

Standard Of Living Improving In County

(Editor's Note: This is the seventh article in a series about the growth of Hereford. This article deals with the standard of living as reported by the U.S. Department of Commerce.)
BY GRANT MABRY
 Staff Writer
 Hereford and Deaf Smith County, with the growth experienced, has managed to maintain a good standard of living considering the number of new families and laborers. The average family income in Deaf Smith County, according to the 1970 census, was $7,603 in 1969 compared with $8,490 for the state average, a year later. The income per capita was $2,403 for the county. Hereford's growth was reflected by comparing the entire county population to the population in Hereford alone. The population of Deaf Smith County in the 1970 census was 18,999, compared to 13,414 population reported in Hereford. This meant that in 1970 Hereford comprised better than 70 per cent of the total population in Deaf Smith County.

Among the county's 16,820 inhabitants aged 5 years and over in 1970, 3,286 were living in a different county within the state in 1965, and 1,316 in a different state. The draw-power of the booming Hereford and the county it was county seat of spoke for itself in the above figures alone. However, the report also stated that 3 per cent were foreign born of the total 18,999 county population and 11.2 per cent of the population which was native born had one or both parents of foreign birth, which may be said to label the prospering town and county as the "melting pot of the High Plains." The average income became more impressive when it was reported that in the population aged 16 and over, 85.2 per cent of the men and 37.1 of the women were in the local labor force, with 38.9 per cent holding white collar jobs, and 12.5 per cent holding government jobs. About 35 per cent of the married women with husband present were in the labor force.

A progressive move by the community in developing the Day Care Center may have made it possible for 24.8 per cent of these wives who had children under six to work. At the same time, with such a large labor force, the per cent of educated persons was high. According to the census report, there were 5,506 person aged 3 to 34 years enrolled in school. In the 25-and-older population, 43.2 per cent of the men and 46.9 per cent of the women were high school graduates. The median value of homes in Hereford was set at $13,800 compared to the state median of $12,300, with some reports that this median has risen since the 1970 survey was made. At the same time the median contract rent of $77 ran parallel with the same figure given as the state median. Out of the 6,418 housing units reported in the county by the '70 census, some 4,702 had at least one television set, with 2,099 of these homes owning UHF-equipped sets. There were 1,336 housing units with air conditioning.

Some 572 of these had room units and 764 were central systems. It was also reported that 3,848 units had clothes washing machines, 2,320 had clothes driers and 1,310 had dish-washers. Of the 18,999 population and average of 3.6 persons lived in the average housing unit in the county. A total of 2,274 housing units were built before 1949, 1,659 were built during the 50's, while

The Hereford Noon Kiwanis Club has been named top club in the Texas-Oklahoma district for the past month — marking the second time for the locals to win the coveted award among some 400 clubs.

Speaking of civic clubs, the Hereford Lions are getting ready for their big annual carnival. Boss Lion Nolan Grady reports the carnival will have the best quantity and quality of "rides" ever offered here. The big show is set Monday through Saturday, July 24-29.

Rain is most always welcome in the Panhandle, but the potato and onion growers are ready for some dry weather so they can harvest the crops. Moisture received the past week was real beneficial for hay and some other crops, however. Big news in the area Saturday morning was that the Canadian River was at flood stage. Tierra Blanca Creek and Frio Draw were both running, and a report Friday night indicated Buffalo Lake was up four inches.

The fact that the American job market is pretty soft right now for a lot of highly trained professional people is hardly news to those who have not had an easy time finding a job lately.

The drying of the teacher job market is the best publicized part of this rather unhappy story, but it is by no means the only part. Engineers, chemists, and some other highly-trained specialists (mostly with just-earned degrees) are finding themselves labeled "over-qualified," and hence unemployed.

The crafts and trades, plus semi-skilled and ordinary labor jobs continue to be in plentiful supply, but there is some indication that even these labor markets may be softening up. We may be approaching a time when people actually appreciate having a job, and perform their work with pride as a means of helping keep it.

Taxes: Hospital Board Keeps Same Rate

GETTING READY — Lynton Alfred and Nolan Grady, Lions Club members, discuss setting up one of the many booths that will be open for the annual carnival that begins Monday. The carnival, bigger and better than ever, according to officials, will last through Saturday.

BY MARSHALL DAY

 A cut in the hospital district's tax rate for 1973, a move that seemed very possible after Tuesday's regular meeting, failed by a 3-2 vote of board members during a special meeting Thursday night in the board room. Acting board chairman Lawrence Strauss was called on two times within a 20-minute period to cast the tie-breaking vote when other board members split, 2-2. Strauss sat in as chairman in the absence of chairman Ed Line who was out of town. The final voting resulted from a motion by Dr. Hugh McCrary and a second by Ed Wilson to leave the tax rate at its present level of 25 cents per $100 valuation. The tax rate, although the same as the one for this year, includes a 5 cent addition for the establishment of an indigent fund to help in the payment of hospital costs incurred by persons unable to pay the full amount.

The 25 cent rate consists of 16 cents for bond indebtedness, the 5 cents for the indigent fund and 4 cents for paying hospital insurance, auditing, ambulance service and tax collecting. The board was split by a 2-2 vote twice Thursday night. The first vote, which called for a 20 cent tax rate, ended in a split decision and Strauss was called on to break the tie. He voted down the tax cut and again later was called on to break a 2-2 tie in favor of leaving the tax rate at its present level. The hospital board met for two hours Tuesday-morning in an effort to reach an agreement, but failed to do so. The special meeting was called for Thursday and the board spent another two hours discussing the tax rate before the final decision was reached. Wanda Hoover and Tommy Carnahan were seeking to lower the tax rate to 20 cents and had made that in the form of a

At Tuesday Meeting Board Looks At Budget

A special meeting of the Hereford School Board of Education, Friday morning at the Caisson House, was called for the presentation of the 1972-73 school budget. Bill Phillips, administrative coordinator, explained the proposed budget to the board members to prepare them for the public hearing to accept the budget. The hearing will be held during the next regular school board meeting Aug. 8. Total expenditures are estimated to be up only $169,300 for the coming school year. At the same time the increase allotted to the athletic budget was $910 above the amended budget for last year. The board also reviewed the school dress code for this year which had only one significant change. That change was in the girl's dress code which makes it possible for girls to wear blue jeans to school. The new policy reads: "When pants or jeans are worn, the hip line must be broken with a blouse or some type of over-

Blood Bank Due Wednesday

The Coffee Memorial Blood Bank traveling unit will make a visit to Hereford Wednesday in hopes of obtaining at least 60 pints of blood for the Hereford bank. The workers will be in Hereford from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Community Center. Hereford, after several months of "in the hole" donating, is in the plus now and workers are hoping to build up the local supply. Anyone wishing to donate is asked to contact Barbara McCrary before Wednesday so an estimate can be made as to how many donors will show up.

The entire dress policy will be included in the student handbook which will be issued at the first of the school year. The possibility of a school program for agriculture students is under consideration by the board at this time. Richard Robinson, vocational education director, said that the farm would be used mainly as a place to house livestock, and that no consideration had been made in the area of growing crops on the proposed farm. "I think we have a real responsibility to these boys involved in the ag program," Roy Hartman, superintendent said. "We need to provide them with a farm. Most of them live in town and need a place to carry out projects."

Westway Reunion Scheduled July 30

The annual Westway Reunion and Homecoming will be held Sunday, July 30, at the Westway Community Building. Registration will begin at 11 a.m. followed by a basket lunch at 1 p.m. and a memorial program at 2:30 p.m. The annual affair attracts over 100 former and present residents of the community and a number of out-of-state visitors are expected this year.

Lindsey Attending C of C Institute

Jim Lindsey of Hereford is among some 200 Chamber of Commerce executives from 11 states attending the fifth annual Southwestern Institute of Organization Management being held today through Friday at Texas Christian University. Now in its 52nd year, the annual, sequential program of personal development and advancement planned by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States offers voluntary organization executives the knowledge and skills needed for success in a one-week seminar based on the theme of "An Investment in Excellence." Planned for the C of C officer to attend in progressive levels throughout his professional career, the Institute provides opportunity for continuing in-depth study of current issues and latest management philosophies. Chairman for the TCU workshop will be Pledger B. Cate Jr. of San Antonio, executive vice president of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce, and manager will be Arnold Mathias of Dallas, who heads the Southwestern division of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Arranged through TCU's Division of Special Courses with its director, Dr. Leroy Lewis, as administrative coordinator, the July institute is being coordinated by Dr. Joe J. Steele, dean of TCU's M.J. Neeley School of Business.

Lions' Carnival Begins Monday

The annual Hereford Lions Club Carnival, billed as the biggest and best yet and offering a number of new items, kicks off Monday for a week-long stand in the Bull Barn parking lot. An increase in both booths and rides is offered this year along with a special opening-day offer of "Pal Tickets." The "Pal Tickets" are included in today's issue of The Brand and can be clipped out and presented at the carnival, along with one purchased ticket, for a free ride. The offer is good Monday only and only when another ticket has been purchased. Gene Ledel Shows, the group in charge of the Lubbock South Plains Fair each year, will provide the rides this year, according to Lions Club officials. The rides number 18, which is almost double that of previous years. Some 13 of the rides are for adults, including the massive new "Skydiver," a feris-wheel type set up that stands 75 feet high. Other rides offered are the merry-go-round, buggys, auto planes, baby wheel, flying saucer, tilt-a-whirl, whirly bird, scooter bumper cars, skydiver, twister, octopus, ferris wheel, roundup, loop-o-plane, pony, glass house and casa de luna dark ride. The carnival will begin each evening at 6:30 and will continue late into the night. All ticket booths will be manned by Lions of their wives and proceeds from the carnival will be used in various community projects. The booths set up by the Lions include the coke pitch, keg pitch, inside and outside concession stands, hamburger booth, bingo, balloon darts, pool pitch, football throw, pool game, softball pitch, basketball toss, cork gun and doll rack. The 14 booths show an increase of one booth over last year, but three of them are new contests. Also, cotton candy and helium-filled balloons will be sold.

ACHIEVEMENT AWARD — Felipe Luna, center, who will represent Hereford in the National AAU Boxing Finals to be held next month in Columbia, S.C., accepts the first "Outstanding Sports Achievement Award" from Don Lowder, making the presentation on the part of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee in its regular meeting held last Friday. Harold Wheeler, left, is Luna's trainer and will accompany him to the AAU finals.

Cable TV: Land Purchased, Groundwork Set

A tentative agreement on land for a cable television tower have been reached, according to officials of the cablevision firm, but actual construction still is at least three weeks away. Clint Formby, a partner in the cablevision firm which will be based in Hereford, said Thursday that five acres of land has been tentatively purchased from Woody Wilson. The land is located about a quarter of a mile from the city incinerator.

The firm also has leased the former Chamber of Commerce office at 126 E. Third. The building will be used as the firm's downtown and engineering offices and is being studied for "possible future use as a studio." Formby said actual ground work is at least two or three weeks away. "We are on schedule on all phases with the purchase of the location for the tower," he said. "The only thing we are waiting on now is for the Federal Communications Commission. The FCC has not issued any certifications for construction for any cable tv firms yet so there are about 900 that are literally tied up at this point." He said he hopes the FCC will release certificates for construction in the next two or three weeks, which will work out well with the local firm's plans. It is expected to be at least three weeks before ground crews will be ready.

Aerial Spraying Set For Monday

Bad weather last week forced the postponement of the aerial spraying to eradicate mosquitoes, but city officials have made plans to spray again Monday morning.

City Manager Dudley Bayne said Friday that rainy weather Thursday caused the first postponement and plans had been made to spray Friday. However, more wet weather, and a check with the Amarillo Weather Bureau indicating even more, prompted the city to wait until this week.

The plane, again weather permitting, will begin spraying about 6 a.m. Monday.

Military radar that translates its target findings into audible signals can distinguish between men and women.

WTSU Boosters Break Records In Ticket Sales

At the end of the Wednesday WTSU Booster drive through Hereford, some 355 season tickets were sold.

A total of 294 were new sales, along with 61 renewals. Thirteen local businessmen, Paul Willis, Charles Wagner, Bud Snyder, Gary Stagner, Earl Stagner, Bob Spangler, Melvin Jayroe, Gene Huntsinger, Jim Holmes, J. W. Robinson, Howard Burgle, B.F. Cain and Frank Barrett, teamed up with the WT coaching staff and covered the town, selling season tickets.

This group of boosters sold more tickets than the cities of Plainview, Perryton and Pampa put together according to John David Bryant, local WT booster.

"The coaches just couldn't believe that we did so well, and that the people of Hereford would get out and hustle so much," Bryant said.

Wednesday morning the WT staff had breakfast with the local boosters and passed out ticket order blanks. The group then spread all over the town to solicit new boosters.

Two good reasons for Hereford people to be backing the Buffaloes this year are Mike Wartes and Tony Gorman. Both are former HHS football players who are expected to represent the WT team as well as they did the Herd.

Wartes is expected to start at quarterback for the Buffs this fall, while Gorman will hold down a starting defensive end position.

WT has a total of 10 games scheduled for the coming season, with only four home

Diseases Won Battles

DISEASE AND HISTORY. By Frederick F. Cartwright. In Collaboration with Michael D. Biddiss. Thomas Y. Crowell Co. 248 pages. $7.95.

There have been many random references in general histories to the crucial effect of disease at focal points in the story of mankind. Now, Dr. Frederick F. Cartwright, head of the Department of the History of Medicine at Kings College Medical School, London, with an assist by Michael D. Biddiss, director of Studies in History at Downing College, Cambridge University, has written a brief but clear and generally convincing analysis of the subject.

It makes engrossing reading. Unquestionably, the course of man's life has been changed radically by micro-organisms, most of which he had never seen until comparatively recently and some of which, the viruses, still can be apprehended only electronically.

In the tragic Peloponnesian War between Athens and Sparta in the 5th century B.C., the plague which smote Athens — was it scarlet fever, smallpox, bubonic plague or something unknown today? — did far more to conquer Athens than Spartan arms.

Cartwright also believes that a series of afflictions, probably mainly malaria and smallpox, was more responsible for the downfall of the Roman Empire than invading barbarian hordes.

The terrible Black Death, a form of bubonic plague, decimated Europe periodically through several centuries of the Middle Ages, killing king and commoner alike. Cartwright feels it also may have altered the development of North America, enervating the mother country, Norway, and eventually wiping out the Viking settlements in Labrador and Newfoundland.

motion during Tuesday's meeting. That motion was tabled until Thursday at which time McCrary made an amendment which would have allowed for the 20 cent rate, but with the stipulation that a breakdown be made as to where each portion of the rate went. This amended motion died for a lack of a second.

Carnahan then agreed to make an amendment allowing for 16 cents to be used for bond requirements, 3 cents for insurance, auditing and ambulance service, and 1 cent for "miscellaneous."

It was that motion that ended in the first 2-2 vote which Straufus was called on to break. His vote defeated the motion, 3-2.

The disagreement came in the form of establishing the indigent fund and how to finance it.

McCrary's final motion which passed, will bring about $27,000 into a separate fund to be used in the balancing of accounts that are unpayable by indigent persons needing hospital care.

Mrs. Hoover and Carnahan argued that there was enough funds in the hospital account — some $280,000 — that could be used in this area.

The new fund will be placed into a bank and used as a type of "checking account" where the hospital can get funds to make up the difference in a bill and what an indigent is capable of paying.

The capability of paying will be based on an intensive new system. Any person coming to the hospital for care will have to supply verification of income, the type of car or vehicle he or she owns and its equity, the cash value of that person's life insurance, all personal property and balances on their savings and checking accounts.

The part of the final bill that person can pay, based on information the hospital gets, will be required, and the remainder will come out of the indigent care balance.

915 were built between 1960 and 1964, and an additional 1,168 were built during the five years preceding the '70 census. Since the census an estimated 450 to 500 new homes have been built in Hereford alone, not counting the construction elsewhere in the county.

Since the start of 1970 through June $10,625,098 in building permits has been issued. The growth continues by all indications during this year with a total through June for 1972 building permits of $1,887,495.

The population of the entire county in 1960 was reported to be 13,187. That same figure was bettered by the Hereford 1970 population by 227 in the city alone, while the county as a whole had grown to be one person short of having a total population of 19,000.

It is hard for some people to understand how a small High Plains town so close to a large city could grow at the rate that Hereford is, yet when one takes into consideration the giant scale agri-industry the county has with the never ending expansions of each of the component parts, no reasonable population projection can be made.

A projection of populations for the county made by the Texas Water Development Board during the 60's had the projection that the county population for 1980 would be around 23,191. Yet, the population in 1970 was 18,999 and should be some where near that projection for 1980 now.

Small Talk

BY SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

THEY'VE KNOWN FOR some time that they wanted to hold open house when the new parsonage at Frio Baptist Church was finished, but members of the church hadn't realized the time was so near until it was almost upon them, so they had to hurry to get it ready for the public to see today, Georgia Andrews says. That sounds normal; things always manage to sneak up on you and get in a last-minute snarl. But the open house is set for this afternoon from 2 to 5. There will also be a housewarming shower for the Rev. and Mrs. Sam Ogan, with their friends from over this area invited.

MOST PEOPLE here know that the new parsonage replaces one which was burned several months ago, the result of an explosion and fire in which Mrs. Ogan was badly injured. She has received treatment at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston since then.

With Rev. Ogan and their son Sammy, she is expected to return home early in the week. She is not up to the excitement and fatigue of an open house by any means, but feels that home will be a good place to complete her recovery.

The Ogan's daughters, Anna Ruth Andrews and Debbie

Pitman, will represent the family as hostesses this afternoon.

ON THE MOVE from Westover, Mass., to Barksdale, La., Billee Ra Hanson and her daughter, Diana, spent last week visiting her parents, the Ray Johnsons at Summerfield.

Pretty well tired out from the moving, she didn't try to see friends while she was here but plans to be back later in the summer with more time, her mother says.

Her husband, Col. L.P. Hanson, has been commander of the 99th Bomb Wing at Westover, and will be deputy commanding officer of the 2nd Air Force unit in the Louisiana base.

The Johnsons are quite pleased that the family will be much nearer now — "only about a thousand miles," Mrs. Johnson says with the typical Texan's attitude that a thousand miles is right next door!

More recent visitors with the Johnsons were Dr. and Mrs. Elton Johnson of Commerce, who stopped briefly on the way to British Columbia on a vacation trip and promised to make a longer visit on their way home. The two Johnsons are brothers.

SPEAKER—Angela Grubbs presented the program Friday to the Whiteface Breakfast Kiwanis Club at the Civic Club Center. Miss Grubbs gave a report on the trip she took with the high school band to Mexico City last month.

Birth Certificate A Must For Enrolling Students

When the month of August rolls around, thousands of Texas mothers suddenly realize that only a few more weeks remain until school begins.

Parents with youngsters beginning school for the first time this September look forward to school with a little more excitement, and many mothers whose first-born are going off to school may be a bit bewildered by it all.

In addition to the million-and-one chores that must be performed in getting the youngster ready for school — new shoes, clothes, health examination — most school districts require proof of age for beginning students. A certified copy of a birth certificate is usually requested, reports the Texas State Department of Health.

This fall there will be a quarter-million new first graders in the schools throughout Texas, with the total public school enrollment expected to reach 2.8 million. Continued growth of the school population is expected for the next two to three years, according to the Texas Education Agency.

Anticipating the rush of birth certificate requests, the Records and Statistics Section of the Texas State Department of Health has been prepared for it. Requests already are pouring in.

It takes a sizeable staff just to open the thousands of letters received daily, let alone search out a requested certificate, remove it from the thick volume, make a certified copy, mail it out and then return the original certificate to its proper place.

Years of experience have eliminated nearly every bottleneck. The operation is smooth and fast. Usually the copy is mailed within a day or two after the request is received.

One bottleneck still remaining, however, is the individual who makes the last-minute request. Parents are requested to stop now and write for a certified copy of the birth certificate, or contact either the city registrar where the child was born or the county clerk in the county of birth.

If you write the Texas State Department of Health, Bureau of Vital Statistics, 410 East Fifth St., Austin, Texas, be sure to:

include the child's name, place of birth, date of birth, and the parents' name (including the mother's maiden name.) The State Health Department fee for a certified copy of the birth certificate is $2.00.

AND Sidelights

by Bill Boykin

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, TEX. — Property tax reform may be one of the big issues before the 1973 session of the Texas Legislature.

This is the prediction of Texas Research League in a newsletter analyzing the subject.

The property tax, notes TRL, is the largest source of revenue for support of the government in Texas. Collections exceeded $1.4 billion in 1970 and rose $220 million between 1968 and 1970.

Recent federal and state court decisions holding public school finance systems based on locally imposed property taxes unconstitutional focused new attention on such taxation. The decisions stimulated interest of House and Senate committees on extensive reforms.

Criticism of the revenue source and proposals for reform may center on these factors as pointed up in the TRL study: Administration is inequitable. Different standards apply to different types of property.

There are too few professionally-trained assessors, and many tax offices lack even the most fundamental tools such as tax maps and appraisal cards on each parcel of property. Furthermore, there are far too many tax offices and districts. (Given an "impossible tax law" to administer, local officials do remarkable well, according to a Tax Policy Committee study.)

Personal property — tangible and intangible — is particularly difficult to assess. Some states have given up attempting to tax all property, and recognize this fact in basic laws.

Taxpayers are at a marked disadvantage in redressing grievances over illegal or inequitable assessment in the courts.

"ABOLISH BOARD" — Former State Insurance Board Chairman Larry Teaver says the best way to promote insurance regulation reform in Texas is by the drastic remedy of abolishing the Board.

Teaver was rejected for Board membership by the state Senate, and apparently has returned to Gov. Preston Smith's staff.

He told an interview panel that insurance industry influence cannot be removed from regulation without getting rid of the Board which he charged is industry-dominated.

The former chairman suggested the present three-member Board should be made a nine-member, parttime citizen board or that an elected insurance commissioner be chosen to head the regulatory agency.

DEATH PENALTY REVIEW SOUGHT — Texas and Georgia will ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review its decision declaring the death penalty, as it is most often applied, unconstitutional.

Meanwhile, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin has received a request from the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles for an official interpretation of the June 29 Supreme Court decision. The Board also wanted to know if the death penalty actually had been declared unconstitutional. Some justices hinted a constitutional death penalty provision may be possible.

The Board will continue to follow the procedure of not recommending commutation for the 45 inmates on death row until it receives a formal request from the prisoner, judge, district attorney and sheriff in each case.

DEER SEASON SET — White-tailed deer season opens November 18 and lasts through January 1 in most counties subject to regulatory authority of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Regular season in the Trans-Pecos is from November 24-December 10.

In portions of Terrell and Pecos counties, seven additional days have been added for whitetails only, with the season opening November 18 and continuing through December 10.

Opening date for all deer hunting in the Panhandle is November 18, and closing date is December 3.

COURTS SPEAK — The Court of Criminal Appeals held Texas judges can no longer deny bail in murder cases due to a U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing the death penalty.

The State Supreme Court held cigarette vending machine companies must pay taxes on cigarettes they stockpiled just before a 1969 tax increase.

The High Court upheld a $4,400 judgement for a workman in Nacogdoches County who was injured by a falling tree limb's knocking him into a power saw.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company can build a parking lot in a residential area of Spring Valley, Harris County, the Supreme Court ruled.

A dispute over sale of Red Ball Motor Freight Inc. and advancing of nearly $2.3 million to a new parent corporation will be heard by the Texas Supreme Court.

A Nueces County man can recover for damages to his property from Hurricane Celia, though he was past due in payments on his insurance policy, the State Supreme Court held.

CITRUS BLACKFLY THREATENS — Agriculture Commissioner John C. White warned that the citrus industry in the Rio Grande Valley may be wiped out unless the citrus blackfly is brought under control.

White said the fight against the insect has been going on for more than a year, and that eradication measures are a nuisance to Brownsville area residents.

Ground spraying of infested trees is necessary every two weeks. If not controlled, the fly can defoliate and kill a citrus tree within two years. The insect is now contained in trees in Brownsville. There have been only two outbreaks of the pest in the U.S., once in Texas in 1956 and once in Florida.

GRANTS AWARDED — The Moody Foundation of Galveston recently approved almost $2 million in grants for 26 worthy projects in 11 Texas communities.

The 26 projects came from a total of 58 requests for funds totalling more than $17.6 million. The foundation has awarded nearly $3.7 million to 62 projects this year. During the last 11 years, the Moody Foundation has awarded more than $58 million in grants to 450 agencies and institutions all over the state.

OIL ALLOWABLE 100 PER CENT AGAIN — For the fifth straight month, Texas Railroad Commission set a 100 per cent statewide oil production allowable for August.

East Texas field is an exception. Production there will be 86 per cent of potential. Another exception is Kelly-Snyder Field in West Texas where the allowable will remain at 76 per cent.

Purchasers' nominations to buy crude totalled 3.7 million barrels daily for August, highest on record and 157,772 above July. Texas crude oil stocks at mid-July stood at 97.4 million barrels, down 6.7 million barrels from a year ago.

SHORT SNORTS — First scientific investigation and recovery of artifacts from 16th century Spanish shipwrecks off Padre Island began July 17.

Trees used in planting new forests range from 2 to 4 years in age.

Snowmobiles can damage young trees by breaking tree tops which protrude above the snow.

About two million acres of forests are harvested annually in Canada.

Benedictine monks at an abbey in Gloucestershire are enjoying the comforts of modern living after their ancient home underwent a face-lift. The monks' cells have been centrally heated, refurbished and hot and cold water installed. It was part of a 500,000-pound renovation for the abbey initiated after a painting in one of the chapels was sold for 280,000 pounds at a London auction. The monks continue to produce pottery and export a unique brand of incense.

A Protestant Helps Catholic Stronghold

By STEPHEN RILEY
Copley News Service

BELFAST, Ireland — For 12 years a middle-aged Protestant housewife has been a community leader in one of Belfast's Roman Catholic housing estates.

Frances McMullan moved to a Ballymurphy estate when it was founded 21 years ago by a Unionist government whose housing policy upheld the idea of keeping Catholics with Catholics and Protestants with Protestants. But the unwritten rule wasn't applied strictly and a handful of Protestant families moved to the new estate with its identical rows of white stucco houses on the outskirts of the city. Now only five Protestant families remain, among them Mrs. McMullan, her husband and her nine children.

The minority within the minority at Ballymurphy has always been treated decently, says Mrs. McMullan. Her religion didn't stop her from becoming chairwoman of the local tenants' association and religious differences are never discussed — they have more important things to worry about.

A tenants' association in a place like Ballymurphy, from which most government services have been withdrawn at times, plays a far more important part in community life than it would elsewhere.

The Ballymurphy association, for instance, provides the only telephone operating on the estate, an advice center on legal and welfare matters, and a system whereby tenants list repairs with the executive board which approaches the local authorities as a body.

In 1969, rioting broke out in the estate and again in 1970 and most recently, after internment was introduced in August of last year. The estate, a stronghold of the Provisional Irish Republican Army, entered a state of virtual siege for days as local youths burned corporation buses and sniping incidents escalated.

Naturally the corporation was hesitant about sending its buses in and the tenants' association hastily worked out a taxi service with a local company to carry residents into the estate.

At that time, also, Mrs. McMullan manned the telephone in the community center for "three days and nights arranging to evacuate children to safer places in Northern Ireland and the south.

"When I stood up after three days, I was so dizzy I fell right down again," she recalls.

It is the community center which is the association's most noticeable achievement. It is a simple brick building standing in a field of rubble and burned-out cars on the edge of the estate. In Northern Ireland, the government has been slow in providing its own estates with such amenities, says Mrs. McMullan.

She and others spearheaded a fund-raising campaign four years ago and raised $26,000 after being refused help by the city and Stormont (Parliament). At the last minute, the Ministry of Community Relations, a new government department set up as a concession to Catholics, granted them the final

The manufacturers of tools and machinery for home repairs and improvements aren't the least bit concerned about the rise in the rental of such equipment.

Most persons are unaware of the multiplicity of things that are available for rent. They have heard that it is possible to rent a floor sander when it is impractical to buy one for a project that may not be necessary again for 10 years. But they are unaware that, in stores which deal exclusively in rentals, you can rent something called a roto-trowel, which permits machine troweling of large surfaces faster and better than it can be done by hand.

They may know that you can rent a steamer for removing stubborn wallpaper, especially when there are two or three layers of it, but they do not know that you can rent an electric pump for removing a large amount of water from a basement.

It is not an easy matter to decide when to rent and when to buy. When a machine is very costly, the rental price is fairly low and there is little or no chance that you will use it again for years, the choice is easy: rent. Sometimes, however, it is not that easy to make a decision, simply because the difference between the purchase price and the rental fee isn't too great and because you aren't quite sure whether you will need such a machine again and, if so, when.

A new homeowner or someone who is taking up do-it-yourselfing for the first time may be inclined to rent when he should buy. This is because he has no way of knowing the kind of projects he will be called on to tackle. Generally, the common power tools — portable electric drills, saber saws, portable circular saws and electric sanders — should be purchased. They will be put into use many times during the year. It is better, for instance, to buy a power tool for $30 than to pay $3 for renting it for one day six times a year. In less than two years, the tool will be paid for and will still have years of service ahead of it. Just as important, it will be available the instant you need it without the necessity of arranging for a rental at a specified time.

A common mistake of the beginner is to rent a tool on a certain day at a certain time — say, 10 a.m. — and then discover that there are certain preparatory things that must be done before he actually is ready to use the machine. He doesn't finish the job the same day and then has to pay an extra day's rental. When you rent any kind of equipment, you should be ready to use it as soon as you get it home.

Stores which handle the rentals say that many do-it-yourselfers return at a later time to purchase tools similar to those they rented. Because of this, some dealers stipulate, in the case of certain equipment, that the rental price will be deducted from the cost if the purchase is made within a specified period of time.

Medals Honor Way Of Cross

Sculptured by today's foremost living sculptor of Christ, Evangelos Frudakis, and with papal approval, the Catholic Art Guild presents one of the foremost collections of religious commemorative art ever to be undertaken.

For the first time, the Stations of the Cross are to be commemorated in 14 beautiful proof medals. Each of the scenes dramatizes history's most dramatic scenes in the Way of the Cross. It is in these scenes that we see Christ turn the other cheek, carry His Cross, bless others and then, when in mortal pain, ask forgiveness for his executioners.

The Franklin Mint was commissioned to produce this classic.

The medals are produced in the frosted gem proof. This type of proof is distinguished by the frosted cameo-like sculpture which is raised over the gleaming mirror-like background. This diamond-like quality cannot be captured in a photograph or described in words and must be seen to be appreciated.

Each medal in the series will be hallmarked. The series is limited to 5,000 pieces of each medal. The medals will be larger and heavier than a silver dollar and will be individually numbered to its owner. The medals will be encased in a lucite holder and each will be registered in the owner's name.

For further information write to the Catholic Art Guild, Canfield, Ohio 44406.

The American Revolution Bicentennial Commission (ARBC), a commission established by Congress to plan, encourage, develop and coordinate the 200th anniversary of the nation, announced that an official Bicentennial Philatelic Numismatic Combination will be issued on the Fourth of July, through the cooperation of the U.S. Mint, the U.S. Postal Service and the ARBC.

George E. Lang, chairman of the ARBC's Coins and Medals Advisory Panel, stated at the meeting in Boston that the combination will include the first medal of an annual series congressionally approved National Commemorative Medals, as well as the 1972 set of Bicentennial Commemorative Stamps in the combination envelope.

The Philatelic-Numismatic Combination envelope will have a plastic window displaying both sides of the medal. The four stamps will be affixed to the envelope and bear the official U.S. Postal Service first day of issue cancellation. The PNC price will be $5, which includes an insured mailing fee.

The medal, which will be issued initially on the fourth of July, also will be of bronze, almost 1 1/2 inches in diameter. The face of the medal features the Houdon bust of Washington. The father of our country thus becomes the father of our first Bicentennial medal. The words "American Revolution Bicentennial" and the official symbol of the ARBC will also be inscribed.

The eight-cent Bicentennial Commemorative Stamps will be issued on July 4, and post-marked from Colonial Williamsburg, Va. They will honor Colonial Craftsmen of the American Revolutionary Era. The stamps will be of normal commemorative size and each will depict a specific craftsman: A glass maker, a silversmith, a wigmaker and a hatter.

The U.S. Mint will issue a maximum of 2 million PNC's and will be accepting orders during the month of July only, or until the 2 million supply has been exhausted. Orders will not be accepted before July 1.

Portugal has issued a series of three stamps to commemorate the 8th World Congress of the International Union of Road Transport, which took place recently. The main objective of the union is to contribute to the development and prosperity of national and international road transport services and to defend the interest of professional, private transport, by road, of passengers and cargo.

The multicolored stamps show a large truck carrying containerized cargo on the 1 escudo, a view from a taxi window on the 4.5 escudo and a bus is featured on the 8 escudo.

Lindy Stevens Really Gets Involved In Work

By JUDY HUGG
Copley News Service

It's highly probable that we have another Carole King coming on the music scene in the person of singer-song-writer Lindy Stevens.

Miss Stevens, who hails from Milwaukee, Wis., comes from a musical background, her father having played jazz guitar for some 20 years.

The Decca recording artist has been classed in the Laura Nyro, Joni Mitchell and Miss King traditional style of singing and composing.

"Pure Devotion" on the Decca label is Lindy's debut LP and it gives one a good all-around chance to hear her at her best.

In an interview, Lindy said about her style: "I do both rock 'n' roll and soft stuff. My back-up musicians in live sets consist of only a guitar, bass and drums with myself on the piano."

However, on the album producers Matthew Moore and Bobby Torres have added the conga, trombone, flute and clarinet for depth, and a more solid background.

But when the little chirp steps on to the stage, depth is the least of her concern. With her long brown hair flowing to the beat of the drums, Lindy belts out a powerful song.

"Yes, I feel my music," she explained. "I'm a great one for getting involved in it. And it's the same way with my writing. I wrote all the lyrics on my first album and hope to do the same for my second one, which is now in the making."

As a musician and a writer, which comes first, the words or the music?

"Well, the music usually comes first and it tends to set the mood for the words," she said.

Where do you get your inspirations for songs such as "Penny Gold," "Make Ends Meet," "Ask The Lord" and "Devotion"?

"Basically my music is about simple everyday things," she answered. "Usually I try to relate incidents that have happened to my friends because they have been big influences on my life."

"I write for myself first, usually to get to the bottom of myself, and then if people find something to care about in my music, well, naturally, it's very fulfilling."

Speaking of influences, Lindy says that Miss Mitchell, Sills and Croft and Miss Nyro have done the most in the way of influencing her, although she says that she hasn't patterned herself after any one person.

As for her favorite girl singer, she says: "Well that's hard to say. There's plenty of them around and I really have lots of respect for lots of people, and you know, it's such a rough business for girls."

Why?
"Well, probably just because they are girls," she said laughing. "You know it's a difficult thing for a girl to make the decision as to whether to dedicate her life to music or to wifehood and motherhood. It's a big involvement — it's not like being a secretary or something. I mean you just have to devote so much time to it."

Lindy may devote a lot of time to her work, but her voice seems to have a natural unstrained quality to it that enables her to hit the high notes as well as the low, with equal ease. Her range is wide enough to take her from a Broadway musical to a country western hoedown and not be out of place.

In keeping pace with the world around her, Miss Stevens just recently wrote her first real protest song.

"It deals with Vietnam," she said. "I think the situation is getting out of hand, so I felt the need to relate my feelings on the subject. It will appear on my new album."

Although she is excited about her upcoming album, one must not overlook "Pure Devotion." It's a delightful LP, a little weak in spots but it should give

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

FORMER U.S. MARINE AVIATOR PILOTS BAVARIAN MOTOR WORKS

Robert A. Lutz, former U.S. Marine Corps jet pilot, is visiting the United States for the first time since his January 1, 1972 appointment as Deputy Chairman of the Bavarian Motor Works, West German Automobile and Motorcycle manufacturer.

He began his career in the automotive field in 1963 first with General Motors in New York in the capacity of Chief Analyst for planning and development.

As BMW automobiles are world famous for their sporty performance, so it is fitting that Mr. Lutz is not only a technical and marketing expert, but also an enthusiastic driver and dedicated motorcyclist. He also owns a number of classic automobiles which he has restored to perfect working condition.

His long experience as a leader in the automotive industry and his vast technical knowledge, coupled with his marketing expertise, make him a most valuable addition to BMW's management.

Mr. Lutz speaks English, German and French with equal ease. He was born in 1932 in Zurich, Switzerland of Swiss-American parents and is a citizen of both countries.

After completing his U.S. Military Service, serving from 1954 to 1959 in the Marines as jet pilot with the rank of Captain, he studied economics at the University of California at Berkeley, majoring in production-management and marketing, and graduating MBA with highest honors in 1962.

Married, with three young daughters, he devotes what little spare time is left after family and business to such active sports as driving, riding and skiing.

her the public's attention that she so richly deserves.

Running through the cuts on the album, it's easy to see that she is a sensitive and highly compassionate young lady. As she expresses her innermost thoughts through the lyrics of her topical music.

For example, "Ask The Lord" and "Help Me Jesus" are earthy and basically uncomplicated desires that she sets to music.

"Penny Gold" has an obvious transcendental quality which takes you back to the days of Emerson and Thoreau, an era of finding peace in nature.

"Walking By His Open Door" tells of the frustrations she experienced while trying to know and find herself.

As music marches on, so do the performers, but Lindy Stevens will leave her mark along the way and once she gets things in high gear, there won't be any stopping her. Her songs, like many of those by Carole King, will find their way to the top by more than just one performer. So try "Pure Devotion" — it's got what it takes to be a real smash sleeper.

What's Old Is New At Table

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — What's old is new today at the dining table. That's the opinion of Beverly Hills' Ruth Meyer. Mrs. Meyer is co-owner and vice president of Geary's, a shop devoted to table fashions.

Speaking at the Los Angeles Home Furnishings Mart's opening of the summer market, Mrs. Meyer said the trend toward traditional designs in dishes, stemware and flatware is widespread.

"The trend is a return to the rich, old traditional designs in dinnerware. Fifteen years ago brides were buying plain white china with perhaps a simple platinum band. But today there's a demand for lots of color and rich design," Mrs. Meyer said.

"Many companies are reviving old patterns in dinnerware and others are going to museums for traditional old designs."

Stemware, too, reflects the interest in bygone days. "Richly cut stemware is our most popular," she revealed. The stemware market is being heavily influenced by the strong interest today in wine drinking. "The serving of wine is growing tremendously and has become an important part of gracious living today," Mrs. Meyer remarked. And as a result, wine accessories — from glasses to servers to wine racks — are an important part of the market, she said. "And I wish we could get importers to make larger wine glasses for us in Southern California."

Other trends which Mrs. Meyer commented upon include: Oriental design: "Oriental has always been important and still is. I believe we will be seeing a great deal of Oriental influence in home accessories."

Color: There's more to a formal table today than a white linen tablecloth. "It's entirely possible to set a formal table using color. Color is definitely more important today in table settings — even in a formal one."

Linen: Lots of color is seen here, especially deeper colors. Flower prints and patchwork are very popular.

Ecology: The ecology trend is seen at the table — in accessories and special types of dinnerware. Birds, animals and big game are popular themes and more plants are being brought into the home. Hence the need for more planters and holders.

Oven-to-tableware: "The trend is to pieces you can cook and serve in."

Gourmet cooking: "There's a tremendous growth in more sophisticated tastes for gourmet cooking articles — things like artichoke plates, quiche pans, creme pots and large buffet plates."

Silver: "Once again it's the old that's new. The most traditional, very ornate has favor. But in contrast our more affluent customers are preferring plain hand-wrought sterling. These are becoming closer in price so their popularity can be expected to increase."

Pewter: Pewter and similar types of materials that resemble pewter are very popular to enhance the traditional setting of the dining table.

Candles: For dining there is a fantastic choice in ornate, unique and novelty types of candles, many of which can be used as centerpieces for the table.

"Different parts of the country reflect different tastes. But I believe the entire nation is looking to Southern California for what's new in table fashions," Mrs. Meyer added.

House With Personality Of Its Own

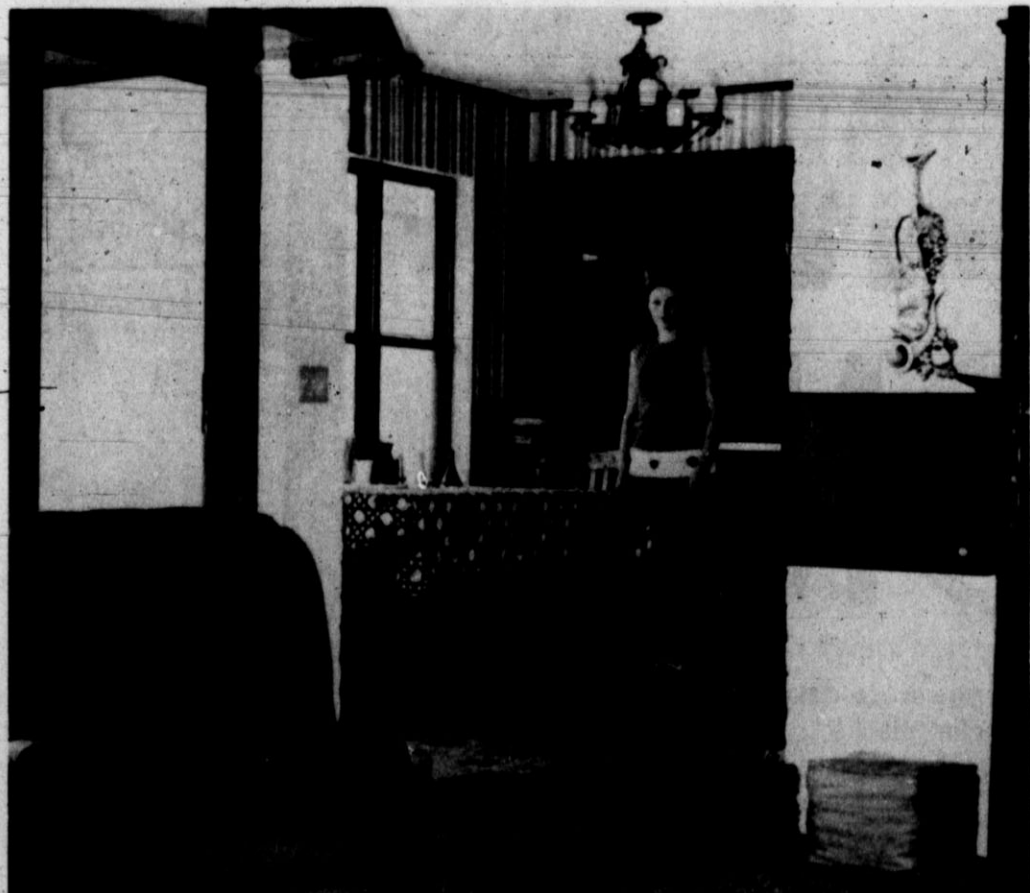

JUST MOVED INTO their new home, the Lynn McLarty family is fitting itself into rooms planned specifically for activities each member enjoys. An idea Judy and Lynn McLarty adapted from a house they admired in another city was the base for the architect's plans, resulting in the long, low white adobe with the deep shingled roof, left, lately completed at 1919 Plains.

STAIRS LEAD DOWN to the basement room from the front hall which takes traffic to the den, dining-kitchen area, office and garage to the west of the entrance, and back to the bedroom wing on the east. Paintings grouped above the landing where Judy McLarty sits include work of her brother.

THE FAMILY that the house was built for, is grouped at the grand piano in the living room den, a dominant piece of furniture symbolic of the couple's interest in music and hope that their daughters will also like to make music. The girls are Kelli, left, and Kima.

(See Stories Inside Pages This Issue)

DIFFERENT LEVELS of floors in the house are indicated by steps up from the den to the dining area where Mrs. McLarty stands by the table with its brightly-patterned cloth.

EVEN THE DOGHOUSE is in the style of the home, with a shingle roof built by McLarty and his father. The big dog, Toro, is a registered Labrador retriever.

Susan White-Sid Shaw Wed In Church Ceremony

Miss Susan White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond White 214 Texas, and Sid Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Shaw, 301 Austin Road, were united in marriage Saturday evening in the First Baptist Church. Dr. Gerald Mann officiated the ceremony.

The wedding party stood before a tall candelabra holding pillar candles and covered with lemonleaf, flanked with candelabra and massed greenery to create a cathedral background. An arrangement of white summer flowers provided additional background and bridal aisles were lined with hurricane lights swagged with white satin and fresh foliage.

Attending her sister as maid of honor was Miss Sherry White with Misses Gerri Montgomery and Jenny Browning, both of Fort Worth, as bridesmaids.

Best man was Lenney Petree with Karl French and Jerry Smith acting as groomsmen. Ushering guests were Chris White, brother of the bride, Jerry Sublett of Canyon, Wesley Carter of Amarillo and Kenny Hagar.

Miss White wore a floor length gown of crystal silk organza, designed with high-rise bodice. The Camelot collar was encircled with pearls and crystals and the bodice was covered in queens lace with full sleeves gathered to bishop cuffs covered with lace medallions.

The skirt was bordered in queens lace with clusters of pearls adorning the hemline. Fullness in the back formed a wide circular train.

Her floor length veil of illusion sprinkled with seed pearls was gathered to a tiara headband of pearls. She carried a cascade of stephanotis, white sweetheart roses and babybreath with seed pearl streamers.

As an heirloom, she wore the wedding ring belonging to her grandmother, the late Mrs. O.H. Herring.

Miss Linda Forsyth of Brownfield provided organ accompaniment for Mrs. David Lee Carson of Friona as she sang Till and Walk Hand In Hand. Recessional music was the theme from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. Miss Sherry White also presented a musical selection, Our Lord's Prayer by Vonda Van Dyke.

The bride's attendants wore floor-length gowns of yellow Swiss flocked with yellow and white daisies and trimmed with white lace ruffles. The gowns were in quaint design with long full sleeves and square necklines.

They carried old English nosegays of miniature carnations, white daisies and purple statice and wore hair-pieces of fresh daisies.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. White wore a floor length gown of pale yellow organza with pleated skirt, accented with yellow sequins at the waist. Mrs. Shaw wore white and brown organza trimmed in brown satin.

For a reception following the ceremony, Miss Carol Chantry and Miss Diane Lago of Lubbock provided musical background with Miss Becky Elliott and Mrs. Robert Graham of Brownfield registering guests at a round table, its cover overlaid with chiffon which formed a swagged skirt. An antique silver candelabra held a Flemish arrangement of yellow and white summer flowers.

Attending the bride's table was Mrs. Dave Chapman of Lubbock and Miss Linda Vogel. Cake was served from a round table draped with imported lace, pearls and chiffon, the swags caught with clusters of majestic daisies. In the center was an antique Georgian epergne filled with yellow and white summer flowers and yellow candles. Punch was served from a matching Georgian bowl.

Serving cake from the groom's table were Mrs. Lenney Petree and Mrs. Karl French. This table was covered with pleated yellow satin trimmed with gold rope and marguerite daisies.

White Victorian lattice backed with yellow satin and draped with wild smilax was set behind the tables.

Mrs. Dean Herring and Mrs. D.C. Herring of Friona were members of the houseparty.

For a wedding trip to Colorado, Mrs. Shaw wore a two-piece knit ensemble in shades of blue with a long plaid skirt. The couple will be at home at 114-A South Centre.

Mrs. Shaw is a May graduate of Texas Tech with a bachelor of music education degree. She is a member of Sigma Kappa social sorority and Mu Phi Epsilon professional sorority. She plans to teach music.

Shaw attended West Texas State University and is currently employed at H & W Implement. Both are Hereford High graduates.

Guests from out of town for the wedding were Susan and Nancy Lee Long of Houston, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh White of Ojai, Calif., Dave Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Jones of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Nix of Sudan, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Hardy of Shallowater, Mr. and Mrs. H.J. Butler of Anton.

Guests from Friona included D.C. Herring, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Herring; Mr. and Mrs. Tim Herring; David Lee Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Moyer, Mr. and Mrs. O.B. Moyer, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Welch.

MARRIED THIS WEEKEND — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hershey will be at home at 309 Avenue B after a short trip following their marriage Saturday evening in St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Girls Give Aid In Sale

Debbie Fletcher was initiated into the Order of Rainbow for Girls Monday night at an initiation meeting held at the Masonic Hall with Cindy McWhorter serving as worthy advisor.

Mrs. Cortez Dowlen of Canyon, grand visitor, was welcomed and gave a talk on Fidelity—The Manifestation of Human Character.

Mrs. J.A. McWhorter, mother advisor, and the assembly agreed to assist the Day Care Center with the rummage sale that was held this past week. A rummage sale with the order of Eastern Star is in planning stages and will be held later this summer. August 4 has been set for a swim party.

Guests included Mrs. A.L. Sauter, Mrs. Arthur Clark, worthy matron and Mrs. Jack Brown. Guests from Canyon were Stacie and Kelly Wright and Diana Dowlen.

Wyche Club Has Coffee

Members of Wyche Home Demonstration Club were entertained informally Thursday morning at a coffee in the home of Mrs. Ira Ott.

Mrs. Jimmy Yeager was a visitor at the gathering. Others present for this midsummer meeting, during the vacation which the club traditionally takes until September, were Mmes. Bill Ellis, Paul Jones, J.H. Holden, Courtney Brooke, E.C. Hewitt Jr., Wayne Jones, Leroy Bodkin, Jack Harrell and H.L. Ward.

Honeymoon In Mexico Begins After Wedding

Miss Kay Lynn Lyman became the bride of Brent Caviness Saturday evening in a candlelight ceremony at First United Methodist Church. Dr. W.A. Appling, the pastor, officiated. A honeymoon trip to Acapulco began for the couple after the wedding and reception.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lyman of 132 Nueces, the bride was given by her father in marriage. Caviness is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Caviness, 142 Nueces.

White candelabra, bouquets of snapdragons, carnations and marble palms in shades of purple and white decorated the altar area. Satin roping marked the aisles.

The bride selected a formal gown of candlelight silk organza and Venice lace designed with empire bodice, Victorian neckline and French pleated yoke.

Her sleeves fell to double tiers of pleats, and the skirt swept to a chapel train with a pleated flounce circling the hemline. Rows of lace traced a pattern above the flounce.

She wore candlelight organza wide-brimmed hat with a crown of white silk flowers. Ribbons entwined in silk flowers cascaded over the tiered veil which fell to the floor.

The bride's bouquet was a nosegay of white roses, lilies-of-the-valley, stephanotis and statice.

Miss Amy Hall of Roswell, N.M. served as maid of honor, and Terry Caviness, brother of the bridegroom, as best man. Bridesmaids were Misses Devora Lewis and Jo Ann Grzywacz of Lubbock.

Groomsmen were Tommy Olive of Lubbock and Bob Wiman of Farwell. Bodie Lyman, brother of the bride, Ken Gearn, Marsh Pitman and Bill Price of Lubbock were ushers.

The bride's attendants wore lavender georgette gowns with Victorian capelets and flounced hemline. Lavender and white checked ribbons sashed the waistlines and lavender wide brimmed hats completed the ensembles. They carried small nosegays of stephanotis and lavender carnations.

Mrs. Bill Lyman wore a long floral chiffon gown in pink, and the mother of the bridegroom a long mauve gown of pleated chiffon.

Mrs. Tony Calkins of the organ and vocalist Mrs. David Johnson of Amarillo presented I Love Thee by Greig and Clair de Lune by Debussy as principal selections.

The couple welcomed guests at a reception in Hereford Country Club following the ceremony. Mrs. Craig Fuller of Lubbock and Peggy Deas served cake and punch from a table decorated with smilax, white roses and lavender carnations. The three-tiered white cake was decorated with roses.

Miss Susan Balden welcomed guests at the registry, while Miss Debra Wilson and Miss Diana Leonard of Littleton, Colo. assisted.

Following the wedding trip, the couple will be at home at 3601 22 St. in Lubbock. For travel the bride chose a halter dress of blue printed cotton with ruffles at the hem and neckline and matching blue suede accessories.

A junior at Texas Tech

University and a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, the bride is a graduate of Hereford High School.

Caviness, also a junior at Tech, is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity. He is an HHS graduate.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lyman Sr. of Littlefield, Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Utterback of Topeka, Kan., Dr. and Mrs. Ben Lyman Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan D. Mayfield, all of Lubbock.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Buster Caviness of Borger, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith of Roswell, and Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Caviness of Causey, N.M., Mrs. J.B. Howe and Mrs. L.A. Whiteside, aunts of the bridegroom, and Harold Howe, all of Panhandle.

POLLUTION SOLUTIONS

Providing enough power to take the smoke out of smoke stacks . . . to operate new urban mass transit systems . . . to recycle junk metal for new uses . . . whatever ways engineers, scientists or technologists think up to reduce or eliminate the many varieties of pollution, chances are Reddy will be their right-hard man. Electricity is the cleanest, most versatile form of energy that can get the big jobs of environmental clean-up accomplished. It'll take a lot of brain and power, but that's a natural part of Reddy's job — serving tomorrow's needs today.

Comings and Goings at King's Manor

Mrs. Mildred Ramey had as guests Saturday her nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. C.A. Wortham of Dallas.

Wilson, and Mary Ruth Redder, all of Bovina, visited with Mrs. Bess Caldwell Sunday.

Mrs. Gladys Lair spent the weekend in Canyon visiting her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lair, and with friends. Mrs. Lair was a resident of Canyon before coming to the Manor to make her home.

Lena Pryor spent the weekend in Amarillo where she was a guest of Miss Katherine Russell. While there she attended a picnic of Trinity Methodist Church where she had taught a class for seven years.

Mrs. Jess Hardy, Mrs. A. C. Wright and Mr. and Mrs. John Shipp of Shallowater visited Mrs. Mary Lipscomb Sunday.

Kings Manor residents enjoyed a recent outing, traveling by car to Panhandle to visit the Jerry Lanes in their beautifully renovated home. They took lunches to add to food Mrs. Lane prepared.

Joe Mapes of Ft. Worth spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Pearl Mapes.

Lane's grandmother, Carrie Hendrix, who is a Kings Manor resident, was visiting in the home at the time, as were Lane's mother and other guests. Rev. Wiseman, pastor of Panhandle's United Methodist Church, dropped by to greet the Hereford visitors.

Guests of Mrs. Emma Jean Smith Sunday were Mrs. Minnie Porter of Rotan, Mr. and Mrs. Don Short and two daughters, Kathy and Kim, of Dalhart.

For several years the Jerry Lanes were the Manor's "adopted family" while both were teachers in Tierra Blanca School here and active in First United Methodist Church. Lane often substituted for Dr. John English in Manor worship services and led sing-songs.

Guests of Mrs. Diamia Wood Sunday were Mmes. H.R. Thompson, J.M. Turner and Sherman White, all of Pampa.

The Catholic Youth Organization for St. Anthony's Church washed windows at Kings Manor one day this month. Residents are very grateful to this youth group for the service, and for the show of concern.

Mrs. Martha Shirkey was in Amarillo Sunday when she was a hostess for a bridal shower honoring Miss Shanna Blakenship who is to be married July 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Fowler of Austin, former teachers in the Hereford school system, visited Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Allred Sunday.

Professor Says

Beef Import Quota Suspension Is Minor

President Nixon's suspension of the beef import quotas will probably have little effect on prices received by cattlemen, according to Dr. H.O. Kunkel, dean of agriculture at Texas A&M University and acting director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Kunkel stated that recent research in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology showed that imports for the last half of this year would have to increase 20 per cent over the first half to reduce choice cattle prices a penny a pound. Choice steer prices were about 38 cents per pound in the first week of July. The 20 per cent increase would amount to only one pound of hamburger per person over the next six months.

The greatest effect of the imports will be on manufacturing beef — the kind used in hamburgers, hot dogs and other processed products, he said. Nations such as Australia and New Zealand export only the lower grades of beef to the United States because the U.S. normally produces enough choice and good grades to meet its own domestic demand.

Also affecting the amount of beef to be imported was the recent temporary suspension of import tariffs on beef by the European Common Market, Dr. Don Farris of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology said. This suspension, coupled with world demand, may limit the extra amount of beef the U.S. can import this year. But prices on beef will probably drop anyway, Farris said, because of an expected increase in domestically fed beef later this year. Research from a study by Kenneth Graeber, under the direction of Farris, suggests that prices to cattlemen may drop as much as four cents a pound due to an expected 10 per cent increase in cattle production. Reduced pork supplies or higher personal income could counteract part of the drop.

Lifetime Sentence

(Editor's Note: The following remarks, made by Judge Alfonso Sepe of Florida, have received wide publicity in newspapers across the country. A 17-year-old Florida boy pleaded guilty to possessing hallucinogenic drugs, and he had also been charged with violence toward a Miami Beach police officer. Judge Sepe sentenced the youth to one year in the county stockade and four years probation. We feel the judge's comments are worth repeating.)

Judge Sepe spoke directly to the youth and said, "Do you know who is going to serve that year? Not you; your mother and father will serve that year."

"That is what's wrong. They get sentenced. They get sentenced for a lifetime."

"You serve a year. Your body is in the stockade for a year, but their souls are tormented for a lifetime. Why? Because you are a selfish, spoiled boy, that's why."

"There is no punishment in the world that I could inflict upon you that could in any way compensate for what you are doing to your mother and father. I have not spent five cents raising you. I didn't know you from Adam. But your mother and father have put their lives, their hearts, their sweat, their money and everything else they have into bringing you up. And now they have to sit in this courtroom and listen to a total stranger who had nothing to do with your upbringing scold you and put you in jail."

"This is at a time when phony kids your age are yelling, 'You adults have your alcohol, we want our drugs; you have polluted our water and our air, you have polluted this and that,' and all the rest of the garbage that comes out of your mouths."

"Meanwhile, you put yourselves above everybody else. I feel sorry for you."

"I want you to think of this for one year, and the reason why I say it:

"If you are sick, a doctor will treat you and he won't be on drugs. The lawyer who represents you won't be high on drugs, and the people in whose custody you'll be won't be on drugs."

"Your astronauts are not on drugs, and your President is not, and your legislators are not."

"And your engineers who build the bridges that you drive across and the tunnels that you drive through are not on drugs, and those who build the planes that you fly in and the cars that you drive are not."

"Neither are those who build the bathrooms that you stink up with your lousy, rotten drugs."

"None of them have been on drugs, and this is because of people like your mother and father."

"But in the world of the future," Sepe went on, "the same may not be true. Teachers, doctors, lawyers, legislators — products of the new drug-oriented generation — may well be high as kites."

"You won't know whom to send your child to, or whom to trust your life to."

Sepe sighed and closed the case file.

"Let's see what kind of world you leave to your children," he said, "before you talk about the world that we left to ours."

MAIN STREET U.S.A.

Heavy Workload On Tap For Congress

Washington, D.C. — Congress has compiled a sorry record so far this year and faces a heavy workload in coming weeks as difficult decisions must be made on a series of controversial measures.

Some of these decisions will have to be made twice because President Nixon is sure to veto some spending bills, thus forcing Congressional reconsideration. Congress has already exceeded the Nixon budget by nearly $7 billion, with some of the biggest money bills yet to come.

Senators have been warned by the Democratic leadership to expect long sessions six days a week during the period until August 18, when the next recess is scheduled for the Republican convention. A post-Labor Day session seems inevitable despite the political campaign that will be in progress then.

Congress would like to quit for the year well before the November election but that goal may prove unattainable. President Nixon's chief aide on Congressional relations has predicted that sine die adjournment will not come until "close to Christmas." If so, there would be a post-election session.

Laws enacted after the election and before the new Congress is seated the following January are written in part by "lame ducks" — legislators defeated in the election or retiring voluntarily. The possibility exists that the President himself could be a "lame duck," if he should lose to Senator McGovern.

White House Calls Record "Miserable"

The White House recently staged a press conference in California to deplore the Congressional record to date. William E. Timmons, Assistant to the President for Congressional Relations, said "we must confess the record of Congress is miserable."

Complaining of budget-busting appropriations by Congress, he charged: "There seems to be a cynical strategy on the part of some Democratic leaders to deliberately send to the President proposals with good objectives . . . that substantially exceed his budget requests."

Timmons said the President had made it clear "this tactic will not work" because if appropriations "substantially break the President's budget, he will veto those bills." He contended: "Congress has acted irresponsibly."

The White House takes the position, as Timmons said, that "Congress owes the American people an up or down vote in both houses on the President's major proposals." These include a moratorium on busing of school children, revenue sharing with state and local governments, and welfare reform, among domestic proposals.

The outlook is none too promising for these and other Nixon measures, although revenue sharing and welfare reform have passed the House.

Politics Will Dominate

The longer the Congressional session extends, the more political it will become. The leaders of Congress are dedicated to making Nixon a one-term President and they will do everything they can to embarrass him politically, including forcing him to veto measures popular with voters.

However, the President is not without weapons. In addition to his veto powers, he can make Congressional inaction and over-spending a campaign issue, and unless Congress improves its record he undoubtedly will. Harry Truman won an election in 1948 by tagging a Republican Congress with a "do nothing" label.

It is too much for the public to expect that politics will be forgotten during the rest of the Congressional session. But it is not too much to ask that politicians on both sides remember that the best politics is to serve the public interest.

Which Era Dawning

American retrenchment has made it clear enough that a new era is dawning in international relations. But the era's theme is still far from clear. Will it be the rise of the Soviets, or the retreat of the superpowers?

If Egypt's expulsion of Soviet advisers is what it seems to be — no small assumption at this point — it is certainly one sign that points toward the more hopeful alternative. For at the very least it shows the Soviets by no means have an unlimited ability to dominate areas where American influence has declined. Even more hopefully, it may be a sign that the Soviets themselves are no longer willing to push for maximum short-run gains in every world troublesome spot.

Thus a yearly summary by the prestigious Institute for Strategic Studies in London noted the Soviets' rapid missile buildup, their equally rapid naval build-up, their support of India in its war with Pakistan and their penetration of Egypt. "At a time when the United States was reducing some of its burdens of alliance and protection, the Soviet Union seemed anxious to take them on," the Institute noted. "Behind the 'era of negotiation' lay a question: to what extent might a United States weary and sceptical of the role of 'world policeman' be replaced on the southern and western fringes of Eurasia by a Soviet Union which showed every sign of cautious but opportunistic politico-military expansion?"

This question can probably be answered only over a decade and certainly not by any one episode. Still, the apparent rebuff in Egypt must be sobering to the Soviets. They are finding, as has the United States, that military power cannot always be converted into dependable political influence. Though utterly dependent on Soviet arms, Egypt has the freedom of action to affront the Soviet Union. Israel's freedom vis-a-vis the United States is no less, and the trends in the world suggest that freedom of smaller states is more likely to grow than dwindle.

This trend will not necessarily be for the good in every case. The latest Egyptian move may be the opening salvo of a peace offensive, for President Sadat needs the Russians to wage war while he can negotiate peace without them. But it is also true that superpowers have often served as restraining influences. The ISS summary concludes that the danger of a multi-polar era is not confrontation and major war but loss of control and a limited sort of international anarchy typified by the India-Pakistan war.

Yet if superpowers cannot win dependable advantages by supporting the ambitions of smaller states, Mr. Irwin's rules of behavior are bound to look more important to them. In the Egyptian instance there are reports that the crisis arose because the Soviets refused to supply offensive weapons. This would mean that the "rule" that superpowers should not allow themselves to be dragged into confrontation by the quarrels of clients prevailed over the advantages the Soviets might win by unchecked support of Egypt. Indeed, it seems the Russians stood by this rule even at the risk of sacrificing a position they had already won.

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm apparently spent a lot of time listening to the Convention, his letter this week indicates. Loss of sleep affects you that way.

Dear editor:

During one of the speeches via television at the Democratic National Convention last week, by the way, you'd think the people in charge would let the speakers know they're talking into a microphone and don't have to shout, everybody has a little knob on his set he can turn to step up the volume if he can't hear, anyway, during one of the speeches I got to thinking about all the newspaper columnists and television reporters who kept saying all last year that Sen. McGovern didn't have a chance of getting the nomination — why I remember some of the best of them asking: "Senator, since you haven't got a ghost of a chance, why do you keep plodding along on such a hopeless trail?" — anyway, and I might say here, when you write a sentence as long as this one it's sort of like making a political speech, when you're finally through not only knows for sure what your point is or even if you have one, anyway, I got to thinking, some way ought to be figured out to shelter columnists and analysts from having their pronouncements turned back on them.

You take me, I write to The Hereford Brand once a week, which means I can be wrong 52 times a year, but some columnists write three times a week, giving them a possible score of 156 wrongs, and as for those who write every day or show up on television every day, their score can reach 365. The people with the best score of course are those who write for monthly publications, excusing those who write for an encyclopedia coming out once every ten years.

I have thought this problem over for some time, even to the point of missing three seconding speeches and fourteen interviews from deldgates on the floor, and am in no better shape than if I'd gone ahead and listened, or slept, as some people did.

Anyway, if you now ask me who's going to win in November, Nixon or McGovern, I'll tell you forthrightly that you've come to the wrong man. Yours faithfully, J.A.

Talk Of Texas

BY JACK MAGUIRE

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY — There have been many attempts to bring rain to arid Texas and one of the first rain-making experiments took place near Midland 81 years ago this summer.

No rain had fallen in the area for 18 months and by August, 1891, the area was parched. Farmers and ranchers, desperate for moisture, decided to hire a man named Edward Powers who believed that he could produce rain by bombarding clouds with field artillery. Earlier he had published a book, "War and Weather," in which he had presented his theory.

Congress voted $10,000 for the experiment and the U.S. Department of Agriculture contributed another $2,000. Four wagons loaded with explosives were hauled in. Before the equipment could be set up, a two-hour downpour drenched the area.

The rain had arrived naturally, but the scientists went ahead with plans to create an even heavier man-made shower. They fired cannons in unison at every cloud that drifted over and even planted explosives in prairie dog holes. They launched hydrogen-filled balloons hoping that they would explode aloft. Kites with explosives attached were sent up and then detonated electrically.

On the final day of the experiment, clouds appeared and more kites were sent up and exploded. The rain came in a mild shower, but increased as new explosives were set off. By morning, however, it had ended and the skies were clear. The experiment ended with considerable argument as to whether it was a success or failure.

THE UNCHANGING TIMES — When Houston's Long Point National Bank decided to expand, its directors decided against going modern. Instead they agreed to make the new annex look as much like a 19th century bank as possible.

It wasn't easy. Tellers cages made of brass, mahogany counters and hand-carved molding and paneling, circa 1890, aren't being made anymore. After a two-year search, however, a set of old-time bank fixtures was turned up at Pioneer Town, a tourist attraction at Wimberley, Hays County. The bank was able to negotiate a three-year lease on the antique furnishings with an option to renew.

The old fixtures were made in Waco in 1894 for the Citizens State Bank in Kyle, a Hays County village. Pioneer Town acquired them a decade ago. Now they're back at work again in the Houston bank's new annex.

Swim Lessons, Disaster Aid Given By Volunteers

BY SUE COLEMAN
Brand Staff Writer
(This is one of a series of stories concerning community service agencies which depend in some degree on the help of volunteers who give either work or financial support, or both.)
A teenager helping a small child learn to swim, a survey team checking property damage after a tornado, a nurse giving time without pay in a children's clinic, a housewife sewing a bag to hold toilet articles on the bed of a wounded serviceman — all these and many more may be volunteers in the activities of Deaf Smith County Red Cross Chapter.

The range of service is wide, varying from first-aid classes for industrial workers to such youth projects as making friendship scrapbooks to send to students in other countries.

Programs are coordinated by the County Red Cross board, itself formed of volunteers who represent different neighborhoods. The only professional is the chapter's executive secretary, a post filled now by Mrs. Herbert Miller.

Perhaps more people are reached by the summer swimming program than by any other one section of Red Cross activity in this county. Nearing an end for the current year, classes held at the municipal pool in Dameron Park require the services of a large group of volunteers headed by Mrs. David Brunley, county water safety chairman.
She is assisted by Mrs. C.E. Rush, former chairman, and 13 water safety instructors who have been qualified by advanced Red Cross training. In addition a number of aides, mostly teenagers, help with the classes which give basic swimming instruction each summer to dozens of children and adults.

Before the end of 1972, volunteers will be secured for the 1973 classes; they must have passed senior life-saving tests.
After Hereford experienced a tornado with much property damage last year, residents had first-hand concept of Red Cross aid in disasters and new importance was given the county disaster committee. Don Shipley is the board member who is now disaster chairman.
Not only storm damage, but that resulting from fires and other causes comes under the list of needs met.

Often called upon for clothing and household articles to replace fire losses by county families, the Red Cross refers applicants to emergency supply rooms maintained by the Seventh Day Adventist and Temple Baptist Churches here.
In turn the chapter helps collect articles for those stocks. Mrs. Tommy Crawford, new chairman of this work, says the principal need now is for children's and infants' clothing and household equipment.
First aid classes are conducted at any time of the year by some of the 13 qualified instructors in the county. Clubs request this service, and there are new demands from industries since federal laws now require certain employees to be trained in first aid.

At present at least one class of this type is in progress, and another for trainees in a vocational nursing course.

Baxter London is county chairman. There are also three authorized instructors here for classes in mother-baby care.
For several years dozens of women in churches, Home Demonstration Clubs or as individuals, have sewed denim

"ditty bags" and filled them with small gifts such as toilet articles and stationery, to be sent for distribution at Christmas to men in U.S. Military service in combat areas.
Other bags were filled with needs for hospitalized servicemen. Material for the bags is supplied by the Red Cross, which arranges shipment and distribution.
Some of the work on ditty bags is done by members of the Uniformed Volunteers, who also assist at the Public Health Clinic, Kings Manor retirement home, Day Care Center and other agencies, also with Mrs. Miller's work of service to families of men in military service.

Mrs. Andrew Kershen has just ended a term as chairman of this group, and will be succeeded by Mrs. Crawford. No limits are set on duties of members. They often work through agencies like those named, or give such neighborly aid as that of one woman who has learned the Laubach method of teaching languages and is teaching a Korean girl, wife of a Hereford serviceman, to speak, read and write English.
They also accept tasks like making layettes for wives of servicemen who are unable to provide necessary clothing for their babies, or making robes and slippers for military hospital patients.
Registered or licensed vocational nurses may earn a Red Cross service badge by giving as many as 20 hours volunteer work in disasters, aiding in clinics such as the Shrine Clinic for crippled children or the weekly tuberculosis clinics held here.

Aides in the executive secretary's office must have a brief training course in addition to the general orientation. They assist in keeping records and in gathering information for reports required by the military when servicemen request furloughs because of family emergencies.
Cecil Braly is a regular aide in this service to military families, and Mrs. Miller says other helpers could be used. Volunteers who speak both Spanish and English are especially valuable in this work.

Youth work is conducted through junior high and elementary schools, with talent shows and contribution by pupils. Teachers and several mothers are leaders.
The 26-member county board is headed by John Poindexter as chairman for 1972-73. Lee Umstead is vice chairman and Mrs. Gaylon Bryan treasurer. These as well as about 30 others will receive certificates denoting six hours of training.

Corinne J. Neely, instructor, has a background of many years in Red Cross volunteer service and as county executive secretary preceding Mrs. Miller. The basic training she gives is not for Red Cross alone but for other community programs, each of which may add its own orientation course.
The second session of orientation is in progress now, a morning class meeting on Thursdays and an evening class Tuesdays to Aug. 3.
Half the students were nurses or LVN students; those earning certificates were Linda Cornelius, Carol Fletcher, Alpha Hill, Marina Balboa, Charlotte Self, Viola Birkenfield, Phyllis Ronnberg, Marian Yosten, Nadine Berend, Elizabeth Alcala, Isabel Martinez, Francis Sepulveda, Fran Battenfield, Ann Mercer and Jeanette Hill.

Another group was from Young Homemakers Club, whose members plan varied community services this year. These are Marilyn Culpepper, Susan Edwards, Phyllis Neill and Eileen Alley.
In addition to officers, board members completing the course are Mrs. Emil Dettman, who will succeed Mrs. Neely as orientation chairman in the chapter, Mrs. Tony Hoffman and Shipley. Others are Mrs. Umstead, Debbie Buechler, Mrs. Crawford, Braly and Norma Molina.

NEW OFFICERS — Chairman of Deaf Smith County Red Cross Chapter for the next year is John Poindexter, who began his term at the recent July board meeting, and Mrs. Gaylon Bryan is the new treasurer. They, with other officers and board members, are among the numerous residents who give time to work in varied programs here.

LESSON FROM VETERAN — Volunteer for community service through the County Red Cross Chapter receive orientation from an "old pro", Corinne Neely, who served as executive secretary here many years and in other duties without pay. In an informal lesson at her home this week are, from left, Mrs. Jim Culpepper, Mrs. Ray Berend, Mae Fralin, Mrs. Neely and Fran Battenfield.

Shower Given At Brunch

Kathleen Robinson, bride-elect of Dan Gorman, was honored Friday morning at brunch and a spice-and-rice shower held at Hereford Country Club.
Hostesses were Mrs. Charles Walden, Mrs. Guy Williams and Dee Dee Walden.
The room was decorated in Miss Robinson's selected colors, pink and blue. The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of pink carnations tied with blue streamers.
Spices were presented to the honoree as guests assisted in making rice bags. The couple plans an August 18 wedding.
The Battle of Bunker Hill was fought on June 17, 1775.

Grain Meeting Is Scheduled Friday

A full board meeting of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association will be held on Friday at 1 p.m. in Amarillo, Texas. The board will meet at the Pioneer Natural Gas Building in the "Flame Room," 301 South Taylor Street.

GSPA Executive Director, Elbert Harp, urged all GSPA Directors, alternate directors and interested producers to attend the meeting. They will discuss proposed changes in the GSPA by-laws, and a minimum of two-thirds of the directors must be present to vote on these changes. Harp said the association has grown in the past year to include members throughout Kansas, Nebraska, East and South Texas, as well as the original area of the High Plains of Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Also under discussion at the meeting will be a farm program proposal that would base payments and loans to farmers on the cost of production plus a fair return. Harp said the board will explore some new uses for farm government programs for 1973 and thereafter.

The election of GSPA directors for the fiscal year that will begin October 1, 1972, is now being conducted by mail ballot. Results of the election are expected to be completed by the meeting date, and the new directors for the fiscal year 1972-73 will be announced at the meeting.

Harp and Jack King, GSPA Research Director, are currently in Washington, D.C., working on several GSPA projects, including the farm program proposal and the shipment of grain to Russia.

Bergsma Resigns Cattle Feeders

AMARILLO—At the quarterly directors' meeting Thursday, Tom Herring, president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association regrettably accepted the resignation of Lloyd Bergsma, executive vice president of the association.

In early 1967, Bergsma, well-known in livestock circles, was instrumental in the formation of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association. Due to his efforts, the growth of the association has been from a nucleus of 21 cattle feeders to the present 850 members.

The Texas Cattle Feeders Association was organized to represent and serve the cattle feeding industry and is actively involved in the promotion of beef and various research programs aimed at improving the cattle industry.

By the Garden Gate

With Glad

By Mrs. Art Manjeot

Yesterday I attended a garden workshop at the Garden Center in Amarillo. Mrs. S.D. Nelson was giving a flower arrangement demonstration, and she told about her favorite garden pet. It is a frog. To me that was a bit strange. After all frogs should be good for something.

I found the following information relative to frogs and their worth to a gardener. In terms of dollars and cents, a toad frog was once valued at $19.44 for a single season because of the cutworms that he gobbled up. Now, just what are they worth today? Perhaps as much as $25.

As a general thing a toad frog is not liked by people. To many they are repulsive. Slick, slimy, cold, and an old fable says they cause warts. They too are looked upon by some as a symbol of evil.

But now let us look at him, and find out something about his real worth. From the standpoint of statistics, it has been estimated that he eats in three months, some 19,000 injurious insects.

Of this number 16 percent are cutworms, 9 percent caterpillars, and 19 percent weevils or other injurious beetles. Yes, they have their value and I think I will try to find a toad frog.

It would do almost as much for the garden as some of the recommended sprays, and will help out in this phase of gardening, but the matter of feeding plants is up to the gardener. Now it is time for the chrysanthemums to have some special attention.

Chrysanthemums are often referred to as the pigs of the garden. They are heavy feeders during the growing season. In choosing a food for chrysanthemums, use good judgement and study the formula. Their principal food elements are nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

It is important that one use the food that is well balanced and will be available to the plants as they require it during the time they are growing. Personally I like to use a liquid fertilizer; it is easy to prepare and to apply and really works a bit faster.

Organic gardeners, those who have access to barnyard fertilizer, can prepare the following liquid fertilizer, using barnyard fertilizer: 50 pound sack of sheep manure or well-matured barnyard fertilizer, 5 pounds of Vigoro. Place in a large container (barrel is recommended). Mix well and then fill the barrel with water.

After 5 days lift lid and add more water. When matured and the liquid is dark brown, it can be used. Apply approximately one cup to a well grown plant, near the root system.

This is a bit of a chore, but Mrs. Salois of Dallas, who teaches horticulture for flower show schools, gives the method to her pupils, and she uses it in her gardening. Locate in a back area—the odor is a bit offensive. Another recommended foliar feeding is Rapid Grow, mixed according to directions. Stern's Miracle-Gro and fish emulsion are also good for feeding chrysanthemums as well as other flowers, shrubs and trees.

Chrysanthemums thrive on water. Water is very important. The amount and frequency of watering depends on the type of soil and weather. Twice a week usually gives enough moisture during hot weather...this means thoroughly soaking.

Pruning is important and should have been done as they grow. Side shoots should be removed while they are young—especially is this true for the gardener who grows exhibition plants and flower show specimens. Another form of pruning is that of pinching back, this is done before the plant begins to bud. Height and shape is controlled by pinching; it aids in producing stems of select quality and tends to aid in bud formation.

If these steps are used in the growing of chrysanthemums, they will in turn produce a good crop of buds. Disbudding is another method used to aid in the production of show material and also lightens the stems so that the remaining buds will have better blooms and be more attractive in the garden.

Chrysanthemums are a rewarding plant to grow, and they give us lovely fall colors for the gardens. They are used extensively for potted plants. Tomatoes are other plants which respond to pruning and pinching. Dr. Baumgardt, a noted horticulturist, says that one should first know well the classification they are growing.

The average gardener is more interested in a variety that will produce enough for home table use. This is usually known as the "intermediate", which produces cluster after cluster. While the fruit is ripening low on the plant, flowers are still coming on up near the top.

These plants should be staked. Allow just one stem to develop. A side branch, called a sucker will develop where each leaf joins the main stem. Pinch this out as soon as it appears unless it comes from immediately below a flower cluster; in that case let the sucker develop two leaves, then pinch it.

This extra foliage just below a flower cluster manufactures a lot of food that is carried directly up into the ripening fruits. If the sucker is allowed to become a complete branch, the main stem loses a proportionate amount of water and nourishment.

Dr. Baumgardt's book, How to Prune Almost Everything is good for the gardener to add to their collection of garden books. I recommend it.

divisions. I predict the beauty spot judges, will have a difficult time selecting and scoring for the winners of the Beauty Spot of the month. In the residential division the Harlan Barbers, 110 Rio Vista won. Their grounds show what good care and planning can accomplish. It is a most attractive place, and well deserves the high award. Color harmony and care makes the grounds at KPAN a most worthy winner in the non-residential division.

Who is going to win this month's award? There are many lovely places, both in the resident and non-resident time selecting and scoring for the winners.

It would be well for us all to work harder and do our best with our grounds. Remember everything around the place from the alley right on to the front is watched and scored.

The Hereford Garden Center is beginning to show progress. The climbing roses, on the fences have been in bloom almost continuously since May. The shrubs and trees are putting on new growth, and beginning to take on a permanent pattern. Walk ways have been rolled and leveled.

In another year there should be some real beauty, and color. It is hoped that the interior will be completed in the very near future.

The members are grateful for the memorial gifts and the trees which were given during Arbor Day week. Anyone wishing to establish a living memorial can contact any member of Hereford Garden Club; the president is Mrs. R.L. Layman.

An old adage which has long been remembered, is "we are to take the bitter with the sweet". There is a lesson in this for us, because we do enjoy the beauty created throughout our home town and it is a pretty hard thing to take the unsightly things which we see.

For instance there is a full growth of blueweeds on the corner of 4th St. and Sampson. This really is a worry to my friend Bessie Hill, she can just see the seeds lodging in other soil, and these weeds taking over.

Bermuda grass and elm sprouts are about to take over in other locations.

The final garden club workshop, sponsored by the North Zone National Judges Group was held Monday at the Amarillo Garden Center. Mrs. S.D. Nelson of Tulsa, gave a demonstrated lecture on Flower Arrangements Compliment Home. Mrs. A.L. Manjeot discussed and displayed Contrived Containers. Attending from Hereford were Mmes. R.L. Ethridge, John N. Jacobsen Jr., W.H. Gentry, and Jess Robinson.

Large Sums Spent Locally For Food

Retail business in Deaf Smith County was at a higher level than expected in the past year, the final tabulations show. Many stores chalked up substantial gains over the prior year.

Their sales totals reflected the fact that most local families had bigger incomes than before and were in a position to spend more. They also reflected the higher price tags on merchandise.

Just how much was spent in the local area for food, cars, clothing, furniture and other goods and services detailed in a new report on consumer buying, released by the Standard Rate and Data Service. It covers all sections of the country.

In Deaf Smith County, much of the outlay was for food. Approximately 17 cents out of every dollar spent in local retail stores went to supermarkets, butcher shops, bakeries, delicatessens, grocery stores and the like.

As a consequence, the overall sales volume in the year, in stores selling food for home consumption, came to $8,499,000. It compares with the previous year's $7,514,000.

This was exclusive of the expenditures made in restaurants, lunch rooms and in other eating and drinking places.

If the tab for take-home food were divided equally throughout the local area, it would average out to $1,557 per family.

Elsewhere in the United States, it was $1,370 and, in the State of Texas, $1,324.

The SRDS report shows that other kinds of retail business also ended the year on a stronger note than had been expected.

Those selling cars, motorcycles and other automotive equipment and supplies produced a sales volume of $8,202,000, as compared with the prior year's $6,528,000.

Department stores and other stores carrying general merchandise accounted for $2,395,000. Their prior figure was $2,121,000.

Sales in apparel and specialty shops, including those handling shoes, hats, dresses and other articles of clothing, totaled $1,683,000, as against their former $1,602,000.

Furniture, household appliance and home furnishings stores grossed $1,492,000, compared with the previous $1,210,000.

Thus far this year, the reports indicate, business is on the upswing, with consumers spending more freely than in 1971.

Introducing The Very Fat Radial:

Sometimes it pays to be fat. Especially when you're a radial tire. Because the extra-wide styling of the Lee GT Radial Belted 70 means big traction, excellent cornering, and all-around top performance.

It's the tire that doesn't fool around. It gets around. With two radial body plies of polyester cord for a soft, smooth, quiet ride even at turn-pike speeds.

With four belts of rayon cord that restrict tread "squirring" to give better gas mileage and long tread wear. Which means excellent mileage. And great economy in the long run.

Plus a sensational fat, high-performance look that quickly responds to all you can dish out. That's the Lee GT Radial Belted 70.

And if you're the kind of driver that wants the biggest value going, that's the tire for you.

Now liquid SEVIMOL® CARBARYL INSECTICIDE helps keep borers out of corn

You can't keep profits up when Southwestern corn borers knock down your plants. Protect your crop with liquid SEVIMOL.

Since last winter was mild, billions of Southwestern corn borers are getting ready to rip into unprotected crops. Once the larvae tunnel into stalks or girdle them, your plants lodge and your profits slump.

That's why it pays to protect your crop with liquid SEVIMOL a proven mixture of molasses and SEVIN® carbaryl insecticide, recently labeled for use against Southwestern corn borer.

Start checking your crop now because maximum hatch occurs between mid-July and mid-August. If 50 to 75 percent of your corn shows egg masses or young larvae anywhere on plants, apply SEVIMOL. Then make a second application in 7 to 10 days.

SEVIMOL is used in low-volume applications. It gives you a heavy spray that falls fast and resists drifting. It spreads uniformly to leaf surfaces and "hangs in there" when other insecticides run off in rain or irrigation.

This year, knock out Southwestern corn borers before they knock over your crop. SEVIMOL carbaryl insecticide also controls corn earworm, fall armyworm and certain other corn insects.

THE INFORMED CONSUMER

BY CRAWFORD C. MARTIN
Attorney General of Texas

"How do I know if I'm really getting a bargain when I buy something with 'cents off,' 'introductory offer' or 'economy size'?" Consumers I've talked to throughout Texas ask me about these special price promotions, which are often confusing and misleading.

The Federal Trade Commission is very concerned with this problem and recently issued new regulations to help the consumer when buying nonfood consumer products. The Food and Drug Administration is writing its own regulations to make them compatible with the FTC's. They'll be completed soon, and will apply the same kinds of controls to food, drugs, and cosmetics. Let's take a close look at these rules and see just what they mean to you.

"Introductory offers," under the new regulations, can be

The economy size package must sell at a substantially reduced price per unit of weight, volume, measure, or count. More specifically, it must save the consumer at least 5 per cent of the actual price of any other package of the same brand.

The new regulations for "cents off" basically concerns the method of informing the consumer that the price of the product is a stated number of "cents off" the regular price. The company must supply the retail store with a sign or shelf marker clearly showing the "cents off" and the "regular price." For example: "Regular price, 67c, 8c off, you pay 59c."

As of June 30, 1972, the product's package or label must also clearly show that the price marked represents the savings in the specific amount of "cents off" the "regular price."

These new regulations will guarantee that you really will get the savings promised by "cents off," "introductory offer" and "economy size." The Federal Trade Commission has made the chore of distinguishing between real and implies savings a little easier for all of us.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,
I want to thank you for the front page spread you gave my feature story on the King family. Both they and we appreciate your kindness.

I feel I must clarify one sentence. I wrote, "... Toby rejoined his happy, but concerned family. There were still bills to be paid. The church had helped generously, but their budget could not, with other outstanding bills, pay more than the local hospital and doctor's bills."

My English teachers — both high school and college — probably would rap my knuckles for using the pronoun "their" to refer back to family, although I think in the context of the whole paragraph it said what I intended; it has been misunderstood. SO it should have read "The church had helped generously, but the King's budget could not, with other outstanding bills, pay more than the local hospital and doctor's bills."

Actually, Bill and Sharon had shown responsibility in that they had paid, by the month, Sharon's maternity bill to the doctor prior to Toby's birth; they used a part of their annual bonus, advanced by their generous land-lord, Layton Sawyer, to pay her hospital bill. They had deferred taking out family health insurance in order to pay those bills.

Another bill of $125 has come, unexpectedly from Dallas; some $1,400 has been paid on the Dallas expense, but it is still more than $5,200. There are more local hospital and doctor bills.

Thanks again for your interest. Incidentally, it was Elmer, not I, who met the plane in Amarillo, as I brought Toby home. This one, according to my carbon, wasn't my mistake. Mine was worse!

We always enjoy the Brand and think you are doing a good job in promoting a wonderful community by reporting its activity.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Elmer Patterson

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:
I feel it is time for a report to the citizens of our fine community, the churches, civic clubs, and other organizations who have been so generous in their support of the Meals-on-Wheels program. Without the good response of these fine people there could not have been such a program for Hereford.

Since the starting date of May 2 through July 1 we have served four hundred meals to seventeen people. The most we have served in one day was fifteen and are presently serving 12, 4 of whom are diabetics. All meals prepared at Kings Manor are bland, low fat, and low sodium. The meals consist of meat, two vegetables, salad, bread, drink, and a dessert. This provides a well balanced noon meal five days a week, Monday through Friday.

Because of other commitments Jean Hampton has had to resign as driving chairman. She has done an outstanding job for us and it will not be easy to find another so dedicated and faithful. I want to take this opportunity to thank Jean and all of the wonderful ladies who have so faithfully and consistently given their time in this service of "love in action." I know they will be richly blessed.

We are in need of more drivers and a driving chairman. Young people are especially welcomed for this summer. You will receive a blessing as well as give one.

The recipients and helpers wish to thank each person or group for the donations that make this program able to continue. The program is still in need of these contributions.

We now have color slides of our program in action and will be available for presentations.

Thank you one and all for your interest and support. May you be as blessed as we have been for your effort.

Sincerely,
Lola Curtsinger, Coordinator
Hereford's Meals-on-Wheels,

Distinctive Home Fits McLarty Family's Life

BY LINDA HALLOWS
Brand Staff Writer
"WE WANTED something different. All homes are different in various ways but we wanted something totally different." And different is what they have.

terior designed in contemporary Spanish with split cedar shingles almost reaching the ground, one steps into a very lovely and livable interior of the recently completed Lynn McLarty home at 1919 Plains Street.

Judy and Lynn McLarty first saw a house in Tulsa similar to the one they now own. "We liked it a lot and have kept a picture of it until we were ready to build our own."

THE COUPLE TOOK THE picture to Bob Aduddell, architect in Amarillo who drew the basic plans. Lynn adds, "Then we took the plans, made a few changes and added personal touches that we wanted incorporated."

Two major changes they made were putting the basement in front of the house and suggesting the sunken den, which is a great attraction to the home.

"For the inside we wanted to design something to fit our own family way of life," Lynn says. "That's why we don't have a formal living room or dining room. We do little formal entertaining and we just wouldn't have any use for it."

"WE HAVE TRIED and are trying to make our home as comfortable as possible. We like easy living," Judy adds.

The house features all gas appliances including a patio grill and three outdoor gas lights.

The covered patio allows for year-round pleasure of eating outside. "We like to eat outside and use the grill," Lynn remarks. "We eat about five meals a week outside."

"Even in the dead of winter, we bundle up and go out," Judy adds with a laugh.

The large back yard offers space for the children to play, the dog to live and for Judy to put her swimming pool.

WITH CONVENIENCE IN MIND, the kitchen and dining room are built in a hallway arrangement leading down into the den which displays a fireplace.

Personal touches the McLartys added to suit their style include "gobs of storage space. I even have a cupboard for my cardtable and chairs!" Judy comments.

An entertaining bar proves handy when guests come. The sunken marble tub and top of the dressing table add a touch of elegance to the master bath. The open dressing area off the master bedroom is another specification of the McLartys.

THE BASEMENT serves as a storage room, playroom, projection room, storm cellar and makeshift bedroom. Plans for special uses are being drawn up by Judy as she awaits the carpenter's finishing work.

An office for the man of the house is another attractive addition to the home. It is designed specifically for his own purposes and offers a relaxing atmosphere to bring business clients.

Judy and Lynn, both musically inclined, have arranged their den to suit those interests. A stereo system and baby grand piano, which are in constant use, are roomed in the den.

"This house turns on a completely different personality at night," Judy states. "With indirect lighting and outside gas lights, it is a very comfortable and cozy place."

THE MCLARTYS HAVE two children, Kima, 4½ and Kelli, 2. They have two pets, Satan's Toro, a registered Labrador retriever and Xan, a six-year old Siamese cat the couple has had since their move to Hereford.

As Judy Wilson, Mrs. McLarty attended schools in Canyon, then West Texas State University where she received her BME degree. She is employed by Hereford School System, teaching music at Central Elementary.

Lynn was raised in Seymour and also graduated from WTSU with a BME. He taught band in Hereford schools three years before his current occupation as pilot for Ellis Jorde Properties of Dallas and Hereford.

Having access to a plane, Lynn has many opportunities to take his family to visit relatives and relax on short vacations. One resort they fly to is a vacation home of the Jordes in Puerto Vallarta, Jalisco, Mexico.

WITH THEIR NEW HOME, the McLartys are excited about doing more entertaining of friends and business customers.

When asked what her hobbies are, Judy says, "Oh, I don't have any hobbies, I just like to stay busy around the house and keep busy with the girls." Some of her summer vacation hours will be spent making a shag rug of remnants, for the basement.

Lynn's interests outside of flying are hunting and trap shooting. He and his father have occupied some spare time building a doghouse and mailbox of shingles used on the house to make the house, the front and back yards coordinate.

The McLarty family attends First Presbyterian Church in Canyon.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A trial program to protect some fragile back-country areas, by limiting each area's use to the number of persons it can accommodate without environmental damage, has been started in three national parks.

The three where it has started are Kings Canyon National Park in California, Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado and Great Smoky Mountains National Park in Tennessee and North Carolina.

The progress applies only to the back-country of the three parks, not to normal visitor usage of developed areas within the parks.

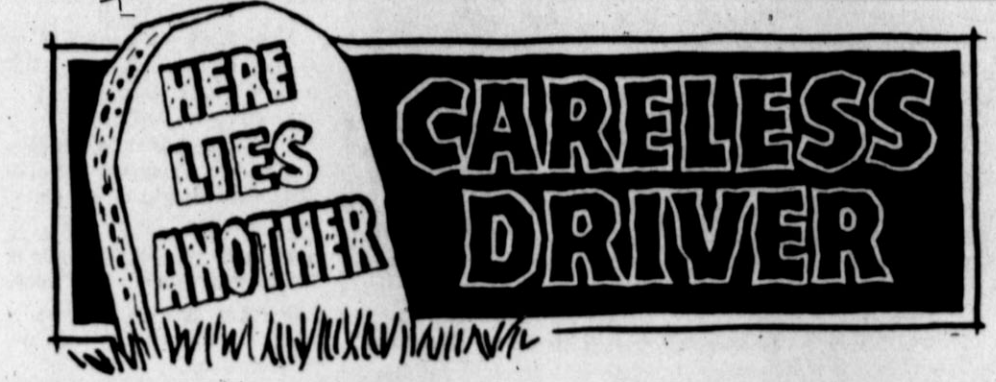

TORONTO (AP) — Young Alexander Bryant McKecknie of Toronto sleeps in a cradle with an interesting history. About 25 years ago during a trip through Quebec, his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Bryant, found the four-poster cradle undamaged in the middle of the ruins of a house destroyed by fire. They bought it for $25.

Local Girls Assist At Camp

Astronaut Col. James Irwin was one speaker highlighting a religious conference attended by Acteens of First Baptist Church at Glorieta Baptist Assembly in New Mexico. The 19 girls and five sponsors returned Wednesday. Members attending participated in program activities. Libbie Parten sang Amazing Grace and Donna Kendall sang New 23rd in the talent show. Rhonda Rutherford, Ann Bradley and Donna Kendall reported action the Hereford organization has accomplished with migrant children. Janet Lynn Nowicki, world cup champion in figure skating, was a program guest, with Marge Caldwell of Houston and Dr. Charles Petty of the Christian Life Commission who spoke on moral and family issues. The Jack Dempsey-Luis Firpo boxing match is depicted in George Bellows' famous painting, hanging in New York's Whitney Museum of American Art.

Luna Presented Sportsmans Award

Felipe Luna, Hereford's 14-year-old boxing champ, was named Friday as first recipient of the "Outstanding Sports Achievement Award" presented by the Sports Committee of Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce.

Don Lowder, awards chairman, made the presentation Friday during the sports committee's monthly luncheon meeting at the Country Club.

The sports group, headed by Coach Larry Dippel, plans to make an award each month to recognize a student, or adult, who makes an outstanding contribution to the local sports scene.

Luna, accompanied by Harold Wheeler, chairman of the Hereford Boxing Club, is scheduled to travel to the National AAU Junior Olympics in Columbia, S.C., Aug. 9-11. Luna won the regional 90-pound division title in Granbury in June, winning over fighters from Texas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

About 30 committee members attended the luncheon Friday, including special guests Barney

Economic Stabilization Questions and Answers

Q. My landlord has been previously set forth and in charging me for cable TV existence before Nov. 14, 1971, in service as part of my rent. He recently discontinued the service. Is this an increase in rent?
A. Yes. Any decrease in service by a landlord is an increase in rent. As a result he must either restore the service or reduce your rent by the amount the service had cost him.

Q. Where an individual controls two corporations and the two corporations have an average of 55 and 45 employees, respectively, are either of the corporations exempt?
A. No. A firm is exempt from the Economic Stabilization Regulations, if it has an average of less than 60 employees. Since the two corporations are controlled by the same individual, they are considered to be a single firm. Consequently, the employees

Social Security

Q. Is it true that a person must have some work under social security to be eligible for Medicare?

A. Anyone reaching age 65 in 1980 or later and not eligible for monthly social security benefits on their own record or another social security record must have some work under social security to be eligible for Hospital Insurance coverage under Medicare. You can sign up for Medical Insurance under Medicare — the part that helps pay the doctor's bill — register ideas of work credit or eligibility for monthly social security checks.

Q. I have to go to the hospital for an operation and I want to be prepared. Will you mail me a claims form for my hospital insurance?

A. Your hospital will take care of all the paper work for you. Just show your Medicare card to the Admissions Office when you check into the hospital.

Pony League All-Stars Blaze Path To Series

The Hereford Pony League All-Star team have a better focus on the Pony League World Series, after this week's action against Borger.

The Hereford squad walked away with two games against the Borger team. The first game was played here Monday night with a one-sided score of 6-0 in favor of the All-Stars traveled to Borger where they slated another impressive victory, 8-2, to capture the district title.

Albert Gonzales was credited as the winning pitcher in the first game as he gave up only one hit during the game. The offensive game was credited with six runs for six hits, with six different players complimenting the score, they were Dennis Artho, Keith Shore, Albert Gonzales, Mike Charest, Archie Crim and Mike Artho.

Scoring in the first game came with three runs in the first inning, one in the third, one in the fourth and one in the fifth, totaling six. The game was called in the bottom of the fifth inning due to rain.

Sinus sufferers have their hero in the world of horse racing. Bold Reasoning, a big money winner who has resumed his racing career after cutting short his 1971 campaign — because of sinus trouble.

Both victories were due to over-all strong defense on the part of all 14 boys. Coach Red Durham said, "we didn't commit over three errors in both games put together."

The Ponies will play Lubbock South here, Monday night at 8:30. Wednesday night the team will travel to Lubbock to play against Lubbock South there. If an additional game is needed to determine the champion of that series, it will be played Thursday night in Lubbock.

Prince Valiant
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: EVENING CREEPS INTO THE PALACE GARDENS AND PRINCE VALIANT SIGNALS TWO ATTENDANTS TO HELP THE TIPSY KING. A PLEASED SMILE WREATHES HIS FACE FOR TODAY HE HAS BECOME A SPORTSMAN.

NOW VAL CONSIDERS THE NEXT STEP IN HIS PROMISE TO MAKE A MAN OF THE FAT LITTLE TYRANT. YESTERDAY'S HUNT HAS SHOWN HIM THE PRIDE OF SELF-SUFFICIENCY ANOTHER HUNT, PERHAPS?

HE SPENDS THE DAY AMONG THE BOAT MEN ON THE RIVER AND FINDS TWO STALWART MEN WHO MAKE THEIR LIVING HUNTING AND FISHING. HE HIRES THEM AND ORDERS THE BOAT PROVISIONED.

KING DASHAD, AMID HIS FAWNING COURTIER, DISPENSES JUSTICE. USUALLY A THIEF HAS HIS HAND LOPPED OFF, LESSER CRIMES GET TWENTY LASHES. BUT YESTERDAY'S ENCOUNTER WITH HOT GREASE HAS TAUGHT HIM WHAT PAIN IS AND HE MODERATES HIS PUNISHMENTS.

"WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN FOR THE LAST THREE DAYS," GRUMBLES THE KING, "I'VE SENT MESSENGERS ALL OVER TO FIND YOU. YOU STAY HERE IN THE PALACE WHILE WE PLAN ANOTHER HUNT." VAL SMILES BUT SHAKES HIS HEAD AND SAYS:

..... "I AM LEAVING YOUR CITY ON A HUNTING AND FISHING HOLIDAY DOWN THE RIVER; TO SLEEP UNDER THE STARRY SKY, ROCKED TO SLUMBER BY THE WAVES AND AWAKENED BY THE SONG OF THE LARK."

"CAN I GO, TOO?" PLEADS THE DESPOT. "NO, SIRE, FOR A HUNDRED COURTIER AND AN ARMY OF GUARDS WOULD FOLLOW THEIR KING AND SPOIL THE SPORT, BUT....."

..... IF YOU COULD GET AWAY UNNOTICED, DISGUISED AS JUST AN ORDINARY SPORTSMAN.....!" "I CAN, I CAN!" BABBLES DASHAD. "WHEN DO WE START?"

WHAT MADE YOU DECIDE TO BUY A HAIR PIECE, MR. DITHERS?

I FIGURED IT WAS TIME TO CREATE A NEW, YOUNGER IMAGE FOR MYSELF!

THESE JOINTS HAVE A LOT OF CLASS. THIS WAY, GENTLEMEN.

NOW, THAT'S OUR PRINCE VALIANT BOB. IT'S NICE, BUT IT'S NOT THE REAL ME.

NOW, WE CALL THAT THE BEN FRANKLIN. NO WAY!

THAT'S OUR YOUNG EXECUTIVE MODEL. RIGHT ON! THIS IS THE ONE FOR ME!

OUR WIVES WILL BE SURPRISED WHEN WE MEET THEM FOR LUNCH. WONDER WHAT CORA WILL SAY?

GUESS WHO, GIRLS.

BE BRAVE, JULIUS, I'LL SAVE YOU!

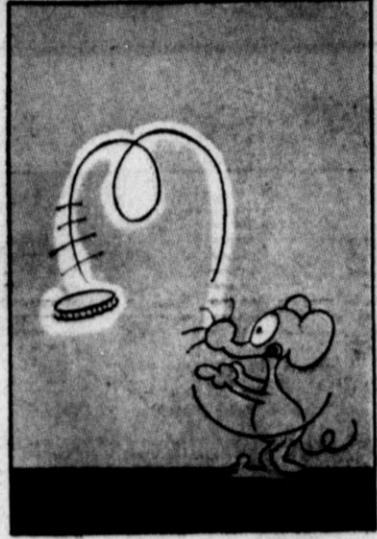

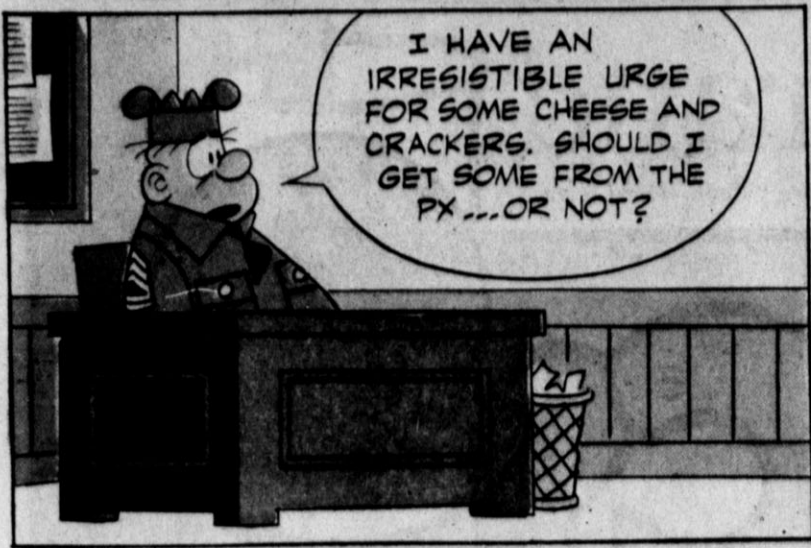

CORA, STOP... THAT'S MY NEW HAIR PIECE!

I THOUGHT YOU WERE BEING ATTACKED BY A WILD MUSKRAT. BOO HOO.

IF YOU WANT MY OPINION, I'D SAY GET RID OF IT.

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
With five daughters, each of them having their own curlers, hand mirrors, combs and other similar items, squabbles often erupted as to whose were whose. It took some clever thinking on my part to find the solution, but I did and here it is.
I saved my plastic one-gallon bleach bottles until I had accumulated five of them.
First I cut the top of the neck off. Then I cut a hole on one side of the jug, a little over halfway up, large enough to put the hair rollers in. Next name on the front.

At night, they just grab their "roller caddy" and are all set to watch TV and roll their hair. Would you believe my girls have named me, "The Smartest Mom on the Block"?

N. Kramer

I would not only say you are the smartest, but one with imagination to spare.
It sure is amazing what Mom can come up with to keep peace in the family.
Thanks for your hint. You've really got the brains, gal!

Heloise

CUDDLY AND COMFY
DEAR HELOISE:
I've been wanting a long housecoat for some time. I recently saw just what I wanted, but it didn't fit in the budget.
After feeling quite dismayed, I decided to make one from a lightweight blanket that was in use (it is white with yellow roses).

I used the ribbon binding for the front trim and zig-zagged the seams for indestructible washability. I put grippers down the front with rose appliqué over them.
My new robe is really nice and so easy to care for.

Bev Paul

FANTASTIC
DEAR HELOISE:
Many thanks for your wonderful column.
I just can't face the front page of the paper until I've had my daily "Heloise Comfort."
Helen F. Felteve

TAKE A LETTER
DEAR HELOISE:
After reading your books, you can be sure my daughters will have their "Heloise" library completed by the time they are married and start housekeeping.
Here's my hint for those of

us who love to write letters. Don't throw away those odd sheets of stationery that are left. Use them!

I write all my letters on a different kind of paper. I originally started this unique one-of-a-kind letter just to be different, but have found that all my friends enjoy receiving them. Some are written on round paper, or scalloped, or children's, note paper, some are colored, striped, checked or plain white.
I can mix all colors and shapes, but there's one problem: envelopes. Now, I finish my letter on the largest sheet and fold it envelope-shape, close it with tape, add a decoa special hint. Think of all the money you can save, gals, using up all the odds and ends of paper around the house!

DEAR HELOISE:
My button-over-the-handle towels had been used and mended until they were little more than rags and I still couldn't find the time to make another pair.
In my desperation to replace them, I got the idea of using the plastic rings that come on some six-packs of canned beverages and an ordinary terry cloth towel.

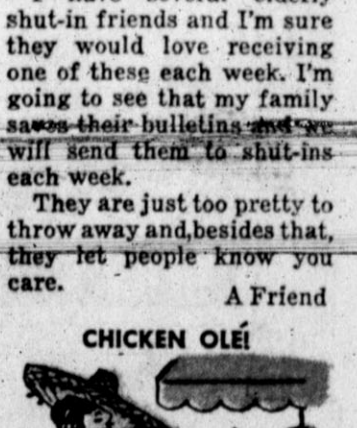

First, I snip off the outer portion of the two middle rings. Next, I double the two middle rings over a horizontal handle in the areas that are convenient for drying hands, (refrigerator door handle, etc.).
As I thread the towel through the double rings I fold it evenly with the pattern showing off to the best advantage.
I even tried tinting the plastic rings, and that works, too.
Lucille Tyler

BUSH-ON ROUGE
DEAR HELOISE:
I prefer using creme rouge that comes in a small tube, and always insert an ordinary household pin in the tiny nozzle as soon as I buy it.
What adheres to the pin is just the right amount for an application. After each use the pin is replaced into the nozzle and the little cap screws down snugly over it.
This way you never have to squeeze out the contents - usually too much comes out - and the pin is always handy in the tube.

SUNDAY THOUGHTS
DEAR HELOISE:
Recently I was unable to attend church for a few Sundays, but I was so pleased to receive a copy of the church bulletin each week in the mail.
On this bulletin was a note saying that I was missed. In this way I was able to keep abreast of the goings-on at the church, too.
I found out that this is the practice of the new attendance secretary in our church and was her idea. She takes all the bulletins that people leave in their pews on Sunday morning and makes this use of them.

I think it's a wonderful idea and intend to make use of it myself.
I have several elderly shut-in friends and I'm sure they would love receiving one of these each week. I'm going to see that my family saves their bulletins and we will send them to shut-ins each week.
They are just too pretty to throw away and, besides that, they let people know you care.

CHICKEN OLE!
DEAR HELOISE:
I was making chicken and dressing for dinner one day and decided to make corn bread dressing. I made the corn bread with a mix.
I happened to have one of the new seasoned (Mexican) corn bread mixes and used that for my corn bread. It turned out to be the best dressing I ever tasted.
I only added a little sage and the seasoned corn bread did the rest.
