Ann Landers Letter From Canine

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I couldn't help but notice a letter to your from a fellow canine as I was rummaging through a neighbor's garage. I'd like him to know there are worse fates than being tied up in the backyard.

The irresponsible creep I belong to insists I'm a "free spirit" and should have the run of the neighborhood. What he doesn't know is that a dog who is on the loose has a rough time. He must contend with cars, kids and bigger dogs—in that order. Cars are our No. 1 enemy because they kill so many "free spirits." I got hit once and my owner said it was "a good lesson." Lessons are hard to remember when you are being chased.

Kids are next because they often tease. This bothers me, so naturally I snap back. Then the parents and neighbors get into the act. They shout obscenities and throw things. Sometimes they use slingshots and B-B guns.

Other dogs on the loose are a terrible problem—especially when they travel in packs. If they catch you in their territory they will tear you to pieces.

The security of my own backyard would be a welcome relief. Loneliness is a big step up from the harassment of the street.

When will people learn that dogs need people? I saw a bumper sticker the other day that summed it all up: "Leashed I Loved. Unleashed Is Unwanted."—One Of The Unwanted

DEAR ONE: You certainly write well for a dog—better than a lot of humans. Thank you for letting us know how it is for man's best friend when he's allowed to run loose.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night was one of those rare occasions when my husband and I were invited to a really swell dinner party. The alcohol flowed like there was no tomorrow. Clyde is one of those people who can't say "No, thank you," when he gets around booze. He has to drink until he's dead drunk.

When Clyde gets plastered he becomes obnoxious, rude and belligerent. I was humiliated by his obscene language and the way he butted into every conversation.

When I finally got him to go home I took the car keys and luckily he didn't put up a fight. Getting out of the car he fell on the garage floor. When I tried to help him up he said, "Don't you dare," so I just stood there and waited for him to struggle to his feet. It took about five minutes. Then he put his hat back on his head and fell again. He had his good clothes on, which he ruined. I was disgusted, but said nothing.

Clyde has been an alcoholic for many years. I've begged him to get outside help but he insists he doesn't need it. Now I'm thinking of divorce. After 37 years, should I?—Fed Up

DEAR FED: Try Al-Anon. (It's in the phone book.) If, after six months of meetings, you are still "Fed Up" and Clyde has made no effort to dry up, make your decision based on whether your life would be better with him or without him. In other words, realign your priorities. Put yourself first for a change.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SUN-BONNET SUE IN SANDUSKY: You've got bees in your sunbonnet, Susie. When a man pays a woman's rent, he has a right to expect "special favors." My advice is, find a cheaper apartment.

Volunteer Enjoys Helping Underprivileged Children

CLEVELAND (AP) — Flora Freeman believes that the realization of grand dreams has to start with modest deeds which can then be expanded.

Mrs. Freeman, as the founder of United Reach Out Bond Hope Mission Inc., spends four afternoons a week along with other volunteers to teach 20 to 25 underprivileged children about preparing meals, hair styling and sewing.

This is done in a remodeled storefront in Cleveland's Hough neighborhood, one of the city's poorest. Mrs. Freeman and about 30 volunteers have converted the storefront to provide room for their activities.

On Saturday mornings there is a social hour for the youngsters, with dancing and refreshments. Mrs. Freeman wants to add a woodworking shop for the boys as soon as the workshop can afford the equipment.

The mission survives on small contributions. It receives no grants, she said. But these modest efforts are only the start of bigger plans.

"I came from a little town right on the bank of the Mississippi River, where I saw a lot of bad things," she explained. "It was an inspiration to me to help people up here."

She said that one day she would like to start a "survival" meal program. When the money, food and kitchen equipment are obtained, the mission would like to serve meals the last 10 days of each month to low-income persons whose food money is exhausted.

"We're teaching children crafts that can lead to job skills," Mrs. Freeman said, "and we're keeping them off the street and out of mischief, too."

THE JOYS OF CHILDHOOD

Sometimes I almost forget what it's like to be a young child. I have a tendency, I think we all have, to remember the negative feelings associated with my childhood—feeling left-out, unloved, terribly mistreated, ridiculed, and lonely.

Different stimuli trigger these recollections. There's a certain disinfectant odor that reminds me of a nursery where I stayed when I was 3 or 4 years old. A terrible sense of insecurity settles in the pit of my stomach when I encounter this smell. It was in the period of my life when my dad was away at war, my mother was working all night at the Lockheed factory and sleeping all day, and the babysitter was chasing us kids with a broom. Not very pleasant memories.

But an experience last week brought back some terrific feelings of childhood. It was a fairyland in which everything was clean and beautiful. People talked and laughed, there were flowers and music, fireworks and parades, spinning rides that made me forget the real world. There were haunted houses in which the ghosts were friendly and funny, and a tomorrowland that gave that eerie feeling of wondering if yesterday wasn't better!

I made a decision. Everyday I will spend just a little time in the magic kingdom of my mind and experience the joys of childhood.

The first Christmas Seal was designed in 1904 by Eniar Holboell, a Danish postal worker.

During an attack an asthma patient begins to feel tired and may become exhausted.

There is no known prevention or cure for emphysema but modern medicine can usually slow down the progress of this lung disease, if a patient is treated early.

Every thousand one dollar bills cost the government $8.02 cents to print.

ONLY 2 YEARS TO GO!

SUMMER IS A FIRST-HAND LESSON IN THE WORKS OF GOD

When the blossoms of spring have departed the scene
As the sun brings its warmth to the land,
And the earth wears a mantle of emerald green,
Then the season of summer's at hand.
Then the season of summer's at hand.
It's the time for vacation; to rest and revive
All your spirits from worry and care,
In the wide world of nature that's truly alive
With the beauty of sunlight and air.
You will learn at your Church that the earliest man
Was provided with God's inspiration,
And there's nothing like summer to show you the plan
Of our heavenly Father's creation!

JANE'S JITTERS
NEW YORK (AP) — Does pressure ever rattle big name golfers? Jane Blalock says it definitely does. She admitted it in her book, The Guts To Win. "I've been in situations on the tour where I was scared to death," Jane said. "My stomach had butterflies. My legs were rubbery. My hands felt clammy. My mouth was dry. Many times the tension was so great my jawbone was quivering and I found myself gnashing my teeth audibly."

FONZIE MAKES A MOVIE
NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Winkler, better known as television's "Fonzie," will star in the Paramount Pictures-First Artists comedy about a wild and zany young man who leaves college to pursue his dream of stardom. The film, as yet untitled, will be produced by Steve Gordon from his original screenplay, and directed by Carl Reiner.

Protests Continue In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)— Police fired tear gas at stone-throwing students outside of Soweto high school today and scattered other groups of youths in the huge black township as protests continued against the white government's detention of student leaders. Schools in the segregated city of a million blacks 10 miles southwest of Johannesburg were almost empty for the second day. Police reinforcements were rushed in after a black youth and two children were killed Thursday during a day of massive student protests in which police said 11 persons were wounded by gunfire and 176 were arrested. The Rand Daily Mail said it had the names of 20 wounded. Apparently all the shooting was done by the police.

Groups of students milled about outside the schools, but buses and trains carrying workers to Johannesburg were running normally, police said. The police manned roadblocks at all major exits from Soweto to keep demonstrators out of Johannesburg, where docile workers are the only blacks welcome.

An estimated 500 students dressed as workers made their way into the center of the city Thursday morning to demonstrate against the detention of student leaders. Police with clubs broke up the march, which the students claimed was peaceful. The police said they went into action when some of the youths tried to force open the doors of the central police headquarters.

The Nuremberg Egg, an egg-sized timepiece meant to be worn on a chain, is considered the forerunner of the modern watch. Developed in 1505, it only told the hours and was accurate to within two or three hours a day.

Brig. Jan Visser, Soweto's white police commissioner, told reporters: "I think we have played it low key long enough. If they want trouble they're going to have trouble."

One of the blacks killed Thursday was a 16-year-old in a crowd which police said was attacking a patrol car. The police said two black children were killed when rioters stoned a horse-drawn trailer, the horses tried to run away, and the trailer was pitched into a house in which he the children were playing.

The students are demanding the release of 20 student leaders who were arrested June 11-12, before the first anniversary on June 16 of the start of the racial upheaval last summer in which more than 600 blacks and three whites were killed.

ERGO IT'S ERTE
NEW YORK (AP) — What's in a name? In the case of Erte, the world-celebrated artist, theatrical designer and lithographer, it is phonetics a la française.

Born Romain de Tiroff, the son of a pre-World War I Russian admiral, he emigrated to Paris in 1912 and made France his adopted country. When he started to paint, he took the name of Erte, derived from the pronunciation of the letters "R" and "T", his initials, in the French alphabet.

On the occasion of his recent 65th birthday, Circle Gallery issued a series of 26 original Erte lithographs-serigraphs called The Alphabet. The series expresses each letter of the alphabet in human form, with sleek, sinuous women being far in the majority.

Dallas Officials Say Laws On Pollution Much Too Strict

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Dallas officials joined Thursday in a widespread Texas effort to weaken the federal government's water pollution control laws.

Dallas Mayor Robert S. Folsom and I.M. Rice, the director of its water utility, gave statements to the Senate subcommittee on environmental pollution. Rice appeared in person and carried Folsom's statement in written form.

They joined with a number of other Texans who have decided that current federal laws are needless strict and intrude into too many small decisions that should be left to local governments or individuals.

Reps. Jim Wright of Fort Worth and Ray Roberts of McKinney have carried the fight in the House and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has led it in the Senate. Congress is currently reconsidering most pollution control laws, and its decisions will affect the quality of the environment and the cost of doing business for the next decade.

Folsom said the current federal goal of fishable, swimmable rivers by 1983 might never be met in the upper Trinity River because of its low flow during most of the year. Often, he said, 95 per cent of the water in the river is treated waste from a sewage plant and not natural flow.

Even if the Dallas-Fort Worth area spent $100 million to get the finest available water treatment, the river still would not be fishable or swimmable most of the year, he said. Folsom added that there are other pressing needs in Dallas for that $100 million.

Folsom endorsed one of industry's major lobbying goals on the water bill, that of ending the system of high user charges for industrial polluters and spreading the cost of water treatment out to all property tax payers. He said the billing system is too costly.

Folsom also asked that Congress narrowly define "navigable waters," which are the ones under direct federal jurisdiction. Under a recent court ruling, the traditional definition was expanded to include virtually every stream and creek in the country. Roberts, Wright and Bentsen have been unsuccessful in restoring the old definition of waters suited for interstate navigation.

Rice testified as a representative of the Metropolitan Sewerage Agencies. He told the committee that existing federal rules are too strict in their effort to make industry clean up wastes before they are discharged into the water system.

He said it was more economical to require industry to keep only the most toxic wastes out of its discharges and to let a centrally located, publicly owned facility clean up the rest.

THERE'S MORE to a museum than often meets the eye of the casual beholder of works of art. It can also be a meaningful learning tool, both for organized classes and for individuals. Left, students from Brace School in Southfield, Mich., study the fine points of Italian sculpture in an ideal location, the new Italian wing of the Detroit Institute of Arts. Right, University of Detroit students Miguel Arellano and John Minney, seated before an early Christian altar, fulfill sketch assignments at the Institute.

Shaky Jail Conditions Headache For Sheriff

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Prisoners roaming the stairwells unsupervised, "potent and potential weapons" within reach of inmates and escapes occurring with an "increasing frequency" were noted in a Cameron County grand jury report berating the county jail.

"It's a real headache," admitted Sheriff Gus Krausse, the man responsible for the jail. "It was built in 1912. It's got two stairways in it and prisoners can talk with guys in the alley and the streets."

"We're lucky no one's been killed."

In the last eight years, the prisoners have been the lucky ones, staging 23 successful escapes from the 65-year-old facility.

The grand jury report, the second on in seven months blasting the jail, said "potent and potential weapons" in the form of razor blades, homemade ropes, electric cords and empty cans were within reach of prisoners.

"Escapes are occurring with an increasing frequency," continued the 2½-page report released Thursday. "After each escape the guard or guards who was or were directly responsible was or were not admonished or disciplined for their action or lack of action."

In November of last year, a similar grand jury report indicated jail employees exhibited "an overall lack of knowledge as pertaining to job responsibilities."

"The old jail and the untrained personnel are both problems," said the sheriff.

"We have a training program starting in the near future."

Thursday's report also cited food being left in the cells as a potential health problem and the filthy condition of the jail with the notation, "dirt needs no explanation."

"We'll have a new ball game in November when we move into the new jail," Krausse said. "That building won't have any windows and we won't have to transport prisoners from the jail to the courthouse like we have to do now."

The report also suggested ways to improve the current facility. One suggestion was to "ascertain the names and whereabouts of each prisoner whether they be in the jail or in court."

In April, a prisoner thought to be in court walked out of the jail. His escape was discovered six days later.

McNamara Re-election Done In Near-Secrecy

BY R. GREGORY NOKES Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP)—When former U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara was elected recently to a third-five year term as president of the World Bank, little public notice was taken.

Yet the World Bank and its sister institution, the International Monetary Fund, are highly important international institutions that dispense many millions of dollars in U.S. tax funds each year.

The re-election of McNamara by the bank board of directors, which includes a U.S. representative, was not discussed in any public forum and, was announced in a terse two-paragraph press release.

It was indicative of the almost airtight secrecy and confidentiality that surrounds both bank and IMF activities.

McNamara and his counterpart of the IMF, Managing Director J. Johannes Witteveen, a former Dutch finance minister, rarely allow interviews although McNamara did grant one interview last year in which questions had to be submitted in advance.

McNamara's refusal to allow a spontaneous interview has caused some reporters to speculate he does not wish to be asked questions regarding his participation in the expansion of the Vietnam war while he was U.S. defense secretary from 1961-1968.

But bank spokesmen say that if McNamara grants an interview to one reporter he would have to grant interviews to all reporters. And they say that since he represents all of the bank's 129 member nations, he must guard his statements carefully.

The same reasons are given for Witteveen's refusal of interviews.

But it's not just the top men who disdain public exposure of their opinions. U.S. representatives on the boards of the two institutions, Hal S. Reynolds of the IMF and Sam Cross of the World Bank, decline to speak to reporters on the record. Only rarely will officials at any level permit themselves to be quoted.

And although millions of dollars are dispensed each year by the two organizations, often in circumstances of potential controversy, little is said publicly about them, other than sterile press releases announcing the loans and giving the purposes.

It is known from sources within the World Bank that there has been considerable controversy over bank loans to Chile, for example. Questions, also have been raised about lending to Argentina because of alleged human rights abuses.

The bank now has before it proposals for major loans to Communist Vietnam, decisions that surely will be hotly debated. The IMF already has extended assistance to the Hanoi government.

Very little was said when Hanoi was allowed to become a member last year of both institutions, making it eligible for considerable aid. But board meetings of both the bank and the IMF are closed, and minutes of discussions are never made public. It sometimes is possible to find out unofficially how the United States voted on an issue, but there is no public record of the votes.

Congressional control of the operations of the two institutions is limited, partly because they are international organizations. But Congress does vote on U.S. contributions, which are about one-quarter of the financial support of both the bank and the IMF. So the United States has about one-quarter of the total voting strength.

The role of the two institutions in the current international economic turmoil is considerable, if not vital, to keeping the existing economic system operating in the non-Communist world.

The International Monetary Fund loaned $699 million in May alone, which included funds for Great Britain, Italy, Egypt and Portugal. Net outstanding loans, or drawings, were about $19 billion.

The IMF lends money to help countries with balance of payments problems. International payments have been out of balance since oil-exporting nations summarily increased world oil prices in 1973.

World Bank lending is made for development projects in lesser developed countries. During the first three months of this year, regular World Bank loans totalled just under $1.2 billion.

In addition, a bank subsidiary, the International Development Association-IDA- made $456 million in nearly interest-free loans to the world's poorest nations in the same period.

The IMF's available lending resources are getting dangerously low. Demands on the World Bank also are growing, especially from poor nations whose already impoverished living standards have failed to improve since the world economy plunged into recession in 1974.

Money for all these purposes comes from the members of the institutions, especially the richest—Germany, Japan and the United States. And, of course, it is the taxpayers of these countries that either put up the money or underwrite the loans.

The United States, for example, will contribute $2.4 billion of the $7.6 billion in the IDA lending program for the three-year period beginning July 1, if Congress approves.

But the decisions on what countries get how much or for what purpose are made in almost complete secrecy. The U.S. taxpayer almost never gets a complete report.

Sale of Computer To Soviets Vetoed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union says it only wanted to forecast the weather with a $13 million computer system it was buying from an American company.

But the Carter administration says the Cyber 76 computer is so elaborate the Soviets could have used it for warfare.

After a two-year study, the Commerce Department rejected the proposed sale Thursday, saying the chance of its use in military activity "is of serious concern."

Control Data Corp., the firm applying for an export license for the sale, said the Soviets wanted to use the computer for weather research and forecasting. The computer has a wide variety of scientific uses in the United States, including military research.

There was no reaction to the denial from the Soviet Union, but a spokesman for the computer firm labeled the decision "political rather than being based on sound technical grounds."

The spokesman, Duane Andrews, declined to say why the firm believed political considerations were involved. He says attorneys for the company have not yet decided whether to appeal rejection of the export license.

Opposition to the sale began from a group of congressmen who told Carter the computer is already "the brain center of the Pentagon, the Air Force and the National Security Council."

In a letter to Carter, they wrote, "Soviet assurances this will be used for peaceful purposes are unreliable and there is no potential method of monitoring the purposes to which it is put."

Carter's advisers also opposed the sale although other less elaborate computers have been sold to the Soviets.

The Commerce Department's Office of Export Administration acted under a law that provides for restrictions on exports that would adversely affect national security.

Casket Breaks; Suit Settled

Out Of Court

CANADAIGUA, N.Y. (AP)—An out-of-court settlement has been reached in a lawsuit that was filed because a body fell out of the bottom of a casket at a funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman O'Bryan had filed the suit, charging that Mrs. O'Bryan needed psychiatric care after the 375-pound body of her son fell through the bottom of a wooden casket as it was being carried to a grave at Woodlawn Cemetery in 1974.

The O'Bryans sued for $150,000. The amount of the settlement, announced in state Supreme Court on Tuesday, wasn't immediately revealed. Attorneys said the degree of liability of each of the four defendants hasn't been determined.

The defendants are the Parker Manufacturing Co., which made the casket; Prest Manufacturing Co., which made the casket bottom; National Casket Co., wholesaler of caskets, and Kennedy & Son funeral home Inc. of Canadaigua.

The wolf was the last animal to become extinct in Great Britain.

Lincoln Portrait
WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Portrait Gallery of the Smithsonian Institution recently acquired a portrait of Abraham Lincoln painted by Massachusetts-born artist William Willard.

The portrait shows Lincoln in profile and was done, in part, from the Mathew Brady portrait used for the Lincoln head on the $5 federal reserve note. The portrait, painted circa 1864, was placed on display on Lincoln's birthday. It is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Morse of Washington.
