

Local Youth Found Job Rewarding Experience

By BOB NIGH
Brand Staff Writer

Hereford's Wesley Eades spent ten weeks this summer working a job that paid only $25 over his room and board, but he still thinks it was one of the most rewarding jobs he's ever had.

Eades lived in New Orleans from June 3 to August 13 acting as coordinator for various youth church groups that ministered to underprivileged children near that city's French Quarter.

He and two girls from Oklahoma did the work through the Baptist General Convention's Summer Missionary program, coordinated with the Baptist Students Unions in Oklahoma.

Eades worked out of the Baptist Friendship House in New Orleans, an entity sponsored by the Baptist Home Missions Board. There he oriented seven different groups of young people from churches across the south on their week-long job of ministering to the city's youth.

"The groups would lead the kids in creative worship, singing, Bible study, arts and crafts, and recreation," Eades said. "And at the end of the summer we attended a camp at Fountainebleau State Park near the city," he added.

Youth groups from Georgia, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Alabama, and Tennessee participated in the program.

While in New Orleans Eades composed several songs about his experiences during the summer, and he performs them occasionally as a part of his testimony.

"I had piddled around with writing songs before I went down there, but it's awfully hard to write without motivation...and this was certainly a motivating experience," Eades said.

Eades, and one of the Oklahoma girls, performed several times in New Orleans and the surrounding area during the ten weeks they were there, singing some of his songs as well as popular tunes.

While there Eades got involved in an emergency food distribution program of which the Friendship House was a part. "The Louisiana State Legislature had forgotten to enact new welfare legislation before the fiscal year ran out, and there were thousands of people left without food."

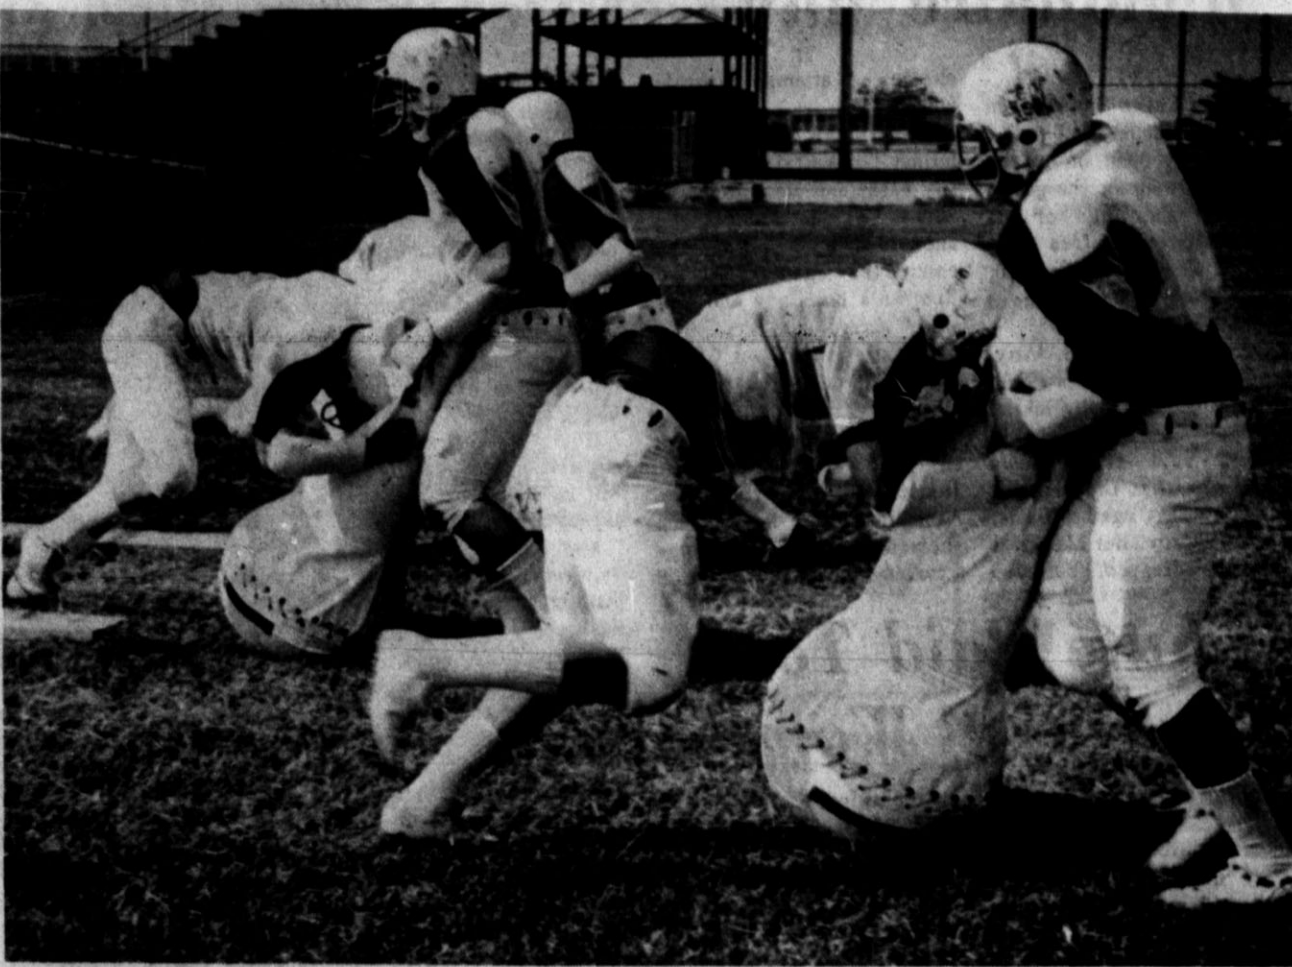

That experience left an impression on Eades, who will be a junior Psychology student at Central State University in Edmond, Oklahoma this fall.

"The hardest part about leaving was realizing that after having worked with those people for ten weeks there were many of them who had no place to live and didn't know where their next meal was coming from," he said.

And while he relishes the experience he gained in working with people this summer, Eades said he would prefer to do something different next year.

"The summer missions program has a number of types of jobs available, and I'd like to do something else next year," he said.

As to the future he plans "to finish at Central State, and then attend seminary to combine his psychology background into an effective ministry."

Work on blocking techniques was just one phase of the game Herd gridders were led through on the first day of practice in pads Friday. Hand-held dummies provided the opposition, while spaced boards on the ground helped the players keep a wide stance through the drill. The Herd went through a two-hour workout Friday, and hit the field again early Saturday morning. [Bob Nigh Photo]

New Grand Jury Term Begins On Monday

The Deaf Smith County Grand Jury begins a new term on Monday when 12 new members will convene to consider cases presented by district judge Andy Shuval and his assistant Schalan Atkinson.

A spokesman for the district clerk's office said it is the start of a new 6-month term under District Judge Mike Metcalf. The cases should be heard Monday and completed within the same day although it may carry over to Tuesday.

The district court begins a week of civil cases next week dealing mostly with domestic family matters and other civil subjects.

The court does not consider any criminal cases until the last week of September and the first week of October. Since Hereford is served by Metcalf, who resides in Dumas, he is unable to travel here much and must set certain weeks for trials and hearings.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says all things come to those who wait...but what's left over by those who hustle.

"GONE TO MARKET" signs could have been hung in several Hereford stores this week. Lou Davis and Berta Ottesen from The Vogue were in Dallas looking over the latest merchandise, as were representatives from Harman's and Earl Brookhart from The Brogue. Rick Nunley of Melrose's Nursery has also to a convention and market to order new plants, and there are probably other merchants who have been to see new wares.

DEAF SMITH County's Centennial observance was held Saturday, and congratulations go to Frank Ford and Bessie Patterson for their work and leadership in staging the 100th birthday celebration. The observance was a part of the activities and projects planned in 1976 by the Bicentennial Committee, headed by Peaches Reinauer and Margaret Formby.

The special day marked the anniversary of the creation of Deaf Smith County on Aug. 21, 1876. The county was created from the Bexar Territory and named in honor of Erastus "Deaf" Smith, who was known as "The Texas Spy." He was a noted scout, guide and Indian fighter who earned his place among Texas heroes by his participation in the battle of San Antonio, during Gen. Sam Houston's retreat after the fall of the Alamo, and his role in the battle of San Jacinto.

Smith was "hard of hearing" from his childhood, historians say, and this caused him to be silent and fond of solitude. There is some speculation that Smith was not as deaf as he allowed others to think, thus allowing him to obtain valuable information. He was also fluent in the

Reagan To Voice Opinions, May Try Again

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Ronald Reagan says he intends to have a voice in shaping national policy and does not rule out the possibility of making another run for the presidency. But he quickly adds that, "certainly elected office is not on my mind."

The 65-year-old Reagan plans to resume writing his weekly newspaper column, making speaking tours, and doing radio commentaries, which were on the air daily on 350 stations before the former actor and sportscaster entered the race nine months ago against President Ford.

"We aren't going to go back and sit in a rocking chair on the front porch and say, 'Well, that's all for us,'" Reagan told campaign volunteers and staff workers a few hours after defeat in what turned out to be the strongest challenge to an incumbent president from within his own party in 64 years.

Reagan said in an interview on his way home to California on Friday that he will campaign for Ford, but only to the extent that time is available after his other activities.

Did the President ask Reagan to actively campaign?

"He said he wanted my help, yes. We couldn't get into specifics because there has been no campaign planning as yet. I will have one problem. I have to go back to making a living here, and it's going to be contingent on that. I'll do what I can," Reagan said in an interview on his flight home from Kansas City.

He said if Ford loses in November to Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter, he and other conservatives will reassess the future of the Republican party. But Reagan says that does not necessarily mean he would join or lead a third party.

Still, he is unabashed about his ambition to retain the devoted conservative constituency which took him to within 60 delegates in a convention of 2,259 of toppling the president.

"I'm going to do everything I can to see that that stays together in order to be an influence," Reagan said.

Reagan says he believes that his following is a majority of the grass roots voters, if not the convention delegates. "I think there's no question that the bulk of the people in this country...if you have to put a label on them, conservative, whether they know it or not," he said.

Looking back briefly, Reagan said he would have won the presidential nomination if it had not been for the intense pressure of party leaders on delegates who really preferred him,

Tree Cutting Prompts Hot Remarks From Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - North Korea charged the United States with committing a grave military provocation today by cutting down a tree whose trimming provoked the deaths of two American officers.

Forces on both sides of the demilitarized zone DMZ dividing the two Koreas were on alert as a U.S. Navy task force steamed toward Korean waters. But the 151-mile DMZ was reported quiet.

Pentagon officials continued to emphasize that U.S. military moves, including the reinforcement of jet fighter forces in Korea, were precautionary and did not foreshadow military retaliation.

The American-led United Nations Command UNC here said briefly that a UNC work party felled the tree, a 40-foot Norway spruce in the joint security area at Panmunjom in the DMZ, and "got safely out." It did not say whether North Korean forces reacted to the move and gave no details.

A North Korean broadcast said more than 300 soldiers, including U.S. "troops in full combat trim," entered the joint security area and cut down the tree, "destroying posts of our side and smashing bars by a large truck." The broadcast did not elaborate, but sources said it could be referring to road barriers or fences in the area.

The Pyongyang broadcast said the UNC kept more than 400 armed troops at combat positions about a quarter-mile from the tree and mobilized a helicopter and other troops in trucks, "creating a terrible war atmosphere. This fact alone is enough to show how viciously and recklessly they committed the provocation."

Capt. Arthur G. Bonifas, 33, of Newburgh, N.Y., and 1st Lt. Mark T. Barrett, 25, of Columbia, S.C., were battered to death in a melee that broke out when North Korean guards objected to attempts to trim the tree Wednesday. Both sides have accused the other of starting the brawl. The command has said the tree's branches blocked the view of North Korean positions from a UNC checkpoint.

An Army spokesman at Travis Air Force Base in California said the bodies of the two officers were expected to arrive there later in the day.

Ambassador Richard Sneider returned to his post in Seoul today, cutting short a home leave in Vermont.

New Dress Code Affects Hereford School Students

With a new school year comes a new dress code.

This resulted from the ruling by the Department of Health Education and Welfare that states the dress code is not to discriminate on the basis of sex. The Hereford School Board of Trustees decided on new guidelines, some which are more general than in the past.

However, they spell out the dress standards specifically with discretionary authority for the school officials.

The code, approved earlier in the summer, is published here in its complete form. It is as follows:

--Hair must be styled out of the eyes and must be clean. It must also comply with school health standards so as not to be detrimental to the health and safety of the individual or to others.

--All standard footwear is acceptable and must be worn during school hours.

--Shorts are unacceptable attire to be

County Commissioners Set Meeting Monday Morning

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court will meet in regular session at 10 a.m. Monday to consider an 11-item agenda including the discussion of a budget for the 69th Judicial District Court.

The commissioners will meet with District Judge Mike Metcalf on action affecting a previously presented budget for Harold Wheeler and his district court probation office covering the six-county district. The county had already approved its annual budget and the probation office expenses and revenue items were included.

Also on the agenda are bids for the precinct two county building, a proposal to hire a cook for the county jail, bids on walkway around the county museum, presentations on copy machines, a discussion of water problems affecting Miller Seed Company and certificate of deposit reports from County Treasurer Vesta Ma Nunley.

The court will also hear correspondence concerning the Attorney General's Law Enforcement Conference, the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation and the Proposed highway funding plan. Letters were mailed by Reagan Brown of the governor's office dealing with the highway plan and from Joseph B. Bumgardner, County Judge of Victoria County on an unspecified matter.

The court is composed of County Judge Sam Morgan, and Commissioners Bruce Coleman, Earl Holt, James Voyles and Austin Rose.

Traffic Deaths Lower

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Traffic deaths are running 4 per cent lower than a year ago, the Texas Department of Public Safety said Saturday.

The DPS has counted 1,940 deaths on Texas streets and highways this year, compared with 2,024 by this time in 1975.

It said there have been 1,668 fatal accidents, down 3 per cent from the comparable period last year.

Encephalitis Cases Found

HOUSTON (AP) - Two more suspected cases of St. Louis encephalitis (SLE) were reported by Houston area health officials Friday, bring this year's total to two confirmed and three possible cases.

The two men suspected cases are a 94-year-old woman who lives north of the central business district and a 12-year-old girl from a neighborhood just outside the north city limits.

Mars Life May Still Exist

PADADENA, Calif. (AP) - A repeat experiment aboard Viking I has kept alive the possibility of life on Mars and forced scientists to limit some theories that would have explained away earlier encouraging signs.

"Biology seems at least to have survived as an explanation, if not indeed gaining some advantage over chemistry," Dr. Gilbert Levin said Friday in reporting on the experiment.

Goats Save Tax Dollars

MT. LAGUNA, Calif. (AP) - The U.S. Forest Service has 1,200 goats clearing fire breaks in the Cleveland National Forest, saving an estimated $30 to $100 an acre.

The goats are eating their way through the scrub brush and undergrowth just west of Mt. Laguna, a resort and camping community in the national forest about 60 miles northeast of San Diego.

Their task is to clear the 300-foot-wide spaces meant to keep forest fires from spreading.

WITH TONGUE in cheek, we report that quitting cigarette smoking could be dangerous to your health. Besides the obvious reason that you might gain weight, you could also wind up with cavities in your teeth!

At least that's the story we heard in the coffee shop the other day. A smoker was questioning his non-smoking friend, who had been off the nicotine for almost a year. "I feel much better, everything tastes better, and I've lost my cough," reported the non-smoker.

"What really makes me made," added the non-smoker, "is that I started chewing candy-coated gum instead of smoking. I hadn't had a cavity in years, and all of a sudden I turned up with four cavities that had to be filled!"

WE RECENTLY reprinted an essay on "What Is a Boy?" in this column, and now we discover there is a similar essay entitled "What is a Girl?" Naturally, we must follow with that reprint:

"What Is A Girl?"

Little girls are the nicest things that happen to people. They are born with a little bit of angel-shine about them, and though it wears thin sometimes, there is always enough left to lasso your heart... even when they are sitting in the mud, or crying tempermental tears, or parading up the street in mother's best clothes.

A little girl can be sweeter... (and badder)...oftener than anyone else in the world. She can jitter around, and stomp, and make funny noises that frazzle your nerves, yet just when you open your mouth, she stands there demure with that special look in her eyes.

A girl is Innocence playing in the mud, Beauty standing on its head, and Motherhood dragging a doll by the foot.

Girls are available in five colors: black, white, red, yellow, or brown... yet Mother Nature always managed to select your favorite color when you place your order. They disprove the law of supply and demand... there are millions of little girls, but each is as precious as rubies.

God borrows from many creatures to make a little girl. He uses the song of a bird, the squeal of a pig, the stubbornness of a mule, the antics of a monkey, the spryness of a grasshopper, the curiosity of a cat, the speed of a gazelle, the slyness of a fox, the softness of a kitten, and, to top it all off... He adds the mysterious mind of a woman.

A little girl likes new shoes, party dresses, small animals, first grade, noise makers, the girl next door, dolls, make-believe, dancing lessons, ice cream, kitchens, coloring books, make-up, cans of water, going visiting, tea parties, and one boy.

She doesn't care so much for visitors, boys in general, large dogs, hand-me-downs, straight chairs, vegetables, snow suits, or staying in the front yard. She is loudest when you are thinking, the prettiest when she has provoked you, the busiest at bedtime, the quietest when you want to show her off, and the most flirtatious when she absolutely must NOT get the best of you again.

Who else can cause you more grief, joy, irritation, satisfaction, embarrassment, and genuine delight than this combination of Eve, Salome, and Florence Nightingale?

She can muss up your home, your hair, and your dignity...spend your money, your time, and your temper. Then, just when your patience is ready to crack, her sunshine peeks through and you've lost AGAIN!

Yes, she is a nerve-racking nuisance... just a noisy bundle of mischief. But when your dreams tumble down, and the world is a mess...when it seems you are pretty much of a fool after all...she can make you a king when she climbs on your knee and whispers.

Millionaire May Get Death for Murder

FORT WORTH, (AP) - Millionaire Cullen Davis was in the Tarrant County jail today, held without bond on newly-filed capital murder charges in the fatal shootings of his step-daughter Andrea Dee Wilborn, 12, and Stan Farr, 30, in the home of his estranged wife, Aug. 2.

Tarrant County Dist. Atty. Tim Curry said the state will seek the death penalty in the case.

Curry said at a news conference that the original murder charges against Davis, 41, filed shortly after his arrest would be dropped, but two charges of attempted murder will stand.

The Wilborn girl and Farr, a former Texas Christian University basketball star often seen with Davis' wife, Priscilla, shot and killed by a person who entered the elegant Davis home, "put on a black wig and went wild," according to Mrs. Davis. Mrs. Davis and Gus Gavrel, 21, were wounded during the shooting.

Curry said the capital murder charges were filed before Justice of the Peace Bob Ashmore because investigation showed that the shootings occurred while another felony murder charges on Aug. 3 of thereafter because we did not have sufficient facts," Curry stated. "We now have completed a major part of our investigation. We filed them obviously because we believe they were justified."

Authorities said Davis was placed in a private cell. They explained this was normal procedure in cases where the killing of a child is involved.

Curry said that if Davis requests a bond hearing, "we will have to prove we have a capital case against him."

Mrs. Davis told police she and Farr returned to the darkened mansion around midnight where the couple apparently found the Wilborn child dead in the basement. She said the gunman shot Farr and wounded her.

Gavrel and Beverly Bass, 18, arrived in the house at that time and said they encountered the assailant who fired at them and wounded Gavrel before running out.

a burglary, was being committed.

Curry said Davis, who had been out on an $80,000 bond, was picked up early Friday as he prepared to board a plane for Houston. He was brought to chambers of the grand jury investigating the shooting and he was going to be asked to testify to certain matters, Curry said.

"Before that happened, we were advised by his attorneys he would not testify," Curry added.

Davis was handcuffed in the grand jury chambers and then taken across the street for arraignment.

He remained silent and spoke only when Ashmore asked him if he understood his rights.

The charges were accompanied by an affidavit from Mrs. Davis stating that she had been granted exclusive use of the couple's home during the lengthy divorce proceedings.

Tribute Paid To 'Neglected' Women

CENTRAL CITY, Colo. (AP) - It's "Lou Bunch Day" today, a tribute by citizens of this former mining town to a group of women whom they feel have been sadly neglected.

Lou Bunch was the last madam in the boomtown days of Central City.

It was in 1899, the height of the Central City's gold and silver boom, when Lous Bunch bought a piece of property on Gunnell Hill and opened her "sporting house."

"If you lived in Central City in those days, everyone went up town and made a tour of the saloons, and someone would finally say 'Let's go up to the house,'" said Louis Carter.

Carter was 16 when he made his first visit - as a delivery boy for a butcher shop. He is 85 now, a former state legislator and county judge, one of the few people who still remembers Lou Bunch.

She operated a good house, he said, where miners could go drink beer, at $1 a bottle, dance and have a good time with "her girls."

Her place, one of two bawdy houses in those days, was on the same street as the Roman Catholic Church. Carter remembers the churchgoers scowling as they went by on Sundays.

"The churches tried to close them, but they couldn't," he said. "People wanted them. They were a part of our life."

It was around 1916 that Lou Bunch left. The "richest square mile on earth," it was called, and it was played out. She went to Denver, people said, but nobody knows for sure, and where she came from is even more of a mystery.

Central City is a tourist town now, 30 miles northeast of Denver, 8,500 feet high in a Rocky Mountain canyon. There are 300 permanent residents, old saloons and tours through the abandoned mines.

Lou Bunch's house is gone, too, but not her memory.

There will be a parade today on "Lou Bunch Day," and a bed race down the block-long main street, one woman riding and two taking turns pushing.

An tonight there will be the "Madams and Miners Ball" in the old opera house.

Town Hopes New Clinic Will Attract Doctor

By PIET BENNETT
Associated Press Writer
MARCELLUS, Mich. (AP) - Residents of this Cass County farming town have dipped into their wallets to provide a $60,000 clinic they hope will bring them a doctor.

Despite some inquiries, the clinic stands empty. And hopes of finding a new doctor or two for Marcellus may never be realized.

"If I had about 2,000 doctors show up tomorrow morning and if they were the right kind of doctors, I could find jobs for all of them by tomorrow night," said John A. Doherty, executive vice president for the Michigan Health Council.

The Council has placed about 1,500 doctors and nearly 500 dentists in Michigan communities since 1958.

Siamese Twins In Good Shape After Separation

GALVESTON, (AP) - Siamese twin girls separated by surgery Friday remained in satisfactory condition Saturday at the University of Texas Medical Branch here.

Charlotte Marie and Paulette Marie were born July 14 at the University's John Sealy Hospital to Mrs. Barbara Ann Jones, 24, the wife of Freddie Jones Jr., a Beaumont bricklayer.

"They were joined at the Breastbone, heart cavity, diaphragm, and abdominal cavity," a hospital spokesman said Friday.

"Separation was without complication and each twin had successful reconstruction of the areas that had been united."

Dr. O. Jean Richardson, director of the University's prenatal division, had said Monday one of the girls has a congenital heart problem that limits oxygen in the blood.

Public Utilities Commission Asks For More Budget Funds

AUSTIN, (AP) - The Public Utilities Commission is asking for $6.3 million more in its next budget, but a freelance economist said it will still be "Goliath and David" when he the new agency starts regulating such giants as Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Chairman Garrett Morris noted that four telephone companies, including Bell, are asking rate increases, and economist Jack Hopper said the commission is seeking four accountants and Bell has 100.

The commission also has appellate jurisdiction over utility rates and service in 1,800 cities. After Sept. 1, 1977, cities may elect to turn over to the commission their authority to regulate utility rates.

"We've heard from countless small cities...who want to get out of the regulation business," Morris said. "This would put a very onerous burden on the

Veterinarian Says Acupuncture Is Useful in Treating Animals

By BOB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) - A Texan A&M University professor of veterinary medicine says acupuncture has worked on humans and there's no reason it can't work on animals.

Dr. Bill McMullen, a large-animal clinician, said in a recent interview that acupuncture can eliminate pain, be used in animal surgery, and one day soon "may become another branch of veterinary medicine."

Research has shown, McMullen said, that needles placed in the proper areas can make life easier for cats and dogs and horses.

"We are only scratching the surface of animal acupuncture now," he said, "but it offers a lot of promise. It will not be a replacement for the current methods of veterinary medicine, but an addition to the practice."

Acupuncture can eliminate the pain of arthritis and offers great possibility in the treatment of shock in animals and in certain operations where an anesthetic might be dangerous, McMullen said.

McMullen told The Associated Press he had witnessed an operation on a pony where two of the silver needles had been placed in the left ear.

"The skin jumped when the knife passed through. The muscles reacted, but the pony looked straight ahead with no obvious pain."

The giant king crab can measure up to 12 feet from the tips of its claws.

Bullock Man To Go To Dimmit

Comptroller Bob Bullock announced that a representative from his Amarillo office will be in Dimmitt on August 25, to answer questions from taxpayers and provide assistance in filing tax returns.

Bullock said Enforcement Officer F.E. Skinner will be at the County Court House in the Assembly Room from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m.

"I hope local merchants will take this opportunity to get any questions they have about the sales and/or franchise taxes answered," said Bullock. "A little straight information can save us both headaches."

The Amarillo Field office, headed by Bill Teague, served Castro, Deaf Smith and Parmer counties.

Foreign Fruit

John Endecott, governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, brought the first apple seed from England - the apple tree is not native to the western hemisphere - and apples soon became an important crop. In 1649 Endecott bought 200 acres of land, paying for them with 500 three-year-old apple trees he had raised.

The first Dutch trading ships arrived in Indonesia in 1596.

Morris said in the budget request for 1978-79 "we have been as conservative as anyone can be. We may have been a little too conservative."

Hopper agreed the request was "minimal." Common Cause said it represented "an overly conservative estimate of the operating costs needed for competent and informed regulation of Texas utilities."

Morris acknowledged to state budget examiners that the commission "may very well" ask the legislature for an emergency appropriation in January. Common Cause recommended the legislature consider such action "to do the quality job everyone expects."

The commission was created by the 1975 legislature, with financing coming from an assessment of one-sixth of one per cent of gross revenue on public utility companies.

Those assessments are estimated at more than $20 million in 1978-79, and the commission is requesting only about 40 per cent of that total for the next biennium.

Morris noted that the commission has original jurisdiction over 90 wire-line and 103 mobile phone companies and has some jurisdiction over 179 electric companies and 1,900 water-sewer companies.

Starting Sept. 1, the commission will regulate phone rates and service statewide and electricity and water-sewer in

Bullock's Raiders Get More Funds

Comptroller Bob Bullock said the July enforcement program of his Amarillo district office totaled $344,103 in field collections and revealed through audits $55,051 in additional taxes owed the state.

Bullock said the office conducted 53 audits during July, yielding an average $73 in additional taxes owed per audit hours.

The Comptroller emphasized that collections by the Amarillo office are in addition to state taxes routinely paid from the Amarillo area directly to Austin.

"This is money we can't put in the bank until we go out and get it," said Bullock.

Statewide field collections by the Comptroller's 36 district offices totaled $4.9 million during July, with the combined audit efforts producing $3.3 million in additional revenue owed the state.

The Amarillo office, headed by Bill Teague, is located in Suite 101, 1309 W 8th Avenue, telephone 372-8156, and is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The Amarillo office serves Potter, Armstrong, Briscoe, Carson, Castro, Childress, Collingsworth, Dallam, Deaf Smith, Conley, Gray, Hall, Hansford, Hartley, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscom, Moore, Ochiltree, Oldham, Parmer, Randall, Roberts, Sherman, Swisher and Wheeler Counties.

Oil Keeps Flowing At Harbor Island

PORT ARANSAS, Tex. (AP) - Each year millions of barrels of imported oil quietly gush through pipelines snaking out of ship holds to dockside facilities at Harbor Island.

Crude oil tankers flying flags from all over the world make their way through a 45-foot deep channel, deepest of any Gulf Coast port, to Harbor Island some 20 miles west of Corpus Christi.

And Harbor Island could become the nation's first superport, serving giant tankers unable to berth in other U.S. ports. Other contenders in the race to create this country's first superport are the proposed Seadock monobuoy off the beach at Freeport, and LOOP, the monobuoy proposed off the Louisiana coast.

Harbor Island could be the first because of its favorable location and economics, strong local and national support and multi-purpose development plans. It has received the strong endorsement of the Federal Energy Administration.

At one time port visionaries hoped a new 72-foot channel for handling much larger tankers would be finished some time this year, the 50th Anniversary of the Port of Corpus Christi.

But this project has moved at the same kind of deliberate pace as other major dredging proposals during a period in which the country has been reacting to a wave of environmental concern.

Some experts have said the project could pay for itself each year in savings on crude oil transportation. Each of the big tankers can carry four to five times the payload of the present tanker fleet serving Texas ports. The project will be built by the Nueces County Navigation District, privately financed through revenue bonds backed by participating industries. While money is considered no problem, the port backers must have an Army Corps of Engineers permit to go ahead - and that hurdle is yet to be cleared.

The Harbor Island deepwater port concept first surfaced in 1972 and has been in the planning stage since.

Five Schools Figured As SWC Title Possibilities

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP)—The University of Houston gets its Southwest Conference football baptism this fall and the league is expecting so many strong teams the Cougars could be hard-pressed to finish in the first division.

Texas, Arkansas, and Texas A&M—the SWC tri-champions—are again loaded and you can add talented Baylor and Texas Tech to the list of teams with title possibilities. Texas Christian is at least a year away.

Only Rice and Southern Methodist, teams with new head coaches, appear to have no chance.

After a five-year waiting period while the Cougars played out their independent schedule, Coach Bill Yeoman sees an upbeat in enthusiasm on his team. Houston fell on hard times last year, winning just two games.

"Last year's losing season has not tempered our enthusiasm, but I imagine we'll go into the conference race with a little more sober attitude than we had earlier," said Yeoman. "It might temper the enthusiasm of some of those conference teams about us though."

"I don't think they'll be all wild-eyed and puffed up when they play us like they would have been in the past."

The favorite's role clearly falls on Texas Coach Darrell

Royal and perhaps one of the swiftest Longhorn teams he has tutored.

Speedburners Johnny Jones, the Olympic trackman, and sophomore Johnny Jones, who burned Colorado in the Bluebonnet Bowl, will flank perhaps the fastest fullback in the country, rugged Earl Campbell.

"I think our only problem is at quarterback where we are young and inexperienced," says Royal, who hopes sophomore Ted Constanzo matures into a take-charge leader.

Linebackers Bill Hamilton and Rick Fenlaw anchor a Longhorn defense that could be one of the best in the country.

Royal says "From what I see and hear, everyone should have a little better team than they had a year ago. I have no idea how it's going to come out and isn't it nice that I don't?"

Arkansas, which whipped Georgia 31-10 in the Cotton Bowl, will feature a solid defense and a high-octane offense with a big question mark at quarterback. Sophomore Ron Calcagni is the top hope there.

Coach Frank Broyles says "1975 was one of the most rewarding seasons we have had, and it was one of the most satisfying because we were awfully low after the Texas game."

The SWC race will likely not be settled until Dec. 4 when Arkansas and Texas collide in a nationally televised night game from Memorial Stadium in Austin.

The Texas Aggies, owning the top defense in the nation in 1975, hope to overcome the psychological shellshock of winning 10 games in a row then losing to Arkansas in a showdown for the Cotton Bowl and eventually to Southern Cal in the Liberty Bowl.

The Aggies return another hard-hitting defense but a suspect offense despite the presence of 230-pound fullback George Woodard and the most sought after schoolboy running back in the state, Curtis Dickey.

"I thought we had an excellent season," said A&M Coach Emory Ballard. "We return a solid nucleus of starters. I think more than two or three teams have a good shot at the championship. It looks like nearly all of our conference opposition will be stronger in 1976."

That's certainly the case at Baylor which hosts Houston in a regionally televised SWC opener Sept. 11.

Injured quarterback Mark Jackson returns healthy after an impressive spring as does tailback Cleveland Franklin, who established a school single season rushing record of 1,112 yards last year. However, Franklin was one of the big culprits as the Bears lost 38 of 65 fumbles.

"Maturity, experienced depth at most positions, an outstanding offensive line and a desire to get back into the bowl business are the big things going for the Bear," says Coach Grant Teaff. "Arkansas, Texas, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Baylor I think have good teams returning and you can't overlook the others for a minute."

Southwest Conference football teams waste no time in getting down to the business of deciding the conference champion this season. Baylor hosts Houston and SMU welcomes TCU on the very first Saturday of the season, September 11.

The Cougars will find out just how well they are going to do in their first stab at the conference title as they meet the Texas A&M Aggies two weeks later. That makes Houston the only SWC team to have two league contests in the first three weeks of play.

Arkansas, Rice, and Texas don't open against conference opponents until the fourth Saturday of the season on October 2. Texas Tech is the longest holdout from conference action, not getting started until October 9 when they travel to College Station to tackle the Aggies.

Five members of the Big Eight Conference will test five different members of the SWC this year. Oklahoma State visits Arkansas and Colorado meets Texas Tech on September 11. Kansas State is at Texas A&M on September 18, TCU visits Nebraska on September 25, and Oklahoma takes on Texas in the annual shootout in Dallas on October 9.

The day of the opening of organized activities sponsored by the new Hereford area YMCA is rapidly approaching. Director Claude Huard expects to begin flag football for third, fourth, and fifth grade boys on September 18.

Coaches will be needed for the teams, and Huard is looking for a person to act as league supervisor.

The director has been here almost a month, but has done enough work for it to seem like a year. He is doing his utmost to get the Y program started and make it a success.

Now, it is up to some of us to kick in our support. The Y needs people to work in the programs; some as volunteers, and some as paid part-time employees.

Huard estimates the part-time worker to put in between six and twelve hours a week. Responsibilities and pay scales will vary with the qualifications of the individual.

If you can volunteer some time or want a job Huard can be contacted at the YMCA at 414 E. 6th by calling 364-6990.

Let's get behind the program, we wanted it...now it's up to us

The Pittsburgh Steelers looked anything but impressive against the New York Giants in their exhibition game Friday night. The 17-0 score was a story in itself, but one of the most shocking aspects of the game was the way the Giants runners ran through the famed 'Steel Curtain.'

Second-year man Marsh White rushed for 100 yards, while rookie back Gordon Bell added 70 more.

Steeler fans shouldn't be too worried, though. The Giants treated the Super Bowl champs rudely last year in preseason also, taking a 24-8 win. We can be sure the seemingly torn Steel Curtain will be mended by the time the regular season comes around.

POINT OF AIM

By Millard Murray

LIGHT PILLS ARE LOSERS!

A real head-scratcher is why so many shooters, even those with a keener head for figures than junior with his first Playboy, can't get past the "Muzzle Velocity" column of a ballistics table. They figure the light pill that exits the fastest, "delivers the moatest."

A bullet that streaks out like a goosed missile doesn't always get there "first." Light, stubby bullets have a low ballistic coefficient (ability to overcome air resistance), and lose speed rapidly. Heavier, slender bullets have a high b.c. and don't throttle back nearly as much downrange.

FOR THIS REASON, the lightest and heaviest bullets of a given caliber are moving at about the same speed at game range, despite a whopping difference in muzzle velocity. A .125 gr. 30-06 bullet, leaving at 3200 fps., drops to 2200 fps. at 300 yards. A 180 gr. bullet from the same gun starts 500 fps. slower, but is clocking off nearly the same speed (2190 fps.) at 300 paces.

So, it doesn't make sense to use light, fast bullets on deer size game, which expand properly in muzzle velocity. Strike a deer at 100 yards or less with a .125 gr. .06, a 120 gr. 7mm, or an 87 gr. .257, and likely the projectile will "spit," causing a shallow wound and often, a lost animal.

TOO-HEAVY, HIGH-velocity projectiles can also be inhumane. Consider the venerable .30-30 and the hot 300 Win Mag. At 100 yards or so the 170 gr. 30-30 bullet expands at least two diameters, penetrates deeply, and the quarry absorbs all the bullet's energy; the faster-moving 180 gr. magnum starts a heavy very little, whistles clean through, and wastes most of its greater energy on the ground beyond.

FAST, LIGHT BULLETS with heavy jackets, like the .117 gr. .257, can be deadly on even the same game. Once a bullet impacts it changes caliber instantly, and a light, fast-moving bullet starts a heavy slow-mover, can deliver the same energy—which is what "power" is all about. On sizeable game, bullet construction is always more important than bullet weight, bore-size, or velocity!

Whether you shoot factory fodder or roll your own, we have what you need for optimum, humane bullet performance on all manner of game. Conservation is our business, too!

Massengale Blows Lead; J.C. Snead Catches Up

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) - Rik Massengale blew a two-stroke lead with a double bogey five on the 17th hole Saturday and let big J.C. Snead move into a share of the top spot in the third round of the $210,000 Sammy Davis Jr. - Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

"I don't care about that," said Snead, a former pro baseball player and a five-time winner on the pro golf tour. "I don't wish anybody any bad luck. Let 'em all play good." Then he paused and grinned. "Just let me play a little better."

Snead had a two-under-par 69 in the steamy, muggy heat and tied Massengale with a 54-hole total of 200, 13 under par on the 6,598-yard Wethersfield Country Club course which, as usual, yielded some of the lowest scores of the year. The leaders' total matched the lowest three-round score of the year.

Massengale, who had led the first two rounds with a pair of 65s, could do no better than one-under-par 70 in Saturday's third round. The double bogey was the key to the whole thing. He missed the green to the left, chipped well beyond the pin and then three-putted, missing from about 1 1/2 feet on the second one.

It appeared to be a two-man race for the title.

"I can't shoot good enough to catch those guys," said Lee Trevino, whose 66 lifted him into the group tied for third at 204. Also at that figure, four shots back, were Chi Chi Rodriguez, Al Geiberger, Mac McLendon and Bobby Wadkins.

Wadkins had a 67, Geiberger and Rodriguez 68s and McLendon a 69 in the muggy heat.

At 205, eight under par and five shots back, were Hubert Green, Barry Jaeckel, John Schlee, George Archer and Gay Brewer. Jaeckel shot 66, Green 67, Archer 68, Schlee 69 and Brewer 70.

Masters champ Ray Floyd had 67-207 and Arnold Palmer, who received a standing ovation when he marched to the 18th green, could do no better than a 74-212.

Massengale, a softly-drawling Texas who scored his only victory in six years of tour activity last season in the Tallahassee Open, had a one-shot lead when the day's play started, birdied two of his first three holes with a chip to four feet on the second and a 10-foot putt on the third.

Snead, a winner in the San Diego Open early this year, twice moved into a share of the lead, with birdies from 20 and 10 feet on the fifth and 11th holes, then dropped one back with Massengale's birdie on the 55th.

Richards Wins Match At Tennis Week Open

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
AP Sports Writer

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) - Dr. Renee Richards, the transsexual tennis player, won her first-round match at the Tennis Week Open Saturday, beating Cathy Beene of Houston 6-0, 6-2, in 46 minutes.

Dr. Richards, 42, who underwent sex-change surgery last year, took 16 minutes to win the first set before the half-filled stadium center court at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club.

Miss Beene, 24, a former national collegiate doubles champion, won six points in the first set, but lost 3-1 in the second set. Dr. Richards, sweating profusely in temperatures over 90 degrees, began to slow down, losing her only service of the day.

But then Miss Beene, who double-faulted 11 times in the match, lost her service. The entry of Dr. Richards here led to the withdrawal of 25 women players. Many of the dropouts said they did not feel Dr. Richards should compete in a women's event.

Portions of the match were shown later Saturday on ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports."

After the match, Dr. Richards said her immediate objective "is to pursue my rights to play in women's tournaments because it is a right I am entitled to as a woman, like any other woman."

She said legal action to gain entry into the U.S. Open was still possible, but she said she planned to "continue to apply for various tournaments." Dr. Richards said she planned to accept an invitation to play in the Australian Open.

A few tournaments in southern California are next on her schedule.

Dr. Richards, who lived in New York when she was Dr. Richard Raskind, said tournament officials in California "are all supporting me, which is an ironic thing, since I've only lived there for eight months."

"They have embraced me totally, whereas back East, with the exception of South Orange, I've been denied the right to play at Forest Hills, and I was brought up in Forest Hills," she said.

Your doctor wants to be there when you need him. Don't let the high cost of "malpractice" insurance drive him out of Texas. Let's help each other get action in Austin.

Some of our doctors are being forced into early retirement. Others are having to limit their practices to low-risk procedures. And young doctors are having second thoughts about setting up practice in Texas.

These are results of high "malpractice" insurance rates in Texas.

According to a Belden-Survey, 8 out of 10 Texans believe the state should immediately pass laws that will control the "malpractice" insurance crisis.

Your legislators have the power, but they need to hear from you. Please fill out this coupon and mail it today.

Campbell's Thigh Key To Longhorn Fortunes

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - If Earl Campbell's thick thigh can withstand the stretches and strains of fall football workouts, the Texas Longhorns could romp during the regular season.

Campbell, a 231-pound junior with enough speed to out run many defensive backs, missed spring training with a pulled hamstring muscle, and published reports pictured Longhorn coaches as fearful it would keep him out in the fall.

"Earl has a 2 3/4-inch thigh. That's a lot more to pull than the average leg," says Coach Darrell Royal, "but the story was blown way of proportion. He's running full speed."

Campbell has run for 2,046 yards in two years, which has resulted in predictions that Campbell could be the No. 1 pro draft choice after his senior season.

Eight offensive and ten defensive regulars return from the Texas team that won 10 and lost two last season, finishing sixth in the college football poll after belting Colorado, 38-21, in the Astro Bluebonnet Bowl.

Absent, however, will be quarterback Marty Akins, who was all-Southwest Conference and made one All-American team.

His probable successor is sophomore Ted Constanzo, who was roughed up by Texas A&M's top-ranked defense last year in a 20-10 Longhorn loss after Akins got hurt. Constanzo's challengers are another sophomore, Mike Cordaro, who got such a slow start that Royal didn't learn to pronounce his name for months, and Randy McEachern, who must overcome practice jitters.

The offensive line appears solid, and several freshman speedsters, including Olympic gold medal winner Johnny Jones, a member of the 400-meter relay team, should put pep in the halfback corps.

Wide receiver Alfred Jackson is rated a future pro star by Royal. And kicker Russell Erxleben averaged 41.4 yards a punt and drilled 10 of 13 field goals as a freshman.

Defensive coach Mike Campbell fretted over the way Colorado "marched up and down the field" in the Astro Bluebonnet Bowl, but he says his veteran defense has "experience, pretty good quickness and size where you need it."

Where you need it is at defensive tackle, and Royal and Campbell are impressed with junior Brad Shearer, 6-4 and 260, and Ernest Lee, 6-4 and 250. Shearer was all-SWC last year, and Lee led the team in BOSTON (AP) - Carl Yastrzemski drove home two runs with a pair of doubles, and the Boston Red Sox downed the Oakland A's 5-2 Saturday at Fenway Park.

Yastrzemski's two doubles in the nationally televised contest raised him to 28th on the all-time list with 486.

First baseman Cecil Cooper

also homered for Boston, his 11th of the season, and Don Baylor hit his 13th of the season for Oakland.

Yastrzemski's first double in the fourth inning broke a 1-1 deadlock, forged by the two homers. He drove in Denny Doyle, who had singled, and scored when Jim Rice singled.

Gilliam Pleads Guilty

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Former pro football quarterback Joe Gilliam has had three misdemeanor charges against him continued for nine months on condition he contributes 60 days community service to an organization approved by the court. The decision Friday to continue the cases came several hours after Gilliam entered guilty pleas to charges of reckless driving, carrying a weapon and possessing marijuana.

General Sessions Court Judge Hamilton Gayden Jr. ruled the cases against Gilliam were to be continued and then dismissed upon satisfactory completion of the community service work before May 20, 1977.

In issuing his ruling, the judge said he did not see the justice in convicting Gilliam and having to accept the dismissal of drug charges against Gilliam's co-defendant, Thomas Bennett. Following a career at Tennessee State University, Gilliam played for the Pittsburgh Steelers. He was picked up on waivers by the New Orleans Saints in June before his arrest. Since then he has been dropped by the Saints and has not been picked up by another team.

Gilliam and Bennett were arrested June 16 after a high-speed chase by a state trooper.

Starting a New Century With the Spirit of 1776

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE sets forth the basic premise of a free society.

The premise: That governments derive their powers from the consent of the governed.

The founding fathers made it clear that our government should have only as much power as the people choose to delegate.

For most of our history, we lived by that premise. The people yielded authority to the central government reluctantly and in small measure.

Since the 1930's, however, there has been a vast shift of power to Washington. Today, the federal bureaucracy intrudes into nearly every area of our economic life.

Now is a good time to return to the principles of 1776.

Dr. Richard L. Leshner, president of the National Chamber, pointed out in an address at the business federation's 1976 annual meeting that America faces an epochal choice:

We can return to the concepts of freedom our forefathers envisioned, or we can continue on our present course with all the risks it imposes.

"Humanity watches and waits, breathlessly, for our next step," said Dr. Leshner.

"But there is hope. For all our carelessness, we yet remain the longest enduring society of free men governing themselves without benefit of kings or dictators.

"And we are waking up. For the first time in our history, there is a consensus—and it is almost unanimous—that we have delegated to government more power than is wise, to do things for which it is ill-suited."

The task now, Dr. Leshner said, is to move from rhetoric to action. To make the transition back to a free society, he explained, we must:

"Rekindle an appreciation of freedom, private property, and individual incentives.

"Rebuild or remodel those institutions that don't serve us well.

"Commit ourselves to the continuation of our system, not only for our own benefit and our children's, but for all the children of the world."

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maquire

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY—Texas once had four Indian reservations.

The oldest and only existing reservation is near Livingston, Polk County. It has been home to the Alabama and Coushatta tribes since 1839 when the Congress of the Republic voted to set aside four leagues of land for their use. There was no rush to occupy the lands, however.

In 1854, the Indians were still displaced citizens so the Legislature bought 1,280 acres of Polk County forests and invited the two tribes to share the wealth. In 1928 the Federal government decided to add more land and the Alabama-Coushatta Reservations spreads over 4,351 acres of east Texas today.

As early as 1852 the Legislature had tried to provide a place for all remaining Texas Indians to pitch their teepees by setting aside 12 leagues of land for their use. The Federal government was chartered with selecting, surveying and governing these reservations.

After consulting with the Indians, four leagues (18,576 acres) were selected on the Brazos River near where Graham now stands. A second 18,576 acres were chosen 40 miles west in Throckmorton County. Later a third tract of the same size was selected adjoining the one on the Brazos.

Some 2,000 Indians moved to the Brazos reservations and about 500 others tried the happy hunting grounds of Throckmorton County. They found it hard to adjust to reservation life, however, what with raids by unfriendly tribes and the depredations of white settlers. In 1858 the reservations were closed and the residents moved to the Oklahoma Indian Territory.

IT'S A FACT—If you live in Texas, your chances of ending up in jail are 144 out of 100,000.

The state ranks seventh among all the 50 states in the number of inmates of its prisons. North Carolina, which has 237 prisoners for each 100,000 population, ranks first. Florida, Maryland, Nevada and Georgia are the other states ahead of Texas in the percentage of their citizens who are in jail.

SING-ALONG—Houston may be Texas' only city to have an official Bicentennial song. It was written 49 years ago, however.

In 1925, Dr. Conrad Johnson, a black dentist, moved his family to Houston. He liked the place so well that he wrote a song about it the next year. He called it "Houston is a Grand Old Town."

A singing group headed by Dr. Johnson popularized the song. After the 1920's, however, it lay dormant until a librarian discovered a copy not long ago. Last July 4, when Houston held its official celebration of America's 200th birthday, the song was played again. Conrad Johnson, Jr., son of the composer, led a local band's rendition of the ragtime number.

DID YOU KNOW—That Texas is the headquarters for the nation's fourth largest, but least known, television network?

It is the Spanish International Network. All of its programs, including the commercials, are in that language. Station KWEX-TV, channel 41 in San Antonio, is the headquarters for a 14-station network that stretches from coast to coast.

College Football

U.S. collegiate football is tremendously exciting, often more than the pro game because the kids try everything and play is more wide open and unpredictable.

Yet one is constantly shocked at the atmosphere surrounding the game. For example, the coach at Pittsburgh recently commented that the North Carolina game was the first in several years in which the Panthers were so physically manhandled.

He was quoted as saying the North Carolina line just lined up and beat Hell out of his boys physically. Another coach that same week remarked that the hitting in his game had been the best and hardest he had seen in some time.

Sports announcers and telecasters continue to wax ecstatic over rough, head-on "head-knocking." They yell with delight when a player is knocked off his feet with a terribly vicious tackle, and praise the player who risked life and limb to smash into another player so brutally.

Is it, then, any wonder there are so many injuries, and some deaths, in college football each year?

Remembering The Start Of School

My mind has been filled with nostalgic thoughts this week as another school year launches of the pad with a nine-month orbit ahead.

It seems at this time of the year, others also remember the time when they were young and got excited about the first day of school. I could remember the girl whose mother, retelling the happenings of the summer, or simply knowing that I was going on to bigger and better things in a higher grade.

I always remember the joy of being able to shop. Yes, even a man like me does it now and again. It's not merely the private joy of women alone who usually like to buy new clothes.

Of course, in the school days, I wasn't using my money as Mommy and Daddy were still providing for my needs, the definition of which varied between parent and child. I'd like lots of fine new threads and the best in school supplies. But the family budget set the limit as reasonable levels.

My first day in first grade (I attended kindergarten in Holland) was one of awe. I could remember the girl whose mother had to hold her hand and comfort her for about 30 minutes before letting the teacher take charge of handling the student's adjustment into a new life.

No sooner had the mother left and the girl started crying and crying and then some. I felt like I should be doing the same thing. I guess the experience was too new for me to fear.

I have enjoyed every first day of school since I started that road to a college education. However, time set in and within a month, I was usually tired of the routine and day dreamed about the free summer days of no homework and no yapping teachers.

The feeling of fall though never wore off. It was a time of turning leaves, cool weather, football, and thoughts of dating that girl who I was afraid to ask out the year before. Of course, the last item didn't fit the picture in elementary school.

I guess fall is the season I miss most while living in the High Plains. The beautiful trees and leaf-laden grounds always stick in my wondering thoughts.

Now, my attention turns toward what little I can relive of those days gone by. I enjoy the local football contests with area high schools and once again I plan to walk the sidelines taking pictures of the action. Sometimes it's takes a special effort to do so, but it's my hobby and business at the same time.

On the periphery of the action provided by the footballers, cheerleaders, twirlers and band, I can relive a bit of the past. It's not the same, but it satisfies the spirit.

—BT—

This fall, I have deep thoughts about the changing this community where a close friend has gone off to distant regions and a man, who has contributed much here, has left for another job.

Sometimes, such occurrences seem small to most on lookers, but they are mountains of change for others. The value of a close friend is not known as much until he or she has gone.

To keep it from being a guessing game, I refer to Bob McFarland, the former director of music ministries at the First United Methodist Church, and Roy Hartman, the former superintendent. I learned to know each of these people well in my short residency here and how truly wonderful people they are.

Bob and his wife Margaret will always remain in the hearts of many local residents for their spirited faith and joyous presence. They added greatly to the music of this town they were always willing to contribute to community wide activities, even those outside their home church.

They are now preparing for future experiences that are sure to enrich the lives of numerous others. We must take comfort in the time they spent with us and look forward to the benefits we have remembering those good times.

Roy is a man of immense nature. His comprehension of the educational needs here were expansive. It was hard for him to leave his home 20 years, but good opportunities must be taken when they arise.

He built up a very progressive school district that far outshines those of similar size across the state. It is to our benefit that he remained as long as he did and accomplished what he did.

It makes it easier for Dr. Harrell Holder, the new superintendent from Bishop, to take the reins and carry on from where Roy left off.

Even though I have not yet met Dr. Holder, I know he is of the same fine caliber as Roy and will provide continued cohesive leadership for the schools.

I anxiously await his arrival on Sept. 15.

It is gratifying to know that while things and people may change, life goes on successfully, even though it may be different. At the same time we have the joy of the thoughts of the past. But it is the future for which we live.

She's still just wild about Harry

By Tom Tiede

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. — (NEA) — Had he lived this would have been the 57th summer of Harry and Bess Truman's marriage, and the 82nd of their quiet and wonderful love affair. As it is, she marks the occasion alone in the Victorian mansion they shared with each other in the Delaware Street community they shared with Middle America, and in the town they eventually shared with the world.

They met in elementary school, she a slim and reserved lass, he a more outward chap with rimless spectacles that magnified his eyeballs. Neither was extraordinary, but they suited one another. By high school their holding of hands had escalated into a proper romance. In 1919, when he was 35 and she 34, the union was formalized.

Bess Truman was an old-fashioned wife but not a subservient one. He called her "the boss," the "only person who can tell me off and get away with it." Periodically she did tell him off. For instance, she was forever admonishing him about his language in public. Not that she was above four letter words herself now and then, but only in private. "Harry," she would say, "you really shouldn't have said that."

There is no indication that Truman listened to Bess regarding his expletives. But he appreciated her counsel in most other areas. History does not dwell on it much, but during their seven years in the White House she apparently was chief among his advocates. They were constant evening companions, retiring to privacy soon after dinner where together they would go over his speeches, his judgments, his priorities. It is not known whether she assisted in his decision making, but surely she provided a critical ear and conscience.

She was not an Eleanor Roosevelt, understand. She did not push her views on her husband or anyone else. She was content to be in the background, to be Mrs. Harry Truman, to be featured in the papers only out of obligation. In the way of her private self she was stuffy, then and now. She has never gabbled, never told all, or even a little. What a book she could write, but of course she will not.

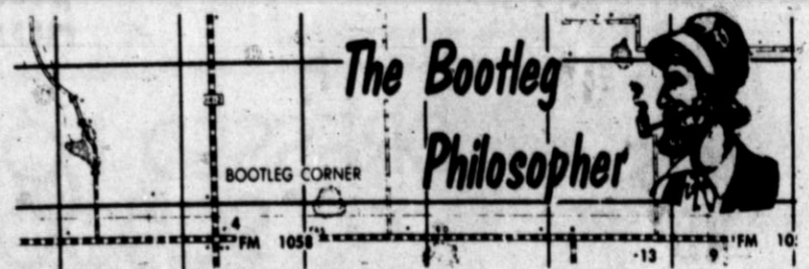

And yet she has never been drab. Truman's eye for her had a bit of roguishness about it, and with good reason. "She looks exactly the way a woman of her age should look," he said, winking. J.B. West, who ushered at the White House during the Truman years, remembers the couple did not always retire after dinner merely to look over speeches. Usually they had a drink, always Old Fashioneds, and after that, well, West says everyone called them "the lovebirds."

Those Old Fashioneds, by the way, were not meant for the minister dropping in. West says that when the Trumans first moved to the executive mansion, Bess was less than satisfied with the drinks being prepared. She tried several times to hint to the butler that his Old Fashioneds were not really Old Fashioneds. Thus one evening, in desperation, the butler simply splashed huge amounts of bourbon over ice and served it up. "Now that," smiled Bess, "is an Old Fashioned!"

As for the lovebird activity, West remembers one autumn when Bess had returned from spending the summer with her mother in Independence. The two were delighted to see each other again and retired after dinner more enthusiastically than usual. The next morning, during routine discussions with the usher, Bess said, ah, she had a little problem: "It's the President's bed. Two slats broke during the night." Blushing, she asked if it could be repaired quickly.

Now it is over, except for the memories. And for Mrs. Truman, one of five surviving former first ladies, most of the memories are right here in the Delaware Street neighborhood. She met Harry here, she married him here, she buried him a short while away. Eighty two summers, good times and bad, for the Trumans and for their nation.

Bess is well, they say. She has arthritis, she has recently been in the hospital, and at age 91 she doesn't get out so much anymore, but her spirits are apparently good. I say apparently because I am guessing. Those who know for certain also know of Bess Truman's wish for privacy. She still shares herself mainly with Harry.

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner this week gets rid of a few odds and ends. Must be the summer heat.

Dear editor:

According to what I read the other day, to run for President it takes a paid staff of around 250 people. That's more people that it took to run the entire government 200 years ago.

Some more odds and ends:

Some outfit has taken a public opinion poll to see what people think of public opinion polls. Thirty-six per cent said they thought they were worthless. This is bad news, as I was just getting ready to save the country some money by proposing a poll on whether or not there's life on Mars. Personally I doubt if there is, not even microscopic life. People might be willing to live on a planet where the temperature drops to 122 degrees below zero at night and rises to only 40 below in the daytime, but microbes have more sense.

Politicians, like generals, will never learn.

On Honesty

A newsmen in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, filed a story recently about a man carrying over $14,000 in cash in a suitcase on top of his car. The suitcase broke away from a rack and fell to the road.

A following motorist, a school teacher, stopped to pick up the bag, looked inside, and discovered the contents. He promptly turned in the cash to the police, who gave it back to the motorist owner (who had lost his summer season's income).

The reporter ended his story with an expression of astonishment that the motorist turned in the cash.

TV & Congress

A joint committee which has studied the question for more than a year recommended, as Congress recessed, that public service television of congressional sessions in the Senate and House be tried beginning in January, 1975.

PBS would cover both houses live; the commercial networks would be allowed to televise whatever they wished, live or on a delayed basis.

The trial period should be undertaken. It would, for the first time in the nation's history, give the average citizen the opportunity to follow working sessions of the Senate and House chambers. In other words, millions of voters would be able to hear and see how the nation is governed, and hear arguments on both sides of the issues.

It is crystal clear by now that the commercial networks are primarily interested in making money, understandably. They cannot devote much time to public service, relatively, because they constantly fight for the largest possible audience (down to the last moron) with a fare of crime, shock and cornball melodrama. The American people deserve something better than that, and PBS may be the chance to bring it to them.

Several authenticated stories tell of land snails that lived for years without food. In the 1850s, a supposedly dead desert snail found in Egypt was mounted on a card and displayed in the British Museum. Four years later, the rare specimen crawled out of its shell. It ate cabbage leaves and resumed its suspended life.

The generation of steam power into electricity that could be used for light, heat or running a motor began in 1880. But 1920 was the first year in which 50 per cent of U.S. city and town residences were wired for electricity. And it took until 1945 for half of America's farms to have access to this power source. ## Alpert Embarking On New Horizons

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Herb Alpert has embarked on a solo career that is certain to take him far away from the happy-go-lucky music he played with the Tijuana Brass.

That's fine with him. Because for all the happiness that the TJB's music brought to people around the world, what it ultimately brought band leader Alpert was a lot of grief. He put down his trumpet in 1969, thinking he might never play again. For five years, he didn't. "I lost interest. I was repeating myself. It became a job," the 39-year-old musician recalled recently in his big office at A&M Records, which he continues to preside over with partner Jerry Moss.

Alpert had come to a point where the success he'd been enjoying since "The Lonely Bull" was released in 1962 became too much to handle. Emotional problems were compounded by frustration with his horn playing.

"When I made those records with the Tijuana Brass, I wasn't trying to be corny or commercial or anything—I was just playing the music that was coming out," he reflected.

"It was easy for me to do; I felt like I was cheating. Then the process didn't work, and I tried to think my way into it."

After cutting he went through a heavy period of critical self-evaluation. His first marriage broke up in 1970.

Alpert stayed on at his record company, producing other artists, and in time, he says now, his problems worked themselves out naturally.

In 1974 he married Lani Hall, former lead singer in Brasil 66, and put together the TJB again.

The musician says he was ready then to turn a different way musically but he was interested first in recapturing the good feelings of the TJB's early years and then giving it up on his own terms.

He made the break for good last year and now is cut with an album, "Just You and Me," that shows a deeper dimension to Herb Alpert. The album is much moodier, much more interesting than his Tijuana Brass records.

"Now I think my observations musically are much closer to what I'm feeling," Alpert remarked. "That's very important because I feel creativity is not something you think about. It just happens."

Alpert, a thin, dark haired man with rugged good looks, doesn't reject his past work; he says he just wasn't given to introspection in those days. Now his music is coming from deep inside.

Alpert realizes that image-wise he is in a transition period with the public. That's why he has no plans to tour unless "Just You and Me" is a big success.

"I would prefer people to like it than not," he says. "But I feel it's more important that I'm satisfied musically with what I do."

Britain Benefits Off Rolls-Royce

NEW YORK (AP)—David Plastow is a blond dynamo of a man who says he expects to make $43 million for broke Britain in 1976 by selling rich Americans something they could easily do without: at least 1,000 Rolls-Royce cars with price-tags up to $90,000.

"And they're worth every penny of what they cost," he said the conviction of a man who took over the motor car division of a bankrupt engineering company and made it pay more than ever before.

Rolls had U.S. sales of $2 million 10 years ago and $31 million in 1975. And the bicentennial year finds Americans sending to Britain for luxury cars as their colonial ancestors sent for luxury coaches.

Plastow has been visiting the United States to help introduce Rolls' new $90,000 sports car, the Camargue, named for France's equivalent of America's Wild West.

On demonstration drives around Manhattan, riders found that it accelerated like a rocket, smoothed out pot-holes as though it had a trowel before it, but was too small for anyone six feet or over to drive or ride in comfortably.

"Don't worry," the 44-year-old group managing director commented "if anyone comes up with $90,000 we'll build him a car to fit." Plans call for the sale of 100 in the United States this year.

And George Lewis, president of Rolls-Royce U.S. whose headquarters are in Paramus, N.J., says:

"For the first time in history, our sales in this country will exceed 1,000."

He was counting everything from the economy model at $37,000 to the higher-priced otters everywhere," says Daniel J. Miller, senior marine biologist for the department, "or we are going to have controlled otters and shellfish too. Those are the two choices."

Siding with the state are commercial and recreational fishermen who compete with the otters for abalone, Pismo clams, rock cod and other varieties of shellfish.

Miller wants the state to limit the expanding herd of 1,000-plus otters to a range of coastland that stretches for 230 miles from Miramonte Point on the north to Avila on the south.

In a report, Miller outlined the state's plan for management of the otters—a plan he believes offers a compromise for fishermen and otters.

His proposal for confining the otters involves:

• Capturing and transporting any sea otters that reach Avila back to the northern rim of the territory.

• Contracting with an educational institution to make a long-range study on the sea otter's effect on central coast sea life, both plant and animal.

• Convincing the federal government to give jurisdiction of the sea otter back to the state.

The Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 transferred jurisdiction over otter management from the state to the federal government.

Miller says the state is applying to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for permission to carry out his otter-control plan.

Oposing the state Department of Fish and Game and the fishermen is a group called "Friends of the Sea Otter."

"We still don't know enough about the biology of the otter to even start trying to control it," said Judson Vandever, a board member of the group.

Vandever said the 4,000 members of Friends of the Sea Otter want the sea mammal to be free to float the Pacific Coast waters at will until studies of its ecological impact are completed.

Vietnam Applies for UN Seat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - A unified Vietnam has applied for admission to the United Nations, but an American veto is expected to block membership.

The U.S. State Department instructed its officials not to comment on Vietnam's application Friday, department sources said in Washington. Some observers predicted President Ford would not permit Vietnam's entry as long as the question of Americans missing in action MIA in the Vietnam war remains unresolved.

Last year the United States twice vetoed application from North and South Vietnam on the grounds that South Korea has been excluded from the world body.

North and South Vietnam were formally united last month with Hanoi as the capital, and since then the Vietnamese government has made strong overtures for ties with the United States.

But Washington has said no progress on normalizing relations can be made until the fate of 900 Americans classified as MIA is known. The issue could be sensitive in this election year.

Earlier this month, Vietnam unexpectedly released the last 49 U.S. citizens who remained in the country after the Communists came to power in April, 1975.

Success Sweet Smell To Incense Producer

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Fred Block can talk about the sweet smell of success.

The former flower child just turned 30 is founder and president of the Olfactory Corp., one of the country's biggest incense makers with sales of more than $2 million last year. It's a long way from the bath-tub operation he began in 1967 to earn some money after his wife got pregnant.

"I got into incense because I got really turned on by it personally," says Block, a soft-spoken man whose conversation is a mix of street sass and management maxims. "It's not the kind of thing you jump into because you say: 'I think I'll make a career in incense.'"

It was 1966, the Block was burning some Indian incense in his Venice apartment. He decided to write the manufacturer to find out more about the centuries-old product.

"This strange-looking package came back from Bombay, all wrapped in linen," he recalls. "It was about four pounds of incense. I started burning it and people like it. I got quite a bit of interest, so I sent them $25 and told them to ship it airfreight."

"When it got here, I found out the airfreight from Bombay cost $25, so I had to go out and nickel and dime my friends to pay the waybill."

Demand for Block's incense, which he sold in headshops on the Sunset Strip, grew. In true entrepreneurial fashion he decided to stop selling someone else's product and start making his own.

"I stopped importing, read as much as I could about it and finally learned how to put together some incense," he says. Then, after experimenting with sawdust, ground-up flowers and various perfumes, he put together what he claims was the world's first strawberry incense and sales began to move.

Block moved, top. The lady in the ground-floor apartment was complaining about the strange aromas wafting down from the bathroom lab upstairs. It was hard to blame her. Block had concocted 103 different fragrances. He has since trimmed his product line on the grounds that "the world isn't ready for 103."

The Olfactory Corp., now nine years old, sells its incense in stick form through supermarkets, record stores and other retail outlets. Aromas range from sweet pea to heliotrope, with more common fragrances like frangipani, cherry and wild blackberry also available.

Block, who started in business at age six selling newspapers on a Philadelphia street corner, is similar to most executives in wanting to increase the demand for his product. Of course, he puts it a little differently.

"I do want to turn as many people as possible on to their nose," he says. "It's an uplifting thing. And the demand for our product worldwide is very great - wherever people have a nose."

NEITHER WIND, nor rain, nor any other foul weather shall stay the owner of this revolutionary motorcycle from his appointed rounds. ## Church and State Separation

It was with much wisdom that our nation's founders carefully, constitutionally, surgically separated church and state.

A government-sanctioned religion inevitably eventuates in a government-imposed religion. Unless you separate church and state, one will surely dominate the other.

Neither, however, did the Founding Fathers divorce "God and Country," for to do that is to build your house on sand.

Every President of the United States, from George Washington to Gerald Ford, has affirmed belief in God.

President John F. Kennedy said of his predecessors: "While they came from a wide variety of religious backgrounds and held a wide variety of religious belief, each of our Presidents in his own way placed his trust in God."

If there is such a thing as a "most religious" of all our Presidents, biographer Josephine Walker nominates Abraham Lincoln. He never belonged to any church, officially. He attended services regularly and prayed regularly.

Thomas Jefferson compiled his own "paraphrased Bible," a volume of the teachings of Jesus; John Adams was both a professing and practicing disciple, and William McKinley considered Christianity "the mightiest force in civilizing the world."

Interestingly, another President who never officially belonged to any church denomination was nonetheless one of our nation's more devout leaders: Rutherford B. Hayes.

Andrew Jackson did not speak of his religion until after he was out of the White House, fearing such a proclamation, might be construed as "politically motivated." After he was out of the White House, however, Jackson confided that he had read three chapters of scripture a day most every day of his adult life. He then joined a Presbyterian church which he had helped to build.

Other Presidents who kept their religion to themselves until after they were out of office were James Buchanan and Franklin Pierce.

President Benjamin Harrison once said, "Prayer steadies one when he is walking in slippery places."

Lyndon Johnson said, "Prayer has helped me to bear the burdens of the office which are too great to be borne by anyone--alone."

Dwight Eisenhower said, "Personal prayer is as necessary to life as food and water--and sometimes more so."

And in a handwritten memo on White House stationery, Harry Truman once wrote out a prayer of petition which he said he had repeated every day since his high school days.

A Life magazine reporter once wrote that the "men who have served in the Presidency have sometimes rediscovered dormant faiths as they were driven by national crisis back to their knees."

"But this did not make them saints!" the skeptics remind us.

Perhaps Woodrow Wilson offered the best response to that. He said, "If the world is bad in spite of religion can you imagine what a jungle it would be without it?"

Received an answer to one of the letters we sent to the candidates a couple of weeks ago. This one was from President Ford. As we predicted it came from the USDA and as we might expect it failed to acknowledge the real life situation of America's most important industry. "Food Production". We asked each candidate for his contemplated policy to relieve the losses suffered by farmers in the cost-price squeeze. Instead, the USDA pointed out that many prices were down from over a year ago—some fuels, fertilizers and selected interest rates.

I guess what perplexes me the most is either their failure to recognize the facts or a complete ignorance of existing conditions. As an example, the cost of operating or production has drastically risen in just three years. Since 1973 the cost of natural gas has increased 225 per cent; the cost of some items of farm equipment has risen by more than 50 per cent; the minimum wage for labor has increased almost 70 per cent; and the price of a new well has gone up 125 per cent. All this would be enough of a strain on the farmer at 1973 crop prices at $5.00 wheat.

But the price of wheat today is $3.09—a reduction of 40 per cent. And in spite of this disastrous imbalance, USDA feels that "the direction of farm legislation should remain basically unchanged."

It seems to me that legislators USDA, presidential aspirants, media people and consumers have got to be informed and have got to understand the situation before any meaningful action can take place. I'll keep on hustlin'.... What will you do? Well, experience has proven that reaction can be obtained by those who really Hustle, Hustle, Hustle!

The British navy was probably stronger than the British army, yet it did not try very hard to blockade the American coast. It was obliged to transport troops and do convoy duty to keep them provisioned from home. It too had captains who preferred to take commercial prizes rather than fight warships. The primary effect of the British Navy, The World Almanac recalls, was to inflict hardship on the Americans by interrupting their trade, reducing their supplies of needed war material from France, and indirectly raising prices throughout the colonies.

Rev. Goodwin Accepts
CFF Chairmanship

"Little more than a decade ago the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation was working to keep C/F youngsters alive long enough to start school. Now we are trying to help some of these same patients, who have grown to young childhood, enter college or find jobs."

These encouraging words came from Reverend Homer Goodwin—she accepted the chairmanship of the 1976 "Kiss A Baby Campaign." "Longevity has increased every year because of earlier diagnosis and progress on research and cure", said our chairman. "It is efforts such as these that we support by volunteering for and contributing to the Kiss A Baby Campaign." This year's campaign begins with a Door-to-Door march in September. When a C/F marcher knocks on your door, give as generously as you are able," she said. Remember that even today, with the improvements research and care have brought, there is no cure for this inherited, genetic disease. It is still destroying lungs, digestion and lives."

Among the programs of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation are support for over 100 Cystic Fibrosis Centers across the nation. "These Centers provide diagnosis, treatment and referral to children who have these lung-damaging diseases as well as those who suffer from gastrointestinal disorders related to cystic fibrosis," the campaign chairman said. "In Texas there are clinics at San Antonio, Houston and Dallas.

The Foundation also funds research to find a cure and control for cystic fibrosis, the most serious of these lung-damaging diseases, and to develop better treatments for children suffering from all lung disorders.

"The treatment that prolong the lives of children with cystic fibrosis also alleviate, and often cure, children with other lung-damaging diseases," she added.

Cystic Fibrosis, the number one genetic killer of children affects one out of every 1,500 babies born each year and occurs when a child inherits two genes for the disease, one from each parent.

"The parents don't have cystic fibrosis, but they are among the 10 million carriers of the gene in the United States," she said and added "that one goal of Foundation-supported research is a test to detect these carriers."

"We don't need more reasons than these to actively support the Kiss A Baby Campaign."

Nevada has two nicknames—Sagebrush State and Battle Born State.

Guest's Defeat May Benefit Carter

AUSTIN (AP)—National Democratic Committee woman Billie Carr contended Friday that the defeat of state of party chairman Calvin Guest would give Jimmy Carter a better chance of winning Texas in November.

Mrs. Carr, a liberal leader from Houston, said the Texas Democratic Party has fallen to pieces under Guest, whose "methods are marked by favoritism, ineptitude and general incompetence."

She endorsed John Henry Tatum of Lufkin for the job, acclaiming him as a "charter Carter-what we call a 'Carter One'" supporter.

Mrs. Carr told a news conference that any delegate who withdraws support of the Carter-Mondale ticket over the possible defeat of Guest "is a sorry Democrat anyway" and is just using that as an excuse. "They're weak sisters and we'd just as soon be rid of them," Mrs. Carr said a "ghost-written letter" from Carter campaign leader Frank Moore expressing support for Guest for party chairman was an example of "politics of desperation."

She said Carter campaigners, including Texas Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, the state campaign chairman, will be asked about the letter at a meeting here Saturday.

Guest's basic re-election tactic, she said, has been to use Gov. Dolph Briscoe "to pressure the Carter campaign for intervention on his behalf."

She said Guest has been letting free talent on the State Democratic Executive go to waste, but high salaries "have been paid to people we have never heard of" who are supposedly working for the party.

She said the SDEC has not been able to inspect party financial books in the last four years, she said. Faced with complaints over this, Mrs. Carr said, Guest appointed a committee which never met.

To gather support for re-election, she said, Guest has done such things as promise the Black Legislative Caucus a black representative on the Texas A&M board of regents or the state welfare board.

"Guest's only purpose in seeking to perpetuate himself in this office is to advance not the Carter campaign of 1976, but the Briscoe campaign of 1978," Mrs. Carr said. "A serious and meaningful Texas presidential campaign becomes increasingly difficult with such an albatross around our necks."

"I will spend all of my time from this day on the election of John Henry Tatum," she said.

First Baptist Church Slates Revival Week

Dr. James M. Dunn, secretary of the Christian Life Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, will be the guest speaker when First Baptist Church of Hereford holds a revival Sunday, Aug. 22 through Sunday, Aug. 29.

Dr. Dunn will speak at the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services each Sunday and at the weekday services beginning at 7:30 p.m. each evening. Doug Manning, pastor, announced that the church extends an invitation to all Hereford and area citizens to attend the revival meetings. A nursery is provided.

Richard D. Baker, a notes composer, vocalist, pianist and recording artist from Dallas, will join the services Friday evening and will present a special half-hour concert at the Saturday evening service. Bob Stice, associated pastor at First Baptist, will direct music for the first portion of the revival. The series of meetings will conclude on Sunday morning, Aug. 29.

Dr. Dunn, an active member of Cliff Temple Baptist Church, Dallas, joined the Christian Life Commission in 1966 and assumed the duties of secretary in January 1968. The commission helps Baptists apply Christianity to the areas of family life, daily work, religious liberty, citizenship, race relations and other moral issues.

A native of Fort Worth, he graduated from Texas Wesleyan College and earned his BD and Th.D degrees from Southwestern Seminary. His doctoral studies were in the field of Christian Social Ethics. His wife is the former Marilyn McNeely, also a Fort Worth native.

Baker, who heads the music ministry later in the week, is presently serving as vice president of Crescendo Publications in Dallas and is the music coordinator for The World Evangelism Foundation. He has written more than 100 songs, and many have been translated into other languages as he has worked extensively in South and Central America, Mexico, the Bahamas, Japan, Malaysia and Europe.

He graduated from Baylor University and Southwestern Seminary, with additional studies completed at San Diego State and the University of California. He has served in local church fields and has directed the music at Southern Baptist conventions and numerous state conventions. ### 11 Killed, 41 Injured In Accident

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - A West German bus was side-swiped by an oncoming car and plunged into the Danube River in Lower Austria today, killing 11 persons and injuring 41, police reported.

Fire brigades and ambulances rushed to the scene to rescue people trapped in the bus as it lay in the river half-filled with water.

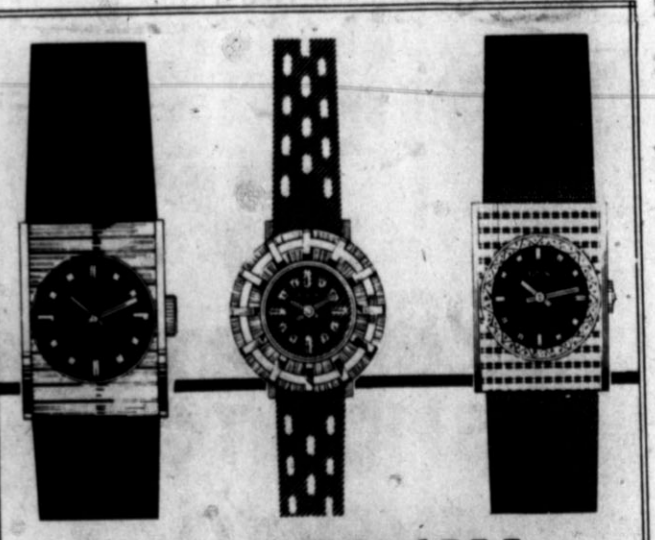

The accident occurred near the village of Aggsbach-Dorf in a stretch of the scenic Danube Valley known as Wachau.

Authorities said all of the victims were West German tourists on their way home after a week in Vienna.

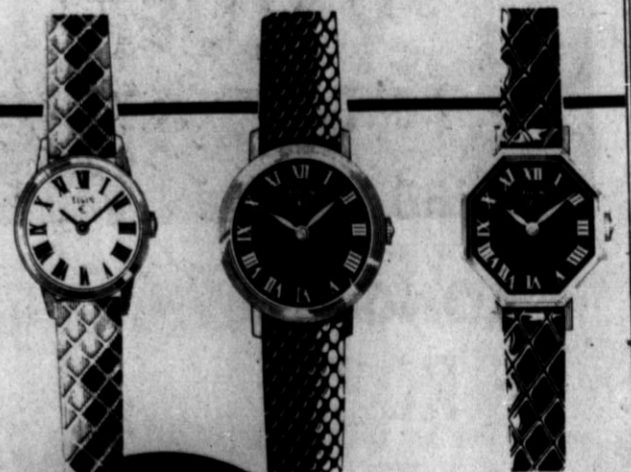

MOSQUITOES' ENEMY
BELTSVILLE, Md. (AP) - A Department of Agriculture scientist says that a tiny parasite, a nematode called "Reesimermis Nielsen," is the deadly enemy of many kinds of mosquitoes, including those that carry encephalitis and malaria.

Dr. William Nickle has been raising the nematodes in enormous quantities in his laboratory at the Agricultural Research Center here and watching them go to work on hundreds of thousands of mosquito larvae.

The parasite, a worm-like creature a fraction of an inch long, swims on the top of water where the mosquito larvae are growing. Once the parasite touches a larva it emits a glue that sticks to the larva.

Ford Takes Rest In Vail; Carter Prepares Presidential Warfare

By The Associated Press

President Ford was in Vail, Colo., Saturday presumably following the advice of his personal physician to slow down his work pace for a few days. Jimmy Carter, meanwhile, studied the Ford-Dole ticket and prepared for a West Coast campaign swing. Carter's staff scheduled a briefing today on that trip, which also will reach into the farm belt, and on the fall campaign.

Ronald Reagan, who came close to denying Ford the presidential nomination, returned to his California home Friday.

Reagan hinted to reporters that he may be involved in a third party movement if President Ford loses to Jimmy Carter.

He renewed his promise to support Ford, but said if Ford loses, it will be time for him and other conservatives "to have a reassessment of where we go and how we put that great new majority together."

Asked if that meant he would consider joining or leading a third party, Reagan replied: "I don't think you lead something unless somebody wants you to be a leader."

Ford began a nine-day vacation in the Rocky Mountain resort Friday. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said his business schedule will be light until Tuesday.

Nessen also indicated that Ford planned to heed the advice of Rear Adm. William Lukash. Lukash said Ford got almost no rest on Wednesday and Thursday, the climatic days of the GOP convention on Kansas City.

Mrs. Ford also was fatigued. A White House aide said she did not feel up to accompanying her husband on a stopover in Russell, Kan., the hometown of his vice presidential running mate, Sen. Robert Dole.

Although the presidential race traditionally does not begin until Labor Day, Ford and Dole informally launched their campaign during the midday stopover in Russell with speeches to a picnicking crowd on the elm-shaded courthouse lawn.

Dole, who returned to Washington Friday night, and Ford campaign advisers will join the President in Vail early next week to lay the groundwork for the fight against the Democrats.

Carter said Friday that the main issue in the campaign will be whether to have "new leadership in the White House or no leadership and a continuation of the drift in this country..."

Carter's running mate, Sen. Walter F. Mondale, Friday called President Ford a "key cheerleader" for former President Nixon's administration and said his use of Watergate as a campaign issue is entirely proper.

Both Dole and Mondale agreed to debate each other with the date and location to be worked out.

The Carter staff also is preparing for an unexpected face-to-face series of debates with Ford. Ford and Carter representatives are to meet in Washington next Thursday to begin discussions with representatives of the League of Women Voters on the format of the debates.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - A government minister has blamed rioting and violence by blacks protesting the white government's racial policies on the importation of "black ideology" from the United States.

Police Minister James Kruger said in a speech Friday the new ideology had more impact on youths that Communism, which formerly was the ideology of black militancy, and "is more romantic - a sort of Black Nazism."

Kruger added that the black man in South Africa "knows his place - and if not, I'll tell him his place."

Moderate black leaders scheduled a summit meeting today on South Africa's worsening racial troubles. The leaders head eight of the country's eight of nine tribal homelands and represent most of South Africa's black majority of 18 million. They were expected to adopt a militant segregation laws and prepare proposals for a meeting they intend to seek with Prime Minister John Vorster next month.

Three days of violence in black townships outside Port Elizabeth, 560 miles southwest of Johannesburg, has left 33 people dead, police said Friday.

Some blacks around Port Elizabeth formed vigilante groups to protect themselves from rioters, the South African Press Association reported.

Since the rioting began in June in black townships outside a number of South Africa's major cities, 252 persons have been killed and about 1,500 injured.

Youths with gasoline soaked rags burned a Roman Catholic and a Methodist church Friday in the first reported attacks on churches.

A black mob attempted to storm two automobile assembly plants Thursday in the first attacks on factories. Police gunfire drove them off.

Socialist presidential candidate Eugene Debs polled nearly a million votes in 1920.

I LIVE NEAR THIS SHOPPING CENTER, CHUCK, AND I SAW SOMETHING FUNNY THERE THE OTHER DAY...

THEY HAVE A BOOK STORE AND AN ICE CREAM STORE NEXT TO EACH OTHER

THE BOOK STORE HAS A SIGN IN ITS WINDOW THAT SAYS, "PLEASE DO NOT BRING ICE CREAM INTO THE BOOK STORE"

THE ICE CREAM STORE HAS A SIGN THAT SAYS, "OKAY, THEN PLEASE DON'T BRING BOOKS INTO OUR ICE CREAM STORE"

SPEAKING OF READING AND EATING, I DON'T KNOW WHY IT IS, BUT WHENEVER I TRY TO READ A BOOK AND EAT POTATO CHIPS, MY EYES ALWAYS WATER...

by Hal Foster

Our Story: AFTER HIS DUEL WITH AJAXOS, PRINCE VALIANT NEEDS SOME REPAIRS, AND WHO BETTER TO BECOME HIS NURSE THAN HELENE, HIS SISTER-IN-LAW. FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE HER ILL-FATED MARRIAGE TO DIONSEUS, SHE SMILES.

THE NEW KING TELEMON SUMMONS SOME OF AJAXOS' BRUTAL CREW TO REMOVE THE BODY. HE WISHES THEM TO KNOW THEY NO LONGER HAVE A LEADER.

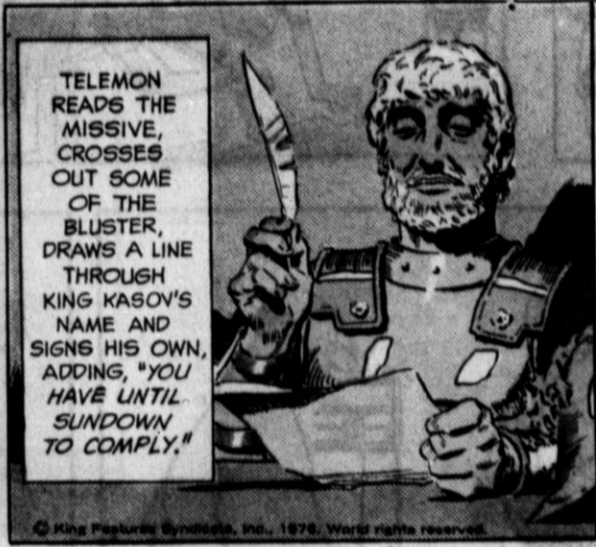

HE ALSO MENTIONS THAT AJAXOS' PIRATE SHIP IS MINUS A CAPTAIN AND STILL LIES AT THESSALONICA ..... WITH ALL ITS PLUNDER!

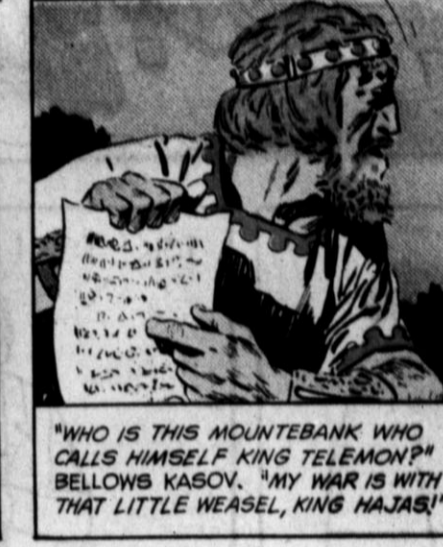

THE STORM HAS PASSED. THE FLOOD WATERS THAT HAD HALTED THE WAR ARE RECEDING AND KING KASOV, LOOKING FROM THE WATCHTOWER, SEES THE PIRATES LEAVING. "LOOK, HIS MERCENARIES ARE DESERTING!" HE CRIES. "WE WILL WIN THE WAR!"

HE SENDS A HERALD WITH TERMS OF SURRENDER. AND THE TERMS ARE HARSH.

TELEMON READS THE MISSIVE, CROSSES OUT SOME OF THE BLUSTER, DRAWS A LINE THROUGH KING KASOV'S NAME AND SIGNS HIS OWN, ADDING, "YOU HAVE UNTIL SUNDOWN TO COMPLY."

"WHO IS THIS MOUNTBANK WHO CALLS HIMSELF KING TELEMON?" BELLOWS KASOV. "MY WAR IS WITH THAT LITTLE WEASEL, KING HAJAS!"

THE HERALD SPEAKS: "THIS TELEMON TOOK THE MESSAGE. HE SEEMS TO BE ACCEPTED AS THEIR LEADER. HE IS, SIRE, VERY DIFFERENT FROM OLD HAJAS."

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

WENDY MADBLEY OF TORONTO, CANADA ASKS: "WHAT MAKES A STEEL SHIP FLOAT?"

A STEEL SHIP FLOATS BECAUSE THE WATER SUPPORTS IT. WHEN A SHIP IS PLACED IN WATER, ITS BIG, HOLLOW HULL PUSHES SOME OF THE WATER ASIDE. THE WEIGHT OF THE WATER THE SHIP'S HULL REPLACES IS EQUAL TO THE WEIGHT OF THE SHIP ITSELF, AND THE SHIP BECOMES "LIGHT" ENOUGH TO BE BUOYED OR HELD UP BY THE WATER.

ENZYMES

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Enzymes, the tiny protein molecules which speed up chemical reactions, are found in all living organisms. They are essential to virtually all vital bodily processes in human beings, such as the digestion of food.

As an example, doctors have found that before milk and milk products can be properly digested — absorbed by our bodies and used as fuel — lactose, a large sugar molecule found in milk, must be broken down and converted to smaller molecules. This is accomplished by an enzyme called lactase which is found in the cells lining the small intestine.

Q. — There are several shingles on my asphalt roof which were damaged during a recent storm. I have some extra shingles which I can use to replace the old ones. The one thing that puzzles me is how to remove the nails that are hidden. Is there some knack to this?

A. — It isn't a knack so much as it is the use of the correct tool. Go to a building supply dealer and buy a nail puller. Explain what it is to be used for and ask exactly how it is used. With most nail pullers, one is slipped under a shingle so that it will cut off the head of the nail when its outward end is struck with a hammer. However, get the instructions, since there are some types that are used a bit differently.

Jennifer Smart Marries In Afternoon Ceremony

MRS. GARY L. HAMMER
...nee Jennifer Smart

Miss Jennifer Lynn Smart and Gary L. Hammer of Canyon exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon in First United Methodist Church. Officiating were the Rev. Elra Phillips, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Hart, and the Rev. Herschel Thurston, retired Methodist minister of Hereford.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jeff J. Smart of 103 Fir and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hammer of Dallas.

Two white erms placed on stands and holding white mums and apricot gladiolus and flanked by two candleabra were arranged on either side of the main church altar.

Fan shapped arrangements of mums and gladiolus decorated the altar table and were placed beneath a gold cross and lighted tapers were arranged on either side of the cross.

The bride's sister, Miss Cindy Smart, was maid of honor and the bridegroom's father, Robert L. Hammer, served as best man.

Escorting guests to their seats were Carey Black and Bob Strasner of Hobbs, N.M. They also lit candles during the ceremony.

Miss Leslie Euler, accompanied by organist, Mrs. Tony Calkins, vocalized "Wedding Song" and "Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a moon glow Victorian garden wedding gown of silk organza, sata-pau and Venice lace.

The molded bodice featured a Sabrina neckline encircled in garlands of applique Venice lace flowerrets. The sheer silk organza Bishop sleeves were accented with applique clusters of Venice lace flowers and were gathered at deep cuffs edged in garlands of lace.

From the present flowerett encircled waist fell the full A-line skirt with fullness gathered to the back to form a full chapel train. The entire hemline was encircled in a deep border of sata-peau edged in lace flowerrets.

The bridal veil was a flowerette covered caplett from which drifted the chapel length mantilla of imported silk illusion. It was completely edged in moon glow Venice lace.

She carried a bridal bouquet of white and apricot rosebuds, stephanotis and babybreath atop a white Bible which her mother carried in her wedding.

As good luck pieces, she wore an antique cameo broach belonging to her maternal great-great-grandmother and her mother's string of pearls.

Her bridal attendant was attired in an apricot colored Quiana high waisted floor-length dress designed with a small mandarin collar and short full cap sleeves. Completing the outfit was an apricot straw hat with Quiana streamers. She carried a nosegay of white and apricot rosebuds.

The mother of the bride wore a royal blue chiffon shirtwaist gown fashioned with long sleeves. For her son's wedding, the bridegroom's mother wore a teal blue long dress with a printed jacket designed with butterfly sleeves. Both women had white rosebud corsages.

Miss Ann Moore of Hale Center invited guests to sign the registry book at the reception held at the church Fellowship Hall.

Punch was poured by Miss Nancy Graves from the serving table draped with apricot tulle over a beige taffeta floor-length cloth. The tulle was scalloped and centered with apricot tulle rosettes.

Miss Cindy Howard of Dallas served the wedding cake which consisted of four octagonal shaped tiers with the bottom tier made of four small cakes with kneeling cherubs surrounded by apricot, creme and brown roses and net.

The top of the cake was decorated with icing roses and on either side of the cake were two white erms of white mums and apricot gladiolus.

A crystal punch service, various silver appointments and the bride and bridesmaids' bouquet completed the table decorations.

House party members included Miss Deborah Tarwater of Midland, the bride's cousin, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Jerry Mitchell of Dallas.

Serving as hostesses were Mmes. Paul Scott, G.C. Graves Bill Walden and J.J. Durham.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Yellowstone National Park, the bride wore a rust, brown and cream stripped short sleeved dress with a A-line skirt and tan accessories. A white rosebud corsage completed her ensemble.

The couple will make their home after August 27 at 2500 8th Ave., Apt. 5, at Canyon.

The bride, a graduate of Hereford High School, is a junior student at West Texas State University where she is majoring in accounting. She is employed at the Frame House in Canyon.

The bridegroom is a senior business major at WTSU and will graduate in December. He is a graduate of Hillcrest High School at Dallas.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. J.A. Tuttle, Mrs. T.P. Tarwater and daughter Deborah and Mrs. Gary Hoard, all of Midland.

Others; the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace T. Hyatt of Spur; Mr. and Mrs. Mike White of Idalou; Mrs. Ben Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Renfro, Brenda, Dena and Andy, all of Matador; Mr. and Mrs. Travis Rector; Ted and Kellie, all of Lubbock.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Hyatt of Boys Ranch; Mr. and Mrs. Max Hyatt, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Cumpton, all of Muleshoe; Mr. and Mrs. Haden Moore, Ann and Kathy, all of Hale Center; Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Rector of Tulia.

And, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hammer, Mrs. Jerry Mitchell and Miss Cindy Howard, all of Dallas; the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A.W. Hammer, Russelville, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bryan, Leigh Ann and Steve, all of Temple; Dr. and Mrs. V.C. Smart of Austin; and Mrs. Floy Rector of Spur.

During the business session, districts will have the opportunity to submit resolutions to be acted on at the state meeting of soil and water conservation district directors in McAllen on October 12-14.

Wheat Prices $2 Below Parity For Texas Farmers, Ford Told

"Wheat prices to farmers in Texas today at $2.90 and less are a full $2.00 per bushel below the current wheat parity index of $4.91 which would make wheat comparable to other goods and services and cover growers cost of production", President Ford has been told. The facts were stated in a joint letter to the President from Winston Wilson, President, Texas Wheat Producers Association and Dwight Hamilton, Chairman of the Texas Wheat Producers Board.

The duo indicated that "Producers attribute these low prices, including the 25 per cent drop the past ten days, directly to government action". They detailed four specific actions: (1) The encouragement of all-out production to meet assured world needs; (2) The assurance to open and free access to world markets when the President vetoed the Congressional-passed Emergency Farm Bill; (3) The imposition of temporary embargo of U.S. wheat sales to the USSR and Poland and their resulting smaller than expected purchases; and (4) The announced increase in the 1977 wheat allotment to 62.2 million acres giving the false impression of increased need even in the face of a USDA projected June 1977 record free stock carryover of over a billion bushels.

Having charged government with perpetrating the low prices and excess stocks build up, the wheat organization leaders said that, "it is now requested that all available forces of government be activated which might reverse the downward trend in prices" which they said "began with the limits imposed by the long-range Russian Grains Agreement and continue downward". Specific government actions requested-- all already provided by Congressional legislation and requiring only administrative action-- are: (1) Expanding program authorization for Public Loan 480 (concessional) export sales; (2) Assistance in financing Commodity Credit Corporation export sales (aid); (3) Increase in loan rates to a usable level to relieve pressure on local bank funds and loan limits as farmers continue to "Orderly Market" this years crop while borrowing to begin production costs on the 1977 crop; (4) An announced uniform acreage set-a-side program which would reduce the projected billion bushels carryover expectations for next June and strengthen demand and prices now.

Hamilton and Wilson stressed to the President, the "...need and demand for immediate action to these matters is consumers at home and abroad are to be assured of long-range continuous supplies of food grains at reasonable prices and the farm production plant is to be maintained for the demand ahead that may be placed on it".

Copies of the letter to the President were sent to all members of the Texas Congressional and Senatorial delegation with requests that they push for and follow-up on the detailed action.

The wheat leaders pointed out that producers have done an outstanding job of "orderly marketing" of this years crop-- even in the point of effecting price increases right through harvest-- but that the weight of government actions finally are too much to overcome by individual actions without some reconsiderations in administration of government program procedures. Both Hamilton and Wilson expressed confidence in the long-range market and price structure for wheat and potential gains by farmers continuing to practice "orderly marketing" if these requested export expansion and acreage adjustment features are initiated.

Salt-Laden Lands May Produce Crop Foods

LUBBOCK— When a farmer looks for land, he looks for the best of soils. But as world population increases the less desirable lands-- many of them salt-laden-- can be expected to produce crops for economic benefits, according to experts meeting at Texas Tech University.

"We are studying the possibilities of cultivating certain areas of saline lands with salt tolerant plants that can be important economically, the non-conventional crops that could provide raw materials, for instance, for industry," Dr. M.A. Zahran of Egypt told delegates Thursday.

Zahran is one of about 100 delegates from 20 countries attending the International Conference on Managing Saline Water for Irrigation, meeting Aug. 16-20, at Texas Tech.

He described for delegates his work with two varieties of rushes which, in his research, he has cultivated in the saline lands of Egypt which occupy vast coastal areas along the Mediterranean and Red seas.

These are not traditional farmlands, and salt-sensitive crops cannot be harvested from them. Zahran said, however, that the two species of rush he has planted in the area can be made to flourish with proper fertilization, and they can produce fiber for high grade paper while their seeds may be used as a source of medicinal drugs and oils.

Educational Wildlife Exhibit On Show

LUBBOCK— Panhandle and South Plains residents will have an opportunity to view the educational wildlife exhibit during the fall fair season.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department exhibit is scheduled for appearances at Dumas, Sept. 9-11; Snyder, 15-18; and Colorado City, Sept. 30-Oct. 2.

The purpose of this exhibit is to show live wildlife specimens representative of the various geographical areas of the state, and to furnish educational information about them to all the people of Texas; to foster good sportsmanship and cooperation in the conservation of our wildlife resources.

The continuing mobile unit first appeared at the Houston Sports show on March 17-26, 1950, and since that time, more than three-quarters of a million people each year have visited the exhibit during its annual showings.

animals are quartered at the zoo during the slack, hot summer months.

Local game wardens, biologists, and exhibit personnel answer questions, and give factual wildlife information to exhibit visitors.

A crew of four men operate behind the scenes and their duties consist of the care and feeding of the animals; transporting the exhibit; procurement of fish, snakes, and some other forms of non-game wildlife specimens and maintenance of cages, aquaria, air compressors, and other exhibit equipment.

The wildlife exhibit draws interested crowds wherever it travels. As well as entertaining, it is an inspiration to everyone to do his part in the conservation of our wildlife heritage.

Irrigating Corn During Late Growth Stages Unpredictable

LUBBOCK— Experienced farmers will tell you they can look at a corn crop and tell whether the grain is ripe. But when it comes to the question of irrigating during late growth stages, even they may have to admit they're sometimes not sure.

Judging grain maturity in corn is a matter of micro-measurements, agriculturists say. And it all has to do with the "maturity line."

Leon New, irrigation specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says maturity stages determine whether further irrigation is profitable, and should be closely checked before irrigating.

Corn kernels mature from the outward tip inward toward the cob, he says. As kernel maturity progresses, a definite white-yellow color distinction can be seen. This color separation on each kernel is known as the maturity line, commonly referred to as the starch line.

"The outward portion of the kernel that is mature and has reached full weight is yellow and hard while the inner portion toward the cob is white, in the dough stage and yet to mature," New says. "In heavier clay soils such as Pullman silty clay loam, Acuff and Olton Loam, growers should irrigate until the maturity line has progressed to 1/2 to 2/3 the inward distance down the kernel.

"In other words, try to have a full profile of soil moisture at this stage of maturity," New advises. "This level of soil moisture is generally adequate for the immature portion of the kernel to mature and to maintain stalk quality. On sandy soils, corn should be irrigated until the maturity line has progressed 1/2 to 2/3 the distance down the kernel. This will normally occur around Aug. 15 to 20 for corn planted in mid-April."

New says the maturity line is also visible on white corn kernels but it is not as distinct as in yellow kernels. To identify the maturity line, one should break a corn ear in two, and closely inspect the exposed full kernels.

There are two other methods of identifying corn maturity, both relating to the maturity line. One is denting and the other is the forming of the black layer.

Denting is the first stage of maturity, New says. It occurs as the maturity line forms and begins to move inward down the kernel. It can be identified by the small indentation in the outward or end tips of the kernel after removing the shucks.

New says the formation of the black layer is a signal of full maturity, and is visible after the maturity line reaches the inward point of the kernel, near the point where the kernel attaches to the cob. A dark brown line first appears near this point and later turns black. It can be located by cutting the tip of the grain.

"After the black layer forms, the kernel can no longer increase in weight," New says. "Irrigation after this stage is of no benefit except to maintain stalk quality."

The maturity line is the most exact identification of the stage of corn grain maturity, he adds, but the three maturity signals can be used together.

RAIN, RAIN GO AWAY—Farmers in southern portions of the state probably wished many times during the first part of July that the precipitation would stop. Three weeks and 15 inches of rain later, the sun finally came out, revealing many flooded fields. Grain sorghum and cotton farmers were especially hard-hit, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reported.

CowBelle Beef Bits

Presented By The Hereford CowBelles

The Senate-House conferees met Aug. 3 to iron out minor differences in Amendments to Packers and Stockyards Act and agreed to everything cattlemen had requested. The revised bill was approved by the Senate this morning, probably will be voted on by the House next week, then will go to the President for his signature.

Sinck Aug. 3, all livestock shipped from Texas must meet Federal inspection, certification and treatment requirements. The regulations are: (1) Livestock to be shipped to Southeastern states must be sprayed prior to shipment and certified by a Federal or State inspector or accredited veterinarian. (2) Livestock shipped to states, other than Southeastern states, must be inspected and certified to be free of screwworms by a Federal or State inspector or accredited veterinarian within 72 hours of shipment. If screwworm infestation is found, individual animals must be treated. The regulations are a result of recurring screwworm infestation in the state and apply to all livestock including shipments to slaughter.

Low-level antibiotic feeding was a hot issue at FDA Advisory Subcommittee hearing at Texas A&M University, Aug. 18-19. Subcommittee is reviewing the feeding of antibiotics to determine whether additional controls— including a possible ban of their use— are needed. TCF will testify on the need for antibiotic feeding.

"FALSE STATEMENTS ABOUT THE BEEF BUSINESS," listed by Ken Monfort, Monfort of Colorado, at the recent ANCA Marketing Seminar:

1. With the size of the corn crop this year, corn will get cheap.
2. Fed cattle will go up because they cost more than today's prices to produce.

3. Feeder cattle will go up because they cost more than today's prices to produce.

4. Fed cattle will get higher because the August, October, December and February futures markets say they will get higher.

5. We can produce and import enough beef to keep consumption above 125 lbs. and still have a profitable cattle industry.

6. The economy is getting better, therefore beef prices will improve.

7. A rancher can reduce his risks by feeding his cattle in a custom feedlot.

8. Fed cattle numbers will get back to what they were several years ago.

MINIATURE ALOHA MEAT LOAVES

- 2 pounds ground beef
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1/2 cup crushed cracker crumbs
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ginger
- 8 pineapple rings
- 8 maraschino cherry halves
- 8 aluminum tart pans
- 8 6-inch squares aluminum foil

Lightly but thoroughly combine ground beef, tomato sauce, cracker crumbs, onions, green pepper, egg, soy sauce, salt and ginger. Place pineapple ring in bottom of each tart pan and 1 maraschino cherry half (cut side up) in each ring. Divide beef mixture in eighths and place 1 portion on pineapple ring in each pan, pressing lightly into mound. Cover each pan tightly with aluminum foil, securing around rim of pan. Place on grill over low to moderate heat for 40 to 60 minutes or until done. Remove to foil, pour off drippings and invert pans on hot serving platter or individual plates. 8 servings.

Chain Store Suits Harm Cattlemen

Not all cattlemen are suing chain stores and few cattlemen approve of the suits, according to O.J. Barron, Jr., a Spur, Texas, rancher and president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

"The growing number of suits by cattlemen during the past two years has harmed the entire industry—harmed our relations with the people who merchandise our product and harmed our image with the public," he says. Nine suits, alleging collusion and price fixing, have been filed against 23 retail food stores and a dozen meat packers for damages in excess of $1 billion.

All cattlemen have suffered economically the past two years, but not just because of retail prices or pricing practices, Barron believes. "Our primary problem has been an oversupply of cattle, for which we can blame only ourselves. Total cattle numbers have increased 18 per cent in the last 10 years and 33 per cent in the last 20 years.

"Total beef production has increased even more—28 per cent in the last 10 years, 77 per cent in 20 years— the result of our feeding more cattle and selling them at heavier weights," he continues. "This increase has been much greater than the growth in U.S. population, as shown by the per capita consumption of beef—up 21 per cent in 10 years, up 46 per cent in 20 years.

"We would be much worse off if the chain stores had not done a superior job of merchandising our product," contends Barron. "They feature beef most of the time and are doing a super job of cooperating with cattlemen on beef promotions right now." Across the country this week, full-page newspaper ads are featuring beef with headlines such as "This Is The Week To Buy High Quality Beef," "Beef Surplus Sale" and "Honor The Beef Industry Sale."

"This year, food stores will spend approximately $22 million $225 million advertising beef, while producers will spend only $750,000," he says. "We need even more of their advertising and suing them isn't the way to get more cooperation."

"Cattlemen have watched the growing carcass-to-retail price spread about 53 cent per retail pound in July compared to 41 cent a year ago— with some concern and envy," Barron admits. "But there should be no consumer resistance and we think we should work to get live cattle prices up rather than bring retail prices down further." The USDA reports average retail prices of $1.38 per pound in July 1975, compared to $1.61 in July 1976.

Barron also is chairman of the Beef Development Taskforce, a national group representing nearly all cattlemen's organizations in the nation, which is proposing a uniform collection of 3/10 of 1 per cent of the value of each animal sold. This would raise $30 million to $40 million a year for beef research, consumer education, promotion and foreign market development. "If all cattlemen get behind this self-help program," he concludes, "we can do some things to control our own destiny."

Today In History

Today is Sunday, Aug. 22 the 235th day of 1976. There are 131 days left in the year.

Screwworm Researchers Accept Part Of Blame

MISSION, Tex. (AP)—Officials at the screwworm eradication plant blame ranchers and themselves for the recent outbreak of screwworm problems.

Historically, screwworms were a blight on the cattle industry in the Southwest until the plant began operation in 1962. Screwworms infest warm-blooded animals and attack the flesh, leading to death if untreated in time.

U.S. Department of Agriculture figures revealed the number of reported screwworm cases had dropped from a high of 59,859 in 1962 to 153 cases by 1970. Economists for the Agriculture Department estimated that the plant was responsible for a drop in beef prices presenting a saving of $4.81 to every American beef consumer per year.

But in 1972, the number of cases jumped to a record-high 95,642. Although official figures show significant decreases since then, the director of the eradication plants expects "more than 35,000 cases this year."

The plant attacks the screwworm population by producing million of sterilized "man-made" screwworm flies. The "man-made" flies are then dropped from plane into heavily-infested screwworm areas.

Theoretically, the sterilized flies satisfy the sexual urge of the wild flies without producing more flies.

"The ranchers just aren't practicing sound animal husbandry like they used to," said Dr. M. Meadows, the director of the plant located in the Rio Grande Valley.

There are other factions such as weather changes, the multiplication of other insects and the drastic increase in the number of cattle," he added. "But in the 1960s most ranchers had a fleet of cowboys trained to deal with screwworm problems. Now they don't."

"That is true," admitted Jim McAllen, part-owner of a 79,000-acre ranch in the Rio Grande Valley. "The wage scale of this type of work can't compare with industrial jobs in the city. Most of the men who used to work cattle have already moved to town."

"I get tired of them eradication plant officials blaming us," he said "We've got more beef to produce...we're in an economic squeeze. We've getting 1959 prices for our cattle and look how other prices have gone up since then."

"They're first generation fly sterilizers and we're about fifth generation ranchers. Now who's right and who's wrong? If you start fooling with Mother Nature, she'll come back to haunt you."

The plant also came under fire by a group of University of Texas researchers whose published report this month in a science journal said the sterilized flies were not attractive to other flies because of genetic differences.

"The researchers did alert us to a problem," said Dr. Chris Hoffmann, the chief entomologist in charge of methods development at the Mission plant. "I personally disagree with some of their findings but as a precaution we stopped production for 48 hours to alleviate any possible contamination."

Hoffman said the plant is now producing a "super fly" - one that could eventually eradicate screwworms.

Beginning in March of this year, a fly strain Hoffman labeled "Double-O Nine" began bombarding the wild flies across the shipment.

"This fly is going to rectify the problem," he said.

"We believe in the program," said McAllen. "It's our only solution we'll hold our end up and just hope they can too."

A part of the Death Valley National Monument is 282 feet below sea level. This point, near Badwater, Calif., is the lowest in the Western Hemisphere.

There are approximately 10,000 sink holes in central Kentucky. The National Geographic reports that one of them is over a quarter of a mile wide and 200 feet deep.

'Agriculturalists Can Be Proud' Cattle Feeder Says At TAMU

Despite the claim in "elitists" that U.S. agriculture wastes grain through excessive meat production, the nation's agricultural production, research and marketing can be proud of its accomplishments, a prominent cattle feeder said at Texas A&M this week.

Kenneth R. Monfort, board chairman of Monfort of Colorado, Inc., said there is no reason for shame that U.S. farmers and ranchers have produced so much food and fiber at reasonable cost to consumers, and with such a small percentage of the overall population involved.

Monfort told about 1,800 members of the American Society of Animal Science 68th annual meeting (Aug. 16-18) at Texas A&M University that there are those who want Americans to feel ashamed for eating so well.

The reason the citizens eat well, he said, is because farmers and ranchers produce meat protein, as well as food grains, and they do it through efficiency, hard work and the research tools gleaned from colleges and universities.

"Animal agriculture has been particularly condemned by many of the elitists throughout our nation," Monfort said. "They decry what they believe to be the inefficiency of producing protein with livestock and poultry. They state flatly that we should not use our grain supplies to produce meat."

The speaker said these same elitists usually ignore and the fact that much of the nation's agricultural acreage has one best use—the production of livestock.

"They ignore the fact that our greatest crop of all, corn—yellow corn—is primarily a feed grain and will in the foreseeable future continue to be used in production of meat whether we use it at home or whether it is exported," he said.

Monfort then listed many of the research accomplishments by such agencies as the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. The advances are now standard practice in most cases.

But he told researchers in the ASAS meeting that "your job has just begun. We need so much more."

He said a cow still has only one calf a year. It still takes about eight pounds of feed for a pound of liveweight gain in the feedlot, and 20 pounds of feed for a pound of edible beef. Too often undesirable meat is graded U.S. Choice, and desirable meat is not graded higher.

Monfort put the ASAS

members on the spot by listing what he called "wild" research goals when the U.S. celebrates its tri-centennial.

He said he would like to see a 180 per cent calf crop, 1,200-pound steers at 12 months of age and with only the last 260 pounds put on in the feedlot; a conversion of 3.5 pounds of feed to a pound of grain, almost no fat on the carcass, and universally desired tenderness and flavor that added up to meat quality.

Local Manure Processing Plant Discussed At TAMU Meeting

Two cattlemen in the southeastern United States are making efficient use of animal wastes by recycling them in a practical feeding program.

Russell May of Timberville, Va., and Sam D. Hay, Jr., of Covington, Ga., talked about their operations at the annual meeting of the American Society of Animal Science at Texas A&M University Aug. 15-18.

Another speaker, Dr. Arnold Peterson with the Searle Co., Elburn, Ill., discussed a $1.5 million Bio Con plant at Summerfield near Hereford in the Texas Panhandle where manure from cattle feedlots is being processed for use in finishing rations as well as for fertilizer for the home garden market. The product has an analysis of 2 per cent nitrogen, 1 per cent phosphorus and 2 per cent potash.

Peterson noted that at a feedlot at his home base, a ration containing 30 per cent manure and 70 per cent corn silage is being utilized. He contends that 30 to 40 per cent manure in a ration is probably the upper limit. The processed manure has a crude protein of 12.5 per cent.

"Manure is valuable as both a feed and fertilizer," noted Peterson. "It is generally valued at about $5 million annually across the nation."

May, who runs an Angus herd along with swine, poultry and sheep, discussed the use of poultry litter in rations for his beef herd, brought on mainly by the need for a more efficient type of feed. He initiated litter feeding in the 1960's under the pressure of drought conditions, and has since expanded his operation. Early rations consisted of one pound of corn meal and three pounds of litter, supplemented with hay during the winter months. Now May mixes corn silage along with the litter, with his cow herd receiving a ration of 25 per cent litter and 75 per cent silage.

The key to using litter is its palatability to cattle, pointed out May. He piles up the litter from his poultry operation for four to six weeks to allow it to go through a heating period before using it in a feeding ration.

Hay, whose main business is a backgrounding and cattle finishing operation, recycles manure by using a ration consisting of 45 per cent corn, 15 per cent corn silage and 40 per cent manure. "By utilizing the protein in animal waste products along with silage and grass, we feel we can compete and stay in business," said Hay.

The cattlemen pointed out that he buys corn for his feeding ration but grows the corn silage. These two ingredients are mixed with the manure and put into a silo for 10 to 14 days before feeding it to cattle.

"Using the above ration, we have realized an average daily gain of 2.65 pounds per animal in our finishing operation," noted Hay. He also feeds manure to cattle being backgrounded on pasture and relies heavily on ryegrass and yucca clover for grazing from October through May.

Coal Burning Begins At SPS Amarillo Plant

Brac Biggers, division manager for SPS in Amarillo, has announced that Southwestern Public Service Company is now burning coal at its new Harrington Station northeast of Amarillo.

This is the first time in the modern history of the company that coal has been used to fuel the boilers that produce steam at Southwestern's power plants. The low-sulphur coal is brought in from Wyoming in 110 car units trains on a twice-a-week schedule and will be used at the rate of 3500 tons per day when the generating unit is operating at capacity.

Construction of the second 350,000 kilowatt generating unit is underway at Harrington Station with completion scheduled for 1978. Plans call for additional coal-fired units to be in service in 1980, 1982, and 1984.

About the only time you expect to see a Zimmatic broken down is when it leaves one of Lindsay's plants. Once assembled in your field, it seldom causes a problem. Those big, sure-footed towers power their way around the field, carrying water to crops.

Hour after hour, day after day. Until you decide to shut down. That kind of performance doesn't just happen. It's the result of constant testing — both in the plant and in the field. Lindsay puts these rigs through the most punishing conditions — loads on more stress in a week, usually, than they're likely to see in a lifetime of normal use.

But we know that no system is 100% perfect all the time. That's why we're ready to help with an extensive parts inventory and factory trained servicemen if you ever have a problem. Before you buy any center pivot irrigation system, be sure to let us tell you about all the advantages of owning a Lindsay Zimmatic.

School Books Draw Wrath of Feminists

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A "chauvinistic" journalism book and a biology book that showed ovaries on a male outline figure drew the wrath of feminists Friday.

Testimony from the National Organization of Women (NOW) wound up the 15-member State Textbook Committee's five days of hearings on proposed texts for use in public schools.

Berlyn Bock of Fort Worth, a college student and mother of one child, said she was "disturbed" by a drawing in "Biology: Living Systems," published by Charles E. Merrill. "It is what I consider a male outline drawing showing the endocrine system - with male testes and female ovaries. It might well be a picture of transvestite," she said.

NOW had one male witness, Truett Burke, a life science teacher at Cassata Learning Center in Fort Worth. He criticized "Biological Science: An Inquiry into Life," published by Harcourt, Brace & Jovanovich for using "man" as a term embracing people in general. A section on Social Darwinism would have been useful to show the misuse of science, he said.

"Social Darwinism has been used as a rationale for justifying both sexism and racism," Burke said.

Dorothy Pearson of Houston called "Journalism and the Mass Media," published by Ginn & Co., "the most chauvinistic book I have ever reviewed."

"Perhaps it is only reflecting a very chauvinistic area of our life, the media," she said.

Ms. Pearson said 61 pictures showed males, 24 females and 21 both sexes. It is replete, she said, with the generic "he," "him" and "his" as pronouns indicating either sex.

Majorie Randal of Clear Lake City objected to numerous statements in an article about soap operas in National Textbook Co.'s "Understanding Mass Media."

One assertion was: "The average American housewife unquestionably believes that if you've got money, you've got no other problems because money solves everything."

"I know lots of women who are well fixed. I think there is a correlation between having plenty of money and alcoholism, as well as other problems. ... Money tends to insulate women from the world," she said.

The textbook committee will vote Sept. 14 on books for use beginning with the 1977-78 school year. It can choose five texts in each subject that is under consideration. The State Board of Education will make the final adoptions on Nov. 13; it can remove books chosen by the committee but cannot add any.

Comings And Goings At Kings Manor

BY FAY GAUGGEL

MANORITES GO TO SEE "TEXAS"

About seven of our residents drove to see "Texas" Thursday, July 22. As we recall from years ago the amphitheater is one of those natural acoustic situations wherein no artificial amplifying is necessary. A rare and phenomenal facility indeed.

While we realize some changes are made each year, the general format and motifs are the same. That unforgettable first scene where the cowboy mounted on horseback, is blowing a trumpet as he is silhouetted against an orange colored sunset, the advent of the new train as it rounds the mountain, a fire and a terrific storm with wonderfully simulated sound effects, the regular theme of the rivalry between farmers and cattlemen. We recall the sounds of music as whole beviies of feminine pulchritude and eager-eyed Lochinvars swayed and tripped in the dances. Swirling skirts intermingled with handsome boots passed in gay array as lilting tunes set all feet a-going and these songs stuck in memory long after bed-time came. 'Twas refreshing even to awake to them again next morning. Not to be forgotten beauties of eye and sound haunted us on into the day.

What a showman is Paul Green! He is a wizard at moving into an area or state, contacting the right people, and absorbing the culture, the musical and histrionic abilities of the people, and developing a unique creation or show for some state.

We shall hopefully look forward to next year for another outstanding production of "Texas".

Mr. and Mrs. William Krabbe of Amarillo were recent visitors of Mrs. Louise Vaughan, and made a quick tour of the Manor. The Krabbies and Louise were on an escorted tour through the south and over to Nassua a few years ago, and enjoyed re-living some of their experiences.

Other recent visitors of Mrs. Vaughan were the Chester Moores of Clarendon. While living at Wellington Mrs. Moore and Louise were fellow officers in WSCS, attended District and Annual meetings and were also in the same Study Club.

They have kept in touch, however this is their first visit to King's Manor and they also had a quick tour and were impressed with the way of life as they saw it in Lamar Garden Room.

WESTGATE NEWS
BY BEA NOLAND

Our August birthday honorees were Sally Mays, Lola Jane Hughes, Dunk Reed, Ardis Stamper, Mary Seigler, Bonnie Wilson, Mary Campbell, Carrie Lillard and Dorothy Coombes. These residents were seated at the birthday table which was centered with a pretty birthday cake with each resident's name inscribed.

The Rainbow girls were hostesses for the party and the tables were done in pastel shades of flowers. Mrs. Wilma Bryan assisted the girls with the party.

For the program the girls sang "My Rainbow" and dedicated the song to Mrs. Joyce Lyons a past advisor of the Hereford Assembly who is now Administrator of King's Manor Methodist Home, Inc.

We are having our regular activities at Westgate - with reading of the newspaper on Monday, Wednesday and Friday's. We have missed Mrs. Miller reading for the residents, but we have welcomed several volunteer's Mrs. J.R. Stevenson, Mrs. Gladys Legg, Miss Ethel Womble and Mrs. Davidson. We appreciated these ladies helping with the reading.

Also our exercise class meets on Monday, Wednesday and Friday's, and it is just wonderful how well these ladies do. We have fifteen or more in our class and even though some are in wheelchairs they enjoy the exercise program and they do believe that a regular exercise program does help one feel better. Our lady is ninety-two enjoys the class and looks forward to the day we exercise.

Monday is sewing day. We meet in the afternoon. Mrs. Floyd Cole is most faithful to come with Mrs. Earl Harkins her co-worker. We are real busy making sock dolls and sofa pillows, and these can be seen and bought in the Activity room.

Tuesday mornings we are busy as the elves in Santa's work shop and that is what it is all about. With the help of Mrs. Lloyd Kirkeby, Mrs. L.G. Wallman we are getting some ceramics ready for Christmas gifts.

Mrs. Florence Fluit a pro in ceramics has been a great help to the other residents and even if she has had her day making ceramics we are finding her most helpful with her knowledge. Mrs. Fluit has given her kiln to Westgate which will be a great help in firing.

Another nice gift to the home has been an aquarium given by Lyle Fluit son of Florence. The residents spend some of their time watching the fish.

Our craft days have been most enjoyable and this month we have had Mrs. LeRoy Edwards, Mrs. R.L. Cocanougher and Mrs. J.J. Boyd.

At Bingo we did miss Horace and Juanita Hershey, but we did appreciate Mrs. Art Lewis, Mrs. Jack Brown, Mrs. M.H. Wise and Lyle Brown. We had several winning bananas and the grand prize winner for the afternoon was Mrs. Fay Jung.

Our faithful Paula Eubanks has only missed one Wednesday morning playing and singing in the lobby.

Our bible studies have been well attended this month and we have been privileged to have Mrs. Charles Bell, Mrs. D.F. Yandell and one our residents Mrs. Edna Lippard giving the study.

We have been honored on Friday p.m. with the talents of Mrs. Sam Long, Mrs. Nina Frances McMeans, Mrs. Ellis Coombes, and Miss Donna Kendall. These ladies have played the piano in the lobby and the residents always enjoy good music.

Our thought for the day "Christ has given us His love to share with others all we need to add is the enthusiasm".

ON THE COLORADO RIVER
They were laying bets I'd never get here.

"It's a nine-mile hike from the south rim of the Grand Canyon to the river," said my husband. "On a narrow path lousy with sharp rocks."

"I'll make it."
"The temperature in the canyon this time of year can go to 110 degrees."

"Not to worry."

"The river trip is six days on a rubber raft that crashes into rapids and covers you with water at a temperature of 50 degrees."

"So?"

"So you sleep on an Army cot with no protection from the elements."

"I'll survive."

"You bathe in the Colorado, drink it, and are sometimes nearly drowned in it."

"I'll make it."

"There are no gift shops."
"Are you serious? When do we have to let them know for sure?"

I was kidding, of course. The river had always been my goal. When my toes turned purple and I cut the holes out of my shoes, the odds went up.

When I ate three Granola bars during the first hour and lapped up every bit of water in my Canteen. They shook their heads. When I crawled into a cave with heat exhaustion and told them to go on, they gave me that "told you so" look.

I looked longingly at the Colorado River from the shade in my cave. Designed...created...decorated...by God. No mirrors. No reason to suck in your stomach. No cause to yell at the kids to turn the lights off. No electrical outlets to plug in Neil Diamond. A culturally deprived oasis with no Golden Arches, no bumper stickers and no reruns. One of the last places in civilization that time and a two-year-old could not destroy.

I summoned up the only pedestrian prayer I knew from memory: "Please God, send me a mule."

Ten minutes later, a man appeared around the bend dragging six mules with six empty backs.

As the riverboat captain said later, "You're the only person to ever descend into the canyon on foot and end up on her..."

Don't Punish Bed Wetter

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — There is no point in a parent punishing a child who is a bed wetter or rewarding such a child for staying dry at night, says a specialist in children's kidney diseases.

"Bed wetting is entirely out of the control of the bed wetter," says Dr. Bernard Gauthier, physician-in-charge of pediatric nephrology at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center. "Spanking or punishing a child will not solve the problem. Do not turn bed wetting into an emotional tug-of-war."

Dr. Gauthier says that 10 to 15 per cent of all children are still bed wetters at the age of 5. The cause of nocturnal enuresis (the medical term for the condition) "is still a matter of controversy," he explains, "although many physicians, including myself, think the problem is seldom psychological. I believe it is usually due to delayed maturation of the mechanism which controls the bladder during sleep. As the child grows older, further development of the nervous system will solve the problem."

In many children, bladder development advances enough to keep the child dry all night by the age of 2. But sometimes this point in physical maturity is not reached before the age of 8, Dr. Gauthier explains. Occasionally, the problem continues into adulthood.

Dr. Gauthier advises a medical checkup for a youngster experiencing nocturnal enuresis. Medication or other types of treatment can be prescribed to help in most cases over the age of 7. But Dr. Gauthier finds it important to work with parents to prevent bed wetting from becoming a stress situation between parent and child.

Once in a while, bed wetting can be traced to a disease condition.

Threat to Socialists threatens us all

By Don Oakley

It is a little over three years since the Socialist Workers Party (SWP) filed a $27 million damage suit against the FBI and other agencies and officers of the U.S. government. The suit charges the bureau with carrying out a systematic campaign of harassment and illegal acts against the party, ranging from poison pen letters to planting informers and provocateurs inside the party to burglary.

The case was most recently set for trial in U.S. District Court in Manhattan July 2; it is now scheduled for early next year.

One reason for the long delay is that since the suit was filed, a continuing string of revelations — many of them documented by court-ordered disclosures of the FBI's own files — have been forthcoming to support the party's allegations. Last March, for example, it was revealed that in a six-year period, FBI "black bag" experts had burglarized the SWP's New York office at least 94 times, or an average of once every three weeks.

Unbelievably, and is if enough damage had not already been done to its once proud reputation, the FBI has apparently learned nothing, changed nothing, reformed nothing.

In the latest bombshell, it has been revealed that an FBI informant named Timothy Redfearn stole documents from the Denver office of the SWP on July 7. That is, only five days after the party's suit against the FBI went to trial, the party was again the target of an FBI break-in.

The FBI says that it did not authorize the burglary and that it refused to accept the documents from Redfearn. However, it did not report the burglary to Denver police for three weeks. In the meantime, copies of the documents somehow found their way into its files, and correspondence between Denver and Washington suggests a pattern we came to know so well during Watergate — a decision to "stonewall" the whole matter.

Just a few days ago on television, FBI director Clarence Kelley stated that he had been deceived (he doesn't know who deceived him) into believing that the bureau had gotten out of the burglary business in 1966. He later found out that others had taken place as recently as 1973.

In light of the Denver affair, it would seem that somebody is still being deceived.

It might be one thing if the taxpayers were getting something for their money. But Redfearn's reports on the Denver branch of the SWP over a period of five years contain nothing but useless gossip and rumors and such data as the smoking and eating habits of party members. For this he was paid $400 a month, and despite a record of trouble with the law and of psychiatric treatment, was rated stable and dependable by the FBI.

Not only that, but in all the years that the Socialist Workers Party has been under surveillance — since 1945, according to the FBI; since it was founded in 1938, the SWP claims — neither the party nor any of its members has ever been charged with breaking any law. Would that the same could be said of the Democrats and Republicans.

To be sure, the SWP hopes to replace the nation's capitalistic system with a socialist one, and this may be disturbing, even frightening, to many Americans. But it seeks to do so through legal, electoral means. The 2,500-member party, however, has never received much more than 100,000 votes in a presidential election. That is the extent of its "threat."

The FBI admits that all this is true, but it argues that it has to keep on watching the SWP because sometime in the future, somebody belonging to it might commit a subversive act.

Perhaps we ought to rename it the Federal Bureau of Perpetual Investigation of the Socialist Workers Party.

This is not funny. It is deadly serious. In fighting to vindicate its right to exist as a legally constituted, legally behaving political party, free of official intimidation and harassment, the SWP is defending the political liberties of all Americans.

The Speaker Reports
by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN—When I met recently with the Independent Colleges and Universities of Texas I asked them to think about an idea which could have an effect on the way we fund higher education in Texas.

It is an idea based on the philosophy that the state should help every Texas youngster secure an education through the college level.

We're attempting to school all young Texans today and the state is spending fifty cents of every state dollar to do it.

I think education is worth every dime we spend. I also think we should check every avenue to see that we're getting a dollar's worth for every dollar invested.

The idea I presented to the administrators of our private schools was that every Texas student, irrespective of need, deserves state support.

According to the plan, every Texas student graduating from high school would receive a voucher good for use against educational costs in any accredited public or independent institution in the state to which he or she had been accepted.

If it were a public institution the school would be credited by the state for the established amount of the voucher. Additional funds for operation of the school to support each student would come from appropriated monies as we do today. However, if the student did not come to the school the school would not receive that amount of voucher funds.

In the case of independent universities, the voucher could be applied against cost of tuition.

What this still nebulous idea would mean is that the state would provide basic tuition for every Texas student in independent schools.

Not included in this vouchered program would be about 48,000 out-of-state students who attend Texas public universities nor about 15,000 out-of-staters who attend independent schools.

A system such as this might spark a competitiveness among schools. It might also make the schools more attuned to the needs of the students. This type of atmosphere would keep our schools from becoming stagnated, self-serving bureaucracies.

It would also have the affect of helping to preserve the continuation of private schools, take the pressure of student loads off the public universities and help strengthen our dual system of higher education without adding additional cost to the state.

This is not an iron-clad proposal which I advocate, but is an idea in which educators can hopefully find some ground for comment that will spark other ideas.

I think that a thoughtfully conceived and refined program could legitimately and intelligently serve the public and independent purposes; give Texas students broad educational choices and save the taxpayers of Texas substantial monies by fully employing the resources of our complete system of higher education.

STALLED

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — About 25 motorists discovered during rush-hour traffic recently that water and gasoline don't mix.

The motorists were stranded when their engines conked out within a mile of the station where they had bought gas.

Apparently water had leaked into one of the station's underground gas tanks when a new shipment was unloaded during a heavy rain a few days earlier.

The stranded cars were towed to nearby service stations where their gasoline tanks were drained and engines flushed.

A spokesman for the water gas station said customers were reimbursed for their expenses.

RECIPE

By Sarah Anne Sheridan

Sponge cake appeals to most appetites when it's topped with fresh fruits and whipped cream. Since the strawberry season is near, and sponge cake (layer or individual) can be frozen--this is a good time to stock your freezer--you can be ready for a quick dessert at a moments notice.

To bake perfect sponge cakes the following steps should be used:

1. Measure all ingredients. Sift sugar through a fine sifter one to four times before measuring, then sift four times.
2. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry, and beat in gradually 1 tablespoon sugar for each egg white (out of sugar called for in recipe) and set aside.
3. Beat egg yolks with same beater until thick and lemon colored. Beat in remaining sugar.
4. Combine yolks and whites.
5. Mix remaining dry ingredients and cut and fold into egg mixture. Do not beat after adding flour.
6. Do not grease pan.

Sponge Cake

- 1 c flour
- 1/4 t salt
- Grated rind of 1/2 lemon
- 1 1/2 T lemon juice
- 1 c sugar
- 5 eggs

Mix as directed. Bake in tube pan in an oven 325 degrees for an hour. If in layer cake pans or individual tins, bake 25 to 30 minutes in an oven 350 degrees.

Chocolate Sponge Cake

Use sponge cake recipe, but substitute 3/4 cup flour and 1/4 cup cocoa for each cup of flour.

Just One More Chance

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you save some additional teenage lives and print that moving column again? I refer to the one entitled "How It Would Be if I Were Killed in an Automobile Accident." Thank you...Eileen From Scranton Times.

DEAR EILEEN: I've had several requests to rerun that column and I do so today in the hope that every teenager who sees it will put himself in the place of the person who wrote it. Thank you for asking...Ann Landers.

Agony claws my mind, I am a statistic. When I first got here I felt very much alone. I was overwhelmed with grief and I expected to find sympathy. I found no sympathy. I saw only thousands of others whose bodies were as badly mangled as mine. I was given a number and placed in a category. The category was called "Traffic Fatalities."

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheedled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded. "All the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang I threw my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot-- excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off--going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard a deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened. It was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything. Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I'm supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes--he is our son." The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please--somebody-- wake me up! Get me out of here. I can't bear to see my mom and dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can barely walk. My brother and sister are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze. Everybody. No one can believe this. And I can't believe it either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance. Please, God, I'm only 17.

Malloy got the chance to play a clown when he made a successful bid on a clown-for-a-day job offered in a fund-raising campaign on local television.

"It was just something I thought I'd like to do," said the 41-year-old bachelor. "There was no special reason."

Malloy went all out for his night in the spotlight. He received six free tickets for the circus, but bought 27 more, spending a total of $142. And that's in addition to $95 he paid for the bid.

A miscellaneous bridal shower was given for Melinda Johnson, December 31 bride-elect of Wes Owen Jr., Friday morning at Hereford Country Club. Miss Johnson and her fiancé will exchange wedding vows at Lakeside Baptist Church at Dallas.

HERE'S SOME TIMELY TIPS FOR YOU!

For the best-ever grilled hamburgers this summer--add oats to your ground beef. The oats hold in yummy meat juices. Combine 1-1/2 cups ground beef, 1/4 cup quick or old fashioned oats, 1/4 cup chopped onion, 1-1/2 teaspoons salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup tomato juice and 1 egg. Form 8 patties and grill. Makes 8 patties.

In the market for a quick 'n easy summer dessert or bake sale idea? Melt together 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1/4 lb. (about 2-1/4 cups miniature) marshmallows and one 6-oz. pkg. butterscotch pieces in top of double boiler over boiling water. Blend in 1 teaspoon vanilla. Remove from heat and stir in 1-1/2 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked, and 1/2 cup coconut. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper. Press pecan half on top of each cookie. Refrigerate. Makes 2 dozen.

A super crunchy topping for sprinkling on summer ice cream desserts and pudding can be made by combining 3 cups quick or old fashioned oats, 1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar, 1/2 cup melted butter or margarine, and a small can of peanuts chopped, in a shallow baking pan. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool and toss with a fork. Store in a covered jar in the refrigerator.

Planning a fishing trip? Take along complete pancake mix for breadng those freshly caught fish.

For a quick and easy summer dessert, prepare frozen waffles in toaster or oven according to package directions. Top with butter pecan ice cream and warm chocolate sauce.

Presented by Hereford Board of Realtors
Jesse Coker, President

Continuing education is the key to staying "on top" of what is happening around you. Regardless of how many courses you expose yourself to relating to Real Estate, the real estate sales person will find he or she will always learn something in each one they are taught that will be helpful to them in their profession.

One must not assume that you will automatically learn everything there is to know by minimum education exposure. The human mind cannot possibly absorb everything printed in even one textbook. Therefore, the purpose of continuing education is to keep yourself learning, striving for doing better, in a more efficient way.

Hereford High School is participating in Adult Education with Amarillo College and you will find your place in one of three Real Estate courses to be offered this semester.

The courses are as follows:

- (1) Real Estate Principles and Practices, taught by Dwight Turner of Hereford.
- (2) Real Estate Law and Contracts, and
- (3) Real Estate Appraising, taught by Jim Jacobs, MAI, Amarillo.

In order to support any class there must be a minimum of 16 persons must enrolled in each: I would personally urge licensed sales persons to attend. These will count as 30 hours of college credit for your license renewal. Enrollment is scheduled for 7 p.m. Aug. 24 in the Hereford High School Cafeteria.

Polly's Pointers

Save the day with hairspray

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My husband has ballpoint ink marks on his new vinyl jacket. A light application of spot remover helped somewhat, but the marks are still noticeable. I would appreciate some suggestions. —MRS.C.N.

DEAR MRS.C.N. — The American Institute of Laundering suggests hair spray and I have found it most effective on the vinyl things I have tried it on. Sometimes it will loosen immediately and start to "run" so wipe away immediately with a paper towel. If it's a bit stubborn, let spray dry and then wipe away. Also, toothpaste often works for this. —POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with manufacturers who make shag carpets. After a year they mat and there seems to be no way to make them stand up again. I wonder what others who have this problem do about it. Why are the manufacturers allowed to get away with this? I have had my carpet only two years and such carpets are not cheap. —MRS.E.V.V.

DEAR POLLY — If any work is being done on your house that requires roofing paper, keep some. Put it in the trunk of your car to have when you get stuck on a snowy road next winter. Put the paper in front of the car tires and you will get out of the snow in a jiffy. —MARY S.

DEAR POLLY — One reader wanted to know how to display a collection of antique keys. Since the keys are quite primitive, I suggest that the board on which she mounts them be covered with burlap. I have seen this done. Such a board looks very good hanging in a kitchen or family room. I also have such a collection and have mine mounted on a magnetized board that was intended to be used for kitchen knives. Small trivets are also interesting mounted this way. —GEORGIA.

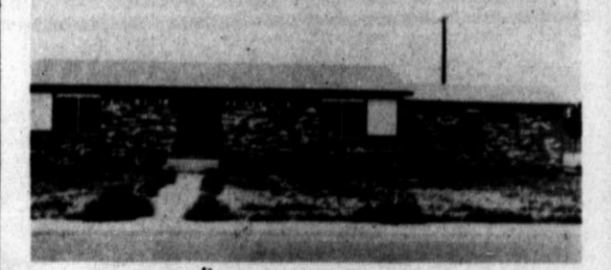

DEAR POLLY — When you are new in a neighborhood and would like to get acquainted with those living on the block, one sure way is to volunteer to collect funds for the Cancer Drive, Heart Fund, etc. Everyone may not contribute, but you will reap the benefits of meeting your new neighbors. —IRENE.

DEAR POLLY — I find that when using canned vegetables, they taste much better if the liquid is heated first and then the vegetables added. Or if the liquid is discarded entirely, saute the vegetables in butter. When sauteing in butter, I add a little vegetable oil to keep the butter from burning.

I save newspapers for the Boy Scouts and find they fit perfectly in large grocery bags when the papers are folded in the middle. These filled bags can then be stacked with no need for tying, which I cannot do very well as I have arthritis in my right hand.

I find mechanic's cream hand cleaner is great for removing grease from my husband's clothes. Work it into the fabric before laundering, let stand a couple of minutes and then wash as usual. I have used this on many different materials and none have been damaged so far. Buy this cleaner in the automotive parts department in stores. —MRS.J.S.
