleaded guilty; judge gave him two years in pen, probated.

April 22—Levi Ross Mullin, DWI subsequent offense, pleaded guilty; jury convicted him, set sentence at three years, probated.

April 22—Robert Randolph Reid, possession of marijuana, pleaded guilty; jury convicted him, set sentence at two years, probated.

April 21—Jimmy Don Dawson, DWI 2nd offense, pleaded innocent; jury acquitted him.

March 9—Billy Charles Allshie, burglary, pleaded guilty; judge set sentence at four years, probated.

March 9—Cornelio Martinez, DWI subsequent offense, pleaded guilty; judge set sentence at two years, probated.

March 5—Gerald Sadler, theft over $50, pleaded guilty; judge set sentence at four years, probated.

March 5—Danny Allen, possession of narcotic drug; dismissed.

March 4—Celia G. Lopez, assault with intent to murder, with malice, pleaded guilty; judge set sentence at five years, probated.

Feb. 17—James Teas, theft over $50; dismissed.

Feb. 16—Domingo Cortinez, embezzlement; dismissed.

Feb. 10—Callelano Villarreal, given two years probation May 11, 1970 on burglary conviction; revoked Feb 10 because of assault on another man Jan. 17, 1971.

Jan. 13—Santiago J. Gonzales, DWI subsequent offense, pleaded guilty; judge set sentence at two years, probated.

Jan. 8—James Terry, defrauding with worthless check, pleaded guilty; judge set sentence at six years in the penitentiary.

Hosts needed for exchange students

Three dozen foreign exchange students will be in Hereford over the July 4th weekend.

They'll spend three nights here, and local people are trying to line up families that will host the students in their homes.

They will arrive by chartered bus Friday afternoon, July 2, at the high school cafeteria, with two chaperones. Group activities have been outlined for Friday and Saturday nights, with the hosting family entertaining their student on Sunday. They will leave on Monday, July 5.

A swimming party at Green Acres pool has been arranged for Friday night. The students will picnic in Palo Duro Canyon Saturday noon and will see the "Texas" production Saturday night, with the theater group letting them in free. Sunday will be family day.

Several tours have been provided, however, such as to Holly Sugar plant, the Conkwright's registered Hereford ranch, and other similar places.

Anyone interested in hosting one or more students should call Jack Nunley at 364-3739 and specify a preference of a boy or girl student, and whether they want one or two.

The names of hosts will be taken then, and assignments made later. Pamphlets will be given ahead of time to those hosting the students.

Hereford's two foreign exchange students, Gaby Lottner of Germany and Sam Aydin of Turkey, will meet with the students but will not accompany them. They will leave for their return trip to their home countries on another bus, which probably leave from Amarillo late this year.

Migrants help themselves through summer program

BY MARSHALL DAY
Staff Writer

Economically and educationally deprived migrant children, commonly looked upon as outcasts of society, are being given the opportunity to help themselves through a summer program provided especially for them through the Hereford school system.

The program, in its third year here, is an extension of the migrant program carried out through the regular school year. Its principle is based on helping the migrant children develop educationally through the non-graded approach.

"When we think of the disadvantaged," said assistant superintendent Bob Holman, "we think only of the Mexican-American here in Hereford. We don't think of the people in the Appalachian Mountains. They are probably the most deprived and disadvantaged people in the country."

"We don't think of the Puerto Ricans in New York City, the Irish immigrants or the Cubans in Cuba. Certainly some of the blacks, but we think mostly of the Mexican-American farm workers here."

The summer migrant school will start Monday with an estimated 700 students enrolled for the eight-week school. The children enrolled will be from kindergarten through 12 years of age and they will be offered a non-graded instructional program based on students of the same age group learning in the same level.

The teaching will be instructional, completely void of the traditional text-book approaches. Students will "learn by doing" through methods being introduced in the summer school.

New materials will be used in the summer school to help the migrant children develop in reading, writing, speaking, and listening. Field trips with purely educational aims will be taken throughout the 40-day school.

term. "The purpose behind the total reading program is that the migrant child is educationally deprived as a result of his moving around. Also, because if the child comes from some ethnic group other than Anglo, he is probably going to be language deprived too," Holman said.

A migrant is considered a child who has moved within the past five years and whose family is associated with agriculture. Under the regular migrant program a child whose parents have moved within the past year is considered a migrant.

The new summer school also allows any child, regardless of whether he attended a traditional school, to attend. If a child has attended another school in Hereford and still qualifies as a migrant, he can attend the migrant summer school.

Earphones, tapes, records and other more modern approaches to non-graded teaching will be applied in the summer school.

"This whole idea of teaching is based on the philosophy that before we learned to speak, we learned to hear. After we learned to speak we learned to read and after that we learned to write," Holman said. "These are the four steps we go through in learning and the things that are going on around them. They are more interested in working so they can eat and put clothes on their backs.

"Another reason is because they are language deprived. This could be a feed back from the economically deprived. They have to work in order to eat, and in working they do not have time to fully develop their language.

"And because these people are economically and educationally deprived, socially we keep them deprived because we cannot communicate with them. It is just a vicious circle."

more to add to the list. The list is gone over each day in class for a short time, and before the day of the trip, as many as 300 words may be on the list.

"This is creating something in the child," Holman said. "Even though many people would not realize it, this little field trip may have improved a child's vocabulary by as many as 200 words.

"We have the obligation to teach him many words, and how to think with them. It all broadens their world."

The staff of the summer migrant school consists of 30 professional teachers and some 30 bilingual instructional aides. Also, special teachers for the mentally retarded, the hard of hearing, those that have difficulty in speech, and counselors.

"All of this is for helping the disadvantaged children, and there can be a number of reasons a child can be called disadvantaged," Holman said.

"One might be because he is deprived economically. This means it is just a struggle just to maintain a living and in doing this, they are just not up to par with education and the things that are going on around them.

"Another reason is because they are language deprived. This could be a feed back from the economically deprived. They have to work in order to eat, and in working they do not have time to fully develop their language.

"And because these people are economically and educationally deprived, socially we keep them deprived because we cannot communicate with them. It is just a vicious circle."

Holman said the average child does about 50 per cent of his learning between the ages of 0 and 4 years. Then, between the ages of 5 and 8 another 35 per cent is learned.

This is not necessarily true of the Mexican-American, he said, because their environment has kept them from learning. This new concept in teaching them through the migrant summer school will be the first step toward developing them to where they should be, he said.

Through the first two years of the migrant summer school, it has been difficult to tell if the program is actually working. Holman said the migrants move quite often and the effects of the summer school cannot be followed. But, he said, the ones that do stay here have shown a definite change to a positive attitude toward the school and learning.

The summer program is in its second year under the directorship of Naomi Hopson. The staff of the local school is chosen from volunteers who apply for the summer posts, along with several of the "seasoned" veterans who have done work with the migrant school.

"This also trains the rest of the staff who have not worked with the non-graded system," Mrs. Hopson said. "We usually carry over one or two teachers per age level."

The school board and school officials are working in the direction of transforming the entire system into a non-graded approach to teaching and the teachers who are accepted for the migrant summer school get their first taste of the system. This, Holman said, is helping prepare the teachers and at the same time help the children.

Extension of sugar program a 'must'

A controversial three-year extension of the Sugar Act that cleared the House Agriculture Committee Thursday could "very well throw things in a turmoil" if it fails to become law, Holly's agriculture manager Bob Ginn said Friday.

"If it is not passed, the government would no longer have control on sales quota and there would be no tax money to run the program as they are now doing," Ginn said.

The bill passed the House Agriculture Committee by a 30-3 vote and put a damper on efforts by congressmen who had hoped to put a ceiling on government subsidies to big growers.

The measure provides a 300,000-ton increase in sugar marketing quotas beginning next year for the Louisiana-Florida cane producing area, and permits future quota increase of 100,000 tons a piece for that area and the sugar beet producing region.

Ginn said the passage of the bill by the Agriculture Committee was a good indication that it will have "smooth going" up to getting the president's signature.

The bill is actually an extension of the Sugar Act that expires at the end of this year. If by some chance the bill fails, this year's crop will not be affected, Ginn said.

"The Sugar Act deals mainly with the supply of sugar at reasonable prices to the growers, processors and importers," Ginn said. "And this act has helped us all along. If it fails to make it we could face some big problems."

House Agriculture Committee chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex., said the House Rules Committee will consider the measure Wednesday and the House leadership plans to bring the bill to the floor the following day.

Poage said he would ask the Rules Committee to invoke a closed rule procedure which would ban amendments on the House floor.

Hundreds attend Triticale showing

Several hundred persons, many from other states, flocked to the Andrew Kershen farm west of town Thursday for a national showing of the latest advances in the development of the new grain and forage crop, triticale.

Dr. B. Charles Jenkins, developer of the modern version of triticale, conducted tours of the test plot. He was assisted by Ron Kershen, area manager of FasGro, Inc.

Approximately 100 persons were on hand at 10 a.m. for the opening tour during which FasGro varieties 131, 203, 204, 208 and 385 were featured in comparisons with other triticale varieties. The same varieties were compared with adapted varieties of wheat, rye and barley.

The plot, planted in 10 and 20-foot rows of crosses and other varieties, was planted in October of last year.

"The entire plot survived sub-zero weather of mid-January. The fence was taken down and the plot had from one to cattle from the half-section," said Kershen. "They mowed it down as if it was sugar coated and were removed after one week.

"The plot had from one to three inches of re-growth when zero temperatures hit early in February, which caused many spring types to winter-kill," he said. "And this is exactly what we wanted so we could tell which spring types have the most winter-hardness." Kershen's wife Marie, also assisted with the tours, registering people and serving refreshments that included triticale bread.

The most effective cultural practices for growing triticale were illustrated in comparison plots on date-of-planting, fertilization and irrigation.

BY SUE COLEMAN

A NOTE FROM PHI Delta (Theta fraternity at West Texas State University) says three Hereford students are new members of that chapter. One of them, John Stagner was pledge class president.

He is the son of the Earl Stagners, 210 Ave. J. The other new members are Steve Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Jones Jr., Route 4 and Jerry Douglas Tyler, son of the N. E. Tylers of 108 Northwest.

PRETTY OFTEN, in spite of what people say about the younger members of this affluent society, you come across some who are plumb eager to work for what they get. Three of them—pretty ones—visited us Friday.

They are Hereford High School cheerleaders and they were talking about things they plan to do this summer to earn money. They have plans for spending it, too, going to camp at Texas Tech and buying their costumes and supplies next fall.

Sally Bayne, Joni Charest and Becky Dziuk were spokesmen for the group, which also comprises Kerry Hall, Nelda Norton and Caye Clearman. Rojean Block, who holds the title of Scat this year, will work with them on the summer chores.

FIRST, THEY plan to further the recent cleanup campaign in the city by painting trash cans. They will go door to door in this project, and will paint an ordinary size can for $2.

Later in the summer they will hold rummage sales and the girls also offer to hire out for various odd jobs. This isn't one of those offers to take just any job for a fee; right is reserved to turn down offers, but anyone with chores that might be performed by half-a-dozen willing young workers might phone a cheerleader and talk the matter over.

That camp at Tech will be from June 26 to July 1—not long off—and the girls are in earnest about making some money right now.

Mrs. Don Clark is the cheerleaders' sponsor this year.

ANOTHER observation on our affluent times: You hardly ever encounter people who know what you're talking about when you mention picking and eating wild greens, like lamsquarter. Oldtime West Texans regarded that as a delicacy on the spring menu.

Lots of it still grows here, specifically in my flower beds, but it is usually ignored now. So are dandelion greens, which lay yard also provides in quantity if anybody wants some.

When as a child I used to read about eating dandelion greens I'd never seen the plant; for many years afterward I saw only the variety with the sawtooth leaves and wondered how those could be good for greens.

ONLY IN RECENT years I've seen broad-leaved dandelion that look like they would taste like spinach, but still haven't tried cooking them.

All this talk about greens came up when Gladys Miller wondered why more people don't grow poke salad in a corner of the yard, and get a lot of good eating from that "weed". That's another wild green unfamiliar to me; it was considered an East Texas plant when I was growing up.

It's leaves can be cut for greens from early spring until late July, Gladys says, then the plant makes a large bush with attractive berries (not edible, I believe). She blanches it with boiling water and then cooks it like spinach, and says it's better.

Connally ably explained the advantages of Revenue Sharing in his testimony before the committee. As our former state governor, he knows as well as anyone the financial bind which state and local governments find themselves in today.

Revenue Sharing, the concept of which I am supporting in the Senate, is a responsible effort to share federal funds with the state and local governments. The Administration has recommended legislation which would provide some $5 billion to be shared with state and local governments. Almost half of these funds would be passed on to local governments. These funds would better enable the state and local governments to carry on their growing responsibilities to their citizens for increased public services.

We have come to the point when local property taxes and state sales taxes are simply insufficient to enable the state and local governments to meet their public services demands.

The federal government has attempted over the past several years to assist state and local governments in meeting their public service responsibilities by providing financial assistance pretty much on a case by case basis. The federal government has considered specific applications for assistance and attempted to assist those which appear most worthy. The process has involved a great deal of time and in some cases those at the federal level have seen a need to greatly influence a local or state program before funding can be obtained. In the process, funds which could have gone toward increased public service have gone instead to pay bureaucrats.

Revenue Sharing is a new concept designed to solve these problems. It would enable state and local governments to operate more effectively and, possibly most important, it would allow them to operate free of federal control. I believe that government operates best when it is as close to the people it serves as possible; where it can best know the needs of the people and be most responsive to their wishes.

This is the concept of Revenue Sharing.

Under Revenue Sharing a portion of the federal income tax base would be earmarked for general aid to state and local governments. These funds would come from expansion in federal receipts as the nation's economy grows. Contrary to many inaccurate reports, the program would not require a tax increase nor would it result in a reduction of existing government programs.

The states, cities and counties receiving the shared funds will make the decisions as to which purposes the funds should be directed. The federal government would not second-guess local determination on local priorities.

It has been suggested that our welfare programs, now run by the states, be federalized in order to free state money for other programs. This action has been suggested as a substitute for Revenue Sharing. I think such action would make a very poor substitute. It would take control away from state governments and encourage the trend toward big government. This trend needs not to be encouraged but instead to be reversed. A federalized welfare program also would provide far less financial assistance to the state and local governments.

I think Secretary Connally summed up the situation very well when he told the committee, "The present system of federal aid to states and localities clearly is not meeting our needs; it is not likely to do so in the future in its present form."

"Revenue Sharing is a new approach that will enable government to respond more effectively to the needs of the people."

Games no longer

The slowdown of the American economy has made a lot of changes, and one of the chief changes is that it has made people with a job a whole lot prouder of it and those without a job are impressed by the value of one as they look without landing one.

This summer is hard on thousands of youngsters, in particular, who are out hunting jobs at a time when there are few jobs to be had.

It used to be that summer time in the Perryton area meant wheat harvest jobs for students willing to work. Combine work, truck driving, plowing, all had to be done. This work still has to be done, but the size of this year's harvest has farmers looking at their expense sheet and doing as much of the work as they can themselves.

Younger kids have an especially hard time. Sacking groceries is a job that has been ruled out in supermarkets by federal edict because a sacker's job is no longer for the young.

Most of the students out looking for a job come under the heading of unskilled labor. As such, they are more of a liability than an asset to an employer who doesn't have the time or the facilities to train green employees who will be going back to school about the time they are able to earn their pay.

Federal regulations which are becoming more strict regarding minimum wage, minimum wage and the like also rule out summer jobs for a great many youngsters.

Still, young people need to have an opportunity to work. If they wait until they are 18, or 22 and a college graduate before they get their first job, they face a rocky period of adjustment in learning how to earn a dollar. All employees have this adjustment to make. They have to learn that the boss may not always be right, but he is still always the boss. It helps a person to learn this early and it helps a person to become a better employee.

On college campuses across the land, graduates are finding out that things have changed. Only three years ago, graduating classes had employers standing in line to interview them and they could pick from a dozen or more fine jobs. Now the students are out calling on employers and the supply of jobs has dried up.

Free enterprise hires people on the basis of what they can do to help the company make a profit. If the employee cannot contribute toward this end — a profit — then in a free enterprise system the employee is not needed.

In a managed, totalitarian society, the people rely on the state as the employer of last resort. In some countries like Russia everybody works for the government and thus employment and unemployment isn't such a problem. Of course, they don't live as well as Americans, either.

What this country needs right now is a mini-boom which will create a whole lot more jobs for all ages. Americans need to work — The Perryton Herald

The interest-rate fears

Interest rates are moving somewhat higher, and a number of economic analysts are worried. The present situation offers ample cause for concern, all right, but much of the current fear is misdirected.

The analysts appear to think that rising rates will discourage potential borrowers, including businessmen, home buyers and other consumers. If large numbers of individuals and corporations put off or cancel their borrowing plans, the reasoning runs, the economic recovery could be aborted.

One fact that this analysis overlooks is that the Federal Reserve System, since the first of the year, has been expanding the money supply at an abnormal rapid rate. In a story in this newspaper the other day, Charles N. Stabler Jr. noted that the supply has been growing this year at an annual rate of 9 percent, although the Fed said its target was 6 per cent.

The rise in rates thus does not reflect any tight-money tactics of the Federal Reserve. What it does reflect is a strong demand for funds. It may also reflect, in part, reviving doubts that the Fed really is determined to bring inflation under firm control.

Those doubts obviously would be strengthened if the Federal Reserve, in an effort to stem the rise in interest rates, began to flood the banks with funds at even more rapid rates. If lenders see nothing but more and more inflation in the future, they will demand higher rates to try to offset the declining value of the dollar.

In view of that very real possibility, it's a little ironic that the economic analysts now seem most concerned about the housing industry. Higher rates could indeed slow the growth of home building, but accelerating inflation would mean rapidly reverse that growth.

Accelerating inflation would mean not only higher mortgage interest rates, but still higher construction wages, land prices and materials costs. This isn't theory: it's exactly what happened to the industry in the late 1960s.

Excessive attention to the precise levels of interest rates also had something to do with getting the economy into such sad shape in those years. Interest rates were rising and the Federal Reserve kept pumping out more and more money to bring them down, only to drive them higher. It would be sad indeed if a lesson so lately learned were so easily forgotten.

The recovery thus far has been disappointingly slow, and that helps to explain why the analysts fear that even a modest interest rate rise may make the trend turn downward again. But a major reason for the slowness is that the monetary managers, until recently at any rate, had appeared to recognize the dangers of overstimulation. During the 1960s the wild swings in federal financial policies, supposedly aimed at economic stability, actually were acutely destabilizing.

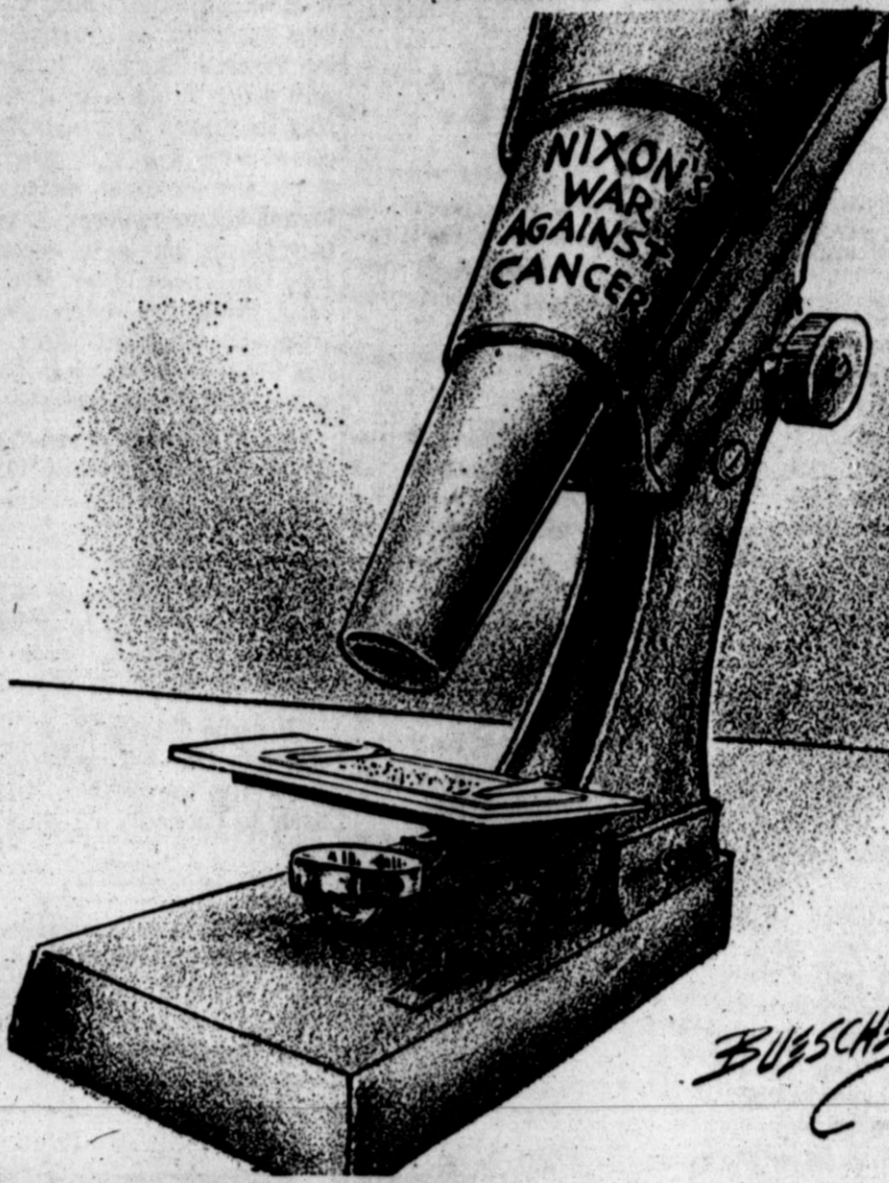

Worries of the analysts are naturally shared by federal politicians, with another election less than a year and a half away. All the same, and for reasons that are both sound economics and good policies, the government should not let the interest-rate rise spur ill-considered action.

A more rapid rise in the money supply, coupled with the fast growth in federal deficit spending, quite probably would spur the economy into a great deal more activity later this year. By the end of the year or early in 1972, however, inflation would be roaring away once again.

Then the Federal Reserve could be expected to clamp down on money supply expansion once more. This would set up the strong possibility that the nation would be sinking into a new economic slump just as the voters go to the polls in November 1972.

What's needed right now is to finish the job of stabilizing the economy, so that it can continue solid, sustainable growth. It's understandable that the analysts and politicians are fearful of apparently contrary winds, but if they overreact to those fears they could cause a storm that would be much, much worse. — The Wall Street Journal

Federal agencies begin pushing man-made lakes

WASHINGTON — Man-made lakes are being constructed in many parts of the world, for a long list of reasons, as nature's supply of rainfall is harnessed and put to work for public and private betterment. Water storage has now developed into a complex science.

It used to be that a farmer dammed a creek to create a pond so his cattle could drink even in dry spells, or some governmental body built a dam to harness flood waters or create a reservoir for drinking water. These are still the goals of many man-made lakes but the world-wide trend now is to multi-purpose projects.

Lake-building on a large scale can become very complicated, involving a half-dozen types of engineers, plus geologists, hydrologists, conservationists, recreation planners, biologists, ecologists, and a variety of other specialists. In this age of ecology, a lot more questions need to be answered before a major project is undertaken.

Some of the scientific complications were explored in depth in May at an International Symposium on Man-Made Lakes, held at Knoxville, Tenn. Scientists from many corners of the globe attended to swap information of the problems and environmental effects of man-made lakes. The site was deliberately chosen to allow the visitors to see some of the Tennessee Valley Authority projects.

Case Histories Cited
A number of the Federal government are involved in promoting man-made lakes, including the Soil Conservation Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The May issue of "Soil Conservation," official magazine of S. C. S. was devoted largely to case histories, telling how land owners and communities created artificial lakes and how the water changed the lives of many people.

Culpeper, Va., an hour's ride from Washington, decided 15 years ago to invest in a lake. At the time, its population was 5,900. Industry was lacking, because of a water shortage, and yet floods of farmlands were a problem. The Flood Prevention Act of 1954 provided an opportunity which the town council seized.

Construction began in 1958 and was completed the following year, and community development took off. Eight industries located in Culpeper, with an investment of $22 million, gross sales of $30 million annually, and jobs for 1,245 people. Other plants expanded and by 1970 county population had risen one-sixth.

The original plan provided flood protection through a series of dams only for agricultural land. A need to protect high-value commercial land remained, so the plans were amended and two more dams were designed with construction scheduled this year. According to the state conservation engineer of S. C. S., Culpeper is "now in a position to choose the industries it wants."

Texas Ranch Has 15 Ponds
Another example reported by "Soil Conservation" is a Texas cattle ranch which includes 15 ponds on 4,000 acres of pasture land. It seems that cows are lazy and will overgraze the grass around ponds but hardly touch the grass on the other side of the pasture. The amount of beef a rancher gets per acre depends a lot on his ponds.

Another cattleman, in Idaho, was having trouble making a living from a herd of 80 cows. He became a trout farmer on the side, and now earns more income from raising fish on three acres than he does from his cattle. Four ponds stocked with rainbow trout enabled the profitable sideline to develop. Of course, the water from the fish ponds is used also for irrigation to further the beef business.

In Utah, farm ponds have become popular with fishermen, because of overcrowding of anglers on streams provided by nature. Farmers have built more than 400 fish ponds in the Uintah Basin, and attract more than 5,000 visitors each year. One farmer has 18 ponds stocked with rainbow trout.

In Wasco County, Oregon, five farmers tired of seeing their pasture dry up each summer. They formed a cooperative which succeeded in creating a 235-acre lake, for irrigation and recreation. There were three hay crops as a result, and the third cutting alone paid the entire year's bill for water. Economic returns from the lake are estimated at $250,000 from recreation and $100,000 from increased farm production.

The moral seems to be that there is money in water if you dam it.

Talk of Texas

By JACK MAGUIRE

ADD HISTORY'S MYSTERIES — Why do sculptors and artists often depict historical figures in statues and paintings that are anything but life-like?

R. Henderson Shuffler, director of the Institute of Texas Cultures, at San Antonio, poses the question. Shuffler points out that Stephen F. Austin, for example, describes his father as "a short, fat man." Yet most portraits and statues of Moses Austin show him to be a tall, handsome figure.

George C. Childress, author of the Texas Declaration of Independence, is another example of how artists take liberties with history. Shuffler cites the Childress statue at Washington-on-the-Brazos which depicts a tall man in his 60's with long, straight hair and big feet. Actually Childress was only 33 when he wrote the Constitution, was short and plump, had very round cheeks and blonde curly hair.

"No wonder short, fat men seem to have a chip on their shoulders," Shuffler writes in "Riding Line," publication of the Texas Historical Association. "They not only catch hell from the big boys when they are alive, but they will be abused by the statue makers when they die."

CIVIC PRIDE — Round Top, Fayette County, has an unusual citizens' organization called the Do-Your-Duty Club. Members keep the streets around the town square clean, the town hall painted and do anything else needed to keep their community presentable.

THE CHANGING TIMES — Pasadena, ten miles from Houston in Harris County, today is the center of one of the fastest-growing industrial complexes in the U. S. It used to be famous for producing strawberries.

In the early 1900's, the rich land surrounding Pasadena was devoted almost entirely to strawberry farming. More than 1,000 acres were devoted to raising the luscious fruit, and Pasadena strawberries were a gustatory delight throughout the country.

Today industrial plants, businesses and real estate developments cover the once fertile fields and strawberries are produced in only a few small gardens. Most of these are consumed by the growers.

HOME OF THE STARS — More entertainment personalities originated in San Antonio than in any other Texas city.

Carol Burnett, Joan Crawford, Ann Harding and Sissy Parker are among the dozen big name stars who went to fame from the Alamo City. So did singer Ginny Simms and the late master of movie make-up, Perc Westmoreland.

Dallas sent Linda Darnell, Constance Moore and Dorothy Malone to star billing. El Paso is home for Debbie Reynolds, as it was for Tom Mix and Guy Kibbee.

ONE OF A KIND — Texas' only adobe courthouse is at Sierra Blanca, Hudspeth County.

The one-story structure, built of adobe brick with stucco interior, is one of the largest extant examples of this kind of construction, according to Weldon Hart of Austin, authority on Texas County capitals.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Anthony Harrigan

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT
Southern States Industrial Council

American business is under attack. If the attack succeeds, the business system which has produced this country's prosperity will be destroyed or seriously impaired. Unfortunately, there is no sign of a major counter-attack by free enterprise forces.

A hate-business climate is developing rapidly. Ralph Nader's continuing campaign against business has contributed substantially to this climate. The Nader reports have been published in pocketbook form and are available on book racks around the country. Mr. Nader also lectures widely and appears frequently on TV. His charges and complaints go virtually unanswered. Business needs to organize truth squads to deal with the Nader types. But business is hesitant to get into the fray. Many businessmen seek a "low profile" and shun controversy. This is very unfortunate, for business has a powerful case. The case should be presented as forcefully as possible.

The public, for example, hears a great deal about industrial pollution but almost nothing about the millions of dollars industry is spending for pollution abatement. There are endless stories about alleged technological failures — inadequate or costly auto bumpers, for instance. But few stories point out the great successes of American technology. Almost every airline in the world uses American aircraft. Why? Because they are safe, dependable and excellent overall. Highly political church groups want General Motors, Gulf and other U. S. corporations to wind up their operations in countries that these groups don't like. Little, if anything, is said about the constructive role of American corporations in creating jobs and introducing industrial know-how in lands that need opportunities and technical information.

In short, American business is having a rough time with its public relations. Moreover, the critics of business don't seem greatly interested in specific improvements of a product of service. They seem much more interested in running down business in general.

In mid-May there was a conference in Washington, D. C. on "corporate responsibility" that was indicative of the current climate of opinion. One part of the conference was entitled "Launching A Full-Scale Attack On A Corporation." It described strategies to be used in curbing corporate actions. A brochure used to advertise the conference referred to the "socially destructive acts of corporations."

The corporation also is under attack in the campus. For example, this year the John Fitzgerald Kennedy School of Government at Harvard organized a study group on "Corporate Power In A Liberal Democracy." The school's announcement said that "Corporate power is a major public issue once again after two decades of complacent assurance that the reforms of the Progressive and New Deal periods had subjected American industry to effective public control."

That's the way it goes these days. And, of course, corporations are under even more direct attack. In California, branches of the Bank of America have been burned to the ground. New Left students have attacked recruiters of the Dow Chemical Co. Chase Manhattan Bank has been picketed by extremists.

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm discusses potatoes and politicians this week, we believe.

Dear editor:

According to an article I read in a newspaper the other day and am just now getting around to thinking about, the Food and Drug Administration in Washington has come out with a new truth-in-labeling rule.

Under it, if a grocery store advertising Idaho potatoes, for example, those potatoes have to come from Idaho, Louisiana hot sauce has to come from Louisiana, etc. Can't be selling Arkansas potatoes in an Idaho sack or Idaho in an Arkansas sack. This rule was demanded by either the potato or the sack people, I don't know which.

I guess there's some point to this, although it's impossible for me to tell where a potato came from, if the gravity's made right. As for Louisiana hot sauce, it's all what you're used to, I guess, as the people in Chicago say about their mayor.

However, this truth-in-labeling can be carried too far. For example, if you think right hard you probably can think of one or two people acting as Congressmen who are clearly mis-labeled. Is the Food and Drug Administration coming out with a rule against this?

Of course you might argue the Food and Drug Administration is talking only about items that are for sale, but it's entirely possible those Congressmen could meet those terms too. Or take some State Legislators... but I won't get into that. When a man makes his point he ought to stop and leave something for his readers to fill in on their own.

Come to think of it, how about cafes that serve home-cooked meals a mile from any home? And won't Boston-baked beans get mighty cold if they're served in Hereford? Not even a super-sonic plane we can't afford could get them here that fast.

Rules sometimes get pretty complicated. I believe in truth in advertising all right, but if the next step is to require complete truth in Congressmen, for example, or complete truth in people, you've got a mighty unwieldy job on your hands.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Hereford students made their mark in 1970-71

By MARKI McBRIDE
Staff Writer
School is finally out. Some students are happy it is over.

Bride is feted at showers

Informal lingerie and miscellaneous shower parties recently honored the former Miss Karen Edwards, whose marriage to Monty Smith took place June 1 in the home of her parents.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Edwards, 518 Star. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Loy Smith, 206 Kibbe.

Approximately 40 friends called or sent gifts to an afternoon shower hosted by Miss Carole Newton, Amy Ball and Caye Clearman and Joann Hershey. It was held in the Newton home at 126 Mimosa.

Miss Clearman served punch and cookies from a table laid with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of blue flowers.

The honoree wore a navy and white pantsuit and a white carnation corsage trimmed in blue.

Miss Sally Bayne, 514 Star, was hostess with Miss Nelda Norton for an early morning party at which they served fruit, donuts and punch.

An arrangement of fresh roses in a glass bowl centered the table at which ten guests were served.

The couple is at home in Clovis.

while others are sad it ended. Either way, though the activities and accomplishments of the school year, Hereford High School students had their own individual experience in 1970-71.

Mike Wartes, student council president, led the student body. Mike worked with Jerry Don George, principal, and the executive committee of the student council in handling student activities and affairs.

Building Homecoming floats and directing fund raising projects, such as class suppers, were among the responsibilities of the class presidents—senior Donny McDermitt, junior Charles Allison and Sophomore Ricky Locke.

The cheerleaders and mascot Scout, painted signs, led yells during pep assemblies and created school spirit among the student body. The girls holding this honor were seniors Cheryl Cole, Dee Dee Walden, Susan Balden and Corky Vargas and juniors Sally Bayne, and Nelda Norton. Sammie Vinson was Scout.

A special highlight during football season is always Homecoming. This year the Homecoming game was played against Lubbock Coronado. The traditional events of Homecoming were not marred by the Herd's 30-20 defeat. Teri Beth Line reigned as Homecoming Queen. The parade of floats, created by the different classes and organizations of HHS added much color to the celebration.

Two foreign exchange students shared in the activities.

"I liked Hereford High School. It was more fun than the schools in Germany, because of the different activities offered. It was not just studying all of the time. There were always things to break the study monotony," Gaby Lottner, exchange student from Germany, said. She and Sam Aydin, from Turkey, spent the year attending school in Hereford in order to better unite understanding between the countries.

"I liked HHS, I sure did. The friendships and understanding given to me made me like it," Sam said.

Various organizations achieved outstanding honors. The student council accepted the president's gavel to take the lead position in the "Top O Texas" District Student Council. The council won this office during the district convention it hosted. At the time of the meeting, the student council was district secretary.

The Learn and Live team, appearing on television and competing with other district schools on rules for driving and handling a car, won top honors. Sara Bell, Kima Marsh and David Thomas, with Bill Carrothers as alternate, represented Hereford.

The Forensics team; a debate and speaking organization, sent Don DeGraff to regional, after placing first in prose at district. Don won second in the regional competition. Cliff Herring took the second place honor in poetry at district. Nancy Brink made the One Act Play All-Star cast in drama at district 4-AAAA.

The rodeo club, a new organization at Hereford High, named Kim Gripp as All-around Cowboy and Monica Richardson as All-around Cowgirl.

Ken Laing, led the club, which is a member of the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association. The rodeo team traveled to area and state rodeos, competing against other high school teams.

At the Hereford High School Rodeo, the team won the "team trophy" by virtue of scoring the most points in the rodeo.

In the music department, the Whiteface Band directed by Ben Gollehon won the Sweepstakes award, the highest honor given to any band, for the ninth straight year. It is based on how well the band performed in marching, sightreading and concert competition with other schools.

By receiving this prize, the band qualified again to travel to Corpus Christi for the Bucaneer Music Festival. Other top bands competed there also.

Dramatic performances presented some glamour to the high school schedule, beginning with the Broadway musical, "The Music Man." The play starred Sherry White and Randy Clements with a supporting cast that included choir members and other students. Jane Gulley, high school choir director, directed the production.

The Thespians club, a drama organization, brought "Our Town" to the stage. Angela Grubbs, portrayed the leading character, Emily and Randy Clements and Sammy Ogan shared the male leads. Wayne Hodgson, speech and drama teacher, directed the play.

For the first time in many years, a capacity crowd viewed the senior play, "Cheaper by the Dozen." Mona Gale Gibson and Steve Caviness played the leading roles in a presentation again directed by Hodgson.

Sports at HHS suffered with the district classification change from Class AAA to Class AAAA. Even though the football team finished with a 2-8 record, several accomplishments were made. Head coach Larry Wartes was named "Coach of the Year" for the 4-AAAA district. Mike Wartes was an unanimous choice as all-district quarterback.

As athletic director, Wartes was pleased with the showing in other sports too.

"For the first time in several years, the basketball team won 20 or more games. This would have to be the major highlight of the entire sports season," Wartes said.

The team finished 21-12, Keith Kitchens was named the district's "Sophomore of the Year" and Wartes was chosen on the all-district team. Also, the team won the Muleshoe tournament, its first tourney first place trophy in 11 years.

David Cupell won the Berger tennis tournament in singles play.

To summarize the sporting events, Coach Wartes said: "I felt our kids met the challenge brought on by the change in classification with determination. I was real proud of them."

Graduation climaxed the year, as approximately 270 seniors received their diplomas.

Roy Hartman, superintendent of the Hereford schools, said the over-all educational progress at Hereford High the past year left him with a feeling of satisfaction.

"We completed the initial year in the 4-AAAA district and I feel that the athletic, music, and academic areas performed exceptionally well. The school spirit put forth by the students and faculty has been excellent," Hartman said.

"The leaders and executive committee of the student council were outstanding. The 1970-71 school year was not void of problems, but basically everything ran as smoothly as was expected."

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY—Mr. and Mrs. Delino Gonzales recently celebrated their silver wedding anniversary in their home at 234 Avenue C. SPRING MEANS home runs, roaring crowds, hot dogs with lots of mustard — and perhaps a glob of mustard on your clothes.

Mustard, because of its chemical make-up, is one of the hardest stains to remove, says Joanne Thurber, Extension consumer education specialist in textiles and clothing at Texas A&M University.

Treat mustard stains, then, as soon as possible. If you don't, and the stain is left in the garment for several days, it is almost impossible to remove.

To remove mustard from washable fabrics, rub soap or detergent into the dampened stain then rinse. If the stain is not removed, soak the article in a hot detergent solution if necessary.

If the stain still remains, use a bleach. But don't use chlorine bleach if the fabric has a permanent press or wrinkle resistant finish, unless the manufacturer states on the label that chlorine bleach is safe.

For non-washable articles, sponge the stain with alcohol. But first, test the fabric for color fastness by sponging alcohol on the seam allowance or scrap of material. A non-washable article may also be sent to a professional drycleaner, but be sure to tell him what the stain is.

ping. As you shop, be alert to packaging conditions, the specialist reminds. Reject a package that is broken, wet, bulging or appears to be under tension.

Mrs. Clyatt says it's important to avoid exposing meat packages to warm air. Refrigerate them as soon as you return home.

Many bacteriologists say that "life begins at forty." By this, they mean 40 degrees Fahrenheit. In fact, the specialist reports, meat held at 40 degrees Fahrenheit will keep twice as long as meat held at 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

At even lower temperatures, such as 32 degrees Fahrenheit, meat can be stored four times as long.

America's food processors, shippers and retailers exercise much care and diligence in providing the nation with a bountiful supply of nourishing, high-quality foods. And homemakers, too, have a responsibility to protect and preserve the quality of this food supply, Mrs. Clyatt adds.

TO RID YOUR closets entirely of pests, line closet walls with red cedar.

The extra cost of red cedar is well worth the price. The aroma of cedar penetrates items stored in the closet and protects them from moths and moisture. Moths, their larvae and red cedar do not get along, so a cedar-lined closet is entirely free of pests.

The mild odor is not pungent or excessive, but is simply a natural wood fragrance that fades after exposure to air. For the odor to penetrate and effectively exterminate pests in the closet, the door must be kept closed.

The fragrance of red cedar in a closet also eliminates musty odors since the wood is highly resistant to moisture.

To maximize concentration of the cedar fragrance, cover not only walls with red cedar, but inside doors, ceiling and floors as well. The tongue-and-grooved boards fit together easily and the cost of improvement is small.

When lining with cedar, don't paint or varnish the surface board. Painting and varnishing seals off the cedar's aroma.

Nine Hereford boys left Saturday evening for a week of camp activities that include hiking, swimming and horseback riding at Camp Hoblitzelle, the Salvation Army's 370-acre camp south of Midlothian.

They are among the 800 boys from over Texas offered camping experience without charge this summer. Their week at camp is sponsored by the Deaf Smith County service unit of the Salvation Army, a United Fund agency.

Boys who left Amarillo by bus Saturday evening are Tony Lee, Mike Lee, Bob Cozby, Basil Prater, Gerald Prater, Marvin Prater, Marcial V. Limosa, Elov Valdez and Wilfred Cordova.

Lowell Sharp is chairman of the Salvation Army Service

Unit in this county, and Jewel Smith is camp chairman who made arrangements for the boys' trip. Medical checks and any needed inoculations were given by Dr. Howard R. Johnson.

Dub Boyd took the boys and their luggage in a van to Amarillo Saturday evening to take the bus, sparing them a long layover which would have occurred if they went all the way by bus.

Boys from 9 to 14 years of age attend the four Service Unit camps conducted during the summer. They are housed in brick and redwood cabins with counselors, and have meals served in the camp's dining hall. Sports, games, crafts, contests, worship services and Bible stu-

GUESS WHAT!!

THE LARRYMORE DANCE STUDIO will be open this summer offering dance instructions to all ages in all types of dancing. It doesn't seem necessary to go into a song and dance about the quality of teaching or the dedicated sincere professional way our instructors conduct classes. Students that have finished a season of classes and if they plan to take next season are not encouraged to take more than acrobatic or jazz classes, while older and new students will gain much by studying in the summer when they have more time.

Adult ballroom summer classes are the best to get ready for vacation or improve your dancing for fall and winter. Don't wait until the week before a dance and expect to learn in a few days.

Private or classes will be offered in all types of dancing on the ballroom floor. At least learn how to waltz. THE LARRYMORE DANCE STUDIO in Veteran's Memorial Park, 364-4638 has a complete studio with the best equipment to give you or your child the advantage of learning dancing.

You are lucky to have a studio of this type in Hereford, Texas.

PEACE OFFICERS MEET — Jim Pratt, news director for KVII-TV in Amarillo, was the guest speaker for the Thursday night banquet of the Hereford Peace Officers Association. Some 50 persons attended the banquet which was catered by the Rotary Club.

New increases for good officers, TV newsman says

An Amarillo television news-caster told local law enforcement officials Thursday they must continue to improve themselves if they are to keep up with the rapid growth and increase in crime in Hereford.

Jim Pratt, with KVII-TV in Amarillo, told a group of about 50 members of the Hereford Peace Officers Association, "the growth of Hereford brings on added responsibilities to officers and large growth in the city also brings on new types of violations that require officers to be better trained and informed."

Pratt said cities are going through a communication's gap that could be called an "experience gap." He recommended that parents make an effort to understand their children and give them a looser rein.

The meeting was held in the Knights of Columbus Hall, preceded by a barbecue catered by the Rotary Club.

Music for the banquet was furnished by Alvin "Swede" Schmucker.

Chuck Cosper, out-going president of the association, acted as emcee while newly-elected District Attorney Andy Shuval introduced guests. Guest present were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Cavness, Mr. and Mrs. Bartley Dowell, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Rape, Virgil Slentz, Mrs. Pratt and her two daughters Jane and Mary, Mrs. Shuval, Wanda Underwood, Melvin Young and Morris Easley.

Four door prizes were drawn for and the winners were Jim Neill, Virginia Easley, Norman Neece and Glenn Nelson. The Lions Club donated a shotgun to go to the Peace Officers and a drawing was held of the 15 members who had perfect attendance for the past year.

Mabel Williams, dispatcher for the sheriff's department, was the winner of the shotgun. She is the only woman in the organization.

Wed at Brownfield, couple to live here

Eldon Wayne Miller will bring his bride, the former Miss Judy Jon Gracey of Brownfield, to a home in Hereford after a honeymoon in Colorado which began after their marriage in Crescent Hill Church of Christ at Brownfield Saturday evening.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gracey of that city and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Miller, Route 3.

The double ring wedding ceremony in which Mr. Gracey gave his daughter in marriage, was performed by Joe Burks, principal of Lubbock State School where the bride has been employed.

Butterflies hovered over English ivy which draped wrought-iron garden furniture in the altar setting. In the center an archway was flanked by baskets of lavender and blue carnations and palm trees.

Her twin sister, Mrs. Ronnie Mosley of Dallas, was the bride's matron of honor and Charlie Bruton of Hereford acted as best man.

Bridesmaids were Miss Cherie Chatham of Baton Rouge and Miss Lou Ann Conlee of Canyon; groomsmen, Joe Don Daniels of Hereford and Ken Stark of Canyon.

Kathy Floyd was the flower girl, Carey Jones of Hereford the ring bearer. Candles were lighted by Jeanine Grantham of Lubbock and Gerald Witkowski of Hereford. Wedding solos were by Homer Martin of Lubbock, whose selections included Wedding Prayer, Twelfth of Never and I Love You Truly.

The bride's gown was designed with empire waistline, high round neck and Juliet sleeves, and the gently flared skirt was complemented with a chapel train. Lace trim appeared at the neckline, on sleeves and down the front of the skirt. Lace daisies were scattered over the short illusion veil. In butterfly form, the bridal bouquet was made of an orchid, pink roses and carnations. The

The small flower girl's empire frock was of turquoise crepe with lace trim and she carried petals in a white lace basket.

Miss Grantham was dressed similarly, in yellow. Dog collar necklaces matched each one's dress.

The couple, with their parents and wedding attendants, received guests after the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Miss Linda Bandy was at the bride's book where guests registered, at a table decorated with the ring pillow.

The bride's table was laid in white with swags of net caught by satin ribbons. A 50-year candle draped with ivy and lilies-of-the-valley was in the center.

At one end was the crystal punch service and at the other a three-tiered cake topped with lovebirds perched on a miniature crystal gazebo, ornamented with lavender roses and bows.

Games of bridge and 42 will follow the showing, for interested members and guests. Bert Brown will preside for a short business session.

Wool producers to vote on continuation of promotion

Wool Producers begin voting Monday in a mail referendum on continuation of the promotion program for wool and lambs during 1971-73.

If producers vote approval, the U. S. Department of Agriculture will deduct up to 1 1/2 cents a pound from producer payments for wool and 7 1/4 cents a hundredweight on unshorn lamb payments. The vote by mail will continue for almost two weeks, through June 18.

"The vote will decide if advertising, merchandising and education programs for wool and lambs will continue in 1971," said Frank J. Bezner, chairman of the Deaf Smith County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

If producers accept a proposed new agreement reached by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin and the American Sheep Producers Council (ASPC), the Council will continue to use the payment deductions to finance its wool and lamb market promotion program. This program, authorized under the National Wool Act, was first approved in a 1955 referendum. Since then, 3 more referendums have been approved, the most recent one in 1966 when 79.9 percent of the producers voting approved the program.

The referendum is being conducted through the county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

"Any corporation, partnership, or individual who owned sheep 6 months of age or older for at least 30 consecutive days during 1970 may vote," said Mr. Bezner.

The agreement requires approval nationally by two-thirds of the total number of producers voting, or by producers accounting for two-thirds of the volume of wool production represented by the vote. "Ballots have been mailed to all known wool producers in Deaf Smith County," said Bezner, "and anyone who feels he meets the requirements but hasn't received a ballot by June 7 should check with the County ASCS office. "All wool producers should remember that voting on time is essential. To be counted, ballots must reach the County ASCS office by close of business June 18," Bezner said.

Attempted rape charge is filed on local youth

A 19-year-old Hereford man was arrested early Friday morning and charged with the attempted rape of a 16-year-old girl earlier in the week.

He is Oscar J. Rodriguez, who gave his address as 303 Blevins. Justice of the Peace Glenn Nelson arraigned him Friday morning and set his bond at $5,000. Rodriguez was jailed when he was unable to post bond.

William Farran Gets promotion with Moorman

William J. Farran, 534 Willow Lane, Hereford, was recently promoted to Plant Production Superintendent of the Moorman Manufacturing Company Hereford, Texas Division.

Farran and his family left Quincy, Illinois the middle of last August for Hereford where he was involved with removing equipment from the plant and making way for the installation of the new customized equipment needed for MoorMan production.

Farran has been a MoorMan employee since February 25, 1963 and prior to his departure for Hereford, spent all of his time in the maintenance department.

Cemeteries being brought 'back to life'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — For decades they lay pretty much forgotten, the graves of hundreds of Jews who joined the flocks of wealth-seekers who poured into the Sierra east of here in the Gold Rush of the 1850s.

The Jewish communities buried their own in small separate cemeteries in six towns along the route of what is now California Highway 49.

When the groups owning the cemeteries disbanded by the turn of the century, five of the burial sites generally fell into neglect, filling with weeds, leaves and other litter over the years.

The sixth cemetery has been cared for by Julius E. Baer in his native town of Sonora for 70 of his 94 years. He took over the task from his father, Mayer, who died in 1907.

But one by one, the other cemeteries are being restored and documented in a continuing project to preserve that part of California's Jewish heritage.

The nonprofit Commission for the Preservation of Pioneer Jewish Cemeteries has restored and rededicated graveyards so far in Sonora, Placerville, Grass Valley and Nevada City. Still to be restored are the ones in Jackson and Mokelumme Hill, as well as one in Virginia City, Nev.

The commission is a public trust of the Judah L. C. Magnes Memorial Museum in Berkeley. Dr. Robert Levinson, commission executive vice chairman, arranges for synagogue youth groups from as far away as the San Francisco Bay Area to tackle the restoration chores.

First they take an inventory of the graves and make a copy of the Hebrew and English on the gravestones," Levinson says. "Then we draw a map of the cemetery."

Levinson, a U. S. history professor at San Jose State College, says his research of Gold Rush Jews has only revealed three who were miners. Most were shopkeepers and other businessmen.

Between 1848 — the year gold was discovered at Sutter's Mill — until 1890, the Jewish community in the gold country numbered about 1,000.

After the gold fever died down, Levinson says, "a few stayed on and ran businesses, but most moved on to San Francisco and other parts of the West."

The earliest known grave in the six cemeteries is at Sonora where Hartwig Carol was buried in 1853 at the age of 17.

Local girl joins church youth planning board

Kathy Miller of Hereford has been named to a 12-member regional youth planning board for the Episcopal Church.

The Southwest Regional Committee covers Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and Colorado. Similar regional committees have been formed across the country so young people might have a more active voice and role in the Episcopal Church.

Kathy recently finished her junior at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales. She has been active in the youth work and projects of the Episcopal Church since her freshman year in High School. She has also been nominated to serve on the National Youth Board of the Episcopal Church.

Kathy is a member of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church in Hereford, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Miller of Hereford. She leaves Wednesday for San Antonio where she will attend the first meeting of the Southwest Regional Committee of Youth for the Episcopal Church.

by MELVIN YOUNG
We're not sure whether it's the weather, or the fact that school is out, but it seems more difficult than usual lately to get our thoughts and our work organized.

Like most homeowners, we have been telling ourselves that "just as soon as school is out," we're going to do something about those weeds in the garden, that redecorating around the house, etc.

So far, we've done very little. However, our youngest decided to get on with the task of redecorating this week, and with the help of the little girl next door, has tackled the chore of painting her own room. And she's doing a pretty decent job of it too.

But there's one thing that has us puzzled.

At the moment, all the furniture and related paraphanelia from her room is stacked in the hall, the spare bedroom and the bathroom, with a little pouring out into the living room. Now the question we're asking is "How in the world did she get all that stuff in one little bedroom?"

And, incidentally, will it all go back?

—HB—
C. E. Coleman, Jr., who has been associated with the Ink Spot for many years, this past week purchased the remainder of the stock in the organization from Jimmie Gilentine, and is now sole owner.

Coleman came to Hereford from Borger in 1952 and started work with the office supply business when it was still part of The Hereford Brand. A couple of years later it was moved into a separate building, given a name of its own, and has been growing ever since. A few years ago Coleman purchased half interest in the business and this week got the rest of it. We are real happy for him and wish him continued success.

—HB—
By the way, we notice that our friend Earl Stagner is now working with the folks at John Orsborn Buick-Pontiac. Earl worked for John for more than 10 years when Mr. Orsborn was owner of the Chevrolet dealership.

—HB—
And things over at the courthouse are going to be a little different now.

Mabel Williams, the friendly gal dispatcher for the sheriff's office, has generally been given credit for keeping the sheriff — and his deputies — "in line," and she now has the hardware to really do the job right. Mabel is very efficient at her job, and really, the fellows that work with her over there appreciate the work she does. But they're going to have a lot more respect for her now.

Thursday evening, at the annual Peace Officer's banquet, Mabel won the new Remington automatic shotgun, given away by the association. It's a beauty and she says she's going to get her husband to teach her how to use it and then let those guys get smart.

—HB—
We notice more and more that the big business giants have become aware of the problems of pollution, and are really trying to do something about it. Certainly, they may be the major cause of pollution as well, and perhaps it is right that they provide the solutions. Nevertheless, we're happy to see them working on it.

For instance, General Electric has now come up with a machine that makes junk cars valuable. It's called the car shredder.

The car shredder smashes automobiles into fist-size chunks. It can smash one every thirty seconds, six hundred a day, according to their advertisement.

The chunks from the shredder are 98 per cent pure steel. And worth about two times their weight in natural iron ore.

GE is also exploring a process that uses bacteria to convert paper trash into high-protein food for livestock, and they are now perfecting a new kind of municipal incinerator for the complete combustion of trash with virtually no air pollution. They have also developed a new waste-treatment unit to significantly reduce water pollution from ships and boats.

Of course, it has probably been the pressures brought about by the people through governmental sources that has gotten these people on the ball, but regardless, it will take big industry to solve the problems. And it's encouraging that they realize it.

—HB—
Actually, the big companies have become super-sensitive to such problems. They realize they'll get the blame anyway, so it is best that they try to do

PLANS JULY WEDDING — A wedding July 30 in First Baptist Church of Adrian for Miss Sharon Kay McCown and Alvan Joel Brownlee, both of Adrian, is announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman McCown. Parents of the bridegroom-to-be are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Brownlee. Miss McCown and her fiancé are graduates of Adrian High School. The bride-to-be attended Amarillo College. Brownlee will attend South Plains College at Levelland this fall on a basketball scholarship.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:
The State Legislature this session reached one of its all-time lows by bottling up legislation in the Rules Committee for 135 days and then trying to pass hundreds of bills within a matter of several days. This procedure left little or no time to study and evaluate each bill and contributed to a haphazard manner of enacting laws. Most of the members had no idea what the bills contained or the effects of the legislation they blindly accepted.

This same situation occurred last session when two questionable banking bills slipped through. The resulting scandal and the involvement of state officials has cast a shadow over every member of this government. As yet there has been no satisfactory explanation of the stock case and the investigating committee appointed by Mutschers himself has made no report.

The final appropriations bill was written by 19 members in secret meetings, a clear violation of the rules which Speaker Gus Mutschers chose to ignore. The bill was presented to the House on an accept-all or reject-all basis and contained additional $24 million expenditures not in the original version of the bill.

Two-thirds of the House members felt the appropriations bill and the increased expenditures were not even important enough to question. They voted to end debate on the measure after only 30 minutes. You might like to know how some of your tax money will be used.

The governor's salary will increase from $55,000 per year to $63,000 by 1973.

JULY WEDDING SET — Engagement of Miss Diane Lang to Gary L. Riddle is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Lange. The wedding date selected by the couple is July 24. Miss Lange is a 1971 graduate of Hereford High School and her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Riddle, was graduated a year earlier. He attends a school of electronics in Oklahoma City. (Bradly Photo) lected and sent to Austin, find out how he voted on the tax bill, the appropriations bill, and the redistricting bill. And if you do not like his record, voice your opinion at the polls when reelection time rolls around. With the problems of state government becoming so complex, it is time to send strong individuals to the legislature and eliminate the weak, gutless ones who sell out when they get to Austin.

Sincerely,
Rep. Lane Denton

They 'Reach for Recovery' in fight with cancer

(Editors Note: More than 200,000 Americans will be saved from cancer this year, according to the American Cancer Society. The ACS, which prepared these articles for The Associated Press, stresses the quality of survival in these articles. This is the second in a series of three stories.)

By SUSAN LICHTENDORF
Written for The Associated Press
It was the day before the Fourth of July in Waterloo, Iowa. Mrs. Helen Zellhoefer, mother of three, was looking forward to parades, picnics and the joy of seeing her daughter ride a palomino in the festivities.

In that frame of mind, she checked into the hospital for a simple operation — removal of a silver of tissue from her breast for microscopic examination. True, she had to sign a release, giving her surgeon legal permission to remove her breast if cancer cells were found but she thought, "It can't happen to me."

It did happen as it will to many thousands of American women this year. Each of them will not know if a mastectomy has been performed until the anesthesia wears off. Mrs. Zellhoefer knew because she noticed a clock and she realized that the operation was too long to be what she expected. Others can tell by their bandages or an aching shoulder. All experience the same shock.

They ask the same questions. How will I look? Will people accept me?

"I just wanted to get home, close the door and never go out again," said Mrs. Mereda Newport of Bettendorf, Iowa. "I thought if I could just talk to another woman who had the same operation." When a woman in her part of Iowa has a mastectomy today she can talk to Mrs. Newport. Far from hiding at home, Mrs. Newport is an avid swimmer and an even more avid Reach to Recovery Volunteer for the American Cancer Society.

Mrs. Newport, Mrs. Zellhoefer and the eight other Iowa women who contributed their experiences to this article have counterparts in communities across the United States. Each woman is different — one a grandmother, one a nun, some college graduates some not — but all share the compassion and concern that comes from having faced breast cancer surgery and accepting the reality well enough to return to a normal life.

Unless one of these women chooses to tell, it is impossible to judge whether — or where — she has had surgery. For theirs is a hidden scar and the aim is to forget about it.

Each woman awaits the call from the American Cancer Society office which will allow her to visit a new mastectomy patient in a community hospital. She visits only on permission of the responsible surgeon.

Mrs. Bernard Goldman of Davenport, as a volunteer, is prepared to provide emotional support and to teach rehabilitative arm exercises.

The wife of a physician, Mrs. Goldman had a special watchdog to make sure she did her exercises when she returned home from surgery 14 years ago. "My husband came home for lunch to make sure that I was doing an exercise using a towel slung as a pulley over the shower rod to raise my arm. It hurt so much but he would only say 'that's good, it means that the right muscles are working.' At the same time he discovered he liked to come home for lunch and he's been doing it ever since!"

Marriage is an area of prime concern to a woman who has had a mastectomy and the Iowa women are quick to explain to a new patient that surgery made no difference in their own marriages. Mrs. Terese Lasser of New York City, founder of Reach to Recovery and national coordinator of the ACS program, said, "Many husbands are understanding and tender and go out of their way to show their wives it wasn't just a pair of breaks they married."

On a recent visit to Iowa, Mrs. Lasser trundled out bathing suits, bras and a variety of breast forms to illustrate her maxim that once a woman is properly fitted she can wear everything in her wardrobe. In Iowa as in every community where Reach to Recovery is a work, volunteers have complete lists of local stores with competent fitters and good suppliers.

Having given a new patient a temporary form to wear in the hospital, the volunteer often accompanies her on a later shopping trip to purchase a permanent form.

After that, the Reach to Recovery volunteer bows out of the picture. Reach to Recovery is not a club. It is a program that marks success when the new patient returns to her everyday world.

An important part of many visits is the teaching of rehabilitative arm exercises with the permission of the patient's surgeon. Said Mrs. Goldman, "the patient hurts in so many ways — mastectomy is a mental thing — that arm involvement is only an extra pain." Nonetheless, a woman isn't ready to return to a normal life if she can't raise her arm. The exercises, most as simple as throwing a rubber ball on an elastic string, try to make the woman reach as far as possible. Hence the name Reach to Recovery.

The ACS Reach to Recovery program in Iowa began a little over a year ago. At first there were just three physician-approved and ACS-trained volunteers — but they managed to make 41 visits. Now there are programs in several cities and rural areas are not forgotten. Since Reach to Recovery became part of the ACS in 1969, more than 8,000 patients have been served, in hospitals throughout the United States.

RECOVERY VOLUNTEER — Mrs. Wayne Newport enjoys all types of outdoor exercising, including swimming, despite the fact that she underwent surgery to remove her breasts. She is a volunteer of the American Cancer Society's "Reach for Recovery" program that helps mastectomy patients return to normal life. (AP Photo)

Four students place in state 4-H Roundup

Four local 4-H members received honors at the state 4-H Round-up the past week on the Texas A&M University campus.

Members of the Happy Hustlers club, Kay Atchley and Mickey Ginn, placed fourth in the electric demonstration contest. Among 18 other district winners, Kay and Mickey showed how time can be saved by using 3-way and 4-way light switches.

Placing eighth in the Civil Defense contest, Lynette Clearman and Monica Herring demonstrated safety precautions to take against tornado storms. The girls are members of the Willing Workers 4-H club. Twelve districts sent their top two winners in the different con-

Couple will be honored today

Mr. and Mrs. Clois A. Kemp will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary this afternoon from 3-5 in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Company. All friends are invited to come and visit with them.

Hosting the reception are the couple's sons, Micheal C. Kemp, a student at West Texas State University, and Donnie C. Kemp of Plainview.

Kemp and Margie Watts were married June 9, 1946 in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Watts.

Other members of the family are Mrs. Donnie C. Kemp and children, Elisa and Jason.

Irrigation studies show big profits

Getting the most from irrigation water, especially where the supply is limited, should be the goal of every producer. In Garza County, this is being accomplished on several cotton farms, and increased profits are the result.

Applying irrigation water in the furrow between rows of skip-row cotton has boosted cotton yields 10 to 20 percent per acre, points out Syd Conner, Garza county agricultural agent. Conner, along with Leon New, Extension Service Irrigation specialist at Lubbock, has conducted irrigation studies the past two years on the Travis Lancaster farm and also had a test on the Virgil Bilbo farm in 1970.

"Yields ranged from 24 to 82 pounds more lint per acre where irrigation water was applied between the two rows of cotton compared to application in the skipped row in a two-in, one-out planting pattern," says Conner. "Yield differences of 8 and 64 pounds occurred on the Lancaster farm while a 24-pound difference was noted on the Bilbo farm."

Irrigations were the same for the two water placement procedures. Either one or two irrigations of the same quantity were applied. Conner believes that timely rainfall last July and August on the Bilbo farm minimized the yield differences from the "between-the-cotton" irrigation.

Verticillium wilt entered into the picture as expected but did not influence yield as much as did the extra boost from having the water closer to the plants. Cotton watered between the rows had 7 to 15 percent more wilt infected plants but yields were still higher than where water was applied in the skipped row. Cotton varieties in the tests were Paymaster 262 and Coker 4194. Similar tests are planned with more wilt tolerant varieties.

"We were able to boost cotton yields with limited irrigation by placing the water where more plant roots could take advantage of it," contends Conner. "Also, plant shading reduced surface evaporation."

"Irrigation water must be managed efficiently to obtain the greatest profit per acre-inch," he said. "These tests show a profit of $5 to $18 more per acre by watering between the cotton rows."

Modern Israel featured in film at church

A motion picture, His Land, will be presented in First United Methodist Church fellowship hall at 8 p.m. Tuesday, with the public invited at no admission charge. An offering will be taken to pay expense of the showing.

Filed in Israel, the motion picture features songs by Cliff Richard, popular English singer who is heard in six selections by Ralph Carmichael. Comment by Cliff Barrow and Richard, relating today's events to Biblical prophecies, also accompanies the film.

The land and people of modern Israel are starred in this one-hour feature, with scenes from Jerusalem, Galilee, Bethlehem, Tel Aviv, the Negev and other parts of the countryside.

A single lightning bolt recently killed 27 baboons in a storm in Rhodesia's Marula district.

Last year's total wine grape crop was 734,727 tons in South Africa, a drop of about 110,000 tons from that of 1969.

DEAR HELOISE:
When my sister and I were smaller my mother had a great idea on how to keep us busy and entertained.
She took a large throw rug and put our very special toys on it. Then she rolled it up and put it away.
Whenever she would have company or the weather was too bad for us to play outside, she would get the rug out of its "hiding" place and spread it out on the floor.
The toys would all be there on the rug and she told us that we could play right on the rug. She called this our "Magic Carpet," and said we could pretend we were taking a ride in the sky with our toys.
We always hated for the rug to be rolled up and put away, but we knew that it wouldn't be too long before we could sail away again on our Magical Rug.

And a real sleight-of-hand trick this is, sweetie. Your mother sure is a wizard when it comes to making two little dollies happy.

IT'S UNDER FOOT
DEAR HELOISE:
When I make an afghan, I always crochet eighteen extra inches in length.
I use these extra inches to make a pocket for the feet. All I do is turn under one end of the afghan and crochet the edges together. This makes a perfect pocket and makes it much cosier for the feet.

JUST FOR CATS
DEAR HELOISE:
When I take cat food from the refrigerator and warm it in a small pan, I receive a little "static" from the family because of the smell.
However, I have a method now that will take the chill off the cat food and not offend anyone's sensitive nose! I take a piece of aluminum foil (heavy-duty is best) and fold it. Place the cat food on the foil and then put it under the broiler. You can invert a pie pan over the foil and get the food closer to the burner. In this way you have the food warm in a minute or less. The foil can be rinsed off and put out of sight to be used again. The family will not be subjected to any odors, and old "Tom" will be delighted with his warm dinner.

SPICK WITH THIS
DEAR HELOISE:
When I want to give a gift and find that I can't completely remove the price sticker, I peel off as much as possible and add an appropriate "seal."
This works at home too. My bath-powder can and other items look so much more attractive with a pretty flower seal over the price.

TRICK OF THE WEEK
DEAR HELOISE:
I was regretfully about to discard a favorite (but worn) soft wooly T-shirt, when a bright idea struck me!
Since I had a brown suede coat with gold lining but no hood, I took the T-shirt by the sleeves and put it on my head with the tail to the back (under my coat collar) and tied the sleeves under my chin.
No sewing, no cutting, perfect and warm!

SPICY IDEA!
DEAR HELOISE:
In school we made salt and pepper shakers for our mothers.
We took two pill bottles that were exactly alike, painted them whatever color we wished and put a little design on them. Then we took a corkscrew and punched holes in the tops of the bottles.
They're very handy for cooking and our mothers were so glad to have them.

All mothers like to receive something useful... I'm certain these little shakers are working overtime in each cheery kitchen!

ALL SOUPED UP!
DEAR HELOISE:
Although it is a real goody "surprise," who likes to fix hot soup at 6 a.m. to put in your child's lunchbox, plus the time element involved.
The other morning while boiling water for instant coffee, I hit on an idea.
Fill your child's vacuum bottle half-full of the boiling water, add half of the condensed soup, and, while it settles, make your coffee, stir up the child's soup and seal.
Voila! Hot soup for child, coffee for Mom, and no messy pot to clean before going to work.
Betty

Our thanks to Betty for this HOT hint...

WHAT TIME IS IT?
DEAR HELOISE:
I work at a plant and my glass watch crystal would always get terribly scratched and dull-looking. So I placed a piece of cellophane tape over it.
The tape does not prevent seeing the numbers, yet it protects the crystal while I am at work.

Vinita Pitts bride of Fort Worth man

Miss Vinita Joyce Pitts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe H. Pitts of 317 Avenue H, and Ronald Camp of Fort Worth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank K. Camp of Kenefic, Oklahoma, repeated wedding vows Saturday evening in Central Church of Christ.

John D. Finley officiated for the ceremony as the wedding party stood before a central bouquet of antheriums flanked by palms and spiral candelabra twined with green foliage and holding white tapers.

Three candles were centered in front, the middle one unlighted until the end of the service when the couple extinguished the two lights and lighted the one. A Hawaiian theme was used in decorations and music.

Escorted by her father, the bride was gowned in Chantilly lace over white peau de sole, the empire bodice and wedding ring collar trimmed with seed pearls and the straight skirt curving at the back into a chapel train.

Wide-cuffed sleeves were gathered at the shoulders. The satin waistband made a bow and long streamers at center back. Her veil, a pouf of illusion tiers, was held by a spray of white satin leaves and pink rosebuds.

She carried pikake, the Hawaiian wedding flower, with orchids on a white Bible which has been carried by her sister, Mrs. John Rowland of Dumas, as a bride and was a gift of her grandmother, the late Mrs. Mattie Baggett.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. Don Dumas, and the flower girl, Tamara Myers, daughter of the Charles Myers of Dumas, wore dresses similar to the bride's, in lace and peau de sole of hot pink.

In the same style but in a lighter shade of pink were the frocks of Mrs. Bob Finley of Hobbs and Mrs. Rowland, sisters of the bride who were her bridesmaids, and Sheri Rowland of Dumas and Belinda Finley of Hobbs, nieces who lighted the candles.

Their flowers were vanda orchids, worn in their hair, carried as bouquets by the adult attendants and worn in wrist bouquets by the younger.

Gene Camp of Oklahoma City was his brother's best man, while Homer Gorhum of Weslaco and Billy R. Hensley of Fort Worth served as groomsmen, Johnson Benefield and Scottie Clark as ushers.

John Rowland of Dumas sang Hawaiian Wedding Song as the bride entered the church. Other vocal soloists were Mrs. Tom Burdett, singing I Love You Truly, and Dale Hairgrove, Twelfth of Never. Bill Devers directed a chorus.

Named as honorary attendants were the bridegroom's brothers, his twin, Donald, now in Vietnam, and Capt. Earley C. Camp, in Japan; also Miss Debra Holt and Danny Holt of Alameda, Calif., Miss Darla Criswell of Dumas and Mrs. Jim Priest of Hereford.

A reception followed the wedding in the church fellowship room. Mrs. Gene Holt of Alameda, sister of the bride, registered guests. Mrs. Bill Allen served cake and Miss Riha Faye Gorhum of Weslaco, poured punch, with Mrs. Gene Camp assisting.

Bouquets of the bride and her attendants were placed with candelabra on the white net over pink which covered the table. Bride-and-groom figurines and orchids topped the wedding cake.

For travel, Mrs. Camp changed to a vest suit of petal pink. After June 14 the couple will be at home at 5106 Catalpa, Fort Worth.

Both have attended Oklahoma Christian College in Oklahoma City. The bride is a 1965 graduate of Hereford High, and the bridegroom graduated from Putnam City High in Oklahoma City.

Out-of-city wedding guests included Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Myers, Shelley Rowland, Susanne and Curtis Ward and Gay Myers of Dumas; Bob Finley and Regina Finley of Hobbs, Jeanie Camp of Oklahoma City, Mrs. Billy Hensley of Fort Worth, Mrs. Dennis Francis and Joe Francis of Clovis.

Williams-Rogers vows exchanged

Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Rogers, married recently in a ceremony at Grace Gospel Church conducted by the Rev. H. V. Fields, pastor, are at home in Farwell after a honeymoon in Red River, N. M.

Mrs. Rogers was Miss Linda Williams before the service in which her brother, Oscar Williams, gave her in marriage.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Williams and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Buri Rogers of Lockney.

Baskets of yellow roses, Dutch iris and ivy tendrils, tied with yellow bows, decorated the altar. The bride was dressed in a lace sheath over satin, with sweetheart neckline. Lace scallops edged the elbow sleeves and street-length hemline. Her tiered veil fell below her waist from a cluster of pearlized petals.

Miss Connie Rogers, sister of the bridegroom who was the maid of honor, wore a yellow dress. Kenneth Cole of Farwell acted as best man.

A wedding reception was held in the church, where Johnnie Williams was at the guest book. Miss Janie Betzen presided at the table where wedding cake and punch were served.

White nylon over yellow satin covered the table, centered with silver candelabra and an arrangement of yellow roses and babybreath.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rogers attended Hereford High School. She was a 1971 graduate and completed cosmetology training. He is employed by Gifford-Hill at Farwell.

Cole-Morris vows repeated in Church

A candlelight service at Temple Baptist Church was solemnized Saturday evening when Miss Christine Cole became the bride of Jerry Morris. The bridegroom's cousin, the Rev. Dale Travis of Ridgecrest Baptist Church, Amarillo, officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Pete Curtis, 328 Avenue A, and Kenneth Cole of Louisiana. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Edna Morris of Austin Road and Melvin Morris of Hurst. Merle Terry of Clovis, uncle of the bride, gave her in marriage and her maid of honor was Miss Susie Hickman. Dan Seale of Canyon acted as best man. Guests were ushered to their seats by D. J. Mead Jr. and David Fanning. Before the wedding party entered Jimmy Morris, brother of the bridegroom, and Bill Hall, his brother-in-law, lighted tapers in the pair of branched candelabra set on either side of the altar. In the center was a large basket arrangement of Killian daisies and stock. Music was by Mrs. Mickey Stevens, organist and accompanist for Miss Becky Hickman who sang Twelfth of Never. Miss Cole wore her sister's bridal gown and a blue garter which has been worn by three cousins as well as the sister in their weddings. The dress, in which Miss Carol Cole was married to Eddie Culp a few months ago, is in princess style, of white satin with long fitted sleeves of lace. Narrow lace ruffles edge a panel down the front and are repeated on the back of the skirt which sweeps into a train. A bow at center back waistline has streamers extending past the edge of the train. A similar flat bow of satin holds the fingertip veil of illusion. Her bouquet was a white orchid with touches of pink in feathered carnations around it. Cut from the same pattern as the bride's gown, but street length, the attendant's dress was pink and she carried white daisy palms with pink net frills and streamers. After the ceremony a reception was held in the church hall, where the tiered wedding cake with its frosting of pink roses was set opposite the crystal punch service on a table covered in pink. The bride's bouquet was laid at the base of crystal holders in the center. Miss Mona Terry, cousin of the bride; Miss Judy Hall, the bridegroom's sister, and Miss Judy Cargo served the cake, Misses Ve Crow and Marsha Mead the punch. Miss Dee Ann Terry of Clovis registered guests. Leaving on a honeymoon in New Mexico, Mrs. Morris had changed to a pink pantsuit costume. After midweek the couple will be at home at 115-B Avenue G. Both have attended Hereford High School and the bridegroom was a 1971 graduate. Tabernash in Colorado, a mountain community, is named for a Ute Indian chief. Fifty-eight per cent of British homes had refrigerators last year, compared with 47 per cent in 1967.

Vows planned

The engagement of Miss Cynthia Ann Boren to Gerald Ray Stewart, and plans for their marriage August 5, are announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boren. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stewart. Both families are residents of the Dawn community. Miss Boren and her fiance are both graduates of Hereford High School with this year's class. The bridegroom-elect plans to enroll in West Texas State University in the fall.

Engagement told

Miss Janis Carol Dean and Kenneth Eugene Leach, students at Wayland Baptist College in Plainview, plan an August 20 wedding, it is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Dean, 226 Aspen. Miss Dean graduated from Hereford High School with the class of 1967. She is a member of Phi Beta Lambda, is newly elected secretary of the sorority and was secretary of the junior class at Wayland the past year. Leach is son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McMillen of Columbus, Ohio. He is a graduate of Columbus South High, and is employed by the Sociology Department at Wayland where he is a junior.

Shower honors Juanita Reinart

A shower honoring Juanita Reinart, June 11 bride-elect of Dennis Sargent, was given Wednesday evening in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Company. The couple will be married in St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Leander Reinart and Mr. and Mrs. Carlye Sargent, all of Route 3. Receiving guests with the honoree were her mother and Mrs. Sargent. They wore blue and white carnation corsages. Miss Lorraine Reinart, sister of the bride-to-be, and Miss Donna Sargent, sister of the prospective bridegroom, registered guests. Mrs. Louis Beckman and Mrs. William Kahlich, hostesses, served cake and punch. Other hostesses were Mmes. Harold Kriegshauser, Tony Hoffman, Ray Wilhelm, Ed Schilling, Carl Last, Lester Wagner, Jimmie Jesko, Mike Betzen, Arnold Betzen, Alvin Schmucker and Joe Schulte. Centering the serving table was an arrangement of white carnations and blue sweet peas with burning tapers. White net over taffeta covered the table. Fifty-five guests called. Britons spend 47 million pounds ($112.8 million) a year on hot drinks dispensed from vending machines.

Hereford residents attend wedding at Vega

Many persons from Hereford attended the Saturday evening marriage uniting Miss Cynthia Ann Glass and Richard Andrew Artho in Vega's Immaculate Conception Church. The Rev. Monsignor William F. Bosen, pastor, officiated for the double ring ceremony. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Glass of Vega. Artho is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Artho of Umbarger. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Albert Ricketts of Hereford, aunt of the bride. Miss Karen Hobbs and Mrs. Pedro Scott sang Almost There, The Lord's Prayer, and The Wedding Prayer. The bride and groom stood before an altar flanked with palm leaves, baskets of gladioli and white burning tapers in candelabra. Pews were marked by bows and streamers. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight French taffeta gown. The bodice was appliqued in Alencon lace and embroidered with various shaped pearls. Cuffs of the leg o' mutton sleeves featured loops and self buttons. The chapel length train was appliqued in lace and embroidered with pearls. She wore a shoulder length candlelight illusion veil caught by a headpiece of lace and pearl embroidery. The bridal bouquet was a cascade arrangement of candlelight roses. Miss Deborah Sue Glass, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and Wilford F. Artho of Dalhart, brother of the groom, was best man. # Glady's Garden

By Gladys Howton Manjeot

8501 Cyrus Place, Alexandria, Va.

GREETINGS! from the deep south, which is so rich with tradition and historical significance.

When I boarded the plane in Amarillo, and the powerful engines began to purr, the wheels to move slowly along the runway, then speeding, gaining power, and lifting into the wild blue yonder, it was difficult to realize that I was on the way to visit my Manjeots "4". Destination: Dulles Airport, Washington, D. C.

My thoughts were so deep and my heart pounding so hard, that I really did not come to myself until we were almost ready to land in Lubbock. Actually I think it was the dainty, pretty wild flowers on the prairie which brought me back to reality.

A very attractive young lady was my traveling companion to Dallas. She was a charming, well educated (had majored in psychology) person. She had traveled extensively and was most interested in present day trends.

Her chief ambition was to find her place in the affairs of her nation and the world, then do her best to make this a better place in which to live.

Her destination was Miami, where she would be joined by her mother. Her father was a military man and had died on the battle fields in France during World War I. As I talked with her I was made to think on many things, one of which was had I done what I could to help our youth and to share in the betterment of the world.

As we parted she bade me good-bye, and wished for me a good visit and happiness, with God's blessings through life's travels. Quickly she went on her way. It is GOOD to touch lives of others, in fact that is one of the added joys of traveling.

Left out of Dallas, an hour late because of delay at Port of Entry in San Antonio. . . customs inspections caused the plane to be late. Soon we were high above the clouds, and I always marvel at their beauty, stark whiteness and formations, as the plane flies it way over them. Occasionally I caught glimpses of the land, and its formations. As we reached the wooded sections, with farms interspersed I was interested in the beauty of the land patterns. Many of the farms has as borders, hedges or small shrubs. It all made an intricate design likened to a huge patchwork quilt with brian stitching along the various patches.

The water ways added color and the houses bits of pretty embroidery. As we approached the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, I was disappointed as it was so cloudy and rainy. . . a haze with the clouds completely screened the beauty of the mountains from sight. This condition existed until we started to descend on the approach to Dulles Airport.

When we touched ground and taxied to a stop, the sun was shining and I got to enjoy the graceful and interesting lines of the architecture of the building (it is magnificent) and the loveliness of the landscaping of the ground and surrounding areas.

The highlight of the trip was reached when I entered the building and reached out to the mockingbirds leading. I quietly went to the window and pulled the curtains back to look out on a beautiful setting of verdant green lawns, trees (many kinds) flowering shrubs, with azaleas predominating, and other lovely flowers. Birds were flashing their colors of red, blue, brown, yellow and the white (of the mockingbird) in the boughs of the trees. Truly it was just a beautiful page taken from one of the popular home magazines.

in one of the daily southern papers.

"Peel the potatoes. Cut in very small pieces. Boil in water, drain and dry with a cloth. Roast in small pieces of bacon, add a little milk and simmer—then it will be good and tasty."

Those instructions are 300 years old and may be the first printed recipe for potatoes, which were unknown in Europe until the latter part of the 16th century.

The recipe was in Max Rumpolt's "New Cookbook", published in 1581 under the German title "Ein Neue Kochbuch." The book was part of the Harry Scramell collection of 513 lots of books recently auctioned at Sotheby's of London.

Be Happy by making others. Glad

Dianna Golden shower honoree

Going to church, we passed by Mount Vernon. Later will tell more about this historical place, also a visit made to a garden cared for by a blind ex-service man and his wife. Marvelous and awe-inspiring.

Have you pinched back the soft bedding plants which you have planted? Petunias, coleus, begonias, all should be pruned in this way to make them stronger plants, giving more bloom.

In cutting roses from the plants, do this with care, keeping in mind that you can also prune in this method. Do not cut the early roses with too long a stem, wait until they are stronger. Also remember to check on the number of leaves to the main leaf formation. Five is the number to look for, and do not cut stems below this.

Potato time will soon be ready with the new potatoes. The following is a recipe I read

Miss Boynton weds at Irving

Miss Carolyn Sue Boynton, daughter of Mrs. J. T. Boynton, 128 Hickory, and the late Mr. Boynton, became the bride of Frederick Charles Campbell of Dallas in a Saturday evening ceremony at the Irving Bible Church, and the couple will be at home after June 12 at 3309 Vernon, Dallas.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell of Atlantic City, New Jersey, and is a teacher in Trinity Christian Academy at Dallas. The bride has been employed as a dental technician in that city.

Spiral and seven-branched candelabra lined the front of the church at Irving, where a large arrangement of mixed garden flowers backed the wedding party.

The Rev. Homer T. Goodwin of Hereford First Assembly of God Church assisted the Rev. Charles Swindell, pastor of Irving Bible Church, in conducting the service in which Jay W. Boynton gave his sister in marriage.

Miss Rebecca Womack of Dallas was maid of honor and Bruce Campbell of Atlantic City his brother's best man. Other bridal attendants were Mrs. Jay W. Boynton; Miss Barbara Campbell, the bridegroom's sister; Mrs. Tom Deaton of Bryan and Mrs. Gary Murray of Dallas, college friends of the bride.

Groomsmen were David Cotterill, David Farr, Fred Hunt and Joe Stilwell, all of Dallas. The Jay Boyntons' daughter, Stephanie, was flower girl and Susie Adrian of Earth, the bride's cousin, candlelighter. Miss Lucille Swindell of Dallas sang solos and David Hine was organist.

Axe, Jim Hale. Also Mmes. Stan Knox, Allen Cansler, B. E. Brunley, Elmer Patterson, R. B. Hutson, Maurice Tannahill, Willodyne Brooks, Tommy Bryan, Chester Wiggins, Alvin Smith and Dale Kelley of Amarillo.

Diamond white organza made the bride's gown, its empire bodice overlaid with venise lace, its circular skirt falling in wide folds to the floor. Lace scallops edged the solitaire neckline and banded the lantern sleeves.

Matching lace bordered her illusion veil which rounded into a chapel train and was caught to a headpiece of lace and organza petals. Her bouquet was a cascade of butterfly orchids with babybreath and stephanotis.

Bridesmaids' dresses of aqua chiffon were trimmed in satin of the same shade, styled with high-rise waistline and long puffed sleeves. Floor-length veils were held with fresh flowers like those in the nosegays they carried.

Miss Patty Roach of Hereford registered guests at the reception in the church fellowship hall. Mrs. Gilbert Sims of Lubbock served the bride's cake and Mrs. Alan Carter of Dallas the groom's cake while Mrs. Greg Cromer of Sawyer, Kan., ladled punch and Mrs. Larry Walker of Waco was at the coffee service.

Fresh garden flowers topped the bride's cake, and were used in an epergne centerpiece. The chocolate cake on the groom's table was surrounded with green foliage and fruit.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left after the reception for a honeymoon in Denver.

The bride received her BS degree in dental hygiene from Baylor University College of Dentistry, after graduation from Hereford High School in 1968. The bridegroom holds a BS degree from Philadelphia College of Bible and this year received the master of theology from Dallas Theological Seminary.

Wedding guests included Mrs. Pat Robinson of Hereford, the Charles Boyntons and Louis Boynton of Vernon, Mrs. Buddy Adrian of Earth and Mrs. Mike Justice of Dalhart.
