

HEREFORD ON THE MOVE Hottest Prospect Community In The Panhandle

BY GRANT MABRY
Staff Writer

Question: What is the chamber doing in the way of promoting Hereford as a good place for new industry?

Lindsey: Telling the Hereford story. The story of Hereford's fast-enlarging opportunities for business, commercial, and industrial growth must be told to the complete area, and especially as they are being amplified with the approach that we have adequate labor force, transportation and people that will give a day's work for a day's pay.

Question: What can individual citizens do to promote Hereford?

Lindsey: Build community pride. Take action to renew and amplify citizen's pride in Hereford, through greater knowledge of our attributes and opportunities.

Question: What do interested industries look for in a community?

Lindsey: Community aggressiveness. The development of an effective communication program is very vital. Also, industries are looking at financing, labor force availability, transport and education.

Question: Is industry looking at us now?

Lindsey: Very definitely — at present we are working with a Texas-based industry. Over the past three months we have had about six good industries look at us. We are possibly the hottest prospect community in the panhandle, because of our aggressiveness and fast growth.

Question: Is industry looking at rural communities now in contrast to the big city movement in the past?

Lindsey: Yes. The main reason industry is looking at rural communities is because of the availability of labor.

Secondly, there is less pollution, availability of cheaper land and the competitiveness of rural communities.

Question: Is the local economy good in Hereford?

Lindsey: Excellent — the economy in Deaf Smith County last year was approximately $1 billion, which was one-sixth of the whole economy of the panhandle. Our economy is about 90 per cent agri-business related.

Question: Is Hereford growing?

Lindsey: Yes. Hereford is growing approximately 500 to 600 people per year. The reason for this growth is primarily the cattle industry and available working force. The population of Hereford in the 1970 census was 13,414, our present population is over 14,900 and nearly 15,000. If that isn't growth, I don't know what is.

Question: Can Hereford accommodate such a rapid rate of growth?

Lindsey: Yes. With the availability of water, land and money, Hereford, I feel like, will keep growing. One alternative to be considered is the fact that the growth might be stopped due to non-availability of school facilities. Industries look at that factor in a community.

Question: Why have we had so much growth in the past 10 years?

Lindsey: I would say the reason for our tremendous growth has been the outstanding community pride and local service of our two banks.

Question: Do you think that Hereford can draw other industry besides agri-industry?

Lindsey: Yes. For the past three months most of the industry that has contacted us have been industries related to other fields than agri-business. Especially in the garment industry. But we will still work very close with agri-business related industries, because it is much easier to sell. In closing, industry is looking at Hereford and we are looking at industry.

Most Clinic Volunteers Train To Give Specialized Services

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if you could buy happiness, there would always be those who would try to get it wholesale.

Mother Nature always seems to know what she's doing. She gives us 12 years to develop love for our children before turning them into teenagers. — Anon.

McGovern's Socialists may blacklist me... I'm a lettuce lover!

Much of the talk we've heard around town on the heels of the Demo convention has been speculation on how many people will leave the Democratic Party in November. Estimates around here seem to indicate at least 50 percent.

Even some of those who have always believed in loyalty to "The Party" may decide there are more important factors in this election.

We don't want to let the books be closed on the Miss Texas Pageant without passing along a commendation to Miss Sherry White for "a job well done" in representing Hereford in the state contest.

According to local persons who attended the pageant, Sherry made a big hit with her talent presentation and they thought she should have been a semifinalist. She was a talent scholarship winner, however, and Herefordites were happy to see her photo in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. She was sponsored in the local pageant by Spangler's Diamonds.

A four-year-old watched as a couple of sky-writing planes spelled out their message with puffs of dots and dashes. "Mama, come quick," he shouted. "God's taken up smoking!"

An interesting story came our way this week concerning the reunion of two Hereford pals after a span of many years and globe-circling assignments. Contributing the information was Mrs. Art Manjeot, author of "By the Garden Gate", a regular feature of THE BRAND.

The start of the tale goes back to 1944 when Lloyd Manjeot and Danny Russell were teammates on a district champion football team for the Hereford Whitefaces. Lloyd was a tough tackle; Danny an outstanding end.

Both went to college, receiving degrees and other honors, then it was the Air Force for Danny and the Army for Lloyd. Both stayed with military service, and both are now colonels. Recently, Manjeot — serving on the staff of the U.S. Army Food Service Center at Ft. Lee, Va. — had occasion to contact an officer in the

(This is one of a series of stories concerning community service agencies which depend on some degree on the help of volunteers who give either work or financial support, or both.)

Most highly specialized of any volunteers manning community agencies in Hereford are those who are the mainstay of Deaf Smith County Public Health Clinic staff — the physicians, surgeons and dentists who give their time each week, usually sacrificing lunch hours.

Few residents of the county are qualified for this service, but there are other volunteers who carry out less specialized duties, like the group of young clubwomen who lately painted the interior of several rooms in the clinic building.

Also volunteer workers are the clinical assistants in the Planned Parenthood clinic, clerical assistants and women who supply transportation for some of the patients in this program which has reached approximately 600 women since it began in November, 1970.

Other volunteers conduct Weight Watchers classes each week. Still others are requested occasionally to assist staff members, including patients who are sometimes called upon to act as translators since the clinic operates in two languages.

Not so many volunteer helpers are needed now that the clinic is fully staffed, as at first when even the paid staff members were just learning what their duties were, explains Gary Stagner, administrator for the past year.

Actually, few workers are needed in any phase of the clinic's programs except those who are trained in health services or social work. Even they must have orientation training to become familiar with specific duties.

With a professional staff complete for the past nine months, the Migrant Health Project which is the clinic's chief reason for being, and which is funded through the federal Health, Education and Welfare Department and the State Migrant Project, operates with little need for other aid.

Most current volunteers are assistants in the Planned Parenthood Clinic which is conducted each Tuesday from 12 noon to 2 p.m. Mrs. Walter London Jr., who is a member of the clinic board and also of the Panhandle Planned Parenthood Association's board, is a leader in this activity.

Clinical assistants are Mmes. Hugh McCrary, Dwan Pittenger, Earl Lewis, Danny Martin, Rudy Metz, Bill Taylor and James Higgins, some of whom have been aides at the clinic since it opened and even when it was preparing for opening.

Volunteers who will take the necessary training to substitute for these, or fill a vacancy if one occurs, will be welcomed, Mrs. London says. Orientation for a new staff member, Mrs. Jeff Gamez, is scheduled soon in Amarillo and any who are interested may be included for this training period.

Mrs. Ralph J. Molina is a staff member already working in the Planned Parenthood Clinic. A

Buff Boosters To Visit City

West Texas State University supporters will rally Wednesday for a full day of ticket selling, lunching, golfing and general visiting.

The whole WT coaching staff will be on hand starting at 7 a.m. Wednesday to visit with WT boosters and sell season tickets. Coach Gene Mayfield will have with him, two of this coming season's starters from Hereford, Tony Gorman and Mike Wartes.

Gorman, a 1970 HHS graduate, was a All-State offensive tackle for the Herd. He went to Texas Tech and started for the freshman team there. He transferred to WT last fall and during spring training he gained a starting defensive end position on the WT varsity squad.

"Tony is one of the stronger players on the team," Jim Campbell, WT defensive coach said, "his strength allows him to be an effective pass rusher, but he would be even more effective if he weighed less."

Mike Wartes, 5'10", 175 pounder, who graduated from Hereford in 1971, is an almost sure bet to be the starting quarterback for the WT team this fall. He led the WT freshmen to a 3-1 season last year completing 13 out of 39 passes with only one interception all year.

"He throws best, executes plays well," said Coach Jim Dawson, "the poorest thing he does is run, but he runs well enough that you can't turn him loose. The biggest plus is his arm."

The coaches and two players will meet with the Hereford Lions at noon Wednesday. Following the meeting with the Lions, the coaches will play golf with local WT boosters.

Community Education Viewed By Local School Officials

Hereford may be in store for more education — more education for everyone in the community through the community education program which Richard Robinson, vocational director at Hereford High School, will be investigating in Flint; Mich.

A two-week seminar to be held in Flint will be conducted to explain community education to school systems interested. Robinson will attend the seminar from July 24 until August 6, in hopes of establishing such a program here in Hereford. His expenses will be paid by the Mott Foundation.

Friendly Folks, But Stealing Still Illegal

Now that it is potato and onion time, a problem to both farmers and lawmen is taking place in the county, that problem is people taking produce from fields without the permission of the farmer.

Andy Shuval, district attorney, said that people should be aware of the fact that taking produce without the permission of the farmer is illegal.

"We're all a friendly bunch of people in this county, but the taking of agricultural produce is unlawful," Shuval said.

If a fellow is brought up right, he'll give the farmer the courtesy of asking him permission, and knowing most of the farmers, they would nearly always give him permission to take what he needed for his personal use," Shuval said, "they might even thank the farmer when they finish."

The basis for the program is to expand the community involvement with the local school system," Robinson said.

Community involvement is the key word of the program. It is aimed at offering a varied amount of activities, which Robinson termed as "limited only by our imagination." Community education includes such programs as adult education programs, health programs, recreational programs, vocational programs, academic programs and more.

It has been termed by one source as a return to the concept of the "little red schoolhouse." In that the "little red schoolhouse" was first of all, a meeting place for all social, recreational, and governmental activities. It was a place identified with by all ages and groups. "People had a good feeling about the school, it's my school!"

One praised aspect of the community education system is the fact that it involves the whole community, churches, civic organizations, agencies, industry, government, business and just plain people as a whole.

Some school officials have said that the program will be good because it will better utilize school facilities. Since most school facilities are used for only nine months out of a year, and no more than eight hours during a school day, there is a lot of time in which that facility goes to waste. Since the school is the public's, it goes to reason that the public should be able to use it. At the same time, this program will involve the community and draw attention to the needs of the system, thus involving the whole community in school matters. The main function of community education programs is to establish a controllable way of opening school facilities to the public. Once this program is established, the tax payer will be better able to get his tax dollar's worth out of the school.

(Editor's Note: Community education is partially funded by C.S. Mott, who is responsible for paying the expenses of interested persons during a two-week seminar such as the one Richard Robinson will attend.)

An interview with Mott can be found on page 12 of this section of the paper. In the interview Mott explains why, how and when he got interested in community education.

Early Potato Variety Demo Set For July 20

The early potato variety demonstration plots at the Charles Schlabs Ranch in Hereford will be harvested and evaluated next Thursday July 20 according to Dr. Roland Roberts, area Extension vegetable specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. All West Texas vegetable growers are invited to come see and personally evaluate the twelve varieties in the field between 2:00 and 4:00 p.m., July 20. The Schlabs Ranch is located three and one half miles south of Hereford on FM 1055 about one mile south of the intersection FM 1055 and Route 385.

Bank Call Finds $$$ Near Peak

Bank deposits and loans reached near record highs for both the First National Bank of Hereford and the Hereford State Bank at the mid-year June 30 bank call.

Deposits at the Hereford State Bank reached a second-to-March 3, 1972 high. The total for the June 30 call of deposits was 14,065,416.06, compared to the record of $15,785,194.42 set in March this year. Deposits are up $1,550,572.73 from this time last year.

Total loans at the Hereford State Bank are $10,839,807.21, second to the amount reported in March this year of $10,990,330.27. Last year at this time loans totaled $8,474,705.59 for a difference in loans compared to last year of $2,365,101.62.

"Our deposits are usually the lowest on June 30, because as of June 30, there is very little farm income that has been realized," Wayne Williams of the Hereford State reported.

This gain reflects the rate that we've been growing each year," Williams added, "about $2 million a year."

Total deposits reported by the First National Bank of Hereford was $24,626,715.26 compared to the total a year ago of $23,666,299.55 differing by an amount of $960,415.71.

Loans came to a total of $17,995,670.99 at the June 30 bank call. The difference between this year's total and last year's of $17,535,902.45 is $459,768.54, at the First National.

Warning System Test Tuesday

WARNING!!! A test of the new warning system will be conducted Tuesday morning starting at 10 a.m.

Grady Swindell, of Mobile Communications of Hereford said that a number of modifications have been made on the new system, and that he hopes that these adjustments will place the system in its maximum operating capacity. He added that if weather conditions were bad, the test would be called off.

LOCAL WT STARTERS—Tony Gorman, left, and Mike Wartes, both of Hereford will be starters on the West Texas State University football team. Wartes will be signal caller for the Buffaloes while Gorman will be starting at defensive end. Both were standouts on their Herd squads, and will be on hand Wednesday when the complete WT coaching staff comes to Hereford to sell season tickets and visit with WT boosters.

prospective volunteer who wishes more information may telephone her at the clinic or Mrs. London at her home.

Those who will volunteer to supply transportation are also invited to call. Especially appreciated for this duty are Spanish-speaking volunteers. Mrs. Molina is available as a speaker to clubs which want information about this program, Mrs. London adds.

"We want county residents to have this information and we especially want women who may wish its services to know they are available," she says. "Family planning counsel and aid are not limited to migrant families, as some people assume; we have Anglo and Negro women listed as well as Spanish-Americans; the program is open to them all." Stagner echoes this wish for wider community knowledge of all the clinic's services.

"Our biggest need now is for spread of information, and those who will take the message to people who need the services may be our most valuable volunteers," he says.

Clubs and individuals who want to give such help as the repainting project which the Young Homemakers of Texas Chapter completed this month, are asked to consult the clinic administrator before making plans, so the work will meet actual needs and there will be no duplication of effort.

As in other agencies aimed chiefly at helping low-income residents, an important volunteer service is contribution of money to the clinic. Donation of furniture and equipment was greatly appreciated in the early days, but now that only occasional replacements are needed, the best gift is cash for two funds, Stagner says.

The "We Care" fund, originated by L'Allegria Study Club, provides medicine, laboratory services and x-rays for indigent children under 18 years of age.

The second, a non-restricted fund, can pay for these and other items which do not come under the budget but are sometimes badly needed for care of patients.

Even though personal service volunteers are warned that they must undergo training, there is no wish to discourage those who would like to work in the Planned Parenthood Clinic, Mrs. London stresses.

"We like to give volunteers an opportunity to help because most of those who begin want to continue the work; it's rewarding because you can see the results of your work in a short time.

"Of course we believe in the value of planned parenthood, not only to the individual and the community but as a means of attack on the world's biggest problem, over-population, at its source.

"One of our volunteers has decided to take nurses training, influenced by her experience here. Another reported that her bridge club has discussed changing its meeting day, but if it does she will leave it because the new date would conflict with her work with us. I consider that the supreme test of interest!"

It was not too far into the conversation, however, before the two discovered the lucky incident and the government wound up with a steep long-distance call. They have made plans, now, to meet in the near future and talk over "old times" in a face-to-face situation.

Mrs. Manjeot, in telling the story, relayed a message from both men to send greetings to their home town of Hereford—especially to their high school buddies, teachers and the Mothers' Athletic Club.

Girls-Boys State Delegates Will Report

Members and guests of the American Legion and Auxiliary will hear reports from "Girls and Boys" State delegates at a salad supper 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the American Legion building. Girls' State delegates Katherine Emerson of Hereford and Teddy Hale, sponsored by Adrian Lion's club, will report on the Girls' state meeting which was held in mid-June in Seguin.

Boys' State delegates Ricky Locke and Terry Scott will give notes on the early June Boys' State meeting which was held in Austin on the University of Texas campus. Hostesses for the dinner will be Mmes. Pat Hanlon, Ken Wiley and Clyde Cave.

Funeral Is Held In Plainview For Mrs. J. S. Locke

Funeral services for Mrs. J. Sam Locke of Plainview, mother of Mrs. Ted Panciera of Hereford, were conducted Friday afternoon in First Christian Church at Plainview, of which she had been an active member for many years. Mrs. Locke died Wednesday evening in Deaf Smith General Hospital after a two-month illness.

The Rev. Eugene Brink, minister of Hereford's First Christian Church, officiated for the funeral. Burial was in Plainview Memorial Park. Born in Sherman, Mrs. Locke was the former Gussie Katherine Dick, who was married in 1914.

In addition to Mrs. Panciera, survivors include three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

L'Allegrians City-Wide Rummage Sale Plan Lunch To Benefit Care Center For Monday

With a view to the coming club season, a midsummer meeting of L'Allegria Study Club Monday will see committees appointed and a decision made on the community service project for 1972-73.

The business meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Danny Martin, 206 Ranger. Mrs. Bill Warrick, lately installed as president, will be in charge.

A salad lunch will be served at noon and there will be time for casual conversation as members gather in this out-of-session session.

Repeating a benefit sale which raised funds for Hereford Day Care Center last year, a city-wide rummage sale will be held Friday and Saturday at Community Center, corner Park Ave. and Ave. C, beginning at 9 a.m.

Day Care Center board members are in charge of the sale, with Mrs. Dennis Lomas as general chairman.

Articles to be sold are being collected this week; any resident with usable clothing, household equipment, furniture, appliances, tools, toys or sports equipment to donate for the sale is asked to take it to the Lomas home, 509 Star.

Pickup will be arranged for articles too large to be taken to the collection, if a telephone call is made to Mrs. Lomas.

Board members and other volunteer workers will sort and price the goods for sale and arrange them on tables or hangers at Community Center. To assist in the two-day sale, Mmes. Eugene Sparks, Buddy Bloomer, Gene King and David Gibson have been named chairmen to recruit workers.

Last year's sale, the first, proved successful enough that the plan was adopted as the Day Care Center's principal fund-raising event. A sale of this type is planned as an annual event to provide needed funds for the Center.

The money will be used for supplies and equipment not included in the general budget, and aid for children whose families cannot pay the fee charged by the Center for daily care.

Those enrolled at the Center are pre-school children whose mothers are employed outside the home, or attend school or vocational training classes/Anna Jo Wilson is the Center director.

Tech Researchers Help Pork Packer

"Cool it" is the advice of a group of Texas Tech University animal scientists to meat packers who want to provide pork buyers with a more tender and flavorful product.

The advice is contained in a paper to be presented at the national meeting of the American Society of Animal Science to be held at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, in August.

According to Tech researchers C.B. Ramsey, K.D. Lind, L.F. Tribble and C.T. Gaskins of the university's Animal Science Department, the paper to be presented is a report of the third and concluding study of pork loin cooler aging conducted at Tech.

"The two previous studies showed, as this one does," said Ramsey, "that aging for about 10 days after slaughter increases the muscle tenderness, flavor and overall acceptability of the pork as determined by a taste panel."

Thus, the Tech researchers' advice to "cool it" can be taken both literally and figuratively. Cooler aging changes the flavor of pork to one more like that of aged beef and should be preferred over the usual fresh flavor of pork by consumers who like aged beef, Ramsey explained.

"Such aged pork could become a menu feature item for restaurants," he added.

The Texas Tech studies were conducted using groups of four vacuum-packaged (Cryovac) loin roasts taken from the second through seventh lumbar vertebrae region of each of 12 crossbred barrow carcasses. These loin roasts were cooler aged at 3 degrees centigrade, or about 38 degrees Fahrenheit, for either 9, 13, 17 or 21 days.

Three marbling groups—traces and slight; small, modest and moderate; and slightly abundant and moderately abundant—were represented within each aging time. Two roasts were cut from each side of the test carcasses although differences between carcass sides were not found to be significant for any trait studied.

It was found also that shrinkage during aging was not significantly affected by the aging time with the widest range of shrinkage difference among the various aging periods amounting to only .14 per cent.

"We did find, however, that a quadratic relationship existed between marbling score and per cent of shrinkage," Ramsey said, "with roasts containing small, moderate or modest marbling shrinking the least."

In addition, the Tech researchers found that roasts from the anterior portion of the loin section were significantly lighter in weight, required more cooking time per unit of weight and were less tender.

Among the other major findings in the Tech study were that:

— time of aging has significant effect on overall acceptability by a taste panel as well as on the actual texture of the roasts, with roasts aged nine days being less tender but more flavorful; and

— marbling score did not significantly effect any palatability trait, although more marbling was associated with a shorter cooking time per weight unit and a lower drip loss.

Kiwanis Name New President Internationally

Lorin J. Badskey, a North Webster, Indiana industrialist, was elected President of Kiwanis International recently at the organization's Fifty-seventh Annual Convention in Atlantic City, New Jersey, according to Rodney Laubhan, President of the Kiwanis Club of Hereford.

He succeeds Wes G. Bartlett, an Algona, Iowa Businessman who held the position since October 1, 1971.

County Records 13 Accidents During June

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 13 accidents on rural highways in Deaf Smith County during the month of June, according to Sgt. W.E. Wells, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area.

These crashes resulted in no persons killed and seven persons injured.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the first six months of 1972 shows a total of 59 accidents resulting in no persons killed, and 28 persons injured.

The rural traffic accident summary for the 60 counties of the Department of Public Safety Region 5 for June, 1972 shows a total of 527 accidents resulting in 20 persons killed and 347 persons injured as compared to June, 1971 with 524 accidents resulting in 10 persons killed and 308 persons injured.

The 20 traffic deaths for the month of June, 1972 occurred in the following counties: Dallam and Lubbock, three each; Archer, Armstrong, Bailey, Childress, Floyd, Hale, Jack, Montague, Parker, Terry, Wichita, Wilbarger, Wise, and Young, one each.

About 967,000 veterans and servicemen were training under the current GI Bill on June 1, the bill's sixth anniversary, the Veterans Administration says.

4-H Dress Revue Winners Named

By Argen Draper
Home Demonstration Agent

THE EXTRA BUZZING in the Extension office this week has been because of one of the most popular of 4H events — the County Dress Revue.

At this time, the winners have not been determined but will be elsewhere in the Brand. The number and quality of the garments have made this a real joy and a real learning experience for 4H families.

My advice: As soon as the girls are able, get more material, make another garment like this one, if appropriate, so they can repeat the things they have learned in the sewing courses.

Many thanks to leaders, judges and families for your continued support of the Extension program.

SHERRY ARNOLD is in training with Joyce Shipp and me for the home demonstration position in Collingsworth County. We are enjoying the association very much.

WE HAVE ENJOYED our visits this week with Kathy Ray, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Bill Ray. Kathy is a senior student at Bethany College and we're hoping when she finishes a bachelors degree in home economics that she will be interested in home demonstration work. We think she will be a good agent.

YOGURT, ICE CREAM and ice milk can replace milk in diets, but at added cost. A cup of ice cream, then, may cost three times as much as the one-half cup of milk it's replacing.

One rotten apple can ruin the barrel. And partially decayed vegetables can ruin several if stored together. So before storing vegetables, check for bruised, soft or decayed ones. Store only those in good condition.

The password for tossed green salads is variety. Serve salads either at the start of a meal or during the main course.

DID YOU EVER GET involved in the controversy of whether a tomato is vegetable or fruit? By cultivation and use, it's a vegetable, but botanically, it's a fruit.

As a fruit the tomato is considered a berry as it is pulpy and contains one or more seeds that aren't stones. But whichever category you choose, now is the time to enjoy the fine quality of vine-ripened homegrown tomatoes.

In next year's club work, vegetable gardening will be included. I can remember when each person who had a yard or flower bed had a few tomato plants and it is amazing how much production a few vines can give and the zest tomatoes can add to the meals.

THOSE OF YOU WHO attended the Suit Fair in April remember Roxanne Schnorr, one of the Jothing specialists who made such a big impression on all of us in the demonstrations she gave on sewing men's wear.

Today we got a release from her office one of our favorite hobbies — costume jewelry. She says clock watchers will be tempted to indulge in their favorite pastime this fall, as fashion and pendant watches will be a major category of accessories glimmering from the costume jewelry counter.

Pendant watches make excellent companions to the layered look and simple sweater tops. Even digital watches have become a fashion item, due to technological newness as a fashion innovation.

New emphasis on fashion watches has been created with different materials for the cases. Plastics, clear and in color, are responsible for part of the new appeal; ivory and tortoise add to the variety available.

SILVER COMPOSES a range of treatments from the hammered to polished silver finish. Wood also provides a striking interest in fashion watches.

Some retailers report disillusioned customers who have purchased one-jewel watches. Therefore, we need to understand what significance the jewel movement has to do with the function of a watch.

Remember: it is the jewels that make the most important contribution to the accuracy and reliability of a watch. Jewels — mainly rubies — act as bearings to reduce metal-to-metal contacts which produce friction and wear within the works.

A 17-jewel watch is considered to have jewels located at major points of metal contact to produce an accurate, durable and quality watch. More jewel movements could be considered a luxury.

IT IS WISE in selecting a watch to consider the purpose for the purchase of the timepiece. If it is for fashion and its use will be limited, it will not be as necessary to buy a quality watch but if you want it to last a long time, it will take more careful shopping.

The recommended points to watch for in shopping: look for dents, discoloration, scratches and loose crystal or back. Is the general appearance appealing? Are the numbers legible?

When the watch is wound there should be no slippage; the stem should enter the setting position with a slight click and without excessive force. The stem should remain in this position during the setting operation.

Most consumers, however, will want fashion and quality both. Some good quality one and seven jewel movement watches are available in a lower price range. Shopping with a recognized purpose and an inspecting eye should enable you to purchase a reliable fashion watch.

WE WILL BE ON vacation next week but will be spending the time at home. So, if I'm needed, call me at my residence.

PONY LEAGUERS GET READY—The Hereford Pony League All-Stars face their first opponent Monday night here, to decide who will advance to the district finals in their division. Hard work is the only way to get anywhere in sports plus talent, and the ponies and their coach are putting through the regular local season. Yet, the true test of their abilities will be made during the next few weeks as they make their bids for the world series. A boy must possess more than a mild desire to play ball. To stand up to the requirements asked of him, he has to have the drive and energy to spend about 10-times the amount of time he plays in games, practicing to an empty bleacher. The real test is made when the actual work comes, when there are no crowds, when there are no cheers for his efforts and when he is not wearing a game uniform. That is when his grade is really made regarding his right to be called an athlete, and the Hereford All-Star Pony Leaguers are athletes, every one.

Pony And Bronco All-Stars Start Games

A determined bunch of Pony League All-Stars and their coach Red Durham got ready for the first game to be played here Monday night against Borger, with an intra-squad game, Friday evening. Condition seems to be the name of the game, and the Pony's showed all the signs of possessing good condition after working for a solid two weeks with their mentor. Along with the condition displayed by the team, coordination was very impressive as the young team worked plays that even some high school varsity squads never perfected. The Pony's will take the field against a tough opponent from Borger Monday night at 8 p.m. in Pony League Park on a hopefully successful journey to the Pony League World Series. The team, well-deserving of Hereford's support, consists of

Another Hereford team, the Bronco League All-Stars, will travel to Altus, Okla. on July 28 and 29 to make their bid for the district championship.

Robert M. Fox of Havertown, Pa., and James J. Rodgers of Elkins Park, Pa., are co-captains of Fordham University's heavyweight crew.

Women Score High Games

In Women's Baseball during the last half of the week, three one-sided games were played.

Thursday night produced two high-scoring games with the Lone Star Insurance girls blasting the Piggly Wiggly team 22 to 13, Linda Wilcox was given credit as the winning pitcher in that game.

The McCaslin Lumber team bombed the Blue Water Bombers as Ann Cummings lead the team to a 15 to 9 victory.

Friday night the Mobile Communications team took a one-sided victory as Elevis Shields pitched her team to a 25-3 win over the Jayceeettes.

Linda Hagar, president of the league, has requested any persons interested in serving as umpires for women's games to contact her by calling 364-0706.

Tennis Tourney Entry Deadline Is Monday

The sports committee of Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce will sponsor the Hereford Tennis Tournament July 22-23, it was announced this week by Jerry Payne, tourney chairman.

The tournament will be open only to Deaf Smith County players and will have seven age divisions. Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runner-up in all divisions. There must be at least six entries in singles or four in doubles for an event to be played, however.

Entry deadline is Monday, July 17 at 5 p.m. Entry fee is $2 for singles and $3 per team for doubles. A person may enter two events in one division. Entrants should register at the Chamber office, or mail the entry form and fee to Box 192, Hereford.

Payne announced that co-directors of the tourney are Dave Hopper, Steve Thomas and Burns Hamilton. The divisions planned for the tourney include: Men (19-39), women (19-39), senior women (40 up), senior men (40 up), 18 and under boys and girls, 15 and under boys and girls, and 12 and under boys and girls.

All interested tennis players are urged to get their entries turned in to the C of C office as soon as possible. The entry fee must accompany the entry to be eligible.

Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates batted .465 against the Atlanta Braves and .412 against the Cincinnati Reds last season.

Hereford Wins Legion Berth

Hereford's American Legion baseball team has won a berth in the 18th Congressional District tournament, which starts Wednesday in Borger and continues through Saturday.

Coach Kenny Hagar said this week that Hereford and Pampa had qualified for the four-team, double-elimination meet with Borger and Dumas expected to be the other two entries.

The winner of the tourney will meet the District 19 winner from Lubbock, with the regional champ advancing to the state tourney in Amarillo Aug. 14-18. The Amarillo teams are contesting for the host team berth in the state meet, drawing a bye on the district and regional levels.

Hereford has only a 2-6 won-lost mark in district play, but the two victories over Canyon enabled them to land a tourney berth. The locals played two practice games with Palo Duro the past week, winning one game and losing one.

Here's the Answer

Q.—Where can I get one of those freestanding fireplaces that come with a chimney stack and flue? I have seen them in newspapers and magazines.

A.—Many household supply dealers, large hardware stores and lumber yards can get them for you even if they don't carry them in stock.

Q.—We have a forced-warm-air system in our house. The air is heated by a furnace and propelled by a blower through ducts to registers in each room. We would like to install central air-conditioning. Can the same ducts be used for the cool air?

A.—In many cases, yes. In some, it would not be practical. Nobody can tell you except a heating engineer who makes a personal inspection.

Q.—I have taken off the old varnish from a bedroom bureau in order to refinish it. But there are three or four places where dark stain marks still remain. Even sanding won't take them off, as the marks seem to go very deep. How can I get them off?

A.—You'll have to bleach the entire area where the marks are. Use a commercial bleach, being careful to follow the container's instructions about washing off the residue. Use a clear sealer, sand it very lightly with a fine grade of sandpaper.

A TRIBUTE TO OUR ROTARIANS

Someone once said that it is the Rotarians who make the world go 'round! Perhaps that isn't entirely the case, but it is a recognized fact that the men whose emblem is the Wheel of Progress contribute much to America . . . and, more significantly, to our own city. Always eager to advance business, good fellowship and the general well-being of our community, these reliable Rotarians comprise a group of citizens of whom we're all mighty proud! With all sincerity we applaud their goals and their achievements. The Rotarians do things . . . in a big way!

Radiation Causes Concern

An orderly in a large metropolitan hospital drops a glass container full of radioactive material, inadvertently causing a potentially dangerous radiation hazard. State Health Department radiation officials are called in to supervise the removal of this hazardous substance and reduce any exposure to a minimum.

An 'out-of-the-ordinary' occurrence? Not really. Radiation accidents occur about 150 times each year. The hospital incident is only one of the many such radiation hazards or accidents brought to the attention of state health officials.

In addition to licensing and regulating use of radioactive materials and devices in Texas, the Occupational Health and Radiation Control Division of the State Health Department also maintains a stringent watch on radioactivity in our environment.

Recently, the Department asked the Environmental Protection Agency to send specialized equipment to South Texas to monitor areas surrounding uranium mining and milling operations. Officials wanted to be certain that tailings from these operations were not being used as construction fill material. If it existed, this situation could possibly pose a serious public health hazard. Although federal officials earlier found such a situation in Colorado, the State of Texas got a clean bill of health, primarily because of continuous surveillance by state radiation officials.

Although the bulk of their work lies in the licensing and regulation of commercial radioactive materials, these officials have a variety of interesting responsibilities. While routinely sampling the air for radiation and fallout, three separate monitoring stations in Texas detected a Chinese nuclear explosion. The small increase in radioactive fall-out was well below any significant health danger.

Many people may come in contact with radiation producing devices and not know it. More and more such devices are in use every day—microwave ovens and radar, for example. That is why the Department provides training in radiation safety, primarily for those who handle radioactive materials.

Although state involvement in radiation protection goes back more than 50 years, it was 1959 before state programs for radiation control and protection became an integral function of the State Health Department. Until then the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission held exclusive jurisdiction over radioactive materials. Licensing and regulation of radioactive materials in Texas was begun in 1963. Today, 1,140 such licenses are in effect. Equipment ranges from the huge irradiation machine which a company in San Angelo uses to sterilize medical products to a device used by a rock and mineral collector in Dallas.

All devices capable of producing ionizing radiation are required by State regulations to be registered. This includes medical, dental, veterinary, chiropractic, and industrial x-ray machines, electron microscopes and other such equipment. Estimates of the number of registrable devices in Texas vary from 15,000 to 25,000 or more.

No nuclear power reactors for generating electricity are presently located in Texas, although a few are now in the planning stages. The N.S. Savannah, the first nuclear powered merchant ship, used the Port of Galveston as its repair and refueling port. In addition to this mobile nuclear power reactor, six other smaller research reactors have been operated in the State. There are two each at General Dynamics in Fort Worth and Texas A&M University at College Station, one located on the campus of the University of Texas at Austin, and one formerly at Rice University in Houston. Although such reactors are licensed by the Atomic Energy Commission, the State Health Department also monitors their operation.

Interview With C.S. Mott

ALMOST READY—Camp Fire girls prepare for their summer camp session, preparing name tags, rating labels for the cleanliness of cabins, and the folding of the ceremonial tepee. The girls will leave for camp Makuwa July 23.

Campfire Summer Outing Chooses Indian Theme

BY LORI HOPSON
 Brand Staff Writer

Approximately 150 Camp Fire girls will depart Sunday morning, July 23 for the Enchanted Mountains for their annual session of summer camping.

Camp Makuwa, which means "camp in the enchanted mountains" is located 18 miles southeast of Taos, N.M. in the Sangre De Christo mountains. The girls will travel by bus to the camp, while counselors will leave the preceding day by automobile.

Theme for the camp this year is Mekuwa Indian Nation—one which stresses the interdependence of a group working together for the common good.

Each cabin will be named for an Indian tribe, and will have a symbol representing the tribal name on the door. The eight tribes will join to comprise an Indian Nation.

Carried out in the camp patch, which will be awarded to the girls in a special ceremonial assembly, is the theme of interdependence and brotherhood, or sisterhood, within the Indian Nation.

Girls learn of the culture, ceremonies, and way of life of the Indians in order to better understand them.

"The Indians have so much to offer," said Mrs. Lewis Lea, camp director, in a recent statement, "we are just now beginning to realize the beauty of their way of life."

Activities planned for the girls include arts and crafts, which will be instructed by Mrs. Glenn Watts, and will include the making of name tags for each girl. These will be characterized by a symbol representing a thunderbird, Indian symbol for happiness.

Also the girls will complete two pictorial accounts, one on canvas of the events of camp itself, and one, a mosaic on wood, the story of Camp Fire. These will be brought back and displayed in the Camp Fire lodge.

Mrs. Earnest Langley will serve as head of the Indian lore part of camp. The girls will complete work on their third tepee this year, which will be used for the council which will be held Friday evening.

A special outdoors program will keep the girls busy learning to survive with the minimum of supplies and labor.

A specially equipped chuch wagon will aid them in their outdoors activities which include overnight camping, and learning to use nature's raw materials to provide everything one needs.

The chuch wagon was donated by concerned people of this community, and by people from as far as Lubbock. It carries everything necessary for survival in the wilderness.

Camp activities will also include archery, riflery, horseback riding and swimming. A new feature which will be offered is canoeing.

A canoeing lake is now available, and girls will be able to learn the skills involved in canoeing here. If possible, when they have reached a high level of competency and skill, they will navigate a nearby river.

"However," said Mrs. Lea "We doubt if they will be able to learn enough about it this year to go to the river."

Younger campers will take field trips to the Kit Carson Museum, Indian pueblos, and the oldest church in Taos in the camp area.

An excursion is also planned for Junior high girls who are termed Discovery Club; Horizon club girls, on the high school level, have a dinner planned for their special activity.

In addition to 33 volunteer counselors who will aid the girls in their camping experiences, the camp staff will include two trained nurses for administering first aid, and six former Horizon Club girls, or specialists, who will serve as assistant directors.

These girls have attended the camp and have been members of Camp Fire Girls for the duration of their high school years. All six are recipients of the Wo He Lo medalion, the highest award given by the Camp Fire Organization.

Serving as specialists this year are Jeannie Coffin, Angela Grubbs, Holly Young, D'Ann Duke, Connie Matthews and Janet Baker, all 1972 HHS Graduates.

"They could have stopped working after graduation," says Mrs. Lea, "and we usually have a good number of parents here for our ceremonial."

"We cannot accommodate them at the camp overnight, but there are many inns and lodges in the area surrounding Taos, if they wish to stay overnight."

Mrs. Lea summed up one of the major aims of Camp Fire camp with these words; "We try to let the girls learn to do things they do not have an opportunity to do otherwise."

"We are indeed proud of our Camp Fire buses this year," says Mrs. Lea, "They have been completely overhauled inside and out. The Ford bus has bright new orange covers on the seats, and the Chevrolet has green. It makes you want to ride on the bus, since they are so nice on the inside now. They're also in perfect traveling condition."

Another new feature of the camp this year is a Sunday service for Catholic girls. Father Aedan Davis will visit the camp Sunday so that the Catholic girls will not miss their Sunday mass.

Sunday evening after the girls arrive at camp, another special worship service will be held by the Horizon club girls.

"The first law of Camp Fire is 'Worship God,'" says Mrs. Lea, "We want to make sure the girls have every opportunity to do so."

One facet of camp that most of the girls are looking forward to this year is the coming of the fourth graders—a group that will be making its debut at Camp Fire camp for the first time.

Their program will be adjusted to include folk games and round games instead of activities such as archery and riflery. "This is a really exciting change for all of us" says Mrs. Lea.

Each night during the week of camping will include something special for all the girls. These special activities include stunt night in which the girls perform for each other in short stunts or skits, Mountain Night, in which the girls hike up the mountain and gather around the camp fire to sing songs and roast marshmallows.

Also included is Cabin Night, where the girls have small parties in their cabins, and the counselors treat them to popcorn and snacks as they plan their performances for stunt night. There will also be a folk game party one night during the week.

Friday night is the highlight of the camp week. The girls hold an authentic Indian council and ceremonial in which awards are given in archery, riflery and all other camp activities.

"Parents of the girls are invited to attend," said Mrs. Lea, "and we usually have a good number of parents here for our ceremonial."

"We cannot accommodate them at the camp overnight, but there are many inns and lodges in the area surrounding Taos, if they wish to stay overnight."

Mrs. Lea summed up one of the major aims of Camp Fire camp with these words; "We try to let the girls learn to do things they do not have an opportunity to do otherwise."

"We are indeed proud of our Camp Fire buses this year," says Mrs. Lea, "They have been completely overhauled inside and out. The Ford bus has bright new orange covers on the seats, and the Chevrolet has green. It makes you want to ride on the bus, since they are so nice on the inside now. They're also in perfect traveling condition."

Another new feature of the camp this year is a Sunday

(Editor's note: The following is an interview with C.S. Mott, by Richard C. Pendell, editor and publisher of the Community Education Journal. Mott, the source of the Mott Foundation, through his efforts and money has been the key factor in developing community education. Richard Robinson, vocational director at Hereford High School, will be going to Flint, Mich. to learn more about community education, the Mott Foundation will pay his expenses during the two-week seminar from July 24 to August 6.)

Question: Did you ever believe when you started your community education program that it would become such a national crusade?

Mr. Mott: Certainly not. You don't start things that way. I didn't see the end, the finish, the way some people can see way off. We started doing more and more and as we found things that were good, we took them on until we used up the money we had in the foundation income.

Question: I have heard it commented that Dr. Frank Manley thought up so many of these good ideas you made the remark that you had to keep your nose to the grindstone trying to find the money to do all the things he wanted done.

Mr. Mott: Have you seen the 1970 report? If you've seen that you will know the multitude of activities the Foundation is doing. We also have the "Foundation for Living" book, which is the history of Community Education. You also should see the 1970 audit, which is a very complete record of all the investments we have made, all the income we have received, and how it has been used.

Question: We have the financial report, Mr. Mott, but some of our questions are a little different. What kind of a young fellow was this Frank Manley when you first met him?

Mr. Mott: About 1934 I first met Frank Manley. He was head of the athletic department and he had visions. He believed in progress for bigger and better education, health, recreation and vocation. I'm a very old Rotarian, but I remember very well attending a meeting in the Durant Hotel when this young fellow spoke about things that he knew about, namely that our schools were shut down, the doors locked at 3 o'clock and not used the rest of the day. He asked questions that many of us couldn't answer, "why couldn't schools be kept open and used a great many hours?" Why were youngsters locked out on Saturdays and Sundays so that their playgrounds were the streets? Why weren't the schools available to the adults, the people who paid for them, who owned them? Well, he first touched me for a few thousand, but he's a good fellow and more power to him, in spite of the fact that ever since we got acquainted we've had to run like Sam-Hill in order to keep up with him and to supply the finances necessary to put all his ideas into practice and most of them were good ideas."

Question: What actually attracted you to him?

Mr. Mott: The speech he made. What he said was very factual. Why shouldn't the schools be open? Who owns the schools? Why shouldn't the public use them? They pay for them, but aren't allowed to get in them. Well, after the speech all the Rotarians thought it was great, and they clapped; but there was only one guy that got hold of him and sounded him out. Me! I knew everybody else would forget it the following day, if not sooner, so I invited him to sit down with me and discuss some of his ideas. They were so sound, so practical that I told him we should present them to the Board of Education. Thus, began a very pleasant and satisfying relationship that has existed for 36 years.

Question: Since 1936 you have been interested in education, especially Community Education. You have given up trips abroad, and many other personal vacations, to concentrate on making Flint a showcase. Why are you so dedicated?

Mr. Mott: Actually, they look at me as a philanthropist, one kind or another. They have prescribed all sorts of names for what I've done, but actually

I'm a selfish person. I gave 90 percent of my wealth to the Foundation in order to do the things that would give me the greatest amount of pleasure. I am spending the money I earned one way or another in a manner that gives me the greatest happiness. In other words, I'm pleasing myself. I couldn't spend any of that money that I gave to the Foundation in any way that would please me more than the way I have been doing it and am doing it. It's a matter of fact that when you get right down to the nut of the thing, it's a matter of selfishness. I'm a selfish person, pleasing myself by doing the things that I like to do.

Question: Do you really believe that?

Mr. Mott: Certainly and we're lucky. I'll say the city of Flint is lucky to have a fool, a selfish person with the ability to do these things. There should be more cities with more people doing things like we have done in Flint. People in high income brackets would find they can get a lot of satisfaction in helping their fellow man.

Question: Mr. Mott, you are considered one of the wealthiest men in America. How did you amass such a great fortune?

Mr. Mott: A couple of lucky turns. My first lucky turn was in 1905. On Labor Day that year after much urging by Mr. William Durant we moved our wheel and axle factory (That's Weston-Mott factory) from Utica, New York to Flint, Michigan. Just previously to that in 1903, my partner, William Doolittle, and I acquired joint ownership of the Weston-Mott company from my uncle. (On February 1, 1907 Mr. Mott moved to Flint and in 1907 General Motors paid Mr. Mott and his partner General Motors stock for 49 percent of the Weston-Mott Company.) My second lucky turn was in 1913 when I exchanged my remaining 51 percent of Weston-Mott, previously purchased from my partner, for General Motors stock. Over the years that GM stock was to increase in value many, many times. This was a period of fantastic expansion, not only for our Weston-Mott Company, but also for General Motors.

Question: When and why did you first start the Mott Foundation?

Mr. Mott: I believe we started the Mott Foundation first in 1926. At that time we had assets of approximately $340,000.00. Our last financial report showed that as of 1970 the Foundation's assets were $287,000,000.00. Our first program, when we opened up five schools, cost $6,000.00, a budget of about $1,000 for each of the five schools and another $1,000 for the athletic program. I remember the board thought we were opening up the schools to the possibility of vandalism, damage and so forth and we were all pleasantly surprised when this did not happen.

I remember that Frank Manley was disappointed when we only started with five schools, but at the end of the year he said, "You were absolutely right, because that five was a handful." We have been learning ever since. Now we have practically all the schools in Flint carrying on programs as a community school center, but I found the same thing in the Foundation work as I found in business. It takes friendship and common sense. Frank Manley was the sparkplug. He was the fellow who thought up all these things. After he once got started, every year he's had more things to propose, more ideas to experiment with, more things to be done and he's kept us on the run ever since.

Question: What was the basic idea in developing Flint as a community school center?

Mr. Mott: The birth of the Mott Program, as we know it today, developed many different ideas. However, we soon realized that we were no Fort Knox, and no foundation or combination of foundations could institute community schools all over the country. So, we decided to make Flint the experimental city and bring people from all over the country to see what was going on in Flint. I believe it all stemmed from the opening of the Freeman Community School in 1951, which was the first school designed specifically with Community Education in mind. As more and more people came and looked at the school, they said, "That's what we want for our community." So, the work of our Foundation has become more of a research proposition now.

Question: Has the Foundation work kept you busy?

Mr. Mott: I have been busy working night and day to produce the finances to carry on the programs that have sprung up over the course of the years. I'm perfectly willing to say, "I don't mind that the least darn bit." As a matter of fact, all the programs that Frank Manley has brought up have turned out wonderfully well. I have gotten more pleasure out of doing the things that he and his capable staff have suggested (and he has developed a very wonderful staff) than anything else that I could do. Twice I have turned down vacations in Europe, because I was more interested in doing Foundation work here in Flint.

I remember one meeting when Frank had 250 outsiders in to look at what was happening in Flint. They were so enthusiastic and so interested that I said to Frank, "I'll be tickled to death when you get 10,000 people coming to see what we're doing here." (14,000 visited Flint in 1971.) We have many invitations asking us to go to other cities to tell other people what we're doing in Flint. I wouldn't give two cents for that. If you told them, they might be interested while you told them, but the next day they would have forgotten all about it. As a matter of fact, when we get the people here to see these things, almost all of them say, "Well, we wouldn't have believed it if we hadn't seen it." But, we are so convinced that the basic thing we are doing is good for the American people, that we want it to spread outside of Flint. We know we can't finance and support community schools all over, so we have concentrated on making Flint a demonstration center, and researching the ideas that can help "People and America!"

Question: In my travels around the country I have heard so many people comment on the warm hospitality shown them when they've come to visit, as well as the inspiration that they've received while here. Is this part of your plan?

Mr. Mott: It's only by demonstrating it here in Flint and inviting people to come and see what is going on and satisfy themselves that it can be done that we can accomplish what we're trying to do. Many people say to me when they are ready to depart, "Mr. Mott, we want to thank you. We've enjoyed this a lot and we're very much obliged to you." I answer them by saying, "You don't owe me anything at all. We want to thank you for coming here, because you're doing your part to carry out what we hope to accomplish. We couldn't accomplish it unless you came to Flint to see what is happening." I'd like to point out that all this credit that has come to me is not entirely deserved. Dollars are the cheapest thing in the world. People are the most important. We've had wonderful people here in Flint who have developed these programs. I have produced the finances, but Frank and these other fellows have produced the results. I really give them the praise for having accomplished all these things. But, I tell you now, I'm happier doing what I'm doing than anything else I could do. I wouldn't change places with anybody on earth, even the President of the United States or anybody else, because I'm happier doing what I can do, helping to carry out financially, the things that my associates in this project, the Mott Foundation, present and carry on. I couldn't retire if I wanted to. There are too many things still to be done. The only thing that could stop me would be ill health. As long as I live I'll be desirous of continuing my happiness and pleasure in doing things and accomplishing the results that we have been experimenting with in our community education program.

Question: Mr. Mott, after 96 years of life on this continent and 45 years of concentrated philanthropy, what advice would you have for young people today?

Mr. Mott: I suppose it depends upon whether you're talking to a son or a grandson. The grandson might be more likely to accept the suggestions of the old man more readily than the son. I have discovered, that most fathers and sons have to hunt to find out anything that they can agree on.

But as a word of advice - They should learn to use their common sense - Brains are all well and good, but without common sense they are useless. It doesn't make any difference how many brains you've got if you don't use them a common sense way. As my estate started getting larger and larger I wasn't willing to wait until I died to distribute it. I made 12 trusts, two for each of my six children. Each of them receive the interest, but they can't touch the principal. The trusts are in the name of the grandchildren. When we set up the trusts we paid 57 percent gift tax, but things have turned out well for them. They're all lousy with money.

Question: Getting back to Community Education, what advantages do you think Community Education has for America?

Mr. Mott: Any way you look at it, when you involve people in community activity you are improving the community as well as the person. The community school is a great blessing to the people, the ones that enter into it and become a part of it. A community school provides a person the opportunity to participate, the opportunity to mix, the opportunity to develop. It provides them opportunities to take advantage of lessons that can be taught in these various schools. It's an opportunity to improve their education, their training. One of the gentlemen in Washington said, "What we need is more jobs." Well, pick up any paper. You'll read one column where people want jobs, but there will be four columns wanting people to take certain jobs. What we need is the training and retraining to fit people for the jobs that are available. Community schools provide this type of training. By training these people to qualify for available jobs we restore their dignity and pride in themselves, something that putting them on welfare has destroyed. We can't have craftsmanship in this country unless we have workers who take pride in themselves and what they are accomplishing.

Question: What are some of the highlights, the things that you consider your greatest accomplishments over the last several years? What particular program in Community Education means the most to you?

Mr. Mott: Our adult high school would have to be among the top. If you ever talked to the graduates, people who dropped out of high school, later realized their mistake, came back and finished high school and went on to better jobs, even to colleges and that sort of thing, you realize what a great help it is to the individual.

Certainly one of our greatest accomplishments has been our junior college. We have 10 or 15,000 junior college people walking on the grass where I used to feed eight cows. I think that's a great accomplishment.

We've got a couple of thousand or more students attending a branch of the University of Michigan. This is a great accomplishment. At one time this goddamn city of Flint had practically no college at all. They had a makebelieve junior college, but it was nothing—167 students or something. I told Frank if he could pass a bond issue for a junior college, I'd give him a million dollars to start a community college. The people of Flint passed the bond issue four to one. Now look what we've got. It's grown so large that it's been taken over by the county. We have, I guess, about 15,000 students registered this year. But, the most important fact is that Flint is an industrial town, and the workers didn't have funds enough to send their children to the University of Michigan, Michigan State or other colleges where the cost of living is 12 to 1500 or more a year. Now we have a college where these kids can live at home, where they have small fees for the classes, where they have an opportunity to learn, improve and advance themselves, to make the most of their talents. We don't have anybody coming in here that we have to build dormitories for and invest several days when the moon is over them in brick and mortar. We're interested in people and we're looking out for the commating territory of Flint. Let other communities copy us. Other towns could do the same thing. Actually people with good incomes don't seem to realize how much pleasure they can derive at small net cost to themselves. Today with the government taking 90 percent of certain tax brackets, if that 90 percent were spent in charitable, philanthropic activities, such as education, these people could get a great feeling of accomplishment. I can't pose as any real philanthropist. What makes me tick is this satisfying feeling of accomplishment. Other communities could have these same things if the leaders would only take the time and trouble to develop them.

Question: Mr. Mott, what is the future of Community Education?

Mr. Mott: I see the community education concept spreading all over the United States—yes even to other parts of the world. Some foreign countries have already adopted it, you know!

I see people becoming involved in their local problems, their state, their national problems. They will work together solving these problems, developing new ways of doing things, and as they work together there will develop closer feelings of friendship, cooperation and understanding which will work towards solving some of the great social problems threatening this nation. Just because we are the greatest nation in the world doesn't mean we don't have to fight to keep it. One of the biggest problems facing us is inflation. Unless we can control inflation there will be another bust coming. We've had eight busts in my lifetime, so far, and I predict a ninth. One of the basic things that education must teach people is that they can't spend more than they take in. The United States government has got to realize this too. One of the basic economic facts of life, and I don't care whether Democrat, Republican or what they are, they must understand this and if you don't you'll have darn good men running the country and the country saved. If you don't, good night!

We need to help people learn about this. If we don't teach children, parents and communities these economic facts of life then we are in trouble.

Small Talk

BY SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

YOU CAN EASILY tell that summer is half over, or a little more than half when you consider that school will begin the fall term away up in August again this year.

The way to tell, though, is by listening to the vacationers. The past few weeks they were all rushing to leave on trips. Now they are getting back home from trips, less enthusiastic but happy to tell you about it all.

THE MARLIN GILLILANDS got back this week from Colorado, up at the Uralin Streus' resort in the mountains where they have been every summer since Jean and Uralin began operating it.

There wasn't time for them to tell me about the fishing — and I suppose they fished because that resort brags about its trout streams — but Eva and Marlin did say that both their granddaughters went with them on the vacation, the latter adding something about it being "sort of strenuous for Grandpa."

ALSO FROM COLORADO, Caudie Ola Brown is at home after more than a month in Sterling, visiting the A. T. Kinseys. Mrs. Kinsey is her daughter, the former Colline Brown of Hereford.

Caudie Ola went with the family to Denver, Estes Park and other places in Colorado. She thought she would make me envious when she said it was so cool up in the vacation state that they had turned on the furnace on the Fourth of July.

So I had to tell her about our cold days in July, and hauling out the electric heater and the blankets that had already been put in storage.

As a longtime West Texan, she wasn't too much surprised after she thought about some summer weather she remembers. She promptly topped my story with a tale about going to a July 4th picnic at Westway in the 1920's, when sleet fell.

And I'm not arguing with her about that, because it wasn't yesterday that I came to West Texas.

THE REASON GLADYS Carroll's arm is in a sling for a few weeks is a cracked bone, resulting from a fall, in her own kitchen of course.

She stepped up on a chair to reach something, even as you and I, and besides she insists that a chair is solidier than a step-stool and she is probably right. Anyway, the fall was no fault of the chair.

As she stepped down, she didn't know her little dog was in the kitchen and, naturally, right in the place where her foot was aimed. Stepping on the dog was the cause of the tumble which gave her some painful bruises in addition to the bone injury.

The arm doesn't hurt too badly, but is awfully inconvenient, she says.

IT WON'T SHUT! — Grace Abalos, Beverly Auten, Teresa Rhoton, Donna Kendall and Sandra Willis have a hard time closing the trunk Thursday morning when 18 girls belonging to Acteens of First Baptist Church left for Glorieta, N.M. to attend a church camp during the week.

18 Acteens Go To Camp For Week

Acteens of First Baptist Church left Thursday morning for a week-long spiritual camp held in Baptist Campgrounds at Glorieta, N.M. Eighteen girls and their sponsors are participating in the activities.

The camp is a nation-wide activity in which Acteens have been involved the past two years. Members of the group range in age from junior high to high school.

Participants will live in cabins and will attend conference, religious meetings and have missionaries present speeches on the work they have been involved in.

Girls that are attending from Hereford raised money for the camp through a car wash that they sponsored recently.

NEWCOMERS TO HEREFORD — Visiting Hereford Newcomers Club at its luncheon Tuesday were Mrs. Kenneth Hutson, Mrs. Tommy Sursa and Mrs. Jimmy Hutson. The three women and their families have recently moved here from Clarendon.

Dress Revue Big in 4-H

Senior winner in the annual Deaf Smith County 4-H Dress Revue Friday was Sue Shirley, with Diane VanZandt placing first in the intermediate division and Debbie McPherson among juniors.

They will represent the county in district competition at Amarillo July 31. For the first time, district winners in junior and intermediate contests will be named. Previously, judging was in the senior event only and the younger girls appeared as models but did not compete.

The county revue was held in the new Medallion Room of Deaf Smith County Electric Co-operative Friday evening, when an audience of parents and friends saw 4-H Club girls present a fashion revue to model costumes they had made. Judges' selections were announced at the close.

Runners-up in the three divisions were Mary Kay Wagner, senior; her sister Joan, intermediate, and Stephanie Paetzold, junior. Garments modeled by the girls were judged for workmanship Friday morning in Community Center. In the revue, judges noted appearance, fit and suitability to the wearer.

Miss Shirley's winning costume was an all-wool dress and coat ensemble, the royal blue color of the coat matching one of the stripes in the dress which blended several shades of blue with browns and purple. To complete her outfit she wore blue suede boots.

A pantsuit ensemble was made and worn by Miss Wagner, its long navy skirt slit to reveal white hotpants, and its white sleeveless jacket layered over a polka-dot blouse.

Among those from here who are planning to attend the Dallas Institute are: Homer Garrison, Sam Long and Jeanne Coker from Ralph Owens & Associates.

Jan Miller, Walter Eeds Are Married Saturday

Marriage vows of Miss Jan Susan Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Miller, 418 Star, and Walter Chapman Eeds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll D. Eeds of Lockhart, were repeated in an afternoon ceremony Saturday in First Christian Church sanctuary.

The wedding party stood before seven-branch candelabra twined with English ivy and holding altar tapers. Bouquets of white gladiolas and carnations with fresh foliage were placed at either side.

The Rev. Eugene K. Brink, minister, read the wedding service. Miss Dee Ann Miller attended her sister as maid of honor and Beirne Eeds of Lockhart was his brother's best man.

In the bridesmaids' rainbow procession were Miss Darlene Naney of Houston, Mrs. Gregg Richards of Boys Ranch, Miss Debbie McAninch of San Marcos and Miss Frances Campbell of Falls City.

Groomsmen were Ralph K. Williams and Ronnie McKean of Austin, Ronnie Royal of Lockhart and Larry Schaefer. Serving with them as an usher was Bruce Germer of Lockhart.

Small members of the wedding were Patti McCrary, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J.H. McCrary, as flower girl and Scott Calkins, son of the Tony Calkins, ring bearer.

As a prelude to the ceremony John McCrary lighted candles and Ben Gollehon presented solos, One Hand One Heart and We've Only Just Begun, with organ accompaniment by Mrs. Joe Hacker, who played the marches. He also sang The Lord's Prayer.

Flowing in slightly circular cut from a deep yoke of heavy lace, the bride's Camelot gown had a high neckline and full sleeves gathered to wide lace cuffs.

Of white polyanza, it was styled with back fullness extending to a train and over it fell a longer illusion veil edged with lace and caught to a Guinevere cap. Her luck piece was a necklace made of a gold piece belonging to her great-uncle. She carried white roses circled with daisies.

Gowns of her attendants formed a rainbow of pastel hues. The honor attendant wore pink miramist; other dresses were in green, yellow, blue and orchid, styled alike with empire bodice and skirt ruffled at the hemline.

Each bridesmaid wore a picture hat and carried a basket of daisies in colors to match her gown.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Miller chose a pink knit coat dress and the bridegroom's mother wore a dress and coat ensemble of similar color, both matched in accessories and with orchid corsage.

Guests wished the couple happiness at a reception in the church fellowship hall, before the newlyweds left on a New Mexico trip. For travel Mrs. Eeds changed to a pink crepe empire dress accessorized in white, and wore the cluster of roses from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Mike Davis of Amarillo and Mrs. Brad Johnson served cake at the reception while Mrs. Mark Hicks and Miss Debby Ferguson of Houston laddled punch. Miss Deanne Allen was at the registry.

The tiered cake, in heart shape, was decorated with daisies in rainbow colors. The bridesmaids' flower baskets were set to circle a crystal candle holder centering the pink net table cover, its fully gathered skirt caught with pink bows.

After a short trip the couple will be at home at Apartment 37, Blue Water Gardens.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Eeds hold degrees from Southwest State University at San Marcos. She is teaching in Tierra Blanca Elementary School here and he Miss Marnell wore a gown of organza, with venise lace covering the empire bodice and forming the stand-up collar, cap of the full sheer sleeves, and cuffs. The skirt was fully gathered with a bow on the back and a sheer train.

She chose a camelot headpiece covered with matching lace and an elbow length veil and carried a cascade of pink roses, gardenias and stephanotis.

The bride's attendants wore gowns with strawberry pink chiffon empire waists and floral print skirts. The waistline was accented with a hot pink sash and a ruffle adorned the hemline. Sheer sleeves completed the gowns.

Each bridesmaid wore a picture hat with pink orchids gathered with matching ribbons at the back. They carried cascades of pompons and orchids with greenery.

For a reception in the Knights of Columbus Hall, a five-tier colonnade bride's cake was topped with sugar doves and kissing angel figurines. Four heart-shaped cakes formed the base, all decorated in the bride's selected colors.

Vineyard-Carlson Vows Solemnized At Dumas

Miss Shirley Jean Vineyard became the bride of Roy Carlson in a Saturday evening wedding ceremony at First Christian Church in Dumas. The Rev. Joe Lacy of First Christian Church in Chickasha, Okla. officiated.

Miss Vineyard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Vineyard of Dumas. Carlson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Carlson, Rt. 4.

Mrs. Charlie Harris of Dumas, soloist, sang More, Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee and The Wedding Prayer accompanied by Joe Mack Hill.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown fashioned by her sister, Mrs. Kerry Scott. Of white silk miramist, it had an empire waistline, stand-up collar and long full sleeves ending in wide cuffs. The skirt rounded into a train and was accented with a bow in the back.

Her veil of silk illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearl apple blossoms, borrowed from her sister. She wore a ring of opals and amethysts belonging to a great aunt and a necklace, gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Vineyard carried a bouquet of pink sensation and Jack Frost roses and gypsophilia.

Mrs. Scott, of Tatum, N.M., was her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. Jim Cabe of Amarillo bridesmaid. Jimmy Campbell of Raton, N.M. was best man with Gary Clements as groomsmen.

Ushering guests were Richard Kendall and Richard Barrett. Cindy Garrett of Garland and Lonnie Ritchey of Dumas were junior bridesmaid and groomsmen.

Cheri Scott, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Debbie Bouldin, niece of the bridegroom and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bouldin of Carrollton, was ring bearer.

The bride's attendants wore floor length gowns made in pastel rainbow colors of lavender, yellow and green with empire waistline and bell sleeves. Headpieces of flowers on net veils matched the color of the dresses.

Each attendant carried a bouquet of summer flowers with trim to match the dress. The flower girl carried a basket of white and pink rose petals.

The couple knelt at an altar with arrangements of mixed summer flowers on either side and the pews were decorated with lavender satin bows.

At center back of the chapel was an arrangement of mixed foliage in a brass container. On each side a 15-branch candelabrum was decorated with foliage and lavender bows.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Vineyard wore a pink dress with accordin pleated skirt and fitted lace bodice and sleeves with pink accessories.

Mrs. Carlson wore a pale blue dress of polyester styled with mandarin neckline, slightly fitted bodice and long sleeves with white accessories. Both mothers had corsages of cymbidium orchids.

A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church with Mrs. Roy Bouldin, sister of the bridegroom, registering guests.

Mrs. Joe Bagwell of Dumas served the three-tiered white cake decorated with pastel rosettes and a spiral candle-lighting stairway leading to a miniature bride and groom topping the cake.

The table was covered with an imported white linen cloth centered with an anniversary candle and bouquets of the bride and her attendants.

Mrs. Richard Kendall poured punch and coffee assisted by Mrs. Bruce Logan, Mrs. Dick Sims and Miss Beverly Barrett.

For a wedding trip to New Mexico and Colorado the bride wore a three-piece red and white suit with matching accessories and a corsage of roses.

The couple will be at home after July 19 at 722 Thunderbird, No. 3.

A teacher at Bluebonnet Elementary School here, Mrs. Carlson is a graduate of West Texas State University and a member of Chi Omega, Mu Phi Epsilon. She graduated from Dumas High School.

Carlson, currently engaged in farming, graduated from WTSU where he was a member of Block and Bridle; he is a graduate of Hereford High School.

Wedding guests from Hereford, in addition to the Lawrence Carlsons, were Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Janssen, Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter, Mrs. Louise Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Foster, the Ronnie Osborns, Betty Barrett and Roger Barrett.

From other cities, guests were Mrs. J.C. Garrett, Randy and Kerry Garrett of Garland, the Jim Campbells of Raton, N.M., the Jim Cobles of Canyon, Kerry Scott of Tatum.

A rehearsal dinner Friday evening was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Carlson. Pre-

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:
"What is home? A roof to keep out the rain. Four walls to keep out the cold. Yes, but home is more than that. It is the laugh of a baby, the song of a mother, the strength of a father. Warmth of loving hearts, light from happy eyes, kindness, loyalty, comradeship. Home is first church and first school for young ones, where they learn what is good, what is right and what is kind. Where they go for comfort when they are hurt or sick. Where joy is shared and sorrow eased. Where fathers and mothers are respected and loved. Where children are wanted. Where the simplest

Who Will Pay?

DO THE CANDIDATES UNDERSTAND THE ECONOMY?

MIAMI BEACH — It used to be said that the most miraculous thing about the American economy is its ability to survive almost any degree of mismanagement.

Ten years ago that seemed to be true.

But today, we live in a different economic era. A frightening outbreak of serious inflation has proven that government cannot continuously spend more than it takes in. The end of nearly 100 years of trade surpluses tells us that, internationally, we must start working for a living again. Ten years of accelerated spending has demonstrated only that we do not really know how best to use our resources for the solution of deep-rooted social problems. A bad recession has made it unmistakably clear that there are limits to the amount of government fiscal and monetary mismanagement the private sector can bear.

The American people have a right to expect their leaders to learn from these costly experiences. They have a right to expect realism, truth and responsibility in the formulation of national economic policy.

Election Year Promises

Unfortunately, the evidence so far in this election year is that the people are being cheated in that expectation. Those who loudly decry the "old politics" in one breath go on, with the next, to promise everyone much more than the economy can deliver.

Promising more than the economy can deliver is a cruel, dishonest and dishonorable game.

The average American knows that you don't get something for nothing in life. But the average American does not have the means to estimate the productive capacity of the economy or to calculate the practical limits to the fundraising ability of the government. He therefore must trust his political leaders to take these factors into consideration.

Too often, he is betrayed in that trust. Time and again, expensive new government programs are presented with no thought to their cost. Either nothing is said about the hard choices that must be made to finance them, or worse, it is suggested by those who really know better that the money can easily be extracted from the defense budget, the "super rich," and the "big corporations."

A little simple arithmetic demonstrates the total fallacy of that position. Congress has been asked to pass a health care plan that would cost the government $60 billion a year, and a welfare bill that would cost $80 billion. These two programs alone total $140 billion. The federal budget deficit for fiscal 1973 is now expected to be $30 billion. Adding these two programs to the projected deficit gives us proposed expenditures of $170 billion in excess of current revenues.

Who Will Pay?

Could the defense budget, the "super rich" and corporate profit pay that bill? If we confiscated all corporate profits — 100 per cent — we would add about $48 billion to present federal revenues. The entire defense budget would yield another $76.5 billion. Taking all the personal income of the people who make $100,000 a year or more would increase revenues by $8.5 billion. The three together total $133 billion. That's still $37 billion short of the money needed to cover just two of the proposed welfare programs plus the expected deficit. The figures graphically illustrate how far from reality some thinking has fled.

The Brookings Institution has pointed out that barring a tax increase, deficit spending will be required until at least 1977 just to pay for existing programs and those proposed in the 1973 budget.

In short, there is no money for new programs and there is no "painless" source of new revenue. We must either give up old programs to pay for the new, or we must accept a massive tax increase, a tax increase that will hit hardest at the middle class.

Disasters Drain Red Cross Funds

During the year we have faced the startling reality of devastating disasters, known as the Kentucky Floods, Buffalo Creek River Flood, Southwest Texas Floods and Tornadoes, and now the Black Hills, South Dakota, Floods of 1972, probably the worst in 35 years. The immediate reports of the death and grief, of the destruction and loss, has been made well known. The aftermath, a month or two later, receives little publicity. The obvious is taken for granted and is not newsworthy.

The obvious is that Red Cross acts immediately at the time of disaster. The obvious is that the disasters reported in the news, plus many others not in the news, cost money. Even though Red Cross budgeted the past two years over $21,000,000 for disasters, we have already spent in excess of $37,000,000 and over half, $19,726,689, has been for disasters in the Midwestern Area. This means 27.7 per cent of all budgeted disaster funds were spent for victims in Midwestern Area alone. We certainly should appreciate the importance of this service.

Sunday evening, E. Roland Harriman, Chairman, and George M. Elsey, President of the American Red Cross, announced the quoad campaign for $5,000,000. I am confident the Midwestern Area chapter leaders and the people in our communities do appreciate the work of the Red Cross on the disasters in our area that have drained our funds, and will vigorously support this campaign called for by our national leaders.

In order to help alleviate the sufferings of the Victims of these Disasters, Red Cross is stressing the urgency of the need for Contributions to the disaster fund. Those wishing to contribute are asked to send their Contributions to the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross at Box 1371, Hereford, Texas or bring by the office at 319 Sampson St.

Hurricanes Draw Attention, Money

By Bert Mills

Washington, D.C.—Hurricane Agnes caused the worst floods in the nation's history in late June, setting off a massive reaction by the Federal government to assist the five Eastern states where disaster struck hardest.

With the list continuing to mount, 142 counties and 25 cities in Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, Virginia, and Florida have been declared disaster areas, eligible for Federal recovery assistance. Every county in Pennsylvania, a total of 67, has been designated by President Nixon as a disaster area.

Pennsylvania suffered the worst economic disaster in its history, with at least 50 deaths, 250,000 people homeless, 100 communities without enough drinking water; and, total damages expected to exceed $1 billion. The Red Cross has estimated 37,000 Pennsylvania families suffered flood losses.

Washington was flooded too but the Administration and Congress concentrated on the larger problem of aiding recovery in the five-state area. Before the flood waters had receded in many places, President Nixon asked Congress for an extra $100 million in disaster relief funds.

In three days, Congress voted twice that much, an unprecedented $200 million. Adding the regular appropriation, that means there is nearly $300 million available immediately for recovery efforts. The President signed the emergency bill one day after Congress acted.

O.E.P. Administers Relief Program

The President's Office of Emergency Preparedness administers the Disaster Relief Fund. The money goes for temporary housing, debris removal, reconstruction of roads and bridges, and disaster unemployment compensation.

There are other disaster aid programs that are separately funded, such as repairs to highways, Small Business Administration and Farmers Home Administration loans, and Office of Education grants to restore public schools.

More than 20 departments and agencies are directly involved in flood relief efforts, in cooperation with state and local authorities. What happens when the local Post Office is flooded? In Plymouth, Pa., mail operations were shifted to the local high school, with 70 per cent service restored at last report. In Wilkes-Barre, Pa., postal clerks report to work in Scranton, and manage to render 60 per cent of normal service.

Internal Revenue Service plays a dual role in flood relief. As the enforcement arm of the economic stabilization program, it seeks to prevent price gouging due to shortages. More importantly, it has ready cash for taxpayers who suffered flood losses. After Agnes struck, Congress added a rider to a bill that became law on July 1, allowing accelerated tax refunds for disaster losses.

A flood victim may recoup his or her 1971 Federal tax and deduct any disaster losses suffered by June 30, 1972. IRS staff members are assigned to O.E.P. Disaster Assistance Centers, of which 29 were operating in Pennsylvania by July 3, to expedite claims for tax refunds by flood victims.

Refunds are available to both individuals and corporations. While IRS has promised "quick" payments, the program will have to be administered with unusual tolerance and understanding. A man who has lost his house has probably lost all his records, and the same goes for a company which has suffered a devastating flood.

D.C. A 2,000 Foot Lake

How bad a storm was Agnes, the hurricane which did most of its damage after it ceased to be a hurricane and reverted to what is officially described as "a tropical storm"? The worst in history, from the standpoint of damage by flooding, the Weather Bureau has concluded.

The District of Columbia occupies a 67-square mile area. If considered a dry lake, Agnes dumped enough water on the East coast to fill D.C. to a depth of 2,000 feet! The drying out process is going to take weeks, and paying the bill will take years. Every taxpayer will make a contribution, for that $200 million Congress appropriated is considered only a downpayment.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., a city of 40,000, may have been hardest hit by Agnes. A veteran Congressman from that city made the motion to increase the relief appropriation 100 per cent. There is irony in the fact that his name is Daniel Flood.

From The Brand Files . . .

50 YEARS AGO

The fire department made a beautiful run Wednesday forenoon on a call to the old Miller place in Northeast Hereford, now occupied by Clarence Biggs. The blaze was just getting a good start when the chemical engine dashed up and stopped the spread of the flames without further ado. . . . It has been several years since Hereford attempted a community Fourth of July celebration and there is no recent precedent by which to judge the results of last Tuesday's efforts. But the almost universal comment heard is to the effect that there has never been a smoother, better handled, more successful occasion attempted here in a public way. . . .

35 YEARS AGO

Postal receipts, which are generally considered as an index to business conditions, took a decided upward trend in Hereford as the quarter ended June 30, showing a gain of $336.98 over the same period in 1936. . . . Two softball teams for girls have been formed here and will meet in a special game Friday night at 8:30 under the lights on the local field. . . . Prospects for more than a million bushels of wheat for this territory seemed probable this week as the harvest season continued and farmers worked day and night in an effort to get their wheat to elevators. . . .

20 YEARS AGO

Potatoes stepped into the Deaf Smith County spotlight this week as prospects of a $2 1/2 million crop in this immediate territory appeared probable. . . . It was a thunderous showdown as victory-starved Republicans took their stand for the 1952 presidential election. The declared purpose of the GOP platform builders was to complete a campaign structure of triangulaf planks. One side was concerned chiefly with winning voter support in November. It outlined the party's position on foreign policy, labor, civil rights, corruption, farm support and other key questions. The other two sides were shaped and polished to mirror views acceptable to both moderates and extreme rightists in the party. . . .

10 YEARS AGO

Area onion and potato producers are facing a "favorable market situation" at the present time, shed owners and shippers said late last week as the 1962 crops began pouring into Hereford sheds for processing, grading and shipping to national markets. . . . Bank deposits and assets reported in Hereford for the second half of 1962 fell short of the record high posted during the first quarter of the year but still set a record. . . . Hereford's American Legion baseball team celebrated the Fourth of July by firing rocket-like hits against a hapless Canyon team here. . . .

Talk Of Texas

By Jack Maguire

BY ANY OTHER NAME—The bluebonnet, any kind of bluebonnet, is the official state flower of Texas. But it wasn't always so.

In 1901, the Legislature (over the objections of a young representative from Uvalde named John Nance Garner) approved the Lupinus subcarneus as the official state flower. The plant, long known in Texas as "buffalo clover," actually is an import from the Mediterranean.

This variety of the lupin remained the Texas flower until March 8, 1971. On that date, Governor Preston Smith signed a resolution which also declared the Lupinus texensis and any other variety of the bluebonnet to be the official blossom of the Lone Star State.

TEXANS AT WORK—Houston is the kite capital of the U.S.

One company in the port city keeps 80 employees busy turning out 20,000 of the high fliers every working day. During peak periods, the plant has made up to 65,000 kites in a day. The kites, all deluxe models not intended for the unsophisticated flier, sell from a dollar to $6 each.

DOUBLE DUTY—Dr. J. Frank Norris, controversial Baptist evangelist in Texas until his death in 1952, had the unusual distinction of serving as simultaneous pastor of two of America's largest churches.

His First Baptist Church of Fort Worth had more than 12,000 members and an average attendance of more than 5,000 each Sunday that Norris was in the pulpit. In 1935, he also assumed the pastorate of the Temple Baptist Church in Detroit, Mich., while continuing to serve the Fort Worth church. In nine years, he built the membership in the Detroit church from 800 to more than 8,000 members.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?—Nixon, Gonzales County, used to pride itself on the fact that the majority of its 1,925 citizens always voted the Democratic ticket in national elections.

BUS TO THE SEA—In Texas it is possible to go sailing on a regularly scheduled bus.

Four times daily in each direction, coaches of the Texas Bus Lines ride the ferries of the State Highway Department between Galveston and Port Bolivar.

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher

Dear editor:

After some long and hard thinking I have come up with a solution to the airplane hijacking problem, and it's about time.

As you know, the airlines and the government have tried nearly everything to stop the crime, from hiring sky patrolmen to ride shotgun to using all sorts of metal detecting devices to trying to psychoanalyze each passenger as he goes through the turn stile, but people keep on hijacking planes, getting on board with everything from long-bladed knives to sawed-off shotguns.

The thing simply can't go on, so I'm offering a solution free of charge and I wonder why nobody else has thought of it.

Although it would be the ultimate in preventing anybody from carrying weapons aboard, the country, at least the part of it I'm familiar with, just isn't ready yet to fly nude, therefore the airlines should do the next best thing.

First, install two dressing rooms at every airport between the ticket window and the gate leading to the planes, one for men, one for women. When a passenger shows up he goes in, undresses, hands all his clothes to an attendant, is inspected in the raw from head to foot, and is then given a flight suit to wear aboard the plane. His clothes, his hand luggage, her purse in the case of a woman, are all put in a sack, tagged, and stored in the baggage compartment of the plane.

Landing at his destination, the passenger goes to the dressing room, gets out of his flight suit and into his street clothes, and gets a cab for the two hour or so ride into town.

I guarantee under this system nobody's going to get on a plane carrying a hijacking weapon. Everybody may be dressed alike in those flight suits, but it'll beat going to Cuba or Algeria or sitting in a plane on the runway while the airline rounds up half a million dollars in small bills.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Nahrgang-Downey Vows Solemnized

Sunshine yellow and white blossoms with a background of green foliage made the setting for an evening ceremony Saturday when Miss Glenda Nahrgang and Alvin Downey were married in Immanuel Lutheran Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Nahrgang, Route 4, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Downey of Grady, New Mexico. The Rev. Herman Schelter, pastor of the church, conducted the marriage service.

Tall vases held yellow daisies, white carnations and gladiolas on either side of a green arch decorated with wedding bells and white satin bows in the front of the church.

Miss Judy Cargo sang the wedding solos, The Lord's Prayer and Whither Thou Goest, with Mrs. Joe Hacker as the accompanist who also played organ selections.

Attended by her sister, Miss Brenda Nahrgang, as maid of honor, the bride had Miss Diane Downey of Grady, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. James Head of Friona and Mrs. Joe Muse of Denver as bridesmaids.

Thomas Wyatt of Grady was best man, Dwain Downey and Alan Sumrall of Grady and James Atkins of Clayton the groomsmen-ushers. Another brother of the bridegroom, David Downey, lighted candles. Becky, daughter of the Richard G. Laymans, was flower girl and the bride's brother, Johnny, carried the rings.

A princess gown of bridal satin with bateau neckline and petal-point sleeves was worn by the bride. Lace appliques ornamented the sleeves, center front, hemline and chapel train.

Back interest was in tiny buttons fastening the gown, and a bustle bow topping the train just below the waistline. A jeweled lace flower held the elbow length veil of illusion edged in lace. Her bouquet was a cascade of yellow sweetheart roses and white carnations.

For something old, she wore the wedding ring of her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Victor Nahrgang of Mangum, Oklahoma.

The bridal attendants dressed alike, in empire gowns of yellow dotted Swiss with short puffed sleeves. They carried white and yellow daisies in lace baskets.

The bride's mother wore a knit dress in green and yellow figured design while Mrs. Russell Downey chose an apricot knit. Both costumes were accented with white accessories and the corsages were of orchids.

At the reception at the Flame Room, Mrs. David Brand, the bridegroom's sister, cut the wedding cake and Mrs. Layman poured punch at the bride's table, which was laid with yellow net-and-satin cloth. The three-tiered cake, topped with bride-and-groom figurines, was iced in bell, dove and cupid design and decked with clusters of daisies.

Chocolate cake and coffee were served at the groom's table by Mrs. Don Bolls, sister of the bridegroom, and the bride's aunt, Mrs. Harold Nahrgang. Miss Jeanie Paetzold assisted in serving and Mrs. Prentice Stevens registered guests.

The couple left to spend a few days in Ruidoso, New Mexico, and will be at home after July 22 at 115-A Avenue G. Mrs. Downey wore for travel a pantsuit in pastel blue and white stripe with white blouse and a corsage of roses from her bouquet.

She is employed at the Beauty Shack and was a 1971 graduate of Hereford High School. Downey, employed at Sugarland Feedyards, attended West Texas State University three years after graduating from Grady High.

His parents were hosts for the rehearsal dinner Friday evening, at K-Bob's restaurant here.

Wedding guests from out-of-town were grandparents, the Victor Nahrgangs and Mrs. Lillie Fisher of Mangum; Mr. and Mrs. C.O. Callaway and Mrs. Gertrude Jackson of Clovis.

SWIM MEET PARTICIPANTS — Hoping to come in first, 67 Campfire Girls entered the Campfire swim meet Thursday morning at the city pool. Junior high girls assisted in planning and directing, to receive the individual torchbearer rank.

First Campfire Swimming Meet Held For 67 Girls

Hereford Campfire Girls held a swim meet Thursday morning at the city pool, for fun and to enable junior high age girls to meet requirements for individual torchbearer rank by assisting in direction of events.

For the first year the meet has been held in Hereford, 67 girls participated.

There were two divisions for the swimmers. The crawl, breast stroke, back stroke, medley, diving, stunt diving and underwater were events scheduled for intermediate swimmers. Beginning swimmers participated in the polywog group.

Mrs. C.E. Rush and Mrs. David Brumley served as directors for the meet.

Mrs. Roy Hartman, member of the Campfire Council, planned the activity with the following Junior High Campfire girls: Margaret Brumley, Jana Burns, Tammy Cagle, Cathy Crim, Cindy Ford, Virginia Harbour, Isabel Hinojosa, Melinda Watts, Debbie Walterscheid, Jana Turpen, Nancy Snow, Vivian Burges, Susan Hamby, Lynette Rhoton, Mary Rhodes, Kim Martin and Stacy Lea.

SPECIALIST—There aren't many full-time professional horseshoers plying their trade in Texas today. Of these, Wendell Scott of San Antonio may be the only one who limits his practice to race horses, polo ponies, hunters and jumpers.

Scott, who travels 40,000 miles a year servicing his clients, shoes between 30 and 50 horses a week. His standard charge is $12 each.

Miss Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd N. Smith, 201 Star. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Dupree, 841 Irving.

Long yellow dresses with pink rosebuds were worn by the bride's attendants and were styled with empire waistline and puffed sleeves. They carried cascades of yellow daisies.

A reception in the church fellowship hall followed the service with Miss Brenda King at the guest registry. Miss Debrah Trimble of Lawton, Oklahoma, served cake and Miss Beverly Ann Smith of Canyon, cousin of the bride, poured punch and coffee.

The table was decorated with yellow candles and centered by the wedding cake which was trimmed in pink and yellow.

By the Garden Gate

With Glad

By Mrs. Art Manjeot

One of my readers gave me a book, as a bon-voyage gift before I left this spring, on my vacation trip. It is a very precious book, especially so to me. The title is "Language of Flowers" by Ruth Little (Mrs. Little is a garden club friend that I have known for years.) I was fascinated with the contents, and have read it through several times. This morning I picked it up, and thumbed through the pages, and found this bit of poetry:

"Daisies, ye flowers of lowly birth, Embroiders of the carpet earth, They stud the velvet sod, And they open to the sunshine and rain,

In sweetest, smiling bloom, declare—Your Maker, and My God." John Clare. I had just come in the house with an arm full of Daisies to arrange as I now look out the window at the Border of daisies, marching in "tune" to the roses in the garden. I am very grateful for these lovely flowers...which are very lovely too.

Daisies are easy to grow, and the selection is large. I recently learned that there are approximately a dozen varieties of the Shasta Daisy. Probably the most popular one is the single Shasta, however many gardeners favor the Shasta Diener's Double. These are the Anemone type. Mine are the single Shasta, and they are in full bloom. Many of the local gardeners grow the single Shasta. Mrs. McCrary has a very pretty mass planting.

Shasta Daisies are splendid perennials, hardy and long lasting. The flowers are good size, some being 5 inches across. Showy for beds or cutting, they bloom July and August. Make lovely material for arrangements, and are often used by brides as their wedding flower, also for decorations. Are easy to grow. Can be started from plants, by transplanting, and by seed. Require little cultivation, and grow well in a soil which has average qualities. One feeding a season is sufficient. Can be used for accent planting, for borders, and for an eye-catching effect. Should be divided every three or four years, more than that if room is an item in the garden. Delightful to share with friends, shut-ins, church arrangements, and many, many other ways. I truly enjoy daisies, as they bring me much pleasure. One of my favorite times to enjoy them is to stroll in the garden at night (extra nice if moonlight) and look down upon them...is very uplifting.

Seems the garden-tasks have been quite heavy the past few weeks. Perhaps I notice it because I was so far behind, and have had extra planting, cultivation, feeding and spraying. This morning I feed the gladioli, and thinned out the ornamental peppers. Cultivated the beans, carrots, and beets, also, feed the dahlias, and pruned them (removed the lower leaves and branching and disbudded the ones on which I hope to have some flower show material.

Next week I will be planting the last planting of gladioli. The first planting is now in full bloom, and I have never grown nicer spikes, with promise of so many florets. To plant glads, prepare the soil by digging deep, hopefully you have a good friable soil. Make a trench, at least six inches deep. Place a generous dressing of peatmoss in the trench, it is also good to add fertilizer (a well balanced one 8-8-8) cover lightly with soil, then place the corms, root system down. Space four to six inches apart, depending on the kind being planted. This is important if you are planting for flower show specimens or to share with others. Cover well. Tamp the soil lightly, and water thoroughly. When the leaves appear, and when there are three or four with a three inch growth, feed with a side feeding of fertilizer, and water in well. Keep free of weeds, and grass, cultivate lightly, and pull the soil to the parent stock. If they are not in a protected area, and are the type which has long bloom spikes, they should be staked. In placing the stakes, use care so that the root system will not be harmed. Tie securely to stake with a soft cotton twine, or old hose. (Nylon) When three or more florets have bloomed, the spike can be cut and taken in for arranging, and usually they will complete their blossoming. Grow Glads and be Glad. They are a great favorite, and one of the most popular of the commercial flowers.

Also busied myself by putting the Hummingbird feeder together, and filling it. Placed it by a strong wire on a limb of the Hoppa-crab which has beautiful red apples. The Hummingbirds are attracted by red. Especially like to sip honey from the trumpet shaped flowers. Near the feeder there are some beautiful red Hemocallis. Am hoping that the Hummingbirds fascinating. An excellent study. Garden Chores: Last week while stuning plants, etc in Hereford I noted that many had an off color. Too much yellow is evident throughout town, on many plants, trees, and shrubs. Their needs should be met. This yellow color is indicative of the needs of the plant. Seek out a well balanced plant food. Iron should be high in the percentage. Should include sulphur, Magnisium, zinc and copper. A good choice would also be recommended for alkalinity (this is one of the factors in our soil that we should always be aware of.) Such qualities can be found in Carl Pools Dri-Cidifier. Check your choice of fertilizer and plant food, for these qualities. Use ACCORDING to directions, and do it NOW.

Keep your garden note-book handy, so that "does and don'ts" can be listed. Also list plants you wish to do away with another season, and a list of those which are to replace or add new to the garden. Check trees and evergreens for bag worms. It is time to spray for them. The only time they can be checked is while they are making the bag. When once enclosed they can not be reached by spray or other means of poisoning.

Hummingbirds are one of the most interesting of all birds. They are gems of beauty and marvels in flight. They hover motionless, can fly backward, and forward (the only bird that does this). There are more than three hundred species of Hummingbirds in the Western Hemisphere. 19 species are found in North America; one or more types are common in nearly every part of the U.S.A. A Hummingbird consumes half its weight in food (mostly sugar) daily, which results in its feeding regularly and abundantly to maintain its energy and to stay alive. The Hummer may fall into a state of suspended animation in order to conserve energy, until food is available. Hopefully, we place our feeders, and watch for the lovely birds. (Don't be disappointed if they don't come the first year.) If and when they do come it is necessary that there is a plentiful amount of food for them, they can empty an average feeder in approximately 15 minutes. Friends who are members of the Bird-watcher tell me that often, Hummingbirds come our way. When they are coming from the west coast areas, usually they come by way of Ruidoso. The Bird-watchers have made trips to see them in flight. Am sure it is a beautiful sight. Many friends in Hereford have Hummers come regularly to their feeds every year. For some good reading this summer or for winter, read and study about the Hummingbirds, is interesting and very

Sharon Garrison Feted At Shower

Sharon Garrison, August 5 bride-elect of Danny Harvey of Stamford, was honoree Saturday morning at Hereford Country Club at a miscellaneous shower. Receiving guests with Miss Garrison were her mother, Mrs. S.L. Garrison, and Mrs. Warren Gossett of Austin, who will be her mother of honor.

Pam Garrison, sister of the bride-to-be, registered guests at a table decorated with a basket of lavender flowers, daisies and pompons.

The refreshment table was attended by Mrs. Brad Johnson and Mrs. Gene Duvall of Amarillo, serving fruits, cream puffs and coffee. The table was adorned in lavender and white, Miss Garrison's selected colors.

It was covered with a lavender cloth with sheer white over-lay. A silver epergne containing small arrangements of lavender flowers, daisies and pompons decorated the table. Crystal baskets surrounded by English ivy held flower arrangements that were repeated throughout the room, centering quartet tables where guests were seated.

MULESHOE—The commissioners court approved a resolution which provides for the Federal Power Commission to have control of prices charged by Pioneer Natural Gas Co. The resolution also assured irrigation farmers of the area the continued support of the county commissioners court.

LITTLEFIELD—The hail suppression program for Lamb County this year is praised or bad mouthed, depending on whether or not producers in the target area have missed the hail storms or have been hurt by damaging hail. At this point, the county still lacks several thousand dollars raising enough money to continue the program through harvest.

Lamb County Leader-News PERRYTON—"How the West Was Won" is the theme for the 1972 Wheatheart of the Nation Celebration in Perryton, with plans now being firmed up by the Jaycees and other sponsoring organizations for the event on Aug. 14-19.

BROWNFIELD—A very light voter turnout was recorded Saturday on the $500,000 bond issue for adding two wings to Brownfield General Hospital. A total of 766 residents cast their ballots with 327 being in favor and 439 turning the issue down, defeating the issue by 112 votes. —The Brownfield News

Texas To Research And Recover Artifacts

The first scientific investigation and recovery of artifacts from the 16th-century Spanish shipwrecks which lie off Padre Island will begin on or about July 17 under a project sponsored by the Texas Antiquities Committee, it was announced by Dr. Fred Wendorf, chairman of the committee.

State Underwater Archeologist Carl Clausen, who will supervise the effort, said, "The mid 16th-century wrecks are of particular importance in that they represent the earliest verified shipwrecks discovered in this hemisphere; I know of no comparable short-term Spanish colonial sites on land. Consequently we will be taking our first real look at what Spanish colonial material culture consisted of at that time." Clausen added that the recovery operations will be carried out by from seven to ten archaeological technician-divers and other personnel. The team will operate from Port Mansfield, in Willacy County.

This summer's activity is a follow-up of the July 1970 magnetometer survey conducted by the Institute for Underwater Research, Inc., on behalf of the Texas Antiquities Committee, to fix the locations of the shipwrecks along Padre Island.

In describing anticipated activities, Clausen said, "It is our intention, after the setting-up phase of the operation, to first conduct an in-site magnetometer and bathometric survey of our prime target, a Spanish shipwreck located approximately five miles north of the Mansfield Cut.

"One group of divers will then carry out preliminary testing and excavation of that wreck while a second group conducts in-site magnetic surveys on from one to three other sites discovered in the 1970 survey. In early September we will decide whether to extend operations past the planned September 15 cut-off date. This year's research will be followed by additional work.

Veteran's Affairs

Q — I am a veteran's widow drawing VA pension. Would state welfare benefits reduce my pension?

A — No. VA does not consider benefits from public or private welfare organizations as income for purposes of computing pension.

Q — As a veteran attending college under the GI Bill, I wonder why VA does not pay for all my educational expenses?

A — Like the World War II and Korean Conflict GI Bills the current GI Bill is intended as educational assistance, rather than a total subsidy thru four years of college. Veterans who went to school after WW II often had to supplement their educational allowances just as the majority of all well motivated college students do.

Q — I am a World War II veteran and have used a small portion of my GI loan entitlement. Can my remaining entitlement be used in purchasing a mobile home?

A — No. You must have the maximum loan guaranty entitlement available to qualify for mobile home benefits.

Q — How do I get admitted to a Veterans Administration hospital?

A — Apply in person to the VA hospital nearest your home taking with you a copy of your military separation papers. If unable to visit the nearest hospital, a private physician may request by phone admittance for a veteran-patient, being prepared to advise admissions authority as to military data and the need for hospital care.

Q — I named my mother as beneficiary of my VA insurance, while I was single. I have since married, but now plan a divorce. Can I change beneficiaries again?

A — Yes. VA regulations permit an insured to change beneficiaries as many times as desired.

Q — I was separated from active duty several years ago. When will my GI Bill entitlement expire?

A — Assuming you are otherwise eligible and were released from active duty after Jan. 31, 1955, you have eight years to use your GI Bill benefits or until May 31, 1974, whichever is later.

Q — Can the lender who gave me my GI home loan legally raise the interest rate on my balance?

A — No. VA regulations do not permit interest rates to be increased above the contract rate agreed upon when the loan was made to the veteran.

Q — Does VA pay dividends on "RH" insurance issued to veterans separated from service because of service-connected disabilities?

A — No. By law, VA is not permitted to pay dividends on "RH" insurance policies.

Q — If I decide to go to school under the GI Bill, what can I do to speed up the arrival of educational allowance checks?

A — As soon as you receive your certificate of eligibility from VA, submit it to the proper school official for completion and make certain the school returns it to VA as soon as possible. As soon as VA receives the certificate, your checks will be started.

Q — I am a veteran in prison drawing VA compensation. Since I am 65 and eligible for pension will VA pay me a pension if it is a greater benefit?

A — No. VA pension benefits are terminated on the 61st day of imprisonment in a penal institution. However, compensation payments can continue.

HERE IS YOUR ENVIRONMENT—An activity the ten and eleven-year-olds of summer school are participating in this week is that of getting to know the environment, how to build campfires and various skills in camping. Fishing, cooking eggs, building fires and chopping logs are taught the children and any questions go to Gary Billingsley, instructor. 23 students are involved in the camping program.

STONES SELL TICKETS USING NEW METHOD

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rolling Stones concerts in New York, three of them, at Madison Square Garden, are using a different ticket selling system.

People wanting tickets mail in a postcard, between certain dates, and when the cards are received, a firm of certified public accountants selects some of them at random. These are put through a computer, which is supposed to throw out ones with the same handwriting. Tickets will be assigned on a first draw-best seat basis.

Official notification cards will be mailed to the names drawn and those persons can pick up their tickets within a time period written on their cards. All persons notified will be entitled to buy a maximum of four tickets. All tickets, regardless of location, will be $6.50.

VA Explains Insurance For Aged

A new insurance plan designed to help holders of GI insurance when they grow older is explained in Veterans Administration pamphlets being mailed this month to 175,000 holders of National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) term policies who are between ages 60 and 65, according to Jack Coker, VA Regional Director.

Coker said the forms and pamphlets explaining the "Modified Life-Age 70" policies and how to apply for it will be mailed to an additional two million younger veterans as their term policies come up for renewal at the end of their current five year periods.

Premiums on term policies rise substantially every five year. VA officials explained, making it difficult for some veterans to maintain full coverage as they grow older.

On the new insurance, premiums remain the same through the life of the policy.

THE INFORMED CONSUMER

BY CRAWFORD C. MARTIN
Attorney General of Texas

"Resale price fixing," "resale price maintenance" and "vertical price fixing" all refer to the practice of a manufacturer fixing the price at which his product is to be sold at the various levels of distribution.

In Texas it is a violation of our antitrust law for two or more people to agree to fix or maintain the sales price of an item. Fair trade laws are an exception to this general rule, but Texas is one state which has never enacted a "fair trade" statute.

What does this mean to you as an informed consumer? It means simply that manufacturer X cannot tell retailer A what he can sell his goods for in Texas. If retailer A wants to sell the product for 75 percent or 50 percent of what manufacturer X wants him to sell it for, he can. While this is important to the retailer, it is more important to you as a purchaser. It means a savings of money for you each time the retailer elects to resell for less than the manufacturer wants him to.

But what if a retailer tells you he can't "cut" the price because, if he does he will lose the line of merchandise? You should report it to my Consumer Protection Division at P.O. Box 12548, Austin, Texas 78711.

Either the retailer is guilty of a false or misleading statement, a violation of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act, or the manufacturer is in violation of our antitrust laws because he is engaging in price fixing. Both practices should be prevented, and you can help do so by letting us know when they occur.

Prince Valiant
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT SHOWS KING DASHAD HOW TO REMOVE THE BREAST MEAT FROM THE DUCKS THEY HAVE SHOT. THE KING, WHO HAD NEVER SO MUCH AS RAISED A FINGER TO HELP HIMSELF, REBELS. BUT VAL INSISTS.....

... AND ORDERS A FEW THINGS FROM THE KITCHENS. WHEN THE KING FINDS HE CAN ACTUALLY DO SOMETHING WITH HIS OWN HANDS HE BOASTS OF HIS SKILL. VAL SMILES ENCOURAGEMENT AS HE CHOPS UP ONIONS, PEPPERS, GARLIC AND MUSHROOMS.

"NOW WE SEAR THE MEAT," ANNOUNCES VAL, AND DASHAD THROWS A HANDFUL INTO THE PAN. THE HOT GREASE SPATTERS AND HE SCREAMS IN PAIN. "OH, TUT," CHIDES VAL, "IT DOES NOT HURT HALF AS MUCH AS THE FIVE LASHES YOU GAVE YOUR GARDENER."

KING DASHAD, TYRANT OF ATHELDAG, A SPATULA IN ONE HAND, GOBLET IN THE OTHER, COOKS HIS OWN DINNER. WHO WOULD BELIEVE IT? THEN VAL EMPTIES THE CONTENTS OF HIS BOWL INTO THE PAN AND PUTS ON THE LID.

A DELICIOUS AROMA FILLS THE AIR AND AGAIN AND AGAIN THE KING DEMANDS THAT THE FEAST BEGIN. "FILL YOUR GOBLET AND DRINK IN PATIENCE," GRINS VAL, "FOR EVEN A KING MAY NOT HURRY A WORK OF ART."

DASHAD SOPS UP THE LAST OF THE SAUCE WITH A BIT OF BREAD AND, WITH A CONTENTED SIGH, LEANS BACK. "THE BEST MEAL I EVER HAD AND I COOKED IT ALL MYSELF, OF COURSE," HE ADDS, "YOU WERE A GREAT HELP."

THE SUNSET GLOW FILLS THE GARDEN AND KING DASHAD, FULL OF SAUTÉED DUCK AND WEARIED BY LIFTING HIS GOLDEN GOBLET, FALLS PEACEFULLY ASLEEP. "I MAY YET BE ABLE TO MAKE A GOOD RULER OF THIS PETTY TYRANT," MUSES VAL. "IT IS WORTH A TRY, FOR I LIKE THE LITTLE CLOWN."

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I have certainly come up with a mighty fine pot scrubber for no-stick pans.

I save those plastic mesh bags that some fruits and vegetables sometimes come in, and make little pot scrubbers.

I take the bag and fold it over and over, until I have a 3" x 4" rectangle, and then I take contrasting crochet thread and crochet a border around the entire little rectangle.

I even make a loop for hanging on one corner.

These little pot scrubbers are colorful, handy, and oh, so cheap.

Mrs. W. Hiller

And, gals, Mrs. Hiller sent me one and I wouldn't dream of parting with it.

It's a real doozy—in fact it's one of the niftiest scrubbers in my kitchen. Wouldn't these make marvelous items for bazaars?

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I had a particular pin that I wore on a certain suit, but the catch broke and I was heartsick.

Since I only wore this pin on this particular suit, I took invisible nylon thread and sewed it to the lapel of the jacket where I would have pinned it.

No one was the wiser and

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

I could still wear my favorite pin.

Mrs. H. Lown

DEAR HELOISE:
My husband wanted to take pictures of the children to his office but didn't want anything too big or too conspicuous.

This is when I came up with the idea of using a used flash cube.

First, I removed the bottom of the cube (it's not a difficult task at all), and then I carefully removed the insides including the silver foil.

I cut my photos (the small, school type) to the size of the cube and put the foil back in to hold the pictures in place.

When I glued the bottom back on, I had a darling miniature cube picture frame.

Margaret Kimble

DEAR HELOISE:
In an effort to find a box to wrap some rattan paper plate holders in, I came up with the idea of a hat box.

This turned out to be two gifts in one and the "birthday girl" was not only delighted with the plate holders but equally as pleased with the hat box.

Sue Stephens

DEAR HELOISE:
Remember when our mothers used to wash our hair in rainwater caught from the eaves of the house in a number two washtub? And then rinse it with the juice of half a lemon? Or tea?

Those memories are wonderful, aren't they?

Mrs. Gerald Watkins

Yeah, and since bobbed hair wasn't in fashion in those days and all our hair was long... can you remember how they used to "toweldry" it and then roll it up in rags? Usually a torn sheet! And what beautiful curls we had...

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I made my 8-year-old a "grown-up" cooking set that's less expensive than the kind you buy.

I purchased a plastic mixing bowl, a spoon and a metal measuring cup for her working tools.

Our grocery carries small family packaged mixes and I purchased several of these for her ingredients.

For equipment, I added a small muffin tin, paper liners, a small pie plate and cake pan.

I allow my daughter to use the stove and oven, under my supervision, and she loves to work in the kitchen with me.

Since we have been cooking together, her older sister is so envious that I think I'll have to make a "grown-up" cooking set for her too.

Doris Howard

DEAR HELOISE:
This hint concerns all of those who have small pets, such as rabbits and guinea pigs.

If you have any leftover floor tiles, you can install them, on the bottom of the cage. This makes it easier to clean and prevents the floor from warping.

A Faithful Reader

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a very simple but effective hint.

If you keep your long-handled forks, slotted spoons, spatulas, etc., in the drawer, place them in handle first. You can immediately spot which one you want to use.

This is especially helpful if the handles match.

A. A.

DEAR HELOISE:
Save those diapers for the baby's bottom, instead of burp-wipes on momma's shoulder!

I came up with this idea. Buy a yard of pretty, printed terry cloth. Cut it into six pieces (double thickness) about 10 1/2" x 18".

Put two pieces with the wrong sides together, sew around three sides and turn to right side. Tuck in raw edges and sew this edge together. Top stitch around the outer edge with a straight or fancy stitch of a contrasting color.

It makes the nicest shoulder pad for burping the baby instead of using all those diapers. Much easier to wash too.

Helpful Grandmother

STRETCH A POINT

DEAR HELOISE:
Did you ever need a rubber band in a hurry and couldn't find one? They are either in some drawer, on a table, in a dish, around a door handle or you might even find one on the floor.

Here is a good way to keep them together.

Take a medium-sized safety pin and put each band, as you get them, on the pin. A pin will hold around 50 rubber bands.

Hang the pin up or put it in a drawer so you will know where they are.

BULLETIN BOARD

POP an apple pit or a grape seed into a glass of ginger ale or other light-colored soda. Allow it to sink to the bottom. Now, command the pit to rise, and it rises. Command it to sink, and it sinks.

Actually, this trick is not a trick at all, but an act on the part of the performer. The pit is propelled upward by adhering bubbles of gas; it descends when these bubbles burst.

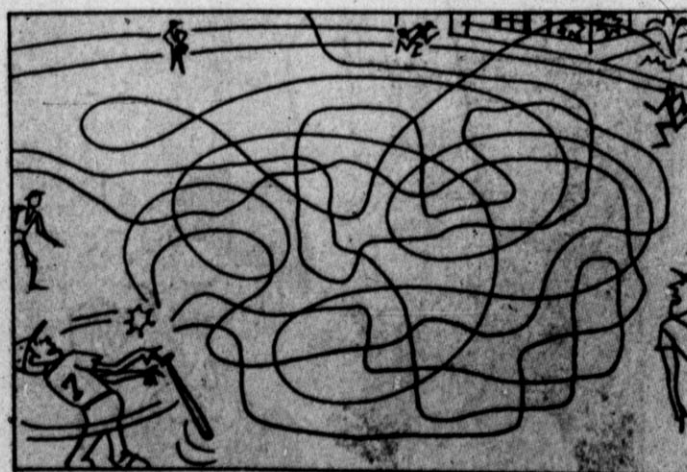

The performer times his commands to conform with the pit's action.
