

Spirit Of Giving Unfolds For 82 Girlstown Residents

The roar of the Hereford Lions became a carol of good cheer Thursday night as the local club hosted 82 girls from Girlstown, U.S.A. for the annual ladies' night Christmas party.

The Girlstown Christmas stocking was bulging after the party, with the Lions Club presenting a check for $5,000 — one of the largest cash gifts the club has ever made at one time — in addition to local and regional participation in gifts that totalled another $5,000 or more. One of the larger gifts was a 1970 reconditioned pickup truck which was presented by Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative.

"This is what Lionism is all about," said a beaming Nolan Grady, club president, after the party as he bragged on the 184 members in the club. The party at the Bull Barn drew some 498 persons, which included the Lions, their wives, the girls from Girlstown, and other special guests including residents of King's Manor. Gay Christmas decorations, a visit by Santa Claus, and a musical program presented by the Girlstown groups were also highlights of the party. Each of the 82 girls was the special guest of a Lion and his wife and received a gift from the Lion. In addition, each girl received a leather hobby kit by Tandy Leather Co. of Fort Worth, and was given a gold bracelet by Zale's Jewelry.

Grady presented the $5,000 check to Marshall Cooper, Girlstown executive director, for "any purpose you see fit." Cooper also accepted the keys to the pickup, presented on behalf of Deaf Smith Electric Co-Op by Raymond Higginbotham, a member of the board. The co-op voted several weeks ago to provide Girlstown with the vehicle, after it was learned that a pickup was one of the greatest needs. Norwood Chevrolet provided the necessary repairs and refurbishing required to completely recondition the vehicle. And, the pickup was not empty. Arrowhead Mills manager Frank Ford donated 100 lbs. of flour, 100 lbs. of pinto beans, and 50 lbs. of rice. John Seiver, manager of Griffin and Brand Vegetables Processors, donated 500 lbs. of carrots.

Lion Earnest Langley announced the special gifts and donations, then introduced Higginbotham for the presentation of the pickup. James Hull, manager of the electric cooperative and a member of the Lions Club, was

Texas Water Plan Story Is Outlined

BY O.G. NIEMAN
Publisher

The "nuts and bolts" story of the massive Texas Water Plan was outlined by a Bureau of Reclamation official here Thursday during a special Ag Day Meeting sponsored jointly by the Deaf Smith County Water Association and the County Crops Committee.

Dale Raitt, assistant regional director for the bureau, gave the progress report and said that public hearings have been tentatively set for March and April, with the complete preliminary report due by June 30.

Raitt was the principal speaker for the Ag Day program, and was introduced by State Rep. Bill Clayton of Springlake, who also serves as executive director of Water, Inc. Clayton also spoke briefly of the water plan.

The program started with registration at 10:30 a.m. and closed at 3:30 p.m. A free barbecue luncheon was sponsored by the county water association and catered by Hereford Rotary Club. Six ag researchers had parts on the program, ranging from irrigation practices to crop production problems.

The meeting, hampered by a surprise snowfall, drew less than 100 people, but there were amazed at the preliminary planning and work which has been accomplished on the massive water plan. Raitt said the plan, as it now stands, would tap the Mississippi River near its Delta area in south Louisiana and send millions of acre feet of water to nine terminal reservoirs on the High Plains.

Seven of the terminals would be created from natural lake areas, and two of these proposed reservoirs are in the Hereford area — Buffalo and Garcia lakes. The Bureau's reconnaissance plan extends from Twin Lakes, northeast of Denton, to the High Plains and eastern New Mexico.

Raitt said the canal bringing the water to the High Plains would be more of a "man-made river." It is designed to be 300 feet wide at the bottom, 500 feet wide at the top and 30 feet deep. It would carry 8.5 million acre feet of water a year, with Texas keeping 6.3 million, New Mexico getting 1.8 million, and evaporation and seepage tabbed for .8 million.

The plans call for 705 miles of canals and 53 pumping stations to lift the water to the various elevations. Of the Texas water, said Raitt, 79 per cent would be allocated for use south of the Canadian River and 21 per cent north of that area. He said there would be 4.3 million acre feet of storage in the nine holding reservoirs. During a question and answer period, Raitt stated there were no cost estimates ready at this time. The amount of water to be diverted from the Mississippi is based on a study during a period of 1928 to 1966.

Raitt and George Bailey, regional planning officer, estimated it would take about 20 years to complete the huge program "based on present funding procedures." They reported the plan calls for irrigation of some 3.5 million acres on the High Plains, where there are some 11 million acres in cultivation.

Talking about power requirements, Raitt said the system would need about 50 billion kilowatt hours of energy per year. Comparing this figure, he pointed out that Amarillo uses about one billion kilowatt hours. Tentative plans call for several generating plants along the canal system.

During the morning session of the Ag Day program, Charles Hoover, chairman of the county water group, served as the moderator. Dr. John Shipley, Bushland Experiment Station, opened the program by discussing ways to gain maximum use of irrigation water. Aside from the declining underground water supply, Dr. Shipley said the cost of water will continue to rise and will become too high for ag use unless the picture changes.

"It all adds up to a pretty dismal picture, if you look at the projections without considering

Revenue-Sharing Picture Is Brighter

City, County Officials Find Answers At Austin Conference

BY MARSHALL DAY
News Editor

City and county officials returned from a revenue-sharing meeting in Austin Wednesday with a different outlook after they found out what can and can't be done with some $184,000 in money from the federal government.

Officials from each of the governing bodies, wary of the massive revenue-sharing plan prior to going to the meeting, expressed a different point of view when they returned.

"This looks like it will be a real easy thing to work with," City manager Dudley Bayne said Thursday.

"It looks like the program could work. It is more of a step toward local government decision-making and it certainly is more convincing when you can hear it straight from the horse's mouth." — Coleman.

County commissioner Bruce Coleman echoed the same feelings when he said before attending the meeting he "didn't think too much of the program" but now his opinion has changed.

Officials found out the money — $80,781 for the city and $103,037 for the county — could be used in any manner that other local tax money is used. No limitations were set except that it not be used for welfare, to match other grants, or for the retirement of bonds.

Some $6.4 billion will be given out each year for the next five years, according to what was learned at the meeting. The funds are allocated each year to the state and the state in turn gets to keep one-third while two-thirds goes to the local governments.

The distribution formula is based on the county or city's population, per capita income and tax effort. The money can be used for things such as operating expenses, maintenance, environmental purposes, health and recreation, and capital expenses, but not for welfare, education, matching other federal grants or retirement of bonds.

A back-up precaution will be that state agencies cannot cut off funds to a governing body if that body plans to use its revenue-sharing money for a certain item.

As the population, per capita income and tax effort vary each year, the checks also will be adjusted in order. Stipulations also say that the governing body file an "intention of use" report for what they intend to use the funds for. This is not mandatory with the first checks received, but will be on all other checks received over the next five-year period.

Also, a statement of what the money has been used for must be published in the local newspaper occasionally under the theory the public will become the official "watchdog" of what is being done with the money.

"It looks like it is going to be a real workable program. If we have a job to do, we do not have to submit plans, just go ahead and do it. They said to use common sense and follow the law, that's all." — Bayne.

The U.S. Treasury Department, which presented the meeting, told those who attended that the money should be kept in a separate account and audited separately.

The entire purpose of the revenue-sharing program as explained by the Treasury Department officials, is to do away with much of the "red tape" local governments must go through when they apply for grants or federal funding of any type.

Coleman said the impression he got at the meeting was that

At Churches, For Christmas

Special Services Planned

Pre-Christmas services in Hereford churches will center on music of the season and programs by children today and during the week, leading up to traditional observances of Christmas Eve and Christmas day next weekend.

Cantatas, candlelighting services and children's songs, tableaux and reading will be featured in most churches today, each inviting visitors to join in the varied forms of worship. Hanging of the Christmas greens will be the occasion for the special program in First Baptist Church at 7 p.m., a candlelight service with carols by the sanctuary choir, junior girls' choir and congregation, directed by Sjeve Graham. The Lord's Supper will be observed. An annual candlelighting service is scheduled in the Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p.m. with Christmas music by the choir and a message by the Rev. Russell Wingert, minister. The congregational dinner which is a yearly event in this church was held Dec. 8.

Directed by Fred Ratliff, the sanctuary choir of First United Methodist Church will sing a contemporary cantata, The Story of Christmas, at 7 p.m. Narrations from the King James version of the Bible introduce sections of the Christmas story in song. Mrs. Tony Calkins is organist.

At the morning worship service the Ladies Handbell Choir directed by Bill Devers will ring, presenting familiar Christmas hymns. Dr. W.A. Appling, pastor, will give the sermon.

The Night Of Miracles is the title of the cantata which Temple Baptist choir will present at 7 p.m. with Douglas Morris directing. Miraculous events surrounding the birth of Christ, beginning with prophecies, are portrayed in this cantata.

Bill Lamm will narrate the Bible text. Mrs. Albert Ricketts is accompanist; soloists will be Becky Cox, soprano; Mike Kemp, tenor; Albert Ricketts, baritone, and Elmer White, bass.

Children of St. Anthony's school will give their annual program at 3 p.m. today in the auditorium, and there will be a family Christmas party Thursday evening when Santa Claus will be a visitor.

REPORT ON WATER PLAN—Dale Raitt, assistant regional director of the Bureau of Reclamation at Amarillo, was guest speaker for the Ag Day program here Thursday at the Bull Barn, where he gave a progress report on the Texas Water Plan. The meeting was sponsored jointly by Deaf Smith County Water Association and the County Crops Committee. Charles Hoover and Jerry Roberts served as moderators for the groups, and State Rep. Bill Clayton was one of the featured speakers. Behind Raitt is a map showing the nine proposed terminal reservoirs on the High Plains, with Buffalo and Garcia lakes included in this area.

REC Sets Open House

Board of directors and staff of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative will host an open house this afternoon from 3 to 5 p.m. in the co-op's newly remodeled office building on East First Street.

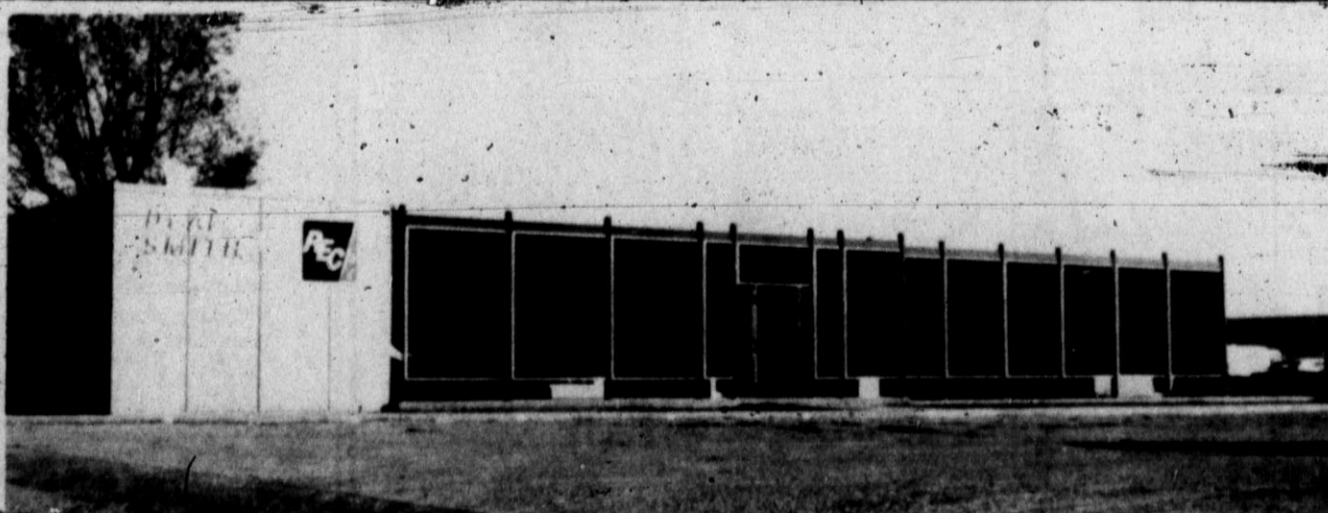

David A. Hamil of Washington, D.C., administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration, will be special guest for the event, and a number of other distinguished persons from throughout Texas are expected. Among these will be Susie Howard, Miss Texas Rural Electrification.

As a result of extensive remodeling, the Deaf Smith REC headquarters building now boasts a complete face lift outside, and an additional 2,284 square feet inside. Most of the additional space has been incorporated into the Medallion Room, a community meeting place which will be available to local groups for meetings, exhibits, and other uses.

Rep. Bill Clayton Stresses Support

Rep. Bill Clayton, dubbed as "Mr. Water" by many farmers and ranchers on the High Plains stressed that the area "must present a united front on the water import plan" when he spoke at an Ag Day program here Thursday at the Bull Barn.

Clayton, state representative from Springlake, told farmers and businessmen here that "we must be optimistic about the Texas Water Plan and continue to do a good selling job on the importance of our area to the state and nation."

He stressed that "the area we are talking about holds 8.1 per cent of the population in Texas, produces 11 per cent of the total Texas output, and pays 18.2 per cent of the taxes in this state."

Pointing out that the area is one of the largest contiguous ag sections in the world, Clayton said we "have the people, the climate and the capabilities to be a veritable world food basket." He added that more and more people are beginning to realize this. Clayton also said that it appears the export of agricultural commodities "may be the only way we can reduce our deficit in world trade."

One way to present a united front, the legislator added, is to become involved in Water, Inc., a non-profit organization working to assure adequate future water supplies for all segments of the economy. The Deaf Smith County Water Association announced that it went over the 100 mark in memberships Thursday. The county unit must have at least 100 memberships to have a man on the board.

the federal government is trying to cut down or phase out some of the "middle man" agencies and instead ship the money directly from the Treasury Department to local governments and let them decide what the urgent needs are.

Bayne said he felt much better after the meeting because, if the program works, it will "eliminate these categorical grants and save the taxpayers a lot of money."

Bayne said the officials admitted they did not want any more red tape of any more controls than they had to have under the program. He added the hopes of the Treasury Department is that the funds would keep local governments from having to increase their taxes and use the money for things local money was not previously available for.

future changes," he stated. Dr. Shipley added, however, that there are reasons for a more optimistic outlook. These include the water important plan, and more efficient use of water through modern technology. He predicted farmers may soon have access to computers, possibly located in the county agent's office.

Leon New, Lubbock Extension Service, spoke on irrigation of corn and grain sorghum for optimum return as the final part of the morning program. Jerry Roberts, chairman of the Deaf Smith County Crops Committee, was moderator for the evening session.

Speakers Thursday afternoon included Dr. Robert Berry, who discussed corn and sorghum diseases; Dr. Bill Clymer, who spoke on integrated pest management systems for insect control; Dr. Frank Petr, crops for winter grazing; and James Valentine, a discussion of soil sampling and testing procedures, and the use of feedlot manure in the fertility program.

didn't even see these last year," says Corlis.

Corlis said the biggest change that has come in toys over the years has been in the relatively modern stress on educational toys and the fast-changing types of dolls offered.

"Dolls are changing every day," he says.

He adds that federal safety regulations are also a factor in the changes in toys over the past few years. However, he cites only one example in Penney's stock.

Penney's had to remove a ring from the nose of an animated-toy dachshund, and add a warning to packaging, stating that it was not suitable for pre-school-aged children.

This is the only item in our stock which has even had to be modified, none have been banned," says Corlis. "Penney's safety controls are usually even more rigid than federal controls."

"We won't have many toys left after Christmas, this year," he says. "This is different from the past."

Corlis says that Penney's toys were hand-picked this year, rather than purchased in an assortment, as in the past.

"On our price lists, we were told what would be advertised on TV — there's were you get your toy sales," he commented.

Whether it's caused by TV or not, there is a greater demand than ever for larger, modernized toys, and for J.C. Penney's at least, there is an increase in overall toy sales over the same period last year.

"We had a fine increase for October and November," says Corlis, "and we're looking for the best December we've ever had."

As evidence of the speed with which toys are moving in the store, Corlis pointed out that, when the store first started selling its Christmas toys, the toy stock took up space on a large section of the store.

Toys are now narrowed down in J.C. Penney's to two racks in the center of the floor.

Wilson-Harvey Wedding Is High Noon Ceremony

A high noon wedding ceremony was read Saturday for Miss Cherie Gray Wilson and Michael Paul Harvey, both of Dallas, in Perkins Chapel on the campus of Southern Methodist University.

Miss Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Townsend of Austin and John W. Wilson of Wichita Falls. Harvey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Harvey of 518 Ave. I.

Dr. Walter L. Underwood, pastor of First United Methodist Church at Ft. Worth officiated. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

The chapel altar was decorated with curved candleabra containing white tapers, massed holiday greenery and red poinsettias. The prie-dieu was marked with a miniature bouquet of greenery and poinsettias.

Maid of honor was Miss Jeanne Wilson of Austin, and the matron of honor Mrs. W.H.

Roberts III, of Dallas sisters of the bride. Wynn A. Buck of Austin was best man.

Misses Kathy Stowe of Austin and Maribeth Webb of Houston, Mrs. Stephen Brauns of Austin and Mrs. David Jefferies of Hereford served as bridesmaids.

Ushers who lighted the candles before the ceremony were Jefferson Scott Gray, cousin of the bride, and William F. Russell, of Austin. Other ushers were Edward T. Mims of Oklahoma City, James B. Cooper of Houston, Louis M. Jacks of Dallas, William J. Barton of Colorado and William H. Roberts III.

The organ was played by Dr. Robert Anderson, and was the only wedding music.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of ivory velvet with a bib, collar and sleeves of Cluny lace; matching lace banding caught the skirting in ruffles at the hem. Mute red velvet marked the empire waist line. A Venice lace caplet held her veil of ivory silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white roses, gardenias, stephanotis and babybreath.

Her attendants' gowns were designed with ruffled bib fronts and bishop sleeves. The fabric was ivory satin flocked in Christmas red velvet. The dresses were banded at the empire waist with matching red velvet. They carried nosegays of red carnations, holly and babybreath.

The reception was in the Garden Room in Dallas. The bride's table was covered with a cloth of ivory marquisette and lace; in the center a silver epergne held red and white flowers and greenery. More of the greens and poinsettias surrounded the cake. The floral decoration and swags of smilax appeared in room decoration.

A wedding trip to the West Coast and Colorado was planned by the couple. They will be at home afterward at 3415 Shenandoah, Dallas.

The bride received a degree in business administration from the University of Texas at Austin, where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi. She attended high school in Wichita Falls.

Harvey attended Texas Tech and graduated from UTA with a bachelor of journalism degree.

He was on the dean's honor list, a member of the Student Assembly and Journalism Council. His fraternities were Pi Kappa Alpha and Alpha Delta Sigma. He is a Hereford High School graduate.

Wedding guests included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H.S. Gray of Austin, also the Lindal Muleshoe family of Muleshoe.

On the eve of the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harvey were hosts for the rehearsal dinner in Jamil's Steak House in Dallas. The bride's colors of Christmas red and white were used in table decor with arrangements of white roses, holly, carnations and babybreath on the L-shaped head table.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED — Mr. and Mrs. Howard Engle of Adrian announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda Kay, to Tony M. Poteet, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Poteet of Muleshoe. The couple plans a Jan. 10 wedding in Adrian United Methodist Church. Miss Engle is a student at Amarillo Junior College and a 1972 graduate of Adrian High School. Poteet is employed by Gable Custom Branding of Friona. He is a 1971 graduate of Muleshoe High School.

Partridge, Pear In Dinner Motif

Partridges in pear trees, figures in the familiar Christmas carol, supplied the theme for Calliopean Study Club's annual holiday dinner Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Ansel McDowell.

Even the menu followed the trend, with roast partridge as the main dinner course. Gala scenes were set with elegant holiday decorations in each room.

Most striking was a window in the den dining area, where the snow outside was glimpsed through branches of a wrought-iron candelabra set with votive cups holding red candles. Pears had been hung on the tree, and a partridge figurine set on a branch.

Hostesses with Mrs. McDowell were Mmes. Keith Simmer, Alton Fraser, Jack

Wilcox, Millard Nobles, Emmett Milburn, Hazen Woods, C.J. Crump, Bob Word, Clyde Cave and George Warner. In addition to members and their husbands, Mrs. William Golden was a dinner guest.

Miss Cantu Wed In Church Vows

Miss Mary Ellen Cantu, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Cantu of Dairy Road, exchanged marriage vows with Johnny Zarazua, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Claudio Zarazua of Ralls, in a mid-afternoon ceremony Saturday.

The Rev. Boniface Riedmann, pastor, conducted the nuptial mass in St. Anthony's Catholic Church, where the altar was decorated with Christmas greenery.

Miss Anita Cantu, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and Cruz Zarazua of Lubbock, the bridegroom's uncle, acted as best man.

Attendant couples were Mr. and Mrs. Primo Garcia, Mr. and Mrs. Madaleno Rocha, Mr. and Mrs. Marcos Garcia of Taft, and from Ralls, Messrs. and Mmes. Bill Nelson, M. Thompson and S. Mendoza.

Misses Fannie Marquez, Lupe Rivera, Angelita DeLeon and Linda Zarazua of Ralls were bridesmaids, Margie Cantu the train bearer, Angelita Garcia and Mary Helen Mata the flower girls, and Joe Paul Zarazua the ring bearer.

The bride's gown was of lace, the skirt spreading widely and the train wider in tiers bordered with floral-patterned bands. The bodice was fitted at the natural waistline, with wedding ring collar and sleeves gathered to wide cuffs.

A pearl-trimmed lace caplet held her waistlength veil and she carried a bouquet of crystal flowers.

The maid of honor was dressed in white, with velveteen bodice and floor-length polyester skirt trimmed with lace leaf applique. Other feminine attendants wore similar gowns, but in shades of pink, lilac and violet. Each wore a matching bow in her hair and carried flowers of the same color.

After the wedding, a reception followed by a dinner and dance held in the Knights of Columbus Hall. Principal table decoration was the tiered wedding cake, with sugar roses in white, pink and lilac wreathed in spiral to the top.

The couple will be at home until January, then will live in Kansas City, Missouri, where the bridegroom will be a student.

He is a graduate of Ralls High School and has been employed here with Holly Sugar Co. The bride attended Hereford High School.

Among out-of-city wedding guest were Mr. and Mrs. Gregoria Garcia of San Antonio, Mr. and Mrs. Nickolas Garcia of Edna, Mr. and Mrs. Silvestre Cantu of San Benito.

Victory Class Party Given

Mrs. Billy Wall and Mrs. George Petree were hostesses in the former's home Thursday for the Christmas party of Avenue Baptist Victory Class. From a tall frosted tree in the fireplace corner, focal point of room decorations, gifts were exchanged by members.

Games suitable to the season were directed by Mrs. G.W. Duncan after Mrs. Johnnie Townsend read a humorous verse, Christmas Blahs. Mrs. Bill West presided for a short business discussion.

Also present were Mmes. John Burns, C.E. Coleman, Carlyle Sargent, Herman Hendrix and Gaylon Bryan.

Don't take chance with termites

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q. We have termites in our house. I am told that anyone in California that says they have no termites is not telling the truth. I do not wish to hire an exterminator. Is there a do-it-yourself way to control them? — Mrs. S.L.

A. A termite exterminator is the only sure way that I know to eliminate these very damaging insects. It is almost impossible to destroy all termites in an affected area except by use of gas which must be used by a professional. It is a good idea to have more than one company give you an estimate on the job. It is not true that all California houses have termites. Many houses built years ago have escaped termite trouble. However, you cannot afford to take chances with costly termites. The home is usually a family's biggest dollar investment. So regular inspections are advised and termites can be controlled, where found, efficiently and surely with scientifically applied chemicals.

Q. My problem is a damp clothes closet in which several things have become mildewed. The closet is along a north wall which has a stucco exterior. This wall never gets sun but gets plenty of wind off the ocean. My husband painted the exterior stucco with two coats of water seal, one week apart. Then I scrubbed the closet interior with cleaner and sprayed the walls and closet carpet with disinfectant spray. But three weeks later, the musty odor is still strong. Should I paint the interior with something? Is it possible that the dampness has penetrated the insulated wall? — Mrs. G.H.

A. Wash down the interior walls and other surfaces with a mildew-proofing preparation. I believe your problem may be caused not by dampness coming in through the walls, but by moist warm air condensing on the cold wall. The outside closet wall could be insulated by furring out the wall, then placing blanket insulation between the furring strips and the interior wall-board. If there is an unheated area above the closet, do the same thing to the ceiling. In damp weather, it also would be advisable to keep a 60-watt bulb burning to increase the temperature in the closet and to dry out any moisture. Keep the bulb away from inflammable materials. There also is an exceedingly useful electrical heating unit which is fastened to the baseboard and plugged in. It burns the equivalent of a 25-watt bulb and its gentle heat and air circulation can permanently cure dampness in closets and similar spaces. If you fur out the wall with dry wall, it should be painted with an oil base paint so that it can be easily washed when necessary.

Q. We recently had our house, which was built more than 100 years ago, restuccoed. While we are satisfied with the stucco job, we will be spending the next six months cleaning up the mess. The problem is that we have no idea what to do to clean stucco off cement and brick sidewalks. Can you help? — Mrs. Eunice L.

A. First try soaking the stained masonry areas with a hot solution of trisodium phosphate, using one cup to a gallon of water. Then use a wire brush and paint scraper to loosen the stucco and flush with clear water. Try this on a small area and if it is not successful, use a solution of muriatic acid, one part acid to ten parts of water. Mix this in a wooden or glass container. After letting it stand for a reasonable time, flush off with plenty of water. Be sure to wear heavy clothes, rubber gloves and goggles for protection while working with the acid, as it is highly corrosive, dangerous and will burn the skin.

Industry and prosperity may be spelled differently, but they mean about the same thing.

How can tax bite be eased?

By JOHN T. WATTS
Copley News Service

Dear John: My wife and I would like your answer to a problem which concerns us greatly, namely what if anything can be done to minimize the income tax bite in the following situation:

We purchased our home in 1947 for $11,900 and now own it free of any encumbrance. We have been told that it is now worth approximately $26,000. Since purchasing it, however, we have spent approximately $5,400 in remodeling and major repair, i.e., two additions of rooms and re-roofing, leaving a net balance of $8,700 which the IRS will consider long-term capital gain, although due to inflation there really is very little profit in this situation.

We would like to invest what we can get out of the property and rent an apartment, using the income from the investment to pay the rent and to supply us with a little more in the way of living expenses. What are the allowances in a situation of this kind where the purchase of another home is not in our plans? — La Mesa Resident

Dear La Mesa Resident: There is no special provision which would excuse you from paying the capital gains.

Maybe there will be some day for widowers — let's hope. If it's any consolation, sales costs, etc., may cut down the amount on which you will have to pay.

But the only break at this time would be on your real estate taxes. You say the property is clear. If you ask my advice, I'd say to keep it. At least, before you make the leap, check on the cost of renting very carefully.

Dear John: Have noticed your column lately in our local paper and enjoy it very much.

Saw the article about the state of California having a senior citizens tax assistance program, and would like to know if there is such a program in Texas. If not how could a person go about getting a program like this started? — Mrs. P.N.

Dear Mrs. P.N.: Haven't heard of it if there is one. But to make sure (you live in Austin) call up the capitol and ask.

As to getting a program started, that takes people and the larger the number the better. Get a group to sponsor such a movement. Maybe there is a chapter there of the American Association of Retired Persons. Write letters to the local newspaper. Find out who your representative is in the legislature and contact him.

Many big undertakings have had such grass-roots inceptions.

Dear John: I heard someone say that the owner who owns the house and rents it, is supposed to pay for the water. Well, I'm renting this house and the owner is selling the place and now he hands us the bill that we are to pay for the water and the bill is already two months past due. What can we do about this? He says if we don't pay the bill he will raise the rent, but the place is for sale. — Margaret G.

Dear Margaret: In the first place, the landlord can't raise the rent even if he is trying to sell the house. And if he has been paying for the water as part of the occupancy agreement, he can't now demand that you pay it, either. That also constitutes raising the rent.

You might remind him that a short time ago a Los Angeles landlord was fined $15,000 for violating the rent control. The fine was levied in the court of U.S. District Judge Warren Ferguson.

THE INFORMED CONSUMER

BY CRAWFORD C. MARTIN
Attorney General of Texas

The Texas Railroad Commission was created in 1891 for the purpose of regulating the railroad rates and tariffs, preventing discriminatory practices, and enforcing state laws concerning railroads generally.

In 1917 it was given by statute the authority to supervise the production of oil and gas in Texas. Today the regulation of this industry is one of the major functions of the agency.

The Commission is also charged with the duty of enforcing laws pertaining to reasonable prices on natural gas and fair rate charges for producing, transporting, distributing, buying selling, and delivering natural gas by pipelines. It apportions the natural gas supply among towns, cities, and corporations.

Another of the Commission's responsibilities is that of regulating matters affecting the supervision of transporting property for hire by motor vehicles on the Texas public highways. The Commission fixes the rates which motor carriers may charge for their services.

In addition to these functions, the Railroad Commission prescribes railroad passenger fares and freight rates, as well as motor bus passenger fares. It establishes rules governing the transportation of passengers and freight and formulates baggage rules and sets the rates thereon.

The Railroad Commission also inspects butane and propane equipment in all public buildings such as schools, churches, and hospitals. Many times when a home is financed by FHA loan or a Veterans Administration loan, these federal agencies will require that an inspection be made by the Commission to insure that certain standards are met in regard to the use of butane and propane.

While many people do not think of the Texas Railroad Commission as being a consumer agency, you can see the vital role which it plays. If you have a problem in the areas discussed above, you should contact this agency.

ICT STUDENT OF THE WEEK — This week's Industrial Cooperative Training student of the week, Clifton Carlton, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Carlton of 328 Ave. J., plans to attend the University of Texas at Austin after his graduation from Hereford High School, where he is a senior. Presently he is employed at Boyd's Machine and Supply under the supervision of Dub Boyd.

Home appliance sale on the rise

Home appliance shipments for the first three quarters of 1972 were 10 per cent ahead of last year, according to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers.

Eight out of nine major product categories showed increases: refrigerators, freezers, electric and gas clothes dryers, electric ranges, dishwashers, dehumidifiers, and food-waste disposers.

Work Continues On Bond Items

The waiting game, sprinkled with lots of behind-the-scenes work, begins now for school officials in the wake of the passage of $1,319,000 in bonds for improvements throughout the system.

While the bond sales is scheduled for Jan. 9, followed by intensive meetings with school personnel administrators feel it will be some time before actual work is started on the issues.

"We have already asked Don T. Martin, principal at Stanton, to talk to the science teachers at that school and get suggestions on what is needed in the way of science facilities," Superintendent Roy Hartman said.

"We will also be talking with the people at Shirley and the high school and getting suggestions from all of them for these items."

The idea behind this, the superintendent said, is to find out exactly what will best suit the needs in the areas where the improvements will be made.

Following the talks with the teachers and school officials, the administration and school board will then get architectural plans.

Hartman said it is hopeful that many of the items will be completed by the time school opens next fall. However, he said there is a possibility the bids may be let on several of the items, but work not started until much later — items such as the new elementary school and the new high school library.

"I don't know how quickly we can move on some of these things — we will just have to take a good look at where we are. But, we certainly will want to move as quickly as possible in order to get the best market possible for construction and in order to have some of these things ready for next fall."

Proposition No. 3, the only one to be defeated in last Tuesday's election, remains a question mark to local officials. It calls for an all-weather track at the high school stadium, all-weather playground facilities at all the elementary schools and expansion of the field house.

"At this point there is nothing we can do. We have to forget the items that were included at this time," Hartman said.

"By this spring we will have to do some maintenance on the track to get it in shape for the spring running, but from there I really don't know what will happen."

"Really, we haven't had much time to think about these things."

Sweden moves to stem rise in auto exhausts

Some 30 per cent of the cars now operating on the roads of Sweden emit higher concentrations of harmful exhaust fumes than the limits set by law, according to a government report.

The report proposes tighter emission controls on massed produced new cars to meet emission limits established for the type, continued emission tests on used cars and stricter rules for idling tests.

THINK PRETTY Blue jeans are still No. 1

By PEGGY WALKER
Copley News Service

New Yorker Dorothy Kapstein travels around the world in search of just-budding ideas in fashions and lifestyles — ideas destined to make a strong impact on everyone's thinking. Officially, she's a trend-spotter.

And among the trends she's spotted, blue jeans are making the strongest current impact, fashion-wise, from the streets of Berkeley to the beach at St. Tropez.

"The only difference is that at St. Tropez they're wearing the very expensive blue jean look ... embroidered, appliqued jeans and jackets. Little $150 faded blue jean jackets."

And Miss Kapstein believes the St. Tropez expensive-blue jean look is going to spread as quickly among the fashion-conscious as Levi Strauss' first canvas overalls did among the miners in the Mother Lode.

Your conscience can never be trained to make you feel right if you are unwilling to do right.

CANDY CANE TREE—As a part of their tour of Hereford State Bank Thursday, members of Bluebonnet's kindergarten class were treated to candy canes from the tree.

Burial Conducted At White Deer For R.L. Hodges

The funeral of Robert Lee Hodges, 66, who resided on his farm northwest of Hereford, was conducted at Pampa Saturday afternoon and burial was in the cemetery at White Deer, where he lived 33 years. Mr. Hodges died at his home Thursday afternoon.

The Rev. Marvin Roark pastor of First United Methodist Church at Pampa, conducted the funeral. Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home was in charge of local arrangements.

Born Aug. 26, 1906, in Clay County, Mr. Hodges was a rancher and farmer all his life. He moved to Deaf Smith County from White Deer in 1950, and for the past 10 years had farming interests in Nebraska.

He married Gladys Sellers Jan. 4, 1932, at Texola. His wife survives, with a daughter, Sherrie Washburn of Dallas; a son Terry, of Cleveland, Tex.; a sister, Mrs. R.E. Mackey of Cookton, Okla.; a brother, Roy E. Hodges of White Deer, and three grandchildren.

Children's Party Is Holiday Event

Young as well as older Hereford residents are having their share of holiday entertainment, and one of the big parties of this weekend was for approximately a hundred children Saturday morning in Pioneer Gas Company's Flame Room.

Hosts were Lisa and Robbie, children of the Bud Snyders; Crystal and Vanessa, the Benn Scotts' daughters; James Douglas, son of the Norman Bartlett; Tammy, daughter of the Dickie Geries; Tammi, Terri and Melissa, daughter of the Terry Bloxoms.

Santa Claus appeared to distribute gifts after a series of games for which the children were divided into age groups. Each guest brought a gift for the exchange, and each brought one of his own toys to give to the Toys for Tots program.

The Christmas tree was white-flocked, hung with glittering blue balls. Refreshments were served from a table covered in green, with a cutout train in bright colors pinned across the front of the cloth. Red candles and holiday greens were in the centerpiece.

Economic Questions and Stabilization Answers

Q. I filed a complaint against a local department store which I thought had raised prices illegally. Now they've cut off my credit. Isn't this kind of retaliatory action forbidden by the price regulations?

A. Yes. A new Price Commission regulation prohibits retaliatory action by a seller against a buyer who exercises any of his rights under the Economic Stabilization Act or regulations. The rent guidelines prohibit similar actions by landlords.

If any firm has taken retaliatory action against you for filing a complaint, you may call your local Internal Revenue office for help.

Q. What penalties can the IRS impose upon landlords found to be violating rent controls?

A. The Internal Revenue Service can order landlords in violation of the rent regulations to restore overpayments to tenants, ratchet rents to legal limits and pay a penalty of an amount double an overcharged rent. Cases in which flagrant and willful violation of rent rules occur will be turned over to the Justice Department for litigation and possible prosecution.

For information on how you can help the IRS enforce rent controls, see IRS Publication S-3026, "How to Spot a Rent Violation." It's available free by dropping a postcard to your Internal Revenue district office.

Q. My County recently reduced property taxes. Does this mean that my landlord must reduce my rent?

A. Yes. If your local real estate taxes go down, your rent must be reduced too.

Q. How does an employer treat new employees with respect to the 5.5 percent general wage and salary ceiling?

A. Basically, the new employee is subject to the same guidelines as the old employee if the job requirements are similar. The 5.5 percent standard applies to the appropriate employee unit to which he belongs.

Q. If a Tier I subsidiary firm raises prices without prenotifying, does this violation have any effect on the parent corporation?

A. Yes. Neither the parent corporation nor any of its subsidiaries may implement any further price increases until the particular subsidiary's price increase has been properly prenotified and approved by the Price Commission and the Commission has approved the parent's other increases. The subsidiary's failure to prenotify before raising prices also freezes increases previously granted to the parent corporation and its

Puppies should be fed often

Q. I have several questions concerning a six-week old puppy. What and how often should he be fed? Should he be wormed and what are the symptoms of worms? At what age should the veterinarian see him? — M.S., Wellston, Ohio

A. Very young puppies should be fed four or five times daily. My recommendation is to feed your pup frequently and in small amounts, instead of once or twice daily and allow the dog to gorge himself. As your puppy matures you can reduce the number of feedings and increase the amount of food, until you are feeding him once daily by the time he is one year old.

The best type of food for your puppy is a combination of meat and cereal — a mixture of a good brand of commercial canned dog food and puppy chow. This will assure a balanced diet consisting of VOE STUDENT OF THE WEEK — The Vocational Office Education student of the week is Connie Cupell, daughter of Lee R. Wood of 208 Ave. K. protein, carbohydrates and fats. Puppies require more protein than mature dogs, so be sure and include some puppy chow in the diet. A vitamin and mineral supplement is also a good idea while your puppy is growing up.

Your veterinarian should check your puppy for worms as early as one or two weeks of age. Some of the symptoms of a puppy with worms include diarrhea, vomit, poor appetite and an unthrifty or anemic appearance. Intestinal parasites can cause a great deal of harm to a young puppy, and for this reason a puppy should be checked for worms at a very young age.

It's a good idea to have your veterinarian examine your puppy as soon as you acquire him, and to begin his vaccination immunization program for distemper, infectious hepatitis, leptospirosis and rabies.

Q. We had a dear little cat just three years old who died as a victim of cat leukemia. Our veterinarian told us it is quite common in cats. Could you please give us more information regarding this disease of cats? — F.B., Buena Park, Calif.

A. Leukemia is more frequently found in the cat than in any other warm-blooded animal commonly given veterinary care. The disease is a malignant proliferation of certain types of white blood cells and is invariably fatal.

The cause of cat leukemia has not yet been completely identified, although current research points toward a virus as being the agent involved. Much public concern was expressed several years ago that cat leukemia could be transmitted to humans. There is no research or documented evidence to support this theory. In fact, medical research has strongly disclosed that cat leukemia is not transmissible to humans.

Growing old gracefully isn't an impossibility

By REV. W. LEE TRUMAN
Her hair was white, her cheeks were covered with a network of deep criss-cross lines. The little girl who had come to see her thought about all of this and then asked, "Are you an old lady?" "No, honey," her eyes showing that unconquerable spirit that was hers, and she added, "Not exactly. But I must say I have certainly been young for a very long time."

It is hard to grow old, or as I should say, older, but this is also a part of growing up. There is no way of stopping the slowing down the bodily processes, or losing those visible signs of youth, but it is possible to have forever that buoyant, hopeful spirit that filled our early years.

Our most rewarding capacities are our ability to love and our need to be loved, our creativity, and the thousand of the other plain and simple enjoyments of life that need not be diminished one whit with the passage of the years. But there is no guarantee that this will be so. It is a goal that has to be worked for actively and with courage and great determination, and most of all with faith in our ability to master the difficulties that passing time puts in our way. As we grow older, more than ever before, we must weigh our personalities with absolute frankness and have a sincere desire to change those qualities which we find do not measure up. If we do not do this, we are in trouble. The bad traits we had in our youth often become more accentuated with the years, and the inner conflicts which we have left unresolved become an increasingly heavy burden to us or those around us.

When we are young, our drive and energy, or physical attractiveness in the case of women, overshadows such traits as selfishness, irritability, or insistence on dominating others. But when that youthful drive, or that loveliness of youth has gone, unpleasant traits have a way of standing out with clarity. In our middle years, and after, the deficiencies of personality not only become increasingly more open, but they have a tendency to assert themselves more and more until they take over the whole personality.

I buried a man who had been raised in what he called a "dirt poor home." He died with assets totaling a little more than a million dollars. He was so insecure, and this was so rooted in his unconscious mind, that it colored every aspect of his life. I knew him well, I was close to him, but it seemed that the more money he made, the greater his anxiety became. When my friend died, he could only be described as a quarrelsome, pathetic person whom everyone but his immediate family avoided.

It is wise before we reach those middle years to take careful inventory on ourselves. While there is still time to alter the traits in our character which we have managed to gloss over in the past, but which will if not dealt with, cause very real unhappiness later.

Any person who is looking forward to a happy old age needs to cultivate now, generosity, unselfishness, tolerance, kindness, sympathy, an appreciation of the value of every individual as an individual, and the willingness to let other people think and feel differently than we do without becoming angry, or without rejecting them.

More than anything else is the need to cultivate the ability to listen. These are the qualities of mind which will make growing older for a person a happy experience. If these attitudes are a deep part of your personality, you will not diminish as your physical powers certainly will. Without them you are courting a sad, embittered loneliness and unhappy old age.

The physical changes that come in the 40's are as hard a blow to many people than to face the fact of unqualified success. It is particularly hard for those who have taken great pride in their physical strength or their charm of beauty. They look in the mirror and see the baldness, the graying hair, wrinkles that spread their web from eye to forehead, their deteriorating figure, and it adds to the daily despair, and they are certain at such moments that the best of life is finished. Our contemporary civilization places a false emphasis on the value of youth and beauty.

Sometimes this fear drives this person to over compensate in other directions. It is not uncommon to find a man in his 40's become involved in a series of affairs with women much younger than himself. It is also not too rare to see men who have lived sane, straightforward lives embark on paths which violate their conscience and which leads finally to a great deal of pain and disaster.

The point they have missed is their charm, beauty, and virility, is not in the flesh and blood of their body, but in their spirit. The most effective prescription for growing older with success and dignity is a steady persistent development of one's inner resources.

The people I work with daily, who age before their time, do so not because of stiffening ligaments and muscles, but because of stiffening minds that become rigid with intolerance, irritability, and selfishness. As long as they remain flexible, tolerant, and undominated by hatred and resentment, they can learn to function at peak efficiency well beyond three score and ten.

If you would like to take an inventory of your personality realizing that whatever it might be now, it will certainly be in later years multiplied many times over, please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to COPELEY NEWS SERVICE, Box 190, San Diego, California. This is a check list which I have been using for years to help people see themselves and what road they are on.

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Bob Seger sells million, still seeks the limelight

By JUDY HUGG
Copley News Service

Ask Bob Seger the definition of obscurity and he'd probably say it is selling nearly a million records, three of which were in the top 10 in Detroit, and still be unknown in many parts of the country.

In fact, up until now, he has not had much influence outside of the Midwest although he has been one of the major shaping forces of the mid-western rock 'n' roll scene. However, for the past two years, Seger has worked methodically, picking and choosing the musicians for his new band, which he hopes will bring him out of obscurity and into the national limelight.

A great deal of intensive re-hearsing and endless energies have gone into Seger's latest album, called "Smokin' O.P.'S," on the Palladium label.

Smokin' O.P.'s are four guys who make enough music to sound like eight and most of it is pretty good stuff. All dressed up like a popular cigarette pack, the LP contains many familiar songs, a good idea for a new group because you already know most of the lyrics. It also allows comparison with the original artists and Seger's group comes out on top on many of the cuts.

The group is comprised of Seger who is lead vocalist; David Teegarden, drums and maracas; Skip (Van Winkle) Knape, organ and Michael (Monk) Bruce on the guitar. Pam Todd and Crystal Jenkins also help out vocally on several of the cuts.

Together they put out some good, hot cookin' rock on some fine old songs. Some of the better cuts include "Turn

On Your Love Light," "Hummin' Bird," "Some-day," "Love The One You're With" and the old rocker "Bo Diddley."

You understand why the word "emotional" is applied to Russian music when you hear RCA-Victrola's new LP called "A Festival of Russian Music" (VICS-1068).

On this record Fritz Reiner and the Chicago Symphony play music from Tchaikovsky, Moussorgsky, Glinka, Borodin and Kabalevsky. And that means a lot of thunder in the drums and sore lips in the trumpet section. Bach or Mozart, it is not.

Reiner chose from among the Tchaikovsky library "Marche Slave" and "Marche Miniature." The "Marche Slave" is music on the grand scale, its insistent drumbeat carrying with it the feeling of a nation on the march.

Modeste Mussorgsky, a 19th Century composer who revolutionized music with new scales, rhythms and harmonies, is represented by his scary "A Night On Bald Mountain." Listening to it, one thinks of wind and rain and flashes of green lightning bursting over the mountain. The violence and images of mad Satanic dances are followed by a sudden calm which is as unreal as the spectral sounds that preceded it.

The entry from Michail Glinka is "Russian and Ludmilla," which was first performed in 1842. This is some of the "busiest" music ever written. It also is notable for the Oriental images it evokes in common with much Russian music.

Alexander Borodin's "Prince Igor: Polovtsian March" again is full-throated Russian music carried along by the throbbing push of the bass drum. Borodin was one of the world's most unusual composers. He first was an army physician and then a professor of chemistry. He never composed when his work at the piano might disturb anyone. As a result his total output was meager.

Although a more modern composer, Kabalevsky's music could never be mistaken for anything but Russia. There are echoes of "Bald Mountain" in the beautiful melody elaborately presented in Kabalevsky's "Colas Breugnot."

A person who is exposed to concentration of CO in the air greater than about 5 per cent can expect trouble. Signs and symptoms of the trouble begin with a tight feeling across the head, then headache.

As more CO is inhaled, this is followed by weakness, dizziness, failing vision, nausea and vomiting. If the patient continues to breathe in CO, he will get more and more sluggish, finally losing consciousness and slipping into coma. When the lack of oxygen caused by inhaling CO is very severe, the heart and lungs stop their work and the patient dies.

Hibachi users may have this problem.

OUR CHILDREN

How to answer child's questions

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM

Q. "Why is the grass green?" If that were the only question our 4-year-old asked, I'd try to answer and be satisfied. But his "why?" questions are almost constant. I do my best to provide a reasonably complete answer, but it's beginning to get me down. What's even worse is that he usually doesn't wait for the answer before he asks another question. What do you suggest I do?

A. A story going the rounds some years ago was about a mother of a four-year-old, apparently somewhat like yours. One day he asked her, "Mother, where did I come from?" She thought this was the moment for pulling out all the stops on the birds, the bees, and all the rest. He patiently listened through her half-hour explanation. When she finished, she said, "Now, do you have any questions?" He hesitated for a moment, and then replied, "Well, yes, I do. Johnny told me he comes from Detroit. So now that you've told me all of that, will you tell me where I came from?"

Four-year-olds are curious, but as you've indicated, they sometimes ask questions to fill a silence or just to have something to say. So answer the questions that he really seems to want to know about, but only to the extent that he can absorb. Simple to-the-point information is what four-year-old youngsters generally want.

"I don't know." "Let's look it up" and "I'm busy now. Let's talk about it later" are also appropriate responses under certain circumstances.

Q. When the term "disadvantaged" or "deprived" is used in describing children, I guess it usually refers to youngsters who are from poor socioeconomic backgrounds. But I really think that's not quite complete. I feel that my own children are "disadvantaged" too. My husband's income is very adequate, we live in a fine house in a secluded northern suburb of Chicago, we take long vacations, and our children attend excellent schools and summer camps. But they have never had any contacts with children or adults of non-white races or with those from poverty populations. They know nothing of the inner city and its problems. They really are quite sheltered — and "deprived." Do you agree with me?

A. Yes, I do, but many others don't. As the world continues to shrink in size, they will probably find that their children are at a real disadvantage because they don't fully understand the needs, aspirations, and frustrations of other people. A lot of parents have a tendency to be smug about the breadth of our children's experiences, not realizing as you do that those experiences should include understanding relationships with people of all types and from differing backgrounds. Recognizing the need for such experiences is important, of course. But actually providing them through our homes and schools is something else again, and far more difficult to accomplish.

Q. When I was a child my parents had my tonsils taken out because it apparently was "the thing to do." I don't know of any children in my circle of friends who escaped. But aren't times different now? It's not quite so routine anymore — or is it?

A. No, it isn't. Most doctors agree that tonsils should not be removed, and just because they are large doesn't dictate their elimination. In fact, even if a child occasionally has tonsillitis, colds or ear infections it may not be a basis for tonsil removal.

If a child's tonsils do not cause serious troubles, they may be worth living with indefinitely because of their possible health contributions.

Q. We have a vacation coming up, and my husband insists we take the baby with us. She is 10-months old, and reaching the age where she gets into everything. He says that because he works such long hours and doesn't have much time to spend with the baby, this vacation will provide that chance for him. I don't have any help at home, spend every day with the baby, and am more than ready to get away for a while. By the way, we're planning a driving trip.

A. Do you have someone responsible to stay with the baby? That may be a better solution than being confined in a car with an active youngster.

Hibachi gas may be fatal

Carbon monoxide kills again. This time the source is the hibachi, the grill popular with campers these days. Carbon monoxide (CO) is a gas, colorless, odorless and generally unnoticed. It is present wherever things are burned.

Complete burning produces another gas, a familiar, harmless one, carbon-di-oxide (CO₂), the gas that gives sparkle to our soft drinks. But while carbon-di-oxide comes from complete burning and is harmless, carbon mon-oxide comes from incomplete burning and is

STAMPS Dutch feature 3 princes

By PAUL
J. WEIS
Copley News Service

The Netherlands' Child Welfare semipostals, have been issued and feature portraits of three Dutch princes.

The youngsters, children of Princess Beatrix and Prince Claus, were caught in their informal poses by their father, whose color slides became the basis for the stamps.

Child welfare institutions in Holland will benefit from the surcharge on the stamps, which will remain on sale until Jan. 6, 1973.

Details of each denomination are as follows:

Prince Willem-Alexander drawing a picture on the 25 cents plus 15 cent; Prince Johan Frisco playing with a little block on the 30 cent plus 15 cent; a closeup of Prince Constantijn, who was playing with a teddy bear (not shown on the stamp) when the picture was taken on the 35 cent plus 15 cent; the three princes at play on the 50 cent plus 20 cent.

In addition to the value, each adhesive also has the country name and the name of the prince or princes shown.

Gerald Wernats of Amsterdam designed the stamps in cooperation with Prince Claus, who took the view that his children should be pictured engaging in activities characteristic of their ages.

The stamps were printed by Joh. Enschede en Zonen, Haarlem, by the photogravure process in red, yellow, blue and black.

Each of the values is being printed in sheets of 100 stamps. In addition, a small sheet will be available containing four 25 cent plus 15 cent, one 30 cent plus 10 cent value and two 35 cent plus 15 cent stamps. In the margin of the sheet is the text: "plak kinderzegels op uw post" (use child welfare stamps).

The set of four 1972 Child Welfare semipostals can be ordered at face value directly from the Netherlands Post Office Philatelic Service, Prinses Beatrixlaan 11, The Hague, The Netherlands.

The price for the set is Dfls. 2, and the small sheet of seven stamps is Dfls. 3. Postage and registration is Dfls. 1.75 for each order. Banks or post offices can give the equivalent in U.S. funds. Remittance, either an international money order or U.S. bills, can be enclosed with the order. Or it can be made through the General Bank of the Netherlands, 84 William St., New York, N.Y. 10038, payable to the account of the Netherlands Post Office Philatelic Service. Coins or international reply coupons cannot be accepted as payment.

A souvenir card will be issued by the Bureau of Printing and Engraving on the occasion of Sepad '72, the philatelic stamp exhibition, sponsored by the Society of Philatelic Americans, which was held in Philadelphia.

The souvenir card depicts, in a block of four, the 10-cent stamp first issued on July 5, 1956. The scene is that of Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

You may order this souvenir card by mail, at $1 each, with a limit of five to a customer. Send check or money order, payable to Bureau of Engraving and Printing, to the Bureau, Washington, D.C. 20226. In the lower left corner of your envelope, write: "Sepad Souvenir Card." Allow six weeks for delivery.

The Mail Order commemoratives put into circulation are reported by the Postal Service to have narrow phosphorescent bars, instead of overall coatings of the chemical.

The coating is necessary to help automated sorting machines face and postmark mail. The former complete surfacing proved inadequate because cancellations could be erased and the stamps reused. The application of a bar also is said to effect a substantial economy, since less of the costly phosphorescent substance is used.

Stuffed Peppers CREOLE STYLE

- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 medium onion, chopped

- Salt and pepper
- 1 cup cooked rice
- 1 cup whole kernel corn
- 2 cups chopped cooked meat
- 6 medium green peppers
- 1/2 cup bread crumbs

Cover and bake in preheated oven at 350° for about 45 minutes.

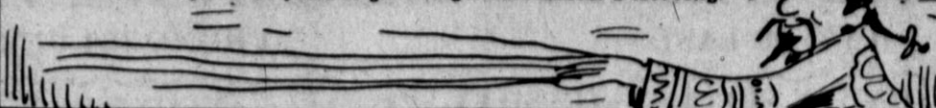

Prehistoric 'cow'

Bones of a large prehistoric horned animal have been recovered by archaeologists near a motorway site in Surrey, England.

According to James Shenton of the Egham-by-Runnymede Historical Society the animal was an Aurochs, forerunner of the cow.

Miss Jenkins Is Bride Of Mark Curtis Golden

The marriage of Miss Judith Lynn Jenkins of Amarillo and Mark Curtis Golden took place Saturday evening in St. Stephen United Methodist Church of Amarillo.

The Rev. William Flemming, pastor of St. Stephen, officiated. Miss Jenkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Jenkins of Amarillo. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. O.Z. Golden of 105 Ave. I.

The church was decorated with two arrangements of yellow gladiolas and white carnations. A large memory candle and two tapers were placed on the altar for a candle ceremony.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. Miss Cathy Sue Mask of Amarillo was the maid of honor with Bruce Holcom of Lubbock serving as best man.

Mrs. Jerald Jenkins, sister-in-law of the bride was bridesmaid.

Groomsmen were Gordon Golden of Montana, Jerald Jenkins of Lubbock, brothers of the couple, and Charles Brown of Lubbock.

Mrs. Charles Hood of Amarillo played the organ, and Leah Newman of Amarillo the piano, with Kathleen Butz of Lubbock singing The Wedding Song and Sunrise, Sunset.

The bride was gowned in formal satin organza over bridal taffeta. It was designed with a fitted empire waistline and Victorian yoke with a closely fitted neckline. Lace ruffles outlined the yoke which was seeded in pearls.

Sheer lace sleeves ended in ruffles over the hands. The full skirt fell to a flounced lace hemline which swept to fullness in the back, cascading into a cathedral train. A lace sash beaded in pearls circled the waist and was marked by a satin ribbon bow with streamers at the center back.

She wore a cluny lace bonnet, its brim rilled with lace, which held an elbow veil to complete the ensemble.

She carried a cascading bouquet of tiny yellow roses, white pompon mums and three-tiered, topped with bride-and-groom figurines. The table was decorated with a silver epergne holding three yellow candles and an arrangement of yellow roses, white carnations and babybreath.

Punch was served by Miss Kim Sandefur cousin of the bride. Registering guests was Miss Kay Golden, sister of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Golden wore a camel beige knit pantsuit as her traveling costume. The couple will travel to Colorado for a wedding trip.

After Jan. 1, they will be at home in a place subject to the bridegroom's assignment in the U.S. Army Forces.

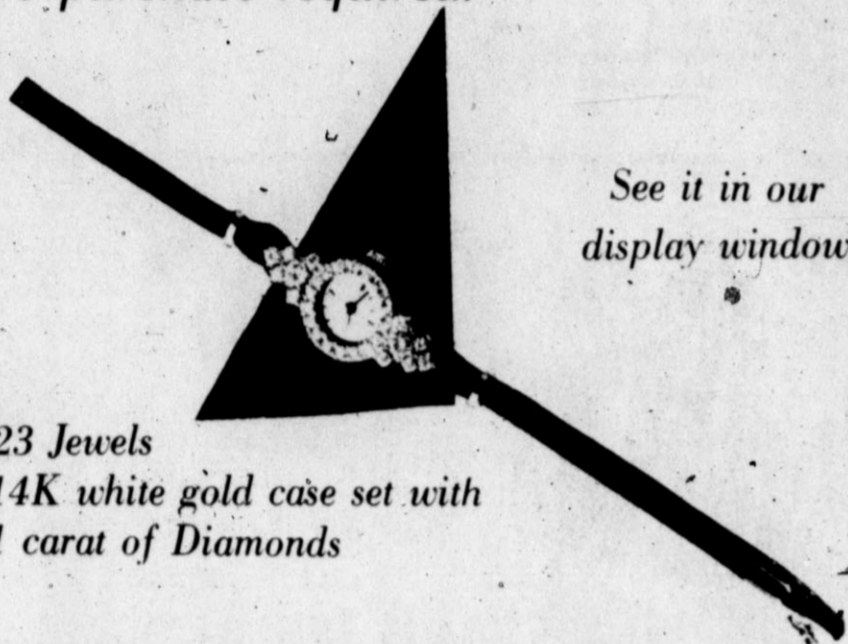

The bride is presently a junior at Texas Tech University, major in home and Family life. She is on the Dean's honor list.

She graduated from Tascosa High School in Amarillo.

Golden, now in the Armed forces, graduated from Texas Tech this month with a BS degree in electrical engineering. He was also on the dean's honor list.

Relatives of the couple from Colorado and Montana were present at the wedding.

Christmas Party Given

A story by Peter Marshall, Let's Keep Christmas, was told by Mrs. J.E. Shirkey to feature the program of Lone Star Study Club this week. The social committee, Mmes. G.W. Newsom, M.H. Wiseman and C.O. Phillips, were hostesses. Mrs. Newsom's home decorated in the traditional Christmas red and green, was the meeting place. Members exchanged gifts from a glittering tree.

A prayer written by Robert Louis Stevenson was read by Mrs. Jim Bookout, president, to begin the program. Miss Mildred Elliott gave the Thought for the Day, a holiday message.

Mrs. Newsom and Mrs. J.J. Durham poured tea for 24 members.

"EVERYONE IS WELCOME TO ATTEND"

Joan Waters and phone unit
...in class at school-away-from-school

But Can't See Blackboard

Classwork Via Phone Is Taken Lying Down

BY TRACY HOPSON
Brand Staff Writer

"I CAN HARDLY wait until I am able to sit again," says Joan Waters, who has been in bed since October 16 because of a congenital dislocation of both her hips.

She had surgery on her right hip, which was the weakest, Oct. 16 and was in the hospital 11 days.

Joan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Waters of 224 Ave. E, and is a junior in high school.

A big factor in her catching up and staying with her school work, with help from some classmates, is the School-to-Home Equipment Unit which Southwestern Bell Telephone installed Nov. 2.

THIS IS A TELEPHONE hookup that is carried from class to class by her friends. She can hear the class-room procedures and ask questions by pushing different buttons.

"This is a very good way to stay with her class, and it also enables her to feel as if she is still in school," says her mother, "it is also inexpensive, about $65 for two months."

The student's hip dislocation was diagnosed when she was two and a half; she was put in a frog-leg cast at this time for nearly four months. When the cast was removed she wore braces for seven months. This was to help form the sockets in her hips.

"During this time she could not walk, but found many other ways to move around," Mrs. Waters said.

AFTER HER SURGERY in October she has been in a cast from her waist down on her right leg. This often proves to be a disadvantage. She can only lie down or stand. Joan says, "It is really hard to sit in a car. It's not very comfortable, but it is worth the trouble."

Joan's brother, Dwayne, takes the telephone hookup to school and drops it off at the first class, which is Western Society, and then Carmela Burges or Mary Ann Crouch take "Joan" to the classes the rest of the day.

CARMELA HAS lunch with Joan and each day she brings and takes lessons to and from school for her. Joan also has access to film strips, records and other learning aids used in her classes.

The School-to-Home Equipment Unit was new to some of her teachers but has proved to be very helpful.

Don Hooper, Joan's Algebra II teacher said, "It's very good, even though I must be very conscious of my teaching. It is hard to get used to, I can't just write a problem on the board and expect her to know what I am talking about."

The school was notified in August after the surgery was planned, that Joan would be out of school and a telephone hookup would be used.

EACH TEACHER was visited prior to the surgery and several teachers gave advance assignments, which were helpful.

"All the teachers were very cooperative," said Mrs. Waters. Joan is a member of Pep Squad and TACH clubs in Hereford High School. She has served as an organist at Temple Baptist Church and was active in youth organizations.

She has not been able this fall to participate in any of these activities except a youth group from her church which meets in her home every Wednesday night.

Joan's cast will be taken off Monday, Dec. 18, and she will be on crutches for a short time afterward. She is planning with much excitement, to return to school in person after the Christmas holidays.

Wedding Planned

Mr. and Mrs. F.J. Walterscheid announce the engagement of their daughter, Doris, to Bob Welch of Port Arthur. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Welch of Amarillo.

A late winter wedding is planned by the couple. Miss Walterscheid is a graduate of Hereford High School and a hair styling school, and is employed in a hair fashion salon in Port Arthur. Welch is employed with the Port Arthur News.

Mr. And Mrs. Wiggains On Hawaiian Honeymoon

A honeymoon trip to Hawaii began for Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Wiggains after their marriage Saturday in the chapel of the Broadway Church of Christ at Lubbock.

The bride was Miss Nancy Cecille Carpenter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F.C. Carpenter, before the late afternoon wedding conducted by Bob Wear of Littlefield, former minister of Central Church of Christ in Hereford. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wiggains of Summerfield.

Paired spiral candelabra were placed with pink gladiolas and carnations as the background for the double ring ceremony.

Miss Sylvia Carpenter attended her sister as maid of honor and Miss Suzanne Carpenter of San Marcos, a cousin, was bridesmaid. David Wiggains was his brother's best man and Denton Wiggains of Hooker, Okla., cousin of the bridegroom, the groomsmen.

The bride's brother, Foreman Carpenter, and Charlie Ellison of Abilene ushered guests. Music was by the wedding chorus of the church.

Silk organza trimmed in Venice lace underscored with soft pink satin ribbon made the bride's gown. Curving bands of lace traced the empire waistline, formed a standing collar and extended down the center front to carpet length.

Sleeve puffs and a wristline ruffle were edged with lace, as was the circular train which unfolded for a cluster of gathers beneath a Dior bow at the back waistline. A satin pillbox encrusted with pearls held her waistlength illusion veil. A corsage of white orchids was surrounded by gardenias and pink rosebuds in her cascade bouquet.

Bridesmaids' dresses were also in empire style, of camellia pink crepe with matching accessories.

A reception was held after the wedding in the church parlor. After the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Wiggains will be at home in Lubbock.

She is a senior at Texas Tech, and was graduated from high school in Corpus Christi. He will be a mid-term graduate of Tech and plans to continue study for a masters degree. His high school graduation was from Hereford High.

Preceding the wedding, the rehearsal dinner had the bridegroom's parents as hosts Friday evening in the Sands Motel dining room in Lubbock.

Guests from Hereford at the ceremony in addition to the Wiggains family included Messrs. and Mmes. J.T. Marlin, A.R. Dillard, Armon Lauderback, Lloyd McGee, Allen Cansler, Zearl Cansler, Alton Hollingsworth, W.P. Axe, Ernest McGee, Edwin Axe, W.C. Calton and J.B. Noland.

Also Jennie Phillips, Jennifer Cansler, Gary Dillard, Vance McGee, Dale and Kent Hollingsworth.

Other out-of-town guests were Messrs. and Mmes. L.T. Carpenter and James Carpenter of San Marcos, Mr. and Mrs. B.G. Tigert of Houston, Mrs. Lilla Tigert of Tyler, the Gary Tigerts of Killeen, the Michael Buies of Big Spring, Dr. and Mrs. Harl D. Mansur of Wichita Falls.

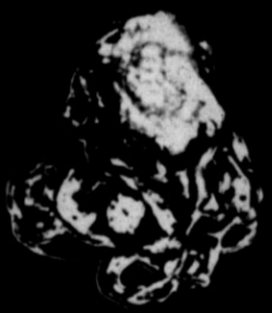

Also Mr. and Mrs. George Verga, Dr. and Mrs. A.M. Mansur of Dallas, the Chris Clarks of Abilene, the Estel Mansurs of Wewoka, Okla., the Lester Wiggains of Hooker, Okla., and Mrs. W.R. Weatherford of Dumas.

Best System Known

Supporters of the school capital improvements program had to be pleased with the results of the bond election Tuesday. Two of the three propositions were approved and—in terms of dollars—almost 95 percent of the $1.39 million issue won approval.

School officials were disappointed that the third proposition did not pass, pointing out that defeat of the small issue will make little difference in the tax hike. However, voters had their say and the choice may not have been on money, alone.

A wise man once noted something to the effect that "your view of the stage depends on the seat you select in the audience." As can readily be seen in the vote count, people had different opinions on the school improvements.

A voter's view of the bond election could have been "slanted" by a number of factors, both good and bad. His opinion may have hinged on the increase in taxes, whether or not he has school-age children, community and school pride, a personality clash with school officials, a like or dislike for different parts of the school program, and on and on. One man wants his school system to be the best of its size; another thinks the system that "was good enough for me is good enough for my kids."

The important thing, however, is that we live in a democratic society where we can lump all these opinions together in a ballot box and come out with, what we hope, is the correct solution.

It may not please all of us, all the time, but it's the best system we know.

RUNNING DRY

Well Running Dry?

Winter is a good time to remember how much we take for granted, especially those of us in cold climates. Heat. Light. Comfortable, convenient transportation.

The natural gas, oil, gasoline or electricity is always there. Just flick the switch, or turn the key, and on it goes.

What if, one day, it didn't go on? What if there were no gas in the pipe, no current in the wires, no oil to be delivered, and no gasoline at the neighborhood service station?

Obviously, we are not very likely to encounter such a disastrous state of affairs. But, most Americans would be very surprised to learn how close we are right now to the limits of our available fuel supplies. While we won't run out of everything all at once, we have reached the point where there will be occasional shortages of some fuels in many areas.

Why? Well, for two reasons. First, U.S. energy needs double every ten years. Second, we have been limiting the usefulness of some key fuels on environmental grounds.

Take electricity. It is the "cleanest" of all energy sources. But it takes heat to produce it (with the exception of hydroelectric power, which is an insignificant part of the total). The heat must come from coal, oil, gas, or an atomic reaction.

Coal is the only fossil fuel we have plenty of. Unfortunately, much of it is high in sulfur content, and therefore banned as a potential air pollutant.

Much of the low-sulfur coal is so situated that it would have to be strip-mined. But strip-mining is opposed by the environmentalists because it can disfigure the landscape.

Some oil is also unsuitable because of its sulfur content. Mostly, though, the problem with both natural gas and oil (and therefore gasoline) is that we are running out of them. New sources must be discovered. More must be imported. And there are problems here, too. Our easy-to-extract oil is already tapped. What's left is in places like the North Slope of Alaska and off shore, along our coasts. Environmentalists oppose development of these deposits, as well as the use of supertankers to import oil, because of the hazard of spills.

Atomic power plants are a possible alternative to the generation of electricity by fossil fuels. But, construction of these plants is being held up nearly everywhere on environmental grounds. In most cases the objection is to discharge of heated (non-radioactive) water into rivers or lakes. In a few cases, there is a fear that radioactive material might leak out (the utilities have gone to great lengths to design their plants so that this cannot happen).

Natural gas production is lagging because the government sets such a low price for it that producers do not feel it worthwhile now to look for new sources—an expensive and risky venture. Yet this is a premium fuel, and one in shorter supply than any other.

Allowing the price to seek its natural market level would have two beneficial effects. It would stimulate the development of new sources, and it would make the scarce resource too expensive for wasteful use. The disadvantage, of course, is that our home heating bills would go up.

Nobody likes that prospect. But, the hard choice is between getting enough gas (hopefully) at a higher price, or no gas at any price.

Serious as these problems may seem, they are nevertheless medium-term in duration. With wise management (which will have to include a more realistic attitude on the part of some environmentalists) experts estimate that our combined fossil fuel reserves will last about 200 years. That should be more than enough time to harness sources of power such as hydrogen fusion and solar energy, which are both "clean" environmentally and virtually limitless in supply. The critical period will be the next 10-15 years, when we will suffer the consequences of poor planning and bad decisions made over the last 20 years.

Congress Variety Well Established

BY BERT MILLS

Washington, D.C. — It takes all kinds to make a Congress. Newcomers to the House in 1973 will include an ex-circus performer who became a minister and then a corporate public relations executive, a TV weatherman, the male operator of a figure salon for ladies, a sports-caster of rodeos, and a black Ms. from Texas.

The Big Top alumnus is Representative Tennyson Guyer (R., Ohio). Son of a minister and college president, he turned to the pulpit and served seven terms as president of the Ohio Conference of the Churches of God. Then he had a 22-year career as a PR director and for 12 years has been an Ohio state senator.

Dale Milford (D., Tex.) is a meteorologist who was an Army pilot until 1953, then doubled as operator of a commercial flying service and as a TV weatherman. His hobby is building and restoring classic antique aircraft. Steven D. Symms (R., Idaho) owns Elaine Powers Figure Salon in Boise and is Vice President of a fruit ranch. Clem McSpadden (D., Okla.) is known to rodeo fans as a TV sportscaster but he is also an insurance company vice president and has been a state senator since 1954. Barbara Jordan (D., Tex.), the first Black to be sent to Congress from Texas since Reconstruction, is also the only new lady Congressman to call herself Ms.

However, her biography concludes: "She is single." Another black lady among House freshmen is Mrs. Yvonne Brathwaite Burke (D., Calif.). She became known nationally last summer when she was on camera frequently as Co-Chairman of the Democratic National Convention. She has been a state legislator since 1967.

Athletes Also Elected

Increasingly in recent years, athletic fame has been a stepping stone to political success.

Incumbent Congressmen from the world of sport, all reelected in November, include Reps. Gerald Ford (R., N.C.), and Morris Udall (D., Ariz.).

Among the newcomers to the 93rd Congress will be William S. Cohen (R., Me.), the 32-year-old Mayor of Bangor. He was an all-state basketball player at Bowdoin and is a member of the New England Hall of Fame. Cohen demonstrated his fitness by walking 600 miles on a campaign hike.

Other ex-athletes bound for service in the House include David Towell (R., Nev.), a 35-year-old ex-trackman at University of the Pacific, and Jim Abdnor (R., S.D.), a former football player at Nebraska and later a coach. John B. Conlan (R., Ariz.) is the son of major league baseball umpire Jocko Colan.

Another route to Congress is to learn the ropes as an employee at the Capitol. Stanford E. Parris (R., Va.) worked his way through school by operating a mimeograph machine in the basement of the Senate Office Building. He got hooked on politics, became a county supervisor and then a state assemblyman.

Edward Mezvinsky (D., Iowa) used to be legislative assistant to Rep. Neal Smith (D., Iowa). In 1970, he tried and failed to defeat Rep. Fred Schwengel (R., Iowa). He tried again in 1972 and won. At 35, he is 30 years younger than his opponent.

Democrat Switches, Wins as Republican

It is common enough for an aide to a member of Congress to succeed to the seat of his boss. But Trent Lott (R., Miss.) performed an unusual feat this year. He was on the staff of Rep. William M. Colmer (D., Miss.), a Democratic leader as Chairman of the House Rules Committee. When Colmer retired, Lott became a Republican and won Colmer's seat in the three-way contest.

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher—

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm pretends to be alarmed this week over the law and order situation.

Dear editor:

For a long time now people have been talking about a breakdown in law and order but I haven't paid much attention to it, however a series of items I've been running across lately in the newspapers that turn up out here has convinced me the situation is as bad as they say, maybe worse.

For example, authorities are wondering if they won't have to lock up the Petrified Forest National Park in Arizona to protect it from the people it was set aside for, on account of how they're making off with the petrified wood. They carry it off in their pockets, purses, car trunks, etc., and officials estimate if they keep it up there won't be any petrified wood left.

With the yule season approaching, Christmas tree thieves are at work again in the national fir forests in the Pacific Northwest, swiping hundreds a day because they sell for $2 a foot.

In California, a man has been found guilty of defrauding the telephone company by figuring out a whistle that produces a multi-frequency signal that foils the company's long distance charge system, enabling him to call anywhere free of charge.

And to top it off, and to show the break-down is world-wide, not just confined to the U.S., Earl Mountbatten, and uncle of Queen Elizabeth, has been fined for watering down the milk on his farm. Been adding a little of the stuff to the milk sold from his country estate to boost his income.

I'll tell you, the situation is getting out of hand. Why just the other day a Congressman was demanding that Congress plug up the loopholes in the income tax laws, saying smart people are figuring out more and more ways to pay less and less tax.

I'm sure he's on the right track, but until the loopholes are plugged, I wish he'd point them out to me.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Talk of Texas

BY JACK MAGUIRE

SONG NOBODY KNOWS—It has been 48 years now since "Texas, Our Texas" was written as the official anthem of the state, but it is rarely sung.

It was written during the governorship of Pat M. Neff because he felt that the state needed an official song. Hundreds of compositions were submitted, but the winner, "Texas, Our Texas," was written by two Fort Worth residents, William J. Marsh and Gladys Yoakum Wright. It was declared the official state song by the Legislature in 1924 and again in 1928.

There is even an organization, the Texas State Song Association, to promote it. But many Texans still don't know that it is the official state anthem and most don't know the words.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?—Neither Wise County nor its capital, Decatur, were named for Texans—a rarity in the nomenclature of the state's political subdivisions.

The county was named for Henry Wise, who was governor of Virginia in 1956 when the Texas Legislature created the county. He was a favorite in Texas because, as a congressman from Virginia, he had favored annexation.

The county seat, Decatur, honors a Marylander, Stephen Decatur, an early American naval hero.

THE SIGNS OF TEXAS—In a window of a restaurant in Lampasas: "Hunger pain specialists."

TRAVELING TEXAS—Four miles from Long Beach, Panola County, is one of four places in the U.S. where giant bullfrogs are produced solely for the use of medical laboratories.

Mr. and Mrs. John Aderhold (he is a farmer undertaker) established their Goggle Eye Frog Farm more than three years ago. Now they produce about 10,000 high quality frogs each year on 40 acres of ponds and woodland.

Normally laboratories pay $10, and up, for frogs of the quality used in medical experiments. The Aderholds, however, give their frogs away, depending on donations from individuals and organizations to keep their farm going. They say that a $50,000 annual grant from a foundation or the government would enable them to supply as many as 200,000 frogs each year for research. That's $2 million worth of frogs, at current market prices.

IT'S A FACT—Bandera, the Hill Country resort famed for its dude ranches and beautiful scenery, cannot be reached by public transportation or a U.S. highway.

Landing strips are available for those who fly in aboard private planes and State Highway 16 connects Bandera with both San Antonio and Kerrville. This is the only link which the resort (pop. 1,200) has with the rest of the state.

Watch For Hazardous Toys

A flying toy activated by exploding caps veers unexpectedly in flight and strikes a youngster in the face, causes serious injuries and scars.

Two girls are playing catch with a top punch ball that had been blown up to its recommended size. A defect in the ball causes it to explode in the face of one of the girls, leaving her permanently blind in one eye.

A child playing with a toy heating unit designed to mold plastic trinkets puts her hand inside the unit. The intense heat, generated by electric current, burns her severely.

All these incidents involving children were accidents that actually occurred last year. They all had one thing in common. They were caused by hazardous toys purchased from reputable dealers.

There are many joys at Christmas—a time for families to gather, a time especially for children to celebrate. But all too often family happiness has been marred by pain, even tragedy, when toys bought for children caused injury, say state health officials.

Shiny ribbons and bright wrapping hid dolls whose arms disintegrated to reveal stiff wire supports.

Wagons had wheels that pulled off, exposing sharply pointed axles.

Toy rattles have broken when dropped, resulting in small pieces that could be swallowed, and sharp fragments that could cut and scratch.

Other toys shoot potentially deadly missiles, provide electrical shock, burning hazards, and other maiming injuries. Remember the Indian Love Beads which contained the deadly Jequirity bean? Or toys with toxic paints and lacquers? Many children receive lead poisoning each year from eating paint chips from old painted surfaces.

An estimated 700,000 injuries to children each year have been caused by toys. Thousands, perhaps millions of others, have gone unreported.

More than 60 per cent of all toys sold in the United States each year are sold during the last three months of the year. Until recently, parents and other buyers of toys could rely only on their own judgments in selecting toys. Today, consumers are being assisted in the search for playthings by the FDA's Bureau of Product Safety, which under the Child Protection and Toy Safety Act regulates toys and other articles intended for children.

Under the law, FDA has ordered toy manufacturers and retail toy stores to remove from sale more than 800 individual toys. Any person who offers for sale such an article is subject to a fine and/or imprisonment under the Federal Hazardous Substance Act.

Despite these efforts by health authorities to improve the design of toys and to ban toys that pose a potential hazard, the ultimate responsibility for toy safety must rest with parents and other purchasers of toys. It is also up to each parent to make sure that his child plays with toys safely. Even a baseball bat could be dangerous if given to the wrong child.

But parents should be extremely cautious about the toys they buy, for there are reported instances of certain toys banned by federal authorities still being offered for sale in some retail toy stores in Texas.

Toys banned by FDA include rattles and similar items that contain rigid wires or sharp points that could cause serious puncture wounds, toys with small loose pieces that could be inhaled or swallowed, baby bouncers and similar products with scissor action joints and coil springs that could cut or pinch small fingers and toes, and many others.

When choosing a toy for small children, make sure it is too large to be swallowed and does not have detachable parts that can lodge in the windpipe, ears or nostrils. The parent should be sure the toy is not apt to break easily into small pieces or leave jagged edges and does not have sharp edges or points. Be sure the toy has not been put together with easily exposed straight pins, sharp wires, or nails. Avoid products made of glass or brittle plastic. Toys should not have exposed flames or build up heat to dangerous levels. Check for flimsy electrical wiring and for parts which can pinch fingers or catch hair. For children under two, avoid long cords and thin plastic bag materials. Parents should avoid toys that produce excessive noise.

With Glad

By Mrs. Art Manjeot

CHRISTMAS ...make it something to remember and which portrays the real meaning.

Decorating for Christmas is an outward expression of inner joy for all that Christmas means. As we make preparations, wrap packages, shop, call out "Merry Christmas" and hang garlands of Christmas greens or a glittering star atop the Christmas tree we celebrate in a special way the birthday of the Prince of Peace.

It is good to observe Christmas day, yet there is a much better thing than merely observing it, and that is keeping Christmas. Forget self, and think of others.

Autumn has certainly given way to winter in a most severe way in our area. All gardening activities have certainly been brought to a sudden standstill.

However I find that there are jobs to be done, and when the sunshine was out for a few hours the other day I made good of it. Was really good to feel the warmth of the sun, and to work in the good soil.

Yes at last the spring flowering bulbs that have been cooling in my refrigerator for the past few weeks are now nesting near the good earth. I searched and found places where the ground was not frozen and it made a good bed, soft and pliable, for the bulbs, so they were tucked away for their winter's sleep.

Glad was real glad that this chore has been completed. Those of you who have not yet gotten your bulbs planted don't be disturbed about them; they will keep well in the refrigerator but when you do take them out and they begin to respond to the warmth of the room, then they should be planted.

Perhaps there will be some more sunny days and all can be planted. If the soil has been well prepared before the moisture and freeze, then the task will not be too bad as the top soil is loose and if the moisture has not reached too much depth the soil can be worked so that the bulbs can be planted.

Pack soil carefully about the bulbs and tamp it well, making a slight mound or ridge so drainage will be good.

WARNING: Some of the Christmas plants are poison, so it is necessary that care should be exercised in that young children will not reach the leaves, berries etc. The following is taken from a botanical garden bulletin, and has been reproduced in The National Gardener, so I pass the information on to you.

First of all - don't become alarmed and afraid of Christmas greens, just use care in their choices and uses, because five of the seven listed have been used at Christmas festivities for hundreds of years.

However read carefully the facts and information. Remember well about the poisons and exercise caution of the use of greens. Am giving both the common and the botanical names.

1. Buxus (all species), boxwood. Many kinds of animals have been killed by eating hedge clippings of boxwood. The boxwoods are a favorite for garlands and use in arrangements, and many of our gardens have some of the varieties growing in them.

The buxus is becoming more and more popular in the Hi-Plains area. Some of my prized evergreens are the buxus family. In using them, place the arrangements out of reach of small children. Caution other members of the family not to chew on the stems or have near their mouth.

2. Euphorbia pulcherima, poinsettia. The leaves are poisonous. The milky secretion that oozes out when the stems or leaves are cut or severed from the stem, should be carefully removed.

A small child can be killed if a leaf or a portion of the milky substance is eaten. Don't give up displaying these beautiful plants. In most homes it is easy to find a place out of reach of the small fry during the Christmas season.

3. Hedera helix (all varieties), commonly called English Ivy, in this country. If a child or older person should eat or chew on the stems or foliage they will become ill and should have attention of a physician.

In using the ivy for decoration, such as garlands or wreaths, use caution in the mechanics, making sure that all are well fastened together, and clip off staggly leaves or stems and burn.

4. Kalmis latifolia, mountain laurel. This is not a common Christmas green in our area, but is well to know that the leaves are poisonous, particularly to livestock that browse on them. Always we should be careful what is done with trimmings from the evergreens, at any time of the year.

5. Phoradendron (all species), mistletoe. The beautiful little white berries are very poisonous. If you make or have a kissing ball made of the mistletoe, then make sure and just pull off the berry and then destroy it.

In using this Christmas green the tiny berries will fall, so exercise caution in thoroughly cleaning up after having used any of the mistletoe.

I heard via radio this morn that this was a large money crop in parts of Texas. Thousands of pounds are cut and sold annually to markets not only in Texas but in many other states. There is a good market for the Texas mistletoe in New York and other eastern states.

It was one of the favorite greens used in our home when I was a child. We would go into the woods and climb the trees and cut the clusters, and mother would make the mantel and other recessed places very attractive with it.

The kissing ball was also made each year...I always had one when Lloyd and his friends were having parties. It is one of the loveliest plants that can be used in a marine bowl, or other arrangements where the greens are submerged in water. Makes a beautiful decoration. Holly is also very effective when used thus.

6. Solanum pseudocapsicum, Jerusalem cherry. The seeds are poison. An ornamental winter potted plant with round red berries. Also grows well outside. It is very similar to an ornamental red pepper (capsicum).

I grow the latter, and find it a very versatile plant for the garden, and then too the pods are good for seasoning. I did an intensive study this last summer on these two plants, and it was interesting as well as profitable.

The kinship of plants and relative information is good to know. The danger with the above named Jerusalem cherry is that the seed not be eaten, the meat of the cherry is also likely to be harmed by the peppers, as they can become inflamed from the tiny pepper pods.

After using these, it is well to remember to wash thoroughly with soap and hot water, not only the hands but instruments which have been used in cutting etc.

7. Taxus (all species), Yew. The seeds in this little red berried plant are poisonous but the juicy part of the berry is harmless. Hedge clippings of yew and any of those listed above are dangerous if thrown out where livestock can reach them. In England extra care is exercised as this is considered one of the most dangerous woody plants in the flora.

It is not my purpose to alarm anyone, just want to make all aware that there are certain precautions that we should use in the holiday season.

Another word of caution, don't get a bad case of Christmas fatigue by over working. Take it easy, enjoy each activity that you do or participate in, let peace and happiness pervade each activity...and be glad that we have Christmas and the Babe in the Manger was sent to bring and hope, because of love. Don't forget to share a bit of the radiance of the Christmas lights, with a friend or a shut-in. The glow of the lights and the beauty thereby created, is lovely, but it doesn't compare with the glow and beauty of eyes shining because of happiness and a joy shared.

While seeing Hereford Christmas lights, drive by the selected Beauty Spots of the month. The Wagoner home, 115 Centre, is framed with well grown evergreens. Cleanliness, good care and beauty are ever present at this residential selection.

The corner of Miles and 4th on which the Hereford Medical Clinic is located, has certainly been made more beautiful by the changes made there. While the snow was on the trees and winter evergreens it was like a lovely Winter scene pictured on a Christmas greeting.

Dr. John H. McCary

Doctor Says Flying 'For Pleasure Only'

BY LORI HOPSON
Staff Writer

With a muted roar the powerful engine starts. You pick up speed as you head for the end of the runway. The pilot explains the various instruments in the crowded panel; and as you hear the landing gear lock into place in the belly of the aircraft, a slight lifting sensation in the pit of your stomach tells you you're airborne.

As Dr. John H. McCary says of flying in a small aircraft, "there's nothing like it."

Dr. McCary became interested in flying in the 1950's as an Air Force veterinarian.

"The bug bit me there," he says, "Just hitching rides all over the world."

Taking primary instruction at the Hereford airport, the doctor remembers the exact date of his first solo flight.

"After I moved to Hereford about six years ago, I got my primary instruction. My first solo flight was on July 9, five years ago. I'm taking my instrument courses from a school in Amarillo — you never quit learning," he says.

Dr. McCary received his pilot's license in 1976, and is now working on his commercial rating. The instruments course he is now studying will enable him to fly the Cessna 210 he owns with a group call Deaf Smith Aero, Inc., by using only his navigational ability and the craft's instruments.

"To fly by instruments, you have to learn to control the airplane and navigate without seeing anything outside the plane," he says, "by using the controls, radio, gauges and other instruments."

The doctor says he and his family enjoy flying for two reasons:

"First, it allows us to make the best use of what little time off we have, and second, just the fun of flying itself — it's a feeling you can't describe," he says.

"No matter how much you fly," he continues, "you still get the thrill each time you do it."

The McCarys have flown regularly since the doctor received his pilot's license in 1967. Deaf Smith Aero, Inc. bought its first airplane in 1967, and traded it this year for the new Cessna 210.

Dr. McCary says another benefit of flying, for his family, is that it combines well with his other hobby, golf.

"It lets us go anywhere to play golf, hunt, and fish. Barbara and I play golf all the time," he says, looking at his wife. "In New Mexico, Minnesota, South Texas, or wherever we want to go."

"All our flying is strictly for pleasure," he adds.

Out-of-town guests of the McCarys usually get treated to a flight, and Mrs. McCary says the family enjoys "showing them around" almost as much as the visitors enjoy the flight.

"We've enjoyed it just flying people from other areas around and showing them how this area looks from the air," she says. "They enjoy seeing Palo Duro Canyon, the feedyards, and other sights in the area," adds the doctor.

"A modern small airplane is quite a machine," says Dr. McCary. "They'll travel 600 miles in a very short period of time. Our Cessna carries over 1,000 pounds of luggage. It's not oxygen-equipped, so you cannot cruise about 10,000 feet, but you can remain at that height for maybe a half hour, just to get over mountains. You rarely need to get higher than that."

The airplane will cruise at 190 miles per hour, and carries about four hours worth of fuel, or 80 gallons. The craft has seating for six passengers.

Speaking of his first solo flight, the doctor says, "You feel like you've really accomplished something. But you get a kick out of it everytime you fly."

"Flying for us is not a necessity, but it almost is," he says, "because we don't have much time off. It really turns a short weekend into a long one, because you can get there so fast. We've flown to football games, to go hunting and fishing, and we've been all over the country just vacationing."

The McCarys' daughter Patti, and son John enjoy flying as much as Dr. and Mrs. McCary, according to their parents.

"We have a six-year-old daughter and a nine-year-old son who are just crazy about flying. He always wants to sit up front and fly, too," says the doctor.

Dr. McCary describes the Hereford municipal airport as one of the best in the area.

"We have good management, good mechanics, an excellent runway, and the best terminal of any small airport around," he says, "I think the whole town should be proud of our airport."

Though his training includes emergency procedures, the

Dr. John H. McCary and daughter, Patti ... they fly 'for the fun of it'.

Final Set-Aside Payments Sent

Checks totaling $32 million in final payments under the 1972 wheat program will be mailed to approximately 976,000 participating farms, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced.

This year, USDA officials point out, market influences have been strong, capped by the historic and unprecedented sales to the Soviet Union. As a result, wheat producers have obtained more farm income from the marketplace and relied less on federal payments.

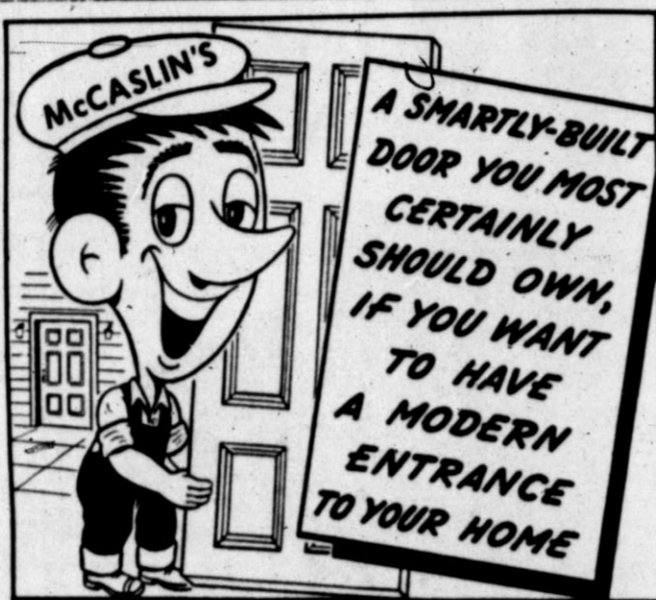

Prices received for wheat in mid-November averaged $1.97 per bushel — 66 cents per bushel above the mid-November prices of a year ago. The net value of this year's wheat crop, including payments made to farmers under the set-aside program, is expected to reach $3.3 billion, about a quarter of a billion dollars more than the 1971 crop.

The December payment is in addition to $691 million mailed to wheat producers in July. Together, the two payments assure that all program participants will get 100 percent of parity on that portion of their 1972 wheat which is used for domestic food.

The December payment — 6 cents per bushel — is the difference between the face value of the certificate determined to be $1.34 per bushel — and the preliminary payment of $1.28 per bushel mailed in July. The face value of the certificates is the difference between 100 percent of the July 1 parity price of $3.02 per bushel and the national average wheat price of $1.68 per bushel.

TOWER IMPROVEMENTS—The new screen recently completed at the Tower drive-in theater is a part of a plan to improve facilities and service at the theater. Scott Brewer, theater manager, illustrates the size of the new larger screen.

New Screen Is Part Of Improvement Plan

"All of the things Commonwealth has been doing to the Star and Tower theaters are to improve them," said Scott Brewer, Manager of both theaters. "We want to make it a better place to come and spend an evening."

Brewer was speaking of the recent addition of a new screen at the Tower Drive-In theatre. At a cost of over $5000, the new screen will provide bigger screen service, (it's close to 14 feet wider than the original screen), and a better surface.

An all-metal construction "should make the picture brighter, because of the reflectability," said Brewer. "It should make for a better picture all the way around."

Because of the larger size of the new screen, projectionists will be able to get the entire picture on the screen. Though not yet completed, the screen will eventually provide a greater quality of picture, according to Brewer. The new structure is 50 feet 9 inches tall and 74 feet wide.

Two weeks in the building, the screen is part of a major renovation of the drive-in, which will include a new box-office, fencing and lighting.

About two-and-a-half years ago, when Commonwealth theatres bought the Star and Tower, the company began a massive program of improvements for both theatres. They remodeled the Star, adding carpet in the lobby, a new ceiling, acoustic sound fold for better sound, and new seating in the planning stage.

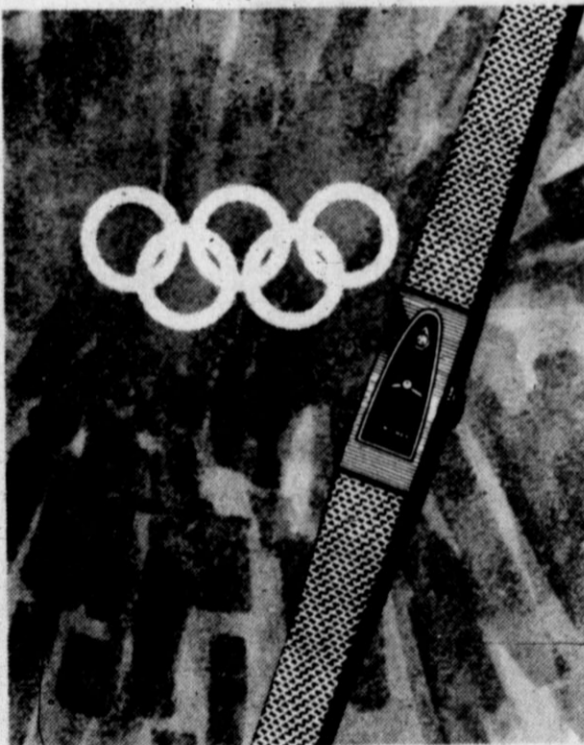

"It's all part of a constant effort to improve our service," said Brewer.

The Army Green

Sgt. Charles Barton

Call Collect 376-5151-Ext. 2182

Described as one of the smallest counties in the country, Menifee County, Kentucky has a population of only 4000. Despite its miniature size and population, it's a big item for the Army's Green Berets.

Menifee County is also economically destitute and has inadequate health services, potentially unsanitary conditions and many common social problems. Undoubtedly, this area could use all the help it could get. A local doctor had read about Green Berets involved in community action projects in other areas. He wrote to the Army's Kennedy Center for Military Assistance at Fort Bragg because he felt that the Green Berets might help in Menifee County. He was right.

A task force of 35 men will begin operations in the county shortly. The force will include medics, heavy equipment operators, sanitation specialists and two men trained to set up and operate a fire station.

The county's inadequate medical and sanitary facilities also present a big challenge. Only 20 per cent of the school age children have been inoculated against disease. The Green Beret medics will assist existing medical personnel in setting up clinics and introducing methods of mass inoculations.

Women in the Army graduating from the Army's drill sergeant school at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, now have their own distinctive hats. Unlike their male counterparts who port the "Smokey the Bear" World War I variety campaign hats, the girls now wear one styled after an Australian bush hat.

The hats, only to be worn by women drill sergeants who complete the demanding course, are beige and feature the "Ranger" look with a chin strap. They are turned on the left side and sport an Army insignia in the center of the crown. Oh, by the way, the drill sergeants only drill other women in the Army, taking their eight weeks training at Fort McClellan, Alabama. So, relax fellows!

In past columns we have mentioned one of the Army's several enlistment options - unit of choice. Basically it offers 16 months of service in the United States with the Army unit of your choice. For example, if you prefer to be stationed somewhere near Denver, Colorado during your Army career, you might choose to enlist in the 4th Infantry Division at Fort Carson. Many do and take advantage of the vast ski areas on weekends during the long November to April season.

Unit of Choice options are opening up regularly and young men can now enlist for the following units and locations:

- 1st Infantry Division, Fort Riley, Kansas;
- 4th Infantry Division at Fort Carson;
- 197th Infantry Brigade, Fort Benning, Georgia;
- 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment, Fort Bliss, Texas;
- 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, North Carolina;
- 1st Cavalry Division, Fort Hood, Texas;
- 2nd Armored Division, Fort Hood;
- 101st Airborne Division (Airmobile), Fort Campbell, Kentucky;
- 194th Armored Brigade, Fort Knox, Kentucky;
- III Corps Artillery, Fort Sill, Oklahoma;
- XVIII Airborne Corps Artillery, Fort Bragg;
- and 212th Artillery Group, Fort Knox, Kentucky;
- 9th Infantry Division, Fort Lewis, Washington and United States Army Combat Developments Experimentation Command.

Social Security

Application for disability benefits may be filed after a worker's death under new provisions of the social security law becoming effective in January, according to Travis C. Briggs, social security district manager in Amarillo.

"This change won't affect many people, but it can be important to some families," Briggs said. "The provision will only apply in cases of deaths occurring after December 31, 1969. But there is a deadline for filing such application. In the future, survivors will have 3 months after a disabled worker's death to file an application for his retroactive disability insurance benefits, Briggs explained.

"But an application must be filed before February 1, 1973, if the worker died in October 1972 or earlier," Briggs said.

Previously, applications for disability benefits had to be filed while the disabled worker was still alive. The change in the law will provide benefits to the survivors of workers who were severely disabled for 6 months before their death but for some reason didn't apply for benefits.

"If it's found that the worker was eligible for disability payments, his survivors will be able to get retroactive disability payments as well as any survivors benefits that may be payable now or in the future," Briggs said.

Small Talk

BY SUE COLEMAN
Woman's Editor

IT MAY BE MANY a year before we get another snow here as beautiful as Friday's. While the big flakes fell slowly, afterward when everything was coated with the fluffy stuff and especially after dark when a thin fog hazed the city's lights for a dream-like scene, it was the finest example of Christmas card art.

Only thing, it would have been appreciated much more at this time last year, for example, when we weren't all so jaded with snow scenes.

PHEASANT HUNTING season has brought a lot of people here from other places to try their luck, I hear, and there were visitors who killed two birds with one stone as some members of a family hunted and others were guests of relatives.

Now if that horrible pun isn't the death of me, I'll go on with my story — that Caudie Ola Brown's daughter visited her while their husbands hunted birds last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kensey of Sterling, Colo., were here, and so were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burrus and daughters, Sabrina, Shelly and Sharea of Childress.

TWO HEREFORD students earned academic honors at Trinity University in San Antonio during last spring semester, the college public relations department is just now announcing.

Well, better late than never, and we're happy to report that Cindy and Steve Cavness, children of the Harold Cavnesses of 129 Texas, were named to the honor roll.

IN THE HECTIC holiday rush

Holiday Tea Given Club

Hereford Ceramic Art Club members were entertained at a Christmas tea Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. W.C. Hromas.

The members exchanged gifts and enjoyed refreshments. Helen Kefkaby won the hostess prize.

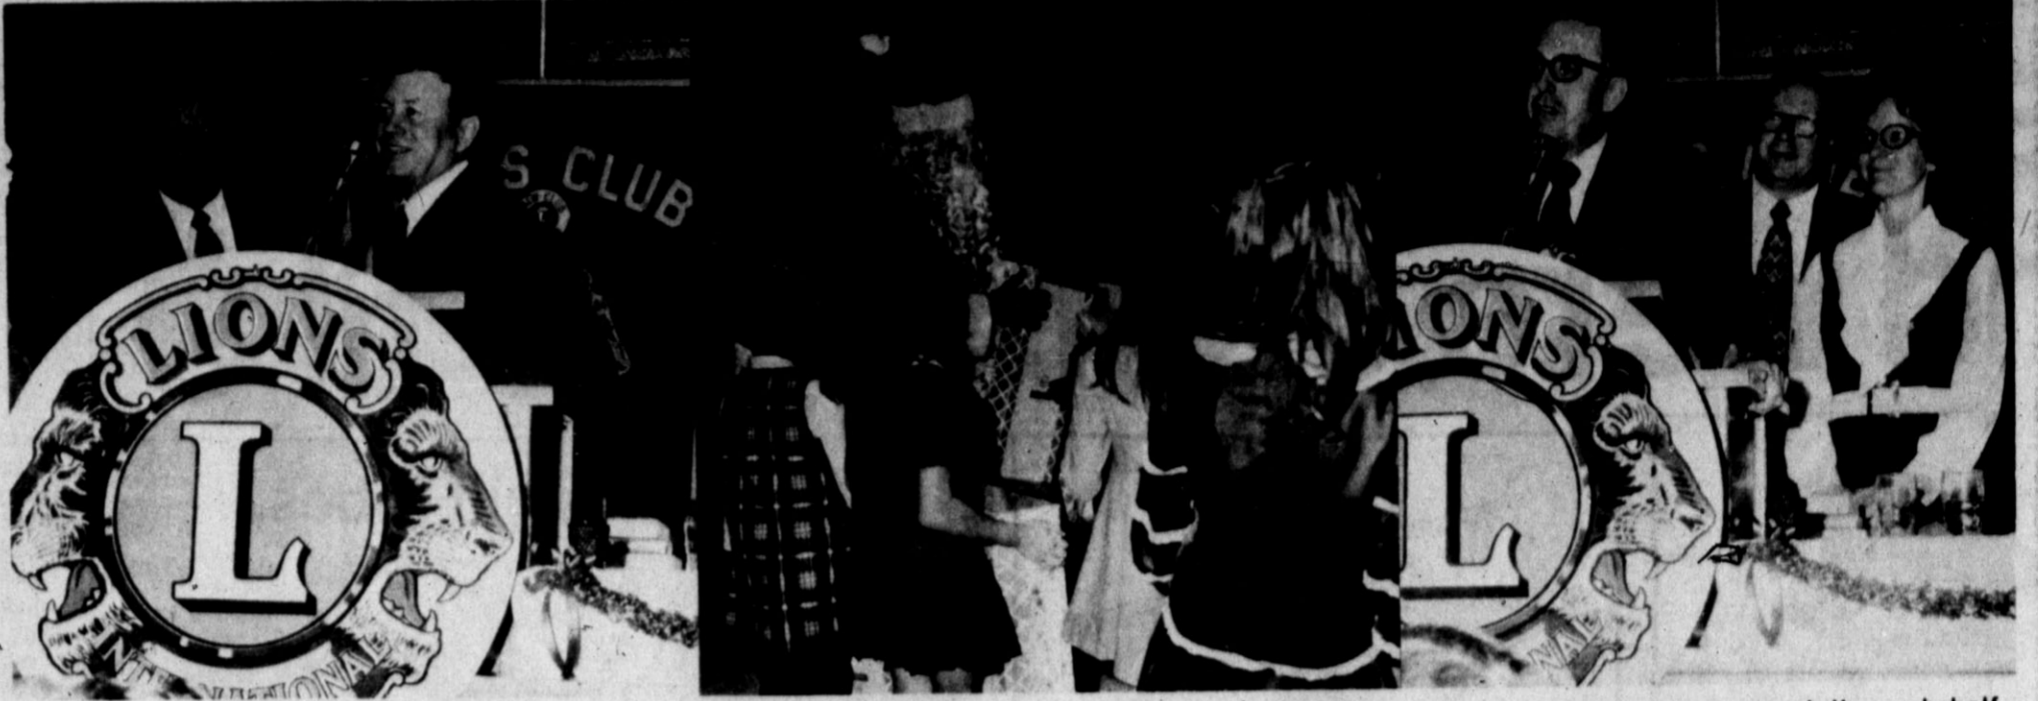

Members present were Mmes. Norren Fletcher, W.S. Fluit, O.H. Culpepper, Leona Seavy, Joe Boozer, and Mrs. Joe Kendall.

around here, no telling how many errors we've made, but two were called to my attention lately.

First, the name of one of the hostesses, Mrs. Taylor Holland, failed to appear in the list in the story of a recent shower for a bride, Mrs. Lee Kendall.

Second, it was Mrs. Harold Wheeler, not Weaver, whose membership in the Order of Eastern Star was transferred to the Hereford chapter from Vega.

Sorry, but when everybody is in a hurry to get a paper together at times when everything is happening in all directions, all sorts of weird things happen. Some of them you wouldn't believe and neither would I unless I saw them.

STUFFING GIRLSTOWN CHRISTMAS STOCKING—The Hereford Lions Club hosted 82 girls from Girlstown, U.S.A. at the annual ladies' night Christmas party Thursday at the Bull Barn, and the girls went home with $5,000 cash, a pickup, and other gifts. Lion's president Nolan Grady, right, presented Girlstown director Marshall Cooper and his wife with the $5,000 check; Raymond Higginbotham, left, made the pickup presentation on behalf of Deaf Smith Electric Co-Op, and Santa Claus is in the middle passing out gifts to younger Girlstown members. Other local and regional participants joined in the party with gifts—all totaling more than $10,000.

CHRISTMAS TREAT—Students in Bluebonnet's kindergarten class didn't quite know what to think of Hereford State Bank's animated Santa. The children made a tour of the bank's facilities Thursday.

Along The Frio

BY MRS. OWEN ANDREWS
Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Andrews and Holly Mae during the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Janeway and Amy Ruth, of Amarillo. He was here for pheasant hunting, also. Mrs. Janeway's father, Tommy Wilkinson, his son and son-in-law, also were here hunting, and visited the Sam Ogons on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Brenton Cole and Deane of Ripley, Okla. spent the weekend visiting their relatives the Floyd Coles.

Frio Homemakers Club met Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Harlan Barber for a Christmas party. The group sang Christmas carols and Mrs. D.F. Yandell related from "The Good Old Days" by R.J.

McGinnis' stories of pioneer days and especially "The Christmas Program", an account of Christmas eve at the one room typical "Loon Lake" school, where the community gathered to hear the program by school children and share the Christmas spirit.

Mrs. Frank Robbins read the Christmas story from Luke. A surprise personal shower was given Mrs. Sam Ogan following which the hostess served a supper of holiday food. Her house is artistically decorated throughout with holiday ideas.

Also attending the party were members and guests including Mmes. Richard Price, Charles Springer, Earl Harkins and T.L. Sparkman Jr. Also Annie Springer, Annie Lee Dobbins and Mmes. Olin Parris, James Bullard, Robbin Andrews, Eugene Baldwin, Tommy Sparkman, Chesley Johnston.

Kenneth Frye, Don Tindal, and Miss Alma Andrews.

The Adult classes of Frio Baptist Church had a supper, at K-Bobs, on Thursday evening.

Those attending included Messrs and Mmes. D.F. Yandell, Billy Warrick, Harlan

Barber, Earnest Harder, T.L. Sparkman Jr, Floyd Cole, and Mrs. Annie Lee Dobbins.

PONYTAIL BY LEE HOLLEY

from Heloise

DEAR FOLKS:
When a bunch of us were on a camping trip this past summer, we discovered that nobody had thought to bring an ashtray. We wanted to be good boys and girls and not throw our cigarettes on the ground.

One gal happened to have a can of hair spray with a metal cap. Know what she did?

She removed the metal cap from her can of hair spray. We found it to be an excellent ash tray. It saved the day for us as we could leave the place clean instead of littered with cigarette butts!

After returning home, I noticed that some caps from pressurized cans have an extra cylinder in the middle. This got the old thinking cap going—why couldn't WATER be put in that cylinder?

Talking about safe and sound:

Instead of mashing a cigarette out, all you have to do is dip it in this center cup of water and lay your dead cigarette in the outer ring!

This would be ideal when you go camping someplace and the terrain is so dry because of a lack of moisture! When you get back home you can give yourself a pat on the back for being able to practice "safety first."

WITH LOVE

DEAR HELOISE:
I remember laughing at one of your letters of love. It seemed this gal put notes in her husband's lunch and he came home full of hugs and kisses for her! Well, I tried this and no one came home with loving thoughts of me.

The last time I tried it I really went all out. I found the lunch meat had been packed on a piece of round cardboard the same size as the meat. I took a red marking pencil and printed "P.S. I Love You" on the cardboard and slipped it between two slices of meat for making a sandwich. I wrapped it with so much love.

He came home from work and I waited and waited for him to say something about his note.

While I was packing the next lunch and thinking, "Where did I go wrong?" he came into the kitchen. I asked him if he had found my note.

He said "Oh, is that what it was! I ate the biggest part of it and thought that even the lunch meat is getting tough. I happened to see something and when I looked I couldn't figure how a piece of cardboard got in there, but I didn't see any note."

Without a doubt, Heloise, he must have the world's strongest teeth and a stomach of cast iron—but do you know what—I still love him!

DEAR HELOISE:
Here is a hint for those people who have an extra large amount of trash, especially if they have lots of tin cans.

After the can has been emptied of its contents, cut out the bottom and flatten the can with your foot before throwing it in the trash.

This will take up much less space in the trash can!
A Teenager

DEAR HELOISE:
One of your "helpers" told you about storing ice cubes in a brown paper bag. I prefer the way I've been doing it for several years.

I store mine in a plastic bag—the all-white kind so many shops use for frozen items. I put a clear plastic bag inside for extra strength and therefore, more mileage.

—Would you believe, you can also store cracked or shaved ice in the same way and it won't lump? This is nice to have on hand for cocktails, iced tea, and all other drinks you wish to cool in a hurry. A bag holds two trays of cubes. Twist the top and fold it under the bag for storage.

If anything should happen to your electric current and you don't know it, you just empty a neat bag of water, rather than a dripping paper bag. No mopping up the water from all those melted ice cubes!

What with housekeeping being a 24-hour-a-day job without overtime, anything that can be done to make the job a little easier is certainly worth the try.

DEAR HELOISE:
My sister has a sandbox. The top—a kind of sun roof—wore out.

So my Daddy took the old roof off, and I got an old green tablecloth and cut it to fit the top. Then he nailed it down.

It's real pretty and fancy.

DEAR HELOISE:
Inexpensive fingertip towels are the greatest as place-mats for a family with small children.

They make a gay colorful table setting, absorb small spills, and can be tossed into the washer and dryer and be immediately returned to the table.
Esther Hartman

DEAR HELOISE:
I was standing by the sink with a plastic lemon in my hand (the kind lemon juice comes in). I hate to throw them away.

My tassel was gone from my shade pull.

So I just stuck the center of the cord inside the screw top and fastened it. Being plastic and pliable, the top screwed on simple and easy. So now I'll have pretty lemon shade pulls...

Marie

DEAR HELOISE:
Two quotes that work: "A soft answer turns away wrath; but grievous words stir up anger."

Children should be reasoned with in a kind, calm way, and then if they will not obey they need to be punished in some way.

"He who will not work, neither should he eat."
Teenage girls must be put to work. Idleness is an enemy of the soul.

DAYTIME SPECIAL

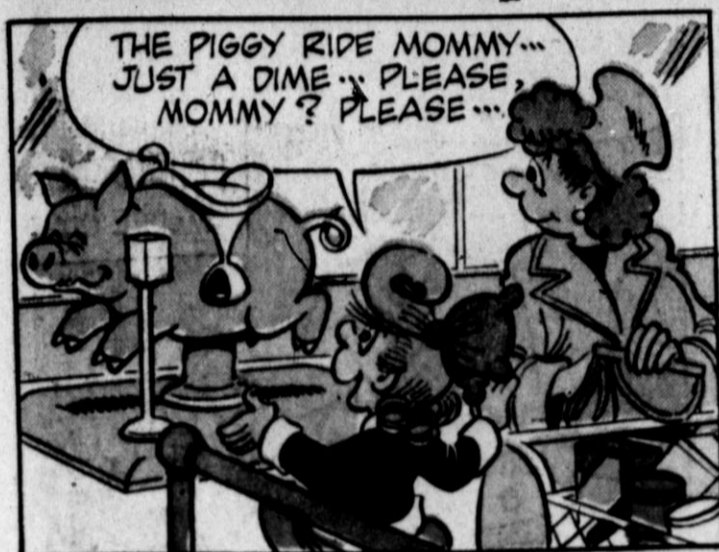

DEAR HELOISE:
I have a hint for mothers who have teenage girls at home...

Many girls have very colorful sleeping bags... flowers, wild designs, everything! Just open them up, put them on your beds and you have a lovely bedspread.

Your teenagers will love it.

Hal Kaufman's JUNIOR WHIRL

WHEN Suzanne moved into a new house recently, she wrote Santa this letter: "I am sending you this diagram (above) to keep you from getting lost. Our house is located south of the Browns, north of the Greens, west of the Whites and east of the Blues. "Our southeast corner touches the Cackleberries, who are northeast of the Whiffletrees. Love, Suzanne."

Assuming the top of the diagram is north, which of the houses shown is Suzanne's?

Answer below.

- BULLETIN BOARD
- FAMILY FUN! A holiday party consists of 2 grandparents, 4 fathers, 2 granddaughters, 2 daughters, 2 sisters, 2 sons, 2 pairs of brothers. What is the fewest number of people there?
There could be just six persons there.
 - What would tickle St. Nick a great deal at Christmas—or any time?
A fly on his nose, for one thing.
 - Extend your hand—concealing five pennies, a nickel and a dime. Ask someone to tell you if you are holding an odd or even amount. No matter what answer is given, you can say it is wrong. Why?
It's an odd number of coins, but an even amount of money.
 - What odd number expresses an even gift swap? Think this over a bit before answering.
One (one for one), which is just about as even as you can get.

TWO OF SANTA'S helpers, above, bear a close enough resemblance both in features and dress to be twins. Which two are they?
