

Migrant summer school to get underway here Friday

Enrollment for the migrant summer school at Tierra Blanca Elementary School will be conducted all day Friday with classes scheduled to begin Monday.

Parents should take their children, grades kindergarten through sixth grade, to the school cafeteria Friday if they plan to enroll them in the summer school. Students may enroll themselves if a parent is unable to accompany them.

Bob Holman, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum in the Hereford school system, said classes will begin with a breakfast each morning of the 40-day program. The breakfast will be served at 8 a. m. followed by the first class at 8:30 a. m. Classes will continue through to 2:30 p. m. each day. "The school will be taught under entirely new approaches in teaching," Holman said. "We will try out a lot of new things. It will be a whole new concept."

Some 30 professional teachers, 30 teachers aides and specialized teachers will conduct the summer program.

Students in the summer program will be fed breakfast, lunch, an afternoon snack and will participate in field trips.

School buses will be provided to carry the students to and from the school. The buses will travel these streets and roads: 16th Street, 15th Street, 13th Street, 2nd Street, Blevin Street, Brevard Street, Avenue K, South Schley Street, Knight Street, Texas Street, Norton Street, Bradley Street, Maple Street, Austin Road, Dairy Road, Progressive Road, Country Club Drive, South Main Street, Grand Street, Union Street, Park Avenue, U. S. 60 west to Tower Drive-In, U. S. 60 East to Big Daddy's Truck Stop, Highway 385-north to 16th Street-south to Walnut Road, Harrison Highway to Holly Road and through the Labor Camp.

These routes may be altered as enrollment necessitates. A student may ride the buses by waiting outside his home or standing at a near-by street corner.

Perez near the regular weekend dance, about a block north of where the fighting originally had broken out. Jones, deputy sheriff Dean Butcher and Samuels finally got the cuffs on the two and got them in a police car.

"I started walking back toward my patrol car and somebody hollared something," Samuels said. "I turned around to see what happened and somebody in the crowd, at the dance hall, threw a rock that hit me in the back of the head. There were three of us standing shoulder to shoulder, and I happened to get the rock."

Samuels said he didn't know it was a rock until later. He said he heard a loud bang just as he turned around. "A split second after the shot, I felt this pain in my head and I buckled to my knees. I thought somebody had shot at us and had grazed me. I jumped up, pulled my pistol and turned to the crowd and they started discharging, pretty quick," Samuels said.

The two other officers told him later in the night, they saw the rock glance off his head and onto the police car. The rock put a dent in a light unit on the police car, even after glancing off Samuels.

Sheriff Travis McPherson and Department of Public Safety Sgt. Bill Wells went to the hospital when they heard the report over their radios. They then went to the Labor Camp and found Samuels' hat. It was mashed up like it would have been if a rock hit it.

Labor camps may face strict rules

By BETTY HANNA
Brand Correspondent

AUSTIN—The Texas Legislature has passed and sent to Gov. Preston Smith a bill that would require migrant labor camps such as Hereford's to meet strict guidelines set down by the Texas Department of Health or shut down.

Rep. Lauro Cruz of Houston sponsored the bill because, he said, "the present condition of some migrant labor camps in the state constitutes a public nuisance."

Cruz said conditions in such camps are a health hazard to the persons who live in them and to residents of the communities in which the camps are situated.

The bill — in addition to giving the state health department the right to license, supervise and regulate the labor camps — also would provide penalties for violations.

With the governor's signature, the proposal would become law next month, although operators of existing camps would be allowed a grace period of 150 days to obtain a license.

A fee of up to $50 would be charged for the license. That would be charged if the camp contained family type housing (both sexes) of 31 or more dwelling units. If the camp had two to 10 dwelling units, the fee would be $20; if from 11 to 30 units, $35.

Dormitory type housing would be assessed a $15 fee if it accommodated 24 beds or less and $20 if 25 beds or more.

A representative of the state health department would inspect the camp to determine if it met "reasonable, minimum standards of construction, sanitation, equipment and operation." Any license granted a labor camp meeting the specifications would be good for one year and would be nontransferable.

The health department standards would concern construction of camps; sanitary conditions; water supply; toilets; sewage disposal, refuse and garbage storage, collection and disposal; light; air; safety; protection from fire hazards; equipment; maintenance; operation of the camp "and such other matters as may be determined to be appropriate or necessary for the protection of the health and safety of occupants."

The bill provides that a ny operator of a camp without a license or any employe or occupant who misuses the facilities be fined not more than $25. A second conviction would be punished by imprisonment for not more than 30 days, a fine of not more than $100, or both.

Under the terms of the bill, "misuse" of the facilities would include an occupant's failure to use sanitary or other facilities furnished him or vandalism of the facilities.

ted due to the high winds and the soil drying out. We were getting real erratic stands and all of this should improve because of the rain," McBride said.

McBride said where the milo is not germinating properly, it is common to see several rows of seed coming up good then several rows not even coming up. This, he said, should change somewhat in the areas where considerable amounts of moisture was received.

Charles Richards The smoke clears

A recent Department of Agriculture report indicates the nationwide campaign to reduce cigarette smoking has been less than a total success.

The answer appears the same whether you're talking about people in Deaf Smith County, in Texas or in the nation as a whole.

The statistics indicate, to be sure, that many men and women have joined the "I quit" ranks. Apparently, however, most of them are elderly people or persons who never smoked much.

The heavy smokers? The report says they are smoking more now than before.

Bolstering the anti-smoking TV campaign has been the need to dig deeper and deeper into the pocket to come up with enough change to buy cigarettes. Lately, when legislatures have had to come up with more revenue, the first tax they levied has been against smokes.

Texas, for example, has just added three more cents tax. That will raise it to 18 cents tax, or 48 cents a package. But despite the higher price, despite the persistent TV commercials yelling, "Don't! Don't!" the consumption has risen. Some 2,022,000 packs of cigarettes were sold here in 1970, which figures out to 170 packs for every local resident over the age of 18.

That's still less than a lot of places. In the Southwestern U. S., the average was 172 packs. For a nation as a whole, the average was a whopping 202 packs for the same age group.

If you're one of those who is ready for football again, already, Larry Wartes says he feels he'll be going into the 1971-72 football season with better kids, potentially.

And one assistant coach went down this fall's schedule for the Whitefaces and predicted a 7-3 season.

Wartes isn't quite that wildly enthusiastic about it. The problem is, even if Hereford does field a better team this fall, he looks for the other teams to improve, too.

"Pampa, Clovis and Dunbar all will be better than last year," he said the other day. "In our district, I think it's gonna be a good challenge."

Monterey is the team calculated to wind up with all the marbles by season's end. "The rest of us," Wartes opines, "are going to have to get after it."

The Whitefaces will have a good pen of running backs. John Page and Danny Harris are back from heavy frontline duty last autumn. Keith Kitchens, a sophomore passing whiz with the junior varsity last year, had less than an outstanding spring training but is being counted on for heavy duty. Another sophomore back, Wesley High, impressed coaches considerably with his elusive running in the spring drills.

Page and Harris look like they might develop into something big on defense, too, as linebackers.

The suspect spot apparently is the offensive line. When the varsity candidates hit the field late this summer in preparation for the new campaign, a lot of the work will be on offensive

Register Friday morning for swimming lessons

Children and young people register Friday morning from 9 to 12 at the city pool for Red Cross swimming lessons which are scheduled to begin Monday, according to Mrs. David Brumley, Water Safety Instructor chairman.

Adults registration will be Monday at 6:30 p. m. at the start of the first lesson.

blocking fundamentals.

The team has elected its tri-captains for 1971-72, incidentally. The players chose offensive tackle-defensive end Steve Clark; fullback-defensive half-back Eugene Suttle; and defensive tackle Richard Sierra. All are seniors.

The schedule is the same as last year, with home stadiums reversed. In order, Hereford will play Pampa, Palo Duro, Clovis, Dunbar, Amarillo, Dumas, Coronado, Plainview, Monterey and Lubbock. Palo Duro, Clovis, Dumas, Plainview and Lubbock are at Whiteface Stadium.

New assistant assumes duties in H.D. office

Joyce Shipp began work this week as the new assistant Home demonstration agent for Deaf Smith County. She replaces Mrs. Joe Frank Huckert, who resigned.

Mrs. Shipp will be working closely with 4-Hers in the county. Her first responsibility was to attend the State 4-H Round-Up on the Texas A&M campus.

Mrs. Shipp and her husband, Roy, came to Hereford from Snyder. Joyce taught home economics the past year in Hermleigh High School.

She is a graduate of Texas Tech, where she received her B. S. degree in home economics education. She enjoys painting, sewing, cooking, and especially any type of sports.

Small talk

BY SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

ONE OF the high styles for this year's brides (and now that June is here, it's time to talk of brides) is for very full sleeves, gathered at shoulder and wrist.

One Hereford bride must be very glad of that style, because the sleeve of her bridal gown neatly covered her broken arm.

Cindy Jones—Noltensmeyer now—suffered a fracture of a bone in her elbow shortly before her May 22 wedding.

The wedding dress went over the injured arm without any trouble, her mother says, and if the broken bone caused any pain the smiling bride didn't show it.

She's luckier than a bride I knew in another city, who went happily off for a weekend of skiing just before her wedding, and came back with a smashed shoulder in a bulky cast. She didn't even try to get into her tight-waisted, long-sleeved gown; just married in something comfortable.

THAT PHOTO of the pupils on Central School grounds back in 1909 brought back many memories for Mrs. Boyd London, who was the small girl in a dark dress and pigtales, near the end

Mrs. London has a copy of that photo, and can identify many of the pupils shown. She says Mrs. George Millard, who was then Helen Jenkins, is the only one she can find though, who still lives in Hereford.

The residence in the background of the picture identified as the Robinson home, wasn't that place, Mrs. London says. And she should know; she was

are Mrs. A. B. Higgins, who was vice president of the class; Miss Stacia Crawford of Amarillo, teacher of English and speech and school librarian then; and Homer Brumley. Members who came from other states, standing in photo at right, are Myra Hartman Witherspoon of Albuquerque and Travis Counts of Yuma, Ariz. Marie Seed Cogdell chats with Carlos Vaughn and John Anthony of Elida, N.M.

Class of 1931 holds reunion

Fourteen of the 32 who graduated from Hereford High School in 1931 were present for the 40th anniversary class reunion Saturday, an event held in connection with the annual Mid-Plains Pioneer celebration here.

With husbands, wives and a number of friends, they gathered at Community Center for an informal reception in the afternoon, then had dinner at the Calsen House that evening. They came from Arizona and New Mexico, in addition to a number of Texas cities.

Events of the past four years, since the class' last reunion in 1967, were related in answer to roll call. A previous reunion was held in 1952, and 10 of those present had attended all three meetings.

Plans were made for another reunion next year with members of the classes of 1930 and 1932 included.

Music by Mrs. Allen Evers and Larry Kuper supplied dinner entertainment.

Miss Stacia Crawford of Amarillo was the only 1931 faculty member at the reunion. The class sponsor was D. H. Hopkins, who now lives in Wyoming. G. M. Hudson was HHS principal when the class graduated, and C. H. Dillehay was superintendent of Hereford schools.

Members registered, with their spouses, were Messrs. and Mmes. A. B. Higgins, Frank Cogdell, R. L. Ethridge, Henry Kuper, Cecil Lady, Guy Walsler, Olan Fuqua of Tucumcari, Travis Counts of Yuma, Ariz., Buddy Witherspoon of Albuquerque, John Anthony of Elida, Claudel Sikes of Portales and Roger Orr of Lubbock; Mrs. Opal Dickson of Lubbock and Homer Brumley.

GETS COMMISSION — Frank Cain received his ROTC commission from the University of Texas during the recent spring graduation exercises. Cain was among more than 100 recipients receiving their commissions. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Cain, 104 Elm.

Mrs. Monty Smith

Timely irrigation means more extra profit

Timely irrigations on corn can mean extra bushels at harvest and often more production per acre-inch of water. "Corn irrigations should be applied with the plant's seasonal water use pattern in mind," explains Leon New of Lubbock, Area Irrigation Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Irrigations during high water use stages of growth contribute heavily to high corn yields while only slight increase in yields is obtained during growth stages requiring less water."

Generally, irrigation should begin at the six-to-eight leaf growth stage, he points out. The water requirement is normally about one-inch every ten days by this stage and increases rapidly as growth continues. Irrigations prior to six-leaves often produce rapid vegetative growth that results in a large, more lush plant early in the season. Such plants may require more water later in the season for grain production. Larger plants can increase the demands for irrigation water that is already limited on many farms.

"Corn has a high water requirement from just prior to tasseling through the dough stage of grain development," adds New. "Adequate moisture is especially vital to the corn plant during this period. Water use can be four-to-five inches during tasseling and selking, especially when temperatures are high. Irrigations should be keyed to this growth period."

New and Mack Heald, Farmer County Agricultural Agent, conducted corn irrigation studies last year on the Aubrey Heathington farm that supports this information. There was no yield increase from an irrigation applied at the six-leaf stage when the last of five additional alternate furrow irrigations was applied during the early dough stage about August 1. However, the application of six additional irrigations so that the last irrigation occurred during the dough stage on August 15 brought a 15 bushel per acre yield increase.

NO POLITICAL LOANS
MINEOLA, N.Y. — Franklin National Bank has discontinued the practice of lending money to political organizations.

No more loans will be made until the Justice Dept. clarifies the Federal Corrupt Practices Act, said a bank official. "We would not have made the (1970) loans (totaling $185,000)

if we did not think that we would get the money back," said bank president Harold Gleason. "The loans were unrelated to politics."

Wool, lamb referendum scheduled for June 7-18

A producer referendum on the wool and lamb market-development program will be held June 7 through 18 by mail.

"Any wool producer in Deaf Smith County who has owned sheep 6 months of age or older for at least 30 consecutive days during 1970 may cast a ballot in the referendum," said Frank J. Bezner, Chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

The mail referendum will be conducted by ASCS county offices. Ballots may be mailed in or producers may cast their vote by coming into their ASCS county office.

The outcome of the referendum will determine whether or not deductions from wool payments to producers will be continued. The deductions, as authorized in the National Wool Act, would be up to 1½ cents a pound on wool and 7½ cents a hundredweight on unshorn lambs, the rates for the past 5 years.

These deductions are used to enlarge the market for wool and lambs through advertising, merchandising and education. The promotion program is carried out under an agreement made between the Secretary of Agriculture and the American Sheep Producers Council (AS-PC).

Producers have voted 4 similar agreements into effect since 1955. For the agreement to be extended through 1973, the June referendum must show approval nationally by at least two-thirds of the producers voting, or by producers having at least two-thirds of the volume of wool production represented by the vote.

If a new agreement is not approved by producers, no deductions will be withheld from wool payments on 1971 marketings. The AS-PC programs would continue only as long as the present reserve fund permits or until some other agreement might be approved by producers.

The Chairman said that ballots are being mailed to all known wool and lamb producers in the area. Ballots will be mailed to the county ASCS office or delivered in person, as soon as they are received. Ballots must reach the county office no later than close of business on June 18 in order to be counted.

Legion sends 2 youths to Boys State

Bryan Adams and Ike Graves will represent Hereford as delegates to the 1971 session of Boys State, which begins Saturday on the campus of the University of Texas.

The program sponsored by The American Legion in Texas is an annual event in which the organization teaches boys the responsibilities of citizenship in actual "do it yourself" type program from which comes its motto, "Learn by Doing."

Delegates will meet in Austin and begin registration at 2 p.m. Saturday. Following an evening meal the delegates will assemble for orientation in their respective Boys State cities.

Eight hundred and forty boys, an all-time high enrollment, will be housed in 18 Boys State Cities with each city further divided into two precincts, one for the Federalist and one for the Nationalist political party. Each Boys State city is named in honor of a past department commander of the Legion who is now deceased.

June 11, the Boys State delegates will visit the State Capitol and actually sit in chairs of the office to which they were elected and run a mock state government for a day.

A governor's ball Friday night will climax the week's activities.

With intent to prolong good effects of the recent Trash Round-up Month sponsored by the Women's Division, Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce the division's executive committee Tuesday discussed further study of city trash ordinances and means to enforce them.

The committee had its June luncheon in Hereford Country Club at noon. Final reports were heard on the Trash Round-up, which was directed by a subcommittee headed by Mrs. Dick Barnard.

The city cleanup effort included a house-to-house canvass by division members, to distribute copies of municipal trash ordinances. Reaction of residents was discussed, including complaints that these ordinances are not properly enforced.

Mrs. Bill Lamm reported that more than $700 was raised for the Hereford Day Care Center in the community garage sale last month, in which Women's Division members cooperated. A similar sale is to be held later in the summer, she added.

Resignation of Mrs. Homer Garrison as one of the two directors of work in the Women's Division, was announced.

Routine reports from other committees were made at the luncheon, with Mrs. Shepard Townsend presiding.

Producers benefit by certification

Producers have to certify their compliance under the 1971 set-aside farm programs. Deadline for certification in Deaf Smith County is August 15, 1971, according to Frank J. Bezner, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

In most cases, it will be to a producer's advantage to certify his program acres as early as possible, he said. However, he emphasized that early certification is optional, and that a producer may certify at any time through August 15.

A producer must complete his certification before he can receive any set-aside payment. To certify, a producer signs a statement at the County ASCS office showing the acreages devoted to various crops under the 1971 farm programs. At the same time, he designates the amount and location of his set-aside acres.

"The Deaf Smith County ASCS office is ready to give farmers all possible help in correctly certifying their acres," Bezner said. "County Executive Director Jack Vanderburg and his staff will be glad to answer any questions or help with problems."

Producers who certify in time for data to be processed will get checks for their preliminary set-aside program payments as soon after July 1 as possible.

The ASC Committee Chairman pointed out that the preliminary feed grain and cotton payments could be complete, as additional payments depend on changes in market conditions. Such changes are not foreseen, he said.

First payment in the cotton program will be 15 cents a pound. In corn, it is set at 32 cents per bushel, and the grain sorghum is 29 cents a bushel. Feed grain payments are made on established farm yield times one-half the feed grain base; those for cotton on the established yield times acres planted, but not in excess of the farm's allotment, Bezner explained.

The preliminary wheat payment has not yet been announced but will be 75 percent of the estimated final value of domestic certificates.

Producers receive photocopies of aerial photography of their farms to help them certify, ASC Committee Chairman Bezner said. The photocopies show boundaries of farms and most up-to-date field acreage information. They are valuable for planning farm operations as well as for certification of program compliance.

The County ASCS office also provides measurement service, at cost, to help producers determine acreages at planting or at certification time.

"Most producers are familiar with our system of certification, followed by spot checks accuracy of these statements," Bezner said. "Producers can certify acreages once they complete their planting operations if they do not plan to make any changes. The important thing is to certify accurately and as soon as practical for early payments. But they must remember no changes can be made after certification."

ONLY THE BEGINNING

For all those who truly seek wisdom this is "Only The Beginning" time. It's time for rewards but also time for setting the sails to cope with the high winds ahead. Commencement to serious minds can be little less than frightening. Have these young people learned well to do their duty? Are they qualified to accept prosperity? Are they fortified for adversity? Have they learned about God? If they have not learned these things well, then they have learned but little. Opportunities are in abundance for those who are determined. Commencement is only the first round on a ladder that reaches to the stars for all who will but apply themselves. Then, young graduates, be of great faith and unlimited perseverance. For He said you have only "to seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

Research foundation gets grant to study soybeans

The High Plains Research Foundation has received a grant to study various soybean blends to determine if a blend of soybean varieties would perform more consistently than a single pure variety. This grant is a matching funds agreement made available by the Tex Soybean Producers Board and a local seed firm.

tion is one of the largest in the State and includes the USDA Regional variety tests for maturity groups IV, V, and VI.

Watsons attend funeral confab

Charles and Marline Watson of Gilliland Funeral Home will attend the 85th annual convention of the Texas Funeral Director and Embalming Association at the Astroworld Complex in Houston June 8-10.

Over 1,200 persons are expected to attend the three day conclave, and delegates will participate in business and social sessions as well as take part in workshop programs dealing with education, laws and legislation affecting funeral service and business management.

The meeting will conclude with the annual banquet on the night of June 10, with the election of the officers and directors. John W. Morrow Jr., of Houston is president of Texas Funeral Director and Embalming Association.

"In areas where soybean blends have been used, certain blends have proven better over a number of years and we think this could be the case here," Dr. Douglas Owen, senior agronomist, said.

In other areas of research, Dr. Owen said that the soybean program will be altered in 1971 to include three new procedures. The early maturing variety test containing varieties of group IV maturity will be planted double row on 40-inch beds since these varieties tend to perform better under close row spacing.

In addition, a variety test will be initiated using only one post-plant irrigation with the object of finding varieties that might produce 25-35 bushels per acre under limited water conditions. The soybean program at the High Plains Research Foundation is one of the largest in the State and includes the USDA Regional variety tests for maturity groups IV, V, and VI. Highest yielding soybean variety is the 1970 USDA Regional tests was Kent with a yield of 61.9 bushels per acre. The highest yield recorded was 70.3 bushels per acre from an unreleased strain in the USDA Regional Group IV test.

Dr. Owen said the 1970 soybean tests indicated that area farmers could get good results by planting varieties of HP-963, Hill and Hood soybeans. He said newcomers that showed promise for area production were varieties of York, Kent and Delmar.

Among the soybean strains to be studied in the 1971 HPRF advanced strains test will be 10 selections from the 24 strains in the 1970 study, and 79 of the 200 strains in the 1970 Preliminary strains test.

Full details on the HPRF soybean tests are reported in the 1970 Research Report now available to High Plains Research Foundation members.

He's a witch, but without a broom

Fla. (AP) — Chances are if there's a witch living on your block, you won't even know it. Modern witches don't race off to work on broom sticks or wear pointed hats.

As a matter of fact, even your beautician could be a witch. Frank Webb, a tall ethereal-looking man of 23, is an imaginative hairdresser and a bona fide wizard who practices white magic.

Webb arrived at his philosophical stance through what he considers spiritual evolution. His mental wanderings took him from Christianity to atheism to Buddhism and finally to the mysticism and magic of witchcraft.

"I was brought up in a Christian home. Even as a small boy I was extremely religious. I was going to be a priest," he explains brushing back his long blond hair.

But he began questioning the Christian dogma. "I started reading thing sin the Bible and I couldn't understand it. It just didn't make any sense to me. I went to another thing and decided maybe I should just believe in myself, which is a typical western outlook."

He got into Zen Buddhism and found that for him it had a "truer meaning for life." By applying certain Buddhist translations of Sanskrit terms to the Bible, he found the Bible became more meaningful to him. "It takes on an entirely different perspective," he says.

Moving into the mystical realm is an exploration strictly forbidden by Christian and Judaic religions, notes Webb. And belief in reincarnation, core element of witchcraft, is also anathema.

Witchcraft is concerned primarily with sending out and calling back vibrations. Since, "whatever you send out comes back to you somehow, sometime," he steers clear of black magic.

And because he doesn't want his powers or energies deployed for the selfish gain of others, he is a private practitioner, shunning covens.

The young man feels he can truly affect the course of events. "I can cause things to occur," he says confidently. "I can cause money or love to come to me. I have changed people's lives by sending out good vibrations."

But there is a limit to the powers. What has been specifically pre-determined cannot be changed, he says, even though the spirit of each individual lays out his own master plan for life.

According to Buddhism and Webb's personal beliefs, there is a silver cord that attaches the spiritual self to the physical body. The two become detached only at death. "When you die, the spiritual self rises to the Hall of Memory," he explains. "Here's where you review your last life. You're your own worst judge. You are on a higher plane of existence now, so you're very fair. You then set up your next birth. You choose your parents, your place of birth, your sex and color."

Since the spirit or soul lives on, in one form or another, he never ceases to exist, maintains Webb. "The soul holds knowledge and love. It is the only thing that lives after death."

We are reborn or reincarnated to learn specific lessons. According to Webb, it is a process that continues until atonement has been reached. He defines atonement as "basically learning everything that all the religions or philosophies teach. Its reaching Christhood." Then you return, he explains, only to help your fellowman.

Since it's a progressive process, he does not believe people come back as lower forms of life. That would be reversing evolution.

Webb thinks the present surge of interest in witchcraft is just a beginning, that there will be a peak in the coming years when today's younger generation reaches adulthood.

To underscore his contention of a groundswell of interest he points to the increased selling of good luck charms and ouija boards even among older people.

For those who play around with ouija boards, he warns, "You can call up evil spirits. The best thing to do is ask before you begin 'Are you in the light of Christ?'"

Webb knows some people think he's odd. But it doesn't bother him. He feels science already is taking seriously some of the things he believes in, such as ESP.

And while eight years ago he may have been a lone practitioner, today he finds himself among the company of artists, social workers, secretaries, teachers, engineers and others who have turned to the mysteries of witchcraft.

Studies going on now at Tech

Refuse likely to furnish protein for hungry world

Refuse from industry and the brush, weeds and leftovers of highly developed agriculture — contributing now to pollution — are likely to furnish the high protein diet a hungry world needs in the near future, at a nice profit.

Newspaper and other waste paper, weeds and mesquite, feedlot waste, cotton gin waste and other throw-aways have been fed experimentally and in various forms to cattle as a maintenance diet.

Studies at Texas Tech University, however, are developing a growth and gain feed which eventually could provide high protein for man as well as beast.

Side benefits would be pollution control and brush cutback. The research is described as a "real breakthrough in pollution control and food production."

The common and key ingredient for the necessary raw material is cellulose, and the process itself is virtually waste free.

Microbiological research at Texas Tech has shown that feedlot wastes can be used both as a cellulose and a nitrogen source for conversion of it and other waste into a complete cattle feed with a single cell protein base.

At the present time, scientists contend that the human value is in meat production, but a protein usable directly by humans is a future possibility.

The process uses carefully selected bacteria which multiply by digesting cellulose. Undigested portions of the raw material could be treated enzymatically or chemically for conversion to sugar, important in making the product attractive to livestock. There is no waste because what cannot be converted is used by livestock as necessary roughage.

The process in development is several times more efficient in the conversion of cellulose to single cell protein than the bacteria in the rumen of cattle and other animals, and the nutritional quality is equal at least to such standard protein supplements as soy flour.

The Texas Tech studies are directed by Dr. Donald W. Thayer of the biology faculty, Chairman S. P. Yang of the Department of Food and Nutrition, and Director Joseph L. Schuster of Brush Control Studies.

The earliest work on the project was done at Texas Tech by Dr. Yang who has spent several years in basic research in this field. The principal research currently is being carried out by microbiologists under the direction of Thayer. Yang's primary interest is in the nutritional value of the product. Thayer's principal interest is in production, including the selection of the most useful bacteria, Dr. Schuster's immediate interest is in methods for harvesting brush.

"The potential is tremendous," Thayer said, and he cited comparisons of protein production.

A 1,000-pound steer can produce one pound of protein per day; 1,000 pounds of soybeans can produce 100 pounds of protein per day; 1,000 pounds of yeast can produce 100 thousand pounds of protein per day, but 1,000 pounds of bacteria can produce 100 trillion pounds of protein per day.

"Single cell protein can be produced independently of climatic conditions," Thayer pointed out. "Single cells can be manipulated genetically and further modified by control of their growth environment, thereby providing a variety of single cell protein."

Single cells have a rapid doubling time — 20 to 60 minutes — whereas even yeast takes 90 to 120 minutes to double in bulk.

At the present time the only microorganisms grown on a commercial scale for food or food additives are yeasts, with a worldwide annual production in excess of 250,000 tons of which 90 per cent probably is used for fodder.

Numerous pilot plant studies using bacteria for converting natural gas, petroleum and sugarcane waste into single cell protein are in various stages of development, Thayer said.

"From the standpoint of potential profit," he added, "it is obviously much more lucrative to use materials such as feedlot waste for bacterial growth than petroleum since no purification of the product is necessary. The nutritional quality of such bacterial protein is equal at least to such standard protein supplements as soy flour."

"This approach offers a means of converting low cost materials into high protein feed."

He said the process is dependent upon large quantities of water, but this could be recycled for minimal overall loss.

"Prevention of environmental pollution, conservation of organic matter and provision of an adequate diet for the existing and rapidly increasing population are three of the most important problems facing the world today," Thayer said.

"The project we are working on should develop a method for the elimination of environmental pollution by the conversion of waste into materials which can be reused."

In Texas, mesquite — successfully used in the experiments — covers about 56 million acres of rangeland, and more than 80 million rangeland acres are lost to brush of all kinds. Approximately 800 pounds of trash are produced for every bale of cotton ginned on the High Plains of Texas. Feedlot manure is produced at the rate of about 7,400 tons per day in Texas alone. All plant life has cellulose, and all paper has a cellulose base.

The figures can be multiplied across the nation by problems critical to industry and agriculture and rural and urban societies.

The Texas Tech research has had the support of the Brush Control and Range Improvement Association, the Dodge-Jones Foundation, the state of Texas and, in related research, the university's International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies.

In the early afternoon, installation of officers was conducted by Mrs. Sam Ogan. She presented the incoming president, Mrs. Lloyd Schultz, with an apron, significant of the new leaders "homemakers work" for the coming year. Other officers, Mrs. Eugene Baldwin, vice president; Mrs. Ronnie Andrews, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Annie Springer, marketing chairman, were presented to members relative to the type of work their offices require. She concluded with a poem inspirational for working together for good of members and other persons.

Attending the meeting were Mesdames Schultz, Baldwin, Ronnie Andrews, Annie Springer, Owen Andrews, F. L. Sparkman Jr., Tommy Sparkman, Chesley Johnston, Annie Lee Dobbins, Ogan, Laura Littrell, Linda

Blair, David Yandell, J. L. Brooks, Marsh Pitman and Miss Alma Andrews. The first meeting in the fall is planned for Sept. 14, in the home of the incoming president, Mrs. Shultz.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Baldwin are announcing the birth of a son, Andrew Keene, born May 27 in Cafritz Hospital, Washington, D. C. The Baldwins live in Temple Hill, Md. They have one son, Randy, 4 and a half years old. Grandparents are Mrs. B. H. Baldwin and W. H. Andrews.

Visiting the W. H. Andrews Saturday night and Sunday were her brother, Lonzo Shannon and Mrs. Shannon of Lubbock. Shannon is enjoying better health than in many months, as he is now under the care of Mayos and has a kidney machine in his home for regular use. He is able to work part time in his job at the post office.

Mrs. Frank Robbins, Scottie and Steve took the F. Y. Moremans to Dodson to attend funeral services for Mrs. Moremans' brother, V. K. Scott, on May 24. They went on to Commerce to visit the Moremans other daughter, Mrs. Glenn Edwards, Mr. Edwards and family before returning home.

Mrs. Billy Warrick and Raymond went during the weekend with the Ed Bingham to Valliant, Okla. and other places in the area, for a few days visit with their relatives.

Difficulties of radio waves in ionosphere being probed

Radio waves entering the ionosphere — particularly the lower part of it named the "D region" — can run into surprising difficulties, and a Texas Tech University professor is using an unusual method for finding some of the reasons why.

The ionosphere is that region of the earth's upper atmosphere which stretches from about 40 to 600 miles above ground. It overlays two other designated high altitude areas — the stratosphere and the mesosphere. Within the ionosphere are an abundance of charged atoms called "ions" — atoms which have gained or lost an electron. Changes in the ionosphere are of great importance to long distance communication which relies on the ionosphere to bounce radio signals back to the earth. The changes can be abrupt or gradual, and they cause distortion and interruption of radio signals.

The ionospheric changes are often related to specific changes in the emission of radiation from the sun.

Electrical Engineering Prof. Thomas F. Trost, however, is interested especially in another possible factor — weather — and in particular, the weather in the stratosphere. Research he is undertaking calls for day to day and seasonal data collected from two separate sites, Lubbock and the worldwide headquarters of the Meteorological Rocket Network (MRN) at White Sands, N.M.

In Lubbock he is establishing a low frequency receiving station to monitor radiowave absorption in the D region on a continuous basis.

The data Dr. Trost obtains at the university will be correlated with weather data, temperature and wind velocities, obtained for the stratosphere by the White Sands MRN station.

At White Sands, a rocket is launched almost daily to obtain meteorological data to altitudes as high as 40 miles. The White Sands launch site is 270 miles southwest of Lubbock.

In this correlation, Dr. Trost is looking for the relation between the radio signal's interaction with the ionosphere and what scientists call cyclonic and planetary waves. The planetary waves are the "steering currents" for the smaller scale cyclonic waves which determine the earth's weather.

Meteorologists have long been aware of these currents. The cyclonic waves traveling in a circular motion, hundreds of miles in extent, are represented by lows and highs in weather readings. The planetary waves circle the entire globe in the upper troposphere and the stratosphere.

In addition to the measurements at Lubbock and White Sands, Dr. Trost plans to obtain further data on the D region at the Arecibo Observatory in Puerto Rico. Equipment at the observatory, where Trost performed research while working toward the doctoral degree, will be used for measuring the electron densities of the D region directly. This information will be used to improve the general understanding of the behavior of this region.

Trost's research is supported by a National Science Foundation Engineering Research Initiation Grant of $16,000. Grants of this kind are supporting the research of 125 engineering faculty members in the United States this year. Each recipient has recently received the doctoral degree but has not previously received any substantial research support. The grants are made on a nationwide competitive basis.

Assisting with the absorption experiment will be Keith Freeman, a senior electrical engineering student at Texas Tech. Freeman has received a National Science Foundation award for undergraduate research participation which will enable him to concentrate on a single research project during the summer. Freeman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Freeman, 810 S. Pecos Ave., Midland, Texas.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:
No, Virginia, that odor from the south is not a feedlot. It's emanating from our Capitol in Austin where the arrogant power structure seems to think that there are 11,000,000 suckers in Texas.

The things that have happened in Austin — that we know about — have made Texas Government a laughing stock for the nation. A small group in power seems to think they have the right to do what they want to with the people's money and affairs. It's not what is best for the people, but what will further their own political and financial interests that seems to be their creed. Their brazenness, a r m twisting and political blackmail is an insult to the citizens of Texas regardless of party.

They have been completely irresponsible with respect to your pocketbook. In order to pay off their political promises, they tried to ram a 900 million dollar tax increase on the people, with the probability of an additional 300 million for next year. State spending doubles about every 6 or 7 years — 10 times faster than our population increase, and the further down the road you look the worse it will get.

All this mickey mouse talk about ethics is just another smoke screen to cover up the mess. I have always said that people get better government then they deserve, no more interest than they take in it. However, if things got bad enough they would finally wake up. Enough is enough! Unless we wake up next election and demand that our elected officials represent we the people instead of they the politicians, we can blame no one but ourselves.

All of us need to be aware of our critical situation and put a stop to this sordid state of affairs. The hour is late. We did get into this mess overnight, and it's going to take a lot of doing by the people to get out of it. These are not the complaints of a poor loser, but the concern of a dedicated citizen of Texas.

Sincerely yours,
Malouf "Oofie" Abraham
Canadian, Tex.

Social ills felt near election time

A touch of politics at election time becomes ill-fated when citizens act in a self-governing manner and protest various social misgivings. A novel containing these things is available at Deaf Smith County Library this week.

REVOLT IN APRIL by Charles Mercer

Election year, and a small but significant cross section of citizens, acting quite independently of each other, is refusing to pay any taxes as a protest against a variety of social ills: Viet Nam; poverty; racial unrest; taxes; crime; economic crises; government suppression, and deterioration of the environment.

A news leak is inevitable and, given the political climate, the administration fears that a combination of headline-hungry newsmen and opposition party hawks could ignite the situation into a genuine and full-scale tax revolt.

To complicate matters, a popular song, critical of the administration, has made something of a folk hero of one Joe McCurdy — and McCurdy turns out to be not only real, but inexplicably linked to the political career of the President of the United States.

This is the harrowing predicament that Revolt in April,

Charles Mercer's newest novel, places before President William Paisley Porter.

His options are limited: he can, as the defender of law and order he proclaimed himself in his campaign, go after the offenders mercilessly; or he can assume the role of "hero," leniently and understandingly issuing a call for unit, co-operation, and patriotism.

To project the President's decision you must know the man. Mercer leads the reader along Porter's climb from an obscure small-town law practice, as he makes his way into a Congressional seat by charging that the incumbent had "sat-out" the war, gains notoriety by ferreting out "subversives," moves into the Senate over the "pink-smear" career of his opponent, slides into the vice-presidency itself.

How the presidency may have changed Porter becomes crucial as the nation awaits his response to the looming national crisis.

Revolt in April is a political story as philosophically compelling as it is suspenseful, and so disconcertingly possible that it might happen tomorrow.

DOCTOR IN JUDGMENT

by Elizabeth Selfert
May Ruble returned to Bayard at the beginning of those fateful weeks in June that were to change the lives of so many of the inhabitants of that pleasant little midwestern town.

Now, with her college years finished, she was too unsure of what she wanted, too restless to marry James Nash as everyone had thought she would. Instead she became involved with flamboyant, man-crazy Louise Beam and her disastrous trouble.

Dr. Bob Ruble reacted with anger at the gossip about his daughter, as well as at the attempt to draw him into the scandal. To Mary's shocked surprise he showed only his mistrust of her.

Then the town was rocked by a sensational crime — a crime that touched many of the Bayard doctors and their wives. The events are seen through the eyes of various townspeople. Each person knew a part, them told the entire story. Here is a masterful exploration of conflicts and crises that reflect the turbulence of the times.

And here, too, is a warm, moving story of a headstrong girl and her doctor father who have to find a way to bridge the gap between their generations.

Let's cook something

Mother of five enjoys baking for her family

By JANIE BANNER Staff Writer

MRS. DURWARD Hamby, mother of five, admits she's "not too creative" in preparing fancy dishes. "Everything I cook is just the ordinary meat, potatoes and a vegetable. That's what my family likes most," she said.

But, when it comes to baking, Erlene Hamby has dozens of recipes, "tried and truly delicious" as the recipe-givers guaranteed they would be.

"I always write the name of the person who gave me the recipe in the corner at the top of each one. I like to think of them when I use their recipe," she said.

"I GET MOST of them from close friends and relatives like mothers and grandmothers. I rely on their recipes being good."

From Erlene's grandmother is this loaf cake the Hambys like so well as they prefer cakes without icing.

APPLESAUCE CAKE

- 1 1/2 c. applesauce (sweetened)
- 1 c. sugar
- 2 c. flour
- 1/2 c. butter (melted)
- 1 c. nuts (chopped)
- 1 T. hot water
- 2 tsp. soda (dissolved in hot water)
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. cinnamon and cloves

Melt butter, add sugar, applesauce and soda. Then add all remaining ingredients. If dough is too stiff add 1/4 cup hot water.

Bake in 375 degree oven for 45 minutes to one hour. Check to see when done.

A POTATO salad recipe Erlene's mother made up is THE favorite thing at family gatherings.

"You must use Miracle Whip salad dressing in this recipe," says Mrs. Hamby, "or it just won't taste right. We've tried others and they just don't hold the taste as well."

POTATO SALAD

- 8 potatoes, cooked with jackets on. Cool. Peel. Cut up.
- 3 boiled eggs, chopped
- 1/2 c. fresh chopped onion
- 1/2 c. chopped radishes
- 1/4 c. chopped celery
- 1 small can or jar, drained, chopped pimientos
- Salad dressing
- Dash garlic salt if desired

Suggest you chill two hours before serving. Is quite colorful, says Mrs. Hamby.

THE HAMBYS' children range in ages five to 13. James, the eldest, attends La Plata. Terry, Joe Bill and Janet are students at Tierra Blanca Elementary, and Lesly will be a first grader this fall.

"The kids have really enjoyed Tierra Blanca this year and got a lot out of it," said their mother. "I am very pleased with the new method of teaching."

Erlene says the most rewarding thing she has ever done was work with Cub Scouts for four years while her sons were scouts.

"I guess what made me feel so good about it all later, was not long ago when a little boy I had in my den wrote me a letter.

"He said he didn't have anything to do so he was cleaning out some 'old junk' and remembered me from some things he found and decided to write."

"I got a lot more out of being Den Mother than I put into being Den Mother," she said.

Erlene is currently assistant Campfire leader and president of Elkettes. She has devoted much time and effort recently to working on the July 3 Independence Day Parade instituted last year by the Elks Club.

MRS. HAMBY and her children go swimming almost every day during the summer, so they are patiently awaiting the filling and opening of pools.

When alone Mrs. Hamby likes to read and her children do the same when idle time catches up to them.

"I sew for Jan and myself, can goods every summer, and with five children, cooking, cleaning and keeping books for my husband's rental agency, I don't have much time for anything else."

Her husband is in partnership with his brother Gerald at Hamby Real Estate. They live near their businesses on S. Highway 385 and are members of Temple Baptist Church.

ROBINSON, III — Lincoln Trail College, a new institution, has received a piece of history for its collection of objects commemorating the era of Abraham Lincoln.

A 75-year-old set of Conestoga wagon hoops was donated by the Morris Davis family. They were brought to the David home in Annapolis in 1896 by the late John Newlin, Mrs. Davis' great-uncle.
