Senate panel sets Hereford hearing

Sen. Bentsen announces Feb. 11 meeting

Dream Becomes Reality

The new YMCA facility, located on 15th St., officially opened its doors for members several weeks ago and now the public is invited to tour the building during open house scheduled from 2-5 p.m. Sunday. Key Club members will be giving guided tours and several demonstrations are planned. Also, a free adult membership and two youth memberships will be given as door prizes. Trying out some of the weight equipment are four of the 1985 YMCA officers. From left are Charles Hoover, president; Roger Eades, treasurer; and (front) Keith Ann Gearn, secretary. Officers not pictured are Temple Abney and Darwin Manning, both vice-presidents.

Those who wish to comment at a U.S. Senate hearing on a proposed nuclear waste repository north of Hereford must write or call the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Tuesday.

The hearing is set for Feb. 11, from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Hereford High School Auditorium.

Bentsen, the ranking minority member on the Environment and Public Works Committee, said he opposes locating the nation's first high-level nuclear waste dump in Texas and asked the committee to hold the field hearing.

"We have invited the Department of Energy to send witnesses, and while these officials are in Texas, I want them to hear our concerns and I want them to know about the very serious problems they have already created," Bentsen said.

The site near Vega is one of three the DOE is considering, with the other two chosen for further characterization in Nevada and Washington state. A final decision is not expected for five years.

Bentsen said anyone wanting to submit written testimony or appear at the Feb. 11 hearing should write to Lee Fuller, Committee on Environment and Public Works, SD-410, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510, or call 202-224-3241.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported this morning that an East Texas lawmaker on Tuesday filed a resolution calling on federal officials to forget about putting the dump in the Panhandle.

State Rep. David Hudson, a Tyler Democrat, said the Deaf Smith site as well as one near Tulia that is still a possible contender are bad locations for radioactive waste.

"The recommended sites in the Panhandle would require drilling through the largest and historically one of the most productive aquifers in the country," he said, referring to the Ogallala aquifer that provides water for five states.

"This is an issue for all Texans, not just those from West Texas. What happens in the Panhandle will eventually affect us all," Hudson said.

The resolution probably will be considered by the Texas House of Representatives later this week.

The DOE is scheduled to return to the state later this month, to hold hearings for public comment on Feb. 26 in Tulia, Feb. 28 in Hereford and March 1 in Austin.

University officials protest budget cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — State university officials are lining up to tell the House Appropriations Committee how bad off they would be if lawmakers agree to a proposed 26 percent cut in higher education funds.

"If funding for our system's four universities remains as recommended by the Legislative Budget Board, serious damage will be done to the quality of instruction at those universities," said John Cargile, board chairman for the Texas State University System.

That system includes Southwest Texas State, Sul Ross State, Sam Houston State and Angelo State universities.

"The universities within this system are now being severely impaired due to their past efforts at efficiency," Cargile said Tuesday as the appropriations panel began a week of hearings on higher education.

The LBB, which proposes a state budget, has recommended major cuts in state college spending as part of an austerity program sparked by a money shortage of up to $1 billion.

Cargile and C. Robert Kemble, chairman of the Council of University Presidents, told the committee

Snow, frigid air arrives in Hereford

A new winter storm churned into Texas today, with snow starting to fall in Hereford before 9 a.m. Forecasters warned it could bring high, gusty winds, sleet and snow and the coldest temperatures of 1985.

And the frigid front could hang around for several days, according to the National Weather Service. Temperatures were expected to plunge by 30 degrees as the cold front moved across the state.

"This will be the most extended period of cold all winter, since winter began in 1984," forecaster Chris Sohl of Dallas said.

"Before it's all said and done, it's got a reasonable chance of being the coldest day of 1985, between late Wednesday and Sunday," Sohl added.

So far, 1985's coldest day was Jan. 20, when the temperature dipped to 10.

With the storm's arrival, northerly gusts of up to 20 and 30 mph will replace a moderate southerly breeze, and the effect will be wind chills as low as 20 below zero, Sohl said.

Accumulations of up to 4 inches of snow are expected in the Panhandle and sections of North Texas, with lesser amounts farther south.

The chance of precipitation on Thursday is 80 percent in North Texas, the weather service said.

Texas had other problems today. Dense fog blanketed much of the eastern half of the state overnight, dropping visibility to near zero at Wichita Falls, along East Texas lakes, and along the Texas coast. Visibility was reported at one-sixteenth of a mile at Waco and one-fourth of a mile at Longview.

Drizzle dampened parts of South Central Texas. Predawn temperatures were mild, with most readings in the 60s and 70s, although temperatures as low as the 30s and 40s were reported across the Panhandle and South Plains.

At 4 a.m., the temperature extremes in Texas were from 29 at Amarillo to 68 at Brownsville.

Travelers advisories were issued because of the fog.

"Caution is urged to all travelers, whether on the roads or on the lakes," the weather service said in an early morning advisory. "The dense fog is a hazard not only to motorists but also to boaters."

Because of near total saturation of an air mass, the weather service said the fog would be heavy throughout the morning drive time in metropolitan areas, with no likely relief until mid-morning.

Meanwhile, as the winter storm headed toward Texas, it left up to 4 inches of snow and brutal wind-chill factors in other states. The wind chill was reported at between 30 and 80 below zero in the Dakotas, between 45 and 65 below in Minnesota, and between 25 and 50 below in Nebraska.

More than 4 inches of snow fell in Denver during the six-hour period that ended at 1 a.m.

State budget writers call emergency meet

AUSTIN (AP) — The Legislature's stop budget writers called an emergency meeting today of the Legislative Budget Board to prepare an "alternative budget" for state spending.

Li. Gov. Bill Hobby said Tuesday the new proposed budget would not include a tax increase but would include a tuition increase for college students. Hobby has said he favors a tuition increase for all students.

Asked if the LBB might consider a one-year budget rather than the usual two years, Hobby replied, "Come and find out, come to the meeting."

The LBB in December approved a two-year budget proposal that would spend $35.8 billion from all funds, including taxes. The LBB document is traditionally used as the preliminary document by both the House and the Senate.

On Jan. 15, Gov. Mark White presented his no-new-taxes budget of $36.1 billion, an increase of $320.6 million over the LBB proposal.

Asked recently if a one-year budget was inevitable if the Legislature wanted to avoid new taxes and still maintain state services, Ray Farabee, a Senate leader, said:

"I don't think it's inevitable but if there was a continual shifting of revenues such as sliding oil prices, it would certainly press us to that."

State Comptroller Bob Bullock, whose job it is to project how much money state government has to spend, has said he doesn't see how the Legislature can stay away from annual sessions to plan and adopt budgets. The way the system works now, Bullock must project as far ahead as 2½ years.

Bullock's most recent revenue estimate was that the Legislature needed an extra $1.1 billion to finance state services at their current levels over the next two years.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says the man who is afraid to be called a quitter will be reelected treasurer of the club as long as he lives.

If called upon to express an opinion, keep this in mind: the more you say, the less people remember.

A cloud of controversy over the Hereford school district curriculum has been building for some time, and the rain of protest started falling Monday night during a public meeting of concerned citizens.

Apparently the core of the problem is something called the mastery learning program. Teachers say the paperwork is incredible; parents say their children are getting too much testing and not enough teaching. Here are some thoughts of one teacher after the meeting:

"The frustration of remaining silent has been overwhelming. I see policies that affect my children along with all the other students, but I could not speak out as a parent because I would be labeled a troublemaker as a teacher. The opinions of teachers have not been received graciously this year.

"Our policy-making body is not considering the rights of our children. They are trying to fit all children into one mold but this will not create the ideal student. When the school board and administration take it upon themselves to reduce the days allotted to extracurricular activities, they are ignoring the fact that there are many students who are talented academically, athletically and/or musically.

"One of our major goals in education should be to create well-rounded individuals who have had every opportunity available to find where their talents lie and where their interests should lead them. It is difficult to be a good student when all individuality is repressed.

"The high school students I visit with do not like school this year because of our local innovations, on top of new state laws, are penalizing our top students. Participating in a sport or musical activity on a school day is as much a learning experience as time spent in a classroom. In some cases, it is a more realistic learning experience. Missing class may have become a problem, but should we eliminate activities entirely?"

"I have always been pleased with my children's education in Hereford, but I am not pleased now. Children have no choice in attending school, but they should not be made to hate it."

We don't know what the numbers are, but if the majority of our teachers feel this way, we do have a problem. As noted at the meeting, the mastery learning program is not all bad. The implementation of that program, however, has apparently been a nightmare.

Let's all hope that differences can be solved and our school system is soon back on a happy, even track.

Special commission meeting set

Hereford City Commissioners are to meet in special session Thursday at 5 p.m., to review applications for the position of Hereford city manager.

The meeting will be open to the public since commissioners will not be talking with the applicants themselves.

The city now has at least 12 applicants vying for the job to replace Dudley Bayne, who retires June 30. Two of them are from the Panhandle area.

Police probe only 4 reports

Hereford police made no arrests Tuesday night, investigating only four reports.

Jose Pina, 211 Ave. K, reported $300 worth of damage to the windshield of his 1974 Buick Opel while he stopped at a local grocery store.

Pina told police it had happened once before, and he knew the person who caused the damage. Police are investigating a suspect, and Pina said he intended to file charges.

Officers also responded to a littering complaint from a man who said his neighbors were throwing junk in his yard. The two families were to attempt to work out the problem on their own.

A young Hereford man reported that six new pairs of blue jeans were stolen from a dryer in a laundromat while he shopped at a nearby store. He told police he thought he knew who took the jeans and he would attempt to retrieve them himself.

County spelling bee dates set

Dates for the Deaf Smith County Spelling Bee, sponsored this year by The Hereford Brand, have been set March 7-8, it was announced today by Publisher Speedy Nieman.

The Regional Spelling Bee has been scheduled for April 27 at West Texas State University and is sponsored by The Amarillo Globe-News and WTSU.

Students in the eighth or lower grades are eligible to participate. An entrant cannot be 16 years of age before June 2, 1985, date of the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C.

The Deaf Smith County bee will again have two divisions—Junior Division spellers will compete on Thursday, March 7, and Senior spellers will compete on Friday, March 8. The winner of the Junior Bee will also compete in the Senior Bee.

Nieman said The Brand was "pleased to take over sponsorship of the county bee." He added that the event is "a highly respected educational activity and is designed to help students improve their spelling, increase their vocabulary and develop correct English usage."

Education board sticks with rule

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education's "no pass, no play" rule is helping Texas students pass their grades, says Jon Brumley, board chairman.

"The board felt it should be rightfully stringent," Brumley said Tuesday as keynote speaker to the annual School Administrators Conference on Education.

"Already we are being told that it has had a positive effect. Children want to work and they are keeping their course grades up, and that's what the rules are supposed to do," he said.

Brumley told the 2,500 Texas school superintendents and administrators the rule concerning eligibility for extracurricular activities was probably the most controversial of the 36 separate actions taken by the new 15-member body since taking office in October.

Students with grades of less than 70 in any course cannot take part in or practice for athletics or other extracurricular activity for six weeks.

Several proposals are pending in the current Legislature to change the rule.

Industry orders deficit reduction

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The National Cotton Council has taken aim at the federal deficit, the strong dollar and growing textile imports, offering its own solutions for the issues.

Council delegates on Tuesday endorsed without discussion a 27-page list of resolutions addressing these and other issues.

Among the top recommendations was one urging President Reagan to organize a bipartisan commission to come up with ways to reduce the federal deficit.

The delegates also called for congressional, administrative and Federal Reserve Board action to restore a balance between the value of the dollar and other currencies.

The National Cotton Council, representing farmers, ginners, warehousemen, merchants, cooperatives, oil mill crushers and textile manufacturers, concluded its 47th annual meeting Tuesday.

More than 1,400 people from 18 cotton-producing states attended the convention.

Reagan, Kirkpatrick to begin talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of mystery about her future, U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick is conferring with President Reagan at a White House meeting associates believed would result in her leaving the administration.

At her request, today's session in the Oval Office was to include just the president and Mrs. Kirkpatrick. A self-described "welfare-state liberal" on domestic policy, Mrs. Kirkpatrick has been a favorite of conservative ideologues because of her hard-line views on foreign policy.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick's supporters, who had lobbied for her appointment to a top-level post, said it was likely she would leave the administration after four wearying years in New York.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick announced last year she wanted to leave the United Nations and return to teaching government at Georgetown University. However, she indicated she would stay if Reagan offered a job she found attractive.

Conservatives waged a campaign to place her in a high-level job, such as national security adviser or secretary of state, but those jobs already were filled and the president said he wanted the incumbents to stay.

Attorney General interrogated

WASHINGTON (AP) — After forcing public release of a report critical of Edwin Meese III, senators are asking why a government official rejected an internal report concluding the attorney general-designate violated ethics rules.

Meese told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Tuesday the findings by the two lawyers in the Office of Government Ethics were based on factual errors and misinterpretations.

The presidential counselor, who was returning for questioning today, acknowledged under oath that he asked his lawyers to take up the matter with David H. Martin, director of the Federal Office of Government Ethics. But Meese said he saw nothing wrong with that.

"At my request, counsel for me contacted the Office of Government Ethics and asked to be heard," Meese said. "I do feel what they did was proper."

Martin, who was appointed by President Reagan, reversed the initial findings. He was summoned to testify, along with the two staff attorneys, F. Gary Davis and Nancy Feathers.

Martin, however, reiterated a Jan. 24 conclusion that Meese "was in compliance with applicable laws and regulations regarding conflicts of interest."

"That was, and is, accurate," Martin said in a letter to the committee, which had insisted that the internal working paper by the staff lawyers be made public.

Regulators rank nuclear plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — While declining to officially rank the nation's 80-odd operating atomic power plants from best to worst, government safety regulators list nuclear facilities in Alabama, California, New Jersey and Ohio as the most worrisome.

Administrators of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's five regional offices list the Davis-Besse plant in Ohio, Rancho Seco in California, Salem in New Jersey and Browns Ferry in Alabama as the ones that trouble them the most.

The regional administrators, who have the field responsibility for assuring that the plants are built and operated safely, were asked by the commission during a 2½-hour meeting Tuesday to specify which plants needed the most regulatory attention in 1985.

While the judgments were somewhat subjective, Davis Besse, Rancho Seco, Salem and Browns Ferry emerged as the most troublesome facilities to the day-to-day regulators.

Also coming under criticism were the Nine Mile Point plant in New York, Beaver Valley in Pennsylvania, Maine Yankee, Wolf Creek in Kansas and the San Onofre plant in California.

While the owners of all nine plants are taking steps to improve their performance, the NRC officials said their progress is sometimes "painfully slow."

The single factor mentioned most often was the ability and commitment of each utility's top officers to manage the complexities of nuclear power.

"The top half-dozen people in the company make the whole difference," said Jack Martin, administrator of the commission's Region V office near San Francisco.

James Kepler, head of the agency's Region III office in Chicago, said poor ratings in five of 11 categories in the latest evaluation on the Davis-Besse plant near Toledo "reflects badly not only on the utility but also on the NRC."

OPEC forges oil-decrease pact

By ROBERT BURNS Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A majority of OPEC oil ministers agreed today to drop the price of top-grade oil, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said.

The accord, which ended three days of emergency talks of the oil producers' cartel, was not unanimous and its effect on the consumer could not be immediately assessed.

"Yes, we have an agreement," Yamani told reporters as he and several other oil ministers emerged from a final 2½-hour session.

Yamani said a majority of ministers agreed to leave the price of the cheapest crudes sold by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at $26.50 a barrel, while setting the price of the highest-priced crudes at $2.40 above that.

That would mean top-priced oil would fall in price from $30.50 a barrel to $28.90, based on the figures mentioned by Yamani.

The Saudi minister said the deal was not unanimous, but added that OPEC would not have to meet again until its regular summer session. He declined to provide further details.

The effects for the consumer were not immediately known. Each $1 cut in the price of a barrel of oil sold in the United States is equivalent to a reduction of approximately 2½ cents in the price of a gallon of refined petroleum, such as gasoline, when the entire savings is passed on to the consumer.

OPEC accounts for about 40 percent of all imported oil in the United States, or about 13 percent of all the petroleum consumed. The agreement was announced here before most U.S. businesses were open and could be contacted for comment.

Mana Saeed Oteiba, oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, and Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, oil minister of Venezuela, said Algeria, Gabon, Libya and Iran were not part of the agreement.

But Grisanti said the deal would be implemented and claimed it would strengthen the oil market.

"This is a majority decision, and it is a valid decision," he said through an interpreter. "In the past we have had decisions that have not been unanimous decisions, but history has shown that we have been able to reach unanimity as time passes."

Grisanti also said that as part of the deal, Nigeria had agreed to restore 65 cents of the $2-a-barrel price cut it made last October. That would leave its price at $28.65.

"I am sure that OPEC will continue to battle for the stabilization of the market," Grisanti said.

The president of OPEC, Indonesian Oil Minister Subroto, later told a news conference that Saudi Arabia would cut the price of its Saudi Light crude by $1, to $28 a barrel.

Saudi Light used to be the benchmark around which the prices of all other OPEC crudes were arranged. But Subroto said the cartel had abandoned that concept.

"With this position, we do not need a marker, in the sense that Saudi Light is decreasing in importance" as an internationally traded crude, he said.

"Theoretically there is no marker any more," he said.

New prices for other grades of oil were not immediately disclosed, aside from a $26.50-a-barrel quote for Saudi Arabian heavy oil. That is unchanged from December, when the ministers agreed to raise it from $26 a barrel.

Subroto said that while the lack of unanimity meant he could not call the meeting a success, he believed the issues dividing the ministers could be eliminated soon.

"We promised ourselves to work to find a solution," he said. "We feel this ... will be achieved in not too long a time."

He attributed the lack of unanimity to "our different assessments of the market."

Christian group rips racing bill

Claim Texans getting 'hokem' instead of evidence

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission says Texans are being given "hokem" instead of evidence by those who want the state Legislature to approve horse race betting.

Phil Strickland, director of the group that long has opposed pari-mutuel gambling, noted that some racing bill backers estimate that betting could generate up to $200 million in annual new revenue for state government.

But that is more than twice the average of what the biggest racing states receive, Strickland said Tuesday, calling the estimate "a plateful of hokem."

Strickland said statistics from the horse racing industry show that California, the state with the largest pari-mutuel income, received $138.9 million in 1983.

The average of the four racing states with the largest incomes — California, New York, Illinois and Ohio — was just $79.6 million in 1983, he said. And in states around Texas, revenue ranged from $2.1 million for New Mexico to $22.8 million for Louisiana, he said.

"This most recent claim by the horse racing folks hurt them. They are assuming that legislators are incredibly gullible or incredibly stupid," Strickland said.

"Pari-mutuel gambling might eventually raise $200 million, but I will be riding to work in a space buggy when it happens," he said.

Reps. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, and George Pierce, R-San Antonio, introduced the bill in the House on Monday, and Speaker Gib Lewis said the legislation's time may have arrived.

"I'll be honest with you. At one time, I was opposed to pari-mutuel betting. It's something that's overdue, especially with the financial problems we are facing in the state," Lewis said.

Given the state government's budget problems — a potential shortfall of $1 billion over the 1986-87 budget years — Lewis said gambling revenue could help.

"It's a multi-billion-dollar industry," he said, with potential windfalls not only from a cut of the bets but also from "satellite businesses that it spurs."

Horse racing legislation was approved by the Senate in 1983, but failed in the House by two votes.

Berlanga said he thinks the House will favor his bill this time because of the need for new state revenue sources and because in 1981 and 1983, the House broke a psychological barrier by voting on horse racing.

The new bill would allow pari-mutuel racing only in counties where a special election approved it.

Berlanga acknowledged that his bill is at odds with Gov. Mark White, who has said he wants a statewide vote before pari-mutuel gambling is permitted. Berlanga said he is going to meet with White in hopes of getting his support.

Lewis said he didn't think a statewide referendum would be needed, but the governor repeated Tuesday that he won't sign a bill unless it calls for such a vote.

Woman takes on reins of U.S. cattle group

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — From the day her first grade teacher taped her mouth shut for talking too much, Jo Ann Smith has had something to say — but now she speaks for 230,000 American cattlemen.

For the past year, as president-elect of the National Cattlemen's Association, Mrs. Smith has been preparing herself to lead the Denver-based agriculture organization which has members in all 50 states.

"It's obvious you aren't sending the 'little woman' to do a big man's job. You're sending a cattleman to do a cattleman's job," she said in remarks prepared for delivery to the organization's national convention when she assumes the top job today.

Referring to the convention theme of "facing the challenge of change," she added: "I guess it means that I get the challenge. And you get the change."

A fifth-generation Florida rancher who married another fifth-generation rancher on a nearby spread, she can mend fences, round up strays and brand calves. But Mrs. Smith, 45, is the first association president who's also a wife and mother.

Her style is silk suits, not Stetsons, and she demurs at feminist labels. She says she's proud, though, to be a role model.

Married straight out of high school, Mrs. Smith worked long hours beside her husband, Cedrick, on their 5,000-acre ranch that sprawls around Micanopy, Fla., a post office stop near Gainesville. She kept the books, tended her vegetable and flower gardens, joined the Junior League, served on the local hospital board, and became active in the CowBelles, the association's women's auxiliary.

Her son Marty, 25, is now a lawyer in Ocala, Fla., and daughter Terri, 23, is an accountant in Nashville, Tenn.

A decade ago, Jo Ann Smith became concerned about taxes, too many of them, in her view, imposed on ranchers.

"One thing led to another, one committee to another," Mrs. Smith recalled. "Everybody can always use a worker, and I'm a hard worker. The real awakening that I might go all the way to the presidency came when a selection committee contacted me about placing my name in the hat for a national office."

"Cedrick said, 'You can try it but you probably won't get elected,' so of course, that made me determined right then and there to win."

As president of the association, she'll be lobbying in Congress for lower interest rates, increased beef exports and a reduction in the federal deficit.

COLLEGES

that tuition hikes are needed. Neither specified how much. Kemble said state university students should pay "more realistic and substantially higher tuition."

Kemble, Lamar University chancellor, said lawmakers should view state colleges as "not a drain, but an economic asset."

Texas state college tuition is among the lowest in the nation at $4 per hour.

"Higher education is being asked to bear a disproportionate share of the burden," Kemble said of the Legislature's effort to close the spending gap.

Speaker Gib Lewis said Tuesday he hopes the colleges end up with no more than a 10 percent cut.

He said tuition hikes would be the best way to find money for the universities, but he added, "That's going to be a little bit of money, not a great deal."

Texas Southern University President Leonard Spearman asked the committee for special consideration. He said TSU — the third-largest black college in the nation — can't afford a budget cut.

"We're in trouble," he told the committee.

To avoid a lawsuit from the federal government, TSU has agreed to a desegregation plan (the Texas Plan) that includes major improvements in programs and facilities. TSU initially asked for $165.1 million for 1986-87. The Legislative Budget Board has recommended $42.6 million, a 23 percent cut from current funding. TSU's revised request asks for $83.2 million.

"In summary Mr. Chairman, the LBB funding recommendations, if allowed to stand, will force us to suspend our efforts under the Texas Plan," said Spearman.

"Were we on an equal par with comparable sister institutions in Texas, we would agree (to the cut). The fact is that we still are not on a par with comparable institutions," he said.

Also Tuesday, the president of the Independent Colleges and Universities of Texas called on the committee to not cut state money used to augment private college tuition. The state is now spending $20.7 million a year in tuition equalization grants.

The budget board's recommendation would cut about 1,500 private college students out of tuition aid program, according to Carlon Moak of ICUT.

Skirt steak in demand

COLLEGE STATION — Texas industries must compete with Japanese technology and now Texas meat consumers must also compete with Japanese appetites for beef skirt steak.

The beef skirt steak now so popular for fajitas used to be thrown away by meat wholesalers or ground into hamburger, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Mary K. Sweeten.

But prices for skirt steaks have increased from 49 cents a pound in 1976 to between $1.79 and $2.79 a pound in 1985. One reason for the price rise is the fajitas craze in Texas and other parts of the county, she says.

"The demand for beef skirts in Japan has also risen sharply in the last decade, driving up the prices," Sweeten explains. The Japanese buy about 90 percent of America's production of beef skirts, which do not fall under the beef quotas set by Japan on American beef because they are classified as variety cuts.

Sweeten says "inside" beef skirts from the hindquarter and "outside" skirts from the forequarter of the animal are distinguished in the wholesale meat trade. However, at the meat counter the cut is usually labeled simply as "skirt steak," and most sold in retail stores are inside skirts.

The outside skirt is usually the more palatable of the two cuts, notes the specialist. Research at Texas A&M University indicates that the outside skirts are more tender and have higher overall ratings for flavor and tenderness than the inside beef skirts, she reports.

Given the foreign and domestic demand for this cut of beef, consumers aren't likely to find more outside skirt steak in the supermarkets soon, Sweeten predicts.

She advises compensating for a less tender inside skirt steak by cutting diagonally across the grain of the meat first in one direction and then the other, pounding it to break down the connective tissue.

Marinating the skirt steak in a food acid such as lime juice, lemon juice or vinegar for several hours or overnight also increases tenderness and enhances the flavor.

Valentine Sweethearts

Valentine tea honors three sorority women

Hereford chapters of Beta Sigma Phi gathered Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist Church to honor their sweethearts with a Valentine tea.
 Hostesses were Rose Marie Robinson, Alene Tindal and Nancy George. Sweethearts for 1984-85 are Phyllis Neal in Alpha Alpha, Sharon Bodner in Xi Epsilon and Jackie Fangman in Alpha Iota Mu. The honorees were presented white carnation corsages. They greeted guests at a table displaying their photographs which will be entered in Beta Sigma Phi's International Valentine contest.
 Approximately 30 members enjoyed individual heart shaped cakes, mints, tea and punch. The table was decorated with white lace and a centerpiece of red carnations and white mums around a pair of fans adorned with red hearts.

It's OK to put first things first, but don't spend so much time rearranging priorities that everything winds up last.

Homemakers Council discusses special meetings

Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council met Monday in the Heritage Room of the library with Gayle Carter, president, presiding.
 The host club, Wyche, led the opening exercise "Learn To Let Go." Eight of the extension clubs were represented, each with 100 percent attendance.
 Committee chairmen for the year are Jewell Hargrave, education; Mary Carter, finance; Johnnie Messer, yearbook; and Maudette Smith, recreation. Club presidents' reports were heard and the Woman of the Year nominees were announced.
 These nominees and their clubs are Nell Pope, Cultural; Carmen Rickman, Draper; Susan Hicks, Ford; Evelyn Crawford, North Hereford; Martha Rickman, Westway; and Carol Odom, Wyche.
 Recommendations from the executive board were read and accepted, resulting in several changes in the standing rules. Louise Walker, county extension agent, announced several leaders training and special meetings.
 The leaders training workshops will be Thursday on "Needlepoint" by Mary Carter, Feb. 12 on "Pattern Alteration" by Walker and Feb. 14 on "Telephone Buy or Lease" by Walker and Jerry Stephens. The special meetings will be Feb. 25 at the Bull Barn for an appreciation luncheon and an adult sitter clinic Feb. 28 through March 7. The sitter clinic is open to the public but can only accommodate 30 individuals. Anyone interested in this clinic should call Walker at the Extension office. The group will meet at the library.

Susan Raney, extension agent, reported that four 4-Hers participated in the district food show. Jill Dutton Jennifer Hicks, Susan Rickman and John David Rickman each won a blue ribbon. Hicks and S. Rickman were in the top four.

Three winners emerged from the Lady's Lead Line. They were Lori Urbanczyk, Trisha Teel and Kristi Powell. Raney extended thanks to all who had helped at the concession booth during the Young Farmers Stockshow.

Following the council meeting, Carter, Texas Extension Homemakers Association president, read her report. Deaf Smith County currently has 116 club members. The goal set for all counties in the district is one new club and 10 new members in 1985. Carter asked the clubs to bring suggestions to the February meeting for new clubs in Deaf Smith County.

She also urged every club and every member to participate in the "Pennies for Friendship." Pennies are used for Girlstorn and the nickels are used for Officers Training.

Members were also reminded of the district meeting in Canyon on April 16. Carter challenged each club to have 100 percent attendance to enable Deaf Smith County to bring home the trophy for the greatest percent of members attending a district meeting.

Say something about it answer in your column so I can show my husband and make him realize that he must address this problem immediately.—Deeply Concened In Georgia

DEAR GEORGIA: If this has been going on for almost a year and the children's father refuses to do anything about it, he is clearly missing a microchip. It is up to you to speak to the mother of the girls.

Regardless of your relationship with your husband's first wife, I urge you to telephone her and say you need to talk to her about the welfare of her daughters. Be honest about what you believe is going on. Urge her to get the girls to talk to her about everything under the sun.

I want my husband to talk to the stepfather, but so far he hasn't said anything. This has been going on for almost a year.

I don't know what to do. Please

Children will tell a person anything if they feel comfortable and safe with that individual—and that is the key.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Are your readers fed up with junk mail? They can eliminate much of it by writing to: Mail Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, 8 East 43rd St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

They need only to ask that their name be removed from mass marketing lists. Anyone who is lonesome and would like to receive advertisements, catalogs, requests for funds, etc., can get information on how to do that as well—Fed Up And Junked Out In N.C.

DEAR FED: I'm sure millions of readers will be delighted with your suggestion. In fact, you can count me among them. It's bad enough to get one of everything, but a person such as me who has two names gets a double whammy.

I'll let you know in about two months whether or not your suggestion produced results.

Drugs? How much is too much? Is pot OK? Is cocaine too much? If you're on dope or considering it, get Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11996, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am married to a wonderful man who has four lovely daughters, ages 10, 16, 17 and 19. The girls live with their mother and stepfather. I am worried sick about them, but my husband says I'm imagining things.

Whenever the girls come to visit, they tell me their stepfather barges into their rooms when they are dressing. If they cover up with a towel, he says, "Don't be ashamed of your body, it's beautiful. You should be proud to show it."

He walks around the house in bikini underwear and is always hugging, kissing and holding the 10-year-old on his lap. The older girls say they don't like to kiss him goodbye because he sticks his tongue in their mouths. He insists on kissing them anyway.

I've tried to explain to the 10-year-old not to sit on his lap because she is getting too big to be held. But she says he pulls her there. The older ones try to avoid him by staying in their rooms most of the time.

I'm really afraid he will try to have sex with the youngest and she would be afraid to tell him because she is so sweet and can't stand to hurt anyone's feelings. He seems to love her best of all the girls.

Kathy Davison honored

A baby shower honoring Mrs. Sammy Davison was held Saturday morning in the home of Mrs. B.F. Cain.

The 30 people in attendance were served quiche, sausage balls, cinnamon rolls, strawberry bread sandwiches, coffee cake, hot spiced tea and coffee. The refreshments were served from a table decorated with the chosen baby's room motif of the rocking horse.

The hostesses for the affair were Mmes. Herman Paetzold, Toby Turpen, Dan Higgins, C.E. Jones, Allen Brockman and B.F. Cain.

Today in History

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 30, the 30th day of 1985. There are 335 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 30, 1948, Indian leader Mohandas K. Gandhi was assassinated by a Hindu fanatic in New Delhi.

On this date: In 1649, King Charles I of England was beheaded.

In 1798, a brawl broke out in the U.S. House of Representatives in Philadelphia as Matthew Lyon of Vermont spat in the face of Roger Griswold of Connecticut during an argument.

In 1882, the 32nd President of the United States, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, was born in Hyde Park, N.Y.

In 1933, Adolf Hitler was named chancellor of Germany. Also in 1933, the first episode of the "Lone Ranger" radio program was broadcast.

In 1948, aviation pioneer Orville Wright died in Dayton, Ohio, at the age of 76.

In 1964, the United States launched Mariner 6, an unmanned spacecraft carrying television cameras that was to crash-land on the moon.

In 1972, 13 Roman Catholic civil rights marchers were shot to death by British soldiers in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, on what became known as Bloody Sunday.

In 1973, G. Gordon Liddy and James W. McCord were convicted in Washington of charges stemming from the Watergate break-in. In 1981, an estimated 2 million New Yorkers turned out for a ticker-tape parade honoring the former American hostages of Iran.

Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford extended until March 1, 1975, the deadline for Vietnam-era draft evaders and military deserters to apply for clemency under the program he had announced the previous September.

Five years ago: Iran's foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, said Canada would pay "sooner or later" for spiriting six U.S. diplomats out of Iran.

One year ago: One U.S. Marine was killed and three others wounded when anti-government militias bombarded the Marine compound at Beirut International Airport.

Today's birthdays: Actor John Ireland is 71. Comedian-director Dick Martin is 63. Actress Dorothy Malone is 60. Producer-director Harold Prince is 57. Actor Gene Hackman is 54. Actress Tammy Grimes is 51. Actress Vanessa Redgrave is 48.

Thought for today: "There is more to life than increasing its speed." — Mohandas K. Gandhi (1869-1948).

The star is the most common symbol to appear on the flags of the world.

Amarillo wins girls game, 31-30

Sandies get away from Herd

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor
AMARILLO — The Amarillo Sandies made good on only 30 percent of their free-throw attempts Tuesday night, but it only takes one to make a difference.

And like the proverbial fisherman, the Hereford Whitefaces may long talk about the one that got away.

In a District 3-5A girls basketball game in the AHS gym, Amarillo's Ever Posey hit one of two free throws with 2:21 remaining to lift the Sandies past the Whitefaces, 31-30. Amarillo's win squeezed a little more life from the Whitefaces' playoff hopes, dropping Hereford to 8-5 in league play, 9-10 overall.

The best the Herd can finish now is in a tie for second place.

"The kids deserve better than this," Hereford coach Larry Sowers said after the game. "We've played so many close games. And we could have won this one just as easy as we lost it."

That they could have. With 44 seconds to play and the Sandies holding the 31-30 advantage, Hereford's Lori Niblett was charged with fouling Amarillo's Rhonda Lynch. Lynch missed the shot and Hereford took over with a chance for a game-winning shot.

A final shot was taken from inside the lane by Shelly Edwards, but Hereford's center was off balance, and the shot bounced off the rim.

"We didn't get a break all night," Sowers said. "We knew our backs were against the wall, and we did just what we wanted to do. We've played too many this close."

The teams were tied at the end of each of the first two periods, and Hereford led by two at the end of the third quarter. However, the individual quarters were in no way similar — at least not the first compared to the second and third.

The game began with some fast scoring by both teams, neither moving to more than a two-point advantage. The game was tied at 14 after the first eight minutes — the number of points scored in the first fourth of the contest was almost half of the game's total.

Posey started the scoring with an 18-foot jumper from the side. Natalie Sims answered for Hereford with her own jump shot from the side. Lynch countered for Amarillo with a shot from underneath, and Edwards got in on the scoring with a shot off the glass.

Lynch and Edwards each connected again, respectively, to knot the score at 6 before Hereford took its first lead of the game. Hereford never trailed again until the fourth quarter.

Making Her Move

Hereford's Lori Niblett (10) drives around Amarillo's Ever Posey during second-quarter action of the game between the Whitefaces and Sandies Tuesday in Amarillo. The Sandies won the game 31-30.

Sandies win 75-45

Whitefaces fall to Amarillo

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor
AMARILLO — After Tuesday's District 3-5A boys basketball game with Hereford, Amarillo coach Allen

Simpson said, "Boy, it was over in a hurry."

The Sandies coach meant that relatively few fouls had been called and the time elapsed quickly.

However, he just as easily could have meant the game was over — for practical purposes — in the first quarter after his team jumped to a 9-2 lead.

The Sandies maintained that margin throughout the contest — Hereford getting closer only once — finally whipping the Whitefaces by 30 points, 75-45. With the win, the Sandies upped their district record to 9-3, one-half game behind second-place Palo Duro. Overall, Amarillo now sports a record of 18-6. Hereford falls to 3-8 and 9-13.

"We missed way too many easy shots early in the game," Hereford coach Mike Fields said, "when it was still a game."

For the night, Hereford shot only 31.9 percent from the field (15 of 47).

The Whitefaces had a chance to take the game's first lead, but missed at least twice on shots from underneath. Gary Hassenfratz put a shot through on the other end of the floor to stake the Sandies to a 2-0 lead.

Then Hereford had a couple more chances to tie the game, but missed again from inside. Amarillo's Michael Sweeny made an Amarillo bucket and was fouled in the process. He made the one-shot free throw and the Sandies led 5-0.

"We did a lot better on our transition game tonight than we did the last time we played Hereford," said Simpson, referring to Amarillo's 73-67 win over the Whitefaces on Dec. 17. "We had some production from our big guys tonight."

Six-foot 4-inch Koy Eddleman had 15 points for the Sandies to tie for top scoring honors with Hassenfratz. Bobby Baker led Hereford with 12 points, and Kevin Redus added 11.

Hereford got on the board with a jumper by Redus, and Amarillo answered with two field goals. Hassenfratz got the first two-pointer and Eddleman the second.

Sammy Suarez and Rodney Torres then hit for the Herd. Those buckets surrounded another shot by Eddleman before Kevin Gleghorn started a six-straight-point spree with two baskets. Eddleman canned the third field goal, and Amarillo led 17-8.

Redus and Stefan Hacker scored a field goal apiece to give the Herd 10 points at quarter's end. Amarillo's Larry Rohr put in a shot in between Hereford's field goals to make the score 19-10 at the end of the first period.

"Eddleman had one of his best games tonight," Simpson said. "He got a bunch of points early, and we just got on the boards better tonight."

"Hereford missed a lot of easy

Boston mysteriously wins

By The Associated Press
The play was simply indescribable, as Larry Bird himself said.

"I don't want to describe the play," Bird said. "... we might have to use it again."

On Tuesday night, the Boston Celtics used the mystery play to beat the Detroit Pistons, 131-130, on Bird's basket at the buzzer. The loss snapped an eight-game Detroit winning streak, one short of the team record set in 1970.

The winning maneuver began with four seconds left as Bird took a short inbound pass from Dennis Johnson at halfcourt. Bird drove along the side, cut toward the basket, fended off Detroit center Kent Benson near the lane and threw the ball toward the hoop from about five feet away.

"As you could tell... I got the ball, we won," Bird said. "I was hoping I was going to get it. It's just like we know all Detroit's plays. Still, we've got to stop them."

"It is a tough way to lose, especially when you have the chance to win," Detroit guard Isiah Thomas said. "You never know until the game is over. I said to Bird, 'Nice shot.' And he smiled back."

Cavaliers 110, Clippers 94
Cleveland had not beat any team by more than eight points this season until defeating the Clippers by 16. Los Angeles has lost five in a row.

World B. Free scored 28 points to lead the Cavaliers, who had five others in double figures. Junior Bridgeman led the Clippers with 30 points.

The Cavaliers broke away from a 16-16 tie in the first quarter with 12 straight points and led comfortably the rest of the way.
Bulls 103, Kings 97

Chicago won its fourth in a row for a 24-21 record, its best mark at this stage of the season in seven years.

Michael Jordan scored 36 points for the Bulls, whose third-quarter surge put them ahead 83-77 going into the final period.

The Kings, who pulled within 101-97 with 58 seconds left, now have lost 18 times in 22 road games. Eddie Johnson topped the Kings with 36 points.
Spurs 130, Nets 127

George Gervin scored 47 points and Mike Mitchell had 28 as San Antonio held off several New Jersey scoring bursts.

The Spurs led by as many as 13 points in the third quarter and eight in the fourth.

Hawks 115, Pacers 106
Atlanta beat Indiana for the fourth straight time this season, getting 40 points from Dominique Wilkins and 24 more from Glenn Rivers.

With the game tied 68-68 and five minutes left in the first half, Rivers hit a pair of free throws that put the Hawks ahead for good.

Clark Kellogg had 24 points and Vern Fleming 23 for the Pacers.
Nuggets 128, Suns 100

Wayne Cooper touched off an 18-6 tear with a baseline jumper as the Nuggets pull away from a 70-70 tie en route to their rout of Phoenix. Alex English led all scorers with 37 points for Denver, which has won seven straight games.

Larry Nance paced Phoenix with 22 points.
Bucks 108, Warriors 101

Sidney Moncrief scored 30 points as Milwaukee won for the ninth straight time and Golden State lost its 15th in a row.

Mickey Johnson had 22 points for the Warriors.
Lakers 122, Trail Blazers 106

Los Angeles outscored Portland 13-6 in a four-minute stretch, starting with 55 seconds left in the third quarter, to turn a lead of three points into a 96-86 advantage.

GIRLS

out the quarter with six points and Sims added two. Lisa Watson scored six for Amarillo and Posey had two more in the quarter.

"Hereford did a smart job of slowing the game down," Amarillo coach Rosemary Jackson said. "It definitely had an effect on us. We are a running team, and we are fortunate to have won."

Last week, the Sandies defeated league-leading Monterey by 13 points in Lubbock. Jackson said that game was one of the best efforts by her team as the Sandies were able to run on Monterey.

With the win Tuesday, Amarillo moved to 11-3 in district play and 17-4 overall.

Sowers was determined to slow the tempo of the game by spreading his offense out. And with the Sandies conscious of the outside shooting of Sims and Darla Alford, the Whitefaces were able to get some important baskets by High driving the lane, Sowers said.

"We tried to be patient," he added. "In the first quarter, they were pressing and wanting to run. We knew we couldn't do that. But they had to quit pressing, and the tempo changed."

High led Hereford scorers with 10 points. Sims added eight.

From the start of the second quarter, Hereford's plan to slow the game was evident. In fact, the game looked as if neither team might score in the period. High got the first two points at the 4:34 mark to give Hereford a 16-14 lead.

But Lynch responded with a bucket to tie the score. Next, Hereford would open its biggest lead of the game, 20-16, when Niblett followed a missed layup attempt by High and Sims hit a jumper.

Amarillo clawed its way back to a tie at intermission on four points by 6-2 center Amy Tollefson.

"They stopped Amy pretty good," Jackson said. "And we've got to have scoring from her."

Hereford relied on a collapsing zone defense around Tollefson to limit Amarillo's junior to only two of seven attempts from the field. For the night, Amarillo shot 46 field goals, connecting on 14 (30.4 percent). The Whitefaces shot 35 field goals, also making 14 (40 percent).

High got four points in the third quarter, and Niblett scored two for Hereford. Posey, Lynch and Tollefson each scored two for Amarillo.

"We wanted to be right there at the end of the game where we had a chance," Sowers said. "I can't gripe. I'm proud of them (the Whitefaces)."

In the junior varsity game, Amarillo completed a sweep of the Hereford girls with a 44-32 win.

shots. I think they may have been a little worried about our big guys inside."

Amarillo extended its first quarter lead to 12 points at halftime. With the score 31-17 with 2:53 to go, Hereford had the chance to slice away the lead. But missed free throws again hurt the Whitefaces.

First, Redus hit a hook shot from about six feet away and was fouled. However, he missed the ensuing free throw, and Amarillo led 31-19. Mike Scott nailed a 15-footer to draw Hereford to within 10 points. Hereford then took the ball back with an opportunity to get even closer.

Redus missed two shots from underneath, but rebounded both attempts. He was fouled the last time he tried to go back up. He missed the first one free throw, and Hereford was called for a lane violation on the second.

In the remainder of the second quarter, Redus hit a free throw and Daniel King connected on a 15-foot jumper.

"They (the Sandies) played good defense," Fields said. "But we didn't do a good job of blocking out, either. We gave them way too many follow-up shots."

Amarillo attempted 60 shots from the floor on the night. Thirty of those were good.

The Sandies could never seem to put Hereford away in the third quarter. The Whitefaces got within eight points at one time, 40-32. From there, though, Amarillo made eight straight points and went on to make the score 57-39 at the end of the third period.

"We made only one or two field goals after about the first minute of the third quarter," Fields said. "In the fourth quarter, we made only one field goal."

That lone field goal was made by Hacker on an 18-footer.

Amarillo had four players score in double digits. Michael Sweeney joined Hassenfratz, Eddleman and Gleghorn for the honors. Sweeney and Gleghorn each had 10 points.

Amarillo also took the boys junior-varsity game by the score of 89-44. No individual scoring summaries were given.

Council approves distribution formula

DENTON, Texas (AP) — After almost three months of debate, the Texas Council of University Presidents has approved a formula for distribution of $100 million that voters passed in November to aid higher education.

The Texas House appropriations committee is scheduled to consider the plan this week, said Wanda Mills, executive director of council.

Beginning in September, Proposition 2 money will be available for land purchases, new construction, equipment, building repair and library materials.

Proposition 2 was proposed to support universities and colleges outside the Texas A&M University and University of Texas at Austin system, which benefit from the Permanent University Fund.

The following factors would determine the amount each school receives under the council plan, Mills said last week:

- Space shortages, based on square footage of space per fulltime student.
- Amount of building repair needed to meet fire and safety standards.
- Instructional complexity of the school, using a Coordinating Board formula that takes into consideration student enrollment and types of programs. An engineering school, for example, would receive more consideration because it would need more room for large equipment.

University in Lubbock, Lamar University in Beaumont, Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls, and East Texas State University in Commerce comprised the ad hoc panel.

Planning session scheduled Monday

Parents of senior class members are encouraged to be present during their meeting scheduled at 7 p.m. Feb. 4 at the Hereford High School library.

Those in attendance will plan the senior dinner and prom.

Gospel music convention set

An old-fashion singing convention will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Lamar Room of King's Manor Retirement Home.

Anyone interested in listening or singing gospel music is invited to attend.

Cultural members revise club laws

The Cultural Extension Homemakers Club met Friday in the home of Carrie Mae Doak for a meeting called to order by Nell Pope, president.

Members answered roll call with ways to improve the club. Winnie Wiseman read the opening exercise "Do You Remember?"

During the business session of the meeting, members discussed the revision of the club's by-laws. Wiseman read the changes to be voted on during the next meeting. Members chose as their favorite club program of 1984 the Red Cross CPR program presented by Betty Henson.

Later in the meeting, Bertha Dettmann and Jill Hargrave presented an officers training program.

Other members present were Mildred Lewis, Jill Rogers, Vernis Parsons, Edith Hunter and Raelene Smith.

Balanced budget would help farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Help for financially stricken farmers lies not in new government price-support programs or the continuation of old ones, but in moving the federal budget closer toward balance, a farm economist says.

A strong showing of fiscal restraint on the part of Congress could bring interest rates down by four percentage points, and that alone could bolster farmers' annual incomes by $8 billion, said Luther Tweeten of Oklahoma State University.

Speaking Monday at a policy forum at the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative Washington think tank, Tweeten said the farm debt crisis "stalks the land like the fifth horseman of the apocalypse," and predicted one in ten farmers will go out of business in the next three or four years if conditions do not improve.

He said that half of all farm debt — which now totals more than $200 billion — and 22 percent of farms are in a state of "severe" stress.

"In my judgment, even my figures are low," Tweeten said, adding that the financial situation in the farm belt has deteriorated since they were calculated.

As Congress prepares to draft a new four-year omnibus farm bill this year, much talk has revolved around how best to address the problems of farmers, suffering from their worst economic woes in decades. Particular attention has been given to whether price support programs should be continued, and if so, at what levels. The Reagan administration favors phasing them out.

But the main culprit, Tweeten said, is not low farm prices but high interest rates, which have sapped the best efforts of many producers to tread water financially. Farmers suffer more from high interest rates than other segments of the economy because their business is capital intensive and highly dependent on exports, he said.

Tweeten said the interest-rate problem is due to high federal budget deficits, and that he blamed on a "breakdown of the political process."

Conservatives, he said, have been the traditional restraining force on government spending.

"However, President Reagan ...

President Harry Truman signed a bill on Feb. 29, 1952, designating Sept. 17 as an annual Citizenship Day. It replaced I am an American Day, which was formerly celebrated on the third Sunday in May, and Constitution Day, which was held on Sept. 7.

has given tax cuts and increased military spending greater priority than a balanced budget," said Tweeten. "When the Republicans don't speak up for fiscal responsibility, who's going to do it?"

Actually, farm prices now are at a rough equilibrium when placed in historical context, and may even be on the high side because of current government price-support spending, he said.

"I don't think we can expect better prices in agriculture over the long run," said Tweeten.

The emphasis on paring federal spending, rather than creating new farm aid programs, is shared by some farm groups. A round of lobbying was scheduled today by the "Balanced Budget Brigade," a coalition of the Farm Bureau, the National Grange, the National Farmers Organization and commodity groups for corn and soybeans.

"High interest rates have greatly increased farm production costs while the high dollar has significantly reduced exports and lowered farm prices," said Roger Asendorf, president of the American Soybean Association. "Together, they've cut farm profit opportunities."

If Congress decides not to take the deficit-reduction route, Tweeten said, the second-best solution would be targeted credit help for the farmers in most acute distress. "Money goes a lot farther if it is targeted than if it is spread out through general commodity (price-support) programs," he said.

Federal Reserve System economist Emanuel Melichar, who backed up most of Tweeten's assessment, pointed out that targeted credit help is difficult to administer because the most inefficient, poorly managed farms would appear most eligible for such aid.

WASHINGTON (AP) — December egg production was up 5 percent from a year earlier to 6.04 billion, the Agriculture Department says.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said Monday that the total number of layers during the month was 286 million, up 3 percent from the 278 million in 1983.

Production included 5.43 billion eggs for table or commercial use and 611 million for hatching.

Egg production during the year ended Nov. 30, 1984, totaled 68.2 billion eggs, about the same as 1983 production, the board said. Layer numbers during the year averaged 278 million, compared with 276 million in 1983.

Water bill top priority for farmers, ranchers

AUSTIN (AP) — Water is the number one priority for farmers and ranchers, the president of the Texas Farm Bureau said.

S.M. True said the maintaining of existing water rights, especially those which relate to underground water take top priority of the water bill before state legislators.

"We are concerned about the bays and estuaries issue and support attempting to balance the needs between environment and legitimate water users," he said before the Texas Farm Bureau Leadership Conference on Tuesday.

Gov. Mark White, who served as guest speaker, said a good water package is in the making which should please all Texans.

He encouraged the 500 in attendance to express their views on the water bill.

White also said transportation, which is critical to agriculture, is being set high on legislators' priority lists.

"I know how important it is to have the maintenance of roads" White said about farm to market roads.

White said new companies are looking at taxes and utility rates when deciding on new locations to expand.

"We are among the lowest tax base of any industrial state in the nation. We're about 49th of all the states on tax bases," he said.

White said a new wave of economic development in Texas lies in rural areas.

"Companies are looking for places to go, a place to expand their operation and they're asking for a quality of life. What's happening in the rural parts of our state are going to be the new wave of economic development," he said.

He said 40 percent of Texans have seen lower rates in utilities in the past months because of reductions from the Public Utilities Commission.

True said other issues facing his organization include agricultural appropriations, education and farm labor.

Workers ask for jobless benefits

AUSTIN (AP) — Two farm workers, testifying at a legislative hearing, told lawmakers they believe it's unfair for Texas law to deny them unemployment benefits.

"We wish that there would be work. We prefer work to unemployment. Why is it that the state of Texas does not want to give unemployment benefits to farm workers?" asked Eduardo Garcia, 62, a farm worker for 45 years.

"I believe that I should have rights after all these years of work," Garcia, who lives near Donna, told a House Committee on Labor and Employment Relations hearing Tuesday.

The committee chairman, Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-La. Marque, has introduced a bill to provide unemployment compensation for most farm workers.

"We created a law in 1936 creating income maintenance during involuntary periods of unemployment. This exclusion discriminates against our citizens who work on farms. As a group, they are singled out for unequal treatment under the law," Criss said.

Under current law, a Texas employer must provide unemployment benefits for his workers if his quarterly payroll exceeds $1,500 and he employs one person in 20 weeks a year. For farm workers to be covered, a farmer must have a quarterly payroll of $20,000 and employ 10 people for 20 weeks in a year. Criss said only 0.5 percent of all farmers fall into that category.

Criss said his bill would apply unemployment benefits to farm workers "exactly as it is applied to all other workers," and he rejected arguments from farmers and work crew leaders who contend it would be too expensive for them.

"The average yearly expenditure each farmer can expect to make for each worker's benefits is $97.20," Criss said.

The lawmaker noted that regardless of his bill, State District Judge Harley Clark already has ruled that the current law discriminates. The TEC will still have to pay jobless benefits to farmworkers, he said, and without the bill "other employers' taxes may increase to cover the costs for which farmers and crew leaders should be responsible."

The only opponent to the bill at Tuesday's hearing was Pat Smith, an official of the Texas Farm Bureau.

Although he had no exact figure, Smith said Criss' $97.20 cost estimate is too low, adding that farmers see good reasons they should be exempted from paying for the benefits.

"A great deal of agricultural employment ... is seasonal and temporary in nature. Seasonal workers enter employment knowing that when the crop has been picked or the field has been cultivated, that their employment with that particular farmer or rancher will end," Smith said.

"To permit unemployment claims in such a situation seems to us to be contrary to the original concept and intent of unemployment compensation," he said.

According to the FBI, the crime rate in the United States fell 7 percent in 1983.

Mr. Farmer, You Asked For 'Em And Now We've Got 'Em!

The NEW Waterman Surge-Flow Valve!

You can pre-program the surge-flow valve for the periodic application of water in surges or pulses rather than the conventional continuous furrow stream.

The Advantages?

- First, increases rate of water advance down the furrow enables more acres to be irrigated in less time.
- Second, increased uniformity and efficiency are obtained. When the advance time approximates the surge water recession time, a very uniform application is possible.
- Third, less water is used. Surge Flow can enable the farmer to radically conserve water, yet assuring that the water gets to the lower end of the field.
- Fourth, surge flow can economically accommodate "quickie" irrigations between rainfalls.

El Paso native sees civil rights efforts as debt

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — On a recent evening, civil rights lawyer Raul Noriega sat in an East Side restaurant, shredding his paper napkin in nervous anticipation.

Noriega, 36, had helped change El Paso politics by successfully challenging traditional voting systems that he claimed diluted the Hispanic vote.

That night, as Noriega anxiously waited, the El Paso Independent School District Board of Trustees agreed to comply with a judge's order to hold new single-member district elections.

It was what Noriega wanted, and became a fitting climax to one of his last campaigns as a legal aid lawyer.

"I have paid my dues, upwards, forwards, backwards and sideways," said Noriega, a native El Pasoan now living in San Antonio.

He plans to resign March 31 as head of San Antonio's federally funded Texas Rural Legal Aid voting rights project.

After some skindiving in the Bahamas, he will enter private practice in San Antonio. Real estate cases will take precedence over minority voting rights.

"Doing civil rights, I've lived out of hotels and suitcases," Noriega said. "I've been called a racist in newspapers. I've been the center of controversy. It's emotionally painful. I can't take it anymore."

Yet, his friend, El Paso Hispanic leader Patricia Roybal Sutton, believes Noriega will not turn his back on injustice or the poor. If he does, "then he's just blown my whole image of him," she said.

"He's not compromising his principles or his outlook," Roybal Sutton said. "He needs to take a break. In the last four or five years, he's probably put 10 to 15 years of a lifetime into it."

Noriega, who earns $32,000 a year heading his voting rights office, grew up in a middle-class Hispanic family in central El Paso. He graduated from Austin High School in 1966, with honors. He served in Vietnam as a U.S. Marine.

"I don't carry a chip on my shoulder, but there were always constant reminders that I was different (because he was Mexican-American)," Noriega said.

He saw glimpses of his destiny when, as a 5-year-old, he cried upon learning about the Civil War and slavery. He remembers "decking" an Anglo who uttered an ethnic slur when Noriega tried to play basketball with a group of boys in 1962.

The feelings jelled during the Vietnam conflict when racial awareness led to fights breaking out in his barracks.

His experience in Vietnam changed his life forever.

He enlisted in 1968, with the attitude: "If I can do this, no one will ever question my allegiance to this country."

"I came back very, very angry. Angry at society, at my elders, at what I had been asked to do. You don't have pick up too many dead bodies before you start looking at life differently."

He returned to El Paso with a new set of values, toughened by a fighter instinct instilled by Marine Corps training.

As student at the University of Texas at El Paso, Noriega marinated in the Chicano movement. He graduated with a degree in psychology from the University of Texas at Austin.

After a stint as a volunteer with El Paso Legal Aid Society, Noriega committed himself to legal work. He's been a lawyer seven years.

He was a lawyer for the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund before joining Texas Rural Legal Aid.

In 1981, he successfully sought legislative redistricting that would give El Paso's Hispanic an equal vote.

He complained in 1982 that a proposed City Council redistricting plan would discriminate against Mexican-American voters. A West-Central aldermanic district was subsequently created.

The El Paso Community College board of trustees agreed to change voting from at-large to single-member districts in 1983, at the request of Noriega and his clients, a group of El Paso Hispanics.

After waging a lengthy and costly lawsuit against El Paso Independent School District trustees last year, Noriega and his clients convinced a federal judge to order new elections for all seven single-member district seats created in 1984.

Still pending is a single-district voting plan for the Ysleta Independent School District. Noriega has asked federal officials to reject a plan submitted by the Ysleta school board.

The changes so far will not necessarily mean more Hispanics will be elected to El Paso's governmental bodies, he said. But Hispanics will now know their vote will have an impact, Noriega said.

Where previously Mexican-Americans have voted for a candidate, and seen their candidate consistently lose, the redistricting changes mean the Hispanic can vote, and then "he can tell his neighbor, 'Hey, I got my man elected,'" he said.

Noriega said Hispanics are falsely characterized as being apathetic.

"If anything, the Hispanic voter is very astute. He hasn't voted because he knows it doesn't make any difference."

Now, with the opening of a variety of seats to more direct voting methods, Noriega predicts new levels of political activity will emerge along with different allegiances and centers of political authority.

He said Anglos in El Paso have nothing to fear from the changes.

"Some feel that the Mexican-Americans are going to take over, and it isn't true. What will happen is this will cut down on polarization," Noriega defines polarization as when Anglos only vote for Anglos and Mexican-Americans only vote for candidates of their ethnic group.

Noriega's work in Texas has come under scrutiny by conservative U.S. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and his Senate committee on Labor and Human Resources. An investigation is under way of various legal aid offices around the country that are funded by Legal Services Corp. The investigation centers on whether the offices are violating legal aid rules.

Noriega said the investigation stems from conservatives' belief that free legal aid for the poor should be restricted to matters like divorce.

"The liberals think the things I'm doing are very good," he maintained.

Throughout the last seven years as a civil rights lawyer, Noriega considered quitting.

"I know if I hadn't done civil rights work I would be making a helluva lot more money. I'd be way ahead financially."

With the recent changes in El Paso, Noriega believes he's finally paid his debt to his hometown and society.

"This is really corn-ball and almost flag-waving, but I believe everybody has to put back into society what they've taken out of it. My way was to do civil rights work."

"That streak of abrasiveness and meanness comes from my belief that no matter what you do, you've got to fight for it."

Noriega still encounters prejudice — sometimes in the most unexpected places.

During a recent dinner party with colleagues in San Antonio, he left the table and never returned after someone told a racial joke.

"I don't want to argue with it. I don't want to fight it. I don't want to deal with it. And if it gets in my way, I'll sue it."

Bloody Monday of domestic violence leaves seven dead

An Oklahoma man killed his ex-wife and two other women then wounded himself when his divorce became final, while an unemployed father in Mississippi shot his estranged wife, fatally stabbing their three young daughters then killed himself, police said.

Authorities said welder Floyd Ware's shotgun spree in Wynona, Okla., was aimed at the women who had testified at a hearing Monday in which his divorce became final.

Perry Lawrence of Vicksburg, Miss., was apparently distraught after losing his job when he wounded his estranged wife and fatally stabbed their daughters Sunday, police said.

Ware, 50, who had served as a Wynona councilman and sometimes as city marshal, was in critical condition today at St. Francis Hospital in Tulsa with a gunshot wound to the head, said nursing supervisor Linda Burns.

He was divorced Monday from Lily Belle Ware at a hearing in Osage County District Court in Pawhuska. Wynona, a community of 780, is about 30 miles northwest of Tulsa.

"Apparently, he just decided to get a gun and take care of all those who testified against him in the hearing," said Osage County Undersheriff Bill Mitchell.

Ware's attorney, Jay Byers, said his client was "involved and fixated" in the divorce proceeding. "He was exceedingly wrapped up in the case."

In Mississippi, Lawrence, 24, had argued with his estranged wife shortly before unleashing his violence on her and their children in Vicksburg, about 40 miles west of Jackson.

Authorities said Lawrence had been fired from his job last week because he and his wife, who worked at the same location, had argued.

Detective Capt. Phil Solomon said Lawrence went to a club Sunday night and ordered his wife, Laverne Jones Lawrence, 24, to leave. "She told him she would not and he drug her out," Solomon said.

"He then knocked her to the ground and opened fire. Witnesses said he fired at her five times from point blank range," Solomon said. Mrs. Lawrence was in stable condition today at Vicksburg Hospital, said a night supervisor who would not give her name.

Lawrence then picked his children up from his parents' house and drove them to Mrs. Lawrence's parents' house, where the stabbings occurred, Solomon said.

"The older girl apparently broke away from Lawrence and made it to the front door of her grandparents' home," said Solomon. "A child inside the house heard her screaming and looked through a window and saw the stabbing on the front porch."

The dead children were identified by family members as Carswaye Jones, 6, Millicent Lawrence, 4, and April Lawrence, 2.

As Lawrence's description was being broadcast to police units, officers received word of a shooting at a nearby shopping center parking lot.

"Officers found Perry Lawrence laying in the parking lot with one gunshot wound to the right temple and witnesses at the scene said the shot was self-inflicted," Solomon said.

Lawrence died Monday afternoon at the University Medical Center in Jackson.

Daisy Kaiser, Lawrence's mother, said a note, scribbled by her son last week, was found following the shooting and stated that Lawrence was "empty inside" because of the separation from his wife and that he was trying "to get his head together."
