Martinez Scores Three Touchdowns

Herd 'Upsets' Pampa, 20-12

Tailback Roy Martinez quickly made a lot of people forget that one Carlee Graves was absent Friday night as he erupted for the three first-half touchdowns to lead the Hereford Whitefaces past Pampa 20-12.

Martinez, who was not even scheduled to start the game until Graves was suspended for disciplinary reasons, led Herd rushers in the game with 79 yards on 21 carries, and added 26 more markers through the air on two catches.

Mistakes played a big part in the contest, with the losers seeing three fumbles recovered by the Herd. The third loose ball covered by Hereford came when the Harvesters were on the verge of scoring the possible tying points.

Trailing 20-12 in the third period, Pampa took advantage of an intercepted Kelly Kitchens pass on their own 43 to march down to the Herd five with seconds remaining in the Burl Miller saved the day for Hereford at that point as he fell on a David Caldwell fumble to halt the threat with five seconds left on the clock.

Five ticks later the teams changed ends of the field and the Herd got a suddenly-brisk wind at their back. Quarterback Kitchens directed the team toting the ball eight times on the

No points were flashed on theboard as a result of the drive. but more importantly the Whitefaces ate up over eight minutes on the clock, and forced Pampa to take over deep in their territory after a punt to the end

Hereford coach Fred Upshaw saw that fourth-period drive as one of the major factors in the game. "As we said earlier this week, we felt that ball control would be the key to the game,"

In the end Upshaw emerged almost prophetic as the Herd wound up with a big margin in time of possession. Hereford controled the ball for 30 minutes and 23 seconds while Pampa had the ball for only 17 minutes and 37 seconds. .

Another key to the Hereford victory was the way several young players came through when the pressure was on, Upshaw indicated.

"We had several players who hadn't played very much, if any, varsity football who came through and played well for us," the coach said.

Upshaw said that sophomore Paul Bell, junior James McDowell, and senior Robert Schumacher were all "pleasant surprises" in the game. Bell gave added punch to the offense, gaining 21 yards on ten carries. McDoweli led the Herd down the field with Martinez receivers with 33 yards on three catches, and made an important interception on defense, and Schumacher filled in at free safety, coming up with one of the three Hereford fumble recoveries.

Martinez, of course, made the biggest impression on the spectators at the game, and Upshaw praised the speedy senior for his play.

Roy had just an excellent game. We knew he had the ability and we feel like now he knows he can do it himself...he came in and did a fine job," the coach said.

Two of Martinez's scores came on the ground. He gave the Herd a 6-0 lead in the first quarter on a seven-yard plunge up the middle, and scored for the third time on another burst up the middle, this time for four vards as he increased the Herd led to 20-6 just before the half.

Between those runs Kitchens found Martinez in the left corner of the end zone with 8:23 left in the second period on a 14-yard pass that was nearly intercepted. The play came after the Harvesters had knotted the score at 6-6.

Another pleasant surprise for Hereford Friday was a solid performance turned in by the defensive secondary as a whole. The secondary had been one of several question marks as the Herd headed into the '76

THE LABOR DAY weekend will serve as a last-chance holiday spree for some folks before the busy fall season gets a full head of steam. Many offices and some stores will be closed Monday, but there will still be some retail businesses open on Labor Day. The Brand office will be closed Monday, even though some of our staff will be getting ready for Tuesday's edition.

AT THE NEW TEACHER Banquet here Thursday night, speaker Wayne Thomas told newcomers that Hereford was a "most unique" community and the big difference was attitude. It's a feeling of pride, an urgency in getting things done, and positive thinking he said.

Well, that attitude is reflected in our youth, too! The hustlin's Herd radiated that spirit Friday night as they captured an exciting 20-12 win over the big. strong Pampa Harvesters. Coach Fred Upshaw has said that a strong point of this year's team is its togetherness, and they put on a great team effort in the opening victory. And, how about our Big Maroon Band from Herefordland? It must have been one of the best opening game performances by an HHS Band in history. and we include the twirlers and drill team in that statement.

TWO IMPORTANT membership drives--affecting all ages in the mmunity--are coming up next week. The Community Concert Association starts its annual membership campaign Sept. 7. and information on this fine program can be found on Page 1B of

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA Inc. will launch its first annual membership drive with a roundup on Sept. 11 at the Hereford Community Center.

It will be the first activity of the YMCA Membership Roundup Week, being held from Sept. 11-18. Mayor Jim Sears proclaimed the week as such with a document signing Friday afternoon at First National Bank of Hereford.

Robert Mayfield, vice president of the YMCA Board of Directors, and Claude Huard, the Y executive director, represented the organization along with other public officials present. They included Deaf Smith County Judge Sam Morgan, School board secretary James Gentry, and Jim McDowell, vice president of the Deaf Smith Chamber of

Members of the Y are entitled to discounted rates in league competition Registration fees are charged for separate league activities when the are organized. At present, plans call for the following youth league sports: flag football, floor hockey, basketball and volleyball. Adult leagues consist of various sports including volleyball and

Other youth-oriented activities consist of the ping-pong, pool and other indoor game at the First Baptist Church game room and volleyball, basketball and

Adult activities organized so far are volleyball and basketball for men and women separately with special nights for married couples and single couples.

The membership Roundup will be each year at about the same time to renew old ones and sign up new prospects. However, individuals and families may join the Y at any time during the year.

The memberships are separated into three catagories. Youth, ages 8-years-old to 18-years-old may sign up for a year at a cost of $12 each and adults may register for a $24 annual membership. A complete family may purchase a $50 membership.

Accident Victim Is Released

Marilyn Schuette, 23, of Canyon, who was critically injured in a car-truck collision northeast of Hereford Tuesday was released from St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo Friday morning.

Pampa Upset

"If there was one big overall bright spot in the game, it was the way the secondary played,' Upshaw said. "They all reacted to the ball well, and combined with the front line to get tough when it counted."

Two of those times were the fumble recovery by Miller, and the interception by McDowell, which came with just over two minutes left in the contest at the Pampa 22 yard-line.

Another bright spot for the Herd was the control of the line of scrimmage by the offensive line, Upshaw said. "Some of these kids you don't hear a whole lot about, but they just stick in there and do the job for us," he said.

Upshaw reported that as far as the team knew Saturday morning no serious injuries occurred in the game. Linebacker Rick Taylor did sustain a mild shoulder separation in the first quarter, but he returned to action later in the game after having it put back in place in the dressing room, and receiving approval from the team doctor. Game statistics saw Kitchens the Herd's second-leading rusher with 36 yards on 13 carries, with Russell Harkins adding 35 yards on 10 totes, and Bell scampering for 21 yards on ten tries.

Rowen Alexander was the only receiver other than McDowell and Martinez to snag a pass, as he picked up ten yards during a second-period

Moore led Pampa rushers with 81 yards on 11 carries, while Caldwell added 33 yards on ten carries.

Hereford will meet Palo Duro next Thursday night in Amarillo as they try to grab their second win of the seaon. The Dons fought to a 7-7 tie with Dumas Friday night in their season opener.

Homer Gives Astros Win Over Dodgers

HOUSTON (AP) - Bob Watson's three-run homer sparked a five-run Houston rally in the third inning and Joaquin Andujar tossed a two-hitter as the Astros defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2 Saturday.

Andujar, 8-9, hurled his eighth complete game of the season as the Astros posted their eighth victory in their past nine games. The loss snapped a five-game Dodgers winning

Tigers Beat Brewers, 4-0

DETROIT (AP) - Alex Johnson drove in two rups and Vern Ruhle pitched his first shutout of the season Saturday as the Detroit Tigers blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 4-0.

Ruhle, completing only his fifth game in 29 starts, scattered seven hits to raise his record to 9-10. Brewers ace Bill Travers, 15-12, took the loss.

Detroit scored twice in the opening inning when Ron LeFlore led off with a walk, stole second, took third on a ground out and scored on a single by Willie Horton. Johnson doubled Horton home.

LeFlore's speed led to a Tigers run in the third. He led off with a single and stole second for his 53rd stolen base of the season, then reached third when catcher Darrell Porter's throw was high at victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Steve Renko, 7-7, defeated the Cardinals for the third time this season, is 6-0 against them over the past two seasons and holds an 11-6 lifetime edge over St. Louis.

Cardenal started the Cubs rolling to their 11th victory in 15 games against St. Louis with a double in the fourth. Joe Wallis tripled Cardenal home and scored on Don Kessinger's relay error.

Cardenal opened the sixth with a double, took third on a fly to right and scored on Manny Trillo's sacrifice fly.

Renko, who left in the seventh for a pinch batter, was aided by Chicago's defense in the early innings when the Cubs cut down two runners at home.

National Championship On Line For 2 Racers

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) -Please forgive Johnny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock today if they have their minds on something besides winning the $314,000 California 500, the third jewel in Indianapolis racing's Triple Crown.

Only 250 points separate the two veteran drivers in the quest for something neither has won previously, but both want badly the national championship.

Rutherford sits atop the standings with 2,990 points. with Johncock at 2,740. Al Unser, the 1970 champion, is a threat in third at 2,440.

One thousand points go to the winner of Sunday's seventh Cannual Cal 500, and a victory by either of those top two, coupled with a poor finish by the others. could lock up the national title. Points are awarded on a descending basis through only than fifth.

The first 12 positions.

"But that was at Pocono. We didn't get any points there and "I want to be a national champion," he added bluntly. "I've finished second twice and third once, and I'm tired of Rutherford also leads the Triple Crown points-the best finishes at the Indianapolis and Mt. Pocono, Pa., 500-milers. He won Indianapolis for his second career victory there and finished fourth at Pocono.

Johncock, meanwhile, has stacked up his points with a series of consistent finishes. In only one of nine Indy car races this year has he finished worse that hurt," said Johncock, the 1973 Indy winner. "You can't afford to drop out of the 500-miles because that's where all the points are."

In the final three races of the season after Ontario, only a total of 1,000 points are possible. So a victory Sunday would be like winning all three of those.

"Whoever wins the championship this year is going to get a lot more money than in past years," said Dick King, U.S. Auto Club executive director. 'It should be worth at least $50,000 in prize money outright. not to mention sponsor and endorsement cash.

ROYALS vs. PHILLIES NEW YORK (AP) - If the first-half major league standings reflect the best tearns, the 1976 World Series could find the Kansas City Royals facing the Philadelphia Phillies.

At the All-Star break, Kansas City had the best record in the American League, 51-31, while leading the AL West. The New York Yankees were best in the East with 50-31. Those tearns would meet in a best three-offive playoff.

Yankee manager Billy Martin In the National League, the "the best manager in base-Phillies led the East with 56-25, pacing Pittsburgh by 10 games. In the NL West, Cincinnati's Reds led with a 53-33 record. "I've been watching Martin manage since he began in 1968 with Denver when I played Kansas City has never been with Portland in the Pacific in a playoff or World Series. The Phils last got into the Series in 1950 and lost four straight to the Yankees.

TEENS AND GUNS

TEENS AND GUNS

TV and parental indifference have created a generation of "gun ignoramuses." There are plenty of young people whose gun-handling habits are faulities. But proportionately, too many teenage hunters are a menace—to themselves and to their companions. Statistics bear this out.

GUN CARELESSNESS isn't a youth "exclusive." Many adults, especially those who drink heavily in camp and afield, cause even more "accidents." These people are mostly beyond appeal. But kids sometimes listen. You can help, by sounding off when you see these common, shudder provoking practices—Youngsters walking closeabreast through thick cover, muzzles pointing to the side, safeties "off." for a possible quick-shot. They often stand and talk, guns at waist-level, trained on the other's mid section. They'll use a loaded gun to pull a buddy across a creek; to bludgeon a crippled third; to depress barbed-wire when others are in front of the barrel. Their confidence in safeties is unbounded. Safeties are often unreliable and can be jarred-off by a slight jolt. The gun fires, bringing instant tragedy! It happens too often.

ONE CAN'T REALLY blame the young people. Through constant exposure to TV's make believe violence, gun reality and fantasy blurred long ago. The youngster's first shootable, generally a BB gun, completes the desensifizing Because of the arm's low power, parental supervision is slight. Junior pops away at everything, including the neighbor kid's britches. His gun, he discover's, isn't much more than a toy.

When the time comes for a real gun, the damage is done. His respect is nil, his handling habits awful. What can you do? When you see a youngster violating the rules, let him know about it. Tactfully Compliment those who are careful. Whenever possible, make your remarks in front of his buddies!

IF YOU HAVE CHIL. den, don't let them fire a round, even a BB, except under supervision. Come down hard on any safety infraction. Drive home the fact that guns demand respect. It's easier to make this point when your novice starts with a 22 rifle: "THE GUNSHOP

What hath red tape wrought?

By Don Oakley

What's sauce for the goose (the ordinary citizen) ought to be sauce for the gander (the federal government). It doesn't seem to work that way, though.

The city of Midland, Texas, like many others, knows what it shke to wade through the maze of red tape that ensnarls federal agencies. When the Dallas office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HUD) asked the city for a reserved parking space at its airport, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. saw an opportunity to serve the bureaucrats some of their

In a lengthy letter to HUD, his honor replied that he would be happy to process a proper application, "but a simple request by telephone or letter just won't do at all. In order to justify as many public employes as possible and to make things as difficult as possible for anyone trying to do business with the City of Midland, we have adopted a few regulations and guidelines with which you must comply:

You must submit three executed and 14 confirmed copies of this application, which we will then distribute to our Department of Aviation, Fire and Police Departments, the Public Works Department, the City Attorney's office and anyone else we can think of:

2 Submit the make and model of the proposed vehicle, together with certified assurances that everyone connected with the manufacture, servicing and operation of same were paid according to a wage scale that complies with the requirements of the Davis-Bacon Act. 3 Submit a genealogical table for everyone who will operate said vehicle so that we can ascertain that there will be a precisely equal percentage of whites, blacks and other miporities, as well as women and the elderly.

"A Submit certified assurances that this plan has been discussed at length with the EEOC (Equal Employment Opportunity Commission) and submit that commission) tunity Commission) and submit that commission's certification that requirement 3 above has been complied with. Submit certified assurances that all operators of said vehicle and any filling station personnel that service same will be equipped with steel-toed shoes, safety goggles and crash heline's and that the vehicle will be equipped with at least safety belts and an air bag to show compliance with the Occupational Safety and Health Act. & Submit an Environmental Impact Statement (showing) the number of times the vehicle will be operated, times of day, the name of the operator of the vehicle; the number of other vehicles that might be coming into or leaving the parking lot at the same time, as well as the number and type of aircraft that might be landing or taking off at the airport at the same time and an exact conclusion as to the effect this will have on the atmosphere in West Texas.' There was more, but by this time it should have been obvious that the mayor was just giving his funnybone (and his frustrations) a good workout. To make sure, however, he added in a postscript that the city would, of course, be delighted to authorize a place for a HUD vehicle in its airport parking lot. That was last October. So far, nothing further has been heard from HUD on the matter. I was a little disappointed," says Mayor Angelo, "at their lack of a sense of humor.' Could be, however, that the reason for HUD's failure to respond is because its legion of paper-pushers has been going bananas trying to assemble the documentation the mayor re-

One hopes so. It would mean they have that much less time to bother the rest of us.

Prisons no place for le difference?

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. - (NEA) - Who says prisons aren't any fun? Female guards at the federal medical lockup here are now permitted to ask male inmates to drop their pants whenever the occasion becomes necessary. Officially, the occasion is a strip search, but to the men it is plain peek-a-boo and the prisoner-patients haven't had such jollies since somebody put holes in the bedpans.

Not everyone is delighted with the situation, though. After being stripped outside the visitors' facilities recently, two convicts decided it was not as much sexy as undignified - and they filed an administrative complaint concerning invasion of their privacies. "I don't mind it myself," said one killjoy, reportedly, "but my fiance does."

Hence a controversy is born that has implications regarding a wide spectrum of social attitudes and legal complexities. For example: if women guards can undress men in this prison, can male guards do the same to women in another? So far as the law and the U.S. government are concerned, the answer is

It boggles the mind. Not surprisingly, the issue has its roots in the equal rights movement. Traditionally an all-male prison, with all-male guards, the Springfield institution yielded last January to the forces that insist women must be everything men must be. Three women were hired to be correction officers. They were advised they would not be used as window dressing, but as hacks: they would have to perform all the duties of their male counterparts, however risky or embarrassing.

Since then the women have served nobly, and with fitting curiosity. They make security checks in cells where men often lounge in the nude. They walk in on the inmates at their toilette. They keep an eye on the showers, on the urinals, even on the secret corners where some prisoners go for sexual

The women have said that their responsibilities are not all that thrilling. One hints that boney knees behind bars can be an esthetic affront; besides, they allegedly regard themselves in the same category as nurses when it comes to the sights. They've even told the Springfield Leader and Press that "We're not there to look at their bodies in a sexual sense." Prison officials echo this response, saying that "strict propriety" is observed, and no touching takes place.

As for the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, which regulates Springfield and 33 other tederal jails, the peek a boo practice is fully, if not wholeheartedly, sanctioned. "If a woman is to be a guard," says a bureau official with a sigh, "she can't have special exemptions." The official says that technically the same rules apply for male guards in an all-female prison: If a strip is necessary, men have that right.

In common practice, of course, male guards are not stripping women in U.S. prisons. Warden Carson Markley of the all-female institution in Alderson, W.Va., says his male officers perform perimeter duty only. "And that's the way it should be." the warden insists; women in prison feel dehumanized enough without having to wonder if a man is watching every time they go to the lavatory.

The same goes for men in prison, say the complainants here at Springfield. And they are correct. The rights of women seeking employment should not supersede the inmates' rights to a measure of dignity. Not that the boys' are prudes, but neither are they simply objects. Pride is often the last refuge for a prisoner, and for many it can't be maintained around for a prisoner, and for many it can't be maintained around woman cops who can order trousers removed. If she takes her's off, maybe; otherwise it is not a fair deal.

Besides, and thank God for green apples, the difference in the sexes cannot be so casually treated, especially not in prison. The women guards are fine, more power to them, may they one day grow hair on their shoulders if that be the wish. But behind the badges they are, according to legend, quite different from the men. If in the search for equality we reach a point where we can, without feeling, undress with one another, we won't need prisons, only cemeteries.

You And Five Acres

Whether you know it or not, you've got a big stake in five acres of land. You don't own it nor pay taxes on it, but changes are — if you realized how vital it is to your well-being — you'd be doing everything you can to see that fellow who's taking care of it for you gets the right kind of encouragement. That five acres is the amount of farmland each one of us depends on for most of the food we eat, a lot of the clothes we wear, and much of the lumber that goes into the roof over our heads.

It's the farmer, of course, who takes care of that five acres and sees that it produces the food, fiber and forestry products each of us needs. To do this requires the farmer's hard work, know-how, and an investment of $2,294, in those five average acres. Last year, as an average consumer, you paid him $427.54 for doing this. Three-fourths of what you paid him went for production expenses. That left him $74.37 less than 31/2 percent return on his investment - and he threw in his own labor.

Fortunately, your farmer friend out there has been increasing his efficiency at rapid pace. Fifty years ago, it took an average 10 acres of cropland to meet your

Today, on just five acres, he can produce about three times as much wheat as you can eat, twice as much rice, about 40 percent more cotton and soybeans than you can use, and a fourth more feed grains than it takes to feed the livestock and poultry which produce your meat, milk, and

Since you can't use all the food, feed and fiber raised by your farmer friend on those five acres, he looks for an export market overseas. If he finds it, he can increase his production and spread his costs over more acres. If he doesn't, then he has to cut back his production and this means his cost of producing a bushel or a bale of your food or fiber goes up. As this happens, the farmer's incentive to stay in the business of producing your food and fiber just naturally goes down.

That's why each of us needs to be concerned about whether the farmer taking the risk on our five acres of land is going to be able to maintain the fertility of his soil and invest in the mechanization and new techniques necessary to maintaining our supply of food, fiber, and forestry products.

He's doing a good job of it now but as population grows and demand increases, we're going to have to share part of that five acres with other people. Somehow we are going to have to find ways to make our farm acreage even more productive than it is now.

Seeing that the farmer has the equipment, supplies, know-how, and incentive to do the job is where you come in.

Getting involved on the side of the farmer on public issues that affect his ability to produce efficiently and profitably isn't meddling. It's minding your own

Talk of Texas

By Jack Maguire

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY- Stephen F. Austin, who brought the first colonists to Texas, also authored the first book published here.

Like all good writers, Austin wrote on the subject he knew best. Since he was primarily a real estate developer, his 70-page paperback was titled "Translation of the Laws, Orders and Contracts on Colonization."

It was published in 1829. Godwin B. Cotton cranked it out on a hand press that had just been installed in the newspaper plant of the Texas Gazette at San Felipe. Cotton must have thought the book was very important; he had to suspend publishing his newspaper for three months in order to get Austin's tome printed.

According to Al Lowman in his classic "Printing Arts in Texas," Austin didn't become a best-selling author. Not many bought the book at $1.50 per copy. By 1836, however, it already had become a collector's item and was going at $5 per copy.

Serious book collectors today will pay 100 times that for a copy.

TEXAS BRAG - Several years ago, the Denton Chamber of Commerce bought an ad in Fortune Magazine which proclaimed:

"The last time you experienced anything like Denton, Texas... you probably asked her to marry you!"

THE CHANGING TIMES- During World War II, Pyote Air Force Base on the flat, wind-swept plains between Monahans and Pecos was a kind of "West Point of the Air."

There thousands of pilots, bombadiers and navigators earned their "wings."

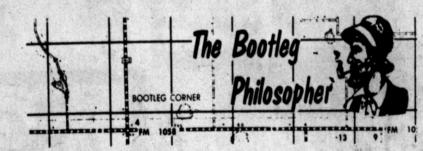

Then almost as swiftly as it was built, it was abandoned. The old buildings, however, remained. For more than 30 years, hail storms pounded some of them into skeletons. Others sagged into rubble. Weeds took over the runways. The few brick buildings that remained useable were leased as warehouses.

Now The University of Texas, owner of the land, has decided to demolish most of what's left of Pyote. When the demolition crews are through, it will look as if it had been attacked by the bomber crews who trained there and finis will have been written to a small chapter in Texas history.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?- Gladewater, Gregg-Upshur County, was first called St. Clair.

In the early days, a local physician, Dr. Albert Hoffman, also ran a general store which included a bar. The good doctor dispensed his whiskey from kegs kept in the store. He was known to dilute the product a bit by adding water from nearby Glade Creek.

"Gladewater" became such a well-known drink that the citizens began calling their community by that name. It struck.

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg Corner has some unsolicited advice for the Presidential Right off the bat, I've noticed that both candidates, Ford and Carter, have made the same mistake. They've each hired economists to help them with their speeches.

As best I can tell, economists seem to be several notches below weathermen in accuracy. A weatherman, while not very dependable on what's going to happen tomorrow, is almost always right on what happened yesterday. An economist is vague in both directions.

What got me started on this was an article I read in a national magazine, written by one of the foremost economists in the country. He has figured out how inflation is a good thing for a homeowner . According to him, "almost every homeowner has seen the market value of his house go up, and his mortgage-even neglecting payments on the principal-- decline as a fraction of the value of the house. Inflation has been paying off his debt and increasing his equity."

I have a notion that everybody whoowes on his home would like to do business with this economist, if he has money to lend. Letting inflation pay off your mortgage is the best idea since a colony of drop-outs tried to make a living by taking in each other's laundry. You have to take this idea and turn it around in your hands and hold it up to the light to see why Ford and Carter ought to check up on their economists. Sure, if your house cost say $30,000 and inflation has pushed the price of it up to $40,000, you're $10,000 ahead, only you still owe most of the $30,000 mortgage and your loan company officer will look at you over the top of his glasses if you tell him you've decided to let inflation pay off the balance. The only way you can profit by inflation is to sell your $30,000 home for $40,000, hold the money a few days while you stay in a motel, then buy another $30,000 home which will now cost you $45,000.

Inflation is wonderful, and all you have to do to make it work is to get everybody to sell his home every six months. The last one to sell is a rotten

Indictments Returned Against | Dwyer To Appear Six Involved In Credit Fraud

LOS ANGELES (AP)- With the aid of a file clerk, six men sought out persons with poor credit records and for fees of up to $1,500 improved their credit reports in the computer banks of the country's largest consumer credit bureau, according to a federal indictment.

The credit records were kept. in the computers of TRW Credit Data in Anaheim, Calif. The company maintains credit files on about 50 million Americans living in 20 cities across the country. The files are used by banks, credit card companies and other businesses seeking information concerning the credit worthiness of customers.

Authorities said the alleged scheme may have produced millions of dollars in unpaid bills and caused untolder legal problems for firms that rely on credit information.

The six men were charged with conspiracy in the indictment returned Thursday by a were charged with at least one count of making false loan application statements.

A TRW Credit Data file clerk. Kathlen Bennett, was named as an unidicted coconspirator. Federal authorities said she is to testify as a government witness.

According to the indictment, Miss Bennett was paid $50 each time she improved the computerized credit records of people solicited by the ring. This allegedly was done by deleting bad payment records, information about bankruptcies and other unfavorable material. In some cases, material indicating a good credit history was inserted in the computerized files, authorities said. The indictment listed 26 persons who paid between $300 and $1,500 to have their credit records altered this way, but authorities said as many as 150 persons may have paid for such falsifications between August 1974 and March 1975. With their improved credit records, they obtained bank loans, credit cards and credit at retail stores, authorities said, and many of them subsequently defaulted on payments.

FBI agents uncovered the alleged plot and broke up the ring 18 months ago. It took the FBI, a Justice Department Organized Crime Strike Force and the U.S. Attorney's office federal grand jury. All six also nearly 11/2 years to obtain the evidence needed to present the case to a grand jury.

Charged in a seven- count indictment were Philip Kostoff. 31, the alleged ringleader; his brother Paul Kostoff, 35; Ronald C. Rossi, 41; John R. Dubos, 41; Kenneth L. Stevenson, 39; and Sean Shanahan, 35. All live in Orange County, near Los Angeles, where Anaheim is located.

The indictment alleged that Philip Kostoff hired the other defendants to locate persons who wanted their credit ratings improved and also recruited Miss Bennett to carry out the Authorities said TRW Data Credit, a division of Clevelandbased TRW Inc. cooperated in the investigation and is taking steps to tighten its security.

Arraignment is scheduled next week. Conviction on the conspiracy count carries a penalty of up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Each county of making a false loan application statement could draw a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $5,000

In Dinner Play

Participating in one professional play would be the highlight for any aspiring actor. But Archie Dwyer, who lives on South Main Street, is starting to make a hobby of acting in professional plays even though he does so as a passtime with no specific ambitions for professional status.

He has been offered his second professional role this summer as John Wilson, the janitor in the County Squire Dinner Theatre's "Natalie Needs A Nightie," which premieres in Amarillo, Tuesday, Sept. 7. It is located in the Hilton Inn at the intersection of Interstate-40 and Lakeside Dr.

His first play was a leading part in the "Sunshine Boys," which was performed in connection with the Amarillo Little Theatre.

Dwyer, an employe with Armour Foods Co., received the part after an actor from California was unable to appear. He will perform the role during the complete scheduled run of the play through Oct. 2.

A special Hereford night is being sponsored at the theatre by the Hereford First United Methodist Church Senior MYF group. The members are selling tickets for the Sept. 23 performance in exchange for part of the proceeds which go toward their program of activity.

The organization has 250 tickets available at $10 each. This covers the meal and play. The money over the regular price benefits the MYF.

Usually, the complete evening package costs are $8.50 for Tuesday through Thursday performances, $9.50 for weekend nights and $7.50 for premiere night.

"Natalie Needs A Nightie," by Neil and Caroline Shaffner, centers around a bachelor named Tommy Briggs and a female writer in another apartment in the building who writes under the same pen name. Add to this complication the bachelor's boss who insists that all his young executives be married, and the mixups which occur provide of light entertainment and laughter.

Looking over the Community Concert Association's membership rolls are from left, Barbara Allen, Bill Allen, treasurer, and Lee Alston, secretary. A target for the current campaign is a total CCA enrollment of 1,000 members.

At right, Mrs. Bill Walden, membership drive chairman, and Virginia Holmes, co-chairman, display one of the concert posters. The second CCA concert in Hereford will feature The Texas Boys Choir of Fort Worth.

CCA Circuit Promises Entertainment

Hereford Community Concert Association has revealed the three feature attractions which will be performed here for CCA members, who will also be welcome at entertainment in Lubbock, Canyon and Clovis, N.M.

The announcement serves to promote the CCA's annual membership drive; which is scheduled Sept. 7-11. New members for the 1976-77 season will be enrolled only during the upcoming five days.

Appearing on the Hereford High School stage for the concert membership will be the jazz pianist Earl Rose on Saturday, Jan. 29. On Monday, Feb. 14, the impressive Texas Boys Choir will come to town for the CCA spotlight. Rounding out the roster of local concerts will be an all-stops-out presentation of "The Music Man" as performed by the Young Americans on Friday,

May 6.

THIS YEAR's campaign headquarters are located a Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office and will be staffed by Lee Alston, secretary;

Mrs. Bill Walden, membership chairman; Virginia Holmes, membership co-chairman; and other volunteer workers.

Membership headquarters will be open from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. each day, starting Tuesday. CCA fees, which pay admission to 13 different performances, are: $12 for adults, $5 for students and $32 for family memberships, including two adults with two or more

Miss Robbins Is Bride In Morning Ceremony

Miss Genie Robbins of Follett and Alan Burkhalter of Dalhart exchanged nuptial vows Saturday morning during a candlelight ceremony in First Christian Performing the service was the Rev. Gregg Hagg, pastor of Grace Chapel Bible Church at Lubbock.

A graduate of Texas Tech University, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Robbins, Route 2. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Burkhalter of Dalhart Blanketing the Communion table was a European arrangement of talisman roses, camellia foliage and gypsophylia. Serving as background for the altar were tiers of woodwardian palm branches, all flanked by antique baroque candlesticks of brass and white onvx.

Mrs. Gene Duval of Amarillo was in attendance to serve as her sister's matron of honor. Best man was Alex Burkhalter of Dalhart, brother of the bridegroom.

Also appearing in the processional were these bridesmaids: Miss Patti Robbins of Lubbock, the bride's sister, Miss April Burkhalter of Dalhart, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Jana Stubblefield of Breckenbridge, Tx.

Groomsmen included Mike Krenz of San Antonio, Steve Estil of Arlington and Roy Booth and Richard Gauthier, both of

The flower girl, Robin Duvall, was accompanied down the aisle by Randy Robbins, who served as ring bearer. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Duvall and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Robbins, respectively.

For the musical portion of the wedding, Mrs. Joe Hacker provided accompaniment for Mrs. James Caddenhead, who vocalized "God, A Woman and A Man" and "Savior, Like A Shepherd Lead Us."

The gown was patterned with high neckline and gathered yoke. Sweeping from the fitted midriff, the full skirt formed a chapel train.

Matching her bridal ensemble was a jersey headpiece garnished with lace and pearls which held her elbow-length veil of illusion. The brunette bride carried a cascading bouquet of white lilies.

Clasping a cluster of daisies, each bridal attendant wore a floor-length gown of coral bridal satin, fashioned with mandrian collar and gathered, elbowlength sleeves.

Wedding guests were welcomed after the service by the newlywed couple, who were in the church parlor. Focal point on the serving table was the threetiered wedding cake, topped by doves and encompassed by five Flanking the cake were bouquets of talisman roses and camillia leaves. Lighting the fare was a silver candelabrum dressed in leather leaf fern.

Other members of the house party included Mmes. Clark Andrews, Earl Harkins and Floyd Cole.

Following the wedding trip to Colorado, Mr. and Mrs. Burkhalter will be at home in Dalhart, where he is employed as service manager at Burkhalter Chevrolet.

The recent bride, who is a 1972 graduate of Hereford High School, was formerly the Texas Agricultural Extension Agent in Lipscomb County. Her husband attended Texas Tech University.

Noted among guests at the ceremony were the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Burkhalter of Tipton,

Fine New Novel Demands A Sequel

THE CHISHOLMS. By Evan Hunter. Harper & Row. 208 Pages. $8.95.

It's celebration time. It doesn't come very often, but now it has arrived with the appearance of "The Chisholms, one of those rare new novels that make the reader happy as he reads and sad when he has finished.

Evan Hunter, as he has shown so often in his many other books, is a very good writer, and he's at the top of his form as he tells this taut story of the Chisholm family and its search for the American dream.

There's Hadley Chisholm; his wife, Minerva; their sons, Bob-bo, Will and Gideon; and their daughters, Bonnie Sue and Annabel. They are natives of Virginia, a land that once sup-ported the family well. But now the soil has worn out. It can no longer produce the crops needed to sustain the family

Hadley is most aware of the predicament. His attachment to the land in which his ancestors are buried is powerful, but he realizes he must make a break. In early 1844, the Chisholm family, ignorant of what lies ahead but tough enough to take almost anything, sets out for California and, they hope, a better way of life.

This engrossing novel tells graphically what they found on the long journey. There was violence and death and betrayal by men who shouldn't have been trusted but were. There was also love, new life and new

As the novel ends, the Chisholms have recovered from tragedy and once again are making their way West. Which is good, since Hunter may now write a sequel, or even several of them, dealing with what happens to this proud family as it makes the long trek across a continent, and what it finds

THe least rare variety of jade is nephrite, a semi-tran-sparent mineral which occurs in a spinach-green hue as well as in grey, brown, and lavender. The main sources of nephrite are China, Siberia, New Zealand, Wyoming and Alaska.

The best quality jade comes from the mineral jadelte. This is a semitraslucent stone usually found in white, green, and white with spots of green. Grey and tones of lavender are less common. The green of jadelte may be likened to that of an emerald, and it is this shade that is often called Imperial Jade. Izu Hsl, the last Empress of China, valued jade so highly that she rejected an impressive diamond tiara offered by a favor-seeker but welcomed the visitor whose gift was a small but exquisite article made of deep green Imperial

The Chinese have long venerated jade for its beauty, toughness and attributed powers. In the royal household of China Jade was part of everyday life. Besides wearing numerous jade bracelets and rings, the empress used three-inchlong fingernall protectors, ate with jade chopsticks, and drank tea from carved jade cups on gold saucers. A bit of powered Jade was occasional-ly sprinkled in drinks to prevent decomposition of the body after death.

Jade is still as highly regarded now as It was centuries ago. It is indicative of its inherent beauty and durability that many of the pieces seen today are relics of ancient dynasties.

Preserve Now For Later Gifts

PRESERVED PICKLED BEETS-You may want to color-coordinate them for holiday gifts by using the new red-button canning lids and green plastic

Keep Winter on the Outside...

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Writer When there are beets aplenty in your garden or market, you may enjoy pickling some of them and preserving them in jars for later home use and holiday gifts. The following recipe produces pickled beets of delightful color and just the right sweet-sour flavor. For this preserving, we tried some of the new canning lids and plastic rings. These lids have red-button centers that click when the jars are properly sealed - a device that many a canner will welcome with a sense of relief. The plastic rings come in four colors: red, green, yellow and white.

PICKLED BEETS 3 pounds small whole beets, See Note below

Boiling water 34 cup sugar 2 cups distilled white cup water teaspoon whole allspice whole cloves 3-inch cinnamon stick a teaspoon ground nutries Cut off all but about 1 inch of the beet tops, but do not remove roots; scrub. Cover beets with boiling water; simmer, covered, 25 minutes. Drain. Slip roots. Into a large saucepot, turn the sugar, vinegar and the 1 cup water. Place spices in a small piece of cheesecloth; tie to form a bag. Add spice bag to saucepot. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat, cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Immediately spoon beets into hot, sterilized pint jars, leaving 34-inch head-space. Cover beets with boiling liquid, leaving 12-inch head-space. Place lids on jars and tighten rings firmly but do not force. Process 45 minutes in a boiling-water bath. Makes 2

Here's Authentic Chinese Cooking

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

A talented and dedicated teacher of Chinese cuisine is determined to preserve a part of Chinese culinary culture hitherto unknown to the Western world. Her name is Dee Wang and for several years she taught classes in Chinese cooking in an adult education program in New Jersey; this year she taught at the China Institute in New York City.

Some time ago someone in Hong Kong sent Mrs. Wang nine cookbooks, now out of print, published in mainland. China almost 20 years ago. This collection of recipes came from chefs of the finest restaurants (large and small) then in existence in all China's provinces. Because Mrs. Wang is eager to have the chefs' art live on, she has been translating their recipes so that interested cooks in

A deft cook herself, with a ready knowledge of three ma-jor Chinese dialects, her ability and experience enable her to test the recipes and pass along this part of her heritage in practical fashion. She also has another asset: she has been familiar with Continental and American cooking since she was a young woman living in China. When I asked her how

"I learned about Continental cooking from our widely trav-eled 'butler.' About American cooking through my uncle, who was Formosan minister to Brazil. He subscribed to dozens of American magazines, some of which had food sections with color photographs and recipes. I studied these and made many of the dishes, especially the desserts, over and over again."

Silk lamp shades can be washed

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Do you know of a good way to clean silk lamp shades? The silk is not split, but mine are all very dusty and the folds of silk used as a finish are dirty from handling. — MRS. F.

DEAR MRS. F. — Silk or rayon lamp shades should be dusted regularly with a soft brush or the soft brush at-tachment on your vacuum. Such shades can be dry cleaned and even washed IF they are not glued, but are sewed to the frame. Be sure any trimmings, such as your folds, are colorfast and sewn on. When washed the uickly - both the washing and the drying. Dip up and down in a deep tub with mild, lukewarm soap suds and brush any spots with a soft brush. Rinse the same way in clear lukewarm water. Do not dry in the sun but in a warm or breezy spot so it is done quickly. Do remember to first inspect carefully to be sure no parts are glued, or you will be in real trouble.

— POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the use of "Do not forget" when the meaning is "Do remember". As a primary school teacher I make it a point to always say, for example, "Do remember to bring your library book." It is best to stress the positive "Remember to" and not the negative "Do not forget".

forget". — RAE G.
DEAR POLLY — One morning I was dressing in a hurry.
After putting on a favorite dress, I noticed it clinging to me and riding up in the back. Obviously I had forgotten to throw a sheet of fabric softener in the dryer with the dress. I had no time to change, so I grabbed a sheet of this softener, rubbed the inside of my dress skirt and over and under my slip.

Fashion industry

is up on down

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK - (NEA) - It had to happen. With Seventh Avenue advocating the 'blanket' look in coats and shawls, someone was bound to start thinking about pillows.

All those feathers just lying there, supporting idle dreams. It was time they were up and about, making the rounds. And not just in sleeping bags or skiwear, either. Why not stuff them in the lining of an evening coat and. send them to the opera? Or take them to the office inside a natty, reversible vest?

Which is exactly what designers Scott Barrie and Alice Blaine have done, in-dependently of each other. It was a down-filled com-forter, though, and not a pillow, that got Alice Blaine's imagination racing. A Danish one, at that.

"I was in Copenhagen last year and my hotel had these big, white down comforters on the bed. It was bitter cold, but with the comforter, I could sleep with the windows open That was the first time I ever encountered down.

She knew, of course, how popular down-filled active sportswear was. "At the same time," she says, "I felt those clothes in sporting goods stores had very little fashion to them. So, feather in mind, she designed a reversible vest, wool flannel on one side, nylon on the other, and a bootlength, quilted sport coat. She stuffed both with enough northern goose down to warm but not roast and to keep the wearer from appearing in-

"We've sold about 600 of each and because the stores have a great demand for this kind of thing, we're going ahead with a parka, another vest and a pair of shorts."

The appeal you see lies not

The appeal, you see, lies not only in the look of it all, but the lightness and practicality.

"A wool coat with the in-terlining needed to be as warm as a down coat would be twice as heavy," she says. 'And you can compress a down coat, roll it up in a suitcase and it springs right

This is a suspenseful, fast-moving tale about a motley crew of ex-radicals who have

The Hereford Brand, Hereford, Texas, Sunday, September 5, 1976

reunited long after the end of the Vietnam war in pursuit of a common goal - the release of an antiwar clergyman who is still doing time in a federal prison.

The government has made clear it has no intention of freeing Father Francis Rowan, handsome, intense idealist who has been jailed on charges of complicity in the death of a federal agent.

Convinced that Father Rowan was framed, his supporters have finally hit upon a bizarre plan which they believe will force the authorities to release the clergyman, even though they realize it will make them the most despised group in America. In short, they plan to steal the remains of the revered Unknown Soldier of World

Led by Ken Booth, an Ivy League former World War II company commander who gave up a comfortable postwar job as a college economics professor to become an agitator against the Vietnam conflict, the plotters seem ill-matched

They include a scholarly engineer, a cynical former army medic who gets by selling dope, and a handsome loafer who lives off welfare and women.

The suspense builds as they move step by step toward the act of removing the casket containing the Unknown from its crypt in Arlington National Cemetery under the noses of a round-the-clock security

When the deed is finally done, causing nationwide horror and revulsion, suspense builds again as the plotters make off with the casket, passing through a series of police roadblocks. From a remote hiding place they make known their demand for the release of Father Rowan in return for the Unknown's remains.

The inevitable climax topped by an ironic, surprise ending make this a highly readable

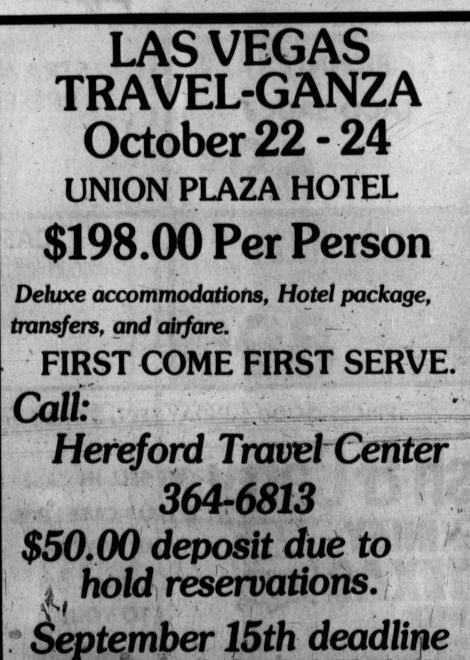

"If you opened up an old pillow, say, and tried to stuff those feathers into something else, they'd fly all over. So you have to send the garments to a blower or filling factory. They keep the feathers in big tanks from there they're blown into the channels or pockets of material which have been sewn on three sides.

Then the channel is sealed with a stitch which isn't strong enough. Most of the filling factories are accustomed to dealing with bedding, etc., you see, as opposed to fashion. They buy prepared casings so they don't have to sew at all. That's why the garment is returned to our fac-tory and refinished."

Another problem, says Scott Barrie, is that "those people are used to producing in quantity. They don't want to run only 500 dozen to start. But when you're making something that sells for $300-400 like my down-filled even-ing coat, you don't want to run off a great quantity."

But they're not cold where they're covered by the blanket. So Olgá, whose last name is Erteszek, created a nightgown made of brushed nylon on top and tricot on the bottom. "The tricot was slick and smooth and didn't twist around the body."

"We don't have a definite name for it yet,' she said. It's not a houserobe, but it can be worn as one; it's not a hostess gown, but it serves as that; it looks like two-pieces, a sweater and skirt, but it's actually one-piece and what it is is Olga's concept of sweater dressing.

NEW YORK (AP) — Just before he won the 76th U.S. Open golf crown at the Atlanta Athetic Club course, 22-year-old Jerry Pate had a hot streak. In Pennsylvania's IVB-Bicentennial Classic he tied for third, losing a playoff chance with winner Tom Kite and Terry Diehl on the final hole with a bogey.

The week before the IVB, Pate tied for fourth in the Memorial Tournament at Dublin, Ohio. In those two events before the Open he earned a total of $23,000. The Open win brought him $40,000.

In the 1975 Open at Medinah, Ill., Pate, a Pensacola, Fla., resident, shared the amateur medal with Jay Haas of Belleville, Ill. Both shot 293 to tie for 18th position with four pros. Pate is in his first year as a PGA pro.

Summerfield News

BETTY W. HAYES Brand Correspondent

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman 'Tab" Atchley were honored Sunday afternoon with a tea on their 30th wedding anniversary. Their children served as host and hostess for the occasion, who are Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Powell of Hereford, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Perry of Ellsworth, Neb., Mr. and Mrs. Larry Stephens of Groom, and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Atchley of Tulia.

Thurman and the former Patty Riley of Dodge City, Kan. were married on August 31, 1946 in Dodge City. "Tab," a Summerfield resident, brought his Kansas bride to Texas and settled in this community, where they have resided for the past 30 years.

The couple has four children, Charles, a veterinarian in Tulia, Mrs. Sue Powell of Hereford, Mrs. Kay Stephens of Groom, and Mrs. Ann Perry of Ellsworth, Neb.

Mr. and Mrs. Atchley were presented with a "card tree" approximately 100 cards decorated the tree. Guests were served cake and punch from china & crystal appointments.

The cake was made and decorated by their daughter-inlaw, Mrs. Charles Atchley. She used the apricot color and it was carried out in the decorations used at the reception. Approximately 50 to 60 called on the couple Sunday afternoon.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chet Riley, aunt and uncle from Ulysses, Kans.; Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Delozier of Dimmitt, Annie Hawkins of Lamesa, and special guests, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Petru and Barry of Enid Okla, Mr. Petru and "Tab" were Army buddies and had not seen each other for

HARRICA PARAMETER SANTAN S

BY JOYCE SHIPP Deaf Smith County

This month, we will be devoting this column to the blender, a popular small appliance, often overlooked by the homemaker in her daily kitchen routines.

The blender can be a timesaver when making muffins, waffles, pancakes, and quick loaf breads. The general procedure is to combine all the dry ingredients in a mixing bowl. Then combine the liquids, eggs, and soft shortening in the blender container and blend. There is no need to melt the shortening or to beat the egg separately. It is a good idea, however, to have the shortening soft. Soften butter, margarine or lard kept in the refrigerator at room temperature before used. Emulsified vegetable shortening, which is normally stored on the pantry shelf, may be used as

If you wish to add nuts, dates, raisins, or any dried or candied fruits to a basic quick break recipe, it is not necessary to cut them up separetly. Add them to the blended liquids and blend a second or so longer, depending on the desired fineness. If they are to be coarsely cut, use low speed. However, quarter dried fruits, such as apricots or prunes since they may be quite hard and blend at high speed.

To combine the liquid Calendar of Events ingredients with the dry in the mixing bowl, simply pour the liquid all at once into the dry mixture. Then follow the general rule for mixing quick breads, which is to stir lightly-only until all the flower is moistened. This light mixing will produce the tender, even texture that is characteristic of good quick breads.

When making yeast breads, unless a packaged hot roll mix is used, the blended lukewarm liquids are poured into the mixing bowl, and the flour added gradually so that the mixture may be beaten to form a smooth batter before more flour is added. By combining the dough in this manner, the gluten in the flour will be developed. This results in an elastic dough which produces light, even-textured yeast rolls and coffee cakes.

Youthful 'Architect' Reproduces Monticello

though he's never seen the real thing, 17-year-old Jeff Thompson has built a replica of Monti-cello, Thomas Jefferson's home in Charlottesville, Va.

The project, which used some 2,500 tiny bricks and took 95 hours over a six-month period, won $50 first prize in a high school bicentennial contest. It has been displayed in area schools and in the lobby of a local bank.

"I wanted to do some sort of historical project," the youth says. "I had always been interested in Monticello and Thomas Jefferson, so I decided to recreate the house. And I thought it would be a good way to learn a little more about how homes are built."

Before starting the 3-by-5-foot replica, he studied plans and pictures of the famous house. He then made a cardboard frame and glued it to a plyboard base. For the bricks he rolled out Play-Doh modeling compound "very thin, just like dough for a pie shell," and then sliced out individual bricks with a knife. He painted them with orange-red enamel and added a light coat of "antique" finish "for an old look." Some 10 pounds of the modeling compound were used for the bricks. To make the windows, Jeff cut out construction paper for the frames and used waxed paper for the window panes. The

HELIUM CAPITAL

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) You might call Amarillo the Helium Capital of the World.

According to a leaflet put out by the Amarillo Convention and Visitors Board, "Today in excess of 90 per cent of the free world's known helium supply is to be found within a radius of 150 miles of Amarillo."

Although the city of 143,000 people was once a center of research in and production of the lighter-than-air gas, it is now principally the focal point of the country's helium conservation program. Helium produced at plants as far away as Kansas is piped or shipped by train to the reservoir at the Cliffside Gas Field about 15 miles northwest of Amarillo.

The helium is stored in porous rock about 3,500 feet below the surface. About 38.4 billion cubic feet of helium has been put in storage there by the federal government and slightly less than one billion cubic feet of helium is stored there by private companies.

It was the space program that gave helium its big boost and vice versa. Helium under pressure is used to force fuel from the tanks of booster rockets into the rocket engines.

Port Salut Is Fine Cheese

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer Back in 1815, the Trappist monks, exiled by the French Revolution, returned to their homeland and founded a new Abbey known as Notre Dame de Port du Salut. Today we associate the name with a classic

A short time after their return, the monks made a discovery. A bacteria the French call B. Linens could do miracles with cheese, softening and enriching it. The result was the delightful Port Salut famed all over the world today.

Soon after the monks began making it, imitations of Port Salut began cropping up every-where. Finally the French government stepped in and de-creed that only cheese made in France could bear the name. Today several modern plants in that country use the monks' formula to produce the world's supply of this mellow cheese.

Port Salut is compact and elastic, holding its shape when cut. The texture is soft, without holes, and it tastes something like Gouda. The rind of Port Salut should be smooth without Whether served with fruit as dessert or eaten as a snack, Port Salut is satisfying to most cheese lovers. It is especially good with a slightly chilled Beaujolais wine.

Many cheeses lend themselves to cooking and serve as a key ingredient in countless dishes. Their usefulness in this field is determined by how eashow much heat they can tolerate and how much flavor and character they retain when cooked. It is also important to know how well they combine with other foods.

But other conductors have neither the time for enough rehearsals nor the necessary influence to conduct my works." He conducts 10 to 30 concerts a year, all of his own works, turning down offers to conduct orchestras in programs by other composers.

Since his music, even today, is unusual, did Stockhausen have difficulty becoming known? "Strangely enough, not at all. My very first piece, "Kruezspiel," - "Cross Game"

One critic found the theory behind "Sirius" more stimulating than the music. Asked whether he has this problem while composing, Stockhausen says no because he doesn't approach composing that way. They have their own wills and their own limitations. On 'Sirius' I was so frustrated, using the synthesizer. It didn't treat me generously."

"In October I have to work on a score during 10 days. Then I go to an island to compose until Feb. 24. On Feb. 24 I start again to work in the electronic music studio until the first of April to finish the tape of Sirlus.' I haven't written the last part for the four soloists.

How to recycle worn nightgowns

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY - When you have a nylon or tricot nightgown that is worn-out at the top but the bottom is still in good shape, cut off the top. Make a half slip out of the bottom. Measure for the desired length, attach elastic at the top and no further sewing is necessary. — MABEL.

DEAR POLLY - Recently, I used that popular hand soap with pumice in it to clean my stove and appliances when I was out of my regular cleanser. It did a wonderful job that was better than any cleaner I have used for this. It is a lot cheaper too.

DEAR POLLY - After making bread or pastry I save all that excess flour that is on the board and store it in a clean empty canister and when I need to flour meat or chicken before cooking I use this flour that would otherwise be wasted

DEAR POLLY - I keep my plastic wrap in the refrigerator. Doing this helps it unroll more easily and cuts down on waste, thus saving pennies: — MRS. T.S.

DEAR POLLY — My brood likes hot cereals. I have found it is a sugar saver to sweeten the water before I put the cereal in to cook, and there is a uniform sweetness throughout.

I save all plastic produce bags and always keep a folded one in my purse. I cannot begin to enumerate all the emergency uses I have found for them. When on a trip, use that leftover coke in a bottle as an emergency cleaner to remove the film from the car windshield. Recently, I even used coffee from my thermos and it worked like a charm, too.

Periodically I run all my soap scraps through my food chopper. Mixed with a little water the soap molds together into nice bars. When wrapped in plastic wrap, one would hardly guess they were recycled. After such a job my 35 year old chopper is put in to soak and with the aid of a kitchen brush gets a renovation, too After a good rinsing and drying it is stored in a plastic bag. — FRIEDA.

DEAR POLLY — To make the hose on my canister type vacuum cleaner last longer, I have braided a yarn rope that is just a bit shorter than the hose. This is attached to the handle and to the end of the hose so that I pull on the rope rather than the hose and when the vacuum is put away the rope just coils

Clothes that I no longer wear are recycled into pants, skirts and dresses for my daughter and patchwork blankets can also be made with little fuss and much money saved. Also, instead of buying individual receiving blankets for a new baby, one twin size sheet blanket can be cut to make four such blankets. The edges have binding sewed around or can just be zigzag stitched on the sewing machine. - PATRICIA the woman who shops this type of item: what her age group is, what she looks like, how much money she has." The Russel Taylor woman, he says, is between 35 and 55. "She's usually a size twelve, a suburban housewife, a woman who can afford a good quality coat. She may even have a good fur but she'll buy one of ours because many times a furrier cannot achieve the comfort, lightness, the Skoda says. "In Spanish lamb, for example, which is a very heavy, curly animal fur, there's a lot of variation of tremendous achievement.' Two-color mink is very popular now, he continues, but the A-line mink coat trimmed in a darker shade won't sell as well as the beige, short mink jacket they had such success

It sounds simple enough, duplicating animal fur. But simulating 15 types of fur from beaver and seal to lynx with last year.
"We sold thousands then, and we'll do the same with from beaver and seal to lynx and mink isn't just a question of slapping some acrylic fibers together.

Take mink, for instance.

"We buy our mink fabric from the Tissavel people who have been experimenting with it for 10 years," he explains. "What they do is take real fur and this year's model because anybody can wear it, and you can wear it over pants or a dress.

The Russel Taylor company used to be Annis Furs, back in 1955 when George W. Borg revolutionized the business by inventing Borgana, the fabric that imitates seal and beaver skin.

"Russel Taylor and I were furriers and George Borg chose to include us in the group of cutters franchised for his fabric because he wanted it to have the look of real fur.

"In 1967, we started the Russel Taylor company to produce fake furs only and we've become specialists. See, the trick in designing real or simulated furs is to design around the basic look of the fur. In a cloth coat you can use the same pattern for a melton coat and a tweed. But what looks fantastic in a raccoon a short, chunky jacket - would look terrible in a seal.

"Take this lynx coat belted, slimming — there's a certain kind of sophistication in lynx, and the woman who buys it wants to project that image. With raccoon, there's a carefree don't give a damn

Tested tips make packing a cinch

NEW YORK - (NEA) -Now that you've limped home from Europe, or the Orient or the Caribbean each arm half an inch longer from hauling luggage, here's just what you need: packing advice.

Well, there's always next year or next month. The principles themselves are

The expert in this case is Pamela Ashley, an attractive blonde who represents Mark Cross, the Fifth Avenue leather goods store here. (Actually, her name is Joan Westberg and she's an actress from Chicago. "I'm the original Organized Woman for Mark Cross," she says. "They came up with the name Pamela Ashley because it sounds English. The firm was started in Boston in 1845 by a saddlemaker from England. If I leave, the name Pamela Ashley will provide continuity.")

To begin with, a woman should choose a soft-sided piece of luggage because "it's lightweight and expands. The added weight comes when the sides of a suitcase are

The 26-inch suitcase she used for demonstration was made of canvas and leather and had no compartments inside. "If you don't fill up the compartments, you're left with empty spaces and you should pack a suitcase as full as you can. The more you put in, the more protection the clothes have.

Now, go to the closet and take out everything you're convinced you'll need. "Then put half of it back. Fashionwise, it's best to work around one or two colors and to use lightweight clothes you can add layers to.

"In this suitcase, I have three skirts, one dress, two pairs of slacks, four tops and an evening dress. All the

About 20 years ago I met Libby Smith, a young woman from Marblehead, Mass., who gave cooking classes and had written a cookbook. A friend of hers gave a party for her in New York and I was invited. Our paths never crossed again, but I sometimes thought of her be-cause she had cooked the main dish served at the party - a fabulously good fish chowder, the best I had ever tasted. That's something a food editor

Recently a neighbor of mine told me that her sister-in-lw, who lived in Marblehead, had a reputation as a fine cook. When asked her name, I discovered that Libby Smith was now Libby Alsberg and that she and her husband George publish a food-letter that includes recipes and notes on wine. It's called

"The Everyday Gourmet" and it goes to subscribers every two weeks the year round except during July. The Alsbergs de-scribe their publication as "being devoted to eating joy-ously and economically and at PAMELA ASHLEY: "Organized Woman for Mark Cross" tells women to put half the clothes they think they will need for a trip back in their closet.

spending, the distance and activities," she says. "If you're touring, you won't need as many clothes as you would at a resort. Who's to know the outfit you wore this morning on the Champs Elysees is the same one you're wearing tonight with different accessories - in Piccadilly Circus? All right, you know generally what you're taking; here's how to take it.

Toiletries and bulky items get packed first, except for aerosol cans and cosmetics which you'll carry in a separate tote. "The air pressure on planes will cause the aerosol cans to expand and you don't want them to burst in the cargo area. Don't forget to transfer anything in glass bottles to plastic bottles and only fill them three-fourth

Place the heaviest items a hair dryer, for instance opposite the handle of the suitcase "so when you lift the suitcase, they don't fall down on your crushables. "You're already wearing walking shoes, so pack a pair of sandals if you need them, sneakers and evening shoes. Put your nylons, socks and jewelry pouches inside the shoes and then put the shoes in shoe mittens or plastic bags so they're cushioned and won't dirty your clothes.' When you've completed that initial layer, making sure there are no spaces ("I always have a lot of little stuffers like underwear sets to keep shoes from sliding around"), you take a piece of cardboard which you've cut to size and lay that on top."

"Because at your hotel, in-stead of unpacking everything to get to your toiletries, you simply lift out the cardboard with the clothes."

Her strategy for clothing is "fold and cushion." "The secret," she says, "is to have as few folds in your clothes as possible to prevent creases. You do this by protecting every fold with a rolled item: tissue paper, plastic bags, or all the garments you can roll such as scarves, sweaters, knits and jerseys."
She starts with the longest items first such as slacks and skirts. "I put one waistband against one side of the suit-case. Don't fold it; let the bottom hang out of the suitcase. I put the next waistband at the opposite side, letting the excess hang out and I go back and forth that way.

"On top, I put blouses and jackets. Incidentally, you fold a jacket inside out with the collar up and the sleeves flat against each other. Then you fold it in halves or thirds.

"Next, I take the rolled items and fill the spaces. When I have all the layers in, I just bring up the bottoms of the slacks and skirts and fold them across. There's no room for creases in them this way." Don't forget, she says, to pack a flat clutch for evening use, and a collapsible flight bag "to take all your presents home in."

Make a list of everything you're taking for future reference, a check against leaving things behind, and, heaven forfend, "for your claim if the baggage is lost."

Finally, see to it that your business address is on the tag and not your home address. "You never know who's lurking in the airport to see which families are going away, leav-ing an empty house."

You see, if it's not totally empty when you leave, it just may be when you return.

Rankin Opposes Subsidies To Palm Oil Production

LUBBOCK -- Joe Rankin of Ralls, President of the Lubbockbased Plains Cooperative Oil Mill, and Vice-President of Texas Farmers Union, has called upon the Ford administration to "stop giving financial help to promote the production of foreign palm oil for export to the U.S.

Ranking charged that the administration has announced. in a letter to Congressman Dawson Mathis (D-Ga.) that loans will continue to be approved by the U.S. to finance palm oil production in foreign countries. Mathis and others have protested the U.S. government subsidization of palm oil production for export, with sharply depressed soybean and cotton seed oil prices this

Rankin, who farms in the Ralls area, says that the decision by the Administration to continue to approve the financing of palm oil projects is bad news for High Plains cotton producers. "With the existing excess supply of vetegable oil in the world and the present depressed prices, the decision by the Administration to continue to approve the financing of palm oil projects abroad is tantamount to assuring South Plains cotton and soybean producers low

Congressman Mathis was told by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon that projects to produce palm oil for export coming up for consideration during the next twelve to eighteen months, "will be approved if the projects are viable." In the past, no projects have been approved unless they Rankin said.

Livestock conditions have declined and many pastures and ranges are suffering from lack of moisture, screwworms, ear ticks and other pests continue to plague livestock, Pfannstiel

District agricultural agents gave these reports:

Panhandle: Harvesting of corn silage is in full swing. Cotton has fruited well but is shedding much fruit, especially dryland cotton. The dryland sorghum crop is under stress. Harvesting of potatoes and onions is about complete in Deaf Smith County.

South Plains: Irrigated corn. sorghum and cotton are making good progress. Cotton needs hot, dry weather. Peppers, cucumbers, tomatoes and cabbage are being harvested.

Rolling Plains: Sorghum harvesting is active in many counties, yields are generally good. Boll weevils and bollworms are causing heavy damage to cotton fields. Cattle shipments have increased.

North Central: Corn and sorghum harvesting is well past the halfway point. Yields range from fair to good. Rain is needed for peanuts and hay crops. Fall vegetables are being planted.

Northeast: Hay harvesting has slowed because of a lack of rain. Soybeans also need rain. Livestock are in good shape.

Far West: Dryland crops need rain as do pastures and ranges. Bell peppers are maturing in Presidio County. A large pecan crop is expected in most counties. Livestock are in good condition.

West Central: A general rain is needed. Cotton is making mostly good progress although boll weevils, bollworms and cottonroot are causing some damage. Some planting of small grains is under way.

Central: Rain is needed in most areas. Some early peanuts are being harvested. Insects are hurting some pecan orchards. Most pastures and ranges are across the state because of recent dry conditions, Pfannstiel East: Can and sorghum yields are good. Dry conditions have slowed grass growth for hay as well as for grazing. Armyworms remain heavy in pastures.

> Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: Harvesting of corn, sorghum and rice is moving toward completion. The cotton harvest remains in full swing. Yields for most crops have been good. Soybeans need rain. Pecans are shedding nuts because of dry weather.

South Central: Cotton harvesting will start soon but insects are damaging some fields. The pecan crop is poor. Fall vegetable gardens are being planted. Pastures and ranges need rain.

Southwest: Harvesting of corn, sorghum and early peanuts is nearing completion. Fall vegetables look good but the pecan crop is poor. Livestock are mostly in good shape except for ear ticks, screwworms and stomach

Coastal Bend: About 10 per cent of the cotton crop is still in the field. Most of the area's sorghum crop has been put in storage. Rain is needed for peanuts, fall gardens, and pastures. Screwworms, ear ticks and flies are a problem in livestock.

South: About 5 per cent of the cotton crop remains in the field. Wet fields have slowed land preparation and planting of fall vegetables. The citrus crop is benefitting from recent rains.

COLLEGE STATION--Producers thinking of holding onto their feeder cattle may want to take a closer look at the market situation, at least for the remainder of 1976. Things aren't too bright, according to one authority, Dr. Ed Uvacek, livestock marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

His analysis comes after an extensive trip through cattle country, the Corn Belt and visits with several feedlot managers.

Feeder Cattle Market

"I look for feeder prices to weaken into the fall and winter for a number of reasons," says Uvacek. "Among these are the continued weakness in fed cattle prices, big feedlot losses, no major drop in sight for feedgrain prices, a big supply of feeders still available, and more competition from other meats. such as pork and broilers."

Feeder prices this fall and winter will have a big effect on the overall cattle industry. believes the Texas A&M University System specialist. They will determine the extent of cow liquidation, the number of feeders held over into 1977, and the feedlot profitability for the first half of next year. Uvacek sees this situationdeveloping in the months ahead: "Choice feeder steers in the 600-700-pound range will likely move to the low $30's by October. Many feeder animals will move to slaughter during this period. Some price gains could then result as we move into the winter months and, the demand from feedlots begins to recover. The extent of the price rise into 1977 will depend on how many animals are held over the winter. Too many holdovers'

HALFWAY -- Greenbug resistan sorghums are among several featured research highlights of this year's annual field day of the Texas Agricultural Experi-

Plainview on Highway 70.
Dr. Charles R. Ward, research entomologist, and Dr. Jerry Johnson, sorghum breeder who has been instrumental in developing greenbug resistant breedinglines, will be on hand to discuss this year's studies. Both Ward and Johnson are research scientists based at the Lubbock Experiment Station which is co-hosting the special occasion.

Several experimental greenbug resistant hybrids produced by Johnson as well as numerous commercial hybrids will be available for public viewing during the field day, says Ward.

Gene Latham, Hale County Extension Service entomologist, and Dr. William (Pat) Morrison. area entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock, also will be on hand to discuss greenbug resistant sorghums.

"During tour stops of the station's research plots, results from nine studies conducted to find alternativechemicals for controlling the greenbug in sorghum will be discussed." says Ward. "The excellent

When you lease or finance Gifford-Hill's 360, it will be on your terms.

Nowhere in the world can you buy or lease a better pivotal imigation system.

Gifford-Hill designed the 360 to be everything the farmer wanted it to be. And now, it's equipped with a lease or finance plan that's everything a farmer wants it to be. Since just about everybody's got their own way of keeping records and allocating capital for the year, we can help you work out a way of leasing or financing a 360 that will fit into your financial planning.

But these plans aren't the only way the 360 has of improving your financial position. You can produce a better crop and reduce your pumping costs at the same time. All of your field gets the same amount of water because of Gifford-Hill's unique sprinkler spacing. And your crop gets the maximum benefit from the water because the drop is small enough to penetrate the soil. It doesn't compact or puddle. Beef Industry and Consumer Benefit From Quality Research

By Robert L. Haney TAES Science Writer

Most consumers desire top quality beef and more sources of edible, economical protein. Improving the taste of beef and finding protein additives that do not affect the basic taste and cooking characteristics of beef are major problems problems that scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station are doing something to solve.

Research by several Experiment Station meat scientists has shown that one way to improve the flavor of beef is through the use of electrical stimulation of the carcasses. Drs. Zerle Carpenter and Gary Smith took 29 forage fed steers, immediately after slaughter, and subjected the left side of each carcass to electrical stimulation.

They then removed meat samples from the 13th rib region of both sides of the steers, and found that same ples from the left side had significantly higher overall tenderness ratings than those from the right side. Scientists say that the use of such electrical stimulation immediately after slaughter and before chilling resulted in substantial improvements in beef palatability.

One very promising area of study is the addition of plasma protein (extracted from blood) to edible meat products. Dr. C.W. Dill. Experiment Station scientist with the animal science department at A&M, has found that the addition of plasma protein to raw meat can greatly improve cooking properties and has no adverse effect on taste. Dill cites the work of A. Gordon. a meat scientist who found that the addition of 1-2 per cent plasma to a raw hamburger mix produces a product with exceptionally good binding properties; in fact, hamburgers that have been blast-frozen can be fried with no breakdown in structure.

Despite its obvious advantages as an additive, scientists say that there is probably no animal protein so poorly utilized as blood protein. Dill believes that many people fear that the blood will be contaminated during the process of removal from the animal's body. But Dill says that blood taken from a healthy animal is essentially a sterile fluid, and the only possible way it could be contaminated would be through exposure to the atmosphere.

Dill says that while blood collecting techniques should be researched further, a very effective procedure now being used is the hollow blade knife, or thief knife. The knife is inserted into the animal's juglar vein, blood is picked up in a cup or vacuum tube, and anticoagulant is added at a point near the base of the knife handle. The mixture is then carried away through a tube, without exposure to the atmosphere.

In most European countries, a selection of specialties, such as blood sausage. made by using whole blood and/or blood plasma can be found in butcher shops and supermarkets. Both the technology and the equipment required for the collection, preservation and processing of blood are satisfactory and readily obtainable. However, Dill says there is no doubt that there is still room for further improvement and innovation both in the technology and facilities needed for food products manufacture.

Dill has isolated a substance from the blood serum that is a very high quality protein nutritionally. He has found that up to 10 per cent of the flour in bread dough can be substituted with the plasma isolate. This substitution increases loaf volume by as much as 16 to 18 per cent, and significantly improves crumb texture. Most importantly, the addition of the plasma protein to the wheat protein dramatically increases the nutritional value of the bread by increasing the levels of essential amino acids.

Recent advantages in transportation equipment as well as reduced transit times have stimulated interest in preserving meats during transoceanic shipments, according to Carpenter and Smith. The demand for fresh beef by foreign consumers has recently increased as highly industrialized or oil-rich countries have developed higher standards of living.

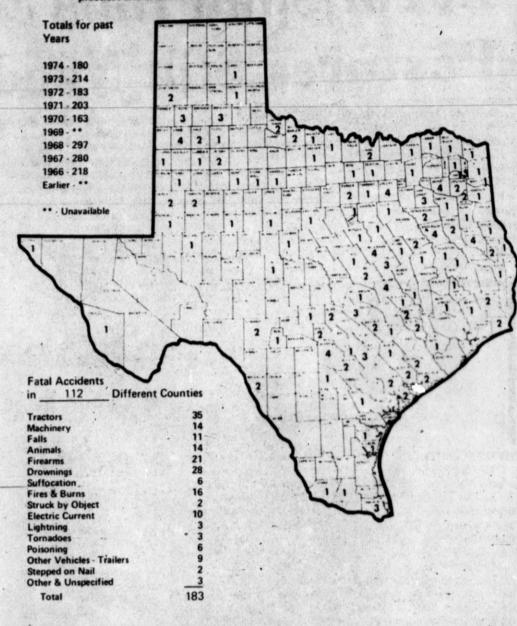

Correspondingly, the potential for sales of United States beef in foreign markets has grown dramatically Interest has increased in finding ways to preserve fresh cuts and quarters of beef during the transit time required on relatively inexpensive ocean-going ves-

Carpenter and Smith found that the best way to protect fresh beef cuts during long distance shipments was vacuum-packaging. Vacuum-packaged cuts were adequately protected from both weight loss and deterioration during the experimental 20-21 day shipment. The best method for protecting fresh beef quarters during long-distance. transoceanic shipments consisted of wrapping with polyvinyl chloride (PVC) film and transporting the quarters in a modified atmosphere van. The scientists also found that for shortterm transoceanic shipments of beef, beef cuts stored for 5-7 day intervals fared better when wrapped in PVC film and kept in a normal atmosphere. Package and transportation costs were also much lower.

Research by meat scientists will help supply the consumer with the best quality meat at the lowest possible cost. And the utilization of new protein sources will raise both the production and the quality of our nation's meat prod-having tarnished their reputations by an incredibly poor forecast of inflationary forces during the 1974-75 seasons, have since been hiding their predictions behind an error shortages of essential commodimargin allowed for inflationary rates". They've been converted, now they're vieing with each other to become the best inflationary predictor. They all are probably going to be wrong. again, for the smart economist, recognizing the pendulum effect, will probably be looking for negative inflationary rates or deflation. Deflation, narrowly defined, is caused by a contraction in the volume of available money or credit that results in a decline of the general price level. The key in this definitionis the "decline of the general price level." The question is what can cause the price levels for goods and services in this country and worldwide to decline?

To a pure economist the answer is simple prices will decline if an abundance of goods and services should occur, of if demand for them should ease.

In the U.S. there has not been a noticeable shortage of any particular commodity in recent years, and this includes gasoline. Instead, noticeable surpluses are beginning to develop, for example wheat supplies for the 1976/77 season are expected to be as large as at any time during the 1960s.

Many economists, after Copper, once a metal hoarded as a hedge against inflation currently lies in abundance in worldwide depositories. It's unlikely given current political and economic conditions that ties will occur.

Also, a general easing of prices could develop due to the lack of demand for most goods and services. The reason, consumers would rather save their money than spend it. Also the cost of practically everything today is much higher that it was two or three years ago.

The average consumer it seems would rather forego the pleasure of buying now, with the intent of buying at a later date at a lower price. Idications of this effect are evident in reports issued by the various federai agencies about declining retail sales, depressed housing starts, easier interest rates and substantial increases of savings at banks and savings and loans.

The effect of dwindling demand for the currently high priced goods and services could have a serious backlash. If a company cannot sell its products at a certain price it will certainly lower prices on existing inventories to stimultate sales. A cut back on production could also occur if a cut in sales prices puts too much of a strain on profit margins. If production cutbacks develop on a wide scale nationwide in a variety of industries, then look out for an increase in the unemployment

However, the slowdown in consumer demand may not last for long and a general increase in economic activity could in production have also been projected for cotton soybeans, peanuts and sugarcane.

Most of the increase in corn production has occurred on the High Plains, where irrigated acreage yields have increased to 110 bushels per acre.

Sugarcane production is set at almost 1.33 million tons, and the 1976 soybean crop has been estimated at 9.1 million bushels. Peanut production has increased six percent to 491.2 million

Cotton production is expected to increase 43 per cent from 1975 to an estimated crop of 3.4 million bales. Harvested acreage has increased to 4.5 million. White noted that the cotton estimate may be revised downward when the full effects of the July rain in South Texas are known. "The 15 to 18 inches of rain left many cotton field flooded and farmers reported that bolls were beginning to rot and shed," White said. The greatest production decline has occurred in the state's sorghum crop, which is projected at 330 million bushels, a 44 million-bushel drop from 1975.

The South Texas sorghum crop suffered severely from continuous mid-summer

But lower yields in southern parts of the state have been slightly offset by increased yields on the High Plains, where growing conditions have been optimal, for the most part, for the crop.

State Dove Hunters May Have 42 Million Birds Available

AUSTIN-Based on banding and harvest information, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials estimated some 42 million mourning doves were available in Texas when the North Zone season opened Wednesday.

It's just a matter of being in the right place at the right time.

Contacts with P&WD wardens, biologists and other field personnel throughout the state indicated generally a good mourning dove outlook as of late summer rains forced many Texas farmers to plant grain fields late, which means more grain will be available for birds this season.

And dry conditions during late July and August have concentrated birds at remaining water holes, which should help late afternoon hunting.

West Texas wildlife regional director Jack Parsons at San Angelo said the overall dove to be found in the eastern part of the region, with fair numbers in the High Plains and Permian Wildlife technician John Roberson of Travis County has observed many birds feeding in recently combined milo fields and the situation appears good for the early season. He estimates more birds to be available in the area than in AUSTIN-Dove hunters will be admitted to five Texas Parks and Wildlife Department wildlife management areas this fall for noon-to-sunset bird hunting.

Both mourning and white-winged doves may be hunted on the Black Gap Area south of Marathon Sept. 4-6 and 11-12. Mourning doves alone also will be legal Oct. 2-3 and 9-10.

The Matador Area north of Paducah in Cottle County will be open for mourning dove hunting Sept. 1-26.

Doves and quail will be legal game at the Chaparral Area west of Artesia Wells Oct. 9-10, 16-17, 23-24, 30-31 and Nov.

SEPTEMBER TEAL HUNT SET LUBBOCK -- The early teal season has been set by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for Sept. 18-26, but dry conditions in some of the Panhandle and South Plains counties could hold down the number of birds bagged.

"The Hereford-Friona area has again received enough heavy rains to keep the playa lakes supplied with water," said Max Traweek, assistant waterfowl biologist.

"Ducks are already moving into the Panhandle counties from the northern nesting areas and a good population of the more numerous blue-winged teal should be available in areas with water by the time the season starfs." continued Traweek.

The daily bag limit will be four teal and the possession limit wil be eight teal after the second day. The shooting hours will be sunrise to sunset daily which is 30 minutes shorter than the regular duck season which starts later in the fall.

The three species of teal legal waterfowl hunters.

for this early hunt include the blue-winged, green-winged. and cinamon teal. Identification of these teal by the hunter is critical and any attempt to take or possession of any other species of duck in the state will be considered a violation of the game and fish laws during this special hunt. Sportsmen normally identify teal by their small size, rapid wingbeat, and speed.

The eating quality of these birds is considered excellent by gourmet wild game cooks.

Teal hunters will be required to have on their possession a fedeal migratory waterfowl stamp which can be purschased at U.S. post offices for $5. The stamp must be signed in ink across the face of the permit by the holder. Also, shotguns used for the teal hunt must be plugged to hold no more than three shells including the chamber.

The passage of the teal through Texas in September should furnish excellent hunting and eating opportunities for Panhandle and South Plains

the boost you need to make grain:

MCALLEN--Traditional white-winged dove roosting grounds in the lower Rio Grande Valley show only scattered populations, according to a fall flight survey conducted by the Department. 'Thus far we estimate there are 125,000 birds at the roosting sites, or about half the number we expected to be here at this time," said Gary Waggerman, P&WD wildlife biologist.

Texas Parks and Wildlife

Late summer rains and large volumes of water released from Falcon and Amistad Reserviors, resulting in flooding of feeding grounds downriver, are principal causes for the low dove count.

"In a typical year we could expect between 300,000 and 800,000 birds to congregate in roosts along the river, and fly to food sources on either side of the Rio Grande," Waggerman

Waggerman also pointed out that some birds that were banded last May in Texas

Don't tie up your fertilizer dollars in wheat

At today's grain prices, can you afford to fertilize wheat as you have in the past? NO! What can you do? Consider the Ag ENTERPRISES FERTIGATION alternative:

The forecast "is not good, but conditions could change." Waggerman noted. Usually, up to 300,000 whitewings are harvested in the Valley during the brief season. In 1974, some 300,000 birds were harvested. The following year, however, only some 150,000 birds were killed.

The large amounts of released water, built up from the heavy July rains along the Rio Grande, have flooded many grain fields. "The low-lying areas of the Rio Grande, which traditionally are good hunting sites, will not be accessible to the hunter.' Waggerman said.

Additionally, thundershowers in late August also contributed to the poor hunting forecast.

He noted that there still are dove concentrations along the river, but the number of roosting birds is reduced greatly from past years.

Energy, colonial style

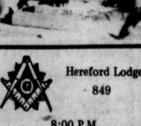

There were no energy shortages facing Americans two centuries ago when they depended on abundant natural resources and ingenuity as their greatest sources of power.

Before the development of mass production, most metal objects came handforged from the blacksmith, right, who required a large and constant supply of coal since a steady temperature had to be maintained. Tedious labor of candlemaking, far right, may have offered little excitement as a career then, but it was America's only method of lighting homes once night fell. The most intricately-detailed furniture came from the most primitive of tools, the spring lathe, below, and the experienced hands of an artisan: But they were not totally without developing some energy sources, water and wind among them. Windmills often provided the muscle to power mills and huge sawblades. At day's end, the windmill's huge sails were "furled," or secured, below center, to prevent useless wear on its mechanical parts. But more than anything else, the 18th century's primary source of energy, as evident by the dedicated craftsman work with mallet and chisel, was none other than

Whitewing Hunters Should Buy Licenses Before Leaving Home

AUSTIN-White-winged dove bunters heading to the Rio Grande Valley for the remaining lept 11-12 dove season should have their 1976-77 huntinglidense and $3 White-winged hove Stamp in hand before leaving home.

Last year, many hunters waited until they arrived in the calley and found themselves standing in long lines at Texas carks and Wildlife Department offices and license sales deputies.

Parks and Wildlife Department officials urge hunters to buy both license and dove stamp in their home towns before traveling to the Valley.

In the past, hunters buying a nonresident five-day migratory game bird hunting license waited until just before the whitewing season opened to make the purchase, in order to get the maximum amount of hunting from the five-day license.

AUSTIN--Bowhunters in seven Central Texas counties this year will be required to have permits to hunt antlerless deer, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials remind.

Permits will be issued at the following locations: Burnet, county courthouse; Gillespie, county courthouse; Llano, Parks and Wildlife Department office; Mason, chamber of commerce; McCullough, chamber of commerce; San Saba, county courthouse; and Travis, county courthouse. Landowners in those counties may secure their permits Sept. 10, from 8-12 a.m. and 1-5 p.m.

Some 2,000 antlerless deer were harvested by bowhunters during the 1975 season, and P&WD officials expect several thousand permits to be issued this year.

Although season dates for the special season vary across the state, most bowhunters will have October 1 through 31 to stalk deer and turkey. Bowhunters in the southern half of the state also may take javelina.

Archery dates in the Trans-Pecos, Panhandle and some Northeast Texas counties vary from five to 30 days.

For special requirements or bag limits in specific counties, persons should contact their local Parks and Wildlife Department office or consult their Hunting and Fishing Digest.

Moving Of Households Is Billion Dollar Industry

By LOUIS COOK
Associated Press Writer

The semiannual migration of Americans from one city to another is in full swing as families try to get settled in new homes before the start of the school year.

The Interstate Commerce Commission says there were more than 1.2 million household moves last year. There are no specifics on how much the relocations cost, but a commission spokesman estimated the total at a little over $1 billion or about $830 for each move.

Ray Atherton, chief of the ICC's Household Goods Branch, said moving is a highly seasonal business, with spring and fall booms timed to the closing and opening of school.

Atherton said the commission receives about 1,000 complaints a month on moving troubles. The most common problem is loss and damage. He said the number of complaints has remained steady over recent years, although the number of shipments has increased.

For the consumer, moving can be an expensive proposition, particularly over long distances.

Interstate movers, licensed by the ICC, base charges on weight and distance. There is usually a given rate per 100 pounds which increase with distance. While local truckers often charge by the hour, time is not a cost factor in most long-distance moves A cross-country move from New York to Los Angeles for a three-bedroom house with about 7,500 pounds of furniture will probably cost at least $2,500 to $3,000, Atherton said.

A major decision for most people is whether to pack their household goods themselves or let the movers do it. "You can save considerable money by doing it yourself," said Atherton, adding that having the movers pack can add $500 or more to the cost of an average Cost is not the only thing to take into account, however. Many corporations which pay moving expenses include packing costs. In addition, it often is easier to collect for damaged goods if the mover has done the packing.

If you do your own packing, Atherton explained, it is up to you to prove negligence by the company if something is damaged. If the movers pack, the burden of proof is on the company.

Packing your own possessions takes time. Atherton said that anyone who wants to do his own packing had better set aside every evening for a week or so. Some people, however, actually do a better job of packing than professional movers. "I've moved three times and "I've always do my own packing," said Atherton. "I've never had a teacup broken."

Interstate movers have a basic liability of 60 cents per pound. That means that you'll get only 60 cents if a one-pound vase is broken- even if the vase is expensive crystal. You can purchase additional coverage, paying $5 for every extra $1,000 worth of liability protection.

Note: this coverage is not insurance; you don't automatically collect if something is lost or damaged. Paying extra simply increases the amount by which the mover is liable if he accepts responsibility for damage. The worth of an item is based on the day the mover took possession not the day you purchased the product.

There are some things that you should never trust to the movers. Atherton said, citing jewelry, coin or stamp collections and personal papers. As a rule of thumb, he suggested hanging on to "anything that is priceless or irreplaceable."

Mexican Currency Stabilizes After Peso Devaluation

MEXICO CITY (AP)- The devalued Mexican peso appeared to be leveling off at 20 per U.S. dollar Friday as banking sources reported the nation's central bank intended to support the peso at that level for at least several days.

The bank's decision to help stabilize the peso was revealed as the Mexican business community exerted pressure to return to a fixed parity with the dollar. Such a parity had existed for 22 years until Tuesday's announcement the peso would float on the world money market.

Prices soared in local markets and hardware stores Friday as merchants tried to recover the devaluation of their imported merchandise.

"The confusion is tremendous," one federal banking source said. "No one knows what to charge for anything."

The Banco de Mexico, the country's central bank and the equivalent of the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank, announced it was meeting with major bank representatives each afternoon to determine the money exchange rates for the next day.

Banks sold dollars for 20.60

pesos and purchased them for 20.40 Friday for the second consecutive day.

"I believe the price will stabilize at around 20 pesos, but it could drop to 18 or 19," a federal bank source said.

The source said the bank's action in setting a daily price apparently had affected money

Chicken At Large Charges Filed

AUSTIN, (AP)- A "chicken at large" charge has been filed against a man whose half grown rooster allegedly has chased a 7-year-old on at least two occasions.

occasions.

Vincent Sutherland said the rooster chased his daughter around the block, forcing her to duck into the family garage. Another time, he said, the girl jumped a bush to get away from the chicken and threw her shoe

"This one just roams around. It's half grown and when it gets those spurs it will really be dangerous," Sutherland said.

Sutherland said he would drop the charge if Doyle would keep the rooster penned.

Because the cost of health care is skyrocketing in all areas of medicine, a massive campaign is being prepared to cut the ever-rising cost of health care through the use of price controls and the required usage of low-cost drugs.

Nineteen states and the District of Columbia have passed legislation encouraging or requiring the use of generic equivalents instead of the more expensive brand name drugs whenever possible. Legislation designed to tighten up prescription procedures is also being considered by a number of states.

By setting the maximum allowable cost, the federal government is placing a ceiling on how much it will reimburse medicare and medicaid patients for drugs. There are four drug industry lawsuits trying to prevent the federal plan. Advocates of the generic substitutes over the brand-name drugs claim that pharmcaists can effect savings of hundreds of millions of dollars from the $71/2 billion drug bill consumers pay annually for prescription drugs. They claim that generica substitutes are now availabe for 20 per cent to 30 per cent of the brand-name drugs now and in some cases, the generic substitutes would cut the cost of a prescription as much as 80 per cent or more.

The main argument of the drug industry against generic substitutes is that price ceilings such as the federal government is planning to impose will cause a deterioration in quality control and research with the result that fewer drugs become available. Also, claimed savings are 'over-exaggerated." Generic drugs have been available in California since May and substantial savings are being claimed one doctors and pharmacists are made aware of what the California permits. In some cases it will be difficult persuade a physician to std writing "Darvon" and write the generic equivalent which is 'propoxyphene hydorchloride aspirin, phenacetin, nad caffeine.

Pharmacists are undecided about the generic substitute rules. Some believe the new regulation will cut their income by reducing profit margins on brand-name drugs. Others believe the new rule will enable them to do a much greater volume on a smaller inventory with fewer brand-name drugs.

UNDERSTANDING

a health column from the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and lental Health Administratio U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

Why People Drink Alcohol

Studies conducted by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism show that people drink for a variety of social, cultural, religious or medical reasons. They drink at parties and celebrations with friends and relatives. They drink in religious ceremonies. Some drink wine to complement the taste of food. Some drink to relax. Some drink to increase their appetites.

The drinking of most people is "integrative" drinking; that is, the use of alcohol is an adjunct to other activities, such as meals, family and religious feasts, or an evening with friends.

Among Orthodox Jews, native Italians, and other groups for whom alcohol is part of religious or social traditions, there is a low incidence of problem drinking, though there is almost universal use of alcoholic beverages.

Some people, however, use alcohol for its own sake, for the anesthetizing effect it has on the mind and the body. These are the people who cannot do without alcohol; who drink to get drunk; who drink, for courage; who use alcohol as an escape from life: who drink to forget their worries; who cannot have fun without alcohol; who use alcohol as a drug. These uses of alcoholic beverages often lead to drinking problems.

Can alcoholic beverages be harmful? All substances which exert an effect on the brain have the potential to be dangerous. This is true of alcohol. Irresponsible use of alcohol includes the heavy risk of harming oneself or

On the other hand, responsible use of alcoholic beverages has been widely practiced throughout history without negative effects or comequences. Of those persons in our society who choose to drink, most do so without harm to themselves or others.

Summer Slump, I failed to notice it - but just in case there was one, we're back in full swing - with a full head of steam and Hustlin' for Hereford.

Some of you may be wondering about the status of some of our Community projects and activities, so I'll try to bring v'all up to date.

SINCE THE 1ST OF JUNE, we've conducted or participated n 11 agriculture tours; sold Some 800 tickets to the T*E*X*A*S production; conducted a dozen openings of new businesses; experienced one icentennial and one centennial; ublished 3 editions of The olunteer; attended the annual onference of Texas Chamber of ommerce Managers (3 board meetings and a planning onference); worked with Miss Hereford and escorted her to Miss Texas Pageant and Miss Wheatheart of the Nation Pageant; completed 4th and 5th ession of Chamber Management school; held one tennis ournament (played in three didn't win in any); attended ntold meetings, conferences, minars and work shops; and ave 2 pints of blood.

Oh, we also got to see our two randsons for the first time ince 1971 and we sent the last our brood off to school at ech! NOW, FOR THE FORTH-COMING activities; having mpleted the welcome of some new teachers, we're ready to heer on "Hereford's-Hustlin'-Herd" as the favorite of District AAAA; participate in the nual Texas Industrial Develoment Conference; conduct eetings of WTCC Task Force communicate the agriculture ituation; review the GOALS for ROGRESS and recommend ssignment of specific tasks, articipate in Fiestas Patrias; nduct seminars and classes in e American Free Enterprise products at the annual West Texas Chamber Executives Conference; complete action on the annual Chamber election; review bylaws, policies, budget and put together the basis for a 1977 Program of Work; also plan to give two more pints of blood and enjoy the long Labor Day Week end by trying to catch WHEW! This Hustlin' Community sure does takes lots of HUSTLE! HUSTLE! HUSTLE!

P.S. I'd like to call attention to one of the projects of the Goals for Progress. High on the priority list of projects is "YMCA". That specific goal has long been a dream of many people in this Community. That dream is now becoming a reality through the efforts of our local leadership.

On Saturday, September 11, the "Y" will hold its Membership Roundup Campaign at the Community Center, 9:00 to 5:00. Community support is what will make this community project a successful endeavor - and you and I need to provide that support and the necessary HUSTLE, HUSTLE, HUSTLE!

CINNAMON SURPRISE BUNS

1 pkg. dry yeast ¼ cup warm wat 1 cup milk, scalded % cup butter 1 tsp. salt 3-4 cups all-purpose flour 2 eggs, beaten 1/2 tsp. vanilla 24 large marshma 1/2 cup chopped pecans ¼ cup melted butter 1/2 cup sugar 1-1/2 tsp. cinnamor

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add milk, 1/2 cup sugar, butter, salt, eggs, vanilla and 1-1/2 cups flour. Mix well. Add enough of remaini flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto floured surface and kneed about five minutes. Place dough in oiled bowl; cover and let rise until double in bulk, about one hour. Punch down dough; place on floured surface and roll out 1/4-inch thick. Cut into 4-inch circles. Combine 1/4 cup sugar, cinnamon and pecans. Dip marshmallows into 1/4 cup nelted butter, then into sugar mixture. Place marshmallow in center of each circle of dough. Wrap dough around marshmallow, pinching together securely at bottom. Dip top of roll into butter and then into sugar mixture. Place in greased muffin tins, cover and let rise until doubled. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. The marshmallow will melt, leaving the center of the bun hollow and coated with syrup. Yield: approximately 24 buns.
