Bowles to lead C of C

Mike Bowles was elected as president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Wednesday during a special meeting of directors. He will be installed in January as the successor to Bill Harris.

Other officers named for 1987 include B.J. Gilliland, vice president, and Fred Rivera, treasurer. Four new directors, recently elected by the membership, are also to be installed in January. They are Carol Sue LeGate, Larry Malamen, David Emerick and Ike Stevens.

The installation dinner for new officers and directors has been scheduled for Jan. 15 at Hereford Country Club. The board is planning a retreat on Jan. 22 to set goals for the new year.

In other business Wednesday, directors heard reports on the recent membership drive, the business mixer, and recent ribbon-cutting ceremonies for new businesses. The membership drive netted 40 new members, and a follow-up campaign is expected to add several more. Approximately 200 business people attended the mixer, reported Mike Carr, executive vice president.

Attending the board meeting were Harris, Bowles, Carr, Rex Easterwood, Doug Manning, Allen Parsons, Jim Arney, Fred Rivera, Lajeane Henry, Lanette Leasure, and three of the new directors.

Casey said businessman tipped him

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William Casey told a House committee that a New York businessman, not his own intelligence operation, tipped him in October to a diversion of profits from Iranian arms sales, says a published report.

Casey told the House Foreign Affairs Committee Wednesday he received the tip from businessman Roy M. Furmark on Oct. 7. The Washington Post reported in today's editions, citing congressional sources. That was about six weeks before Attorney General Edwin Meese III says he turned up the scheme in late November.

Committee members in the closed session were said to be stunned when Casey asserted that his conversation with Furmark was the first hint he had that funds from the sale of U.S. arms to Iran might have been diverted to Central America.

Meese on Nov. 25 said that up to $30 million in profits from the arms sales was diverted to aid the Contra rebels in Nicaragua. Meese said then that two National Security Council officials were the only government aides who had known of the scheme.

The Post said Casey testified that he was called on Oct. 7 by Furmark, his former legal client in New York. Casey said Furmark told him he had learned from an Iranian involved with a group of Canadian businessmen in the secret arms deal that some of the money had ended up in Central America.

The Canadians were threatening a lawsuit that would have exposed the arms deal because they had put up $20 million as middlemen in the sales and only received $10 million in return, the newspaper said.

In the same closed-door session, Casey denied that any of the CIA's money went to aid the Contras, adding that the money to pay for arms shipped to Iran came from four different sources, according to Rep. Gus Yatron, D-Pa., who did not say if Casey identified the sources.

Casey told the committee that after he spoke to Furmark he started an internal CIA inquiry and alerted Vice Adm. John Poindexter, who was then national security adviser, the newspaper said.

The CIA director said he spoke to Furmark the next day in person in Washington, the Post said, and Fur-

Not CIA operation

mark "described the whole operation."

The Post said Casey's disclosures suggested the following scenario: The CIA took possession of the U.S. arms from the Pentagon and transported them to Israel on privately chartered aircraft. At that point they were sold to middlemen, apparently including the Canadians in at least one case, who resold them to an Iranian middleman representing Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's government in Tehran.

The first middlemen paid the United States the money it was owed for the arms, and they then received payments from the Iranians, relayed through other middlemen, the newspaper said.

Congressional investigators have said there are growing signs that middlemen and brokers may have siphoned off large amounts of proceeds from the sales.

Members of the House panel said teams of accountants should trace an intricate flow of money around the world.

"It's like a very gigantic jigsaw puzzle with a puzzle on either side and all in three dimensions; it's like a Rubik's cube," said Chairman Dante Fascell, D-Fla. "When all of the dots are eventually linked on this, it will be, I won't use the word incredible, but it certainly will be extraordinary."

Some foreign affairs panel members said that in more than five hours before the committee, Casey provided clear indications that President Reagan is not implicated in the affair.

CSF needs are great this year

At least 54 families in Hereford are literally starving, according to current statistics from the Texas Department of Human Resources, and many more are in desperate need of basic clothing and shelter.

Hereford's recently reorganized Christmas Stocking Fund hopes to alleviate some of the hunger and need of the less fortunate who are now facing a pretty bleak holiday.

"This is a joyous season for most of us," said a Stocking Fund spokesman, "But in the midst of our celebration we need to remember there are those less fortunate than ourselves who need our generosity."

As in years past, the Stocking Fund is now collecting cash donations in order to make this Christmas a little brighter for the needy of Hereford. The CSF committee, composed of concerned anonymous individuals, is already aware of more than 125 needy local families.

"Donations are off to a slow start this year and local need is great because of the shortage of jobs and depressed farm economy," according to a CSF spokesman. "Hereford has a tradition of taking care of those in need and we have faith that the good folks of our community will come through during the next two weeks so that this will be a joyous Christmas for all."

The individual needs of the poor here vary of course, but a typical case follows:

A Grandfather and Grandmother with serious health problems share a run-down four-room house with their adult daughter and her four children. The Grandmother has been receiving kidney dialysis treatment in Amarillo for the past three years. Her husband suffers from a back injury and is in need of surgery, which he cannot afford to have done.

The daughter is responsible for the care of her four children who range in age from 3 months to 10 years of age. The family has no car, only a few pieces of furniture and a kitchen oven which does not work. What they do have is a mountain of medical bills.

Without the help of concerned contributors, this family, and many others like them, will not only have empty stockings on Christmas morning, but empty food pantries as well.

The CSF is a non-profit organization and is not affiliated with any other organization. The Red Cross is providing office space to accept applications for help, and The Hereford Brand is handling contributions. Tax-deductible donations can be delivered to The Brand office, 313 N. Lee, or mailed to the CSF, The Brand, P.O. Box 673.

Clements says budget plan won't have more taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov.-elect Bill Clements, meeting with top state officials, has begun work on a new state budget which he says should preclude additional taxes.

"There are no new taxes involved," Clements said Wednesday after meeting with directors of the 14 biggest state agencies in a session Board of Education Chairman Jon Brumley called "a good businessman's discussion."

Clements and agency officials said the talks revolved around setting priorities for writing the next budget, which projections indicate could face a shortfall of as much as $5 billion.

House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby also met with Clements on Wednesday, and Lewis, too, said Clements sounded a no-new-taxes theme.

"I asked him about taxes ... and he said that he felt we can hold the line where we are, and he's going to be meeting with some of the state agencies and asking them to hold the line," Lewis said.

Clements said he has directed the 14 big agencies — which are responsible for more than half of state spending — to draw up a list of priorities for their agencies based on the amount of tax revenue expected for the next fiscal period.

"We're trying to scrub the budget," the incoming governor said.

Clements said he plans regular meetings with the agency officials during his term, which begins with his inauguration Jan. 20.

But before that, he said, he wants the agencies to submit lists of their priorities for programs. "They will prioritize every program that they have in their budgets ... It will be a very comprehensive list," Clements said.

Rep. Michael Toomey, R-Houston, who heads Clements' special task force on state finances, said the governor-elect's approach to the budget is a new concept for state agencies.

"They're being asked to put their priorities from one to 100. We'll see what their lowest priorities are. And if it whacks off that there's only money for so much, then that's what's whacked off," Toomey said.

"He is asking them to, by program and by dollars, to tell him where they think their priorities are. They haven't been asked that in a long time," Toomey added. "Before, they only had a priority table that was a hodge-podge ... It's totally indecipherable."

Clements said other problems facing the state were discussed with Lewis and Hobby, including the need for additional prison space and education.

"There isn't any question about that. We've got to build more prisons," he said.

Clements said his meetings were general conversations about state issues. "No conclusions, just talk," he said.

"We've got to get the problems out on the table before we can solve them. We've got to talk about them first," Clements said.

Clements also said he was talking with the state officials about the possibility of having the 1987 Legislature write a one-year budget rather than the customary two-year spending plan. Such a plan has been suggested due to the state's precarious economy.

Office to open for hunters

The Deaf Smith County Clerk's office will be open Saturday from 6:30 a.m. until 10 a.m. in order to allow hunters to purchase licenses. County Clerk David Ruland instructs hunters to enter the courthouse through the south entrance on the second floor. Hunters who cannot make it before 10 a.m. are asked to purchase their license at Ruland's residence located at 501 West 15th.

Bus, plane schedules announced

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce reported that the busses they have chartered to go to the Hereford-McKinney semifinal game in Dallas will be departing at 9 a.m. Saturday.

The chamber had planned to leave at 10 a.m., but plans were changed to allow for a lunch stop.

Four busses will be taking the 153 people who have signed up for the trip.

Persons interested in riding on one of the busses are urged to call the chamber office at 364-3333.

Approximately 55 fans have also made reservations to fly on a chartered plane with the Whiteface team.

The plane is scheduled to leave Amarillo at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

It will be flight 9062, departing from Gate 33 at Amarillo International Airport.

The plane will be arriving at gate 7 at Love field in Dallas. School officials reported that Hereford fans will be entering Gates 2-3-4 at Texas Stadium.

Police report

The Hereford Police Department heard a report of a prowler in the 700 block of N. Lee Wednesday.

Police also heard reports of a domestic dispute in the 700 block of Stanton and the 900 block of Park, criminal mischief in the 200 block of North 25 Mile Ave. and in the 800 block of Brevard, and theft in the 100 block of Bradley.

Police also found a bicycle in the 200 block of Ave. G.

Driving conditions hazardous

Permian Basin gets more snow

By The Associated Press
Snow continued to fall today over the Permian Basin of West Texas where hazardous driving conditions were reported.

The Texas Department of Public Safety reported traffic backed up for seven miles in both directions along Interstate 20 in Martin County.

Hazardous driving conditions forced the postponement of a scheduled college basketball game between Texas-El Paso and New Mexico State. Authorities said hazardous driving conditions between El Paso and Las Cruces, N.M., site of the game, caused the game to be postponed until tonight.

Scattered showers, some mixed with sleet and snow, were reported over portions of South Central Texas near Austin and thundershowers were being reported in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

An upper level storm system moving over a surface dome of high pressure triggered the snowy weather.

A winter storm warning and travelers advisories were in effect today for all of West Texas except for the Panhandle. Travelers advisories were also in effect for the Hill Country, Southwest Texas and South Central Texas.

Snowfall is expected to end over most of the state during the night or early Friday. Clearing skies and much warmer temperatures are forecast for Friday.

Lows tonight will be in the mid teens over the mountains, the upper teens to mid 20s over the rest of West Texas and in the 20s and 30s over North Texas and in the upper 20s to mid 30s in South Texas.

Highs Friday will be considerably warmer, mostly in the 40s and 50s.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 30s, ranging from the 20s in West Texas to the 40s in extreme South Texas. Extremes ranged from 18 at Guadalupe Pass to 43 at both Brownsville and McAllen.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 24 at Amarillo, 32 at Wichita Falls, 34 at Fort Worth, 36 at Waco, Austin and San Antonio, 39 at Houston, 40 at Corpus Christi, 30 at San Angelo, 25 at Lubbock and 26 at both Midland and El Paso.

Mayor killed during meeting

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa (AP) — A 69-year-old man who had complained about a backed-up sewer walked into a City Council meeting and opened fire, killing the mayor and seriously wounding two council members, witnesses and officials said.

Mayor Edward King, 53, who was shot in the head at point-blank range, died Wednesday night at University Hospitals in Iowa City, about 60 miles from this southeastern Iowa city of 7,300 residents, said hospital spokesman Dean Borg.

Councilwoman JoAnn Sankey, 39, was in critical condition today at University Hospitals with a head wound and two chest wounds, and Councilman Ronald DuPree, 44, was in stable condition, officials said.

Henry County Medical Examiner Dr. Warren Scott said King was shot above the right eye.

Ralph Orin Davis, 69, surrendered in the council chambers after the shootings, said Police Chief Jerry Richenberger. Davis, initially charged with three counts of attempted murder, was being held on $300,000 bond.

Henry County Attorney Michael Riepe said early today that Davis will be charged with first-degree murder in King's death. Davis was scheduled to appear today in magistrate court, Riepe said.

The gunman apparently waited for the meeting to end, walked in, pointed his gun at the council members and said, "You sons of bitches," before shooting DuPree, witnesses said. He shot King in the head, then turned on Ms. Sankey.

"It kind of appeared he was waiting for the meeting to be over," said Mary Whittmer, a reporter for radio station KILJ. "It kind of looked like he knew what he wanted to do when he walked in."

Hearings anger soap fans

NEW YORK (AP) — The Iran arms sale has provided some high drama but it pales in comparison to soap operas, at least according to fans of television's plot-twisting trips through angst each weekday afternoon.

ABC and NBC were flooded with calls from angry viewers who tuned in to watch their favorite soap operas early this week only to find them pre-empted by live coverage of congressional hearings on the Iran arms sale.

All three networks pre-empted daytime programming on Monday and Tuesday for coverage of the hearings, the first time the commercial networks have broadcast congressional hearings live since the Nixon impeachment hearings of 1974.

ABC News spokesman Tom Goodman said the network received 1,330 calls. "All objected to pre-emption of soap operas," he said.

NBC reported receiving 1,100 complaints. A CBS spokesman said his network received fewer than three dozen calls.

Store offers high dollar paper

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — A clothing store is offering Christmas wrapping paper made from crisp, uncut sheets of $1 bills.

"It's definitely different and unique," said Edward Maus, a salesman at Maus & Hoffman. The chain's other stores in Fort Lauderdale, Boca Raton, Naples and Palm Beach also offer the service, but only for items bought at the store.

For $55, a present will be wrapped in a sheet of 32 greenbacks, imported directly from the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington.

The sheets are carefully folded around a box and held in place by a ribbon instead of tape, he said. "People can cut them up and use them, but they will be losing money. Most just save them because they are worth more uncut."

Israel bombs Northern Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked Palestinian guerrilla bases in north Lebanon today, setting targets on fire, Beirut radio stations reported.

State-run Radio Beirut and the privately-owned Voice of the Nation said the main target of the raid was the Palestinian refugee camp of Nahr el-Bared on the outskirts of Lebanon's northern port city of Tripoli.

No further details were available.

German official suspected of spying

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A high-ranking official of the West German Defense Ministry has been arrested on suspicion of spying, ministry sources said today.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the official was arrested on Tuesday. They declined to identify the official.

The arrest was reported today in the Passauer Neue Presse newspaper, which said the official worked in the armaments department of the defense ministry.

No other details were immediately available.

It was the first reported arrest of a suspected spy since an espionage scandal rocked the West German government last year.

Fifteen people suspected of spying for the Soviet bloc either vanished or were arrested between August and December last year.

Among the suspected spies who eluded authorities was Hans-Joachim Tiedge, the agent in charge of tracking down East German spies. Tiedge defected to East Germany.

The scandal shook Chancellor Helmut Kohl's government and led to the dismissal of the domestic counter-intelligence chief Heribert Hellenbroich, who had been Tiedge's boss.

Oil cartel opens debate

GENEVA (AP) — Saudi Arabia's new oil minister said today at the outset of his first OPEC conference that he hoped the cartel could push world oil prices up to $18 a barrel "very soon."

Hisham Nazer, who replaced the fired Ahmed Zaki Yamani as head of the Saudi delegation in late October, drew a swarm of reporters as the 13 OPEC ministers gathered for their sixth meeting of the year.

He repeatedly said, "There is nothing that I can tell you," but when asked when he thought the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries could reach its goal of an $18 oil price, he said, "very soon."

Oil prices currently are in a range of $13 to $16 a barrel — half the level of a year ago.

After a 90-minute opening session the cartel leaders broke for lunch. A second plenary session was scheduled for late afternoon, several officials said.

Nazer refused to say whether Saudi King Fahd was willing to lower the kingdom's oil production, which currently is more than twice that of any other OPEC member.

The Saudis' chief rival in the cartel, Iran, declared that all 13 members must cut their oil production.

South African government issues sweeping new media restrictions

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government today drastically expanded its 6-month-old restrictions on the media, banning reports on boycotts and a wide range of peaceful anti-apartheid protests as well as violent demonstrations.

The rules, issued by President P.W. Botha, also make it a crime to leave blank spaces in newspapers as a method of protesting the regulations.

Earlier in the day, anti-apartheid groups, newspapers and journalists condemned the expected regulations.

"(The) government today dumps this country into the totalitarian camp," said Business Day, an independent Johannesburg paper. "Government, in its mad pursuit of a failed ideology which it does not have the courage to change, continues to treat symptoms rather than causes."

The regulations, which apply to both foreign and domestic reporters, were issued six months after Botha imposed a nationwide state of emergency to curb widespread violence linked to protests against apartheid.

Since then, the news media has been barred from reporting security force actions without permission, releasing the identity of people detained under the state of emergency or reporting any statements deemed to be subversive. Photographing of unrest also has been banned.

These restrictions remain in effect.

The South African Press Association, which was given a copy of the 10-page regulations, provided initial details.

It said the rules forbid inciting people to take part in rent boycotts or protest strikes, and bar any statement that would discredit or undermine the system of compulsory military service.

The definition of a "subversive statement" is revised to include any statement that incites or encourages people to boycott companies, products or schools or to take part in any act of civil disobedience, the news agency said. The new rules ban reporting on treatment of people detained under the state of emergency or their release, it said.

It said news reports and opinion articles on security action, statements made at restricted gatherings or details of any boycott action also are prohibited.

Boycotts and other protest tactics covered by the new rules have been central to the programs of the United Democratic Front, a nationwide coalition of 850 anti-apartheid groups.

About 4 million people in more than 50 black townships have been taking part in a rent boycott, and hundreds of thousands of workers have taken part in political protest strikes lasting a day or two.

The new rules apparently will stop reporting on the United Democratic Front's plans for a "Christmas Against the Emergency" campaign planned for Dec. 16-26, which is to include a boycott of white-owned stores around the country. They also appear to be aimed at an anti-draft group which contends that soldiers are used to patrol black townships, enforcing apartheid.

The rules empower the minister of home affairs, Stoffel Botha, to seize any offending publication, film or recording. Violators can receive up to 10 years in jail and a $9,000 fine.

Botha also can bar the publication and importing of periodicals if he deems it in the public interest.

Honduras denies bombing

By REID G. MILLER Associated Press Writer

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — President Jose Azcona Hoyo said his country's military bombed Nicaraguan forces that crossed into Honduras but denied it bombed villages in Nicaragua.

President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua meanwhile denied his forces entered Honduras. He called on Azcona Hoyo to help reduce border conflicts by ordering U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebels to stop operating from bases in Honduras.

Nicaragua's charge that A-37 fighter planes crossed from Honduras on Sunday and bombed two Nicaraguan towns touched off a battle of words Wednesday between the two presidents. Nicaragua said seven of its soldiers and two civilians were killed in the raids.

In Washington, a Reagan administration official who spoke on condition of anonymity said U.S. intelligence agencies had confirmed the cross-border air attack but denied Nicaragua claims it was carried out at Washington's request.

Azcona Hoyo told a news conference Wednesday that an estimated 1,500 Nicaraguan soldiers crossed the frontier late last week, overran several small Honduran army posts and penetrated 10 miles inside Honduran territory.

Nicaraguan rebels called Contras who are fighting their country's Marxist Sandinista government maintain bases in the area. Honduras has said the Nicaraguan troops invaded to hunt Contras.

"We bombed positions occupied by the Sandinista Popular Army inside Honduras," said Azcona Hoyo. He said a few Sandinista stragglers remained inside Honduras and that air attacks on them would continue "until they leave."

Nicaragua "deployed very strong forces, including tanks," on its side of the border during the six days of sporadic fighting, he said. "They provided very good targets for our air force," he said, and reiterated that Honduran planes did not attack across the border. U.S. military helicopters, with President Reagan's approval, flew Honduran troop reinforcements to the border area.

In New York, Nicaragua's ambassador to the United Nations, Nora Astorga, said Wednesday she had asked U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to send a fact-finding mission to the border. Honduras rejected the proposal.

In Managua, Ortega said, "We have not invaded Honduras, nor would we ever ... The problem was created by Honduras in giving in to U.S. pressures and allowing the Contra bases in its territory."

Ortega spoke late Wednesday at a gathering marking International Human Rights Day. About 20 people identified as soldiers and civilians wounded in battles with the Contra rebels were lined up in front of the stage where the president spoke.

Among those in the audience was American singer-songwriter Kris Kristofferson. Kristofferson said he was "just fact-finding," and was on a week-long visit sponsored by a Los Angeles-based group called the Common Sense Foundation.

Alleged Contra abuses reportedly go to grand jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allegations of gunrunning and other offenses by Nicaraguan Contra rebels and by some American supporters are being examined by a grand jury in Miami, a federal official says.

The official, who insisted on anonymity, said Wednesday that the federal grand jury investigation started last month, but refused to say who was the target of the probe or who had been called as witnesses.

The official also said the probe is not connected — at least now — to other investigations under way in Washington into the diversion of $10 million to $30 million from Iranian arms sales to the Contras.

Last April, The Associated Press reported that federal investigators were examining allegations that Nicaraguan Contra rebels and private American backers had engaged in gunrunning, drug trafficking and Neutrality Act violations.

The Neutrality Act makes it a crime to initiate or organize, on American soil, military attacks against a country with which the United States is not at war.

In April, the investigation, conducted by the FBI with other federal agencies, already had spanned at least seven states and reached into Central America, The AP said.

But the probe then appeared to stall. In May, Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten said, "We examined and conducted interviews on every lead or bit of information that we had passed along. None of them led anywhere with the possible exception of one. There just wasn't anything there."

Last May in an interview with the AP in Miami, U.S. Attorney Leon Kellner acknowledged that he had discussed the case with Attorney General Edwin Meese III and other top Justice Department officials, but denied that any pressure had been placed on his office to delay the investigation.

During the spring, President Reagan lobbied hard to win congressional approval for $100 million in military and other aid for the Contras, who are fighting Nicaragua's leftist government. Reversing positions it had taken since 1984, Congress finally approved the military aid last summer.

Law enforcement sources have said the strongest case of an alleged Contra weapons shipment was one from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., to El Salvador's Ilopango military airfield in March 1985.

Four rebel supporters told the AP for the April article that they helped collect weapons from two Miami homes and took the shipment to Ft. Lauderdale for the flight. The supporters said the weapons included a 20mm cannon, several M-60 machine guns, M-16 and AK-47 rifles, a case of G-3 rifles, mortar shells and crates of ammunition.

One of the supporters, Steven Carr, said the weapons were stored at Ilopango for two weeks and then shipped to a rebel base camp in northern Costa Rica as part of an effort to build a southern front for the Contras.

The U.S. official who confirmed the existence of the grand jury said federal investigators also have received allegations linking the Contras and some of their backers to drug trafficking but added that those charges appear less substantial than the gunrunning issue.

Congressional Democrats are asking that an independent counsel, expected to be named to investigate the Iranian-Contra link, be granted broad authority to examine the administration's full secret role in aiding the Contras during a two-year ban on U.S. military assistance.

In requesting an independent counsel, which must be appointed by a three-judge federal court, Meese asked that the counsel examine only the diversion of Iranian profits to the Contras.

Several House Judiciary Committee Democrats, led by Rep. John Conyers of Michigan, have called for a more comprehensive probe. They argue that administration officials may have violated other U.S. laws by arranging aid to the Contras in concert with private citizens.

Ag chairman de La Garza says farm bill working fine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ignoring criticism over the rising cost of the U.S. farm bill, House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza said the measure is working well and needs only fine tuning and time.

The government spent a record $25.6 billion on agriculture programs in 1986 after annual levels of about $4 billion through the 1970s. Rumblings are coming from the Office of Management and Budget about a major cut this year.

But de la Garza, a paunchy South Texan who sports tailored suits, horn-rimmed glasses and a disarming folksy manner, said farming is on the rebound, thanks in part to the 1985 farm bill he helped author.

"I think we've bottomed out because inflation is down, interest rates are working down, value of land seems to be stabilizing," said de la Garza, D-Mission. "We're reducing surpluses, stabilizing prices. Beyond that you just pray and hold your fingers crossed."

The congressman said incoming House Speaker Jim Wright has already set the agenda for the upcoming session, which includes a thorough look at the farm program soon after the 100th Congress convenes Jan 6.

"Once we address the issue then we have to set the priorities. Whether there is something we can do, I don't know. My plan is to bring everybody in, everybody who has an idea, everybody who has a plan," de la Garza said.

The question Americans must ask themselves is whether U.S. farmers are worthy of a 2 or 3 percent dent in the total budget, which translates to about $25 billion, he said.

"My prediction is that I feel it in my bones that we're coming around. But you can't let it sit there. You have to fine-tune. You have to listen to the motor, and if it isn't purring just right you have to see if you have to change a spark plug here or a fan belt there. And that's what we're doing."

Trade legislation is a big part of that, de la Garza said. But the Foreign Affairs or Ways and Means committees have jurisdiction over trade.

"If they make Japan understand that they have to open up for automobiles or radios or televisions then we tag along and say you have to open up for meat and oranges," the congressman said.

Loss of markets from Latin America and the Caribbean following the banking crisis of the early 1980s has hurt U.S. farmers, de la Garza said. Crippling interest payments on loans have left many countries with no money to buy U.S. products.

"To buy from us they have to have dollars. So, we have to buy from them so they can make dollars to buy from us," de la Garza said.

"What we have to do is see where we can work with them to complement them. We can grow cantaloupes in the U.S. from May through November, let's say, then we say 'you ship them to us duty free from December through May. I think this can work because our weather is reversed,'" the congressman said.

"We don't want to put them in competition with us. That doesn't help either side. But we can put them into unison with us," de la Garza said.

Grain glut is only temporary

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world grain glut of the last five years shouldn't be taken as a sign of bountiful supplies and low prices for the future, the head of a private research organization says.

Although farmers have produced a worldwide grain surplus of about 20 million tons a year for the past five years, leading to a market glut and low prices, a significant part of the world's grain is grown on marginal land that won't sustain production in the long run, said Lester R. Brown, an agricultural economist.

Brown, president of the Worldwatch Institute, which examines global environmental, population and economic trends, commented Wednesday in a forum previewing his organization's fourth annual State of the World report.

In the United States alone, about one-sixth of the annual grain crop of 300 million metric tons cannot be sustained, said Brown, who based his calculation on published and unpublished Agriculture Department reports.

A metric ton, equal to 1.1 U.S. tons, is the equivalent of 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

Forty-eight million metric tons of the unsustainable production is on 45 million acres of highly erodible land earmarked for retirement under the Food Security Act of 1985, he said.

An additional 9 million metric tons is grown on irrigated land which will have to be retired or converted to dryland farming because of falling water tables, he said.

"If you compare that to the rate of buildup in world grain stocks (of 20 million tons a year) ... you can see how fragile the surplus of grain is,"

Brown said. "... You begin to sense that we now have an exaggerated view of what we might call 'real' grain production."

Another ominous trend, Brown said, is the growing amount of fuel expended for powering tractors, pumping water and producing fertilizer.

In 1950, it took a world average of 0.44 barrels of oil to produce a ton of grain, he said. That has nearly tripled to 1.2 barrels per ton in 1986.

"How long can this increasing energy intensity, specifically oil intensity, ... continue when world oil production is declining and will decline in the long term," he said.

"The interesting question is what happens to food prices, what happens to millions of consumers around the world when the next oil crunch comes, probably in the early 1990s.

"World food production is far more energy intensive than it was in 1973, when the first oil crisis came," he said.

According to Department of Agriculture figures cited by Brown, the energy used in world agriculture has increased from the equivalent of 276 million barrels of oil in 1950 to 970 million barrels in 1970 to 1.9 billion barrels in 1985.

Worldwatch Institute's 1987 State of the World report, examining trends in fields ranging from nuclear energy to trash recycling, is due out in February. Past reports have been translated into nine languages and are used in more than 200 college courses, Brown said.

Small-scale office will be small farm voice at USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's not a large-scale office yet. It's the Agriculture Department's new Office for Small-Scale Agriculture.

Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng said the new office will be headed by Howard (Bud) Kerr, an agricultural economist specializing in small farms.

Kerr has operated virtually as a one-man advocacy for small-scale farming in USDA and has now been given new status under the overall jurisdiction of Assistant Secretary Orville G. Bentley, who oversees science and education programs.

Lyng said the office will work with other USDA agencies "to focus department expertise and resources on issues concerning small-scale farming" and will coordinate its efforts with other rural development activities within the department.

Kerr said Tuesday that changing trends in recent years have turned many small farms into viable economic enterprises.

"Small farms have increased in number and importance partly as a result of consumers' increased preference for fresh, locally grown farm produce," he said. "Another reason is the increase in direct marketing avenues, including local retail farm markets."

According to the 1982 census, the number of farms of less than 50 acres in size has increased 17 percent since 1978, from 540,000 units to 637,000. Many are operated by part-time farmers who produce vegetables, fruits, nursery plants, honey and livestock.

In a speech earlier this year to an association of herb growers, Kerr offered his own definition of a small farming operation:

"Any individual or farm family engaged in any enterprises of agriculture, either full- or part-time, for the purpose of earning income and who annually files a Schedule F farm income tax return with the standard form 1040 to the Internal Revenue Service on a regular basis."

Kerr said he omitted the traditional measures used in other definitions, such as the number of acres and level of income.

Will aim to stop McKinney running back Randy Simmons

Herd prepares for 4A semifinal battle

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

The game plan for the Hereford Whitefaces Saturday night will include stopping the McKinney Lions' running back Randy Simmons, and playing ball control offense.

Hereford, 12-1 for the season, battles McKinney, 13-1 at 8 p.m. Saturday at Texas Stadium, in a state class 4A semifinal football game. McKinney has played one more game than Hereford because the Lions' schedule included a zone playoff game in District 5-4A.

The winner goes on to the state championship game, to play the winner of the other semifinal matchup between West Orange-Stark and New Braunfels.

McKinney relies heavily on one player for its success, running back Randy Simmons, a 6-foot-2, 215-pound senior. He has rushed 261 times for 2,198 yards in 14 games this season.

Simmons has scored 39 touchdowns this season, 34 of them rushing. He has returned two kickoffs for touchdowns and has caught three touchdown passes. His receiving stats are 21 catches for 363 yards.

"What you've got to do is to control Simmons. He's going to make some yards, but you've got to keep him from making the big play," Hereford Coach Don Cumpton said. McKinney uses the I-formation on offense.

"Our defensive team is accepting the challenge to stop Simmons. They're looking forward to playing against him. We've been improving every week," Cumpton said.

"Our offense performed extremely well against Hirschi. We needed to control the football against Hirschi, and it's going to be the same this week."

"Our offense needs to execute well. The best way to stop Simmons is to keep him off the field, and that is by controlling the offense," Cumpton declares.

McKinney's basic defensive formation is a 5-2 defense. "They do a lot of different looks on defense. And you have to really concentrate on what you're doing, so you won't miss any assignments," Coach Cumpton said.

McKinney defeated Boswell 68-14 in the District 5-4A zone playoffs. In the state 4A playoffs, McKinney's wins have been 38-12 over Seagoville, 24-22 over Corsicana, and 48-13 over Wilmer-Hutchins.

The Lions' game against Wilmer-Hutchins was played at Texas Stadium. Simmons rushed 34 times for 278 yards, caught three passes for 56 yards, and scored four touchdowns.

McKinney defeated Corsicana when Jay Bob Harris kicked a field goal with 24 seconds left in the game. Harris also kicked a winning field goal for the Lions in a 22-21 district win over Rockwall.

Along with Simmons in the backfield, three tailbacks see action. Sammy Walker, a 6-foot, 170-pound senior, has rushed 92 times for 767 yards and seven touchdowns this season.

Junior Anderson has carried 59 times for 409 yards and five touchdowns, and Matthew Allen has rushed 64 times for 360 yards and two touchdowns. Anderson is a 5-foot-8, 170-pound senior, and Allen is a 5-foot-6, 190-pound senior.

McKinney's starting quarterback is Johnny Honea, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior. He has completed 44 of 82 passes for 775 yards and nine touchdowns, with five interceptions thrown.

Honea missed five games because of a broken leg suffered in McKinney's 16-11 win over Denison. He returned to full action in the Boswell game.

The quarterback during Honea's absence was John Poe, who has completed 16 of 32 passes for 346 yards and three touchdowns, with three interceptions.

McKinney's leading receivers, in addition to Simmons, are split end Marc Jackson, a 6-foot-2, 175-pound senior, and tight end Tommy Winburn, a 6-foot-3, 235-pound junior. Jackson has caught 30 passes for 583 yards and five touchdowns, and Winburn has 14 catches for 210 yards and five touchdowns.

Here are some comparison's of offensive team stats between Hereford and McKinney:

Rushing yards per game: Hereford, 175.1; McKinney, 297.8.

Passing yards per game: Hereford, 125.8; McKinney, 93.9.

Total offense per game: Hereford, 300.9; McKinney, 391.7.

First downs per game: Hereford, 17.6; McKinney, 18.9.

Points per game: Hereford, 23.7; McKinney, 37.0.

According to season defensive statistics, the two teams are quite even. Here is the statistical comparison:

Rushing yards allowed per game: Hereford, 134.5; McKinney, 151.1.

Passing yards allowed per game: Hereford, 102.0; McKinney, 80.9.

Total offense allowed per game: Hereford, 236.5; McKinney, 232.0.

First downs allowed per game: Hereford, 12.7; McKinney, 13.3.

Points allowed per game: Hereford, 11.8; McKinney, 12.3.

The Hereford Whiteface offense will go against a McKinney Lion defense whose starters include Sammy Walker and Marc Jackson in the secondary; 5-foot-11, 185-pound senior cornerback Jayson Binion; 5-foot-7, 155-pound senior linebacker Eddie Underwood; 5-foot-10, 195-pound senior linebacker Tom Crump; and the field goal kicker, Jay Bob Harris, who is a 5-foot-6, 165-pound junior linebacker.

The Whiteface offensive team's statistical leaders are quarterback Todd Shire, running backs Mark Artho, Vincent Brown and Marcus Brown; and receivers Bobby Baker, Chris Johnson, and Kyle Streun.

Shire's passing statistics for the season are now 115 completions in 224 attempts for 1,542 yards and 17 touchdowns.

Artho has carried 197 times for 1,135 yards and seven touchdowns. Vincent Brown, who led Hereford in rushing against Wichita Falls Hirschi with 94 yards, has rushed 138 times for 646 yards and 13 touchdowns. Marcus Brown has 350 yards rushing in 86 attempts, with four touchdowns scored.

Baker's receiving stats are 59 catches for 795 yards and 11 touchdowns. Johnson has 17 receptions for 269 yards and one touchdown, and Streun has 15 receptions for 168 yards and two touchdowns.

Marcus Brown is also in double figures in the number of passes caught, with 14 for 179 yards and two touchdowns.

The farther the Whitefaces progress in the playoffs, the greater is the importance of executing the offensive plays, as Cumpton pointed out. A good offensive game, including scoring, will be a key against the high scoring Lions.

The Herd defense will aim to thwart the Lions' scoring machine. Here are the tackles per game averages of the leading Hereford defensive players, those who have averaged four tackles or more:

Michael Phibbs, 10.0; Lee Young, 5.9; Ricky Ruiz, 5.8; Derrell Page, 5.6; Johnny Beltran, 4.9; Trent Bowling, 4.6; Robby Collier, 4.4; and Bobby Medina, 4.2.

Seventeen times this season, an individual Herd defensive player has totaled 10 or more tackles in one game. Eight of them have accomplished that in playoff games.

Phibbs has recorded 10 or more tackles in six games, with his 17 against Big Spring the best one-game total of the year for the Whitefaces.

Page, Young and McCracken each have two games of 10 tackles.

"We're really proud of our team. They've done everything we've asked them to do," Coach Cumpton said.

"We're looking forward to playing McKinney. We'll be the underdogs, and that's nothing new to us. We've been the underdog two of the last three weeks."

"Our kids set the goal a long time ago to get a chance to play for the championship, and this game is the next one on the ladder."

"These kids here, this group of players have something special inside of them. That's why they've been winning and they'll rise to the occasion this week," Cumpton states.

Only one Whiteface player, Bill Ruckman, suffered an injury in the Hirschi game. Ruckman has a strained achilles tendon and is questionable for Saturday's game.

Cumpton said everyone else is ready and that Westley Brown, an offensive lineman who was injured early in the season, will suit up.

"Westley will suit up. I don't know if he'll play, but if he does, it will probably be limited," Cumpton said.

Giving Hirschi That Rundown Feeling

Hereford Whiteface linebacker Bobby Medina (30) and defensive end Derrell Page (57) chase after Wichita Falls Hirschi quarterback Keith Stevenson (17) in last Saturday's state quarterfinal game, won by the Herd 17-12. Page had seven tackles in the game, and Medina had five tackles. Medina sacked Stevenson twice and Page sacked him once. Medina also had three tackles for losses and knocked down one pass. Hereford plays McKinney at 8 p.m. Saturday at Texas Stadium in Irving in the state class 4A semifinals. (Brand photo by Shawn Cockrum)

Walcott boys tie for first place in tournament

The Walcott School boys' basketball team finished in a three-way tie for first place in the Walcott Tournament last Friday and Saturday.

Walcott, St. Anthony's, and Bovina all had 2-1 records in the round-robin tournament, in which Wildorado also played.

The same four schools had teams play in the girls' division, with St. Anthony's, Bovina, and Wildorado all tying for first place with 2-1 records.

Four Walcott players were named to the all-tournament teams — Goyo Chavez and Corin Carillo to the boys' all-tournament team, and Michelle Meyer and Amy Solomon to the girls' all-tournament team.

Here are the final scores of the tournament games, in the order the games were played in each division:

Boys' division: St. Anthony's 44,

Wildorado 14; Walcott 32, Bovina 24; Bovina 24, Wildorado 15; Walcott 33, Wildorado 26; Bovina 35, St. Anthony's 25; St. Anthony's 34, Walcott 33.

Girls' division: St. Anthony's 28, Wildorado 22; Bovina 25, Walcott 13; Bovina 18, St. Anthony's 17; Wildorado 23, Bovina 19; Wildorado 43, Walcott 35; St. Anthony's 24, Walcott 22.

Goyo Chavez led Walcott with 15 points in the Walcott boys' 32-24 victory over Bovina. Corin Carillo scored nine points.

Carillo and Chavez each scored in double figures in Walcott's other tournament games. In the 33-26 win over Wildorado, Carillo scored 17 points and Chavez had 14 points.

In the 34-33 loss to St. Anthony's, Carillo totaled 20 points and Chavez scored 10 points.

Michelle Meyer was high scorer for Walcott in all three of the Walcott girls' games. Meyer scored 13 versus Bovina, 20 versus Wildorado, and 18 versus St. Anthony's.

Amy Solomon was in double figures for Walcott against Wildorado, totaling 11 points.

On Monday this week, the Walcott boys' and girls' games at Wildorado were called off. Next action for the Walcott teams will be at Hartley on Monday, starting at 6 p.m.

Pheasant season opens this weekend

By MARK McDONALD Dallas Times Herald

Motels in Hereford are booked. The cafes in Vega have set up overtime shifts for fry cooks and waitresses. Drive-in grocers are braced for a run on beer. Skycaps at the Lubbock and Amarillo airports are resting up for the flood of visitors.

Christmas rush? A cotton growers' convention? Cattleman's roundup? Come Saturday, it's ringnecked pheasant season, the Mardi Gras of the Texas Panhandle.

Hunting the colorful gamebirds has become so popular in recent years, the opening of the 16-day season running through Dec. 28 virtually splits tiny farming and oil patch communities at the seams. And Panhandle residents don't just greet visiting hunters, they join in the celebration.

The Moose Lodge in Spearman will be crowded with locals and visitors alike when the buffet opens for the Saturday morning hunters' breakfast. Three bucks a plate. And you can bet your last shotgun shell the Dalhart 4-H Club will go all out throwing its barbecue Saturday night.

"The night before opening day," said Phil Evans, a game biologist with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and one of the nation's top authorities on pheasants, "it one big carnival."

So it is. The Texas Department of Agriculture offers a hunting lease referral system. Chambers of commerce carry listings of landowners willing to grant trespass privileges to the thoughtful sportsman. The going rate is $50 to $75 a day, higher if it includes lodging, guide, dogs, etc.

Resorts such as Bill and Jan McKee's Flying MK near Bonham offer gourmet food and carpet-on-the-floor lodging to go with their hunts on explosive, wild-like birds released in prime upland bird habitat.

The Dumas 4-H Club offered two-day guided hunts in nearby grain fields and filled all 100 openings.

"I've turned down 300 others," said Ken Coffey, who runs the outings for the club. "We're out of room."

This comes as good news for a region struggling to overcome slumping agriculture and petroleum markets. Thousands of sportsmen from Dallas, San Antonio, Austin, Houston and other population centers will bring millions of dollars to the Panhandle during their once-a-year trip.

"The bird makes such a pretty trophy and it's the kind of hunting that can be done in groups," Evans said. "It can get to be quite a social event."

Opening weekend is especially festive. Evans said field studies show that 90 percent of the estimated 25,000 ringnecks shot all of last season were taken the first Saturday and Sunday.

Evans stops short of predicting a banner season. "You can have a snowstorm or high winds that will hamper hunting," he said. "You can't predict hunting conditions."

But he said the Panhandle birds "got off a good hatch last summer. We had ample precipitation and the cover is plentiful. We figure it will be a good year."

Strangely, census figures taken by field crews in September, then again in October, indicate that sportsmen will do a lot more hunting than finding. From an all-time high of 5.52 birds per mile sighted in 1982, the number dipped to 4.2 in '83 and bottomed out in '84 at 2.2. Last year, the birds rallied to 2.6 per mile and Evans sees more of the same for this year, despite surveys that show only 2.16 birds per mile.

"We got a crummy census," said Evans. "I know 2.16 is the number we have to go with in our reports, but it needs to be qualified. There is much more vegetation in the weed patches and playa lakes. Cover was so good our visibility was reduced. We just couldn't see the birds to make effective counts."

Bill Lyles, who lives and hunts in the Muleshoe area, agrees.

"It will be hard to make a whole day's hunt," he said. "If you can't get your limit (two cocks per day) by 10 o'clock something's wrong."

Ken Coffey in Dumas put it this way: "We've got birds running out our ears."

Such was not always the case. Texas did not hold its first open season until 1958, and that was a two-weekend-only session confined to Dallam County, located where Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico meet on the windswept plains.

"We had a few landowners making local releases of birds they bought, but most of those birds were wandering in from Colorado, Oklahoma or Kansas — or any state that wants to take the credit," Evans said.

By the mid-1960s, though, when Texas farmers began to use new irrigation methods to stimulate their crops south into the Hereford area, ringnecks came with the sprinklers. To stock the eastern half of the Panhandle, especially south of the Canadian River breaks near Pampa, Texas Parks & Wildlife released pheasants they had trapped in the Dalhart area.

"Most of the Panhandle is fairly flat," Evans said. "But the Canadian River is a 40-mile gap in the terrain that we didn't feel the birds could negotiate. We just gave Mother Nature a hand."

Sportsmen have taken it from there, concentrating their efforts on large fields of planted grain crops such as milo.

The birds roost on the ground in clumps of grass or weeds where they share overnight sentinel duties to watch for raccoons, coyotes and other natural enemies. Evans said the birds begin moving from the roost into grain fields about dawn.

This is where hunters get most of their shooting. Tradition calls for half the hunting party to spread out 25 to 50 yards apart and walk up the planted rows. At the end of the field, the other half of the group station themselves as blockers to keep the birds from running out of the end of the field. Opening day is not a good time to break in a new pair of hiking boots.

Shots normally come as the walkers draw within 75 yards of the blockers. Because the birds weigh up to four pounds each, a 12-gauge shotgun is the preferred weapon. Size 6 shot is the most popular size.

Caution in this close-order shooting is advised. Hunters should allow the flushing pheasant to reach a safe height before shooting and hens are off-limits. Shoot only after the distinctive red, white and black markings on the head and tailfeathers can be identified.

By late morning, the birds return to the roost for several hours of "dusting and loafing," Evans said. The last hour of daylight is reserved for another trip to the grain fields before the birds return to the roost at dusk.

As opening day approaches, Evans says Panhandle residents and their prospective visitors have reason for optimism.

"We know we had successful nesting this year," he said. "I think we're looking at a good season."

Rockets defeat Phoenix, 117-109

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix Suns Coach John MacLeod says he's always worried when another National Basketball Association team comes to town after suffering a lopsided loss because "they're usually loaded for bear."

Wednesday night, the Houston Rockets were and they rallied for a 117-109 victory over the Suns to snap a four-game losing streak.

Ralph Sampson scored 29 points and Lewis Lloyd came off the bench to add 11 of his 23 in the fourth quarter, including a decisive three-point play with 1:33 remaining.

Houston was coming off a 136-80 loss Saturday night to Seattle — the Rockets' worst loss at home in their history.

"We were concerned about this ballgame after the situation they had against Seattle. We knew they would bounce back and they did," MacLeod said. "You have to give Houston credit. They made a tremendous comeback."

Phoenix, which had won four straight games, led 109-108 with 1:42 remaining on Walter Davis' two free throws.

But the Rockets scored the last nine points of the game, starting with Lloyd's three-point play that put them ahead to stay at 111-109.

Suns center Alvan Adams was called for goaltending on Jim Peterson's layin with 1:01 left and Sampson then hit a jumper to make it 115-109.

Rodney McCray, who had 19 points, sank two free throws with 16 seconds left to wrap up the victory.

Larry Nance paced Phoenix with 23 points. Adams had 22, Ed Pinckney 19 and Davis 18.

The Suns, who led 25-9 in the first period, took a 36-26 advantage into the second quarter and were ahead 64-60 at halftime.

Houston rallied to take an 85-82 lead after three quarters.

"We had them down by 16 points in the first quarter and they came back. They had a tremendous second quarter and the second half was close all the way, right to the end," MacLeod said. "They ran well, defended well and Lloyd and Sampson both had big nights for them."

Rockets Coach Bill Fitch said he laid things on the line midway through the first quarter.

"When it was 16-3, I got hot," he said. "I can't tell you exactly what I said. It was colorful language. We put ourselves in a spot that bordered on ridiculous. I was about to grab 10 ears. When you're coming off a 56-point loss and you get in a situation like that, you've got to do something to get their attention."

"But once 'Lew' got out there, that picked us up and made us a little more effective," Fitch added. "Once we made two baskets in a row, that gave us a little confidence to get back in it."

Annual Christmas coffee held for W.M.U., guests

Members of the Women's Missionary Union council served as hostesses to members and guests at their annual Christmas coffee held Saturday in the home of Ella Oglesby, 245 Centre.

The refreshment table was draped with a green cloth and a green net overlay which was accented with sequined poinsettias. The centerpiece consisted of an arrangement of red poinsettias adorned with red candles. Other appointments included Christmas napkins and a silver coffee service.

Nine members of the W.M.U. council served refreshments of choice crisps, sausage balls, assorted cookies, fruit plate, hot spiced tea and coffee.

Cliff Jones appointed

Cliff E. Jones of Hereford was appointed District Deputy Grand Master for the Texas Masonic Grand Lodge at its annual meeting in Waco Dec. 4-6, 1986.

He is past master of Hereford Lodge No. 849 in Hereford.

As district deputy, Jones will represent Grand Master John E. (Jack) Kelly of San Antonio in the 100th Masonic District during 1987. The district includes five lodges in Castro, Parmer, Oldham and Deaf Smith Counties.

The Grand Lodge celebrates its 150th birthday during 1987, having been founded in 1837 by Sam Houston, Anson Jones and other early Texas Masons.

Jones said that special programs will be held in all lodges in his district to observe the Grand Lodge birthday.

The Grand Lodge is the governing body for 959 Texas Masonic lodges with over 200,000 members, making it the largest fraternal order in the state. There are some 5 million members of the Masonic Fraternity worldwide.

One of the most famous missing persons in history, Judge Joseph F. Crater of the New York State Supreme Court, disappeared on Aug. 6, 1930.

Ways with Wine

A GUARANTEE
Italy's DOC (Denominazione d'Origine Controllata) laws correspond roughly to France's AOC wine laws. They control labeling, geographic designations, grape varieties, and other related matters. Now, Italy is introducing a new category, DOCG. So far, it has been granted to only five wines: Brunello, Vino Nobile d'Montepulciano, Barberesco, Barolo, and Chianti. The "G" stands for "guaranteed." The Italian government is trying to guarantee the quality of its wine. The wines so designated must be tested, each vintage at several stages, by a panel of experts. The panel certifies that the wine is sufficiently fine to be called by its prestigious name. Any wine that does not measure up is supposed to be declassified. It can then only be sold as a simple red table wine.

"A World of Wines" awaits you here at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802 where we are open Mon.-Sat. 10-9. Use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12. Women of St. Thomas Episcopal Church were recently entertained at a luncheon in the home of President Olivia Denning.

Mary Fraser gave the devotional with the subject being "Children's Image of God."

During the business meeting, the group planned a bake sale at 10 a.m. Saturday in Sugarland Mall. Members were reminded to sell cookbooks entitled "Cuisine a la Mexicana". The price of the cookbooks compiled by the women is $6.

Members also decided to host a wedding reception for Kim Claypool and Jerry Little Dec. 21 at the church and Father Charles Threewit suggested that a show and tell program be held at the January meeting. At the meeting, members will be asked to exhibit the needlepoint for the altar kneelers.

A Christian renewal program, entitled "Faith Alive," will be held the first weekend in March. Butch and Sheri Davis are in charge of arrangements.

The next regularly scheduled meeting will be at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 3, 1987.

Man shortage

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After reading letters in your column about the so-called man shortage, I decided to write and offer yet another viewpoint on why so many women are going without.

While I believe that men are partially responsible for the problem I also believe that women have brought a lot of it on themselves.

To create an even greater man shortage, women today need only follow the following recipe: I guarantee it will work.

Look only for men who are tall, handsome and/or very rich. Exclude those who have receding chins, are bald and can't dance. If he doesn't "dress for success," assume he is an automatic loser.

Harbor unrealistic ideas about what men are supposed to be. No man must have family problems, financial problems or housing problems. It goes without saying that he must never have dental or health problems.

Play head games. Always assume there is a perfect man waiting for you to brighten his life. And, of course, he is far better than the one you are now involved with.

If you have problems with a man, remember it's always his fault. He would be trouble-free if he weren't so insensitive, stupid, selfish and hung-up on his mother.

Mix all the above ingredients. Stir well, spice things up by adding a dash of radical feminism and the "have it all" philosophy. Chill the mixture by waiting till hell freezes over for the guy to appear and change your life. The results are guaranteed. A worse man-shortage than ever before. This recipe serves nobody.—BEEN THERE AND REGRET IT

DEAR B.T.: OK, so you've been there. Now, how about going somewhere else? You sound like a lady with a good set of brains. There's a lot to be said for knowing what doesn't work. Thanks for a darned good letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I comment about those who have written about the theft of jewelry from a loved one laid out in the funeral parlor?

Don't the fools know you can't take it with you? And if they try, what in heaven's name are they going to do with it wherever they go? It is just plain dumb to bury wealth in the ground. Wouldn't it be much more sensible to sell the jewelry and donate the proceeds to a worthy cause? There are so many people who could use a little help.

Please keep trying to educate the public, Ann. I'm appalled at the abysmal ignorance out there.—R.H. FROM KENMORE, N.Y.

DEAR R.H.: I believe you misunderstood. Very seldom are the deceased buried with the jewelry worn while on display in the mortuary. It is almost always removed before the casket is closed.

As for the "abysmal ignorance out there," we are all ignorant - only on different subjects.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My fiance and I play gin rummy for money. Our games are dead serious and the loser pays off. Last night halfway through the game Joey asked me if I had thrown the king of diamonds.

I said, "You're supposed to remember." He got mad, called me a lousy sport and left. How about it? Is a player supposed to tell which cards have been played?—LUCKY LAURIE IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR L.L.: In a serious game the players are expected to remember which cards have been played. From the sound of things you two had better throw in the deck.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Brownies, Girl Scouts meet Tuesday

Santa Claus payed a visit and talked with each girl as he distributed candy canes.

Canned food was brought by the groups which will be donated to the Deaf Smith County Red Cross Chapter.

Recognized as special guests were girls and their leaders from Vega.

The 40 girls present and leaders were served Christmas cookies and punch and played several games.

Special people send out their holiday greetings

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Holiday cards featuring Jane Layfield watercolors are $5.50 a dozen, but the artist invests far more than that in the work.

Ms. Layfield invests her movement, the product of energy drawn from a dwindling bank.

She has multiple sclerosis, a disease of the central nervous system in which nerve impulses from the affected part of the body to the brain are blocked by scar tissue on nerve fibers.

MS victims tire easily, Ms. Layfield said. They have less energy than most people.

"I know if I get going too hard or don't stop to rest, I'm going to pay for it," she said. "With MS, it takes you longer to get things done."

"It isn't that there aren't enough hours in the day; there isn't enough energy."

The Tarrant County Multiple Sclerosis Association is offering three different holiday greeting cards featuring reproductions of Layfield watercolors, along with one by John Williams, husband of an MS patient.

MS strikes different people in different ways. In Ms. Layfield's case, the disease has a slow progression rather than good times and bad times.

"Normally ... unless I tell them, people don't know I have it," she said.

Ms. Layfield doesn't know exactly how long she's MS.

"I think it was finally diagnosed in the early '70s, but as I look back it was far before that," she said.

MS is difficult to diagnose. Ms. Layfield finally was referred to a neurologist. By then she had started going numb from the waist down.

"The neurologist said it's either MS or a tumor on the spinal cord."

A myelogram (dye in the spinal canal) confirmed MS.

"Years ago ... they just said, OK, go sit down ...," she said, since there was not much medical treatment.

"I'm aware of changes (in abilities)," Ms. Layfield said. "It may be a matter of a year before something (a change) hits me because I work really hard at not thinking about it."

"You just don't dare dwell on it. That's where painting comes in."

"I've always loved it and I'm just thankful to have it. It's the best therapy in the world for me."

"There's no way you can think about anything else while you're painting."

"When I paint, I can't think of anything but the painting — which is wonderful."

Ms. Layfield said she began painting seriously in 1964, first in oils, then in watercolors. She attends workshops to improve her painting; she can't last through all-day events, but can catch up later.

And she is, she said, strictly amateur, though she has occasionally sold her work at "starving artist" shows.

"This is strictly a hobby. If I was trying to do it to make money I'd starve to death."

The scenes (the snow is a remembrance of her years in Ohio, not the past 25 in Texas) are her first in card form.

"I'm delighted that I would be asked and that they will help with the fund-raising," Ms. Layfield said. "But I look at them and say, oh, I wish I could do them over again."

She said she plans to continue painting, though her world is one in which she has to carefully plan and prepare for energy expenditure, even the energy it takes to go to church.

"I don't undertake things on Wednesday if I want to go to church Wednesday night," Ms. Layfield said. "You have to plan it out."

"I can do lots of things with my energy that don't do what painting does for me mentally."

"It keeps my humor where it ought to be."

DR. GOTT Treatment of corneal dystrophy

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What is corneal dystrophy?

DEAR READER — The cornea, the transparent front of the eye, contains five layers of cells. When one or more of these layers loses cells, corneal dystrophy results. The most common form of dystrophy involves the inner layer, the endothelium. This causes corneal swelling.

Most types of corneal dystrophy affect vision. Medical treatment with special contact lenses may help dystrophy of the outer cornea, but if the inner layers are involved, a cloudy film can develop. Then the best treatment is a corneal implant, in which the old cornea is removed and a new one applied in its place.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In a recent column you stated that Peritrate is used to reduce the stickiness of blood. I always believed that Peritrate was a form of nitroglycerine. Am I right?

DEAR READER — Alas, you are. I am going to have to improve my handwriting. Peritrate is used for coronary artery disease. It is classed as "possibly" effective in alleviating angina, a form of heart-muscle spasm. The reason that Peritrate (and other nitroglycerine compounds) works is obscure. I'm sorry for the confusion.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I take Aldactazide and Aldomet for high blood pressure. My gout pills are Colbenemid and Zylprim. Why do you suppose that a couple of fresh college doctors changed me from one blood-pressure pill to two? Could I possibly go back to one blood-pressure pill and one gout pill?

DEAR READER — This is a specific question that is best asked of your doctors. The answer depends on your personal preferences and the effects the medicines have on you. In general, patients' problems can usually be handled by one or two medicines.

For example, Aldactazide actually contains two diuretic drugs: hydrochlorothiazide and spironolactone. The two drugs work well together and with Aldomet (methyl-dopa). However, all three drugs have side effects. In particular, hydrochlorothiazide can cause gout in susceptible individuals. Therefore, when taking it, you may need an anti-gout medicine, such as Colbenemid and Zylprim.

There are other drugs (for high blood pressure) that do not cause gout. Captopril and the beta-blockers are examples. If your doctors agree, you could consider changing from your present array of medications to one of the newer, single agents. This way, your blood pressure would be controlled and you would not necessarily have to take one — or more — anti-gout pills.

Your physicians may have special reasons for prescribing as they have, and the alternatives suggested above may not be appropriate in your case. Ask them.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 33 and am six months pregnant, and this will be my fourth C-section in five years. My doctor wants to do an amniocentesis test in my eighth month. I feel that

Federal court considers appeal to rule

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. District Judge James Nowlin has taken under consideration an appeal of a University of Texas rule limiting distribution of publications by student organizations.

The appeal was filed by the Texas Review Society, a conservative student group. UT officials said Wednesday there is no effort to control content of the paper and that the rule's only intent is to limit commercial solicitations on campus.

Nowlin said he would make a decision after legal briefs are submitted by Dec. 17.

Susan Dasher, a Texas Civil Liberties Union attorney, said the Texas Review Society had dropped its earlier claim the rule violated guarantees of freedom of the press.

The student group has an advisory board headed by Ernest Angelo Jr., of Midland, a national Republican committeeman. Other board members include Bill Clayton, former Texas House speaker; Kent Hince, an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination; and Karl Roe, political consultant who was a top campaign aide for Gov.-elect Bill Clements.

The society, which publishes the Texas Review about six times each school year, has been distributing the paper at a table on campus where society members also try to recruit members.

The UT administration ruled that because the Review carries commercial advertisements, mostly political ads, it must be distributed from unattended receptacles at a site about 75 feet from the table.

The new distribution site is in the same area with an unattended box for distribution of the Daily Texan, the student newspaper which also carries commercial advertisements.

"We believe our distribution will be drastically reduced if we have to go to the new area," said Mike Smith, managing editor of the paper. "Also it will hurt our membership. We get many recruits from talking to students at the table after they see a copy of the paper."

Publisher Drew Coats said the Review, which publishes about 5,500 copies per issue, could not compete at the new location with the Daily Texan and its circulation of 43,000.

But "we have to control commercial solicitation on the campus, not the free flow of ideas," said Ronald Brown, UT vice president for student affairs. "The content of the Review is not considered at all."

Glenn Maloney, assistant dean of students, said, "If we allow the Review with ads on the West Mall, we would have to allow other student organizations to distribute commercial information."

He predicted that opening the West Mall to distribution of commercial advertisements would result in a flood of solicitations from credit card companies, telephone companies, daily newspapers, churches, health clubs and political groups.

Ennis residents upset

ENNIS, Texas (AP) — A proposal to incinerate up to 24 tons of body parts, used surgical instruments and other hospital waste every day has sparked the biggest fury in years in this town best known for its national polka festival.

"This could spell the downfall of the city of Ennis," said Ron Haskovec, a mechanical engineer and a town native.

The plant would be owned by Winfield Environmental Inc. of San Diego, Calif., and could open as soon as three months after the $750,000 renovation of a 10,000 square-foot metal building, said Troy Mitchell, Winfield's director of facilities and operations.

Residents of this community 30 miles south of Dallas fear their town's reputation for folksy charm will be tainted. They also worry that the facility would pose health risks, decrease property values and discourage new businesses from moving to Ennis.

"It has them frightened that some of the parts are going to be diseased," said Bob Klomp, editor of the Ennis Daily News. "They're scared of the smell."

Some residents say medical waste from other towns and cities has no place in Ennis.

"If Ennis is going to grow, it needs to attract clean industry rather than everybody else's garbage," said Margaret Gagnon.

Some residents are concerned that the facility would dispose of aborted fetuses. Howerton said he asked the company for assurances that wouldn't happen, but company officials said they could not guarantee it.

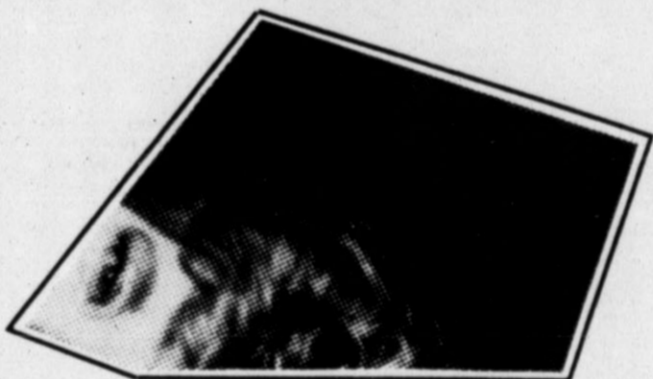

Mitchell said plant workers would be unable to screen all waste disposed at the plant. He said the plant would pose no health threat and emit only an odorless, harmless steam.

City Manager Steve Howerton had to schedule a second meeting last week after more than 300 people came out to discuss the California company's proposal to incinerate wastes from hospitals up to 150 miles away.

Howerton said the city would get only $2,000 to $3,000 in tax revenue from the plant, which would employ 15 people. State officials said the plant would meet all safety requirements.

POLLY'S POINTERS Baked doughnuts can be healthier

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — My husband loves doughnuts, but his doctor says he must stay away from fried foods. Do you know if doughnuts can be baked? I'd like to surprise him with some for a special occasion.

ALICE

DEAR ALICE — These doughnuts are not exactly diet fare, since they do contain eggs and oil, but they are lower in fat than ordinary fried doughnuts. Show the recipe to your husband's doctor to make sure that it's OK for him to enjoy these as a special treat. The cholesterol content can be lowered by substituting four egg whites for the two beaten eggs — or you can use a commercial egg substitute. The recipe is from "Whole Foods for the Whole Family" (La Leche League International, 1981).

In a large bowl, stir together 1 1/2 cups warm water, 1 1/2 tablespoons dry yeast, 1/4 cup honey or brown sugar, 5 tablespoons vegetable oil and 2 beaten eggs. Let stand five minutes, then add 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, cinnamon or allspice, 1/2 cup non-instant dry milk powder (or 2 1/2 cups instant dry milk powder), and 2 1/2 cups whole-wheat pastry flour.

With an electric mixer, beat five minutes. Then work in enough additional whole-wheat pastry flour to make a soft, kneadable dough. Knead five minutes. A slightly sticky dough will make a lighter doughnuts than a dry dough. Let the dough rise one hour in an oiled bowl, punch down and let rise an additional half hour.

Roll dough 1/2 inch thick and cut into doughnut shapes. Place the doughnuts on a baking sheet sprinkled with cornmeal. Brush tops lightly with a little vegetable oil. Let rise one hour. Bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for 15 minutes or until golden brown. The hot doughnuts may be lightly glazed with a simple icing if desired. These are best eaten warm; or they can be

DEAR READERS — Today is Christmas. For this one day, let's not worry about spots and stains or household chores. You can get that candle wax off the tablecloth tomorrow! Instead, let's all have a beautiful day enjoying each other.

If there are children in your house, why not plan a family activity to keep everyone busy and happy after the presents are opened and scattered. Here's a delicious recipe for peanut-butter popcorn balls that are perfect for young and old to make together. Adults or older children will need to cook the hot syrup and blend it with the popped corn, but even the littlest angel in your house will enjoy molding the sticky popcorn into a variety of shapes. The recipe is from "Popcorn Cookery" by Larry Kusche (HP Books, 1977).

Pop enough corn to make two quarts of popped corn. Place the popped corn in a large, 4-inch-deep buttered baking pan and keep it warm in a 250-degree oven while you make the sauce.

In a large saucepan, boil 1 1/2 cups light corn syrup. Then, slowly stir in 1 1/2 cups peanut butter until the peanut butter is melted and well blended with the syrup. Remove the popcorn from the oven and pour the hot syrup mixture over the corn, mixing until all the popcorn is well coated. Let the mixture cool until it can be comfortably handled with bare hands (the corn will not stick together well while the mixture is very hot anyway). Have all the "shapers" wet their hands with cold water or coat them lightly with butter before dipping into corn mixture. Shape the mixture into balls or other simple shapes. Place the finished balls on a lightly buttered cookie sheet to dry.

This recipe should make approximately 12 popcorn balls. Of course, sampling by the workers may not leave you that many balls to dry.

Accused sniper began acting strangely

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A man accused of wounding two people during an 11-hour standoff at the University of Kentucky began acting strangely a month ago, neighbors say, walking "up and down the halls with guns."

The man took one hostage for about three hours and fired shots out a window after walking into a building wearing a black, "Ninja-like outfit" and armed with a shotgun, rifle, pistol and Samurai sword, authorities said.

The former university maintenance worker, identified as Ulysses S. Davis III, 25, was captured when authorities turned a high-pressure fire hose on him, said Sgt. Greg Howard. The water knocked the sword from his hand and pushed him against a wall, "and that made it easy to take him into custody."

Walter Skiba, director of human resources for the university, said Davis was "upset at those who testified" against him when he appealed his July firing for fighting. He had been employed there for four years. Two supervisors, including one held hostage for about three hours, were hospitalized in satisfactory and good condition today.

A couple who work as maintenance managers at Davis' former apartment complex said he had made a sudden change from good tenant to troublemaker, and last month began wearing camouflage clothes and carrying guns.

"He would go up and down the halls with guns — with a shotgun and a pistol," said the woman, who would not give her name.

Davis had lived in the building since March 1985 and usually kept his apartment neat, said Brenda Fletcher, the apartment manager. But before he left, the maintenance managers said, he kicked in the oven door on the range, used a broom handle to break light bulbs in their sockets, broke screens and storm windows, and poured a jar of honey on the floor.

Ms. Fletcher said he may have been angry when he didn't get a deposit refund because the notice was too short.

"I couldn't believe the news when I heard his name mentioned," said Beulah Hale, a secretary for Fayette Security Patrol and Guard, where Davis worked several years ago. "We never had any problems with him."

Wednesday's standoff began about 6 a.m. when the first maintenance crews began arriving for work at the Peterson Services Building.

Davis "was dressed like somebody in the Army ready to go to war" but appeared calm when he bought coffee from a machine before the shooting began, said university employee Shirley Blackburn.

Ms. Blackburn and her husband, Dutch Honaker, were trapped in the building for about three hours before being rescued by police.

William Higgins, 40, was shot in the left leg, and was in satisfactory condition at the university hospital. Richard Briscoe, held hostage for three hours, was released when police asked the gunman to do so.

Woman planned robbery, not murder

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Tammi Rivera will take the stand in her own defense in her bid to prove she didn't know her husband would kill a couple they planned to rob on the banks of the Rio Grande, her attorney says.

"There may have been a plan to rob. But she never had any intention to harm anyone," Ed Cyganiewicz said after prosecutors rested their case in the 18-year-old woman's capital murder trial Wednesday. "It was Freddie who lost control and did the killings."

"Freddie" is Mrs. Rivera's husband, 19-year-old Federico Rivera, who confessed that he stabbed Keith and Jean Nordykes to death and was sentenced to life in prison Oct. 24.

Mrs. Rivera may testify as early as today, Cyganiewicz said.

Rivera testified during his trial that the Nordykes, a couple in their mid-50s from Raytown, Mo., who made their winter home in Harlingen, had offered to pay the Riveras to pose for a pornographic movie.

He said the Nordykes were killed when Nordyke made sexual advances toward his wife and tried to force them into a wife-swapping party on the banks of the Rio Grande.

Cyganiewicz said it was Federico Rivera who lost control and killed the Nordykes, that the murders were not committed in his client's presence.

In a statement given to police after her arrest, Mrs. Rivera said she and her husband had planned to rob the Nordykes, but had no intention of killing them.

She faces life imprisonment or the death sentence if convicted of the March 27 stabbing deaths.

In an April 8 statement she signed, Mrs. Rivera said her husband pulled a butcher knife on the Nordykes, but also said she "had a little knife with a wooden handle that didn't open or close."

Prosecutors displayed two knives fitting those descriptions in court Wednesday. Both were recovered from the east Cameron County drainage canal where Rivera said he disposed of the murder weapons.

Dr. DeWitt Davenport, a pathologist who performed the autopsies on the Nordykes, identified the smaller knife, not the butcher knife, as the one most likely to have made the stab wounds that caused the Nordykes' deaths.

EIGHT TAKE TOP
HONORS IN COUNTY
4-H FOOD SHOW

Six Deaf Smith County youth took top honors in the District I 4-H Food Show held in Dumas on Saturday.

Each earned first-place awards (blue ribbons) in two divisions, senior and junior, which each included four classes.

First place winners in the Senior division were Kristi Milton and Kristi Powell. Kristi Powell received additional honors in by being named in the "Top 4" high scores in the Main Dish food division.

Junior winners were Jim Bret Campbell, Jill Dutton, Garrett Easley and Jennifer Hicks. Dutton, Easley and Hicks won "Top 4" honors with high scores in Fruit & Vegetable, Breads, and Main Dish.

Dean Bradley, former home economics teacher served as a judge for the day long event.

The 4-H Food Shows, sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Extension Homemakers Association, Morrison Milling Company, Energas Company, seek to help young people excel by learning how nutrition affects one's health throughout their life.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion handicap or national origin.

GAS PIPE PROBLEMS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Beyond 60 degrees north latitude, installing natural gas lines underground for homes and plants is a short summer race against approaching winter.

When the city beyond that latitude is Anchorage, winter problems are compounded by the danger of its position along the volcanic "ring of fire" that circles the Pacific Basin. North America's strongest recorded earthquake hit the Anchorage area in 1964, dropping an entire river valley as much as five feet.

Major Alaska quakes are rare, but tremors frequently cause the earth to heave and shift, creating problems in keeping gas pipes intact under ground. Enstar Natural Gas says it solved most of its problems with gas mains and services by discarding the steel and copper it had used, and adopting polyethylene pipe for most mains and all service lines.

Friday deadline for submitting nominations

Friday is the final day that nominations for the Women's Division of the Year will be accepted at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Non-members, as well as members of the Women's Division, may submit names. The nominee must be a current member of the organization and her qualifications must be listed.

The award will be presented at the Women's Division quarterly meeting Jan. 6, 1987 at the Hereford Community Center.

Ruby Red grapefruit back

If you've been longing for the taste of a Ruby Red grapefruit since the freeze of 1983 wiped out this unique Texas crop, now is your chance — but it may not last much past Christmas.

"Agricultural economists estimate that the 1986 crop is just 15-20 percent of the pre-freeze crop," says Marilyn Haggard, a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutrition specialist.

With the smaller crop, producers are selling rather than storing the grapefruit, so supplies could drop off rapidly after Christmas, she adds.

The Ruby Red grapefruit, with its characteristic pink blush, can be found in many supermarket produce sections, Haggard says. It's also featured in gift packs sold by commercial firms and by service organizations as fund-raisers.

When selecting grapefruit in the market, she suggests looking for those with a smooth, thin skin, heavy weight and a rosy bloom. The best of the crop typically goes into gift fruit which is a well-handled, quality product.

Some Ruby Reds may have a slight green tinge, says Haggard, since the pink skin color is determined primarily by the coldness of the weather as the fruit matures. However, the flesh will still be pink and sweet.

Grapefruit is an excellent source of vitamin C, and a good source of fiber, vitamin A and B-vitamins. It's also a low-calorie food with about 50 calories per half grapefruit, notes the nutritionist.

If you stock up on Ruby Reds or receive a large gift package, she advises storing them in a well-ventilated area away from heat. Grapefruit will keep about 10 days at room temperature at 2-3 weeks or longer in the vegetable crisper of the refrigerator.

"Predictions are that it may be 4-5 years before the Texas grapefruit industry is up to the production levels of several years ago," Haggard remarks. "But consumers can be pleased that the supply is at least adequate to enjoy throughout the holiday season."

Different kinds of fruit trees can quickly be identified by examining their fruit. A variety that produces delicious fruit never produces an inedible kind! And a tree producing an inedible kind can't produce what is good! So the trees having the inedible fruit are chopped down and thrown on the fire. Yes, the way to identify a tree or a person is by the kind of fruit produced.
Not all who talk like godly people are. They may refer to Me as 'Lord,' but still won't get to heaven. For the decisive question is whether they obey My Father in heaven. At the Judgment many will tell Me, 'Lord, Lord, we told others about You and used Your name to cast out demons and to do many other great miracles.' But I will reply, 'You have never been Mine. Go away, for your deeds are evil.' (Matthew 7:13-23)

Orlov urges sanctions if USSR does not release political prisoners

By DONNA GEHRKE Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP)—Russian dissident Yuri Orlov wants sanctions imposed against the Soviet Union if the government refuses to release political prisoners from jails and labor camps.
An emotional Orlov spoke through a translator Wednesday evening in Houston after sharing the first Carter-Menil Human Rights prize with a Guatemalan group trying to locate missing loved ones.
Nobel laureate Desmond Tutu of South Africa was the keynote speaker for the awards ceremony, given to focus attention on people suffering from human rights violations.
Former President Jimmy

Carter presented the $100,000 prize, promising it would become an annual event on Dec. 10, the United Nations' human rights day, to point out heroes and inspire others to action.
Orlov said he was grateful to Carter for his human rights works and said 18 political prisoners were released ahead of schedule this year.
But he said a note recently smuggled out of a Soviet labor camp indicated conditions had worsened since the Reykjavik, Iceland, talks between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.
"In the U.S.S.R., we know the names of at least 800 political prisoners," said Orlov, reading a statement from the Moscow Helsinki Group which he helped organize in 1976 to monitor Soviet compliance with the Helsinki accords on human rights, security and cooperation in Europe.

"We call on you to demand from the Soviet government an immediate and universal amnesty for political prisoners," he said.
The 62-year-old physicist said 20 political prisoners have died in Soviet camps in the past four years.
Orlov was imprisoned and exiled because of his activism. He was released this year after American reporter Nicholas Daniloff was freed from the Soviet Union and United Nations employee Gennadiy Zakharov pleaded no contest to espionage charges in New York and was ordered to leave the United States.
Orlov was scheduled to receive the award before he was released, Carter said.
"We had no idea he would be here in person," Carter said.

the Rothko Chapel in Houston, said she wanted to award the prizes to point out human rights violations.
The Rothko Chapel awards also were given out Wednesday. Recipients of the $10,000 prizes included Myles Horton, a Tennessee civil and human rights activist; Jonathan Kuttab and Raja Shehadeh, founders and directors of a human rights law and documentation center on the occupied West Bank and South African activists Helen Joseph and Albertina Sisulu.
Anatoly Koryagin, an imprisoned Soviet psychiatrist who Orlov said helped him meet labor quotas in a prison camp, also received the award.
Charter 77, a Czechoslovakia human rights association, and the sanctuary movement in the United States were also named recipients.
"It is perhaps the most persuasive proof of the fact that the world, divided by many political and social barriers, still remains only one," the Czech group said in a written statement.

A seventh Rothko Award in memory of the assassinated Archbishop Oscar Romero of San Salvador was presented to his friend, retired Bishop Leonidas Proano of Riobamba, Ecuador.
The two South African human rights activist-leaders did not attend the ceremony because Ms. Joseph was denied a passport and Ms. Sisulu encountered too many difficulties in getting a passport, chapel officials said.
Carter, Tutu and the others ignored a few protesters who demonstrated outside the chapel. Some said they were followers of ultraconservative Lyndon Larouche.
Hundreds gathered in the small chapel and under a canopy outside despite the cold, rainy weather.

STAY AWAY FROM BROADWAY!
Heaven can be entered only through the narrow gate! The highway to hell is broad, and its gate is wide enough for all the multitudes who choose its easy way. But the Gateway to Life is small, and the road is narrow, and only a few ever find it.
Beware of false teachers who come disguised as harmless sheep, but are wolves and will tear you apart. You can detect them by the way they act, just as you can identify a tree by its fruit. You need never confuse grapevines with thorn bushes! Or figs with thistles!

And a tree producing an inedible kind can't produce what is good! So the trees having the inedible fruit are chopped down and thrown on the fire. Colonial city proposed as cultural patrimony PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — A UNESCO council is considering naming the center of the 455-year-old city of Puebla an international monument. It would be the first such declaration for the government to acknowledge their deaths.
She accepted her group's award, wearing a large picture of her missing husband around her neck.
"We are anguished that even though we have a civilian government, things have not changed much since the military rule," she said through a translator. "We have no answers and the atrocities occur every day."
"We speak the truth that is too hard to say," she said.
Tutu, the archbishop of Cape Town, spoke briefly but optimistically.
He said the past two years have shown ordinary people can make a difference, adding he was amazed at how conditions changed from 1984 to 1986, when Congress enacted sanctions against South Africa over President Reagan's veto.
"If someone would have told me that in 1984, I would have said, 'You need to see a shrink,'" Tutu said.
He praised Carter and other Americans, especially university students, for protesting apartheid in his country dominated by the white minority.
Dominique de Menil, president of the Carter-Menil Human Rights Foundation and president and founder of Ninth de Garcia, a founder of Guatemala's Group For Mutual Support, said she and thousands of others in the violence-ridden country are still waiting for the release of some 40,000 missing or for the government to acknowledge their deaths.

Sergio Vergara Berdejo, a regional director of the National Anthropology and History Institute, said the official proposal was presented last Friday in Paris.
He said in an interview that the proposal was presented to the International Council of Monuments and Sites, which is a dependency of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.
Leaders of the International Congress of Architects, meeting in Berlin in September 1984, first considered the city for international recognition for its historic value and efforts being made to preserve its architecture and other cultural aspects.
Founded in 1531 by men accompanying Spanish conqueror Hernan Cortes, Puebla soon gained importance for its location on the route between Mexico City and the port of Veracruz, on the Gulf of Mexico.
After the architectural congress, Puebla state Gov. Jorge Jimenez Morales began a full-scale program to preserve and restore the architecture of the downtown sector.
"The restoration work in the historic center comprises a 64-square-block area in which the government is repairing streets and curbs," Vergara Berdejo said. "The authorities also have had to change water, electricity, telephone and gas installations."
Other work includes removal of advertising, marquees, canopies and other modern additions to historic buildings.
"At the same time, the Public Works Department and individuals themselves continue painting facades, trying to improve the appearance, rescue the values of 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th

Colonial city proposed as cultural patrimony century Puebla architecture," he said.

In the historic center of the city, some 16th Century architectural decoration has been preserved.
Outstanding among the historic buildings in this city of nearly 2 million is the 17th century Santa Clara convent, where Puebla's style of cooking, one of the best-known Mexican regional cuisines, began to evolve.
Other landmarks are the Santo Domingo convent, also from the 17th century, world famous for its baroque cupola and Rosary Chapel, covered with gold leaf and typical of native Indian baroque, and the 17th century home of General San Martin, a local military man. The home, also baroque, is noted for its wrought-iron balconies and abundant decorative plaster work.
It is flanked by other historic buildings.
One of the most difficult problems was to remove hundreds of vendors who had gradually converted blocks of downtown streets into a market area, bringing vehicle traffic virtually to a standstill and congesting even pedestrian movement.
Beginning in June 1985, the city began a program of moving 80 percent of commercial and 40 percent of educational activity from the historic center, Antonio Perez Diaz, Urban Development and Ecology director for the city, said.
