Times rains which tell over widely scattered portions of the county in April and Max insured that drylandwheatwould te harvested here this year, after the counts jost 100,000 acres of dryland whear in the drought of 1976

-WE'RE ALREADY winding up some of the driviand acreage, and the irrigated wheat is beginning to roll in now," reported Jue Artho, manager of Hereford Grain Corporation.

Artho said that dryland wheat test weights have been excellent, primarily in the 64 pound range, and that yields have been as high as 25 bushels per acre.

We expect the dryland harvest to continue through Wednesday, and we could be taking in grain from our last irrigated fields as early as June 20." he

Walter Seed of Pitman Grain in Hereford was also impressed with local dryland wheat yields

"WE HAVE HEARD of yields ranging from 18-25 bushels, which is really pretty good when you consider everything that this year's crop has been through." Seed commented

He reported test weights ranging from 60 to 63 pounds per bushel and estimated that most Pitman customers should be wrapping up the wheat harvest by June

Both Artho and Seed indicated that no protein figures are available on this year's crop at this early stage of the

Dale Walfford of Dawn Co-Op reported that wheat harvest in the area east of Hereford is slightly behind areas in the western most portions of the county, with harvesting just getting underway during the past week.

Although farmers in some sections of the country are having trouble finding ample storage space for what may be a two billion bushel wheat crop nationwide. local elevator spokesmen indicated last week that ample storage should be available for the county's crop.

Storage problems may arise when corn and grain sorghum is harvested this fall, however, if some of the wheat being placed into storage now is not moved

WHAT LOCAL farmers would really like to see now is a sudden and dramatic upsurge in exports of U.S. wheat.

But they know that the likelihood of an increase in wheat exports in the near future is about as good as the chances for a two inch soaker for their thirsty corn crops in mid-July.

All farmers can do is gather their golden grain and wait for an upturn in the

Getting A Firsthand Look

While local farmers are in the process of harvesting this year's wheat crop, officials of the indian flour and bakery industries were in Hereford Friday as part of a tour to study types and qualities of wheat in the Texas Panhandle-Plains region. During the local stopover, they visited the facilities of Hereford Grain Corporation's west office. Here, Indian team members examine the workings of the scales at the firm's office. Teacher Compensates For Disability

Big Heart Overcomes No Hands

BY KEITH RIBNICK Brand Staff Writer

Mrs. Annell Holland is about what you might expect to find teaching a remedial reading class at Shirley Elementary School. She is strict when necessary, knows her job and her students, and loves

But Mrs. Holland is different than most teachers in the Hereford school system. She was born without hands and has had to adjust her lifestyle accordingly.

"I think you have to work to achieve things. It's no handicap to me," said Mrs. Holland, a 20-year teacher in northwest Texas.

Her physical "handicap" is not all that separates Mrs. Holland from the average--she was a high school graduate at age 15, received her bachelor's degree in education at 18 and an education master's degree at 19, and began teaching immediately thereafter.

Fritch was Mrs. Holland's first teaching post, where she spent six years, each day commuting from Canyon. Her husband. Taylor ran a business in

Mrs. Holland went to Lubbock in 1960 as a teacher, commuting to Canyon on the weekends to visit her husband

During her one-year stay in Lubbock, Mrs. Holland became somewhat of a local celebrity in the South Plains city. On Sept. 2, 1960, the Lubbock Avalance-Journal newspaper ran a front-page feature story of the "local teacher without hands". The story was so well-liked that the Avalanche-Journal printed several subsequent stories concerning Mrs.

Hereford became Mrs. Holland's next home, this time shared with her husband. She has spent 13 years with the district as a grade school teacher.

'Sometimes I'm very strict, but the kids respond to me. Sometimes the children aren't sure about learning. I know the kids can do it, though," Mrs. Holland said.

Mrs. Holland currently teaches remedial reading from the second through fourth grades at Shirley Elementary School. Many of her students are one or more years behind the regular grade-levels for their age. The children stay with Mrs. Holland for 20 and 30 minute periods each school day. In some cases, her students make two years worth of reading progress in one year.

"Hereford schools surpass all other schools in this area. For its size, I'd say Hereford is really good, 'Mrs. Holland

Mrs. Holland has found that a "lot of people feel very strongly" about her handicap. Many residents of the Panhandle have taken "double-takes" when they realize that Mrs. Holland has signed a $15.5 billion general appropriations bill Friday that will keep Texas in the black the next two years without any new taxes.

Briscoe made no comment with the terse announcement from his office that he approved the 400-page measure without changing a line by veto- the first time in 20 years for a two-year state

The 1957 appropriations bill was unmarked by Gov. Allan Shivers, who previously had okayed several other two-year budgets without veto.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated state income for 1978-79 at about $16.4 billion which means the state spending bill leaves room for the proposed $900 million public school financing if a measure can be approved by the special legislative session meeting

Briscoe said earlier that he felt the 27 per cent increase- from $12.1 billion to $15.5 billion -was justified by the state increased income. Among other things, the state budget includes a 3.4 per cent pay raise increase each year for state employes, plus another 5.8 per cent, or $61.8 million, in 1979 to pay the employes' share of social security payments on salaries up to Dependant children in welfare families will get a raise from $32 to $35 per month. An extra $40 million was set aside for a prison hospital at Galveston to be operated in conjunction with the University of Texas Medical School.

Another $40 million will go to set up the Texas's first statewide adult probation system, effective in 1979. Now all probation supervision is handled on the local level.

Briscoe also signed a bill upgrading the 31 domestic relations courts, now financed by counties, to family district courts, funded partly by the state. Judges could buy into the state judicial retirement system, relinquishing their rights to locally funded retirement benefits.

The governor would appoint the first judges in the newly upgraded courts. He also signed a bill creating 25 new district courts, including seven in Harris County, four in Dallas County, two in Travis County and one each in El Paso. (See APPROPRIATIONS, Page 2)

General Cleared With Reprimand

WASHINGTON (AP)- A three-star general called on the carpet for a ontroversial speech is heading for his new command with a light reprimand from Army officials coupled with praise for his record

Army officials took no action to sidetrack the scheduled promotion or new assignment of Lt. Gen. Donn A. Starry. who had warned publicy that the United States may wind up in the middle of a Soviet-Chinese war.

Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Chief of Staff Bernard Rogers met privately with Starry for 30 minutes Friday night. They said in a joint statement issued following the meeting they had told him of their "mutual concern" that he had not followed regulations to have his remarks cleared in advance.

Violence Continues in Wake Of Soweto

JOHNANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)- Police shot and killed seven blacks in two segregated townships near the coast, pushing to 12 the number killed in four days of violence marking the anniversary of the bloody Soweto riots.

Thirty-three persons were injured and 278 arrested in confrontations with police Friday in the black townships of kwanohuble and Kabah, outside the white city of Uitenhage 500 miles southwest of Johannesburg. Property damage was estimated at $1.5 million.

Police Brig, P.J. Hugo, head of riot control for the townships, said officers fatally shot five blacks trying to loot a liquor store in Kwanobuhle. Two blacks died when the liquor store they were ransaching caught fire, he added.

In Pretoria, South Africa's capital, a passenger in a government vehicle shot and killed a 20-year-old black after some 150 blacks stoned the car, police said. It was not known if his assailant had been

Bury The Past

You've been watching our Vice President and our ambassador to the United Nations traipse around the world telling our leaders how to run their countries

You figured this sounded most impertinent, and certainly not good neighborly.

If any of those countries would send a Vice President over here to try to overthrow our government we'd tell him to shut up, and get out and mind his own business. That is what they are telling

Internationally, our diplomats who should be peace-making are instead fanning old fires. None more than our U.N.

Any of us, looking backward through history, can find a cause to feel sorry for ourselves. The streets of Paris were awash with the blood of Huguenots--yet for Americans of that descent to carry a grudge against the Pope or against Catholics per se would be wasteful and debilitating. Somewhere up the road ahead blacks are going to have to forget the slave traders; Jews are going to have to put Buchenwald behind them; American Indians are going to have to about-face from the "Trail of Tears" and get on with the business of living today

It is as futile and unproductive for Atlanta to remain at war with Gen. Sherman as it is for pound shuttle the size of a jet-linter, was carried to 15,000 feet attached atop a modified Boeing 747 jumbo jet, which had its own crew of four.

The flight, originally scheduled for 42 minutes, lasted longer because the Houston control center had trouble receiving some data from the shuttle and ordered several tests rerun.

Haise wasthe first to leave the craft at 9:50 a.m. PDT, about 50 minutes after the shuttle and its partner jumbo jet touched down. Fullerton, the pilot, followed a few moments later.

The two astronauts were lowered 40 feet from the shuttle hatchway by an Air Force firetrick "cherry picker." These astroanuats chatted a few minutes with space agency officials and then were driven away in a van to be debriefed.

The piggyback testing is designed to simulate the shuttle's eventual takeoff. The shuttle will go into space on a rocket in the 1980s, then will detach and fly by itself with crew and supplies to build space stations. It will be able to land again on earth to be reused as many as 100 times.

The shuttle and its jet partner flew at 209 miles an hour during most of the flight over the 98-mile racetrack-shaped oval at the Dryden Flight Research

The system carries more than 9,000 fulltime simultaneous two-way telephone conversations, television and telex, data and facsimile traffic.

And Intelsat is meeting its financial goal of 14 per cent return on invested capital.

What makes communications satellites so effective is the unique position of their signal relays. When placed in orbit 22,300 miles above the equator. a satellite moves in syncronization with the planet, making its circuit in exactly the time required for a full earth rotation., That keeps the payload stationary with respect to any point on earth.

And because such satellites are so high it takes only three of them, evenly spaced around the equator, to be within constant view of any place on earth except the areas around around the two poles.

To send a message over conventional land lines or micro-wave requires a repeater or amplifier every 30 miles or so. But it takes only one amplification to send a message from a transmitter anywhere within a satellite's covering range to a receiving station at any other point. It costs no more to bounce something off a satellite 22,300 miles away than one that is two miles away.

Early Bird touched off a rate war with the international cable industry that changed the economics of long-distance communications. When the satellite was launched in 1965, it added 240 transatlantic voice circuits to the 522 then carried by underwater cable. Within a Former Press Agent

In 1965, this organization year, transatlantic phone rates

Since them, more underwater more satellites launched, so there are now nearly 13,000 transatlantic voice circuits, almost evenly divided between cable and satellite. And transatlantic phone rates are about half what they were in

A three-minute cable telephone call between New York and London before Early Bird cost $12. The tariff today is $5. In 1965, the charge for one hour of prime time color television via the satellite was $22,350. The cost today is $5,100. Comsat's annual charge to U.S. carriers for a voice-grade half circuit to Europe has dropped in the same period from $32,000 to $7,380.5

When a new advanced series of Intelat satellites is launched starting in 1979, the price is expected to fall even lower.

Cables have an advantage in that their anticipated lifetime is at least 25 years, compared with seven for an Intelsat. But laying a transatlantic cable is considerably more expensive than launching a satellite.

It is costing 17 nations $191 million to lay a sixth cable, carrying 4,000 circuits, between the United States and Europe. It costs Intelsat about $49 million to orbit a satellite carrying 6,600 circuits. Technological improvements are expected to extend the life of later navloads

Why Intelsat has formed a global network, several countries have established their own domestic satellite systems, commonly called domsats, for communications within national

Canada was the first, launching its Anik Eskimo for brother satellite in 1972, and for the first time isolated villages, some north of the Arctic Circle, received telephone and television service.

on U.S. domsats. The FCC said any U.S. company that could prove its financial and technical capability could put up a satellite if were in the public interest. Many U.S. companies scrambled to get on the Western Union was the first, inaugurating service with its Westar satellites in 1974. RCA followed with a Satcom satellite in 1975, and Comsat General jumped in with the Comstar system in 1976, leasing circuits to American Telephone and Telegraph and General Telehone and Electronics. Comsat General also orbited two Marisat satellites for a system it leases to the U.S. Navy and commercial ships allowing them telephone service to the U.S. from anywhere at sea.

The companies pay NASA to launch the satellites.

These U.S. systems provide 73,400 two-way voice circuits. Another 14,400 circuits will be added in 1980 when Satellite Business Systems SBS orbits its first statellite. SBS is a consortium of International Business Machines, Aetna transmitting everything from Casualty and Life and Comsat General.

The signal from the SBS satellites will be so strong that it can beam to relatively small antennas, less than 30 feet in diameter, that can be placed on building rooftops. Thus, SBS customers with enough traffic to justify their own antennas will be able to bypass the phone companies' connections to the nearest satellite ground station.

An experimental NASA satellite ATS-6, has demonstrated the last couple years the feasibility of this direct broadcast technique. That payload has been used to transmit medical and educational TV programs to remote areas of Appalachia, the Rocky Mountains and Alaska. U.S. domsats have created one new television network. Time Inc.,'s Home Box Office subsidiary, which uses an RCA Satcom for a cable TV system. The Corporation for Public Broadcasting has applied to the FCC to put its national TV net on a Western Union satellite Revenues from these commercial U.S. satellites are still small, with a 1977 estimate of about $50 million, but they are expected to grow rapidly. By the 1980s, the companies anticipate annual revenues between $1 and $2 billion.

U.S. domsats are used more for data transmissions because the land-based telephone system in this country is so efficient.

For high-speed data, satellites are far superior to land systems which are subject to error because of so many switching mechanisms on longdistance transmissions.

As cable systems increase.

movies to sports events. satellite operators foresee increasing business in this area. New services, such as videovoice teleconferences linking many cities, may become practical on a large scale.

The operators also see a large market in selling industries and even cities and states packages of communications servicesvoice data, TV. They also can provide a data collection system transmitting information from numerous points to a central delivery point.

The U.S. military services. which have an extensive system of communications satellites. use data collection systems for warning, intelligence and surveillance. Civil needs for weather, agricultural, geographic and geological data are traditionally provided by government, but there are many possibilities for commercial applications.

Another distribution service expected to expand is highresolution facsimile. It could produce "electronic mail" and truly national newspapers. The Wall Street Journal, for example, uses a satellite to transmit facsimile pages from its Chicopee, Mass., production plant to printing plants in Brunswick, N.J., and Orlando, Fla., thus speeding delivery to cities throught the Southeast, Mid-Atlantic and Northeast

As technology improves, it will become possible to receive a broadcast from a satellite with ground equipment little different from today's home radio receivers. Carrying this a step further, experts say the continuing developments of miniaturized circuitry will make feasible the idea of wristwatchsize personal communicators earth.

THE LITTLE GIANT

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - One of the new members of the Pro Football Hall of Farne, Bill Willis, would be considered almost a midget by modern standards for an interior lineman position.

Bill, who played middle guard on defense for the Cleveland Browns from 1946 to 1953. was only 210 pounds, spread loosely over a 6-foot, 2-inch frame. But he was a savage tackler and very difficult for blockers to wipe out. He was an All-Pro seven times.

The Rangers bought Ellis from the Oakland A's minutes before the Wednesday night trading deadline. Ranger owner Brad Corbett says he shelled out $250,000 for Ellis' contract despite a 2-6 performance and an earned run average of 6.31 so far this year.

"My rap is going to stay with me," Ellis said while watching the Rangers split a double-header with Seattle Friday night. "because I was a bleep when I was young. I never thought anything that I have done...lt just sticks with you." The man who once wore hai curlers on the field with the Pitts burgh Pirates and got fined for it had nothing but a lot more bleeps to say about his association with Charley Finley's A's.

But, while he's not been seen lighting any of Corbett's cigars. Ellis gives every indication he's willing to call Arlington home.

"Man, these people are contenders and I like that." he said. "And I would have to like it better than Oakland because I am getting paid. I only talked to Corbett on the phone so what can I say about him. I knew I had to go somewhere, sometime. Three teams were after me Chicago, Texas and California and I just figured that I was going."

Ellis is wearing his uniform of the season. Both the A's and the Yankees tried the Ellis mystique

A father is a thing that is forced to endure childbirth without an anesthetic.

A father is a thing that growls when it feels good and laughs very loud when it's scared half to

A father is sometimes accused of giving too much time to his business when the little ones are growing up.

That's partly fear, too.

Fathers are much more easily frightened than mothers.

A father never feels entirely worthy of the worship in a child's eyes.

He's never quite the hero his daughter thinks, never quite the man his son believes him to be, and this worries him, sometimes. So he works too hard to smooth the rough places in the road for those of his own who will follow A father is a thing that gets very angry when the first school grades aren't as good as he thinks they should be. He scolds his son, though he knows it's the teacher's fault.

A father is a thing that goes away to war,

And learns to swear and shoot and spit through his teeth and would run the other way except that this war is part of his only important job in life, which is making the world better for his child than it has been for him.

Fathers grow old faster than people.

Because they, in other wars, have to stand at the train station and wave goodby to the uniform that climbs aboard.

And while mothers can cry where it shows, fathers have to stand there and beam outside--and

Fathers have very stout hearts, so they have to be broken sometimes or no one would know what's Fathers are what give daughters away to other men who aren't nearly good enough so they can have grandchildren that are smarter than anybody's.

Fathers fight dragons--almost daily.

They hurry away from the breakfast table, off to the arena which is sometimes called an office or a workshop.

There, with calloused, practiced hands, they tackle the dragon with three heads: Weariness, Work and Monotony.

And they never quite win the fight, but they never give up.

Knights in shining armor, fathers in shiny trousers--there's little difference, as they march away to each workday.

Fathers make bets with insurance companies about who'll live the longest.

Though they know the odds, they keep right on betting.

Even as the odds get higher and higher, they keep right on betting, more and more.

And one day they lose. But fathers enjoy an earthly immortality...and the bet's paid off to the part of him he leaves I don't know where fathers go when they die.

But I've an idea that after a good rest, whereever it is, he won't be happy unless there's

He won't just sit on a cloud and wait for the girl he's loves and the children she bore.

He'll be busy there, too, repairing the stairs, oiling the gates, improving the streets, smoothing the way.

DAY OF FREEDOM--June 19, celebrated for years by Texas Negroes as the date on which they were freed from slavery, is being revived in some areas as Black Heritage Day.

On June 19, 1865, Gen. Gordon Granger, military commander of Texas, read the executive order freeing Texas blacks from slavery. A few days later, Gouverneur Stroud gathered his slaves together on his plantation near the Comanche Crossing of the Navasota River in Limestone County and read the proclamation to them.

A 15-acre tract at Comanche Crossing (now Lake Mexia) became a site where Texas blacks gathered each ensuing year to celebrate "Juneteenth."

Until the early 1950's, Emancipation Day was a kind of unofficial statewide holiday for Negroes. Places that were off limits to them the rest of the year (like the State Fair of Texas midway and most parks and zoos) welcomed them for this one day. In smaller towns, they dressed in their best clothes and staged parades or enjoyed picnics. After new civil rights laws went into effect in the 1960's, many blacks felt that a separate holiday was not in the spirit of racial integration. Except for gatherings at a few places like Comanche Crossing, the day was largely ignored.

In 1976, however, Black Heritage Day celebrations were held in several places on June 19. They ranged from parades, picnics, and cultural exhibits to a rodeo in Grayson County.

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY-It probably won't appear in a biography, but the late Howard Hughes once entertained himself making mud pies on the present site of the First Baptist Church in Dallas.

Howard's great-grandfather, Mj. Gen. Richard M. Gano, had a home there at that time. Young Howard visited there often as a toddler.

Some family members believe that Hughes inherited much of his adventurous spirit from his great-grandfather. Gano was an Indian fighter in early Texas, served with distinction in the Civil War and later was a prominent physician in Dallas.

He also preached as a sideline and claimed to have baptized more than 16,000 sinners during his time in the pulpit.

REMEMBER WHEN--Many Texas counties had "poor farms"?

They originated after 1876 when the Texas Legislature adopted the so-called Elizabethan Poor Laws of England. The laws allowed a county to establish farms where the indigent, sick and mentally ill were sent.

The idea was that these unfortunates could raise crops for their own food and sell the surplus for cash. "County farms," as they later came to be called, existed in some Texas counties until the late 1930's when public welfare programs came into vogue. lines passing through various school districts was offered by Whether lightning ever strikes twice is immaterial if it strikes you once.

People who wait for their tips to come in often failed to tend the launching.

On Wall Street

The Federal Trade Commission is now planning a strong attack on advertising that far surpasses anything that Washington regulators have tried before. The FTC is going all out against promotional campaigns, even those which do not misrepresent, if they encourage shoppers to make unwise buying decisions.

It is a difficult question, for instance, whether children are a proper target for advertising at all. If they are not a tproper target, then any commericials aimed at children could be labeled unfair. There is even a possible case against any sales promotion that encourages "materialism" by trying to get consumers to buy things they otherwise would not.

Another area of prime concern at the FTC is energy. Lots of ads encourage consumers to waste the very resources that the Carter administration is trying to get to conserve. The FTC points out that there are a large number of ads for electric hair dryers. It believes that it is unfair that there is not opportunity for someone to say that if you wait 15 minutes, you hair gets dry anyway. Another question at the FTC has to do with obesity. Is the problem of over-weight women among low-income women because they are particularly bombarded with ads for calorie-heavy foods?

The commission has already begun probing how cigarette companies use consumer research to focus their promotional spending, and how food and drug advertising could be made to conform to precise rules about health claims.

All of these ideas tend to be radical for the FTC. Even getting less controversial ideas into a workable FTC order is a tough job. The comission recently voted to drop a top priority program: a ban on all TV ads promoting premiums to children. The commission decided that diverting a child's attention from the qualities of products being advertised to a flashy "free" gift was not unlawful.

If the FTC decides to move into some of the gray areas under consideration, there would be an immediate court challenge by groups concerned with freedom of personal choice.

'Born Again' OSHA

By RICHARD LESHER U.S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

That champion federal nit-picker, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, is going to be born again in the Carter Administration.

At least, so says the Department of Labor, in which OSHA is lodged. Dr. Eula Bingham, Labor assistant secretary in charge of OSHA, acknowledges the agency "has been enforcing rules that have caused us to come under ridicule and attack and have undermined the whole climate of OSHA's work. We have to admit where the failures and mistakes are and get on with the real job of saving lives."

OSHA's problems are traceable in part to the circumstances of its birth, and in part of the bureaucratic mentality. When the agency came into existence, it "nationalized" literally thousands of pre-existing safety codes and standards. Many of these standards were too detailed, some of them were obsolete, but most of them were--until OSHA--voluntary, which permitted some tempering with common sense.

OSHA eliminated the common sense factor and began to spend most of its time and energy measuring the size of toilet partitions, the height of fire extinguishers, and the width of aisles. There are over 450 pages of official standards, including such detail as 35 pages of rules specifying the design of "exit" signs, so OSHA inspectors could always find SOMETHING wrong in the course of an inspection.

This dedicated pursuit of the ridiculous by the -inept left a nationwide trail of victimized business people livid with rage. The President's own brother, Billy Carter, typifies the experience many small business operators have had in trying to cope with OSHA. In the May issue of "NATION'S BUSINESS" magazine, he says he had to close down one peanut shelling plant and build another, because "we simply could not meet OSHA requirements in the old plant." He estimates that OSHA and Environmental Protection Agency dictates added 22 per cent to the cost of the new facility, and still they are not satisfied.

Pointing to the top of a grain elevator where the shelling operation starts, he says, "We had to spend $400 for some guardralls up there, one man might go up there once a year."

Meanwhile, OSHA wasn't spending enough time on the big, significant threats to health and safety. The General Accounting Office--a congressional watchdog-recently criticized the agency for issuing fewer than 20 health standards since its birth in 1970.

Dr. Bingham proposes a three key reforms: 1. Get rid of as many of the nit-picking rules as possible, and stop enforcing those that remain. 2. Concentrate inspections on high-hazard industr ies, especially big high-hazard industries. 3. Help businesses--especially small businesses--find ways to become safer, rather than trying to find excuses for penalizing them.

Well, three cheers for Dr. Bingham and Labor Secretary Ray Marshall! If they manage to do what they have proposed, it will be a major victory for both employers AND workers.

The only disadvantage is that I won't have OSHA to kick around anymore. But that's OK....there's still the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Philosophe

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philisopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm, of all people, quotes poetry this week. Dear Editor:

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture the average loaf of bread now contains less than 3 cents worth of wheat, 2.7 cents worth, to be

Just because I don't grow any wheat is no reason why I can't, discuss the matter, any more than a Congressman who adds on his fingers can't discuss intercontinental ballistic missi--

It seems to me therefore that the ancient saying, "Cast your bread upon the water and it will return a hundred-fold," could have a modern version! "Cast" your wheat upon the market and some smart guys will take 2.7 cents worth of it and make a 60 cent loaf of bread out of it."

This is like taking 40 cents worth of cotton and making a $10 shirt out of it. It's like taking $200 worth of steel and making a $5,000 automobile. It's like taking a $100 state legislator and making a $57,000 Congressman out of him.

People blame all this on the middle-man. As I understand it. in the ease of wheat, the middle-men are those people between the wheat grower on his farm and the housewife in the grocery store buying a loaf of bread, and it takes some shrewd people to be able to squeeze from the middle and come out on the top only. You can't do it with an orange.

I guess the only answer to this is to buy our own wheat, grind it up, and make your own bread. You're going to run into trouble though when you try to make that plastic stuff to wrap it in.

Times have changed. Nowadays, if you cast your bread upon the water, it's likely to hit an oil slick. These are the days when it's more profitable to repair applainces than own them.

As the poet said, "A jug of wine, a loaf of bread and thou singing beside me in the wilderness, an, that were paradise enough, so long as farmers will keep on raising wheat at below cost." You can't beat poetry for getting at the

And a female angel nearby said, "What kind of father is that? If You're going to make children so close to the ground, why have You put fathers up so high? He won't be able to shoot marbles without kneeling, tuck a child in bed without bending, or even kiss a child without a lot of stooping."

And God smiled and said, "Yes, but if I make him child-size, who would children have to look up to?"

And when God made a father's hands, they were large and sinewy.

And the angel shook her head sadly and said, "Do You know what You're doing? Large hands are clumsy. They can't manage diaper pins, small buttons, rubber bands on rony tails or even remove splinters caused by baseball bats."

And God smiled and said, "I know, but they're-large enough to hold everything a small boy empties from his pockets at the end of a day . . . yet small enough to cup a child's face."

And then God molded long, slim legs and broad shoulders.

And the angel nearly had a heart attack. "Boy, this is the end of the week, all right," she clucked. "Do You realize You just made a Father without a lap? How is he going to pull a child close to him without the kid falling between his legs?"

And God smiled and said, "A mother needs a lap. A father needs strong shoulders to pull a sled, balance a boy on a bicycle or hold a sleepy head on the way home from the circus."

God was in the middle of creating two of the largest feet anyone had ever seen when the angel could contain herself no longer. "That's not fair. Do You honestly think those large boats are going to dig out of bed early in the morning when the baby cries? Or walk through a small birthday party without crushing at least three of the guests?"

And God smiled and said, "They'll work, You'll see.
They'll support a small child who wants to 'ride a horse to Banbury
Cross,' or scare off mice at the summer cabin, or display shoes that will be a challenge to fill."

God worked throughout the night, giving the father few words, but a firm, authoritative voice; eyes that saw everything, but remained calm and tolerant.

Finally, almost as an afterthought, He added—tears.

Then He turned to the angel and said, "Now, are you satisfied that he can love as much as a mother?"

The angel shutteth up.

BUYING IN QUANTITY FOR CANNING

Buying in quantity is one way consumers can acquire produce for preserving. A few simple guidelines make savings even Purchase what your family can use in a year. After long storage, processed foods begin to lose flavor, nutritive value, and eye appeal.

Purchase foods your family will eat. There is no bargain if produce stays on the shelf or in the freezer.

Purchase from a dealer who carries fresh produce and gives you your money's worth.

If possible, pick your own produce--it is the best assurance of garden-fresh produce. Select produce at farmers' marketsa and roadside stands very carefully--for freshness. Check stem ends, firmness of the flesh, odor, and appearance. When in doubt, don't buy.

In general, before preserving, consider the cost carefully. The cost of canning a quart of tomatoes can be as little as 41/2 cents if jars are on hand and the tomatoes free--or up to 51 cents if both jars and tomatoes are purchased. Researchers estimate that the freezing cost of tomatoes is over 22 cents per pound.

Home canning and freezing are excellent means of preserving fruits and vegetables for later use, and it can be economical with a careful look at costs and quality.

For more information on canning and freezing, call us at 364-3573 or come by Room 304 Courthouse.

> DON'T EAT THE DAFFODILS

WASHINGTON (AP) - Eating daffodils may be hazardous to your health. These and many popular flowers, ornamental shrubs and colorful weeds are poisonous, says National Geographic.

Young children are particularly vulnerable, but even adults often become unthinking nibblers of poisonous plants. "For many it's just sort of an automatic thing to do," said one naturalist. "You snap off a blade of grass or whatever and absent-mindedly stick it in your mouth.'

Commonplace plants like wisteria, Carolina jasmine, ažaleas, rhododendron and even honeysuckle have poisonous parts. The bright berries of privet hedges, pokeweed, ornamental yew trees, mistletoe and night shade can be dangerous if not deadly Glossy leaves of English ivy or poinsettia plants or a twig of olean-Julie and Jerry Thompson are der may be fatal.

Moreover, more than 75 per cent of the letterhead designs didn't fit the corporate product or service category, over 80 percent needed printing improvement and over 60 per cent needed paper upgrading, the

At Wit's End By Erma Bombeck

Boy, the Egyptians had the right idea. When they went they took it all with them, right to the tomb.

A few have tried to revive the custom. There was a woman in New Jersey who was buried with her telephone. (Talk about cruel! Her husband included a 75-foot extension cord!) There was a golfer in Florida who requested he be buried with his clubs on the first green. His will said he always wanted a permanent "hole in one." A couple of months ago in California, a woman requested she be buried in her lace nightgown at the wheel of her Ferrari "with the seat slanted comfortably.'

It got me to thinking, why should I leave my untold wealth to a second wife? Let her amass her own fortune like I did. That is why I am insisting that the following items go with me when I go.

My book of sitters' telephone numbers: This is a first edition that I wear at all times taped to my bra. I have kids in there who will work for 50 cents an hour and all the food that doesn't attack them first. Also, a sweet, little elderly woman who cleans the oven when I'm gone and one woman who believes, "There is no such thing as a rotten kid. He just needs a laxative.'

A letter from the book club telling me of my cancellation: You can't buy letters like this and it took me four years of correspondence, plus the purchase of a Xerox machine to get it. Besides, I don't want to take my chances. If they keep sending me books, I've got proof.

The television warranty: Let her go crazy trying to explain she knows there is still a year or so to go on the picture tube, ut she just can't find the serial number, and it sounds crazy, but the first wife took it with her.

An 1801 antique hatpin: This little antique is unequaled in value and hard to replace. It's the only thing that unlocks the bathroom door from the outside when one of the kids has been in there a day and a half.

One half of a Master's Degree: My husband earned it, but half of it is mine under community poverty. It represented our trip to Europe, a new sofa, screens on the back porch, a sailboat and a garbage compressor.

Page from the sewing machine manual on how to thread the bobbin of my old machine. After all, he didn't promise her a rose garden and if she's everything she told him she is, she'll figure it out--in a year or two.

Eighteen books of green stamps: I didn't buy "specials on day-old fish" and survive 180 Double Stamp Days of combat just to have the second wife get the ping-pong table. If I can't feel the exhilaration of turning in all those books at the redemption center, no one else will.

The rest she can have... the kids who eat every three hours, the husband who, if she cooks Dinosaur Hocks with green beans for dinner, had it for lunch... the lemon-scented house in the suburbs... she can even have my car.

Of course, I'll take along the only set of keys for it.

Ann Landers CB'ers 'Come back'

CB BUDDIES: This is Battle-Axe Annie in Lincoln-Land. Hear me one and all. The letter from "Mad in Illinois" ther nose was out of joint because people in Florida hog the air with their ultra powerful equipment) unleashed a torrent of mail from CBers from every state in the union. For example:

DEAR ANN: "Mad" is also ignorant. That crock should know that those Floridians (and others from Pennsylvania and Arizona) are not pushing power. The problem is an atmospheric condition called "skip," caused by sunspots and other solar activity. There's no cure for it--K.A.I.D .-- 7777 North Caro-

DEAR ANN: The worst offenders are teenagers who think the CB is a toy. They get on and shoot the breeze for hours--as if it was a telephone. One 18-year-old who I happen to know personally yakked until 5:00 a.m. last week-- 'garbage talk." The government should knock this riff-raff off the air.

DEAR ANN: I live in Ohio. We get power jerks mainly from North and South Carolina, Nevada, New Mexico, Mississippi and Georgia. When the skip rolls in, as they say, it's impossible to talk local--and annoying as hell .-- Buckeye Bill

DEAR ANN: It's not those rich Floridians who go for broke on their high-powered equipment, it's the extrovert whose brain is in neutral while his mouth is in high gear. The channels are full of bragging about equipment and distant point reached. Then some clown puts on a six-year-old kid who talks nonsense. This, plus the foul language and namecalling, kills it for everybody .--Corn-Balled In Wrinkle City

DEAR ANN: CBers who dominate the channels are "BAD Buddies." The worst are the showoffs who operate out of souped-up base stations that send out distorted signals. They ruin it for the fair players.

DEAR ANN: That Illinois griper said she couldn't get through to her mother who was parked outside in front of her house. I suggest she throw her 10-9 station in the Chicago River and get a set that will put her in 10-8 frequency.--Purple Pickle

Atop The Golden Gate Bridge DEAR ANN: How can that Illinois idiot complain about Florida interference when she is trying to call her mother who is 100 feet away? It's nuts like her who loused up the VHF and Marine bands, once used for emergencies on the Great

DEAR ANN: High-powered sets make it tough for people who respect the law. Most of those dummies don't even know the people they're talking to. All they say is, "How's the weather down there?" Or, "How am I getting out?" Where's the FCC. anyway?--Also Drowned Out

WESTGATE NEWS By Bea Noland

Open house of May 26th was gay party for those that came to Westgate and especially for the residents. Many of the ladies added to the fiesta occasion by wearing pretty afternoon dresses.

The refreshment was set in the courtyard and was hosted by the Auxiliary ladies. The table was pretty with trays of fresh fruit, tea sandwiches and punch. The refreshments were very refreshing as well as attractive to the guest and residents.

Mrs. Nina Frances McMeans furnished piano music for the afternoon, her music always adds to a fiestive mood.

For June, the most exciting news has been the Popcorn Popper that the Lions Club of Hereford has ordered for the residents. This had to be special ordered as it is a special antique decor on a regular Whiz Bang Popper and is called "Gay 90's Whiz Bang Popcorn Cart".

The antique-themed Whiz Bang is mounted on a small 20 x 28 two wheeled cart - looks almost as attractive as a 3 thousand dollar antique popcorn wagon. This unit is NSF approved. Now, do not be surprised if you hear some of our residents shouting good hot Gertrude Probasco. Myrtle Perry, Fay Jung. Vera Carlyle, Alvin Hughes and Stacy London. These people had a double birthday party as the Episcopal ladies auxiliary and the Palo Dura Baptist Church Juniors hosted the party.

The ladies from the Episcop Church were Mrs. John Hine, Mrs. Alton Fraizer, Mrs. Jack Wilcox, Mrs. Bruce Miller, Mrs. Robert Stewart, Mrs. Johnnie Claypool and young son Coe.

Mrs. Jack Wilcox had made miniature corsages for each honoree, using flowers from her gardenia bush which was certainly an unusual and unselfish gesture, for a gardenia plant is a rare thing in Hereford.

The Palo Duro group were Jamie Lowen and Lane Mason. Ruth and Robert McGaughey. Joan, Penny and Marie Gwyn, William and Jerre Carr, Debbie and Buz Jordan, Windy Criss. Betty, Carrie, Danny and Mathon Williams, Tracy Snell, June and Donna Rey and Rev. Bill Tanner.

The Birthday Cake was done by Mrs. Debbs Knox. Each honoree's name was on the cake surrounded by a nosegay decor.

Mrs. Wilma Bryan has charge of the schedule of birthday parties so if you would like to help with a party call her at 364-5657 and these are done so far in advance it might be a good idea to confirm your date the week of the party so we won't have a double party.

Harvesting, Grain Handling Viewed

Indian Team Eyes Local Wheat Industry

By JIM STEIERT Brand Farm Editor

A TEAM of flour and bakery officials from India visited the Hereford area Friday during a tour of the Panhandle Plains to study types and qualities of wheat in this region.

Bill Nelson of the Texas Wheat Producers Board office in Amarillo guided the Indian team on a tour of a wheat farm owned by Leo Witkowski near Dawn, and also guided stops at grain handling facilities at Dawn and Hereford.

National host for the group was the U.S. Wheat Associates, a market development arm for U.S. wheat producers which works in Asia and the Far East.

Members of the Indian delegation here included Nirmal K. Jain, vice president of U.P. Roller Flour Millers; P. Govindswamy, executive committee member of the Roller Flour Miller's Federation of India; Jasbir G. Bhandari, vice president of M.P. Roller Flour Miller's Association; Dr. Vithal B. Mitbander, vice president of the Society of Indian Bakers: Dr.

throughout Friday's tour, the Indian team was shown how quality maintenance is stressed produced grain.

"The maintenance of quality begins at the local elevator, and we spent a good deal of time looking at the procedures followed in testing grain and handling it when it is delivered to the elevator," Nelson reported.

India is currently one of the largest importers of American wheat, and for the last three years, has imported greater quantities of wheat than any other foreign customer, according to Kandhari.

In 1975-76, she imported 6.4 million tons or 260 million bushels of American wheat. when she was the largest customer, following that position held by China and Russia in previous years.

"OUR MAIN purpose is to use more wheat in our country," hari. "Much wheat is utilized for food, but very little is used in NELSON REPORTED that bread and other pastries," he added.

Kandhari reported that agriculture accounts for 50 per cent in the handling of locally of the national income in India, and while the No. 1 crop is rice. wheat is also an important > "Agriculture is an important industry, but it is one which is extremely dependent on weather. If we have a good monsoon season, everything is bright, but if the monsoon season is poor, everything is gloom and doom." he pointed out.

According to Kandhari, India enjoyed a good production year last year and harvested slightly over a billion bushels of the golden grain-still only half of the total U.S. wheat harvest.

"OUR COUNTRY is one of the largest wheat producers in the world, but we are also one of the world's largest users of wheat." he stated.

Currently self-sufficient in food grains with a reserve of some 12 million tons of wheat.

India's wheat imports have beer only 3.7 million tons this year and will probably drop to only two million tons in 1978, much to the despair of American producers.

India's use of biscuit, (cookie and cracker) flour has increased by 23 per cent however, and current food reserves represent only about two month's consumption for the country. These reserves would be used up in less than a year if a poor monsoon season occurred. according to Dick Baum. president of Western Wheat Associates.

KANDHARI REPORTED that average wheat yields in India are considerably lower than in the U.S., with the overall average approximately 23 bushels per acre.

"Our wheat has high protein content, but it isn't very good for breadmaking." stated the Indian, who has worked for 17 years in New Delhi as WWA's permanent staff director.

Nelson explained that Kandhari works for local wheat producers in India just as he does out of his Amarillo office.

'The biggest expansion of wheat use in India is in the area of utilization of hard red winter wheat, such as that which is grown in the Panhandle-Plains area. New markets such as this are brought about by work supported by a 1/2 cent-bushel self-assessment among wheat producers in Texas," said Nelson.

KANDHARI SPOKE on agricultural progress in his country, stating, "One of the big satisfactions for me has been seeing India move from dependence on other countries to commercial production of wheat."

The Indian flour and bakery officials were scheduled to travel to Oklahoma, City following their stop here.

Prior to their departure, they indicated that India should continue importation of U.S. wheat as demand for the golden grain increases in their highly populated country.

Grain Producers Can Get Instant Facts On Markets

"What can I get for my grain?"

That's the question on the minds of farmers as the hot, dry weather of recent days sparks a scramble for combines and storage space during this season's winter wheat harvest.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), in cooperation with the Texas State Department of Agriculture, can help answer questions a farmer may have about the latest grain

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) is the agency responsible for gathering and distributing market news reports to producers and other people in the grain industry. AMS reporters are trained professionals who provide up-to-the-minute-un-biased grain market reports to those who need it where they need it. AMS has grain market reporters stationed in 26 major markets around the country. Market news offices are connected by a nation-wide leased wire network, a data communications system, 23,500 miles long. a

The information gathered by AMS is made available to news media through direct contact and by mailed reports? But during the harvest season, with prices sometimes changing in a matter of hours, farmers need a "hot line" to the best source of market news. Probably the quickest and most efficient way of getting "instant market news" is by calling one of several phone lines located around Texas offering official Federal-State grain market reports.

Stan Krenek, grain market reporter in Austin, says the Texas lines are updated twice daily at 10:00 a.m. and again at 4:00 p.m. Krenek said wire reports and information from phone calls are used to compile the market reports.

"In mid-afternoon, we start making our phone calls," Krenek said. "We talk to elevator operators to find out what they're offering to farmers."

We look over our phone calls, compile a cross-section of allethe information we receive, then release our reports around 4:00 p.m.," he added.

Krenek said the afternoon report includes closing prices on wheat, grain sorghum, corn and soybeans, futures prices, the Houston cash grain market and Naman is referring to the Beef Research and Information set and its official referendum which sets a voting period July 5 through 15 at local ASCS offices. It calls for an assessment of three-tenths of one percent to collect an estimated $40 million to be administered by a Beef Board.

"The proponents of this program," Naman observed, are spending a great deal of out-of-pocket expenses and organizational funds to propogandize passage. I question whether they have some motive in this, possibly the ten per cent kickback of the state's collections to a state organization for undetermined purposes. This would amount to $600,000 in Texas per year that could

Naman also noted that several media are currently enjoying some of the paid advertising spent to promote the program. He questioned whether those same media might by eyeing advertising accounts from the Beef Board if the referendum

There is too much discretionary power placed in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture, Naman continued. "This automatically makes the board good or bad, depending on whether the secretary is good or bad. This makes the whole structure political and removes it from the hands of the people, making it somewhat of a concealed government program.

"The whole structure and operation provisions are stripped of any safeguards, there is accountability to the producer and no guarantee that the board will serve the producers, or the producers simply be in the position of financing the board without a voice. There is only one producer vote; the remainder is political and special interest appointments and decisions. Procedures for a recall vote are too difficult, especially, when periodic review by producers should be a part of the law itself. The simple solution to many of these problems would be a direct election for members of the Beef Board," Naman claimed.

Pros, Cons Listed On Beef Plan

The registration period for the upcoming referendum on the Beef Market Development Plan is over now, and cattlemen will be returning to their local ASCS offices July 5-15 to cast votes which could play a large role in determining the future fate of their industry.

AS THE VOTING time approaches, arguments from opponents and proponents of the national check-off program become increasingly evident.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service has taken a solely educational role in the referendum, and presents the views of both opponents and proponents of the plan, so that cattlemen can weigh the facts and arrive at an enlightened decision before they cast their Opponents to the beef check-off program, for example, are calling it a mandatory program. And, they are right. It is mandatory in that the money is to be checked off and submitted to the Beef Board at the point of slaughter.

On the other hand, the proponents call the check-off program voluntary. And, they are right, too. It is voluntary in that the cattlemen have a choice to leave their check-off money in the program or submit a request for a refund of the money they contributed to the program via the value added check-off system.

HOWEVER, THERE is even argument over how easy the refund process will be made. The enabling act reads: "That such demand (for refund) shall be made in accordance with regulations on a form and within a time period prescribed by the Board and approved by the Secretary (of Agriculture), but in no event more than sixty days after the end of the month in which the sale or slaughter of scabies, a skin disease caused said cattle occurred and upon to the Board that the producer paid the assessment for which refund is sought, and any such refund shall be made within sixty days after demand is received.'

> The opposition claims the Beef Board will make refunds as difficult as possible. Those favoring the program say "the Board will be composed of reasonable cattlemen like ourselves." Again, the opposition counters that the Secretary of Agriculture will appoint the Beef Board from the producer organization nominations and he (the Secretary) will stack the Board with producers having philosophies like his own.

Proponents of the beef check-off program make the following claims:

1. It's a self help program. This is a producer program all the way, conceived by cattlemen, to be financed by cattlemen, and run by cattle-

2. There is a refund provision that amounts to a money back guarantee. Any producer not convinced that his contribution is wisely invested may request a refund and get it promptly.

3. It is not a government program. The role of the Secretary of Agriculture is limited to the role of referee to assure that the program is administered according to the intent of the Beef Research and Information Act.

4. The program can improve nutrition. Nutritionists say "the average American is eating only one-half the meat needed for good health, and many are consuming less than one-half." Through nutrition research and consumer education, consumers will improve their diet and beef producers will get their share of any increase.

5. The program will increase producers' profits. Through new product research, consumer education, promotion and foreign market development, the demand for beef will increase and markets will improve. Also, through better market information, producers can make better management decisions, all aimed at increased profits for proucers.

ARGUMENTS MADE by the opposition include:

1. There is no guarantee the Beef Board will be composed of a membership that has complete producer interest. That is, it is required that a member of the Board be a cattleman, but he may receive more income from or have stronger interests in a packing plant or some other segment of the beef industry. 2. It is a government program controlled and run by the Secretary of Agriculture.

3. The Secretary must approve the budgets and contracts made by the Beef

4. The Beef Board representatives should be selected by a democratic election in each state or geographic area, not just nominated from producer organizations certified by the Secretary.

5. The Secretary of Agriculture could initiate an investigation of producers or slaughterers of cattle or any person who has engaged or is about to engage in any acts or practices. which constitutes or will constitute a violation of any provision of the Act. "The several district courts of the United States are vested with jurisdiction specifically to enforce and to prevent and restrain any person from violating any order or regulation made or issued pursuant to this Act." Each violation is subject to a $1,000 fine.

The Texas Society of Farm & Ranch Managers & Appraisers endorsed the 1977 Beef Referendum at their recent meeting in Arlington. The Society further urged any individual or group that owned one or more cattle during January 4. 1976 through December 31, 1976 and had registered with his local ASCS office to vote July 5-15.

The Texas Society is a professional organization whose objective is to develop and establish, improve, maintain and promote the professions of farm and ranch management and appraisal in Texas. The Beef Referendum is one of many of the agriculture related movements that the Society gives its support to.

On The Turntow By Jim Steiert

Brand Farm Editor

There is a disturbing trend sweeping over the local area, the state, and the nation as a whole. It is a trend which, until recently had bypassed those who dwell on farms and ranches and in rural communities.

But it is a trend which has attained frightening reality.

Violent, senseless crime has come home to the Panhandle, particularly to its women.

No less than ten area women have been the target of sexual attacks in recent months.

One of the victims, who was awaiting her own opportunity to give life, lost her life at the hands of a demented attacker last month.

Another, an elderly grandmother, was gang raped by at least three men who beat her husband and deaf grandson while carrying out their insane attack.

Other victims have suffered knife wounds, beatings, and the severe trauma which accompanies one of the most heinous crimes known to mankind.

And the question which will not be quieted, which cries out for an answer, even as I try to sleep at night is why?

Why such violence? Why these women? Why has what we call civilization degenerated to such a point that a family is not safe within the confines of Restless for an answer, or simply for an opportunity to forget for a while, I flip on the television each evening.

In seconds, a liberated blonde whom some have dared to call an "Angel" is busy vamping on the

She is giving any male in America who will tune in a big come-on and the thin T-shirt she's wearing doesn't say much for any decency code the networks are so busy patting themselves on the backs for following.

I flip to another channel. Here, a man cooly draws a revolver and despite the pleas of his victim, empties the gun into a woman without so much as the bat of an eye, spins on his heel and goes trotting out of the apartment building without a backward glance.

On yet another channel, culprits have devised an ingenious way to kill their victims with poisonous injections. A hot-to-kill brunette tells her sidekick she wants to do away with the next victim. While the hapless individual is restrained by two burly hoodlums, our brunette shoves a hypo into her victim's arm, then laughs hysterically as he grovels on the floor in agony, all in plain view of the camera.

On any given night, the cop on the television beat will draw his service revolver and either kill at least two suspects, or be done away with himself, despite the fact that policemen in real life seldom if ever fire their guns in anger.

The tube is super- saturated with violence, much of its sexually oriented. For a man who deals with more stories of violence man than he cares to in this daily work, it is just too much.

And what's more, you wonder just how much of this is rubbing off on impressionable individuals who decide they might like to try perpetrating a little violence themselves after viewing it on the tube.

You question whether there is any justice.

Convicted criminals are routinely released on token bonds, or their convictions overturned by higher courts.

Murderers and rapists who have been found guilty and sentenced to pay the ultimate price for their crimes go unpunished, their sentences stayed by ineffecient and lenient court systems.

Law abiding citizens are blamed for the actions. of demented killers, and society can not serve justice because the rights of the criminal might be 'violated.' "You made me what I am," the convicts accuse.

What of the rights of those of us who would prefer to live in relative peace without fearing to leave the wife at home for five minutes while we run to the store for a loaf of bread?

What of the rights of a number of Panhandle women who never invited any act of violence?

And what of the rights of a young mother-to-be? Surely she was entitled to retain her own life and bring a child into the world.

. No one was there to object to the actions of a killer-rapist who attacked a number of these women, or the gang of men who terrorized a rural family. There was no one there to warn that the civil rights of these individuals were being trampled underfoot.

The fact that those responsible for these atrocities are still at large does little to ease the pangs in one's conscience.

Area law enforcement officials are doing everything in their power to bring the perpetrators of these crimes to justice. They have few clues to go on, however.

There is little Panhandle residents can do about speeding up the process of finding those responsible for these crimes.

But we do no have to settle for the violent trash our televisions spew out incessantly. And we do not have to settle for the ruling that only criminals have rights.

It is time that we insist that criminals be punished in accordance with their crimes, without expecting parole in only a few years.

Too many elements in our society have lost all respect for authority, life, -- and womanhood.

The time has come to demand mandatory prison sentences for serious crimes without the prospect of quick parole. And the judicial system should have the courage to carry out the sentences it hands down. If something isn't done to curb all of this violence soon, the stand we take may well be our last in what we have termed a law-abiding society. In the meantime, I suppose frightened women must continue locking their doors, and men must keep their guns handy and stand ready to protect their homes.

Call us to check your air conditioner for summer efficiency.

Rolling Plains. Harvesting is wheat and oats have been good. expected to get into full swing in the South Plains and Panhandle in about a week. Yields have been excellent, with wheat yielding up to 65 bushels per acre and oats going as high as 130 bushels in some parts of the Rolling Plains.

Harvesting of watermelons and vegetables is active in southern sections while the peach harvest continues on a statewide basis, said Pfannstiel.

Reports from district Extension agents showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Wheat has matured rapidly with hot, dry conditions, and harvesting is about to get into full swing Corn is making excellent progress. The cotton crop will be late due to considerable replanting caused by weather damage. Sorghum planting is about complete. Potatoes and onions look good. Range conditions vary depending on where the rain has fallen. Cattle marketing continues active.

SOUTH PLAINS: Cotton, corn and early sorghum are making good growth. Sorghum planting is about complete. Early sunflowers also look good. Harvesting of dryland wheat has been active, and harvesting of the irrigated crop is getting under way. Cattle and ranges are generally in good shape.

ROLLING PLAINS: The wheat harvest is generally complete, with excellent yields of 40 bushels per acre and more in some counties. Oat yields have been as high as 130 bushels per acre. Most of the cotton has been planted. Early sorghum looks good, and some late sorghum planting is starting. Ranges are good to excellent.

NORTH CENTRAL: Harvesting of small grains was active before weekend rains of up to three inches. Yields of both

The rain should boost additional hay cuttings and crop growth. Planting of soybeans and peanuts has been active and ranges from 60 to 75 per cent complete. Peach harvesting continues.

NORTHEAST: Good rains in some locations will help wilted crops and forages. The rains should also help soybean planting which has been delayed due to lack of moisture. Sweet potato planting is complete. Peas and other vegetables are being harvested along with a good peach crop. Livestock marketing is increasing in some counties.

FAR WEST: Cotton and sorghum are growing well. Harvesting of wheat and alfalfa is active. Apricots are being harvested: the peach crop continues to look good. Vegetable gardens are in top production. Cattle and sheep continue in good condition, with shearing almost complete. WEST CENTRAL: Harvesting of wheat and oats is 60 to 75 per cent complete, with good vields. Cotton and sorghum are making good progress but would benefit from rain. Most of the peanut crop has been planted. The pecan crop continues to look good but insect problems are increasing. Ranges are average and could use some rain.

CENTRAL: Parts of the area received scattered rains and recent days but most crops and pastures could still use a general rain. Harvesting of wheat and oats is about complete, with good yields. Hay making has been active but rain is needed for additional cuttings. Peanut planting is past the halfway mark. Some peaches continue to be harvested?

EAST: Good rains in some locations will help crops and forages that have been suffering from hot, dry conditions. Fruit is heavy on peach trees, and nutlets are forming on pecan trees. Harvesting of peas has been limited by dry conditions, which have also slowed hay making. Cattle marketing is up.

SOUTHEAST AND UPPER GULF COAST: Good rains in some locations should boost crop and forage conditions. The rains should also help soybean planting. Flea hoppers have been active in cotton and midge are building up in sorghum. Watermelon harvesting has started in Waller County. Ticks and lice are heavy in most livestock.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Parts of the area have received good rains that should help crop and livestock conditions. Most wheat and oats have been harvested, with good yields. Sorghum is blooming, cotton is squaring and corn is tasseling. Some peanuts have been planted but many farmers are waiting on rain. Additional rain is also needed for more hay cuttings.

SOUTHWEST: Harvesting of wheat and oats is about complete. First hay cuttings are producing good yields. Watermelon harvesting is active. The Western corn rootworm is causing some lodging in corn. Pastures, ranges and livestock are in good condition.

COASTAL BEND: Scattered rains should help crops and pastures but parts of the region remain dry. Harvesting of oats, wheat and flax is virtually complete. Cotton is fruiting well but bollworms are increasing. Sorghum is heading but midge numbers are heavy. The guar crop is up to a good stand. Harvesting of watermelons and hay is in full swing.

SOUTH: Cotton is fruiting well but boll weevils and budworms are increasing. The sorghum crop continues to look good. Peppers, tomatoes, okra and squash are moving to

The Hereford Brand

Farm News

Favorable moisture conditions in the Gulf Coast and southwestern portions of Texas have prompted predictions of one of the highest Gulf Coast ear tick populations in years, according to a top research entomologist in Texas.

The Gulf Coast tick has become an increasing problem for cattlemen in the last few years. The adult ticks attack the ears of cattle causing swelling and cracking of the skin. These wounds are a favorite egglaying site for screwworm flies. Screwworm larvae feed on the ear and in extreme cases can eventually kill the animal, say entomologists.

"All indications are we're going to have a tremendous (Gulf Coast) tick population this year," says E.H. Ahrens, research entomologist with the USDA Screwworm Eradication Laboratory, Mission, Texas.

Ahrens explains that due to the cold winter, there are fewer reports of actual screwworm infestations than last year. However, he adds, the tick population will be "one of the highest of the last few years."

'The cold just doesn't affect the tick as much," Ahrens notes. "We've already seen calves that have as many as nine males (ticks) per ear."

Call Turner-Hicks Well Service 364-0811

This number rings office and service rigs.

Another reason for growing concern over the Gulf Coast tick problem is the inland spread of both tick and screwworm infestations.

In the past, the tick usually was associated with the more humid Gulf Coast region. But recently, Ahrens says, reports of infestations have come from ranches 300 miles inland in Texas as well as Northeast Oklahoma and Southwest Kansas-Ahrens and other attribute this spread in part to migrating birds where tick larvae are often found, and the possibility of a new strain of tick capable of surviving in less humid conditions.

The Gulf Coast ear tick, in itself, is not so much a problem as it is association with the potentially deadly screwworm

Tests conducted in south Texas last year showed that 90 per cent of the screwworm infestation in cattle ears was a direct result of wounds caused by the Gulf Coast tick, according to Ahrens.

"Screwworm flies have a five-to six-day larval period and are constantly laying eggs," explains Texas Agricultural Extension Entomologist Mike McWhorter. "And it's highly possible-- if conditions are right -- that within three to five days an animal could become severely infested it could be down and severely damaged." Last year, entomologists tested various products to combat this problem. Plastic ear tags, impregnated with insecticide, were found to be the most effective method of controlling these ticks on the tested cattle. There was no screwworm infestation reported among the cattle with ear tags, Ahrens said, while the cattle without tags showed a 50 per cent incidence of one or more screwworm cases. The tests also concluded that Shell Animal Health's Rabon Ear Tags, which were given special clearance for use in Texas were the most effective device in controlling McWhorter says an important result of the tests was that the ear tags held their effectiveness during the entire three-month summer period when ticks are most active.

Other methods were also used, including asphalt-based aerosol sprays, specially-treated neck bands and grease-based formulas. None was as effective as the ear tags, these tests showed.

The spread of the Gulf Coast tick, Ahrens concludes, "has allowed the screwworm population to build to tremendous numbers. We feel we are going to have to control the Gulf Coast tick if we're ever to eradicate the screwworm."

Step To Handle Wheat

WASHINGTON (AP)- The Agriculture Department has taken a small step to assist farmers in handling this year's huge wheat crop, now being harvested.

Officials said Thursday farmers in areas where grain storage is a problem will be allowed to move grain placed under government loan to another location and still retain

The department said farmers who wish to move grain which they have put under loan will be able to enter a "reconcentration and trust agreement" and move it to an approved warehouse. "Any loss in quantity or quality resulting from movement of the grain is to be resolved by the producer or warehouseman involved," the department said. However, ownership of the commodity will remain with the producer. Officials said additional information and agreement forms may be obtained later this month or by early July from local offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The tour of the two cooperatives that had been participating in such programs longer than in any other part of the world in controlling irrigation wells had contrasting approaches due to differing local situations.

One cooperative located near McCook in the southwest part of Nebraska, lifts water from the Ogallala water formation familiar to all West Texas irrigators. The other cooperative located near Norfolk is in the northeast portion of the state close to the South Dakota- lowa state lines. This area receives about twice the rainfall of the area served by Deaf Smith Electric.

Grub Control Time Now

BY CARL D. PATRICK

Area Entomologist
Cattle grubs cost the Texas livestock industry several million dollars each year. Losses occur at all levels in the production and marketing chain. The cow- calf producer is concerned about reduced milk production and resulting reduced weaning weights of calves. The feeder suffers losses as a result of reduced gains and lower prices for "grubby" animals. The packer who buys and slaughter "grubby" animals realizes hide losses. carcass trim, and lowered carcass value. Cattle grub control should be a concern of the entire beef industry.

This pest begins to annoy cattle in late winter and early spring as a heel fly. The egg-laying activity of the heel fly causes a "gadding" response in cattle. The egg deposited on the animal hatch in 2-6 days and the small larvae penetrate the skin and begin to migrate through the body of the animal, first to the esophageal tissues and, eventually, on to the back. After reaching the back, the larvae cut breathing holes in the skin and continue their development to mature larvae (grubs) resulting with warbles in the backs of infested animals. Upon reaching maturity, the grubs emerge from the animal's back, fall to the soil to pupate, and emerge a few weeks later as adults. This cycle takes approximately one year.

Cattle grubs can be effectively controlled through the use of systemic insecticides. These systemics can be administered as dips (Co-Ral or Ruelene), sprays (Co-Ral, Ruelene, Prolate, or Neguvon), pour-ons (Co-Ral. Ruelene, Warbex. Tiguvon, Prolate, or Neguvon). spot-ons (Spotton), mineral mixes (Rid-Ezy) and feed mixes (Trolene or Famphur Feed Premix). Best results are obtained when animals are treated as soon as possible after termination of heel fly activity and when grubs are small. This time occurs in late May and June in most areas of Texas.

Before purchasing and using these insecticides, read the label and pay attention to precautions and restrictions for none of these can be used on lactating dairy animals, some are not recommended for certain breeds, some are not used on animals under a certain age, use of some is not recommended if animals are sick or under stress, and frequency of application and number of applications are indicated on the label.

Complaints Filed Over Herbicide

AUSTIN- A number of as well as the regulations under complaints on damage to vegetation have been filed with the Texas Department of Agriculture due to mishandling of hormone-type herbicides, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown stated today.

77

"The complaints are from various parts of the state," Brown said.

"Most of the damage could have been avoided by careful attention to the cautions provided by the manufacturers.

the Texas Herbicide Law."

Seventy-six counties in the state are under "regulated" status. Farmers and ranchers there have elected to operate under regulations concerning the use of herbicides.

In these areas, they must have a permit to use hormone-type herbicides on plots of ten acres or more. On smaller plots, the operator must notify the Texas Department of Agriculture of his intent, prior to spraying. Commercial applicators must be prudent in their operations and must have a permit to apply this type of herbicide.

The Department documents claims for validity, whether the county is under regulated status or not, Brown stated.

Damage to other crops occurs usually because of faulty equipment, strong wind conditions, and spraying too close to susceptible vegetation, Brown explained.

Spray pressure should be set at 20 to 30 pounds. Application is safest when winds are from 0-3 miles per hour and temperatures are less than 90 degrees F. When winds reach 10 miles per hour and operations should be halted. Wind drift can carry the herbicide long distances if basic standards are not observed," Brown cautioned. The drift can affect susceptible crops such as cotton and other broad-leaf

Safety Is Stressed For Machine Operators

COLLEGE STATION- Accident prevention is a serious business, but certain pointers relating to risk control can occasionally be emphasized with a touch of humor.

In this light, Dr. Gary S. Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, offers some recommended safety practices for all machine operators, whether the machine is a lawnmower, farm tractor, family automobile or whatever. It goes like this:

THOU SHALT present thyself to all machines fit and ready to operate them as prescribed by THOU SHALT require thy small sons and daughters and they neighbor's offspring to keep themselves apart from thy machinery.

THOU SHALT contain thy temper, even though the day goes foul and everything attempted conspireth against thee, as robust anger not only maketh thee look foolish and exclaim unkind sentiments, but also multiplieth thy prospects of coming to grief in accidents.

THOU SHALT mind thy manners on the roadway, acting courteously to travelers by advancing only where thou hath established that the car is clear and by always signaling what thou art contriving to do.

Specifically for tractor operators, THOU SHALT hitch drawbar loads low and forsake wrapping chain or cable about the axle, lest thy tractor wrap itself around its own axle and smother thee beneath. THOU SHALT weight thy tractor's front to balance it if the drawbar be heavily burdened and also place upon the rear sufficient weight to effect balance when thy tractor is encumbered with a front end load. Also, THOU SHALT, render thy tractor out of gear and stoutly set the

Benefits Outweigh Expense In Successful Weed Control

RALEIGH- A successful basis by weed scientists and producers requires that the expense and effort involved be commensurate with the rewards that come from additional yields and improved fiber grades.

That is the suggestion of Cotton Incorporated scientists who have completed a report on weed control.

"With increasing prices of fuel, agricultural chemicals and labor, the cotton producer needs to know before he tackles his weed problem whether the rewards he will get by increased yield and fiber quality justify the expense," says Dr. Wolfgang Wessling, Cotton Incorporated associate director of agricultural complex science as a result of the shift from mechanical to chemical weed control, explains Wessling. Success in controlling weeds requires careful attention to programs that have been developed on a state-by-state crabgrass and morning-glory

ICA Wants Ag Use Values In School Finance Bill

their work in Austin to pound out an agreeable public school finance bill, members of the Independent Cattlemen's Association have organized an effort to insure that their needs will not be forgotten by legislators.

Those state leaders can expect a flood of mail as a result of a letter ICA President T.A. Cunningham sent to his county officers and directors this week. In the letter, Cunningham requested that the members write letters to Gov. Dolph Briscoe, House Speaker Billy Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby concerning the school finance bill to be considered at a special session this summer.

Cunningham told the ICA members to show strong support for inclusion of agricultural use values in the school finance bill that is finally agreed upon by House and Senate leaders. Cunningham emphasized that Briscoe, Clayton and Hobby hold the reins to the special session and are responsible for whatever legislation is passed there.

Cunningham's letter further stated that ICA members should include in their messages to the

Sheep, Goat Herds in State Continue to Drop in Number

AUSTIN-The smallest wool and mohair clips since the first part of the century were reported last year, Agriculture Reagan Brown has announced.

"Increased production costs and competition from synthetic fibers accounted for the continuing drop in herd numbers of both sheep and goats," Brown noted.

Texas Crop and Livestock-Reporting Service figures show the value of mohair in 1976 at near record levels, with an all-time high average price of $2.97 per pound received. Cash received totaled $24 million.

Fewer goats and kids were clipped last year than at any time since estimates began in 1909, with the 1,100,000 head shorn in 1976 also down from 1975 by nine per cent. Overall output in the industry was also aided, however, by a record fleece weight of 7.4 pounds per animal, Brown explained, which was some .3 pound above the 1975 average.

Total value of the 1976 clip, at $24.1 million, was up 52 per cent from 1975 and near the record high values of $25.1 and $27.4 million of 1963 and 1964, respectively.

Farmers, already making extensive use of the sun, may expand their utilization of that energy source.

Use of alternate energy sources is increasingly evident after the severe, fuelscarce winter.

Agricultural use of the sun traditionally has been limited to the growth and ripening of crops. But there are efforts to extend its use beyond harvesting.

Studies are underway in 12 states into drying grain with solar energy - a major farm use of fuel.

It's estimated the present use of LP-gas could be cut in half by solar drying. Drying of corn and rice uses about 640 million gallons of LP-gas a vear.

Various methods are being tried, such as reflec-

The 15,750 fingerlings which went into Alcoa Reservoir were part of the Parks and Wildlife Department's inland fisheries diversity.

Program director Nick Carter said Alcoa will have walleye, flounder, northern pike and hybrid striped bass stocked in addition to the already present native largemouth bass and catfish.

Theory behind predator diversity,' said Carter, "is that many predator fish in a reservoir tend to stabilize fishing quality over a long period of time.

"Fishing pressure is spread over more species instead of concentrating on one predator such as the largemouth bass.

When more different predators are in the same reservoir it probably reduces the total pounds (standing crop) of a species but the overall poundage of predators is most likely

When factors adversely affect one predator species; other species may compensate by increasing."

Carter said more different predators create competition for forage among the fishes and increases their chances of being caught by sport fishermen.

Smallmouth Bass Go To State Lakes

The Plains TEXAS PARKS AND WILDLIFE DEPT. LAKE RESTRICTIONS LIFTED

SILVERTON- A three year waiting period has finally ended as lake Mackenzie near Silverton received a substantial raise in water during the recent rainy period.

"The lake has received a 39.9 foot raise and most of it came in one day," said Jim Green, lake manager.

"We finally have enough water to use the boat ramp," Green continued.

The lake rules have been changed to allow all boats except house boats on the lake. All Texas rules and regulations concerning water safety and fishing license requirements are in full force at the lake.

One new lake regulation surpasses the state law as all boaters and skiers will be required to wear their personal flotation devices at all times while underway on the lake. (state law requires these life preservers be available for each crew member and skier).

The lake is over 80 feet deep at the earthen dam and water stretches nearly three miles up the Tule creek bottom.

Fishing opportunities for largemouth bass, channel catfish and walleye should improve as the water clears from the runoff. Future fishing prospects will include smallmouth bass which were stocked prior to the influx of water. Camping, hiking, picnicking and all water-related sports are in full swing at the newly-filled

WAS IT WORTH THE CHANCE

LUBBOCK- Texas game wardens were busy in May in northwest Texas as over 478 water safety and fishing cases were taken to court.

Wardens in region V1 which includes Amarillo, Abilene and Lubbock, contacted 15,704 persons during May and approximately three per cent of them were in violation of one or more of our department's rules and regulations," said Ted Wheelis, regional director of law enforcement.

"Fishing violations lead the list over water safety but we still had a fatality from a boating accident." Wheelis continued. The most flagrant violation was fishing without a license as 281 cases were taken to court. Wardens working the lakes heard every excuse in the book from "I left the license at home" to "I could not find a place to buy one."

The number of fishing licenses sold in Texas is down this year and indications suggest anglers are going fishing hoping they will not be checked by a warden.

Texas has one of the lowestpriced fishing licenses in the United States but, it is apparent the first item left off the list for the vacation or trip is that $4.25 piece of paper. A newly purchased license will not expie until Aug. 31, 1978.

Court fines vary from $10 to $200 for each infraction of the regulation and most embarrassed anglers have been paying a $27.50 fine.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is still puzzled as fishing license sales continue a downward swing. More fish, new lakes, and professional services to pond and lake owners continues to come from the P&WD but, the angler has apparently failed to notice these benefits.

SAN MARCOS— Production

Smallmouth bass often do well in steep-sided reservoirs such as Travis and Canyon. They seem to occupy a special ecological niche not taken advantage of by largemouth bass and other species.

Canyon now is producing smallmouths up to three pounds

Canyon was not stocked this year because biologists think the fish stocked there in previous years will reproduce

Fishing License. Fees Increased

AUSTIN- Recent action by the 65th Texas Legislature increases sport fishing license fees for both residents and nonresidents and makes those licenses purchased after June 1. 1977, valid through Aug. 31,

Those bought prior to June 1 will expire one year from date of purchase.

As of Sept. 1, 1977, fees for resident sportfishing licenses will go up from $4.25 to $4.50, and those for nonresidents will increase to $10.50.

Now, both fishing, hunting and the combination fishing and hunting licenses will be valid from Sept. 1 of one year through Aug. 31 of the following year. License sales officials at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department say anyone who buys a fishing license in June 1977 will be allowed to fish for 15 months at the old price of Sales of fishing license have lagged during the past two years, possibly because of the one-year- from-date-of- purchase regulation.

$4.25.

In many instances, according to P&WD game wardens, fishermen buy a license and without thinking consider it valid until the end of August, when actually it was valid for a year from date of purchase.

During 1976 in Texas the ratio of male to female drownings was more than six to one. according to figures kept by water safety officials at the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

More people between 16 and 20 drown than at any other age. In 1976 133 such victims were males. One of the two girls in that age group who drowned died in a bathtub, the other in a vehicle accident.

A total of 52 deaths was recorded among persons over 50 years of age-40 males and 12

Frontier Memories Stirred By Old Fort

AUSTIN- One of the most Farms and cultivated fields dramatic and poignant stories of the early Texas frontier is that of Cynthia Ann Parker, who was captured at the age of nine by Indians during a raid on Parker's Fort in 1836.

The original stronghold had been built privately two years earlier, in what is now Limestone County, by James and Silas Parker as protection for their family settlement. A replica of it now is the feature of a state park-Old Fort Parker State Historic Site.

The pioneers in the Texas wilderness had to rely on themselves for protection against hostile Indians. The Parkers' stockade was constructed of split cedars, buried in the ground and extending upward some 15 feet. Double-story blockhouses were built at diagonal corners and within the walls was a row of log cabins.

were at some distance from the Strict safety precautions were observed in the early months. Lookouts were stationed in the blockhouses and the settlers locked themselves in the fort at night. But the rigid discipline gradually became relaxed.

One fine May morning most of the men were off working in the fields and the stockade gates were open to permit circulation of the spring breeze. Then tragedy struck. A band of Indians appeared with a white flag and at first seemed friendly. But when Benjamin Parker brought them some meat they requested, they surrounded and killed him, then rushed the fort.

Five of the settlers were killed, two later died of wounds. and more were severely wounded. Of the five captives taken, two women and one child were ransomed after many harrowing experiences. But Cynthia Ann Parker and her younger brother John in separate tribes became acclimated to life with the Indians

John made a name for himself among the Comanches as a skillful raider of Mexican ranchos. While in her early teens, Cynthia Ann married Chief Peta Nacona and had three children-two sons, Pecos and Quanah, and a daughter, Prairie Flower.

As years went by, several soldiers and travelers reported seeing Cynthia Ann. Attempts to ransom her were refused.

In 1860, Captain Sul Ross and his band of Texas Rangers were successful in recapturing Cynthia Ann and her infant daughter. She was looked after kindly by officers' wives before being sent to live with her uncle. Colonel Isaac Parker. However, she had lived for 25 years with the Comanches and was never happy after her return. When first recaptured she remembered nothing of her family and knew no English, other than recognizing her name.

Gradually she learned English and white women's domestic arts, but could not readjust to white society. Several times she tried to run away. Little Prairie Flower died in 1864 and Cynthia Ann died shortly thereafter.

Her son Quanah grew to be a famous chieftain, a feared and intrepid fighter. But in 1874 he and his Comanches were defeated at Palo Duro Canyon. Quanah and his band went to a reservation near Fort Sill where he became a respected citizen; in 1886 he was appointed Judge of the Court of Indian Offenses for several reservations in the Indian Territory, later Oklahoma. He had seven or eight wives and numerous children, many of whom and their descendants were to become prominent in their communities. The fort at Old Fort Parker State Historic Site has been replicated twice, during the Texas Centennial in 1936 and again in 1967; at which time the Parks and Wildlife Department used cedar logs from Buescher State park in Bastrop County to . rebuild the fort to resemble the original structure as closely as possible. The plan was a typical art of painting in miniature." one used in the eastern United States in the 18th and early 19th

Now it is possible to explore blockhouses, and recapture the atmosphere of that fateful spring day in 1836.

A short distance from the fort, visitors can enjoy coming back to the present at Fort Parker State Recreation Area, where there are facilities for camping. picnicking and other outdoor activities, including lake water

In alternate years on July 4. Old Fort Parker State Historic Site is the setting for a remarkable family reunion, of the Texas Parkers and the Indian Parkers from Oklahoma: The annual gathering is held the other years at Cache. Oklahoma, near the burial place of Cynthia Ann, Prairie Flower and

The Indian adoption of Cynthia Ann Parker was one of many similar incidents, but her story captured the popular imagination because of her unwillingness to return to white ways. Paradoxically, it was her defiant son Quanah, after resistance proved futile, who led the Comanches at last to come to terms with the white man.

Educated Mutt Turns Filmaker's Life Around

LOS ANGELES (AP) - "For the Love of Benji" is a film title that makes of lot of sense to Dallas-based Joe Camp, whose entire life was turned around by that educated mutt.

Camp is the fellow who worte. directed and produced the msot modest 1974 film "Benji," and then gave the movie industry a few lessons by selling it into a runaway hit. According to Camp's report, "Benji" cost $550,000 and brought something over $40 million into the world's theaters. The income for Camp's Mulberry Square Productions: over $16 million.

"And then came "Hawmps" to dispel the rumor that I was a marketing genius," Camp added wryly. The 1976 comedy about the army's frontier camel corps didn't ignite the nation's box

Both types of skis are designed for use on a variety of grass surfaces. "Any grasscovered slope, a gentle smooth slop or one with undulating hills and valleys, is ideal," Reizine

Reizine says he was introduced to the grass skis about six years ago in France. He claims the sport has thousands of followers in Europe, particularly among professional racers.

"People just don't think they can go skiing in the summer.' Reizine says. "But they have exactly the same edging effect as skis.

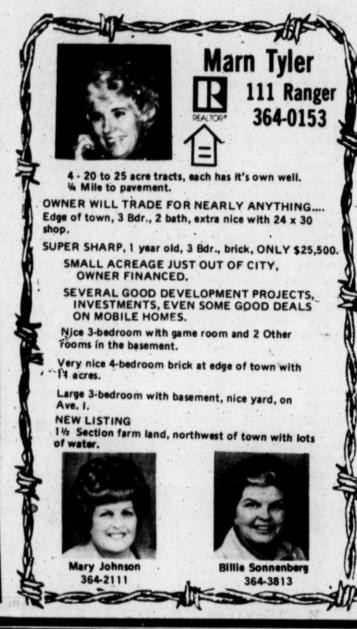

"You carve a turn just like a good pair of skis. If you want to learn, you won't be distracted by sideways movement. It's very good for racers. You can practice hot-dogging and ballet

She Had No ID But Check Good

DALLAS (AP)- A small line formed in front of Rose Wieringa's check out counter at the Marriott Inn North.

Rose, 19, a new employe smiled politely at the elegantly groomed brunette heading the line. Behind her stood six men in business suits and sports

It was Thursday and the lobby hummed with activity.

The dignified lady announced she was checking out of the hotel and Rose quickly prepared her bill. The lady wrote out a check, handed it to Rose, and waited.

"Thank you, ma'am. Do you have some identification?" Rose inquired.

A pause, and the lady nodded her head, blinked and asked softly: "What sort of identification would you need?"

"Oh, just a Texas driver's license and a credit card," Rose said, still smiling. "I'm afraid I don't have a driver's license with 'me," the lady said. "How about a credit card?"

"Not with me, I'm afraid," the lady responded.

She wasn't sure but Rose sensed one of the men in line was trying to stifle a smile. Several other men fidgeted and craned their necks toward the desk. But Rose stuck with company policy on check writer identification.

The woman rustled through her handbag again and finally produced an insurance identification card.

Golly," said Rose, "I'm not sure we can accept just that. If you'll wait here I'll check with our front-office manager.'

In retrospect, Rose recalls she paid no notice to the name on the woman's check. That was

Oh, check number 1339. It was drawn on the Johnson City Bank at Johnson City, Tex. The name-Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, Stonewall, Tex.

"I guess I should have recognized her," Rose said, "But I was only in the first grade when her husband was elected president."

The hotel, incidentally, is on the Lyndon B. Johnson Freeway.

The six secret service men in line behind Mrs. Johnson checked out quickly. They all had proper identification.

phone continued ringing Friday. "I swatted at a bee and hit the whole damn hive," he said of his tongue-in-cheek protest about the way federal funds are dished out.

Some of the 30 to 40 offers to be unemployed in Hondo have come from college students who said they'd spend the summer in this ranching and farming community west of San Antonio.

A radio station executive offered to quit his job for two months to become unemployed in Hondo, Glasscock said.

"I had one man with a masters degree in music call and he's on a grant that doesn't count as income," the mayor said. The man offered to bring his music to Hondo and gave Glasscock a sample over the Relephone.

The major said he was interviewed by 27 radio stations over the telephone on Thursday. Glasscock said, however, he's telling the callers "That mostly I was trying to make a point" in his letter to the President.

And he said he hopes the humorous letter won't overshadow the seriousness of his protest. Hondo still needs the federal funds to build its civic "If President Carter calls, I'll

BY CARL MANNING Associated Press Writer

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (AP)- Laughing and joking among themselves, James Earl Ray and six other prison escapees appeared before a prison review board Friday and were sentenced to 30 days in 'administrative segregation.

The sentence is the second most severe punishment the escapees could have received. It means they will remain in 'D block,' a building isolated from the main prison population, and will be allowed to leave the building only under guard

Each of the seven men was also ordered to forfeit a total of three years of "good and honored" time that was to have been taken off their sentences. officials at Brush Mountain State Prison said.

Ray and the six others appeared at a hearing before an in-prison review board, which found them guilty of being involved in the escape last Friday night. Ray, the only one of the seven luxuries for 30 days.

Meanwhile, the guard statio-ned closes to the break said he 'doesn't want to talk" about his being fired for negligence. Guard Floyd Hooks 38, of Oliver Springs, Tenn., declined to say whether he planned to appeal Thursday's dismissal, which had been recommended by Warden Stonney Lane. "There's no question but what he was negligent," Corrections Commissioner C. Murray Henderson said of Hooks. "We're not looking for a scapegoat, but we have to take corrective action when this happens."

Employees Expendible Says Head

FORT WORTH (AP)- Chairman Joe Christie of the State Insurance Board said Saturday the "biggest pitfall" of government employes is thinking that government can't do without them. He called it the 'indispensibility syndrome."

Christie addressed the Independent Insurance Agents of Texas, reminding them that he is resigning in Septemberalthough his term does not expire until 1981- after four years on the job.

He is expected to announce as a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

"I feel like I came out of that chute like white lightening four years ago, and I feel like I'm still giving out some pretty good kicks," Christie said. "But there's nothing sadder than a bucking bronc which has lost its fight. And, I do not intend to wait until I have lost my fight before I leave."

Christie said Texas has 12 million residents, "and there are plenty of them who could do an excellent job" as board chairman.

"I believe the professional staff at the State Board of Insurance has grown in stature and perspective during my term, and therefore will survive without missing a step when the chairmanship changes hands," can's personal income rose figures show an average of six-tenths of a cent in May, $7,110 for each adult and child. a smaller increase than the month before, the Commerce Department said last week.

Income received last month for working, savings, investments and other sources totaled $1,507 billion, when projected over an entire year. The increase for May was $9.5 billion, compared with an increase of $11.1 billion, or eight- tenths of a per cent, in Government economists said the increases are not measuring up to the average $15 billion increases in the first quarter, but said the economy was making up for losses in previous

They said the increases in wages and salaries appeared to be formidable and that declines in other areas reduced the monthly total.

Wages and salaries increased 59 billion in May, compared to $9.2 billion in April. Manufacturing payrolls went up $3.5 billion in May, compared with $2.3 billion in April. The increase reflected gains in employment, average weekly hours and average hourly earnings, the report said.

Increases in payrolls in the durable goods industries accounted for the gain; nondurable goods payrolls were virtually unchanged.

Transfer payments declined by $2.8 billion in May after increasing $800 million in April. The decline partly reflected a reduction in benefit checks received by veterans.

Farm proprietors' income declined $600 million in May, the same as in April. Rental income increased $1.2 billion after declining $600 million because of flood damage.

If you are ever caught without a ruler, you will find a passable substitute in your wallet. A dollar bill is just a fraction over six inches long and can substitute as a tape to use for rough measurements.

The proverbial fine-toothed comb is a quick and easy tool to use when spreading paste or glue over a large surface you are going to cover with decorative paper.

Send your helpful hints to Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

if you have open basement steps. wrap a washable rug around the . next to top step, pin it snugly underneath with safety pins and prevent dirt being tracked into the main part of the house. Pins make the rug easy to remove for washing.

Use the cardboard rolls that come in waxed paper and foil boxes for storing electric cords to small appliances. Cut the rolls into pieces six to eight inches long and write on the outside what the cord is for. Fold each cord in long, looplike lengths and push into the tube from one end. They do not get tangled and take up less drawer space.

Use wet string to tie tight and secure packages to be mailed. The string shrinks as it dries and thus gets tighter./

Ladies who do their own painting should wear a shower cap so there will be no paint on their hair.

Take that broom you were about to throw away, cut the bristles off short and then tie an old felt hat. scrap of flannel or carpet around the "business" end and have a wonderful floor polisher.

When moving to a new home pack a suitcase or carton with just enough sheets, pillowcases, towels and wash cloths to take care of that first night. Mark this container so it is easily found on arrival. This will save going through several boxes to assemble all the things needed,

Before moving day arrives, start readying a large shopping bag with strong handles and in it put paper towels, several face towels and wash cloths, soap, detergent. cleanser, facial tissues, bathroom tissue, light bulbs, safety matches, flashlight, hammer, screw driver and old newspaper. Other things may be added but these are a MUST. Grab the handles, put the bag in the car and be on your way on moving day.
