Reagan defends Iran policy, but lawmakers bore in

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he thinks Americans will approve the administration's secret arms shipments to Iran now that they are public, but a Democratic senator says, "if the American people buy this one, God help us."

With the president and his legislative critics fencing over U.S. contacts with Iran Friday, a published report said Reagan had ordered CIA Director William J. Casey 10 months ago to not inform Congress of the covert weapons shipments.

In today's editions, The Washington Post said that according to informed sources, Reagan signed an order on Jan. 17 that formally authorized the secret dealings with Iran.

In 1984, Casey signed an agreement promising to inform the Senate and House intelligence committees within 48 hours of any covert activities approved by the president. Reagan signed the January order to shield Casey from congressional committees, which are preparing for hearings on the U.S.-Iran contacts.

The White House had no comment on the report, spokesman Dale Petrovsky said Friday night.

Several lawmakers in both parties expressed critical or skeptical views on the president's decision to send limited arms shipments to Iran, which Reagan defended in an address to the nation Thursday night.

"Personally, I think they should have chosen some other means, like medical supplies," Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., told a news conference.

Like many others in Congress, Wilson supported the decision to open contacts with Iran, but questioned the method.

Sen. J. James Exon, D-Neb., told a news conference that Reagan's actions "are certainly morally wrong" and called his dealings with Iran "a clear case of duplicity."

"He has damaged his credibility everywhere and if the American people buy this one, God help us," the Nebraska Democrat said.

Reagan, addressing supporters of philanthropic causes at a White House meeting, said, "Now that the veil of secrecy has been lifted, the unfounded rumors laid to rest, I think most Americans will approve of our efforts to better relations between our countries and rejoice that it has resulted in the freeing of some of our fellow citizens."

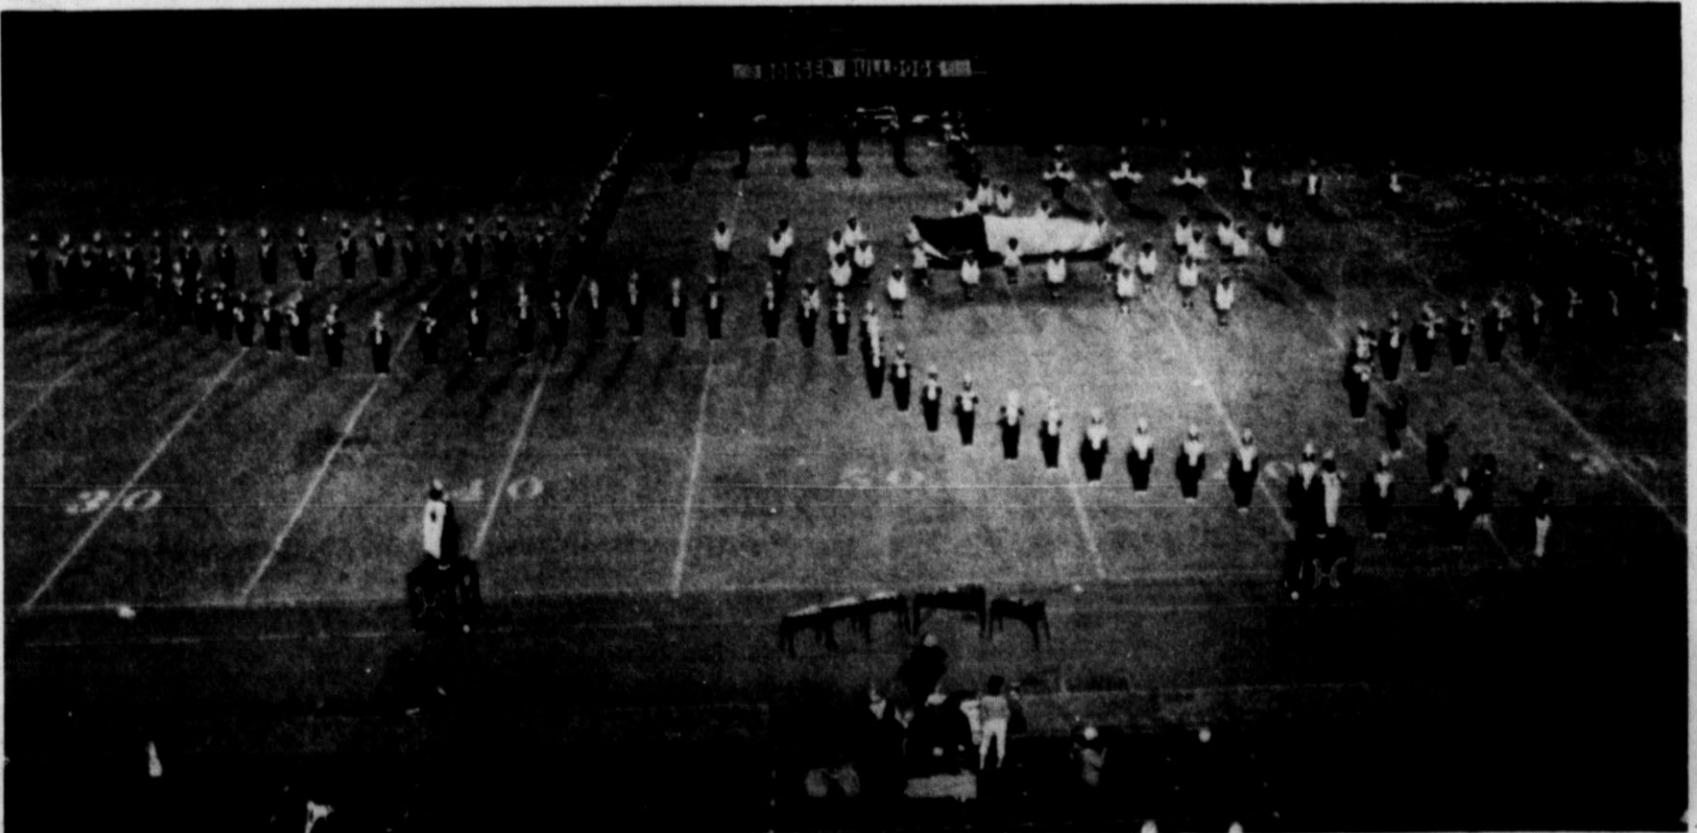

The president said the object of the U.S. contacts with Iran was the improvement of relations, and the freeing of American hostages that followed the arms shipment was "a bonus."

Reaction to the White House contacts with Iran came as administration sources said an American consulting company has been talking to officials in Iraq about giving them strategic advice in their country's war with Iran.

U.S. officials were aware of the discussions between Iraq and BDM International Inc., of McLean, Va., the sources said. Iraq has yet to offer BDM a contract, which would have to be approved by the State and Defense departments.

Meanwhile, FBI Director William Webster said there has been little recent Iranian-sponsored terrorism aimed at U.S. targets.

Spokesman blames TRLA

Christmas Stocking Fund to be discontinued here

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

The Christmas Stocking Fund in Hereford will not be conducted this year.

The anonymous group of men who sponsor the fund have decided to discontinue the program. A spokesman for the group urged citizens in the community to help needy families through church groups and other organizations.

A big factor in the decision to discontinue the Christmas fund, said the spokesman, "was the negative influence of the Texas Rural Legal Aid Office in Hereford."

He explained that the group had depended on Earline Cook, county social services office director, to screen the list of applicants to help determine the mostly needy families. "She has told us that she feels it unwise to continue in that volunteer position."

The CSF spokesman said he understood it was because of a TRLA petition to the county concerning guidelines for welfare and social services programs, as well as individual complaints from applicants, that brought about the withdrawal by Mrs. Cook.

Troy Don Moore, county commissioner, said the court had not formally discussed the matter nor instructed Mrs. Cook not to work with the CSF program.

"While setting up guidelines as requested by TRLA, Roland Saul (district attorney), Mrs. Cook and I did discuss the possibility of the county being subject to a law suit, even though Mrs. Cook's work with the stocking fund was a volunteer thing."

Saul said Friday that the commissioners' court had appointed him, Moore and Mrs. Cook as a committee to draw up guidelines on county welfare. "Some counties had been sued for allegedly not providing due process," said Saul, "so we came up with guidelines to protect us."

He added that Mrs. Cook's work with the Christmas Stocking Fund "did come up in the conversation, and we felt that the situation could pose a threat to the county for those looking for a place to file suit."

Saul said he regretted "that it came to this, but perhaps some volunteer organization might handle the screening process and the funding program could continue."

The group of older businessmen started the Christmas Stocking Fund in 1980. Last year, the fund drew $8,051 in contributions from citizens to help make Christmas brighter for needy families in the community. The CSF reported it helped 106 families last year, mostly in providing food and clothing.

In the six years the program has been conducted, a total of $43,728 was raised in volunteer contributions to help less-fortunate families. A CSF spokesman said the majority of the families helped were Hispanics. The Hereford Brand had handled the collection of funds for the group, and published a running account each year of the amounts and names of contributors.

'Winter Texans' begin to flock the state

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer
HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Every year they come, in their RVs with their fishing tackle, golf clubs and summer clothes, as punctual as Santa Claus and just about as generous. They are the "Winter Texans" who annually migrate from their chilly homes in the Midwest for the warmth and sun of the Rio Grande Valley. The locals complain about traffic tie-ups — on the highways and in the grocery aisles. But the complaints are of a subdued sort. "Some people grumble that they can't get down the aisles of the grocery store, but they're smiling while they're complaining because those people bring in a lot of money into the Valley," said Chuck Giles, manager of the Valley Chamber of Commerce in Weslaco. Estimates are that the snowbirds pump almost $100 million into the economically depressed area and its border towns in Willacy, Cameron, Hidalgo and Starr counties. They come from places as near as Oklahoma and as far away as Canada.

The grateful Valley businesses return the favor by offering such things as senior citizen discounts, dances, bingo games and favored Kosher foods.

Unemployment is higher in the Valley than in other parts of the state. The citrus industry is recovering from a devastating freeze in December 1983. Peso devaluations since 1982 have forced many merchants on both sides of the border to shut down operations and lay off workers.

"I'm sure we give a boost to the economy," said Pearl Vance, a retired postal worker from Oklahoma. "I'm sure the long lines aren't here before we get here, but then it's like Christmas everyday."

Mrs. Vance, who lives with her husband, Robert, in a trailer park in Weslaco, said that winter visitors try to schedule their shopping trips to make it more efficient for everyone.

"We try to go to the grocery store when the working people aren't there. We try to go at times when we can stay away from them," she said.

The estimated 100,000 snowbirds who visit from November through April bring in about $92 million, and that $92 million turns over several times, said Dr. Gilberto de los Santos, a professor at Pan American University in Edinburg.

That represents about 15 percent of the total Valley economy.

"You have to look at the new money coming in and what does it mean in terms of the overall GNP in the Valley. When you look at the services provided and all that, it's still a small amount to the whole economy of the Rio Grande Valley," said de los Santos, whose university did a study of the economic impact of the Winter Texans.

Roy Romero, a travel counselor at the Texas Tourist Bureau, says many Winter Texans return to the area because they know that it needs their money.

"Some of them say, 'we bring down a lot of money and we should be given special treatment' and we say, 'we enjoy having you,'" Romero said.

"We kind of try to turn it around, telling them 'you sure are real nice people.' We don't try to look at everybody with a dollar sign on them, but they get more than their fair share," he said.

They come from Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa, the Dakotas, Ohio, Indiana, and even Canada.

"Things are picking up. We've had a lot of early scouts," Romero said recently. "We know they're coming down, lock, stock and barrel."

Signs like "Welcome Home, Winter Texans," greet the visitors as they enter the Valley.

They go fishing in the Gulf of Mexico and shopping in Mexican border towns.

Along with senior citizen discounts, they also get special treatment at some restaurants and retail stores.

News from their home states is provided in local newspapers. A television station has a "Winter Texan Report" that includes temperatures in selected northern cities and dates for dances, bingo games, banquets and a variety of tournaments.

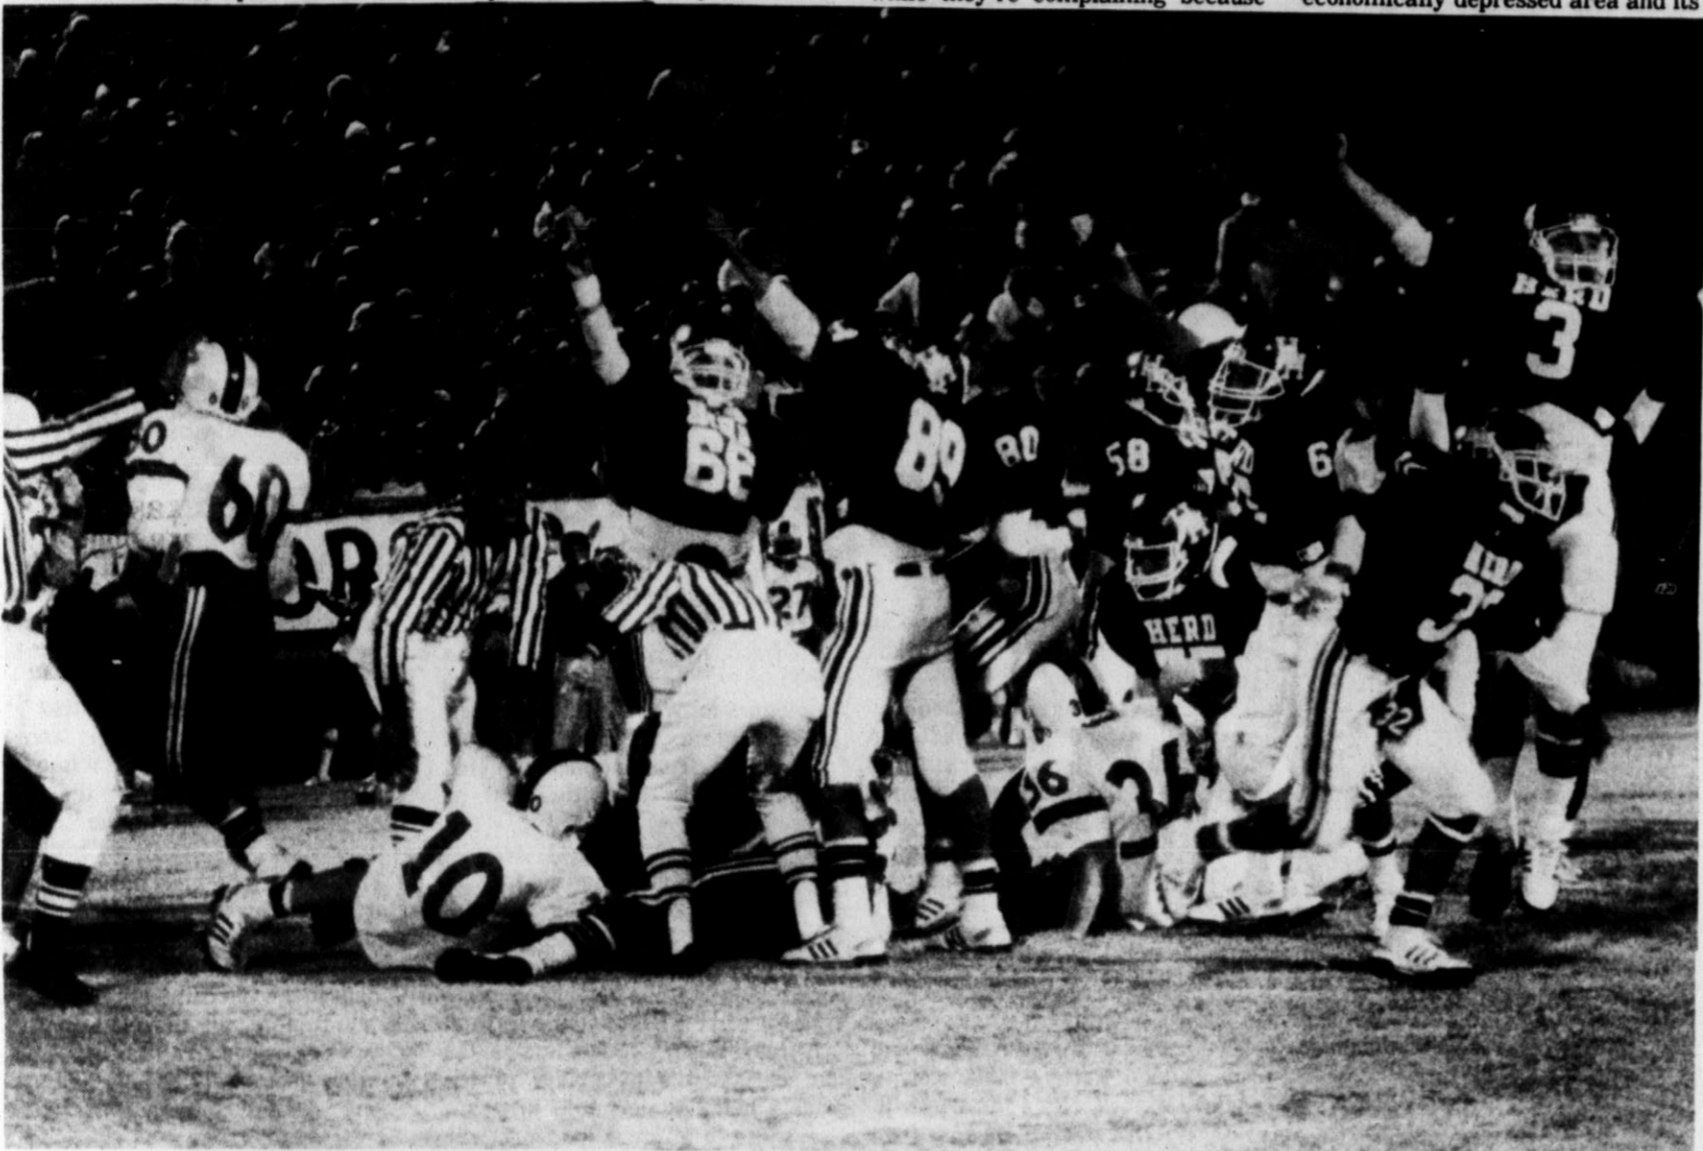

In Mission, Carl's Grocery Store orders food to fit the eating habits of the part-time residents.

"Their eating habits are a little different and we pay attention to them and try to get the products that they want, like Kosher-type foods," said Johnny Fogel, executive vice president of the five-store chain.

Winter Texans have been migrating to the Valley for decades and will continue to do so in record numbers, de los Santos said.

And that suits Valley businessmen just fine.

"It would be a sad day if we lost them," Giles said.

Obituaries

Hazel Margaret Nobles
Hazel Margaret Nobles of Hereford, died Thursday.

Services are pending with Blackburn-Shaw memorial Chapel.

Mrs. Nobel, born in Paulding, Ohio, moved to the Hereford area in the 1920s. She was a graduate of Boston Conservatory of Music and a member of the first Presbyterian Churches of Hereford and Amarillo. She married Claude D. Nobles in 1916. He preceded her in death.

Survivors include a son, Dr. Millard W., of Hereford; two grandchildren and a great grandchild.

David Ralph Childers II

David Ralph Childers II, 79, of Amarillo died Thursday.

Services are pending with Schooler Gordon Bell Avenue Chapel.

Mr. Childers, born in Guymon, Okla., had lived in Dalhart for many years before moving to Amarillo three years ago. He was a retired master electrician and a member of the Plainview Elks Lodge and First Baptist Church of Dalhart.

Survivors include his wife, Grace; two brothers, Ben of Hereford and Phil of Dumas; four sons, Donald of Riverside, Calif., Ronald of Seattle, Wash., David Michael of Mission Viejo, Calif., and Joe Douglas of Fayetteville, Ark.; eight grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Memorials can be made to the St. Anthony's Hospice.

Full employment

The economy is said to be at full employment when only fractional unemployment exists. That is, everyone who wishes to work at the going wage rate for his type of labor is employed. Since it takes time to switch from one job to another, there will be at any given time a small amount of unemployment.

1990 census

The Census Bureau already is laying the foundation for the 1990 decennial census, which will mark the 200th anniversary of the nation's first roll call. Test censuses have already been completed in two cities, and additional ones will be conducted in other areas during the next few years.

Voting age

A Constitutional Amendment lowering the voting age to 18 in all elections was approved by a vote of 94-0 in the Senate on March 10, 1971. The proposed 26th Amendment got House approval by a 400-19 vote on March 23, and the 38th state ratified it on June 30.

Owner gives helping hand

DENTON, Texas (AP)— Sue Burt holds up her left hand to demonstrate how it closes only halfway. "I don't have grip in my hand," she explains in rapid, broken English. Her fingers, drawn downward, don't quite touch her palm.

The hand she holds aloft is scarred, the result of a bad burn. The skin on top wrinkles like a delicate morning glory that has shut itself against the sun's heat.

In a way, her hand is symbolic of her heart: It is never closed to those who need it most.

And to Sue Burt, the most needy are the clients of the Denton State School, to whom she donates thousands of dollars worth of clothing and countless hours of her time as a volunteer every year.

Since 1980, Mrs. Burt has given between $8,000 and $16,000 of brand-new clothing annually to the school. She buys the clothes herself, usually when she goes to market to buy for her Denton stores, Sue's Alterations & Factory Outlet and Sue's Formal Wear.

A former Denton State School employee, Mrs. Burt knows the school's needs.

"I work there for 14 and a half years. I know what they need. You can't know how pitiful it is — they need help. Sometimes I cry. Some of them have no clothing."

The school received a van-load of clothes — mostly blue jeans and even a few formals — worth close to $16,000 last month. The clothes will be distributed to the school's residents.

One of the stipulations Mrs. Burt puts on the clothes is that they not be resold at the school's token store. "I keep a record of how many I give," she said. "I give whatever I can afford."

Mrs. Burt came to the United States from Tokyo about 27 years ago. Her first job was at the state school, where, she said, she preferred to work with the "wild ones."

"No one wants them, but I do. I can handle them. They know who loves them," she said.

She remembered asking the doctors to give her three months to help a client who refused to eat or walk. "I cried and I prayed. I told the doctors I want to help this child."

In less than three months, she said, her client was eating and walking. "I teased her (to get her to walk and eat)," she said.

Although she no longer works directly with the clients, Mrs. Burt still helps the school by volunteering to do any sewing or alterations that are needed. She has been a seamstress for 35 years.

Her devotion to the school and its clients is evident when she talks about them. After describing her work there or talking about a particular client, she would often end by saying, "I love working there. I just love them." And she added once, "And they're crazy about me, too."

Uncle Sam is prompt to admonish or discipline his own children but he does not want any outsider doing it.

The Prime Minister of Japan—Nakasone—has raised a storm of protest.

He says he meant no slander, but what he said was this: "Since there are black people, Puerto Ricans and Mexicans in the United States the level of knowledge in the United States, on average, is far lower."

Reaction was immediate and angry. Critics said the remark represented "Japanese racial arrogance." There were threats to boycott Japanese products.

So then the Prime Minister summoned reporters to explain that he did not mean to slur any racial group.

But then he said again: "Americans have not been able to achieve because of multiple nationalities."

Now foot-in-mouth Prime Minister was offending a lot of Japanese over here!

For the record, Japan's population is less than one-percent minorities—but those minorities are treated as second-class citizens at best.

Japan's 670,000 Koreans are descended from people brought in as laborers, are treated as virtual aliens.

But so much for Nakasone's presumptuous criticism of us. What is the status of education in the United States?

SAT scores of this year's high school seniors remains unimproved. Former Education Secretary, Ted Bell, calls it a national disgrace. He calls it "the worst news in a long time."

The newest government-sponsored study, by National Assessment of Educational Progress, shows that 99 percent of young adult Americans can write their own names. One in 20 cannot read at fourth-grade level. One in five cannot read at eighth-grade level.

Project the numbers and 10 million Americans are functioning below the standards of half a century ago.

And the study does concede that there is a gap between the performance of blacks and whites, with Hispanics midway between.

So the numbers tend to support the Prime Minister's indictment except, as we have seen, that he lives in a glass house.

Significantly, Illinois has a state-run residential public high school which accepts only the brightest sophomores of whatever color.

Don't forget Vets

Veterans Day has come and gone and about the only thing most folks noticed about this holiday was that the banks and post office were closed.

Here in Hereford, however, a special ceremony was conducted to commemorate the day. We salute the American Legion and VFW posts here for making a special effort to observe Veterans Day.

The observance of the day has changed over the years. In the beginning, it was Armistice Day, celebrated always on Nov. 11, in honor of World War I. That was the war which made the world safe for democracy.

The successes of World War I did not last very long. Less than 25 years later, war was mounting again and by 1941 had exploded into World War II. Eventually the enemies, Germany and Japan, were defeated and it was proclaimed that the world was again safe from war.

Within the decade, war involving American troops was underway in Korea. For the first time in history, American troops were sent into battle with the handicap of being unable to cross a certain line, sent into a no-win situation. All we could hope for was some sort of stalemate, not victory, and that's what happened in Korea.

Another decade passed and the U.S. became involved in Vietnam. This was another war in which the U.S. troops had to fight under strange rules which prevented them from seeking an all-out victory. The result was a situation in which American boys were sent to die on a battleground of the enemy's choosing.

Vietnam created deep resentment at home; it was not a popular war and received less than full support. Young men dodged the draft and for the first time were not fully censored for it. Vietnam was a nightmare which seemed never to end. Finally it did, and we still feel its effects.

The civilian soldier—the draftee—ended with Vietnam and since then our military machine has been supplied with paid people who choose to serve a military career. The element of volunteering to serve one's country has paled significantly. Talk of a universal draft is quickly sidelined.

Yet we celebrate Veterans Day because this nation owes its existence and its people owe their very lives and liberty to the men who fought in this nation's wars and defeated enemies who would long ago have ended freedom as we know it.

We in America may forget our veterans most of the time. Surely it is not too much to ask that we remember them on Nov. 11 each year.

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business American industry strong, growing

By RICHARD L. LESHNER
President

WASHINGTON — When Mark Twain was in London, he heard of reports back in the United States that he had passed away. He sent a cable back to New York stating, "The report of my death is greatly exaggerated."

To those who suggest the United States is a failing industrial power, I offer a like response. Industrial production has grown more rapidly in this country during the 1980s than in any other nation. The reports of our industrial demise are premature, to say the least.

It is true that total employment is declining in many of our industries, such as steel, apparel, metal working, and auto manufacturing. In fact, employment in manufacturing is almost one million less than in 1980, a reduction of about 5 percent.

At the same time, however, industrial output has risen an astounding 25 percent. The simple fact is that our industries are producing more with fewer employees.

To be sure, the loss of a million manufacturing jobs is no small matter. It has meant disruption and hardship in the lives of many good people.

But the picture isn't all that bleak. Many of those jobs didn't actually disappear at all. They were simply transferred to the services sector as more manufacturing companies contract out various services functions that they used to perform inhouse.

And although some jobs have disappeared, their loss was more than offset by new opportunities. We have created more than 10 million new jobs at a time when job creation in other countries has been relatively stagnant.

We live in an age of dramatic technological progress, when every aspect of the way we work and live is undergoing rapid change.

We live in an age of dramatic technological progress, when every aspect of the way we work and live is undergoing rapid change. Just as our ancestors endured the rigorous transformation from an agricultural society into an industrial one, so are we embarked upon another period of transition.

No one can say with certainty what this next stage of our economic development will be like, but one thing is certain—it will not witness erosion of our manufacturing base any more than industrialization did our agricultural sector. We are simply learning to apply our labor more efficiently and effectively in more productive ways.

Those who demand government subsidies and protectionism to prop up employment in manufacturing are barking up the wrong tree. The world abounds with nations that have taken that approach and their economic performance is dismal.

The roots of our nation's prosperity lie within our free market economy and our ability to accept and respond to change. These qualities have always served us well, and never more so than in times like these.

Bootleg

Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek wonders about a speech by the mayor of New York.

Dear editor:

When the New York Mets won the World Series, over two million New York fans turned out the next day to cheer the team as it paraded through the city streets.

Addressing the mammoth, cheering crowd, New York's mayor exclaimed: "The Mets have made us a small town. Today we're all one family."

It seems like a round-about way to produce a small town. Most small towns have done it on their own and not a one of them has ever had to produce a World Series baseball team.

Moreover, a place as ill-located and as crowded as New York is an unhandy place to locate a small town in. Many New Yorkers have to ride a train an hour and a half each morning getting to work and another hour and a half getting back home. Five or ten minutes at the most is all it takes in a small town to get to work. Out here on this farm I can step out the back door and be at work, if that's what I have in mind.

As for the Mets making New Yorkers "all one family," I wonder how many of them, having cheered themselves hoarse at the big celebration, get mugged n the way home?

I wouldn't want to live in a town where, to achieve the benefits of a small town, you had to win a World Series. Or, for that matter, a district football championship.

Actually, except for the inconveniences, the over-crowding, the smog, the noise, the high costs, there's not much difference between people in a big city and a small town.

Because of television, both get the same national and world news just as fast and inaccurately and watch the same TV shows during which both, I have an idea, fall asleep at about the same time. It may take New Yorkers a little longer because their nerves are shot by the time they get home from work.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

We are very pleased that you were able to present the issues in a non-biased and informative manner for your readers in order that they could base their vote on knowledge rather than ignorance. We regret that we were unable to persuade the majority of the voters in our District that our stand on the issues was the best stand—we do, however, take complete responsibility for that failure.

We also wish to thank all of those who did support our efforts with their prayers, their time, their votes and their contributions. There is no way that we can ever express our sincere appreciation for all that they did on our behalf.

In every political race there must be a winner and there must be a loser. And sometimes the loser is also a winner just because of his association with the best people in the world. That is our situation—we are very proud of all of the friends that we have made during this campaign, and we will always cherish those friendships.

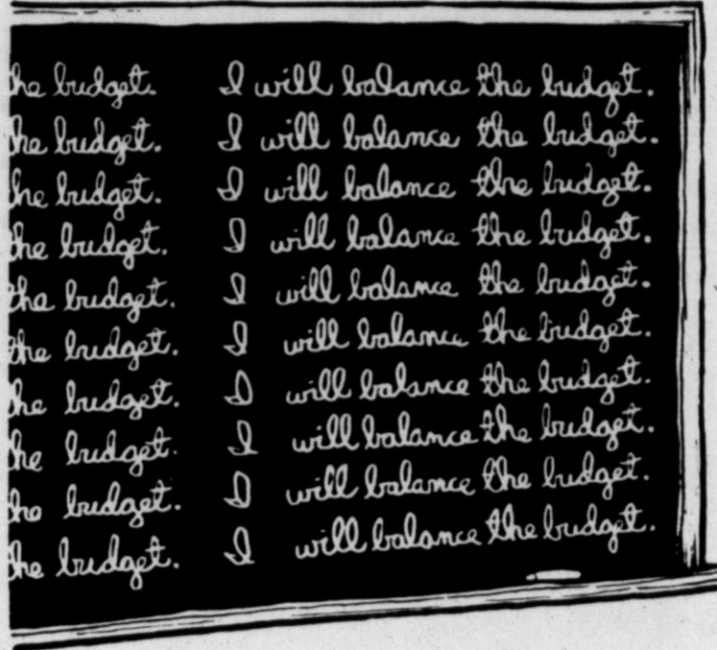

The great thing about our democracy is that we have the opportunity through the political process to choose those who we would have govern us, and after making that choice, we can all join together in a unified effort to make the nation a better place in which to live. It is our wish that we would now all roll up our sleeves and go to work finding solutions to those problems which are forcing farmers off the farm, oil producers out of business, merchants out of business and workers out of jobs. It is our right—it is our responsibility!

Thank you—Gerald and Bonnie McCathern, 419 Centre St., Hereford, Texas.

The Penultimate Word

WARM FUZZIES

Periodically someone asks what Warm Fuzzies are. Periodically I run the story in this column. Here it is again, and thanks for asking.

Long ago, there was a village called Swabeedoo. The little people who lived there were called Swabeedoo-dahs. The Swabeedoo-dahs were the happiest people on Earth. One reason for their happiness was found in their habit of giving and receiving Warm Fuzzies. Each of them carried a sack of Warm Fuzzies at all times. When they met they gave and received Warm Fuzzies. Nothing felt better than receiving a Warm Fuzzy. It meant you were special and loved. Well, one thing felt better than receiving a Warm Fuzzy... Giving one seemed to be at least a little bit better.

Outside the village there lived a troll. The troll just could not tolerate all of the Warm Fuzzy stuff. It made him uncomfortable. He did not know what to say nor how to handle the feelings he felt when a Warm Fuzzy was extended to him by a smiling Swabeedoo-dah.

One day the troll met a Swabeedoo-dah and, of course, a Warm Fuzzy was offered. The troll said, "You had better be careful with those. You may run out of Warm Fuzzies. Then what would you do?"

The troll knew they could never run out, but he also knew the nature of things. If there was a fear of running out then there would ultimately be a running out.

The Swabeedoo-dahs began to be more careful with their Warm Fuzzies. They began to give them less and less. Soon they were trading Warm Fuzzies for things. Before long, they were arguing over their Warm Fuzzies, bragging about how many they had, and you guessed it...even stealing them from one another. The joy in Swabeedoo land was gone.

The troll felt bad. He did not intend to create this much misery. He just wanted to dent the joy, not kill it. In his cave he had a huge supply of Cold Pricklies. The troll offered the Cold Pricklies as a substitute for the Warm Fuzzies. The Swabeedoo-dahs began to give Cold Pricklies and hoard Warm Fuzzies. The joy never returned.

Years passed and Warm Fuzzies were kept in locked boxes to be handed down from generation to generation. One young Swabeedoo-dah inherited a whole vault of Warm Fuzzies. These had been carefully gathered by the ingenuity, drive and even cruelty of his ancestors.

At first the young Swabeedoo-dah was pleased. He had more Warm Fuzzies than any other Swabeedoo-dah in the village. This gave him status in the village. It gave him clout. Unfortunately, it did not give him joy.

One day he read the history of his village. To his amazement he found the story of a time when everyone gave Warm Fuzzies and received Warm Fuzzies and were happy. He went to his vault to see his hoard of Warm Fuzzies. They were now showing signs of age and misuse. He tried to take a nap on them but they were lumpy. It was evident he could not eat them. Matter of fact, he could not think of any use for them at all except that having them gave him clout.

The Swabeedoo-dah made a bold move. He found an old sack once used by his great-grandfather to carry Warm Fuzzies. He filled his sack and went into the village, giving a Warm Fuzzy to everyone he saw. The village thought he had gone crazy. The Swabeedoo-dah thought he had found an answer. The only joy a Warm Fuzzy has is the joy it creates when it is given away. The Swabeedoo-dah went through the village saying, "Have a Warm Fuzzy!" and he found joy again.

This version of the Warm Fuzzies legend was written by Doug Manning who happens to believe it is true...

Despite drop-outs, goof-offs, education has come long way

To blame schools for people who do not attend is like blaming dentists for cavities.

It's the flunk-outs and the drop-outs and the chronic goof-offs who distort statistics:

One in 20 young adult Americans cannot read at fourth grade level. One in five cannot read at eighth grade level.

Misuse of drugs is pandemic in some schools; even in some elementary schools.

But on this eve of another American Education Week (Nov. 16-22), maybe to keep our perspective in focus we should examine the sunshine side of the ledger.

Fifty-seven point four million American youngsters are in school today. That's 89,000 more than this time last year.

American taxpayers are paying $4,263 this year to educate each public student — and that is an 18 percent increase over five years ago.

Within three years at the present rate of increase "American education" will be the largest "business" in America.

While it is true and regrettable that the high school class of '86 did not improve SAT scores over the year previous, nearly a million high school students who took the ACT test this academic year scored "the best average in a decade!"

All told, our young adults are more literate, not less.

Ninety-five percent can fill out a job application. Eighty percent can read at eighth grade level or above.

Our schools are carrying some unprecedented burdens; one school system includes students from 19 different countries requiring classroom use of other languages. Scientific and technical information threatens to overwhelm us—escalating 13 percent a year, doubling every five and a half years.

Eighty-one point five percent of our schools are now using computers.

We expect teachers to make up for the shortcomings of our homes and churches and communities.

Yet, for all these unprecedented challenges, the only place in American society where equality of opportunity is absolutely assured—is the public school.

It's expensive. A third of every state's budget goes for education.

Our investment in education, adjusted for inflation, has increased 236 percent since 1950. The only thing more expensive would be "no education."

Once there was a period when teachers were pressured to "graduate everybody." Not anymore. Thirty-five states have enacted tougher graduation requirements.

And 96 percent of the teachers now teaching say they "love it!"

We have come a long way. Our nation's earliest Americans had a literacy rate of 7 percent. In the last dozen years the percentage of Americans 25 and older who have completed high school rose from 55 percent to 71 percent.

The defense rests.

Missionaries teach English in China

By MARK HALTON

Fort Worth Star-Telegram
NORTH RICHLAND HILL, Texas (AP) - The American missionary in China had lunch with his students despite the frequent lack of running water, which sometimes meant the bowls containing their food went unwashed for days.

He gained their trust and they visited him at home, seeing for the first time a Western hobby, jigsaw puzzles.

Jay Horn, 26, of North Richland Hills, also introduced them to American-style Christianity.

He and Jody Mapston, also 26 and a North Richland Hills resident, completed a one-year mission trip in August with the English Language Institute-China of San Dimas, Calif. The institute sends American Christians to China as college-level English teachers with the intent of efforts. Currently 120 people are serving with the institute in China.

"They know that we're all Christians, but they need teachers," Ms. Mapston said. "They're willing to accept your Christianity, let you come into the country, in exchange for English teachers. They don't want you to do any overt witnessing. If I were out on the street trying to pass out pamphlets, I would be in trouble.

"But they realize we're Christians, and they admire us for that. Christians have a good lifestyle. They're moral people. They have high standards, and the Chinese like that. They's why they want you to come. We don't hide anything from them."

Applicants to the 5-year-old institute must undergo a battery of tests to determine compatibility in a foreign culture and raise $8,600 for the year of service. The Chinese government does not pay for its American teachers.

Ms. Mapston taught English to 15 junior and senior high school teachers at Hubei College of Education in Wuhan, a city of at least 3.5 million.

In the city of Yantai, across the Yellow Sea from South Korea, Horn worked with first-year science students, English majors and young teachers hoping to study the United States. Yantai University had just opened when he arrived, making him and five others the first Americans to teach there.

When the communists took control of China in 1949, the 300-year missionary efforts of Westerners all but ended. The Chinese church went underground in the subsequent purge of believers. During the Cultural Revolution, from 1966 until Mao Tse-tung's death in 1976, officials attempted to stamp out any last vestiges of Christianity, along with other Western ideas.

Today things are different. "The (church) is open... pretty open, although they're not allowed to proselytize, the Chinese or I," Horn said.

Before leaving for China on Aug. 17, 1985, Horn and Ms. Mapston received three weeks of training in California, talking with people who had lived in China and learning how to teach English better.

"We went into the country as English teachers, and we worked very, very hard as English teachers. We were professionals. But we were professionals who happened to be Christians," Ms. Mapston said.

The two did not speak Chinese well, so their work focused on the small English-speaking populations in their two cities in eastern China. They quickly learned that close, one-on-one friendships were the most important means of spreading their faith.

And because cultural differences made communication difficult even with the best English speakers, their message had to be basic and personal. It took until January for Ms. Mapston to develop close relationships.

"You have to develop their trust first, prove to them that you care about them, that you're interested in their culture, and that you're interested in them as people. Then you can start talking the gospel to them," Ms. Mapston said.

"You can't go up to somebody you don't know at all in China from a totally different culture so alien to your culture and shove the gospel down their throat. You have to show them that you love them and you have a caring for them, and in doing that you can say, 'Here's where that caring came from, from Jesus Christ.' That takes a long time."

Horn said he also strove to present a caring and sharing lifestyle. He chose to eat with his students, bypassing the much cleaner and healthier foreigners' dining hall. The contacts he developed during meals led the students to visit him at his home to play cards, sing songs, watch television and work jigsaw puzzles, a pastime unknown to them.

In Yantai, where Horn lived, there were two churches, Protestant and Catholic, for a population of some two million. For the most part, the people do not know these churches exist, Horn said. A Chinese friend, who acted as his interpreter, did not know Yantai had any churches until Horn asked him to find out.

The government has prescribed that the church be "totally Chinese," neither feeling outside influences nor copying Western ideas. "They want it to be Christianity from the Chinese point of view," Horn said.

Young people are scarce in churches and the ministers are very old, often survivors of the 1949 Revolution and ensuing persecution. Young people have left the religions of their elders, Buddhism, Taoism and Confucianism, along with Christianity, to pursue agnosticism, science and self-knowledge, Horn said.

Bibles are hard to find. The government still does not allow them to be sent into the country, and they are not printed in China. Church services are held once a week. At Horn's 250-member church, they lasted three hours.

"In the service, they sing a song and then someone will get up and give a testimony about how the song relates to him. The guy who is leading the song will talk about it, and almost give a sermon on the song. Then they will sing the song again. They may sing that same song, six, seven or eight times," Horn said.

The songs are often traditional English and American hymns such as "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty." The Catholic services celebrate Mass in the common language, and the priests wear traditional vestments.

Since Horn's and Ms. Mapston's job was to teach English, classes took up most of their time. But it was three that Christianity mixed with American culture. And the Chinese want to know about American culture, both said.

"Part of American culture is Christmas and Easter and Halloween, which is the day before All Saints Day. There's just all kinds of ways to introduce and tell the story of Jesus Christ in the classroom."

For Ms. Mapston, assigning English names to her students also was a way to introduce Christianity, since she selected names from the Bible.

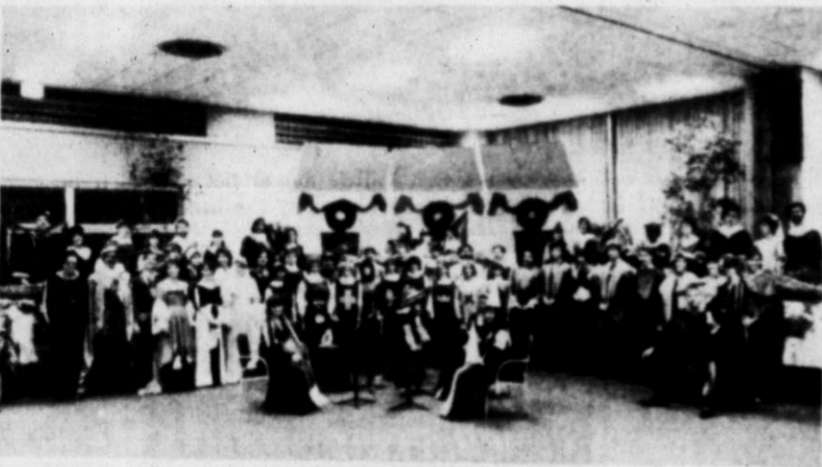

Some things have remained from the Mao era, including clothes. Although wide lapels, flared pants and platform shoes for men are in style, the "Mao suit," a blue, gray or black outfit, remains common clothing. "In a crowd, it's a sea of blue and black," Ms. Mapston said.

"The Chinese have this wall that is first put between themselves and a foreigner, but they're not trying to be cold. They are taught to have this wall up. A lot of them are very wary (because of persecutions during the Cultural Revolution)," Ms. Mapston said.

"The Chinese are giving up a lot to go to church. People know this when they go. I think the Chinese Christians are much more open for the Lord than a lot of Western Christians, because we've got it so easy."

MADRIGAL DINNER CAST

WTSU yuletide banquet scheduled Dec. 8-9

WTSU - There'll be no forks and no plates, and organizers expect a few more table runners will need washing after the first night, but that's all part of the fun when West Texas State University brings a bit of Renaissance England to 20th Century Texas in its annual Madrigal Dinner, Dec. 8-9.

Wooden trenchers will take the place of the good china at this banquet. Spoons will be the only utensils as the lords and ladies of this area attack a menu of 15th and 16th Century favorites: sallat, Cobages (cabbage and almond soup), parsley bread, farsed chycken (chicken with spiced apples and oats), aroste (roast pork), flore frittours (sauteed squash flowers), and plum pudding.

WTSU's Madrigal Dinner will begin at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday nights, Dec. 8 and 9, in the Great Banquet Hall (south room of the campus dining hall). The wassail bowl will open at 6:30.

Colorfully-costumed madrigal singers, lords, ladies, pages, heralds and jesters will fill the candle-lit hall with music, heraldry, feasting and dancing among pine boughs, holly and ivy.

Renaissance music will be provided by the Matilda Gaume Early Music Consort, playing on period instruments, and WTSU's Chamber Singers. Their selections will include "Lo, How a Rose," "Wassall Song," "Boar's Head Carol," "Sing We and Chant It," "Riu, Riu, Chiu," and "Twelve Days of Christmas," and other carols of the season.

Seats may be reserved through Dec. 1 by calling WTSU's music library, 656-2951, or writing to WTSU Madrigal Dinner, WT Box 825, Canyon, Tx. 79016. Tickets are $15. Any student in the area with an ID may reserve a seat for $10. WTSU students with meal tickets may come for $7.

Each evening several choice tables will be reserved as scholarship benefit tables. Seats at these tables are $30, with $15 of that amount going to scholarships for those students involved in staging the dinner.

24-hour service to be given

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department will provide a new 24-hour-a-day computer service to explain the latest goings-on in its research laboratories.

Terry B. Kinney Jr., administrator of the department's Agricultural Research Service, said Thursday the agency is offering the service free to companies as well as commodity and farm organizations.

"We see the service as a way to speed the flow of our laboratory results to potential users in agribusiness and related industries," Kinney said. "Otherwise, he said, it often takes months for a researcher's manuscript to be reviewed and published in a journal."

Agency scientists are shortening the time lag by writing easy-to-read summaries of completed papers. That information will be available in the new system, called TEKTRAN. At least 7,000 summaries are in the computer now, and about 300 new entries will be filed each month.

James T. Hall, who oversees the operation, said the service is being offered on a first-come, first-served basis. Users pay only telephone charges for connecting their computers with the agency's. Inquiries can be directed to Hall at 301 344-4045 or write to him at Building 005, Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md. 20705.

Hall said the summaries include the names and locations of scientists, and outline the research without revealing specific details that would preclude the granting of patents or a journal's publishing a scientist's paper.

Skid Row

"Skid row" was originally "skid road," a trail along which newly cut logs were skidded in the Pacific Northwest. It was latter applied to the section of town where loggers gathered in taverns, inns, etc. The term spread to other cities as a description for sections that are havens for derelicts. In the process, "row" replaced "road" in many references.

By defeating Borger Bulldogs, 19-12

Whitefaces earn bi-district playoff berth

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces made the big plays both offensively and defensively when they needed to Friday night in defeating Borger and earning the second place playoff berth from District 1-4A.

The final score at Whiteface Stadium was Hereford 19, Borger 6, giving the Whitefaces a playoff spot for the first time in three seasons. Hereford will play District 2-4A champion Big Spring in a bi-district playoff contest.

The playoff game has been set for 8 p.m. next Saturday in Jones Stadium on the Texas Tech campus, it was determined Saturday at Lubbock in a meeting of officials from both schools.

Hereford held a 13-6 halftime lead over Borger after trailing the Bulldogs 6-0 in the first quarter. The Whitefaces increased their lead to 19-6 before Borger scored a touchdown late in the game.

Looking at key statistics for the game, the Hereford offense was seven for 14 in third down conversion attempts and one for one in fourth down conversion attempts.

The Bulldogs were able to convert four of 10 third down plays for first downs, but in fourth down conversion attempts, the Herd defense did not allow Borger a first down in four different attempts.

"It's the best defense we've played in a month, the best defense we've played since the Levelland game," Hereford Coach Don Cumpton said.

"We played a little different defense because of the Borger offense shifting so much."

Cumpton, who directed the Whitefaces all the way to the state class 5A semifinals in 1981 before going to Abilene to coach for three years, returned to Hereford this year as head football coach.

"Our kids deserved to win. They have a great attitude. I respect Borger a lot," Cumpton said. "This is no comparison to a coin flip."

The coin flip Cumpton was referring to was the one that would have taken place in Canyon late Friday night if Borger had beaten Hereford. The coin flip would have been necessary because a Borger win, coupled with a Canyon win over Frenship, would have meant a three-way tie for second place.

But with Hereford defeating Borger, Hereford finished the district season at 7-1, just behind Lubbock Estacado which had a 7-0-1 record. Canyon finished the season in third place with a 6-2 district mark, and Borger fell to 5-3 in 1-4A games.

The 9-1 Whitefaces will now prepare for their bi-district battle against Big Spring, which was undefeated at 7-0 in District 2-4A and 8-1 overall. The other bi-district game will pit Estacado against Sweetwater, the runnerup in District 2-4A.

Big Spring wrapped up an undefeated 2-4A title by defeating Andrews 27-0 Friday night. The Whitefaces opened the 1986 season with a 28-0 victory over Andrews.

Big Spring's only loss of the regular season was 58-6 to Estacado in the second week of the season. Hereford's only loss was also to Estacado, 28-18.

Coach Cumpton suited up about 130 Hereford High School football players — the junior varsity and sophomore team members as well as the varsity. Those 130 Herd players all lined up the length of the field when the referees met with team captains for the pregame coin flip.

Borger used a 49-yard return in the opening kickoff by Charles Walker to get rolling right away.

The Bulldogs had the ball at the Hereford 26-yard line after Walker's return. After two plays, with an incomplete pass and a one-yard loss, Walker, the Borger quarterback, completed a 17-yard pass to Brad Knight.

That set up a touchdown pass of 10 yards from Walker to Joe Jones with 10:36 left. The point-after kick failed, and the score remained at 6-0.

Hereford came right back, driving 74 yards in 11 plays for a touchdown. At one point, the Whitefaces were faced with a third-and-18 from their own 41-yard line.

Quarterback Todd Shire found an open Chris Johnson downfield for a 40-yard pass completion, a major play in the game.

"Borger's kickoff return got us in a hole right away," Coach Cumpton said. "But we felt like we could move the ball against them. That pass to Johnson was a big play for us."

Rather than being forced to punt, the Whitefaces had a first down at the Borger 19 after Johnson's big pass reception.

Mark Artho carried for a 13-yard gain, and Marcus Brown then gained two yards to the four-yard line.

Artho carried the ball again, and did a great job of reaching out to get the ball over the plane of the goal line. Artho's touchdown was scored with 5:32 left in the first quarter.

Tim Long's PAT put Hereford into the lead, 7-6.

Borger moved from its own 31-yard line to the Hereford 22 in nine plays and was faced with a fourth-and-two. The Whitefaces stopped the Bulldogs' leading running back, Jerry Don Sweatt, for a gain of only one yard.

Three plays before that unsuccessful fourth down conversion attempt by Borger, Hereford's Marcus Brown nearly intercepted a pass.

Hereford had the ball for six plays before Borger's John Moose intercepted a pass and returned it 13 yards to the Hereford 44.

In Borger's second down play, quarterback Charles Walker was nearly sacked by Hereford's Bobby Medina but the referees ruled that Walker's arm was in passing motion when the ball got away from him.

Two plays later, in a fourth-and-two, Sweatt was stopped again by the Hereford defense, preventing a fourth down conversion.

After the Hereford offense was unable to keep a possession going, the Herd defense came up with another big play. Borger was forced to punt from midfield, and Kyle Streun of Hereford blocked the punt with 5:59 left in the first half.

Hereford then maintained possession of the ball after the blocked punt. The Whitefaces gradually moved the ball downfield, advancing 53 yards in 10 plays for a touchdown and a 13-6 lead.

The biggest play leading up to the touchdown was a nine-yard pass from Shire to Bobby Baker in a third-and-eight from the Borger 19.

After Marcus Brown rushed for a five-yard gain, Artho carried the pigskin the final five yards, crossing the goal line with 55 seconds left in the first half.

With such little time left, Borger began attempting to produce long pass plays. After two 11-yard pass completions, the Bulldogs tried a real long pass attempt from the Hereford 37.

Rodney McCracken of the Whitefaces intercepted the ball and returned it 38 yards, only to fumble it away and have Borger recover it at the Bulldog 37.

Richard Castillo then sacked Borger quarterback Walker for a 27-yard loss, and time ran out on the Bulldogs in the first half.

Hereford had 174 yards total offense in the first half compared to 104 for Borger. The Whitefaces were four for five in third down conversion attempts in the half, while Borger was three for six.

The third quarter became a defensive battle, with Hereford being forced to punt in its first two possessions of the quarter, and Borger also punting in its first possession of the half.

In Borger's second possession of the half, the Bulldogs were faced with a third-and-one at the Hereford 30-yard line. Ricky Ruiz of Hereford nearly intercepted a pass in that play, and in the fourth-and-one play, Ruiz and Medina together brought about a quarterback sack for a three-yard loss.

Hereford's next possession continued into the fourth quarter, in which a roughing the kicker penalty kept the possession going. But Hereford could not maintain that possession and had to punt from its own 40-yard line.

Borger had Sweatt carry the ball two straight plays, but in the second rushing attempt, Richard Castillo hit Sweatt hard and caused a fumble.

"In a game like this, those are the kinds of things that turn the tide," Coach Cumpton said about Sweatt's lost fumble.

And turn the tide Hereford did, with Vincent Brown rushing for a four-yard touchdown run with 7:57 left in the game.

A big 46-yard pass completion enabled Borger to threaten to score in its next possession. But the Bulldogs, who had a first down at the Hereford 15, could not break through the Herd defense.

In a fourth-and-16 play from the HHS 21-yard line, Borger's Collin Robinett tried to catch a pass for a touchdown, but he was out of bounds when he caught it. As a result, the Bulldogs lost possession of the ball on downs.

Hereford ran eight straight rushing plays to attempt to chew up as much time off the clock as possible. But when faced with a third-and-10 at the Borger 35, a pass was attempted by Shire.

Mark Neas of Borger intercepted the pass and returned it 36 yards to the Hereford 39.

Pass completions of 19 yards and eight yards helped set up a 17-yard touchdown pass for the Bulldogs. Walker passed to Robinett for the touchdown with 59 seconds left in the game.

Borger failed in its extra-point kick, and stood seven points behind. The Bulldogs attempted an onside kick, but Hereford's Ricky Ruiz fell on the ball to prevent any more rallying by Borger.

Hereford then ran out the rest of the time to seal up a 19-12 victory and a continued season with the bi-district playoffs.

Mark Artho led the Hereford offensive attack with 97 yards rushing in 23 attempts. Todd Shire completed six of 15 passes for 90 yards, including three completions to Chris Johnson for 64 yards.

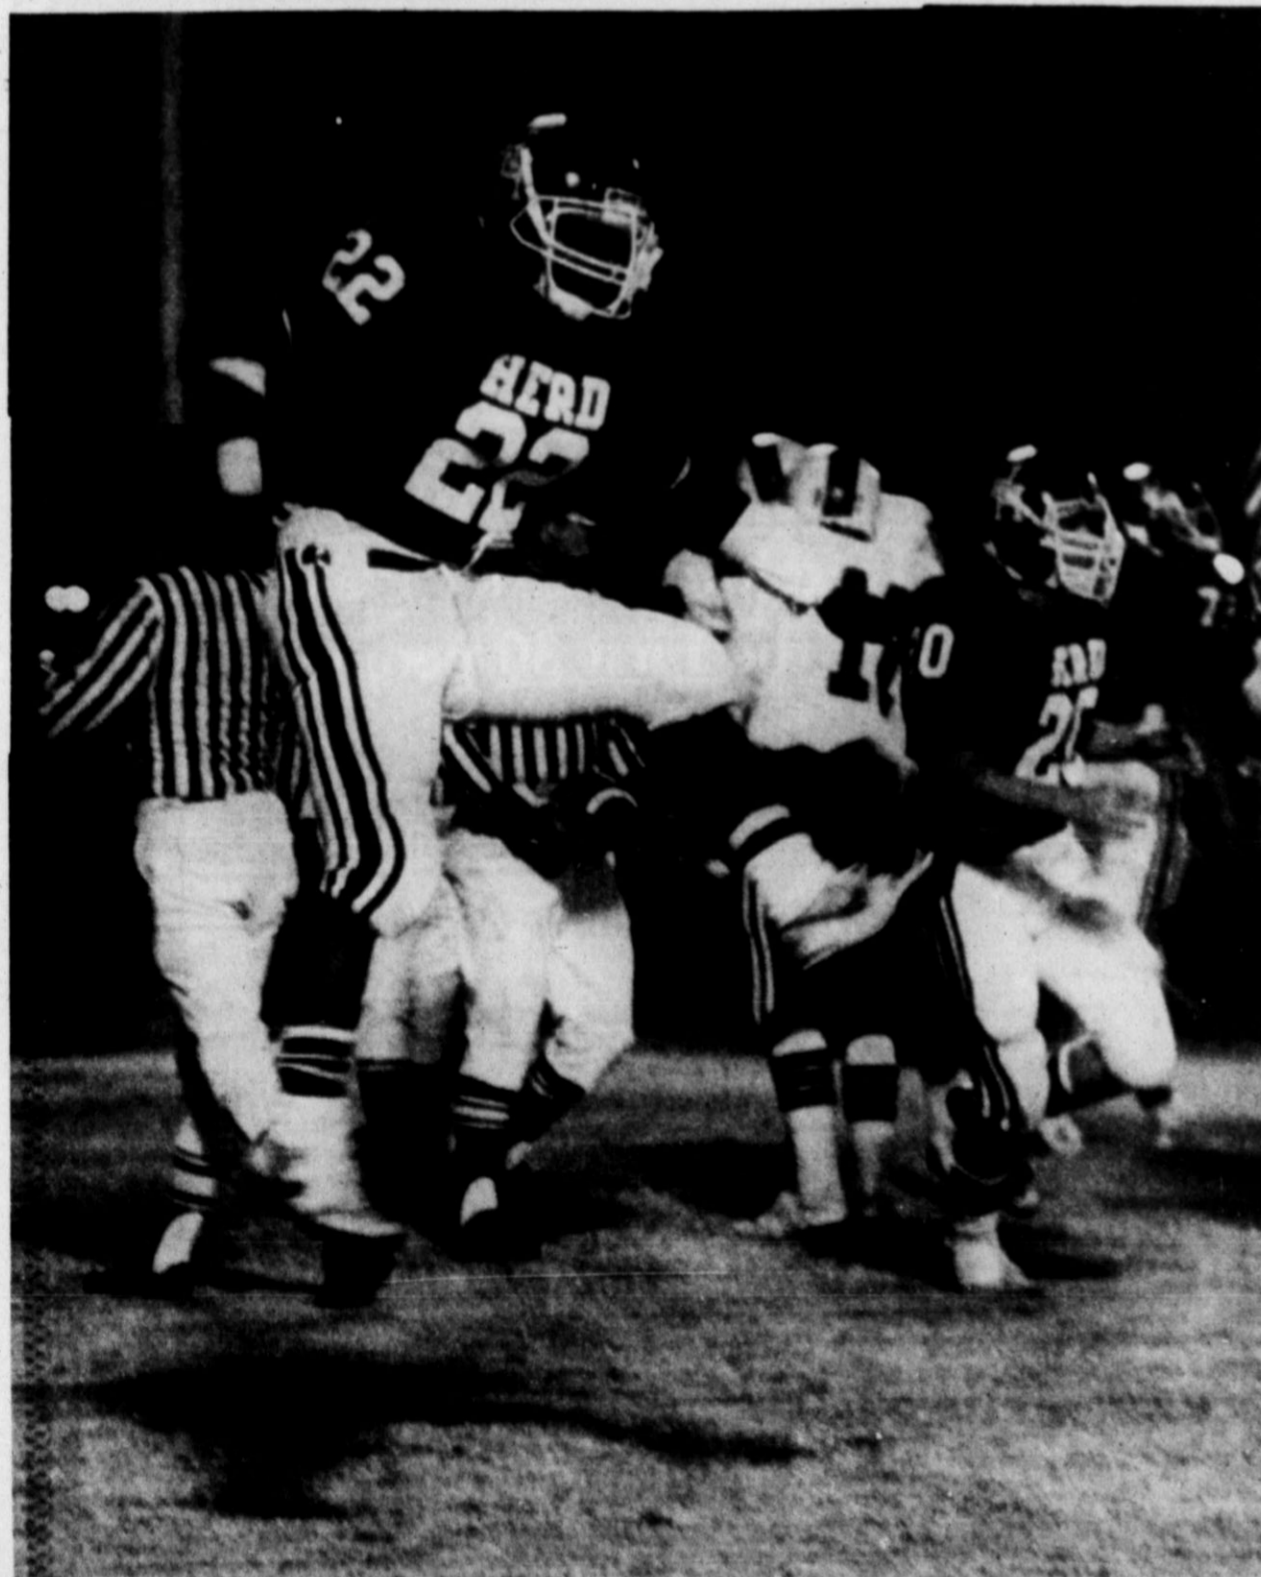

Hereford had an even 300 yards total offense, including 210 on the ground. Vincent Brown rushed for 66 yards in 10 carries, and Marcus Brown had 41 yards in 12 carries.

The Whitefaces had 20 first downs, 15 of them achieved in the rushing game. Borger, in comparison, had 16 first downs — 11 of them achieved in passing attempts.

Jerry Don Sweatt led Borger with 94 yards in 19 carries. Charles Walker attempted 23 passes, completing 12 of them for 248 yards.

Borger: Collin Robinett 17-yard pass from Charles Walker (kick failed), 0:59, fourth quarter.

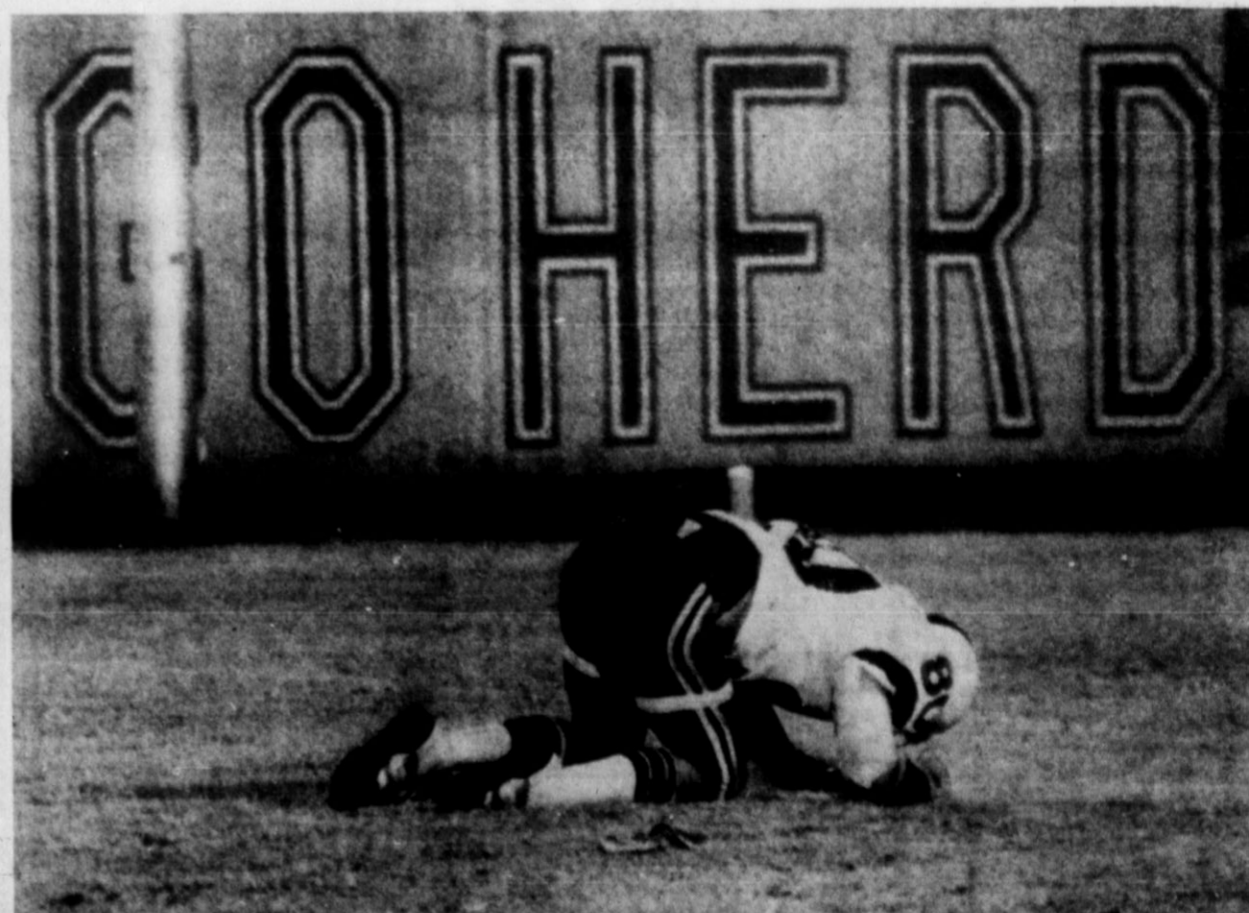

The Thrill Of Victory .....

Vincent Brown (22) of the Hereford Whitefaces jumps for joy after scoring a touchdown in the fourth quarter to give Hereford a 19-6 lead over Borger. Brown's touchdown run was for four yards and was scored with 7:57 left in the game. Brown rushed 10 times for 66 yards in helping Hereford defeat Borger 19-12. No. 20 of Hereford is Mark Artho. (Brand photo by Shawn Cockrum)

Ka-Boom!!!!!!!

Borger quarterback Charles Walker (22) goes back to attempt a pass, but does not see Hereford Whiteface linebacker Bobby Medina (30) coming at him. Medina pounded Walker to the ground. No. 33 of Hereford is Michael Phibbs, who also did some hart hitting Friday, and No. 57 is Derrell Page, who recovered a Borger fumble early in the fourth quarter. A 19-12 victory over Borger advances the Whitefaces to the bi-district playoffs. (Brand photo by Shawn Cockrum)

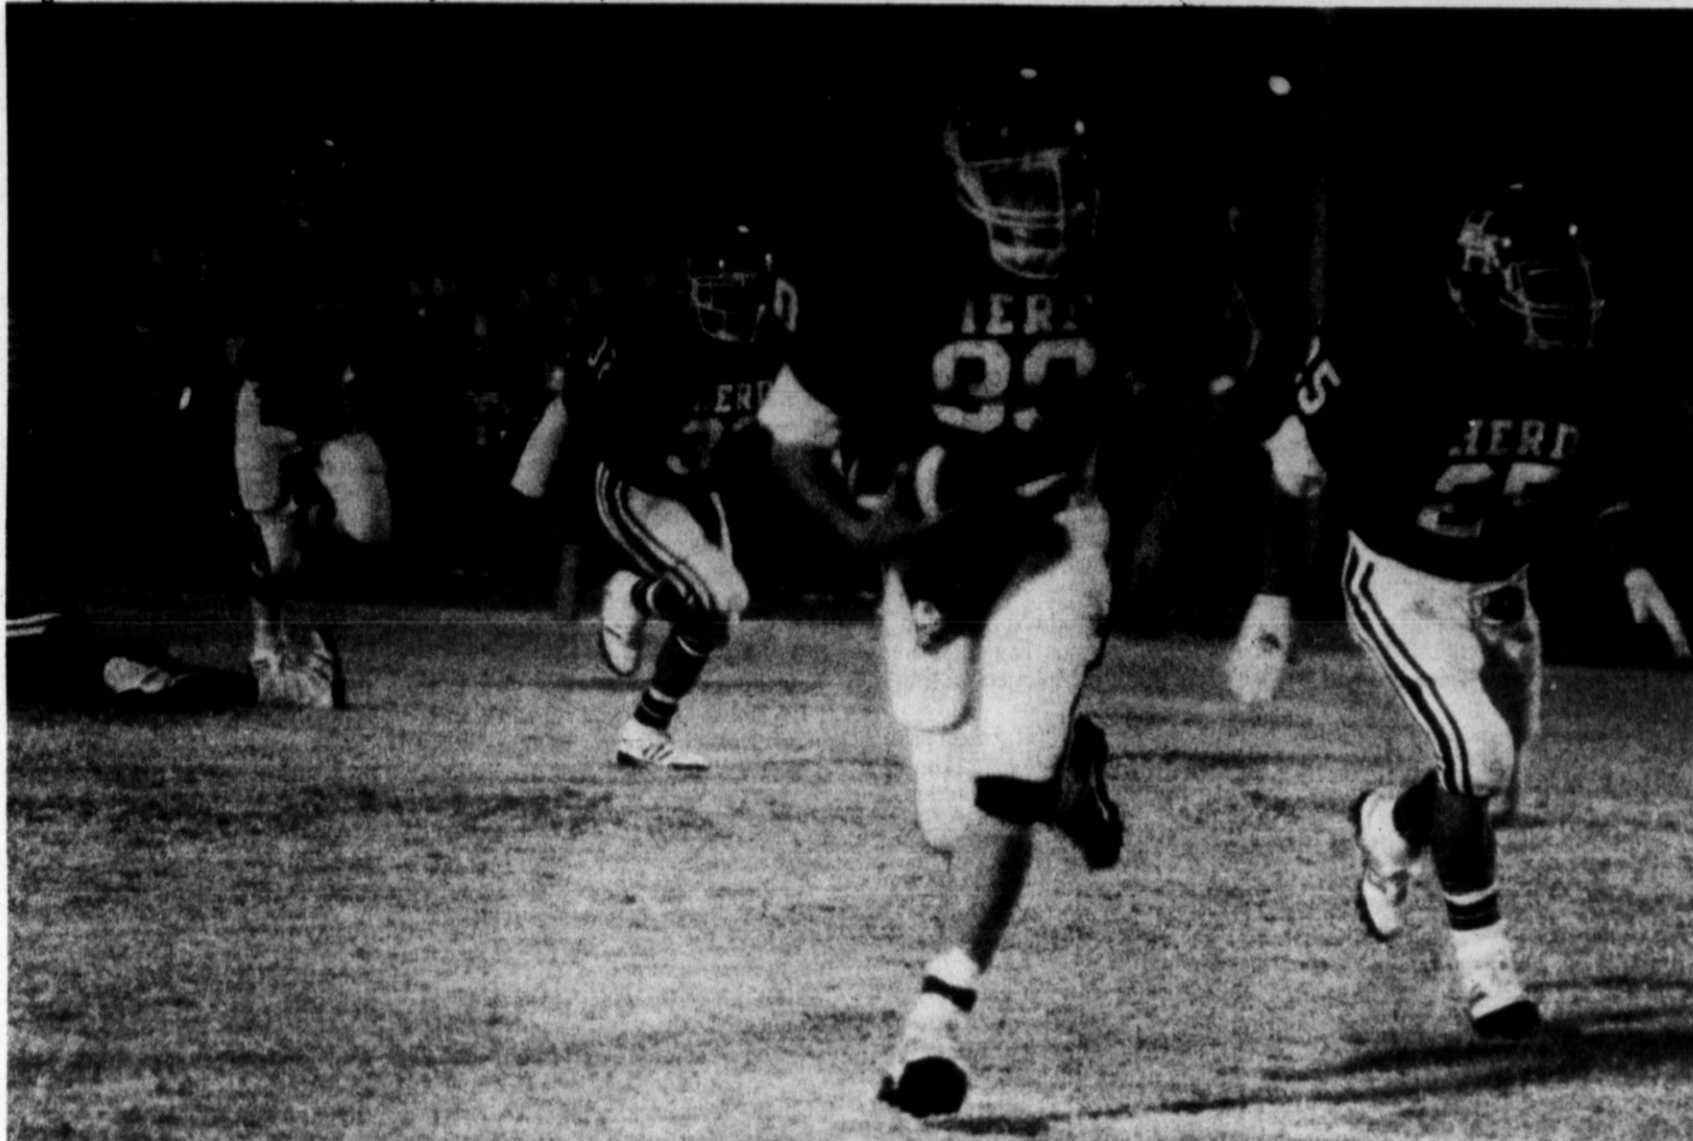

And The Agony Of Defeat

Borger defensive end Mat Robinson goes to the ground in disbelief over a roughing the kicker penalty called against him early in the fourth quarter. While the yellow flag lies lifeless on the ground, the "Go Herd" sign in the background tells the story of the night. Robinson ran into Whiteface punter Bobby Baker.

Interception By McCracken

Whiteface defensive back Rodney McCracken (80) heads downfield after intercepting a Borger pass late in the first half Friday night. McCracken returned the interception 38 yards to the Borger 37-yard line, but lost the handle on the ball and Borger recovered. Other Hereford players pictured here are Keith Herrera (25), Ricky Ruiz (32), and Robby Collier (3). (Brand photo by Shawn Cockrum)

HHS girls' basketball season to open

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Faced with a lack of experience on the Hereford High School varsity girls' basketball team, Coach Larry Sowers looks to the 1986-87 as a rebuilding year with lots of promising talent.

The HHS girls open the season at home Tuesday night against Tascosa. The varsity game is set for 7:45 p.m. at the Hereford High School gym, to be preceded by the junior varsity contest at 6 p.m.

Coach Sowers also takes the Hereford Whitefaces into a new district, District 1-4A, after being in District 3-5A for his first seven seasons as head girls' basketball coach here.

"We're really hurting for experience this year. We graduated nine seniors last year. It's nice to have had that many who stuck with the program, but when they graduate it puts you in a position to have to rebuild the program," Sowers said about beginning his eighth season in Hereford.

"Our district will be unreal this year. Levelland has three all-stars back and they're an obvious pick to repeat as state champions," he continues.

"I would have to say that Canyon is the only possible team to beat Levelland. I would rank Canyon in the top five in the state and Dumas in the top 10. All three of them have quality programs," Sowers adds.

He also noted that Pampa will be a challenging team to compete against in District 1-4A. "Pampa probably has better athletes than anybody else, but they don't have the tradition and the skill. Pampa won the state track championship last year, so that shows you what good athletes they have."

Hereford High School will begin the season with two senior athletes on the varsity, plus eight juniors and one sophomore.

Just two letter winners from last season are returning — 5-foot-7 senior forward Susie Kalka and 5-foot-3 junior guard Tricia Kahlich.

The other senior is 5-foot-10 post Katie Ramey. The other sophomores are: 5-foot-7 post Kathy Banner, 5-foot-4 forward Amy Coneway, 5-foot-5 forward Kamille Martin, 5-foot-7 post Jeanette Mumau, 5-foot-8 post Carolyn Rieves, 5-foot-1 guard Cindy Tice, and 5-foot-3 guard Whitney Whitaker.

The sophomore who begins the season with the varsity group is Carmen Brockman, a 6-foot-1 post player.

"I'm looking at first to have one senior starter, three juniors, and one sophomore," Coach Sowers noted.

About the inside game, he states, "I think we'll be stronger inside this year. Carmen has the potential to be perhaps our best post player we've ever had come through here. I think Katie will come along well as a backup center."

"Carmen's got the size and the talents. She just needs the playing time for maturity. She's the first real big post player we've ever had. She's a hard worker. At this point in her career, Carmen's bigger and more skilled than Cathy Bartels (who was 5-foot-10), who was our best post player here before."

"Carmen's one of those players we should be able to build around. She may not look like a varsity player for a while, but I think she will before we get too far into the season."

A strength for the HHS varsity at first should be the guards, as Sowers said: "Early in the season, our strength should be at the guard position, since Susan and Tricia started on the varsity last year."

Concerning the small post position, he said, "We've got three players at the small post position. Jeanette is the strongest of the group. Kathy playing there also, and she's the quickest of the three. Carolyn is the biggest of the three and also the best defensive player of the three."

"We'll run an offense that allows us to use a big forward or small post. It's an offense we hope will give us better movement and to take advantage of our strengths better," Sowers said about his offensive strategy.

After opening the season against Tascosa, a team ranked second in District 3-5A this year, the HHS girls play in the Big Spring tournament on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Their first-round opponent in that tournament will be Sweetwater, a team ranked in the preseason top five in the state in class 4A.

"We have several tournaments to get ready for district and we need it with this young team. We'll have 12 games before district. Last year we played just 19 games in the whole season," Sowers emphasizes.

Hereford has just two home games in its first 14. Other tournaments on the schedule are the Amarillo tournament on Nov. 28-29, and the Clayton, N.M., tournament on Dec. 4-6.

The Whitefaces play Dimmitt at home on Nov. 25, and at Clovis, N.M., on Dec. 1.

District 1-4A action begins on Dec. 9 for Hereford with a game at Levelland. Hereford then plays at Borger on Dec. 12 before playing four straight games at home.

Those four straight home contests are versus Dumas on Dec. 16, Frenship on Dec. 19, and Canyon on Dec. 22 in district games, and versus Clovis on Dec. 30 in a non-district game.

"If we can survive those first 14 games without getting too beat down or wore out physically, by the time we get to the 12th of December, we will have played half of our games," Sowers said.

"Hopefully, by the time we get to that part of the season, we'll be doing well. You'd like to play a team like Dumas at home in the first round."

"Of course, we're always optimistic going into the season. We feel we have the potential to be better this year than last year," he adds.

Discussing the girls' basketball program in recent years, how it relates to the HHS girls' athletic program overall, and what the future holds for varsity basketball, Sowers said, "We've gone through a kind of dark period, because we haven't really had enough good athletes to have a strong girls' team in most sports, including basketball."

"I think we're beginning to see some light at the end of the tunnel, and are turning the corner, and our girls' athletic program all the way around will start to pick up."

"The bad part about it is, we may not be good enough to get out of district. But if you get out of district, you would likely go all the way to state, because this is a very strong district."

"It's going to be tough, but I think we're going to be stronger in the years to come than in the past few years."

Sowers emphasizes to fans that some varsity games start at 6 p.m., others at 7 p.m., and a few others at different times.

Texas Crops Report

Freeze good for cotton

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Temperatures dipped to below freezing over western and northern areas of Texas at mid-week as the first major cold snap of the fall spread across the state.

The cold weather was what cotton farmers were waiting for in the plains, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The freezing weather should kill their crop to prepare it for harvesting, although a few farmers had already applied defoliants or desiccants to get the crop ready to harvest.

The past week was another slow one as far as harvest operations are concerned. Wet fields continued to hamper operations over much of the state, including sorghum harvesting in the plains, wheat harvesting in central and coastal areas and soybean harvesting along the Upper Coast.

Of course, most of the cotton crop still remains to be harvested in the plains, Carpenter noted.

Some sugar beet harvesting continues in the Panhandle and South Plains while sugarcane harvesting is active in the Rio Grande Valley.

Also, harvesting of fall vegetables continues in the Winter Garden of Southwest Texas and in the Valley, and light harvesting of oranges and grapefruit remains active. At the same time, some farmers are continuing to plant winter vegetables.

Early planted small grains are continuing to provide good grazing for livestock, but some planting and replanting continue in a few areas.

Hay supplies are plentiful as the winter feeding season approaches, Carpenter said. Livestock are in good shape across the state as forage conditions have been good to excellent since late summer.

PANHANDLE: Wet fields are continuing to stymie harvesting operations. A lot of sorghum remains to be harvested in addition to the cotton crop. Large numbers of stocker cattle continue to be put on wheat fields. Leaf rust and mosaic problems are evident in some fields.

Agricultural myths still springing up. Myth - 1) Most of the farm land is being bought by foreign buyers or being lost to urban development. Truth - Foreign ownership of farm land is less than 1% of total acreage. And, there are only 46.6 million acres of urban land while there are over 400 million acres of cropland. Myth - 2) The "family farm" is disappearing. Truth - Individuals or families own 87% of all U.S. farms. Most corporate farms are family operations. Myth - 3) All farmers are going broke. Truth - only one third of the US farmers are in serious financial trouble. One-third of commercial farmers have little or no debt while the remaining third's debt is manageable. Like most myths, agricultural myths are started and spread by those who lack first hand knowledge to know the truth.

Anvick takes ag post at Holly Sugar

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO., Roger W. Hill, Senior Vice President - Agriculture of Holly Sugar Corporation, has announced that Terry W. Anvick, agriculturist at the Sidney, Mont. factory has been transferred to Holly's Hereford factory in that position.

Anvick, a native of Sidney, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Anvick of Sidney. He graduated from high school in Sidney in 1976 and received a Bachelor of Science in Agriculture Production in 1981 from Montana State University at Bozeman.

He is an alumnus of Future Farmers of America and, prior to joining Holly, worked on his family's farm near Sidney. Terry belongs to the Loyal Order of the Moose in Sidney and was a member of the Board of Directors of Sidney Memorial Hospital.

Terry and his wife, Mary Jane, reside in Hereford with their 3-year-old son, Christopher, and their 3-month-old daughter, Katherine Marie.

Seminar on CRP set for Nov. 25

Land-owners involved in the current CRP with the Soil Conservation Service are invited to attend a seminar on Nov. 25 at the Hereford Community Center from 9:30 a.m. until noon.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. with coffee and doughnuts, courtesy of the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District, sponsor of the seminar.

At 9:30 a.m. Clark Kleuskens, Tierra Blanca SWCD board chairman and ASCS county committee chairman, will start the meeting.

Jaime Neepser, an SCS conservationist, is first on the speaker's agenda to review the specifications and modification for the CRP contract.

At 9:50 a.m., J.R. Bell, the Amarillo Area Range Conservationist, will discuss dead litter cover.

After a short break, the meeting resumes at 10:30 a.m. with a talk on CRP cost share documentation and payments by John Fuston of the ASCS.

At 10:45, Bell takes the podium again to discuss species, availability, and quality in planting crops.

From 11 a.m. until 11:20 a.m., Jack Lyons of DuPont Chemical and Dave Bumgarner of Monsanto will talk about products for use in dead litter and native grass stands.

From 11:20 until noon, Bob Perry, SCS district conservationist will conduct a question and answer session.

MRS. GEORGE DOUGLAS ROMING
...nee Annabeth Friemel

Friemel, Roming wedding vows exchanged Saturday

Wedding vows were exchanged by Annabeth Friemel of Pflugerville, Texas and George Douglas Roming of Round Rock, Texas in a mid-afternoon ceremony Saturday in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Officiating for the marriage was Father Joe Egan of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Friemel of Route 4, Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Ralph and Donna Roming of Austin.

Church altars were decorated with blue silk Dutch iris and blue silk mums adorned by baby's breath.

Kolleen McCathern served as maid of honor and Milton Charanza of Bay City was best man.

Bridesmaids included the bride's sisters, Mrs. Kurt Johnson of Carrollton, and Karen Friemel; the groom's sister, Mrs. Bradley Allen of Littlefield; and the bride's cousin, Krista Gerber of Dumas.

Groomsmen were Keith Meadows of Weatherford, John Young of Hale Center, Tony Dunkerly of Henrietta and Ned Polk of Belton.

Guests were escorted by the groom's brother-in-law, Bradley Allen of Littlefield; Todd Ellis of Muleshoe; and the bride's brothers, Barry and Randy Friemel.

The bride's cousins, Lisa and Jarrod Friemel, served as flower girl and ring bearer, respectively. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Galen Friemel.

Melanie Kritser vocalized "On Eagle's Wings", "Ave Maria" and "There is Love" accompanied by Cheryl Betzen.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory dress of re-embroidered alencon lace and taffeta fashioned with a high Victorian neckline and Renaissance sleeves. The fitted bodice featured a basque waistline, center-back keyhole and oversized bow at the back waistline. The semi-cathedral-length train of taffeta was hemmed with Venice lace.

She also wore a French alencon small brim hat accented with pencil edge ruffle tulle at the brim and beaded lace flower appliques. The pencil edge two-tiered veil with a pearl dotted pouf completed the hat.

She carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of ivory silk roses and mums with baby's breath.

She also wore her mother-in-law's gold and pearl earrings, and her mother's pearl rosary was entwined in the bridal bouquet.

Bridal attendants wore wedgewood blue taffeta tea-length dresses with fitted bodices and princess-styled waistlines. Each featured full elbow-length sleeves and a large bow at the back waistline. They carried longstemmed bouquets of blue silk roses, mums, tiny bell flowers and baby's breath tied with blue ribbon streamers.

Cookie Reyes invited guests to the reception held in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Mrs. Kirk Payne of Amarillo and Marilyn Osborn served cake and Mrs. George Aleman poured punch and coffee.

The main refreshment table was covered by a blue cloth and lace overlay and was centered by the three tiered bride's cake featuring a fountain at the center. A Precious Moments bride and groom figurine, a gift from the maid of honor, topped the cake.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the bride wore a khaki Gunne Sax dress with ivory lace collar and matching ivory belt and ivory Ropers.

The couple will make their home after Nov. 20 in Austin.

The bride, a 1983 graduate of Hereford High School, attended West Texas State University for two years and was a member of Chi Omega Fraternity. She now attends Austin Community College and is a word processor for the Texas Water Commission.

The bridegroom, originally from Bovina, is a 1984 graduate of Texas A&M University. He is now employed as an environmental specialist for Jones and Neuse Consulting Engineers, Inc.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gerber of Umbarger, Josephine Friemel of Canyon and Robert and Emmogene Calaway of Bovina.

Kriegshauser competes

The West Texas State University collegiate crops team won the Southwest Regional Collegiate Crops Contest held at Oklahoma State University Nov. 1. OSU placed second and Eastern Oklahoma State College placed third in the competition.

Coby Kriegshauser, the team alternate, placed tenth overall, ranking ninth in seed analysis, eleventh in identification, and thirteenth in commercial grading. Coby is a sophomore plant science major from Hereford.

The competition was in three phases: 1) identification of 200 specimens of plants, seeds, weeds, crops, or diseases; 2) seed analysis; and 3) grain grading (grains for commercial use). WTSU placed first in all three phases of the regional contest.

The team will not compete in the American Royal Collegiate Crops Contest in Kansas City, Tuesday, and the Chicago Board of Trade Contest, Nov. 22.

Slide presentation given on watercolor portraits

Young Homemakers of Texas, Hereford Chapter met Tuesday evening at La Plata Junior High School for their regular monthly meeting.

Guest speaker, Jena Rawley-Whitaker, gave an informative slide presentation on how she does her watercolor portraits.

Following the program, the business session was held at which time members discussed the state convention. The Young Homemakers of Texas voted to affiliate with FHA and Heroes Chapters of Texas. The Hereford chapter officially voted to dissolve and reorganize as Hereford Young Homemakers and to continue to grow on a local level.

The group also discussed the cookies they will be providing for the annual open house at Park Avenue Florist from 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

The next meeting will be Nov. 25 to prepare Thanksgiving care baskets and to distribute them in the community.

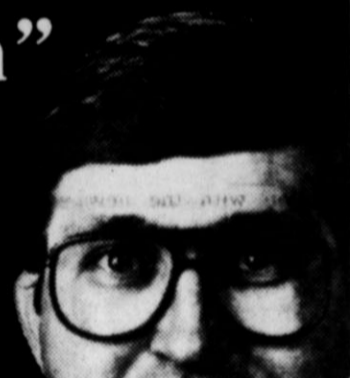

The Act of Habeas Corpus, one of the foundations of British law, went into effect in 1679. It provided that an accused person could not be committed to prison without appearing before a judge at the first opportunity, and penalized illegal imprisonment.

Oldest female veteran urges peace

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — A 104-year-old woman who is the nation's oldest female veteran has one piece of advice for the world's leaders on Veteran's Day: "Peace. Peace at any price."

"One people, we belong to one people," Lou Luhrman said in an interview at the Veteran's Administration hospital here.

Miss Luhrman, who reads The New York Times and the large-print edition of Reader's Digest regularly, said she was encouraged by the recent talks between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Iceland.

bit and ended up in Camp Lewis, Washington," where she stayed until her discharge in 1919.

"When the war was over they said for us to pack our bags and go on home."

Miss Luhrman returned to the San Francisco Bay area after the war and worked at Fabiola Hospital in Oakland until it closed in 1932. She then worked at the maternity ward at Peralta Hospital in Oakland.

"I think we are on the right track," she said recently. "But it will take a long time to get these two big countries together... It all has to be worked out. It takes so much time. It all takes so much time."

Records show that Miss Luhrman is the oldest female veteran, VA spokeswoman Holly Fletcher said. Jasper P. Garrison of Illinois is the oldest vet at 106.

Miss Luhrman was born Dec. 8, 1881, in Wiesbaden, Germany, and came with her family to the United States on a sailing ship two years later, when Chester A. Arthur was president.

After the United States entered World War I, Miss Luhrman joined the Army as a nurse when she was 36. "We traveled around quite a little and being able to put aside one's worries are key to living a long life. More important, she said, is that life be full.

"I hope people will think well of me," she said. "That's all I wish for... When you're gone, you're gone and there's no coming back. You all have to go sometime. Make the best of it."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Eggnog so thick you can scoop it

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I've tried your creamy eggnog recipe, and it's very good. But my aunt used to make an eggnog that was scooped up with a spoon — it was very fluffy and thick. Do you know how to make this type of eggnog? — ANNE

DEAR ANNE — A fluffy eggnog can be made easily by separating the eggs and folding the beaten egg white and whipped cream into the eggnog. Here's a luscious recipe that is the height of eggnoggy voluptuousness. The proportions are for 16 to 20 half-cup servings, enough for a great party!

Separate 6 eggs. Reserve the whites in a separate bowl. Beat together the 6 yolks, 1 quart of milk or light cream, ½ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla and, if desired, ¼ to 1 cup rum, brandy or whiskey.

Chill this mixture for three to four hours to allow the flavors to mellow and blend. Then, with an electric mixer, whip the reserved egg whites until stiff but not dry. In a separate bowl, whip 1 cup heavy cream until stiff. Fold the chilled eggnog mixture into the whipped cream, then gently fold the beaten egg whites into the cream mixture. Serve the eggnog immediately, ladling it into small cups and topping each serving with a sprinkling of freshly grated nutmeg.

Now that's my idea of eggnog heaven!

DEAR POLLY — I keep a needle with my spool of white thread and another with my spool of black. Each thread passes through the needle's eye and is knotted. All I do is cut off a pre-threaded length of white or black when needed. I have found this excellent for travel. — LM

Polly will send you a Polly Dollar ($1) if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peavee or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Ann Landers

Mammograms

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read the letter from "N.Y. Victim" the morning after I, too, had a mammogram, and I agree that the pain was excruciating. I would rather risk cancer than go through that experience again.—ORLANDO, FLA.

DEAR OR: Thanks for your comment. Here's another one from Lincoln, Neb.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your cancer surgeon consultant from Howard University made me furious. He said there would be "some discomfort" during the breast examination with the new equipment, but the clearer X-rays and lower dosages of radiation were well worth it. Oh, really? You can be sure a male invented that diabolical machine. I'd like to see the same thing used on men for early detection of testicular cancer.—STILL HURTING THREE DAYS LATER

DEAR HURTING: You weren't the only woman who suggested that form of retribution. Read on.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You were right on, Ann, when you said the agony suffered during the breast examination with the new equipment was due to a "lousy technician." I know because I had two such examinations within four days. (The film was defective and I had to return). The first time it was plain hell. I dug my fingernails into the palms of my hands so deep they nearly drew blood. When I learned I would have to return I very nearly said, "Nothing doing", but my husband insisted and offered to go with me. Well - the second examination was entirely different. A gentle and obviously skilled technician took over and it was nearly pain-free. F.J. CHARLOTTEVILLE

DEAR CHAR: Thanks for the support. The following comment is one that many women ought to pay attention to. It's from Maine:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother died from breast cancer a few months ago. She would have gladly suffered through breast examination every day for a year (even with a "lousy technician") if her life could have been spared. God, how she hated to die. I hope no woman will refuse to have a mammogram because she's afraid of a little momentary discomfort. It's a small price to pay for the additional years of life early detection might make possible.—PHILOSOPHICAL IN PORTLAND

And now a word from Ann Landers: I have read hundreds of letters from women on this subject and some said they almost passed out from the pain. Others said it was slightly uncomfortable for just a few minutes. My Chicago correspondents, who dominated the mail, said the mammograms they had taken at the Portes Cancer Center at 33 West Huron were PAINLESS. Maybe the technicians at Portes ought to open a training school.

Dr. Keith Berndtson, medical director of the center, said the time of the month could be a factor. Women with fibrous breasts should not have mammography just before their menstrual periods. But to say, "No more mammograms," because of a bad experience with an incompetent technician is sheer lunacy. Insist on another technician and go back in a year. You owe it to yourself and your family.

DEAR READERS: This is the best thing I've read all week. It is from the gifted pen of one of my favorite writers, Sydney Harris:

"One of the most difficult lessons for ambitious young people to learn is that when you try to make an impression, that is the impression you make. Those whose center of emotional gravity is deeply embedded are willing to wait quietly in line until they are discovered."

Got those wedding bell blues over cost...guest list...what to wear...and other details? Ann Landers' "New Bride's Guide" will help. For a copy, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Edwards, McCracken married Saturday

MRS. ROGER ALLEN MCCRACKEN
...nee Shelly Beth Edwards

Shelly Beth Edwards and Roger Allen McCracken were married Saturday afternoon in the First Church of the Nazarene with the Rev. Bob Huffaker of the church officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Susan Edwards of Hereford and Byron Edwards of McAllen. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Rick McCracken of Hereford.

Miniature lights were entwined into a 15-branch candelabrum flanked by two 15-branch spiral candelabra. Also, accenting the altar were baskets of green plants and a unity candle which was placed in a nosegay of greenery and baby's breath.

Melissa O'Rand served as maid of honor and the groom's brother, Rodney McCracken, was best man.

Kim Williams was bridesmaid and groomsmen were Joe Medrano. Escorting guests were Kyle Andrews, Brad Smith, Tim Long and Raymond Davis.

The bride's cousin, Brady Stapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stapp, was ring bearer. Lighting candles were the bride's brother, Jarrit Edwards, and the bride's cousin, Leslie Stapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stapp. Melissa Sims and Don Carl Tardy

Jr. sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "We Believe In Love" accompanied by Linda Davis.

Given in marriage by her brother, Brian Kieth Edwards, the bride was attired in a full-length ivory gown of chantilly lace designed with a beaded Queen Anne neckline and Venise motifs accented with seed pearls. It was also fashioned with a baque waistline and long lace Bishop sleeves.

The skirt consisted of multi-tiers of lace which swept into a chapel-length train.

The two-tiered fingertip-length veil of illusion was gathered onto a halo wreath of silk blossoms and leaves.

She carried a cascade of burgundy, mauve and white roses, miniature carnations and baby's breath arranged in a bed of greenery exchanged by white lace and ribbon streamers.

She also wore a single strand of pearls and matching earrings.

Bridal attendants wore tea-length mauve dresses of satin designed with the bodices draped with bows at the shoulders and basque waistlines. They carried arm bouquets of burgundy roses with mauve ribbons in a bed of fresh greenery and baby's breath. Cindy McCracken, the groom's sister, invited guests to register at the reception held in the church.

The bride's cake was served by Kristen Cassels and Julie Simons and the groom's cake was cut by Kaye Long.

Susan Brownlow and Wendy Morrison poured punch and coffee. Also, assisting in the houseparty were Holly Middleton and Jan Pickens.

The bride's three-tiered Victorian styled cake was trimmed with mauve roses and delicately piped string work. A cascading fountain was placed under the lower tier and fresh flowers adorned the fountain and base area. The cake was topped by a porcelain Precious Moments figurine.

The groom's deep chocolate cake was decorated with a boutonniere and the names of the couple.

Wedding tables were decorated with burgundy and white roses, miniature carnations and baby's breath.

The groom's table was adorned with brass candelabra with a burgundy candle encircled by burgundy and mauve flowers. Leaving for points of interest in New Mexico, the bride wore a pastel blue linen dress with a square neckline and button trim shoulder straps.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stapp, Leslie and Brad Stapp of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Bill McCracken and son, Mr. and Mrs. David McCracken and children, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kennison and family, all of Fort Morgan, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. John Duncan and family of Bennett, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Guard of Snyder; and Mr. and Mrs. Walt Schedwitz of Greely, Colo.

Grandparents are former Hereford resident, Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Close, now of Hide-Way Lake. Great-grandmother is Mrs. H.A. Close of Hereford.

Toothbrush

According to The Second World Almanac Book of Inventions, the toothbrush first appeared in a Chinese painting from the late 15th century. The first nylon toothbrush was Doctor West's Miracle toothbrush, manufactured by Du Pont de Nemours in 1938. The first electric toothbrush was patented in 1908, but did not become popular until the 1930s.

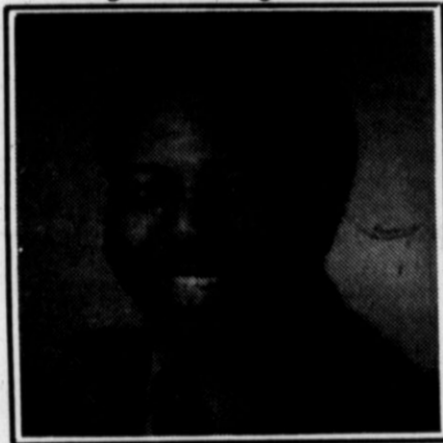

Canada's Yukon Territory covers 186,660 square miles.

The name Kentucky, some believe, comes from the Cherokee word for "prairie" or "barren ground."

Association presents top award

Donald Kamp Blumenthal II, Ph.D., received the American Heart Association's highest research honor, the Lyndon Baines Johnson Award.

In addition to the LBJ Award, Blumenthal receives $50,000 for two years for his research project. To earn the award, the assistant professor from The University of Texas Health Center at Tyler received the highest ranking of scientific merit for his research application from the AHA's Central Research Review Committee.

Blumenthal hopes to find out how calcium and a protein known as calmodulin act at the molecular level. Both play a part in controlling muscle contraction and burning of carbohydrates. He will focus on phosphorylase kinase, an enzyme which helps break down carbohydrates in the cardiovascular system. These investigations will lay groundwork for future studies to treat and prevent cardiovascular diseases such as high blood pressure. Blumenthal received his doctoral degree in 1980 from the University of California at San Diego.

Blumenthal's project is one of 113 research projects funded by the Texas Affiliate in 1986-87. The projects, totaling more than $2 million, are being conducted at 16 medical and academic centers in 10 Texas cities. Blumenthal's wife, Kathleen S. Callahan, Ph.D., also received a two-year research grant from the Heart Association.

The Texas Affiliate of the AA, funds projects to support the work of young researchers who demonstrate expertise in the field of cardiovascular research. The AHA spends 37 cents of every dollar it raises on research.

The AHA continues to prevent early death and disability from heart disease and stroke through research, community service, and public and professional education programs. For more information about these programs and services, contact the American Heart Association in your community, listed in the White Pages of your telephone directory.

THE NUTCRACKER

Classic to be performed

The Lone Star Ballet will present the Christmas favorite, "The Nutcracker", on Dec. 12 and 13 at 8 p.m. Dec. 13 and 14 at 3 p.m. at the Amarillo Civic Center auditorium.

The price of tickets run from $6 to $18. They are now on sale either by mail to Lone Star Ballet, Box 1133, Amarillo, Texas 79105, or at the Ballet office, 1000 Polk St.

Groups of 10 or more receive a 10 percent discount and college and university students may purchase "best seat available" at the door for $5 with student identification.

Sponsor of the performance is the Don and Sybil Harrington Foundation. This grant will also provide the Amarillo Symphony Orchestra.

Past Harrington Foundation Grants have included the exquisite sets designed by Jim Finger. These are considered by many to be the most outstanding such sets in the entire state of Texas.

The Lone Star Ballet Guild will host a party at the Art Center following the opening night performance. For additional ticket or party information, please call the Ballet office 806-372-2463.

YMCA offers variety of classes

By DEBE GRAVES

For nearly 135 years, the YMCA has worked toward goals based on Christian concepts of self worth, faith, responsibility, leadership and appreciation of the worth of all persons.

Initially the YMCA served as an alternative to "wicked life on the streets" for young men flocking to the cities during the 1850's. At the YMCA facility these men could find prayer meetings, Bible classes, newspapers, books and help in finding a job.

Soon exercise and gymnastics were added to YMCA activities as diversions for young businessmen. By 1885, the YMCA provided swimming pools as recreation and by the early 1900's YMCA's provided cheap living quarters for would be entrepreneurs.

During these early years games such as basketball and volleyball were conceived by YMCA staffers. The YMCA is also responsible for the birth of Boy Scouts, Camp Fire and the USO; and it served as the model on which organizations such as the Peace Corp were built.

Today, through over 2,000 facilities nationwide, the YMCA serves annually over 13 million people. YMCA's continue to pursue their founding purpose with programs that span the spectrum of ages, sexes, races, creeds abilities and incomes.

The Hereford and vicinity YMCA will celebrate its second year in its new quarter of a million dollar facility in February of 1987. A United Way Agency, the Hereford YMCA relies on membership fees and charges for most of its income.

The promotion of health and fitness through the YMCA is considered a charitable activity. A 1973 survey by the President's Council on Physical Fitness indicates adult Americans had three primary sources of fitness information: the federal government, the American Medical Association, and the YMCA. Long before fitness became fashionable the YMCA was providing programs to millions of Americans.

FITNESS

Hereford YMCA Fitness Director, Susan Marnell, emphasizes, "Our fitness programs are taught by qualified instructors and are geared to the specific needs of the individual."

The fitness programs include:
6:15 a.m. Early Bird - Start-out
9:00 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.- Body Works and Fitness Plus
9:00 a.m. & 6:30 p.m. Watercise and Start Out Fitness
12:10 - Noon-works 30 min. Start-Out

Held on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

These programs are monthly classes and cost is $12.50 per member, $25.00 non-members.

Marnell announces, "Due to public request we are adding a Saturday fitness class at 10:00 a.m."

Start-Out Fitness is for the beginner or low level student. The routines are easy and low impact.

Body works combines aerobic exercise principles with use of hydraulic weight machines, cardiovascular work and stretching.

Fitness Plus is a high level class which increases stamina, develops flexibility and tones muscle.

Watercise consists of vigorous movements with music using water resistance. This class is held in the exercise pool and is for non-swimmers as well as for swimmers.

YMCA specialty classes include: Healthy Back which is designed for those who suffer low back discomfort.

Oversize Fitness for those 20 or more pounds overweight. This class consists of fun, easy, movements with no jumping or jogging.

Pre and Post Natal class is for newly expecting and "just delivered" mothers; it requires a Doctor's release and does not take the place of childbirth classes. Taught by a registered nurse, mothers learn flexibility exercises geared to make delivery easier and for a rapid return to normal fitness levels following childbirth.

Specialty classes are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays, fees and times vary.

PROGRAMS

Jerry Brock, Programs Director for the Hereford YMCA estimates, "Approximately 2,000 local children a year participate in our youth programs."

Youth programs include:
Flag football for first through sixth grade boys.

Basketball for boys and girls first through sixth grade

Gymnastics for children age three and older

Girls volleyball for first through sixth grades

Wrestling for boys first grade through high school develops character and strength.

High school basketball for those students who enjoy challenge but are not on the high school team.

Youth Swim Lessons for ages two and up taught with low teacher student ratios.

Racquetball for youngsters and adults, private lessons, league play and tournaments are headed up by YMCA staff.

Specialties in the youth program include "Summer Adventure" and "Fun Trips". Headed by Brock, children participate in fun and exciting activities such as trips to Wonderland Park, supervised games, arts and crafts.

Brock stresses "In YMCA sports every child plays during every game," he adds, "Winning is fun but we center our emphasis on team play, building character and establishing values."

Brock notes, "Sometimes spectators get a little carried away and make comments and demands which would compromise the goals we have for these youth programs but we believe the programs are for the kids and winning is not the most important goal."

Girls volleyball just ended and flag football will be finished within two weeks. Brock gives this reminder, "The wrestling program began recently with continuous enrollment through January 1st."

Donnie Fangman coaches the YMCA wrestling program, fees are $8.00 per month for YMCA members and $10.00 per month for non-members.

Gymnastics coach is Terri Martin and Kung Fu coach is Marcial Lemus; both programs are continuous enrollment.

Fees for YMCA youth programs vary.

"Volunteers are the foundation of the youth sports program," says Brock. "The quality of adult leadership helps develop self confidence and self respect and an appreciation of the child's own worth as an individual."

Brock feels that the criteria for the youth programs is Fun., "The programs are evaluated by the enjoyment each child feels. Fun makes the other goals possible."

ADULT PROGRAMS

Brock also oversees adult programs which include volleyball, mens and co-ed softball and racquetball.

Special events for adults are the Service Club Olympics, YMCA Closed Tennis Tournament and 10K and 2 mile Fun Run.

Brock states, "In adult programs we let the participants set their own goals and work toward them. The YMCA provides programs and atmosphere so that participants can grow, clarify personal values, get along with others, appreciate diversity, become better leaders and supporters, develop skills and have fun in Christian fellowship."

MEMBERSHIP

The Hereford YMCA offers a variety of different memberships including youth, adult, family and corporate. Sr. Citizens and handicapped individuals are offered a 50 percent discount on memberships. There are a limited number of youth program scholarships available. For more information contact the Hereford YMCA at 364-6990.

Smokeout set Thursday

The Great American Smokeout, sponsored each year by the American Cancer Society, is scheduled for Thursday. The annual observance is an upbeat, good-natured effort to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours.

The goal of the 1986 Great American Smokeout is to get at least one in every five smokers to give up cigarettes from midnight to midnight on Thursday.

Larry Hagman, national chairman for the 1986 Great American Smokeout, demonstrates his commitment to the nonsmoking cause by returning to head up the event for the sixth consecutive year. Last year, Hagman brought national attention to the smoking problems of women and nurses by "adopting" a California nurse for the day, encouraging her not to smoke.

The American Cancer Society offers some quitting tips for the smoker.

Throw out all cigarettes by breaking them in half and wetting them down. Clean out all ashtrays in your home, office, or car and put them away. Discard matches; hide lighters, or give them away.

When the urge to smoke hits, take a deep breath. Hold it a second, then release it very, very slowly. Taking deep, rhythmic breaths is similar to smoking, only you'll inhale clean air, not poisonous gases.

Exercise to help relieve tension. Climb stairs rather than take the elevator, park the car a block or two from your destination and walk the rest of the way. At home, practice touching your toes, jog in place, do jumping jacks.

When tempted to reach for a cigarette, think of a negative image about smoking. Select your worst memory connected with the habit: the time you burned a hole in your suit or when you were left completely breathless running for a bus that pulled away. Imagine this experience for 15 seconds whenever the urge occurs.

Reward yourself with oral substitutes in the same way you may have used cigarettes. Good examples: sugarless gum, lemon drops, pumpkin or sunflower seeds, apple slices, carrot sticks, unbuttered popcorn and stick cinnamon.

Eat three or more small meals. This maintains constant blood sugar levels, thus helping to prevent urges to smoke. Avoid sugar-laden foods and spicy items that can trigger a desire for cigarettes.

Scramble up your day and change habits connected with smoking. Drive a different route to work; eat lunch in a new place; leave the "scene of an urge." At home, avoid your "smoking chair" after dinner, reach for gum rather than a cigarette when answering the phone.

Cleanse your body of nicotine. Drink liquids-lots of them. Water (6-8 glasses a day), herbal teas, fruit juices and caffeine-free soft drinks all fit the bill. Pass up coffee, caffeinated soft drinks and alcohol, as they can increase your urge to smoke.

Keep your hands - and mind - busy. Work on a crossword puzzle, knit a sweater, balance your checkbook, fix something around the house, shampoo the dog.

'Don't Drink the Water' opening Tuesday in Amarillo

The Woody Allen comedy "Don't Drink the Water" is opening Tuesday at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre in Amarillo.

Reservations may be made by calling (806) 358-7486.

This hilarious comedy portraying an American tourist with his family on vacation behind the iron curtain run into a problem when the father gets too free with his camera on this foreign soil. While fleeing from Russian agents, they seek refuge in the American Embassy and there the fun begins.

Nicholas Shaffer of Los Angeles will be playing the role of Axel Magee. Shaffer has been seen on Television's "Hill Street Blues," "St. Elsewhere," "Cagney and Lacey" and has a recurring role on "General Hospital."

Vinson Massif, at 16,864 feet, is the tallest peak in Antarctica.

DR. GOTT Aging's effect on bypass surgery

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — One year ago, I had a quadruple heart bypass. If one, two or even three of the bypass arteries become blocked, will the blood supply continue through the remaining artery with little or no effect?

DEAR READER — No, it wouldn't. The heart needs circulation from all of its arteries in order to function normally. You had surgery to bypass arterial obstruction that prevented oxygen from reaching heart muscle. One open artery is not enough to do the job.

Unfortunately, the aging process affects all of us, whether or not we have had bypass surgery. We can do certain things — such as exercise, reduce blood cholesterol and discontinue smoking — to retard the rate of blood-vessel aging.

But the aging process is inexorable, and bypass patients often show progressive narrowing of bypass segments. Therefore, it is important after surgery (as it is before) to change one's lifestyle to moderate risk factors. Successful surgery is far from a guarantee that coronary artery disease can be avoided. The bypass patient is simply given a better quality of life; he must use his remaining time prudently. That means taking good care of himself and using medicine as needed.

Bypasses tend to close with time. Although the aging process cannot be avoided bypass surgery may give heart patients a second chance to reduce the factors that accelerate coronary artery disease.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have two infections in my nose: E. coli and klebsiella. Antibiotics and sulfa drugs have not helped. The otorhinolaryngologists cannot help either. What's the next step?

DEAR READER — For antibiotics to be effective against infections, the drugs must be tailored to the bacteria. Your doctor already knows which microorganisms are causing your infection. The next step is to perform sensitivity studies to identify which drugs will knock out the bacteria. Then you can be given a specific antidote and, in theory, the infection should clear up.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've been trying to get pregnant for a year, with no luck. Could my history of urinary-tract infections be the problem? I'm 20.

DEAR READER — Urinary-tract infections do not commonly affect fertility. However, some venereal diseases — like gonorrhea — can infect both the urinary and reproductive tracts, causing urinary symptoms and sterility. Although this might not be true in your case, see a gynecologist to identify the reason you are having trouble becoming pregnant.

DEAR DR. GOTT — How does a urologist examine a man for prostate problems?

DEAR READER — The prostate gland, the organ that produces most of the seminal fluid, wraps around the urethra (the tube leading from the bladder) and lies close to the rectum. Therefore, doctors examine the gland either externally or internally.

By performing a rectal examination, a physician can feel most of the prostate and can tell if it is small or large, symmetrical or swollen, bumpy or smooth, hard or firm. This procedure is simple, safe, slightly unpleasant, and gives an enormous amount of information. It should be a required part of an examination of any man over age 40.

The internal prostatic examination is more complicated, expensive and uncomfortable. It should be performed only by a qualified urologist and is usually done under anesthesia. A lighted tube is passed up the urethra. The surgeon then looks to see if the prostate gland is compressing the urethra. The technique is called cystoscopy ("cysto" means bladder), because the urologist usually examines the bladder as well as the prostate.

Ordinarily, a patient's report of symptoms and the rectal exam are sufficient to enable a physician to decide whether a urological consultation (with or without cystoscopy) is warranted. If there are symptoms or if the prostate feels abnormal, the doctor usually will refer the case to a urologist who will then re-evaluate for the purpose of treating.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report on THE PROSTATE GLAND.

Layman, Sampley exchange nuptials

Wedding vows were exchanged by Lisa Renee Layman and Shawn Aaron Sampley, both of Lubbock, in an early evening ceremony Saturday at Oakwood Methodist Church in Lubbock.

Officiating for the wedding was Terry Jones of Slide Baptist Church in Lubbock.

The bride is the daughter of R.L. and Martha Layman of 807 Baltimore and the bridegroom is the son of Dottie Sampley of Big Spring and Edward Sampley of Lubbock.

The front altar was decorated by an arch candelabrum flanked by two spiral candelabra accented with greenery and peach flowers. The unity candle, a gift from the groom's mother, was placed in a bed of peach flowers. Pews were marked by peacock feathers and peach bows.

Holly Drinnon of Elk City, Okla., served her sister as matron of honor and the groom's father was best man.

Bridesmaids included Kasi Clark and Jana Sledge, both of Lubbock, and Sharla Sharry of Eakly, Okla. Groomsmen were Jeff Terry, Randall Durrett and Charles Hendrix, all of Lubbock.

Guests were escorted by Danny Pevehouse, Michel Myers, Alan Hendrix, Rhea Cooper, Lance Sampley and Trent Layman.

Lighting candles were the bride's brother, Trent Layman, and the groom's sister, Dawn Sampley.

Judy Thomason and Tony Phillips sang "The Wedding Song" and "I Wish You Jesus" accompanied by Melva Flournoy playing the organ and Judy Thomason, pianist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a white bridal gown designed and made by her mother. It featured a sweetheart neckline and the fitted bodice was overlaid with alencon lace. The straight skirt was attached to a drop waist. The long illusion sleeves were fashioned with lace and pearl accents as was the neckline and chapel-length train with lace trim.

The fingertip length illusion veil was attached to a delicately designed wreath of white silk flowers and pearl accents.

She carried a bouquet of white silk rose buds, and peach baby's breath arranged on a lace base adorned by silk ivy leaves.

She wore a pearl and diamond drop pendant necklace which was given to her by the groom.

Bridal attendants wore teal moire taffeta tea-length dresses fashioned with fitted bodies, rounded necklines and box pleated sleeves. Their shoes were of teal satin.

Jenny Hendrix invited guests to register at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Kim Sims presided at the bride's table and Sheryl Cooper at the groom's table.

Coffee was poured by Suzy Pevehouse and punch was ladled by Amy Lee. Others assisting in the houseparty included Dean Bradley, Margaret Ann Durham, Margaret Lomenick, Jewel Blevins and Francis Lusk.

A white cloth and lace overlay covered the bride's table which was decorated by silver candelabra with peach colored tapers and the bride's bouquet. The focal point was a three-tiered white cake accented by peach blossoms and topped with a Precious Moments bride and groom figurine.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, the bride wore a navy blue wool and silk blend jacket and white and navy dirndl skirt with a white silk blouse, all made and designed by the bride's mother. To complete the ensemble, she wore navy accessories.

The couple will make their home at 1347 C. 65th Drive in Lubbock.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School in 1982 and attended Angelo State University and Texas Tech University. She is currently employed by Furr's Inc. as a secretary to the chief accountant.

The bridegroom graduated from Cooper High School in 1982 and is employed by Plains Leather Co. as a sales representative.

Out-of-town family members include a grandmother, Mrs. J.W. Thomas of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Thomas, all of Arlington; Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Thomas of Eakly, Okla.; and Terry Drinnon and Bea of Elk City, Okla.

Brown honored by Eastern Star chapter

Clara Brown was honored for 50 years in Eastern Star Tuesday when members met in regular session in the Masonic Hall.

Mrs. Brown was presented with a 50-year pin and certificate. She was initiated in Santa Rosa, N.M. in 1936 in Sunshine Chapter No. 44 while she was attending college in Albuquerque, N.M.

After moving to Hereford in 1943, Brown was instrumental in getting Rainbow Girls started with 60 girls. She was on the first advisory board and served 14 years, intermittently. In 1971, she served as worthy matron of Eastern Star.

Ludie Greeson, worthy matron, gave a report on the Grand Chapter meeting in Houston Oct. 17-18.

Beverly Brooke was recognized for having been appointed District II, Sec. 3 chairman of the Seeds of Kindness Committee at Grand Chapter, and Audrey Rusher for being a member of the Appleton committee. Courtney Brooke was recognized as being named chairman of District II Rob Morris committee at Grand Chapter.

The next regular meeting will be Dec. 9 with a gift exchange. A salad supper on Dec. 10 will precede the School of Instruction Dec. 11. Gifts for the Eastern Star Home may be brought to the Dec. 9 meeting.

Refreshments were served by Margaret Bell and Dottie and Vernon Darden.

Central African Republic

Various Bantu tribes migrated for centuries through what is now the Central African Republic. The French finally took control in the late 19th century, when the region was named Ubangi-Shari. Complete independence was granted in 1960. All political parties were quickly dissolved and the country became a center for Chinese influence in Africa.

Salad supper held at Community Center

The Delta Xi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International recently began the year with a salad supper in the banquet room of the Community Center.

Susana Jackson, the chapter's scholarship recipient, was the guest speaker. She is a senior education major at West Texas State University. The Hereford High School graduate is currently serving as secretary of the Student Education Association and working in the gifted and talented program on the WT campus.

A special tribute to Lucile Hughes was given by Della Stagner. She had been a member of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International since 1947. She had been a member of Delta Xi since 1976.

An Area XI Workshop was held in Canyon for new officers and committee chairmen. Carole McGilvary, Delta Xi president, commented the 14 members who attended. Carolyn Larrison, Alpha State (Texas) president, presented McGilvary a state certificate for Delta Xi's newsletter.

During the November meeting members were reminded of the right and responsibility to vote. Treasure Brasure, physics professor from WTSU, spoke on programs effecting the educational system.

Delta Xi members are reminded to get their handcrafts or other items ready for the Dec. 1 meeting. A silent auction will be held during the meeting at the Community Center Lounge. The time is set at 7 p.m.

Attorney turns Hollywood producer

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — It's a long way from Corpus Christi to Hollywood. For Harvey Grossman, the trip took more than 40 years.

"I saw my first movie when I was 2 years old," Grossman said. "My sister took me to see 'Pinocchio,' and I made her take me back every day to see it."

Many people fantasize about pulling up roots and running off to Hollywood. But Harvey Grossman is different — he actually did it.

"The time came when I decided that I really had to do it, or forget about it," Grossman said. "And I wanted to do it so badly that I think the decision was predetermined."

That decision led him from a secure life in Corpus Christi into the wild world of Hollywood. At an age when most people consider it too late, the 48-year-old Grossman has started over as a movie producer.

"This wasn't a midlife crisis," Grossman said. "This was something I had been thinking about for a long time. It was a midlife decision, but I didn't think of it as a crisis."

Ten years ago, Grossman had carved his niche as a trial attorney and was venturing into the middle of Corpus Christi's political arena.

From the start, he was Corpus Christi's local-boy-made-good.

A basketball standout at Ray High School in the mid-1950s, Grossman left South Texas after graduation and began compiling an impressive educational resume. He received diplomas from Princeton University, Harvard Law School and the London School of Economics.

With all that under his belt, he returned home to Corpus Christi in 1969 to set up his law practice. He later began dabbling in politics, and in 1978 was elected the Nueces County Democratic chairman.

To many people, that would be enough success for a lifetime. But Harvey Grossman wasn't satisfied.

"Here, the rest of my life was clearly laid out," Grossman remembers. "I was established in what I was doing. There wasn't a sense of struggling to make my mark."

Business, law and politics were fine, Grossman said. But his real love had always been the movies.

"I had been thinking about the movie business for a very long time. I've been just crazy about movies my whole life."

"I was waiting for what seemed the right time to make a break," Grossman continued. "After some time passed, I realized there never could be an ideal time to make that kind of transition."

As his resume indicates, Harvey Grossman is not a stupid man; he knew the risk he was taking. His friends and family were supportive, if somewhat skeptical.

"They were saying, 'Look, if anybody can do it, you can. But there are a lot of able, talented people who don't make it because the industry is so tremendously competitive,'" Grossman said. "I decided I had to do it, or quit thinking about it. And the answer was, 'Do it.'"

Grossman headed for Hollywood and enrolled in the prestigious graduate film program at the University of Southern California. He did not fit the mold as a typical film student.

"The age range was from 25 to me," Grossman said with a smile. "I had less actual knowledge of the making of movies than anyone else in the program," Grossman said. "I felt a little bit like a fish out of water for the first few weeks and wondered if I had made a mistake."

But the lawyer-turned-film student toughed it out with the rest of the, uh, kids. At the end of the two-year stint, Grossman announced proudly, he was the top student in the program.

"With the possible exception of some time I spent on a construction crew, it was probably physically the most difficult thing I've ever done," Grossman said about his time spent at USC. "We never got any sleep for two years."

Despite the age factor, Grossman did have some advantages when he went to Hollywood. Not only did he know people in the business, he was related to them.

Grossman grinned. "I'm related to Steven Spielberg's best friend," he said.

Spielberg's "best friend" is Grossman's cousin — Sidney Sheinberg. Sheinberg is the president of Universal Pictures' parent company, MCA. And local businessman Mel Klein — founder of one of Hollywood's major independent movie companies — is Grossman's cousin by marriage.

"The person who really encouraged me was my cousin Sid Sheinberg," Grossman said. "His attitude was, 'It's unusual for someone your age to decide to start in the movie business. But if that's what you really want to do, come on.'"

Grossman, after graduating in 1985, has spent the last year tying up loose ends of personal business in Corpus Christi. He now is ready to start rolling as a movie producer.

"The key for a producer in the movie business is finding or creating the movie property you want to develop into a feature film," Grossman said.

Grossman said he keeps busy reading scripts and story ideas and looking for projects.

"I like the idea of having control to shape the project from the very beginning," Grossman said.

Grossman insists he's found a profession that he truly enjoys — despite the fact that he found it rather late in life.

Grossman said he misses the family and friends he left behind in Texas. But are there any regrets about leaving Corpus Christi and "going Hollywood?"

"Regrets? Let me think about that one for a minute," Grossman paused for a moment and looked down at the floor. "Yeah," he said finally with a smile. "If I had to do it over again, I'd have done it sooner."

ORTENCIA ARIAS, JOE MENDEZ III

Couple to wed

Ortencia Arias of Friona and Joe Mendez III of Hereford plan to exchange wedding vows Dec. 6 in San Jose Catholic Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Ray and Trini Arias of Friona and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Joe and Nevolena Mendez of 315 S. 25 Mile Ave.

Miss Arias graduated from Hereford High School in 1985 where she was actively involved in the Distributive Education program. She is currently employed at Save 'n' Gain.

Mendez graduated from Hereford High School in 1984.

Artist gives program

Gary Ward, an artist who lives in Canyon, gave a demonstration of painting with pastels for the Hereford Fine Arts Association at their November meeting.

The club's Christmas party will be a catered dinner and gift exchange at the Community Center Dec. 9.

On Feb. 28 at Texas Gallery, there will be a club-sponsored workshop in oil painting conducted by Lawanda Calton of Portales, N.M. The Club will pay one-half of the fee for the workshop for any member who wants to participate. Other who are interested in attending should call

The Texas gallery. Rita Simon's name was drawn for the gift certificate for dinner out for two.

An assortment of cheese, crackers, sweets and coffee were prepared by hostesses, Frances Frazier and Dorothy Mayfield of Dimmitt.

Members present were Carmen Angel, Jean Lyles, Linda Minchew, Jolene Bledsoe, Norma Hendon, Melba Dillard, Suzy Wall, Shirley Wyssmann, Rita Simon, Cindy Walker and Vinita Wear. Don Walser was a guest.

Childhood treasurers on display at museum

America's favorite dolls will be on exhibit in "Childhood Treasurers," opening Sunday, Nov. 23 at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, in Canyon.

Forty very special, very collectible dolls will span over 150 years of dolls in America, from 1830 to the present, according to Curator of Textiles JoAnne Arasim, who curated the show.

The dolls come from the Museum's collections and from a number of doll collectors in Amarillo.

A child's treasured doll could be a sophisticated, delicate Madame Alexander creation, or it could be a cuddly vinyl baby doll.

Many of the dolls on exhibit were chosen for their sheer beauty, as well as for their historical significance, she said. For instance, there are a number of turn-of-the-century dolls whose parts are of bisque, an unglazed china used in many European dolls of the nineteenth century.

Another part of the exhibit takes an "evolutionary" theme. "We're using Shirley Temple dolls to illustrate how one kind of doll changed over 50 years."

Another theme in the doll show is represented by "advertising" dolls produced by manufacturers of consumer goods. "Campbell Kids" dolls were made for the soup company, "Gerber Babies" were distributed by the baby food company, and "Buddy Lee" was made for Lee Jeans.

Lone Star Study Club meets for book review

Members of the Lone Star Study Club met Tuesday in the home of Margaret Ann Durham for a book review and a regular business session.

Verna Sowell, president, called the meeting to order with members repeating the collect. It was voted to give a donation to the Golden Spread Foster Parent Association.

Members were reminded that the next meeting will be a Christmas party Dec. 9 in the home of Ursalee Jacobsen. Gifts will be exchanged.

In keeping with this year's theme, "This Is the Year", Ruby Stevenson reviewed the book "Texas" by James A. Michener. In a very interesting way, she wove the theme of the book through the lives of fictional characters ending with the characters who helped develop Texas into a state.

Refreshments of pumpkin pie topped with cream, nuts, coffee and hot juice were served to a guest, Mrs. James Durham of Brenham. Members present included Juanita Boynton, Oneita Davidson, Bertha Dettmann, Wilma Goettsch, Hilda Havens, Ursalee Jacobsen, Bibby Morgan, Lucile Naylor, Naoma Spann, Grace Tinnin, Winnie Wisemarf, Ruth Womble and Ella Higgins.

Bride Honored

Mrs. Douglas Petterson of Happy was recently honored with a post-nuptial bridal shower in the home of Mrs. Wendel Clark of Hereford. The bride is the former Kari Robinson. Receiving guests with the honoree were (from left) her grandmother, Zella Mae Crump of Hereford; the groom's mother, Mrs. Larry Petterson of Happy; and the bride's aunt, Mrs. Edmond Crump of Ralls, Texas.

University opens research center

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — Lining two shelves of a small college library here are books that tell of unspeakable horror; 200 volumes that make up a collection for research of the Nazi Holocaust.

The collection, dedicated in memory of a Dallas businessman who studied the Holocaust while working on his bachelor's and master's degrees in his 60s, includes first-person accounts of death camp survivors, profiles of Nazi officials and insights into German politics.

The works are available for exploring the story of the extermination of 6 million people, mostly Jews, as part of Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler's "Final Solution" to purify the German people.

The importance of the center is that for the first time, not only in the Dallas and Fort Worth area but in the entire Southwest, we have a serious academic center for the research and study of the Holocaust," said Mark Briskman, director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in Dallas.

The collection opens Sunday at the University of Texas at Dallas campus in this suburban city.

Each of the 200 volumes has a bookplate identifying it as part of the Arnold A. Jaffe Holocaust Collection.

Jaffe died last January at the age of 72.

In his memory, Jaffe's son gave the school $10,000 to begin the collection.

"My father felt it was important that people be aware of what happened from 1933 to 1945," said Michael Jaffe, an attorney in Washington, D.C.

"He felt that the lessons of history ought not to be forgotten. He cared as a humanitarian," the younger Jaffe said.

The collection is being organized by Dr. Zsuzsanna Ozsvath, a UTD literature professor who taught the elder Jaffe.

"It is a step of tremendous significance for the Jaffes as well as the university and I think it is a tremendous asset for Dallas and for the state of Texas and probably for the country," Mrs. Ozsvath said.

Jaffe, a Jew of Russian and Polish descent, was not a victim of the Holocaust, Ozsvath said. However, he realized the impact the mass murders had on the present world, she said.

"It's part of the collective consciousness," Ozsvath said, adding that present-day terrorism has its roots in such killings motivated by politics and prejudice.

The study of the Holocaust is not just the history of the Jews and anti-Semitism, she said, but also involves the cultural studies of the countries involved and the political history of the 20th Century.

To understand humanity, social scientists must understand the depravity and barbarism to which mankind can sink, Ozsvath said.

"Major poets, major writers and major thinkers are simply stunned by it and try to deal with it and try to react against it and try to live with it," she said.

However, knowing about the Holocaust does not protect against similar incidents, said Larry D. Sall, assistant director for special collections at the Eugene McDermott Library.

"Mass murder on a grand scale has taken place since then — in Iran, Cambodia and Vietnam — and, unfortunately, probably will occur again," he said.

"The seeds of such horror are in all of us," Sall said, although he hopes such seeds can be kept from sprouting by studying the events and attitudes leading to Hitler's extermination program.

To gain such insights, Sall would like the collection to include German writings from the period. Presently, most of the volumes on hand are in English, both non-fiction and fiction.

The books, which can be studied but not checked out, are in a semi-restricted area of the library.

November National Epilepsy Month

Unless you know someone who has epilepsy, you may be unsure how to help someone who has a seizure. The Texas Medical Association says learning about epilepsy can make the disease less mysterious.

Contrary to popular belief, epilepsy refers not to a specific disease, but to a group of symptoms caused by a number of different conditions. What these conditions have in common is a problem in communication between the brain's nerve cells.

The basic symptom of epilepsy is a brief, abnormal phase of behavior commonly known as a seizure, fit, or convulsion. This is caused by a sudden, excessive electrical discharge from one part of the brain.

While there are many forms of epilepsy, the two major types are petit mal and grand mal.

Petit mal is a disease of childhood that usually does not persist past late adolescence. A child with this form of epilepsy will, from time to time, suddenly stop whatever activity is going on and stare blankly around for a few seconds (sometimes up to a half minute). During the blank interval, known as a petit mal seizure, the child is unaware of what is happening, and will not realize that the blank spell has occurred.

It should be emphasized that isolated, non-recurring convulsions, which are quite common in children, are often the result of the high fevers caused by infectious diseases. A child who gets such convulsions and no others is not an epileptic. But, if you have any doubts about the nature of convulsions of a child, speak with your physician.

The most characteristic symptom of grand mal epilepsy, the second major form of epilepsy, is a very dramatic seizure. The person falls to the ground unconscious; then the entire body stiffens and twitches or jerks uncontrollably. This may last for several minutes and is usually followed by a period of deep sleep or mental confusion.

While modern drug therapy can control most forms of epilepsy and enable epileptics to lead virtually normal lives, occasional seizures may occur. Some epileptic seizures, such as petit mal seizures, are merely momentary blackouts, and the posture of the body remains virtually unaffected. If someone has such an attack in your presence, it is generally wise to take no action. Just guide the person gently towards a safe place if any such minor convulsion occurs in a potentially dangerous situation—while crossing the street, for example.

If someone has a grand mal seizure, guide or push the person to a safe place only if he or she is in immediate danger. Otherwise, do not attempt to move or restrain the person. Loosen the person's collar and try to pull the jaw forward and extend the neck so he or she can breathe easily.

There is a common belief that the main thing you should do for convulsive epileptics is to force something between the teeth to keep them from biting or swallowing the tongue. This is poor advice. Any such attempt can actually damage the person's mouth.

George Fox, founder of the Quaker religious movement, died in 1691.

Post-nuptial bridal shower given recently

A post-nuptial bridal shower for Kari Robinson Petterson, bride of Douglas Petterson of Happy, was held recently in the home of Mrs. Wendel Clark of Hereford.

Keile Proffitt, the bride's sister, registered guests and Ronda Clark served refreshments from a table covered with an ecru cloth. It was appointed with silver and the focal point was a rose, burgundy and lavender floral arrangement.

Those in the receiving line were presented silk orchid corsages accented by white netting and white satin ribbons.

Out-of-town guests included Jacqueline and Rachel White and Mrs. Tim Proffitt, all of Dalhart; Mrs. Edmond Crump of Ralls, Texas; Mrs. Dan Garman of Amarillo; Mrs. Leah Satterwhite of Canyon; Patti Hamilton of Fritch; Cinda Dillahay of Dawn; and Mrs. Larry Petterson of Happy.

Serving as hostesses were Virginia Holmes, Sue James, Pat Green, Betty Whitaker, Ann Beard, Ronda Clark, Merle Clark, Bessie Story, Audine Dettman, Ann Combs and Sheri Ramplly.

The couple is making their home in Happy. The bride is the daughter of Vance Robinson of Hereford and the granddaughter of Zella Mae Crump, also of Hereford.

Turkey Talk

Many flu like symptoms during the holidays are actually mild cases of food poisoning. Perfringens grow very fast at low cooking temperatures (110 degrees to 116 degrees F). Meat should be cooked to reach an internal temperature of 150 degrees F. Many food poisoning outbreaks have been traced to slow cooking of meat, poultry and gravy. Cooked foods should be cooled quickly in the refrigerator in small shallow containers to make sure it cools rapidly to 40 degrees F. or below. Meat should be reheated to 150 degrees F or higher rapidly and gravy should be boiled. To help make the Thanksgiving holiday eating a pleasure without suffering from unpleasant symptoms similar to the flu, here is the annual "turkey talk"-a reminder for some and new information for others.

Thawing The Turkey
Refrigerator thawing: Leave the original wrap on the frozen bird; place the bird on a tray. Refrigerate 3 to 4 days, about 24 hours for each 5 pounds.

Cold-water thawing: Place the frozen turkey in its original wrap in a sink filled with cold water. Change the water every 30 minutes. Allow about 30 minutes thawing time each pound of turkey.

Preparing The Turkey For Roasting

After thawing: Remove the wrap, free the legs and tail, then remove the giblets and neck piece from the cavities. Rinse the bird; pat it dry. Rub the cavities with salt, if desired. Do not stuff the bird until just before it is to be cooked.

Stuffing
When? Just before you roast your turkey is the time to stuff it. You run the risk of food poisoning if you do this earlier. To save time, the night before combine all the dry ingredients in one batch and the liquids in another. Mix just before stuffing the turkey.

How much? Allow ¾ cup stuffing per pound of bird for turkeys weighing more than 10 pounds; ½ cup stuffing per pound for smaller birds. Note: Never freeze stuffing that is in a cooked or raw bird. Also, remove all of the stuffing from the body cavity of the cooked bird, wrap separately and refrigerate.

Roasting
Here are the latest guidelines from the National Turkey Federation:

Before setting bird in oven insert a meat thermometer in the meatiest part of the turkey thigh, not touching the bone. Place whole turkey breast-side up on a rack in a shallow roasting pan 1" deep; the rack keeps the turkey from "stewing in its own juices" and allows for good heat circulation around the bird.

Place turkey breast-side down on a V-shaped rack. Halfway through roasting period, turn bird breast-side up. Insert meat thermometer at this point, as described above. (Some chefs believe that this second method indeed produces a moister bird.)

For both methods:
Tent turkey loosely with lightweight foil, shiny-side down. Press foil down lightly at ends of drumsticks and neck.

Baste or not as you like.
Remove foil tent during last half hour or so of roasting to ensure a beautifully browned bird.

Testing For Doneness:
Meat thermometer inserted in meatiest part of turkey breast reads 180 degrees to 185 degrees F.
Thigh meat feels soft when pinched.

When skin is pricked, turkey juices show no pink tinges
Drumsticks move up and down easily.

Resting Period
Let turkey stand at room temperature for 20 minutes after it's out of the oven. This allows juices to settle and meat to firm up, and carving is much easier. ## Geologists plumb depths of unemployment

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — During 31 years as a well-paid professional, Will Green never expected to be laid off.

Then one day last May, his employer, BHP Petroleum, called a meeting.

"They had a big meeting at the Hilton and you got a packet to see if you had a job or not," said Green, who is president of the West Texas Geological Society.

As he expected, the 54-year-old Midland petroleum geologist found his walking papers inside the envelope. BHP had decided it no longer wanted to explore mature oil provinces such as the Permian Basin, and like many companies was cutting costs to survive the oil slump.

About 25 percent of the petroleum geologists in America, many of them with master's or doctoral degrees, are out of work right now, according to a recent American Association of Petroleum Geologists survey.

The unemployment rate among Midland and Odessa petroleum geologists is 29 percent, and in other areas the rate climbs even higher. In Denver 34 percent are unemployed; in Oklahoma City 39 percent; in Billings, Mont., 44 percent; and Caspar, Wyo., has the highest rate, 45 percent.

And geologists like Green, well-treated and well-paid throughout their careers, have been forced to find other work or become independents.

Green has become an independent, working with a landman and investor to develop oil prospects.

"The price of oil is down about 50 percent, but the cost of drilling is down 40 percent," so though profits have been squeezed, it's still possible to find places to drill profitably for oil and gas, Green said.

His first prospect is ready for sale, and he won't know what he and his informal partners can make until it sells, meaning his future income remains in doubt.

"Only time will tell. A lot depends on the price of oil," Green said. "I'm having a lot of fun. I still miss paydays."

Chuck Durfee, 49, also of Midland, found another way out. He left his limited partnership in the oil and gas business to buy a commercial greenhouse.

Not that he was eager to leave the oil industry.

"If the opportunity had been there, I would have stuck with it," Durfee said.

But in January as oil prices were sliding, he sat down and thought about what he would like to do if he got out of the oil business. Gardening was a hobby, and garden centers told him their business had not dropped as much as other retail businesses.

In September, he bought a greenhouse between Midland and Odessa and started Windswept Farms of Midland Inc.

Durfee was raised in a family business, and had operated the family service station as a young man, but that was the extent of his independent business experience, he said.

"I don't think I'll make as much the first four or five years, but after that, I think I'll make more. The business has room to grow," Durfee said.

AAPG President Bruno Hanson of Midland said most geologists got some kind of severance package when they were laid off, and some are still living on that.

"Some of them are working in fast-food places, some of them are cutting lawns just to keep busy," Hanson said.

Some become independents after being laid off, and if it doesn't work out, they may have depleted their resources, he said.

Hanson said AAPG has 43,000 members worldwide, and foresees a need for only 25,000 petroleum geologists by 1990. Some will retire, and few geologists are being trained, Hanson noted, but a large number are going to have to find another line of work.

Meanwhile, the ability to find new oil reserves is being destroyed, he said. Professionals are leaving petroleum geology and young people are avoiding the field.

From 1980 to 1983, 30,000 people were enrolled annually in petroleum geology programs, but now only 4,000 to 5,000 are in those programs, he said. "Many have dropped out," going into other areas of study.

AAPG is trying to find ways to place its members in jobs, he added. Geologists can do more than find oil, and finding sites suitable for hazardous waste disposal, locating new water supplies and finding ways to conserve and better use water could provide 3,500 jobs, Hanson said.

AAPG also is screening geologists to work in Third World countries, assessing mineral deposits, possibly in conjunction with the World Bank, an international development organization.

Perhaps 1,000 to 1,500 geologists can find work through that program, Hanson said. Geologists also could help with the chronic shortage of science teachers at the high school level, he noted, because geology programs turn out scientists with expertise in several fields.

"A lot of them require almost a minor in math, almost a minor in chemistry and almost a minor in physics," he said.

Teaching doesn't pay as well as geology, but it could provide jobs for 2,000 geologists, Hanson said.

Corbett Gauden Jr., a marketing professor at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin, said he has started seeing geologists in his classes.

Many young geologists are going into the Masters of Business Administration program, hoping to broaden the appeal they have for employers, Gauden said.

We want to thank everyone who ministered to us in any way during our recent accident. There were those who so effectively got us to the hospital; the caring doctors, nurses, staff members, neighbors and friends who worked with us when we were unable to help ourselves. Our recovery was hastened by the love and concern of these and many others who sent cards, flowers, food, called, visited and ministered to us in so many ways.
We truly appreciate every evidence of your concern for us. May God Bless you, everyone.

PUC ruling big bonus for cash-strapped GSU

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Gulf States Utilities Co.'s search for more revenue hit paydirt when the Public Utility Commission ruled that the company's River Bend nuclear power plant is ready for commercial operation, officials say.

The 2-1 vote Friday designating River Bend as being formally in service allows GSU to include the capital costs of building the plant in a rate increase request it is expected to file this week.

Cash-strapped Gulf States says it will ask the PUC for about $80 million in emergency rate relief for this year and about $145 million overall. The company has asked Louisiana public utility officials for $100 million in interim relief and $202 million overall.

increase by the end of the year. The PUC ruling marks the first good fiscal news for GSU in some time. Last month, Standard & Poor's significantly lowered the company's debt ratings, citing "the highly political regulatory environments in Louisiana and Texas, as well as a severely depressed service territory."

which it expects to meet with the $100 million emergency request in Louisiana, $80 million in Texas and $20 million from its wholesale and steam businesses, he said.

Boyle spent initial hearings in the case pointing out the various times the plant has shut down since receiving its low-power license in August 1985. He said the plant has been operating only half the time since the middle of June.

School using computers to stop truancy

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — High school students at several area schools are being tracked by a computerized tattle-tale that telephones each day they are absent or tardy and delivers a recorded message from the school principals.

School District hear "Hello. This is Eddie Parsley, principal of Judson High School. Our records indicate your student was absent one or more periods today."

"Our projection is that we would have run out of money in March, and it would have been very serious for the company if we could not have proceeded to go ahead and file our rate case," said Bill Jefferson, GSU vice president of rates and regulatory affairs.

Also last month, GSU reported it had no cash earnings during the 12-month period ending Sept. 30, and suspended common stock dividends for two successive quarters.

In June, GSU's $134 million rate increase request, filed last fall, turned into an $80 million reduction. The company has cash requirements of $200 million, Ratepayers probably will be paying for the construction costs of the $4.4 billion plant near St. Francisville, La., in rate cases over the next five years, he said.

Before installing the system earlier this school year, Judson High School was faced with an average of 200 tardies and 200 absences daily among its 2,600 students.

The parents of all students who were absent or late for class — valid or not — are called. If the computer is thwarted five times by a busy signal or no answer, a school official tries to call the next day.

The company has threatened to file for bankruptcy by spring if it does not receive a rate increase, and Jefferson says it needs the interim rate in June, GSU's $134 million rate increase request, filed last fall, turned into an $80 million reduction. The company has cash requirements of $200 million,

"I am concerned that there are a lot of loose ends that may have to be dealt with here before ratepayers

That figure represents 10 percent of all power the utility generated over the past year, he said.

Mountain man on 20-year walk

JUSTIN, Texas (AP) — "Mountain man" Bill Johnson, who is making a 20-year cross-country walking tour, avoids the interstate highways.

But he still can't help but attract attention. Traveling with him are his three-legged dog, Brandy, who rides on a Shetland pony followed by a large donkey and a small burro.

"I am a mountain man. I just came out of the mountains to see America," said Johnson, 44, a bearded man who wears a battered hat, well-worn jeans and high-topped moccasins.

He said he detoured his journey somewhat to try to look up a 10-year-old boy with a crippling illness for whom he had promised to walk 100 miles. The little boy had lived in Oklahoma but later moved to Fort Worth, Johnson said.

But no matter the route, Johnson has continued to keep company with his animal friends.

His pets were all with him in the Sierra Nevada mountains before he left California on his great adventure three years ago.

Brandy, the dog, was kicked by a horse and lost her leg before he adopted her. She nuzzled his ear as he split an apple to share with Little Guy, the pony; Apple Jack, the burro, and Koko, the donkey.

He said he almost lost his animals while crossing the Rogue River in Oregon.

So far, he's traveled about 3,800 miles, visiting children's homes, churches, schools and Boy Scout troops.

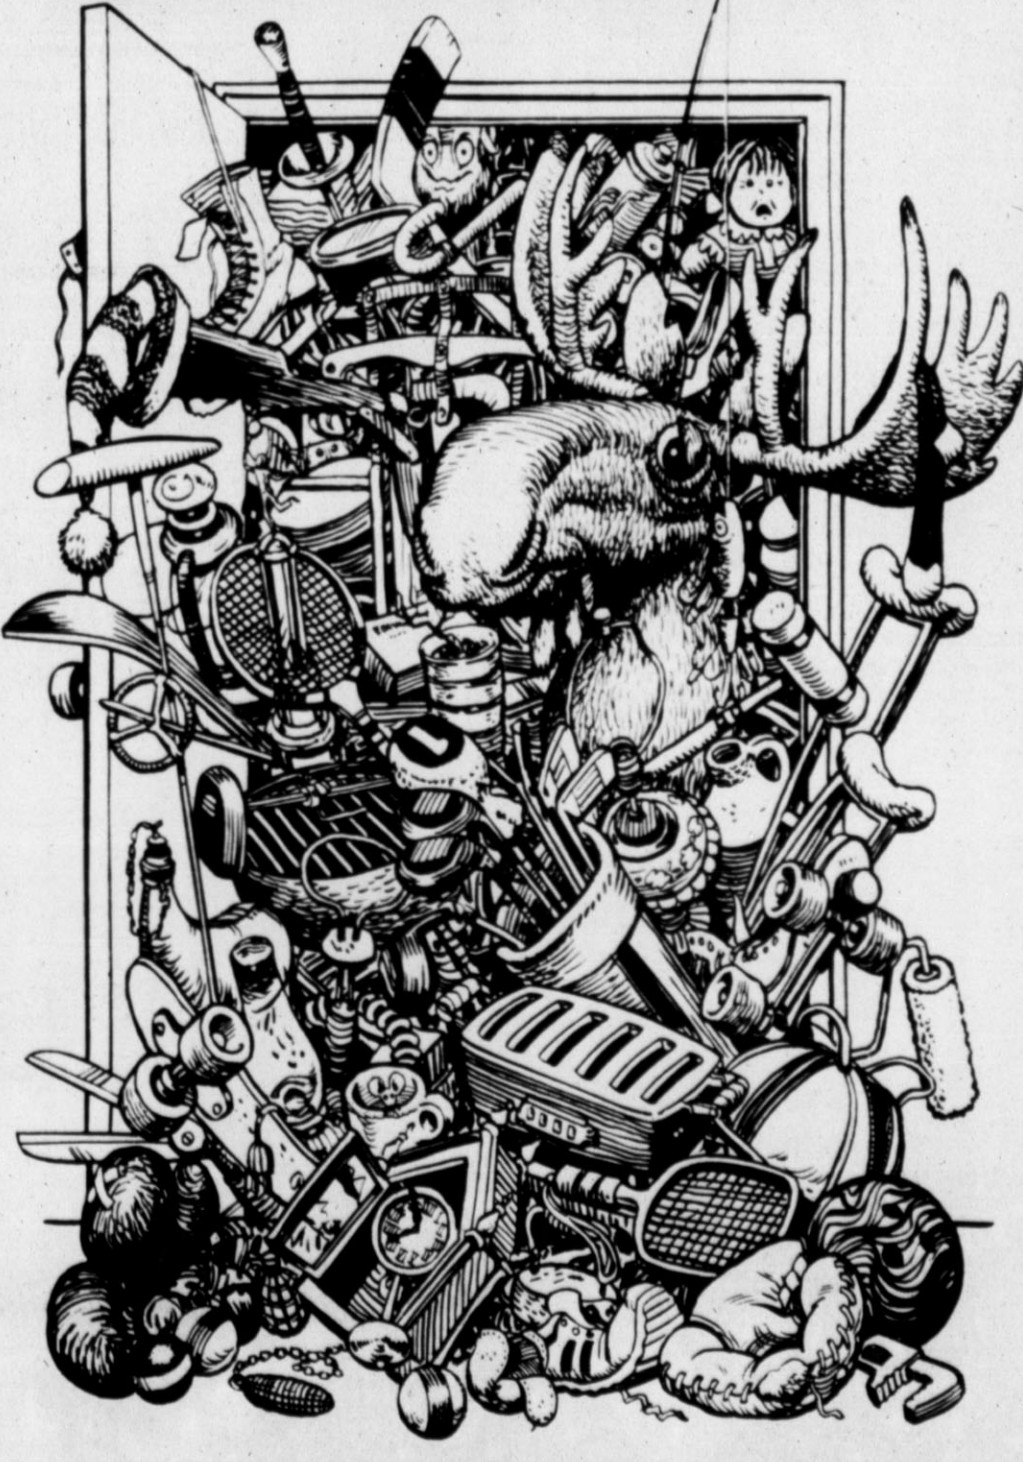

"I don't try for mileage unless it's for water. My needs are dictated by water and weather," he said.

After his 20-year travel plan is complete, he expects to go back to the high Sierras to live out his life.

Divorced, he has three children and two grandchildren in California, and he calls friends there about every two months to check on his mail.

But, he said as he eyed his gear, for now, "this is my home."

"So Again!"
"GOOD GRIEF!"
"OH DARN!"

Fresh Vegetable Salad Bowl

Give iceberg lettuce the cold shoulder.

- 1 head romaine lettuce
- 1/2 pound fresh button mushrooms
- 1 pound cherry tomatoes
- 1 small head cauliflower
- 1 pound very young raw asparagus spears

Remove outer leaves of romaine, separate stems from mushrooms, and snap off stem ends of tomatoes. Break cauliflower into florets, and trim stalk end from asparagus.

Wash all vegetables except mushrooms. Drain well. Wipe mushrooms with a paper towel.

Place inner leaves of romaine upright, around the sides of a deep round salad bowl. Arrange remaining ingredients neatly in the center. Chill until serving time. Serve with your favorite dressing.

Life remains a gas

BURTON, Texas (AP)— August Muehlbrad is looking forward to retirement in a couple of years. He'll be 96.

Until then, Muehlbrad, 94, will continue to pump gasoline as he has for the past 66 years, content to spend his time among customers who sit on the bench in front of his downtown gasoline station, occasionally foraging through the back yard for pecans.

Washington County is a historic place, where 100-year-old homes are as common as convenience stores are in other areas. But in a region best known for its devotion to the 1800s, Muehlbrad's Burton Auto. Co. is a startling monument to the early 20th century.

"I owe a lot to Henry Ford," Muehlbrad said. "I guess I've worked on more T-model Fords than anybody in this state."

Muehlbrad, his walk slow and his back bent by age, pointed out a square-shaped, faded red wheelbarrow.

"A fellow gave me that for helping him do some work," he said. "I bet that thing's a hundred years old."

On the wall near his office is a framed diploma that says Muehlbrad graduated from the University of Texas School of Automobile Mechanics in 1918.

Faded signs make up a lot of the atmosphere here. "Veronica Lake, star of 'Variety Girl' says Royal Crown Cola tastes best," touts one poster, showing Lake lounging on an inflatable toy pool.

Liquor signs also peer down at visitors. One shows Charlie Weaver — former star of television's Hollywood Squares, but better known as "That little old winemaker" — peddling Asti wines.

Muehlbrad's story isn't just pumping gasoline. It's a tale that dates back to the days when the very first cars rolled over paved roads in this part of the country.

Muehlbrad, who began operating the station in 1920, is the oldest Texaco retailer in the state, said Phil

Blackburn, a spokesman for the company. He spent two years with Gulf and Humble, but has been pumping Texaco gasoline for 64 years.

The company first noticed his efforts in 1945 with a plaque honoring him for 25 years of continuous service with Texaco. Hanging under it are add-on plaques, each marking additional five year intervals.

"They used to send these every five years," Muehlbrad said. The last plaque marks 50 years. "Finally they quit sending them."

Muehlbrad grew up on a farm 10 miles from town. He got interested in cars while watching his father work on one.

He went into the Army and spent a year at an Austin aircraft plant manufacturing engines. He and another soldier from Burton decided to open a garage and gasoline station when they were discharged.

The friend, Carl Rothermel, got out first and opened the business. Muehlbrad joined him a year later. Rothermel left shortly after that and Muehlbrad purchased full control of the business for $1,600.

In those days, Burton was a thriving town, Muehlbrad said. There were two cotton gins, two doctors, an oil mill, a hotel, various stores and two gas stations.

He started out pumping gasoline by hand, a gallon at a time. Then came larger pumps, with the gasoline stored in glass bowls on the top. He now has pumps with electric motors.

Muehlbrad, his wife Lillie, now 78, and their two children helped run the station, with the kids often pumping gas while their parents were busy. The family even lived in the station while their new house was being built nearby.

Muehlbrad stopped working on cars in 1940. He opened a liquor store to augment his business that same year. He gave up the liquor business two years ago.

"Liquor went up," he said. "Licenses went up. Taxes went up. And my good customers up and died." Burton isn't much smaller than it was when Muehlbrad started, but there are fewer businesses, since most commerce has shifted to nearby Brenham, the county seat.

Muehlbrad, however, is still hard at it. He works at the station seven days a week, from sunrise to sunset, by himself. The only deviation from that routine is on Sunday, when he closes at noon.

His wife has retired from the gasoline station and his daughter, Peggy Felder, 49, is now assistant postmaster in Burton. His son, Edsel Muehlbrad, 55, works for Texaco in Midland as a sales superintendent.

Townspiece regard Muehlbrad, who has five grandchildren, as a Burton institution.

"He's a very likable old guy who's been in business here for a long time," said Nelson Felder, the town's former mayor and owner of the Texaco wholesale depot in Brenham.
