Clements back in old job pledging open government

AUSTIN (AP) — Back in office after a four-year hiatus, Gov. Bill Clements says his second administration will be open to new ideas and staunchly opposed to government business as usual.

"Texans are demanding change," Clements told more than 3,000 spectators and a live television audience in his inaugural address from the Capitol steps Tuesday.

"The people of Texas want us to succeed. For them, the status quo is not good enough. They want action and results," he said.

The Dallas oilman, Texas' first Republican governor this century when he first took office in 1979, was sworn in at 12:06 p.m. He returned to the Governor's Mansion which for the past four years has been occupied by Democrat Mark White.

Clements, 69, used his inaugural address to call attention to the state's crippling economic problems and other troubles.

Falling oil prices have created a record unemployment rate and stripped the state treasury of huge amounts of tax revenue. Legislators who convened last week face a budget deficit estimated at near $6 billion.

"Our situation literally cries for action," Clements said. "We must make certain that our young people have the opportunities that we had. We must re-open our lines of communication with the federal government ... and Mexico.

"We must ensure quality education, attract and encourage the best teachers we can for our schools and universities, restructure the criminal justice system, protect Texans from crime, set our fiscal house in order and create a proper economic climate to attract business and provide jobs."

To accomplish all that, Clements said, Texans deserve "solutions that in the past were considered impossible ... new and bold initiatives."

Lt. Gov. William Hobby also was sworn in during the ceremonies on the south steps of the Capitol.

Hobby used his inaugural address to renew his appeal for more state spending on state universities. Hobby has been a vocal critic of higher education cuts made during last year's special legislative sessions.

"It doesn't make much sense to balance our budget at the expense of higher education," Hobby said.

Clements acknowledged the need to pay heed to higher education, saying university research will help lead to a new economic base free of dependence on oil and gas.

Clements vowed to quickly offer solutions for pressing state problems, such as the overcrowding of prisons which has threatened to halt transfer of inmates from county jails to the state penitentiaries.

"I will immediately propose to the Legislature reforms in our prisons so we can keep the prison doors open without a policy of early releases (of inmates)," he said.

Clements, who must deal with a Legislature controlled by Democrats, said the state's problems demand bipartisan response and promised an open-minded, open-door policy to deal with them.

"I will always listen and be responsive. I will always respect differing viewpoints. My door will be open. My actions will be straightforward, my word good and our programs and proposals offered in a full spirit of cooperation and enthusiasm," he said.

He said citizens expect that much and more.

"The issues we face today are Texas issues. They don't wear the cloak of either the Republican or Democratic Party. It is our obligation to do what is right for Texas. For all Texans," he said.

However, Clements said politicians alone don't have all the answers.

"Our problems are far too severe to leave them to state government alone. This is the real world, and every single citizen has the responsibility to play a role in making this transition to a new Texas," he said.

"It depends on us. On what your leaders in state government do. On what the men and women who run Texas businesses and farms and ranches do," Clements said.

Prospect for WDIC formally accepts

Phillip Niedzielski-Eichner this morning formally accepted the position of executive director of the Waste Deposit Impact Committee (WDIC) for Deaf Smith County.

Niedzielski-Eichner, 34, is currently the economic development administrator for the City of Oak Ridge, Tenn. The WDIC is an interlocal governmental group composed of representatives from five city and county taxing districts. Its purpose is to monitor the site characterization study for a nuclear waste repository proposed in Deaf Smith County.

The WDIC announced last Friday the selection of Niedzielski-Eichner, subject to his acceptance after final negotiations. He was selected from more than 60 applicants and from seven people who were personally interviewed.

Members of the WDIC are Troy Don Moore (chairman), Tom LeGate, Frank Zinser Jr., John Fuston, and Dennis Brown. The committee is funded by a grant from the Nuclear Waste Fund, administered by the state with funds coming from a levy or assessment on all nuclear power projects in the U.S. The first grant was for $230,000.

Two incumbents file to keep posts

Two more incumbents have filed as candidates in the April 4 city election—Loran Nixon for Place 1 and Tom LeGate for Place 3.

Nixon was appointed to the city commission Nov. 3, 1986, to complete the term of Joe Reinauer and will be seeking his first elective term. He is employed by Deaf Smith REC as an operations manager. He lives at 1209 Grand Ave., and he and his wife, Nancy, have three daughters.

LeGate is completing his first two-year term on the commission. He is a self-employed accountant and owner of Top Properties, a real estate firm. He and his wife, Carol Sue, have two daughters. They resided at 129 Nueces St.

Mayor Wes Fisher had previously announced that he will seek reelection. There will also be two at-large places up for election on the commission. Deadline for filing is Feb. 18.

Farmers have new chance for cash from erodible land

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers will have a fourth — and sweeter — opportunity to deposit highly erodible cropland in the Conservation Reserve Program during a Feb. 9-27 signup period, Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng says.

The sweetener is a one-time, one-year bonus that will be available to get vulnerable corn land out of production, he said. The bonuses will be paid in the form of generic certificates redeemable in surplus government-owned commodities at the rate of $2 for each bushel of normal yield on land put into the program, referred to as the CRP.

"Since a paid land diversion is in effect under the 1987 feed grain program to restrain further buildup of corn stocks, this rental payment is being offered to encourage highly erodible, excess corn acreage into long-term conservation use," Lyng said.

The bonus offer is limited to new CRP contracts beginning with the 1987 crop year, he said. It is not retroactive for corn base acreage under CRP contracts already signed. The payments will be made at the time new 1987 contracts are signed.

More than 8.9 million acres of highly erodible cropland were accepted for retirement under the CRP during three signup periods last year. The goal, as spelled out by Congress in the Food Security Act of 1985, is to remove 40 million to 45 million acres of highly erodible cropland from production.

Under the program, farmers agree to take their land out of production for 10 years. In return, based on bids they submit, farmers get annual rental payments from the government and one-time assistance pay for half the cost of planting trees and grass to guard against erosion.

In the three previous signups, the annual bids accepted for the pro-

Sarpalius appointed

AUSTIN — Sen. Bill Sarpalius has been appointed to four key Senate committees and to continue his role as chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Agriculture.

Sarpalius, D-Canyon, was assigned to serve on the Natural Resources, State Affairs, Education and Nominations committees in addition to retaining his subcommittee chairmanship. The appointments were announced by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby as the 78th Legislature convened here to begin its 140-day regular session.

Battle of school districts over state money begins

AUSTIN (AP) — Low-wealth school districts say the state's distribution of school money does not follow the policy set by the Texas Declaration of Independence or the state's first constitution.

"This is a matter for the Legislature to address, not this court," Assistant Attorney General Kevin O'Hanlon said at the beginning of a nonjury trial before State District Judge Harley Clark on Tuesday.

Presentation of witnesses from property-poor districts continued today on the second day of a court controversy that is expected to last at least a month.

Sixty-seven school districts are challenging House Bill 72, the 1984 school reform act, saying it distributes state school money inequitably.

Forty-eight districts, mostly with balanced budgets, have joined the state in defending the present system.

Austin lawyer Rick Gray, representing a group of low-wealth school districts introduced the Texas Declaration of Independence and the state's first Constitution as the first evidence that state funds are not fairly distributed.

"Both these plainly show that Texans declared their independence from Mexico largely because Mexico did not establish an education system," Gray said. "One of the main efforts of the new Texas was to have free public education for all."

"Evidence will show that the state guarantees an average of $2,736 for each student in daily average attendance and yet the average local tax rate is 22.1 cents per $100 property valuation," said O'Hanlon. "Yet there are 300 school districts, including some of these plaintiffs, spend less than $2,700 per student because they do not tax local property enough."

The first witness for the low-wealth districts was Dr. Richard Hooper,

University of Houston school finance expert.

Hooper testified there has been no change in "equity" in state payments to school districts from 1975 to 1984.

Attorneys for the low-wealth districts said their presentation of witnesses would take about two weeks.

Austin attorney Jim Turner, representing a group of districts with balanced-budgets who do not want the present law changed estimated the trial would last at least a month, "maybe two months."

Eight districts in South Texas originally sued the state in March 1984.

The distribution of $8 billion in state school funds annually is based on a complex formula that considers various factors, including a district's property tax base, a district's willingness to tax itself, and whether a student is in a special program, such as bilingual instruction or classes for the physically handicapped.

No decline in oil prices for 1987

AUSTIN (AP) — Oil prices will probably not decline in 1987 and drilling activity likely will increase, an Exxon Co. spokesman said Tuesday.

Gregory Davis of Houston was one of six industry representatives who appeared before the Railroad Commission at its monthly statewide allowable hearing.

The commission routinely set the oil production factor at 100 percent, a pattern that started over 14 years ago. And as usual, the large East Texas Field was restricted to 86 percent production to avoid possible waste.

Davis submitted Exxon's February nomination for Texas crude oil at 235,000 barrels a day, which is 5,400 barrels a day less than January. Davis attributed the decrease to "normal production decline."

Commission Chairman Mack Wallace asked if the price of oil had affected the industry's ability to work on wells.

"Sure, some budgets are cut back in the fields," Davis said. But he added that "I don't think you will see the continued drop, as in 1986, of the price of oil. I also anticipate more drilling and repairs."

Wallace said crude and petroleum-product imports into the United States averaged 6,422,000 barrels per day for the four weeks ending Dec. 26, an increase of 803,000 barrels a day from the same period last year.

Nominations for Texas crude in February totaled 2,016,389 barrels a day, a decrease of 27,801 barrels a day from this month.

Houston seeks Demo convention

HOUSTON (AP) — City officials trying to lure the 1988 Democratic National Convention will increase their efforts now that New Orleans is out of the running, the mayor says.

New Orleans was selected as the site for the 1988 Republican National Convention by the GOP site selection committee Tuesday. The Republican National Committee is expected to accept that recommendation Friday.

A contract provision required New Orleans to withdraw from competition for the Democratic Convention scheduled July 17-20, 1988. Party Chairman Frank Fahrenkoph Jr. said the reason for the provision is that Republicans felt they needed six weeks' unlimited access to the Superdome before their convention begins Aug. 15, 1988.

The GOP's announcement in effect leaves Houston and Atlanta as the front-runners for the Democratic Convention.

"This narrows the field by one," Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire said Tuesday.

"We will certainly intensify our efforts to the attention of all the party officials and especially the site selection committee the fact that Houston does have the best bid and we can put on the best convention," Mrs. Whitmire said.

GOP bungled military buildup

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former top Reagan administration official says Republicans mishandled the defense buildup under President Reagan, leading to loss of support for larger Pentagon budgets, plans to buy weapons the nation can't afford and lack of attention to such issues as bullets.

"The defense budget situation is a mess," Lawrence Korb told the Senate Armed Services Committee on Tuesday. Korb was assistant secretary of defense for personnel and force management from 1981 until he resigned in 1985.

When Reagan took office six years ago after promising to "re-arm America," Korb said, "the Reagan buildup was begun before a coherent national security strategy was developed."

"Rather than letting strategy guide budget choices, the situation was reversed," Korb said. "As is recounted in former budget director (David) Stockman's book, budget totals were agreed upon first."

"The argument was made that in 1981, the military situation was so bad it did not matter where the money was spent," he told the panel. "Force goals and slogans became a substitute for strategy. Rather than strategy, the air was filled with such phrases as 'a 600-ship Navy' and 'horizontal escalation.'"

Pentagon officials, asked to respond to Korb's charges, did not immediately return telephone calls.

His criticism mirrored comments made by congressional critics of Reagan's defense buildup. The Senate Armed Services Committee, under the new leadership of chairman Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., has been holding a series of hearings about U.S. defense strategy and policy.

Guns swapped for drugs

MIAMI (AP) — Planes carrying guns to Nicaraguan rebels were loaded with drugs for return flights to the United States with the cooperation of the CIA and the Drug Enforcement Administration, two inmates say.

Both agencies deny the allegations, but a leader of the rebel umbrella organization said Tuesday some fliers bringing in supplies to Central America may have taken drugs back out.

"We really have no control over what they do in their free time," said Leonardo Somarriba, secretary general of the United Nicaraguan Opposition. "We certainly would object if that were the case."

The drug profits were intended to finance the war against Nicaragua's leftist government, but much of the money was pocketed by Contra leaders, said Jorge "George" Morales Garcia, who is accused of cocaine trafficking.

The CIA on Tuesday denied any involvement with the guns-for-drugs swap, as has the DEA.

"Drug smuggling is against U.S. law and the CIA does not break U.S. law," said agency spokeswoman Kathy Pherson.

Miami DEA spokesman Billy Yout denied his agency covered up drug smuggling. He said Morales' story may be designed to get him "out of the jam he's in."

Baptists accused of lost priorities

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — A Texas minister who has twice sought the presidency of the Southern Baptist Convention says it's time for Baptists to reaffirm their emphasis on evangelism and stop factional bickering.

The Rev. Winfred Moore, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Amarillo, Texas, was one of several speakers Tuesday urging Georgia Baptists to reinstate their emphasis on evangelism.

Speaking to Georgia Baptists at their annual evangelism conference, Moore said fighting between moderate conservative Baptists has given the denomination a bad name.

"I've felt like apologizing — myself personally — to my friends in other denominations because I certainly don't think we've helped them," he said. "It's hurt everywhere. It hasn't just hurt us, it has spilled over to other church groups. The reputations of Christians has not been helped anywhere."

Moore told the 2,500 Baptists attending the three-day seminar which ends today that the in-fighting resulted from laziness about evangelizing.

"When people get lethargic about their task, they always find something to disagree about. (Unimportant) things get to be important when the truly important things get neglected. Soul-winning was the number one priority of Southern Baptists until a few years ago," Moore said.

Kindergartners at Northwest Elementary peruse copies of the Brand provided by a staff member during a recent visit. As a part of learning about careers, students of Wendy Roose and Polly Schilling are enjoying visits from various professionals. Other recent guests have included Judge Wes Gulley who spoke about practicing law and Mrs. Mendez who spoke about her career as a baker. Future guest speakers include a mechanic, doctor, musician, mailman, carpenter, policeman and truck driver. An informal poll revealed that most of 5- and 6-year olds aspire to be teachers, nurses and doctors. Shown with the students are Roose, Schilling and aids Margie Pena and Eve Villegas.

Conkwright elected to board

When the polls closed on election night, Saturday, Jan. 17, and the votes were counted, complete but unofficial results revealed that Webb Gober of Farwell and Jim Conkwright of Hereford had been reelected to the Board of Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1.

Gober, who will represent the interests of the residents of Director's Precinct Three, will be starting his seventh term in office. He was first elected to the Board of Directors in 1973. Gober has served as President, Vice-President and Secretary-Treasurer of the Board of Directors during his time in office. He was serving as Secretary-Treasurer at the time of his reelection. Director's Precinct 3 consists of the portions of Bailey, Castro and Parmer Counties which lie within the boundaries of the Water District's service area.

Conkwright, who was reelected by the residents of Director's Precinct Four, will be starting his fourth term as a member of the board, having first been elected in 1979. He has held the position of Secretary-Treasurer and was serving as a member of the board at the time of his reelection. Director's Precinct Four consists of the portions of Armstrong, Deaf Smith, Potter and Randall Counties which lie within the boundaries of the Water District's service area.

Gober and Conkwright will each serve a one-year term in office. Another election for the Board positions representing Director's Precincts Three and Four will be held in 1988, to comply with House Bill 332 passed during the last session of the Texas Legislature. HB 332 changed the terms of office for Board Members for two years to four years and stipulated that elections will be held in even-numbered years. Directors elected in 1988 will serve a four-year term in office.

Marketing order planned by growers

Discussion of a potato marketing order, designed to reap a larger share of the national market, was one of the primary topics at the annual West Texas Vegetable Conference held in Hereford Tuesday.

The Texas-New Mexico Potato Marketing Order is now in the planning stages and specifics of the plan will be determined by a 11-member steering committee. A marketing order is a set of regulations determining the quality, handling and shipping of a commodity coming from a certain production area.

David Smith of Hart, Smith Potato Co., is chairman of the steering committee which is now drafting regulations to send to the Secretary of Agriculture for final approval. The process could take up to a year and a producer referendum would have to pass before the order could be implemented.

The marketing order would be funded by an assessment collected from potato handlers, those who pack and ship the vegetable, explained Bill Weeks, extension vice president of Texas Citrus and Vegetable Growers in Harlingen. Funding would provide for promotion, research and development of potatoes in the 23 Texas counties and 10 New Mexico counties to be included in the marketing order.

Smith said area producers had shown a lot of interest in the program although they still have questions about the implementation of the order. He said there are more than 100 potato growers planting on about 18,000 acres and 23 handlers in the affected area.

In another highlight of the Tuesday meeting at Hereford Community Center, a veteran economist told growers they need to diversify to stay in business. Dr. Gordon Powell, an extension economist in fruit and vegetable marketing, was one of the featured speakers at the conference.

When farmers diversify, they should get as much knowledge about the new crop as was known about the old, stressed Dr. Powell. He said too many people who are making changes are getting into crops they don't know anything about.

"You have to know the cultural practices, the clientele, marketing trends, growing seasons—don't go off half-cocked until you find out what it's all about," said Powell. A grower must also consider production costs, harvest costs, machinery needed, packing and transportation costs.

After listing many other factors to consider, Powell concluded by saying, "We've got to grow what we can sell rather than try to sell everything we grow."

The conference here featured about two dozen speakers who discussed current vegetable marketing situations, results of vegetable research, and the current status on onions and potatoes.

The conference was sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the High Plains Vegetable Growers and Shippers Council in cooperation with the Deaf Smith County Extension Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas Tech University.

with the assignments and that each will be beneficial to the people of the 31st Senatorial District.

"There are no better committees in the Senate than the five we're serving on," Sarpalius said. "All you have to do is look at the subjects that come before those committees to realize how important they are to the people of the Panhandle and South Plains."

Sarpalius has served on the Natural Resources Committee and chaired its Subcommittee on Agriculture since he was a freshman senator in 1981. He joined the State Affairs and Education committees in 1983. This year marks the first time he will serve on the Nominations Committee.

The Natural Resources Committee is responsible for hearing all legislation relating to oil and gas, wildlife and agriculture. The subcommittee specializes in agriculture matters, making recommendations to the full committee on specific agriculture legislation and conducting interim studies on agriculture-related issues for the committee.

State Affairs Committee members hear a broad range of legislation and traditionally deal with about 60 percent of all the bills introduced in a legislative session. The Education Committee deals with all public education and higher education issues. Sarpalius is the only former teacher serving on the Education Committee.

Senior parents to meet Thursday

Parents of Hereford High Seniors will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the lounge of the Hereford Community Center to discuss plans for the senior prom and all-night party.

The prom will follow the senior banquet on May 16. All senior parents are urged to attend.

Youth group to deliver 'Fat Babies'

"Fat Babies," a musical play, will be presented by the Good Guys Nazarene Youth on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 24 and 25, at the Hereford Community Center.

"Fat Babies" is a series of comedy sketches about the Hoffmans, a typical Christian family. Some of the sketches are of a car crash on their way to Sunday School and a high school cafeteria scene.

Appearing in the play are Stephanie Jones, Denise White, Tracy Garrett, Michael Hamilton, Michele Hamilton, Billy Barnes, Roni Kay Love, Jayson Parks, Ron-da Fuston, Lee Young, Chris Coleman, Chris Tardy, Travis Garrett, Stacy McMahon, and Cynamin Brownlow.

Musical numbers include Jason Gearn, Robin White, Holly Andrews, Lisa Garrett and Wendy Connolly. Lisa Hilton is the pianist.

Tracy Murray will run the lights and sound is by Roger Hodges.

The Saturday performance is a dessert theater with desserts served at 7 p.m. with curtain at 8 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for children.

Admission for Sunday's matinee at 2 p.m. is $2 for all.

Ted Taylor, youth pastor at the Church of the Nazarene, compiled and directed the play.

All proceeds go to help fund youth missions trips to Haiti and Los Angeles this summer.

Reinauer elected HCC president

Eddie Reinauer Jr. was elected as president of Hereford Country Club following the annual shareholders meeting Tuesday night at the local private club.

Shareholders elected five new directors at the meeting. They are: Ray Cowsett, Clarence Betzen, B.J. Gilliland, Jerry Walsh and Reinauer.

Ed Coplen was elected as the new vice president, and O.G. Nieman was reelected as secretary-treasurer.

Ed Yavornik, employed as the new club manager the first of the year, spoke briefly to shareholders and urged their participation during the new year. Directors passed a resolution commending David Emerick for his service as president the past two years.

Nominations, the senator's newest committee, is responsible for reviewing all gubernatorial appointments to state boards and commissions and recommending to the Senate which should be confirmed. Sarpalius said he hopes his new assignment will serve as a reminder that gubernatorial appointments should come from all parts of the state, not just the major downstate urban centers.

Betzen reports on meeting

The Hereford Board of Realtors heard reports from President Clarence Betzen and Secretary Marilyn Culpepper when the board held its regular monthly luncheon meeting Tuesday at Hereford Country Club.

The two officers relayed important information they gleaned from a Texas Association of Realtors meeting in Austin recently. Betzen also announced committee appointments for the new year.

Ireland reflects on experience

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Until June 2, 1984, Jill Ireland was leading a comfortable, well-ordered life as the wife, frequent co-star and sometimes producer for action star Charles Bronson.

"Then I had cancer," she said. "I had a mastectomy, and I had six months of chemotherapy."

This month the London-born actress marks two important events: her return to acting after four years in "The Assassination" with her husband; and publication of her book for Little, Brown Co., "Life Wish" — a play of words on Bronson's most famous "Death Wish" movies.

"The book covers from my life from June 2, 1984, until the end of the year," said the 46-year-old actress. "It tells everything I did, everything I thought. It's a very frank, and — I've just been told by a young man who read it — very graphic. There's a lot of humor in it, because I can't handle anything too heavy without laughing some times. I have to laugh."

"There are a lot of stories about Charlie in the book. But basically when you're fighting cancer or you receive the news that you are suffering from a catastrophic disease, I think it's a mistake to assume that you're going to lean on your husband or wife.

"So I didn't lean on Charlie. He carried on living with me as he always has. Living with someone who loves you is always a great support. But basically, I had to go into myself for my own strength. ... It's unfair to expect them to go through that. They're going through something themselves; ... They need some help themselves."

After regaining her health, Miss Ireland thought that her acting days were over. She had been approached to co-produce a new film for Bronson, "My Affair With the President's Wife," and she started thinking about actresses who could play the title role. Then at a birthday party last April, Yoram Globus and Menahem Golan, who head Cannon Films, suggested that she co-star with Bronson.

In "The Assassination," Miss Ireland softened her British accent to play a U.S. president's wife who is the target for a killing. The Secret Service agent assigned to protect her, of course, is Charles Bronson. This marks their ninth film together. The others are: "Someone Behind the Door," "Hard Times," "Breakout," "Love and Bullets," "Breakheart Pass," "From Noon Till Three," "Death Wish II" and "The Valachi Papers."

Jill Ireland started in films at the age of 12 and was dancing with the Monte Carlo Ballet at 15. She danced in her first film, "Rosalinda," in 1955, then was placed under an acting contract by the Rank Company. In 1957 she married David McCallum and came to Hollywood when he starred in the TV series, "The Man from U.N.C.L.E."

She divorced McCallum and married Bronson in 1968, when he had climbed to starring ranks with "The Magnificent Seven," "The Great Escape" and "The Dirty Dozen." In 1983, Miss Ireland formed her own Luleika Farm Productions and was associate producer on "Murphy's Law" and "The Evil That Men Do."

Baker Is Fouled By A Lobo

Bobby Baker (24) of the Hereford Whiteface varsity boys' basketball team goes up for a shot from within the key area, and is fouled by a Levelland player. Baker made one of two free throw attempts. At that point, Hereford trailed Levelland 36-29 with 2:53 left in the third quarter. Levelland held on to defeat the Herd, 54-51. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Will Giants' secondary stop Broncos' passing game?

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Like Marc Antony, everyone seems to have come to the Super Bowl to praise the New York Giants defense. After all, it has buried just about everyone this season.

Even the Denver Broncos, who will play the Giants in Sunday's Super Bowl, have nothing but nice things to say about New York's overpowering defense.

Still, there is this little matter of the Giant secondary, which supposedly is the vulnerable part of a unit that ranked second in the National Football League in total defense and first against the run.

"They say we're the weak link?" cornerback Elvis Patterson said with a look filled with doubt. "If we're the weak link, then go ahead and expose us. Nobody has done it yet."

"We will scratch and claw and kick and fight and do whatever it takes to

Rip Rouring

Ricochets win wallyball title

The Rip Rouring Ricochets team won the YMCA co-ed wallball league's "A" division championship Tuesday night.

Rip Rouring Ricochets defeated the Hereford YMCA in two championship matches. Rip Rouring Ricochets reached the title matches by defeating the Blasters, 15-10, 15-3.

In the first championship match, Rip Rouring Ricochets beat the Hereford YMCA, 16-14, 15-3. In the second title match, the Rip Rouring Ricochets won, 15-12, 15-7.

In the co-ed "B" division title match, the Fantastic Four beat the Foul Ups, 15-4, 15-14.

win. This is the biggest game of our careers."

Patterson clearly recalls that Denver quarterback John Elway threw for 336 yards against New York on Nov. 23. He also remembers that the Giants won the game 19-16.

"Elway presents every problem in the world," Patterson said. "He can do it all. He can even throw the ball 50 yards in the air when he is laying down. He's very mobile or he can sit in the pocket and he is a very accurate passer."

"When he is rolling or scrambling, he causes a problem. Their guys can get behind you. But we didn't let it happen last time. Their receivers know that they will be hit when he gets out of protection because the rules let us. They are live game when he is scrambling and we will be hitting them."

New York's defensive record is built mainly on its sensational linebackers and strong front line, which applies extreme pressure on quarterbacks and shuts down rushing games. The Broncos don't run very well, anyway, which means Elway often will be testing Patterson, fellow cornerbacks Perry Williams and Mark Collins and safeties Kenny Hill and Herb Welch.

"We're confident in ourselves and in the guys surrounding us," Williams said. "We know if we are one step off of their receivers, we are in for a long day. When most quarterbacks start to scramble, the receivers cut off their routes and come back to help out. Denver's guys go deep. If we take a nap for even a second, they can hurt you."

Denver's Mark Jackson, a rookie from Purdue who has joined Steve Watson and Vance Johnson as Elway's favorite receivers, knows the Giants won't throw anything fancy at his team.

"They are a basic, hard-hitting, hustling defense and their defensive backs let you know you're going to be hit and they try to strip the ball," Jackson said. "I don't know if they have the talent of the Chiefs or Raiders in one-on-one coverage, but they spread it out so you can't pick on one person."

"I like our chances with a John Elway. He adds another dimension with his arm. All receivers have a scramble rule that they stay deep if they are on the side of the scramble, cut short or go across when they're on the other side."

While there are questions being raised about New York's defensive backs, the Broncos' secondary is one of the strengths of a quick defense which also is stingy against the run. New York's wide receivers aren't outstanding and quarterback Phil Simms isn't as explosive as Elway. But this is anything but a mismatch.

"They know how to get open," free safety Steve Foley said. "They're good even if they're not known. They have a great tight end who catches the ball, is strong and a great blocker in (Mark) Bavaro. Simms' strengths are on play-action because he is so good at looking off the receiver and he has a strong arm."

"We would like to be in a position where the passing game must win it, where they must rely on the pass, since they're not used to it."

What the Giants are used to is winning — 16 of 18 games this season, including the last 11 straight, capped by playoff romps over San Francisco and Washington. What hope can the Broncos have after a pair of tight postseason games against New England and Cleveland?

"They are a great team," Foley said. "When you go 14-3 in the season and totally dominate, you deserve the publicity and the praise."

"We'll just be glad to walk into the Rose Bowl."

And walk out with an NFL championship.

Herd varsity boys fall to Levelland Lobos, 54-51

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

Hereford's inability to make baskets at crucial times, combined with Levelland's Mike Shepherd hitting 14 of 15 free throw attempts, resulted in Hereford coming out on the short end of things, 54-51, in a District 1-4A varsity boys' basketball game played Tuesday night in Hereford.

The loss was the fourth straight district defeat for the Whitefaces, who are now 3-4 in the district and 8-13 overall. Hereford plays Borger at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in a makeup game at the HHS gym.

The Hereford junior varsity boys scored a 56-45 victory over Levelland Tuesday, improving their season to 11-7.

On Friday night, the HHS boys' teams are scheduled to play at Frenship, with the junior varsity game at 7 p.m. and the varsity contest at 8:30 p.m.

Tuesday's varsity game between Hereford and Levelland was tied three times in the first quarter before Levelland gained a lead of 12-6. A three-point play by Chris Johnson of Hereford cut Levelland's lead to 12-9 just before the first quarter ended.

Levelland led by either two points or four points in the second quarter until a basket by Hereford's Bobby Baker tied the game at 19-19 with 2:52 left in the period.

Levelland then went back into the lead, holding a 24-21 margin over Hereford at halftime. The Lobos maintained their lead throughout the third quarter, with Hereford getting closest at 26-25 with 5:43 left in the quarter.

The Lobos then took a 40-35 lead over the Whitefaces into the fourth quarter. Levelland's lead was five or seven points until a basket by Kevin Hansen brought the Whitefaces within three points, 46-43, with 5:10 left in the game.

Levelland then led by six points, 49-43, with 3:09 left. With 1:50 left, Hansen hit a pair of free throws to put Hereford within three points again, 50-47.

Levelland's Michael Shepherd, whose free throw shooting kept the Lobos ahead in the second half, missed his only foul shot with 1:17 left. Hereford got the rebound but failed to score in that possession of the ball.

Baker stole the ball from Levelland with 45 seconds left, and Rodney McCracken made a shot with 30 seconds left, cutting Levelland's lead to one point, 50-49.

Two more free throws were made by Levelland with 17 seconds left for a 52-49 lead over Hereford. The Whitefaces' final basket was scored by Marcus Brown with four seconds left.

Levelland's other points came on free throws after the referee called a two-shot intentional, technical foul against Hereford.

Scoring in double figures for Hereford were Bobby Baker with 13 points, Rodney McCracken with 12 points, and Kevin Hansen with 10 points. Kyle Streun added six points, hitting six of six free throws.

As a team, Hereford made 17 of 20 free throws. Levelland made 20 of 25 foul shots.

Baker also led the Whitefaces in rebounds with eight and in steals with four.

The Hereford junior varsity boys held a three-point lead, 40-37, going into the fourth quarter, and outscored Levelland 16-8 in the final period for a 56-45 victory. Hereford led at halftime, 29-25.

Ross Torres led the Whiteface junior varsity with 17 points. Clint Cotten scored nine points, and Pat Mercer added eight points.

Rebounders for Hereford included Chad Clements with seven and John Streun with six.

59-23 in varsity contest

HHS girls lose games to Levelland

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford High School varsity girls played a good inside defensive game against No. 1 ranked Levelland Tuesday night in Hereford, but Levelland had some hot outside shooting in defeating Hereford 59-23.

A three-point play by Carmen Brockman with just over half a minute gone in the game, and a field goal by Brockman a minute later, gave Hereford a 5-2 lead. But the rest of the game was Levelland's.

The loss dropped Hereford to 2-7 in District 1-4A and 7-15 overall.

Levelland also won the junior varsity contest, 38-30. Hereford's junior varsity team has a 5-8 season record.

A makeup varsity game is scheduled Thursday at 5 p.m. between Hereford and Borger, at the HHS gym. On Friday, Hereford plays at Frenship, with the varsity game scheduled for 7 p.m. and the junior varsity game at 8:30 p.m.

In Tuesday's varsity game, while Levelland was hitting outside shots consistently, Hereford was struggling with its shooting. Hereford hit just 10 of 38 field goal attempts, 26 percent.

Levelland held a 20-9 lead after the first quarter and a 37-13 halftime lead in the 59-23 win over Hereford.

Brockman scored seven points for Hereford and, Tricia Kahlich had six points. Brandi Binder led in rebounds with nine and in steals with three. Susie Kalka had four assists.

The junior varsity game saw Levelland build up a 24-8 halftime lead enroute to a 38-30 victory over Hereford.

Susan Gage was high scorer for Hereford with 10 points, and Shea McGinty scored six points. Gage and McGinty each had six rebounds, Susan Bell had five assists and Gage had four steals.

Thorpe leads Kings past Warriors 123-114

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Sacramento forward Otis Thorpe is on a roll as he nears the halfway point of his third NBA season.

On Monday, Thorpe won his first NBA Player of the Week award. He followed it up by scoring 19 points and grabbing 11 rebounds Tuesday night as the Kings beat the Golden State Warriors 123-114.

"It's a great feeling to be recognized by your peers and those who vote on the award," Thorpe said.

Guard Reggie Theus scored 31 points and guard Derek Smith added 27 as the Kings improved their record to 12-26.

Golden State, which fell to 23-18, was led by guard Eric "Sleepy" Floyd with 24 points and by center Joe Barry Carroll with 22.

In the only other NBA game Tuesday, Chicago beat Milwaukee 103-90.

Smith credited speculation by teammates that he was on the brink of losing his starting assignment due to what they perceived as poor play with inspiring him Tuesday night. "I play better when I'm angry," he said.

Thorpe hit six free throws in a 2½-minute stretch late in the fourth quarter to assure the Kings' victory. Bulls 103, Bucks 90.

Michael Jordan scored 31 points, 14 in the final quarter, as the NBA's leading scorer shook off some stitches in the mouth to lead the Bulls.

Jordan needed the medical attention after being elbowed in the first quarter by Bucks center Paul Mokeski.

"They gave me stitches and novocaine and told me it wouldn't hurt," Jordan said. "I was a little tentative getting back into the game, which is not unusual right after something like that happens."

Gene Banks wasn't tentative for Chicago, as the reserve forward scored a season-high 18 points.

Marvin Webster, who signed a 10-day contract with the Bucks, made his first NBA appearance since April 1984 as the 7-footer played 67 seconds.

"I want to give Webster a good hard look to see if he can play for us the rest of the season," Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson said.

TEXAS UNLUCKY
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas, the state where everything is big, has been a big problem for pro golfer Payne Stewart.

It's always close but no cigar for Stewart. In October he finished second in the $1 million Vantage Championship at the Oak Hills Country Club here. He was only one stroke behind the winner, Ben Crenshaw, when the tournament was ended one round early because of heavy rains.

It was the fourth runner-up finish for Payne in the last three seasons on a Texas golf course. He lost both the 1984 and Colonial Invitations in playoffs and blew the 1985 Byron Nelson by posting a double-bogey on the last hole.

'Y' leagues for junior high students planned

Racquetball and wallyball leagues for junior high school students are being organized at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

No signup deadlines or season starting dates have been made at this time, YMCA program director Jerry Brock said. The leagues will have six-week seasons, plus single elimination tournaments or playoffs, he adds.

The leagues will be for junior high school students only. There will be no registration fees for YMCA members, and the fee for non-members of the YMCA is $8 per person.

The wallyball league will be a co-ed league. Four players compete on each team in the league. Days for the league matches will be Friday afternoons.

Divisions in the racquetball league will be junior boys "A" and "B" singles, junior girls' singles, junior boys' doubles, and junior girls' doubles. Matches will be best-of-three.

For more information on the junior high school wallyball and racquetball leagues, contact the YMCA at 364-0800.

Al Davis makes mark in Super Bowl week

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — His team had struggled through a disappointing season, eliminated on the final Sunday, relegated to also-ran status. The suspicion is that the Los Angeles Raiders' failure generated some chortling in the NFL's executive suite, where their owner — given his track record of winning lawsuits against them — is hardly a popular figure. That failure could not, however, deny Al Davis his slice of this Super Bowl.

With pro football's annual exercise in conspicuous consumption settling in his adopted town, the managing general partner of the Raiders made sure to carve out a small role for himself.

Davis claimed his piece of this production in a tiny college gym, where he provided most of the players, plenty of the planning and all of the cheerleaders for a coaching clinic.

He arrived for the show wearing his trademark silver and black colors, complete with the familiar, slicked-back hairstyle and the bracelet and ring with his name encased in jewels, just in case you forget the face.

He was flanked by former NFL coaches George Allen and Hank Stram and, as he watched and listened, there was a distinct feeling that this longtime thorn in the NFL's judicial side was back in his favorite element.

The bottom line on Davis, the owner, is that he is a coach.

He hung on every word as Stram, speaking for the offense, and Allen, taking the side of the defense, went through lengthy X's and O's explanations of the Super Bowl teams' tendencies. And he seemed mesmerized by the lectures.

"I can't pick a winner," he said. "I look at the matchups, not the game. I look at the films to see how they got here. But I would do that anyway."

That, after all, is what coaches do. It was as an assistant at the Citadel that Davis fought college recruiting battles, once pursuing a promising New Jersey linebacker named Bill Parcels and another time going after a future NFL punter and broadcaster named Paul Maguire.

"Maguire asked if he could have a car," Davis said. "I told him, 'Sure.' A couple of weeks after he enrolled, he asked me again. I sent him to a used-car dealer. He picked one out and the dealer asked how he planned to pay for it. He said, 'Mr. Davis will take care of it.' Then, I told him, 'I said you could have a car. I didn't say I'd pay for it.'"

Davis laughed at the memory. He does not, however, laugh about the Raiders' season, which began 0-3, recovered to 8-4 and finished 8-8.

"This is — what did Steinbeck call it? — the winter of our discontent. We came back, and then let everything slip away. It was a tribute to come back, but the end was unsatisfying."

He knows the reasons — a talent vacuum at quarterback and a sub-par season from last year's NFL most valuable player, running back Marcus Allen.

"Our superstar did not have a superstar season," Davis said, "and he knows it. Quarterback is the least stable position in the league. How many really dependable ones do you have? Five? Six?"

Just then, John Madden strolled by. Another old coach. One of Davis' people.

"You know what John told me?" Davis said, a note of wonder in his voice. "He said our faces are on the coin they're going to use for the flip Sunday. He wouldn't lie about something like that."

Madden wasn't fibbing. It's part of the game's tradition to salute past winners and this is a tribute to the Raiders' Super Bowl triumph in Pasadena 10 years ago.

Final Word

Kalka Grabs The Rebound

Susie Kalka (10) of the Hereford Whiteface varsity girls' basketball team grabs an offensive rebound Tuesday night in a District 1-4A game against Levelland. Carmen Brockman also has her hand close to the ball in attempting to rebound the ball. Hereford lost to Levelland 59-23 and will play at home against Borger at 5 p.m. Thursday. At the left is Amy Coneway of Hereford, and behind Brockman is Brandi Binder (42). (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

In rookie year as NBA coach

Weiss has had many disappointments

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bob Weiss had high hopes when he became the San Antonio Spurs' head coach, but he's had many disappointments.

The rookie coach said the team can make the playoffs despite an 11-28 record and 43 games remaining on the schedule.

"I think we have a shot at the last playoff spot," Weiss said Tuesday. "We're six games behind Denver and we have a favorable schedule. I think if we play ball and they slip we'll have a shot."

"I think we can make a run with what we got now, but we need people playing at the top of their games," said Weiss, whose team hosts the Houston Rockets tonight.

Weiss had hoped that veteran guard Johnny Moore, who was recuperating from Desert Fever, would be playing at 90 percent of his peak.

Weiss also had high hopes for guard Johnny Dawkins, the team's first-round draft choice.

Moore remains on the injured reserve list as he recuperates from the rare illness, a form of meningitis that sidelined him for most of last season.

Dawkins, meanwhile, has not produced effectively, Weiss said.

"Those are the biggest things that we didn't have that I thought we would have," Weiss said. "The biggest frustrations have been playing well in games and losing by two. We spent a lot of good efforts ending up on the short end of the stick."

Weiss said he has taken some of the pressure off of Dawkins and hopes to activate Moore soon.

"I think we're making progress," said Weiss, the former assistant coach of the Dallas Mavericks. "But I'm still disappointed with our record. I would have liked to have won more games by now."

Weiss said a poor training camp

was part of the reason for the slow start.

"Coming out of training camp, we were definitely not where I wanted to be. I thought they would learn quickly. We had people out of shape that were holding us back," Weiss said.

He said he may have pushed the players too hard.

"One of my faults early on was trying to teach too much too soon, not breaking it down in simpler terms," Weiss said. "I knew that would be one of my tendencies going in."

Despite the team's performance, Spurs management is pleased, Weiss said.

"Everything's just great," Weiss said. "If management expected this team to be five games over 500 by now, then you might have problems. I think we all pretty much saw the same picture. They expected young talent to develop and they see improvements there. The players are playing hard," Weiss said.

Ann Landers

Woman justified

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was disappointed by your advice to "Frustrated in Arizona," the lady whose husband chose not to disclose the details of his financial worth. Please reread her letter one paragraph at a time and make another assessment of that situation:

Paragraph 1: She can't give her name and address because "There's enough trouble now."

Paragraph 2: Here we find the cause of the trouble: They've been married 30 years and she has nagged him all the time about money.

Paragraph 3: By her own admission she has everything she wants or needs. All she has to do is keep house and stop nagging him.

Paragraph 4: He is a lawyer. According to paragraph 3, he is both prosperous and generous. Logic tells us that he knows what is needed to leave her financially secure in case he precedes her in death. The man's professional expertise would ensure that his estate would be in order and legally correct. He has told her not to pry into his financial affairs. You advised her to do just the opposite: "Seek advice from a banker or an out-of-town lawyer." Surely that would cast her in the role of an adversary instead of helpmate and partner. It would be the final straw, alienate him and derail that gravy train the avaricious wife has ridden so long.

So, dear Ann, I say you goofed. That woman may find out what she wants to know - in the divorce court - and live miserably ever after.

Thanks for letting me sound off - Florida Mann.

DEAR FLORIDA: Let's start with Paragraph 4. You assume that just because a man is a lawyer his affairs are in order and legally correct. Wake up, Buttercup. There are plenty of lawyers out there whose affairs are in a mess. (Same story with physicians. Often their families get the worst medical care and the doctors themselves aren't in such great shape.)

I say a woman has the right to know about the family's finances. If her husband refuses to tell her she is justified in suspecting something is amiss. My advice to "find out on your own" was good. I stand by it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How does one cope with intense envy? My mother had it, especially toward her relatives. I hated that quality in her. And now I have it. Is it hereditary?

Please tell me what to do, Ann. It is eating me up. Sick of Myself in Belleville

DEAR SICK: Envy is not a genetic disease, like sickle cell anemia, but attitudes can run in families. Daughters tend to imitate their mothers.

People who are satisfied with their lives are not envious of others. What is your life makes you feel good about yourself? Are you generous, kind and giving? These qualities are rewarding and they generate self-esteem.

Competitive types are often envious of individuals who outperform them and have more "things." Is THIS your problem? If so, reevaluate your thinking. You need to attach more importance to what you ARE and less to what you have.

CONFIDENTIAL To Right or Wrong in Montana? There is no justification for slapping a 14-year-old child across the face. Grounding her for two weeks would have been better. I agree with your husband that you should apologize.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request, and 50 cents to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Study of Texas continues when Valeda Study Club members meet

"What would you try to accomplish if you were the First Lady of Texas?" was the roll call answered by members of Valeda Study Club at their regular meeting recently in the home of Frances Crume.

Eastern Star members meet

Linda Withers, deputy grand matron, was guest at the regular meeting recently of the Order of Eastern Star held in the Masonic Hall.

Mrs. Withers gave a report of instructions from the Worthy Grand Matron, Jean Nesbitt.

Hostesses for the covered dish supper which preceded the meeting were Irene Holt, Frances Deavenport, Beatrice Hutson, and Johnnie Sanders.

President Marjorie Lasiter called the meeting to order and the club collect was recited. Due to the absence of many club members, minutes were not read nor a financial report given.

The hostess introduced the guest speaker Argen Draper. In keeping with the club's study of Texas, Mrs. Draper presented a study on Margaret Moffett Lee Houston, wife of Sam Houston. Mrs. Draper began by stressing how important each woman is in their community. Women teach love, love of family and love of God and are the power behind the throne.

Margaret Moffett Lee Houston was a Southern belle, daughter of a Baptist preacher and wealthy plantation owner. She was much younger than her husband but she reshaped the man that reshaped Texas. She did not travel with Houston due to illness, but wrote to him daily. Her goal in their married life was to have him baptised, help him to stop drinking and to give up politics, which he never did.

Mrs. Draper said that Margaret made a respectable First Lady of the Republic of Texas. The last words of the dying Sam Houston were "Texas, Texas, Margaret." Mrs. Houston died four years later of a contagious disease and could not be transported to be buried beside her husband.

Members present were Marcella Brady, Juanita Brown, Frances Crume, Ruth Fish, Betty Gilbert, Marjorie Lassiter, Norma Martin, Norma Walden and Margaret Zinser.

Nitroglycerin

According to The Second World Almanac Book of Inventions, Italian chemist Ascanio Solaro produced nitroglycerin in 1847 by slowly pouring a small amount of glycerin into a mixture of nitric acid and sulfuric acid. It resulted in a dangerous explosion. The Nobel brothers later tried to reduce its sensitivity, and one brother, Emil, was killed by an ensuing explosion.

DR. GOTT

A good update on nutrition

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am confused about diet, weight loss, vitamin supplements and the relation of diet to disease. Is there any up-to-date book on these subjects?

DEAR READER — Yes, there is. "Popular Nutritional Practices: A Scientific Appraisal," by Jack Yetiv, M.D., Ph.D., provides a comprehensive analysis of today's nutrition issues and covers a wide range of topics, from osteoporosis to high-fiber diets.

The book was published in 1986 and is sure to become a valuable resource for people who are interested in nutrition. It can be ordered from Popular Medicine Press, P.O. Box 12607-G, Toledo, OH 43606.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What are the earliest signs of breast cancer?

DEAR READER — The earliest sign of breast cancer is a lump that may or may not contain flecks of calcium. Careful palpation of the breast may disclose a small cancer. In addition, mammograms (breast X-rays) — or other imaging methods — often are used to discover small lumps that the doctor or the patient may not be able to feel. The purpose of any breast examination is to detect a small lesion or mass and to distinguish it from cysts or other normal breast lumps.

Early detection greatly increases the potential for successful treatment of breast cancer. Therefore, it is very important that every woman know how to examine her breasts and to perform a self-examination every month. Ask your gynecologist to show you the proper way to detect breast lumps. Become familiar with what is normal for your breasts so you can detect any changes early.

DEAR DR. GOTT — About six months ago, my wife had a polyp operation and had three inches of her colon removed. It was not cancerous. Now every time she eats, she gets bad cramps and diarrhea. She is taking Imodium, but to no avail. She also takes Theodur, Aldomet and Xanax.

DEAR READER — The removal of three inches of colon would be an unlikely cause of diarrhea. Theodur (an anti-asthma drug), Aldomet (for hypertension) and Xanax (a tranquilizer)

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it true that men can develop a condition in their penis similar to fibrocystic breast disease in women? What can be done to treat it?

DEAR READER — There is no exact male counterpart to fibrocystic breast disease in women. However, men can develop a condition called Peyronie's disease, which is a growth of fibrous material in one of the two erectile cylinders of the penis. This affliction is somewhat similar to fibrocystic disease, since it causes discomfort and results in gristle-like replacement of normal tissue. It may be helped by vitamin E or cortisone, but, like fibrocystic disease, it has no recognized cure. Although the two conditions share certain elements, they are distinctly different.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A friend had 58 gallstones removed during surgery. Is this an abnormal number? He still has vomiting and diarrhea.

DEAR READER — Fifty-eight gallstones is a lot — unusual, but not any more abnormal than two or three. Since he had that many gallstones, one might have become wedged in the bile duct and could be causing continuing symptoms. Your friend might be more comfortable if the surgeon had removed 59 gallstones. Perhaps an ultrasound exam could identify the presence of a remaining stone.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My granddaughter, 8, swells up on her right side — arm, thigh, leg and foot — during the day. It goes away at night. One doctor said it was fallen arches. Another said it was because she has an undeveloped vein on that side. Support hose used to help, but no more. She's had this since she was 1 year old and has not outgrown it yet. What could be causing this?

Al Davis makes mark in Super Bowl week

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — His team had struggled through a disappointing season, eliminated on the final Sunday, relegated to also-ran status. The suspicion is that the Los Angeles Raiders' failure generated some chortling in the NFL's executive suite, where their owner — given his track record of winning lawsuits against them — is hardly a popular figure. That failure could not, however, deny Al Davis his slice of this Super Bowl.

With pro football's annual exercise in conspicuous consumption settling in his adopted town, the managing general partner of the Raiders made sure to carve out a small role for himself.

Davis claimed his piece of this production in a tiny college gym, where he provided most of the players, plenty of the planning and all of the cheerleaders for a coaching clinic.

He arrived for the show wearing his trademark silver and black colors, complete with the familiar, slicked-back hairstyle and the bracelet and ring with his name encased in jewels, just in case you forget the face.

He was flanked by former NFL coaches George Allen and Hank Stram and, as he watched and listened, there was a distinct feeling that this longtime thorn in the NFL's judicial side was back in his favorite element.

The bottom line on Davis, the owner, is that he is a coach.

He hung on every word as Stram, speaking for the offense, and Allen, taking the side of the defense, went through lengthy X's and O's explanations of the Super Bowl teams' tendencies. And he seemed mesmerized by the lectures.

"I can't pick a winner," he said. "I look at the matchups, not the game. I look at the films to see how they got here. But I would do that anyway."

That, after all, is what coaches do. It was as an assistant at the Citadel that Davis fought college recruiting battles, once pursuing a promising New Jersey linebacker named Bill Parcels and another time going after a future NFL punter and broadcaster named Paul Maguire.

"Maguire asked if he could have a car," Davis said. "I told him, 'Sure.' A couple of weeks after he enrolled, he asked me again. I sent him to a used-car dealer. He picked one out and the dealer asked how he planned to pay for it. He said, 'Mr. Davis will take care of it.' Then, I told him, 'I said you could have a car. I didn't say I'd pay for it.'"

Davis laughed at the memory. He does not, however, laugh about the Raiders' season, which began 0-3, recovered to 8-4 and finished 8-8.

"This is — what did Steinbeck call it? — the winter of our discontent. We came back, and then let everything slip away. It was a tribute to come back, but the end was unsatisfying."

He knows the reasons — a talent vacuum at quarterback and a sub-par season from last year's NFL most valuable player, running back Marcus Allen.

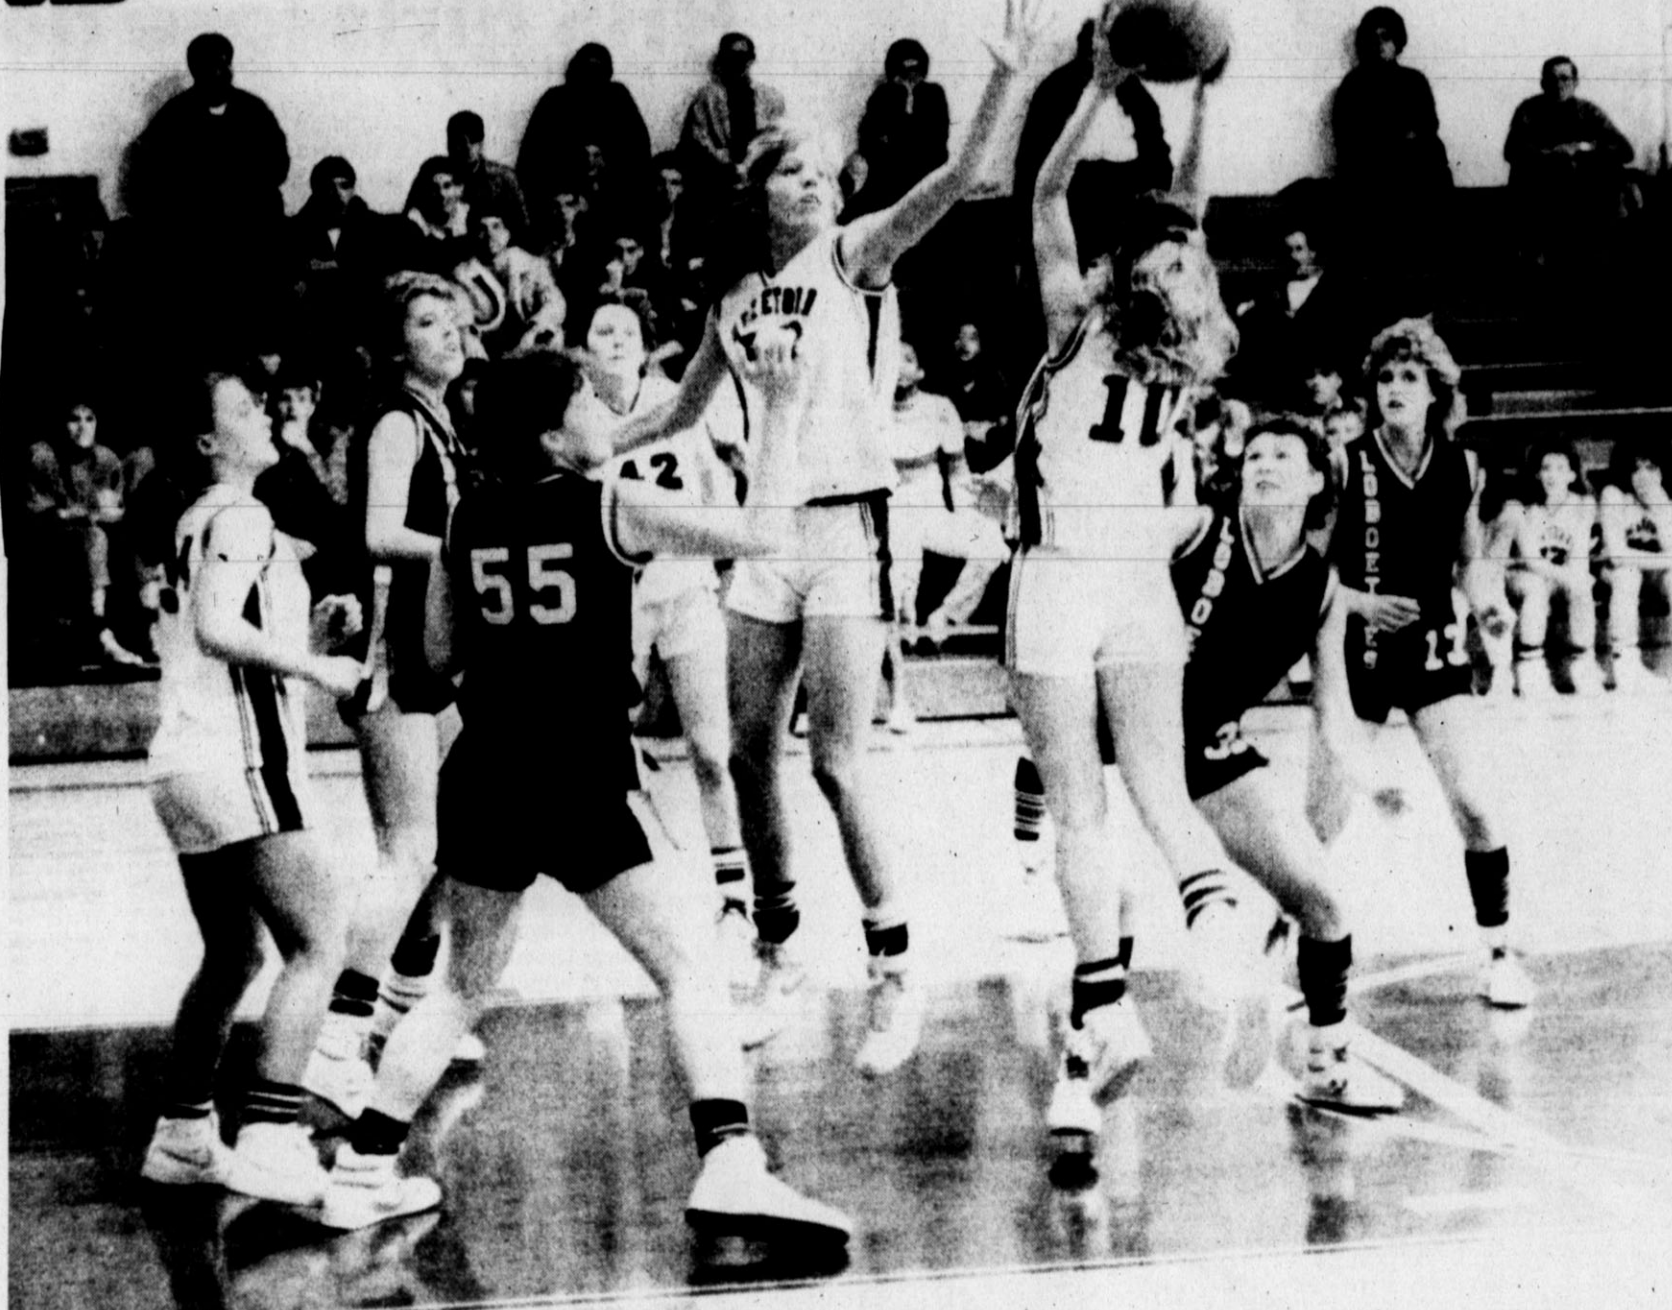

"Our superstar did not have a superstar season," Davis said, "and he knows it. Quarterback is the least stable position in the league. How many really dependable ones do you have? Five? Six?"

Just then, John Madden strolled by. Another old coach. One of Davis' people.

"You know what John told me?" Davis said, a note of wonder in his voice. "He said our faces are on the coin they're going to use for the flip Sunday. He wouldn't lie about something like that."

Madden wasn't fibbing. It's part of the game's tradition to salute past winners and this is a tribute to the Raiders' Super Bowl triumph in Pasadena 10 years ago.

In rookie year as NBA coach

Weiss has had many disappointments

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bob Weiss had high hopes when he became the San Antonio Spurs' head coach, but he's had many disappointments.

The rookie coach said the team can make the playoffs despite an 11-28 record and 43 games remaining on the schedule.

"I think we have a shot at the last playoff spot," Weiss said Tuesday. "We're six games behind Denver and we have a favorable schedule. I think if we play ball and they slip we'll have a shot."

"I think we can make a run with what we got now, but we need people playing at the top of their games," said Weiss, whose team hosts the Houston Rockets tonight.

Weiss had hoped that veteran guard Johnny Moore, who was recuperating from Desert Fever, would be playing at 90 percent of his peak.

Weiss also had high hopes for guard Johnny Dawkins, the team's first-round draft choice.

Moore remains on the injured reserve list as he recuperates from the rare illness, a form of meningitis that sidelined him for most of last season.

Dawkins, meanwhile, has not produced effectively, Weiss said.

"Those are the biggest things that we didn't have that I thought we would have," Weiss said. "The biggest frustrations have been playing well in games and losing by two. We spent a lot of good efforts ending up on the short end of the stick."

Weiss said he has taken some of the pressure off of Dawkins and hopes to activate Moore soon.

"I think we're making progress," said Weiss, the former assistant coach of the Dallas Mavericks. "But I'm still disappointed with our record. I would have liked to have won more games by now."

Weiss said a poor training camp

was part of the reason for the slow start.

"Coming out of training camp, we were definitely not where I wanted to be. I thought they would learn quickly. We had people out of shape that were holding us back," Weiss said.

He said he may have pushed the players too hard.

"One of my faults early on was trying to teach too much too soon, not breaking it down in simpler terms," Weiss said. "I knew that would be one of my tendencies going in."

Despite the team's performance, Spurs management is pleased, Weiss said.

"Everything's just great," Weiss said. "If management expected this team to be five games over 500 by now, then you might have problems. I think we all pretty much saw the same picture. They expected young talent to develop and they see improvements there. The players are playing hard," Weiss said.

Ann Landers

Woman justified

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was disappointed by your advice to "Frustrated in Arizona," the lady whose husband chose not to disclose the details of his financial worth. Please reread her letter one paragraph at a time and make another assessment of that situation:

Paragraph 1: She can't give her name and address because "There's enough trouble now."

Paragraph 2: Here we find the cause of the trouble: They've been married 30 years and she has nagged him all the time about money.

Paragraph 3: By her own admission she has everything she wants or needs. All she has to do is keep house and stop nagging him.

Paragraph 4: He is a lawyer. According to paragraph 3, he is both prosperous and generous. Logic tells us that he knows what is needed to leave her financially secure in case he precedes her in death. The man's professional expertise would ensure that his estate would be in order and legally correct. He has told her not to pry into his financial affairs. You advised her to do just the opposite: "Seek advice from a banker or an out-of-town lawyer." Surely that would cast her in the role of an adversary instead of helpmate and partner. It would be the final straw, alienate him and derail that gravy train the avaricious wife has ridden so long.

So, dear Ann, I say you goofed. That woman may find out what she wants to know - in the divorce court - and live miserably ever after.

Thanks for letting me sound off - Florida Mann.

DEAR FLORIDA: Let's start with Paragraph 4. You assume that just because a man is a lawyer his affairs are in order and legally correct. Wake up, Buttercup. There are plenty of lawyers out there whose affairs are in a mess. (Same story with physicians. Often their families get the worst medical care and the doctors themselves aren't in such great shape.)

I say a woman has the right to know about the family's finances. If her husband refuses to tell her she is justified in suspecting something is amiss. My advice to "find out on your own" was good. I stand by it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How does one cope with intense envy? My mother had it, especially toward her relatives. I hated that quality in her. And now I have it. Is it hereditary?

Please tell me what to do, Ann. It is eating me up. Sick of Myself in Belleville

DEAR SICK: Envy is not a genetic disease, like sickle cell anemia, but attitudes can run in families. Daughters tend to imitate their mothers.

People who are satisfied with their lives are not envious of others. What is your life makes you feel good about yourself? Are you generous, kind and giving? These qualities are rewarding and they generate self-esteem.

Competitive types are often envious of individuals who outperform them and have more "things." Is THIS your problem? If so, reevaluate your thinking. You need to attach more importance to what you ARE and less to what you have.

CONFIDENTIAL To Right or Wrong in Montana? There is no justification for slapping a 14-year-old child across the face. Grounding her for two weeks would have been better. I agree with your husband that you should apologize.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request, and 50 cents to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Study of Texas continues when Veleda Study Club members meet

"What would you try to accomplish if you were the First Lady of Texas?" was the roll call answered by members of Veleda Study Club at their regular meeting recently in the home of Frances Crume.

Eastern Star members meet

Linda Withers, deputy grand matron, was guest at the regular meeting recently of the Order of Eastern Star held in the Masonic Hall.

Mrs. Withers gave a report of instructions from the Worthy Grand Matron, Jean Nesbitt.

Hostesses for the covered dish supper which preceded the meeting were Irene Holt, Frances Deavenport, Beatrice Hutson, and Johnnie Sanders.

President Marjorie Lasiter called the meeting to order and the club collect was recited. Due to the absence of many club members, minutes were not read nor a financial report given.

The hostess introduced the guest speaker Argen Draper. In keeping with the club's study of Texas, Mrs. Draper presented a study on Margaret Moffett Lee Houston, wife of Sam Houston. Mrs. Draper began by stressing how important each woman is in their community. Women teach love, love of family and love of God and are the power behind the throne.

Margaret Moffett Lee Houston was a Southern belle, daughter of a Baptist preacher and wealthy plantation owner. She was much younger than her husband but she reshaped the man that reshaped Texas. She did not travel with Houston due to illness, but wrote to him daily. Her goal in their married life was to have him baptised, help him to stop drinking and to give up politics, which he never did.

Mrs. Draper said that Margaret made a respectable First Lady of the Republic of Texas. The last words of the dying Sam Houston were "Texas, Texas, Margaret." Mrs. Houston died four years later of a contagious disease and could not be transported to be buried beside her husband.

Members present were Marcella Bradley, Juanita Brown, Frances Crume, Ruth Fish, Betty Gilbert, Marjorie Lassiter, Norma Martin, Norma Walden and Margaret Zinser.

Nitroglycerin

According to The Second World Almanac Book of Inventions, Italian chemist Ascanio Solaro produced nitroglycerin in 1847 by slowly pouring a small amount of glycerin into a mixture of nitric acid and sulfuric acid. It resulted in a dangerous explosion. The Nobel brothers later tried to reduce its sensitivity, and one brother, Emil, was killed by an ensuing explosion.

The popular game of Mah Jongg was played in China as early as 500 B.C.

DR. GOTT

A good update on nutrition

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I am confused about diet, weight loss, vitamin supplements and the relation of diet to disease. Is there any up-to-date book on these subjects?

DEAR READER - Yes, there is. "Popular Nutritional Practices: A Scientific Appraisal," by Jack Yetiv, M.D., Ph.D., provides a comprehensive analysis of today's nutrition issues and covers a wide range of topics, from osteoporosis to high-fiber diets.

The book was published in 1986 and is sure to become a valuable resource for people who are interested in nutrition. It can be ordered from Popular Medicine Press, P.O. Box 12607-G, Toledo, OH 43606.

DEAR DR. GOTT - What are the earliest signs of breast cancer?

DEAR READER - The earliest sign of breast cancer is a lump that may or may not contain flecks of calcium. Careful palpation of the breast may disclose a small cancer. In addition, mammograms (breast X-rays) - or other imaging methods - often are used to discover small lumps that the doctor or the patient may not be able to feel. The purpose of any breast examination is to detect a small lesion or mass and to distinguish it from cysts or other normal breast lumps.

Early detection greatly increases the potential for successful treatment of breast cancer. Therefore, it is very important that every woman know how to examine her breasts and to perform a self-examination every month. Ask your gynecologist to show you the proper way to detect breast lumps. Become familiar with what is normal for your breasts so you can detect any changes early.

DEAR DR. GOTT - About six months ago, my wife had a polyp operation and had three inches of her colon removed. It was not cancerous. Now every time she eats, she gets bad cramps and diarrhea. She is taking Imodium, but to no avail. She also takes Theodur, Aldomet and Xanax.

DEAR READER - The removal of three inches of colon would be an unlikely cause of diarrhea. Theodur (an anti-asthma drug), Aldomet (for hypertension) and Xanax (a tranquilizer)

DEAR DR. GOTT - Is it true that men can develop a condition in their penis similar to fibrocystic breast disease in women? What can be done to treat it?

DEAR READER - There is no exact male counterpart to fibrocystic breast disease in women. However, men can develop a condition called Peyronie's disease, which is a growth of fibrous material in one of the two erectile cylinders of the penis. This affliction is somewhat similar to fibrocystic disease, since it causes discomfort and results in gristle-like replacement of normal tissue. It may be helped by vitamin E or cortisone, but, like fibrocystic disease, it has no recognized cure. Although the two conditions share certain elements, they are distinctly different.

DEAR DR. GOTT - A friend had 58 gallstones removed during surgery. Is this an abnormal number? He still has vomiting and diarrhea.

DEAR READER - Fifty-eight gallstones is a lot - unusual, but not any more abnormal than two or three. Since he had that many gallstones, one might have become wedged in the bile duct and could be causing continuing symptoms. Your friend might be more comfortable if the surgeon had removed 59 gallstones. Perhaps an ultrasound exam could identify the presence of a remaining stone.

DEAR DR. GOTT - My granddaughter, 8, swells up on her right side - arm, thigh, leg and foot - during the day. It goes away at night. One doctor said it was fallen arches. Another said it was because she has an undeveloped vein on that side. Support hose used to help, but no more. She's had this since she was 1 year old and has not outgrown it yet. ANTHONY'S

Now you're cooking

By JERI SHIRE
Managing Editor

For a home-oriented person, she isn't home much.

Two kids, a farming husband and her own hobbies keep Carol Haile out and about like a professional errand girl.

Home-base is the very house she grew up in, a large cottage at Westway on her father's farm. She and her husband Jim have updated the older home by adding a master bedroom and, this summer, having a deck built in the back where the family can watch the sunset through windbreak trees and across grain fields.

Family camping and snow-skiing trips fill their photo albums, but whether centered around a family activity or an individual member's interest, the Haile's focus is on the family.

Ten-year-old Beth is busy with Suzuki violin lessons. Jarred, 6, is into "major play," Carol says. The children are members of Caravan, a Christian scouting program at the Church of the Nazarene.

Much of the family's life is centered around church. Carol is the director of the Caravan program and Jim is also working with the children in Caravan. He also serves on the church board and is active in the choir. Carol centers more of her life around children as a member of the Nazarene Christian Academy board.

"I just feel like our kids are the future generation for America," Carol says. "And, how we train them will determine the future shape of America."

She says the Haile family takes vacations that kids will enjoy because the children are only kids for so long.

"I believe in a strong family unit and a strong church home and activities that will show our children physical, mental and spiritual growth," she says. "That's where the home and church mold together. I just don't like to see kids in front of the TV for six or eight hours a day."

As wife and mother, Carol is in charge of "the taxi" and pleasing all four taste buds around the table.

Potatoes from the farm are the main ingredient for her first dish, first created and served to a neighbor who had just had oral surgery and dreaded tasteless, soft food.

Her tuna casserole is an easy one-dish meal.

Buttermilk pie with a no-fail crust is top notch custard.

POTATO-BROCCOLI SOUP

6-8 medium potatoes
one or two packages broccoli salt pepper
chopped green onions

BASIC CHEESE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter
two tablespoons white flour
1 pound shredded cheese
milk

Pressure cook potatoes until soft. Add salt, pepper and onions to taste. Add milk until mixture is on soup consistency.

Cook and drain the broccoli

For the cheese sauce, in another pan melt the butter and add the two tablespoons of white flour and salt. Stir, then add a cup of milk and cook until thickened. Add one pound of shredded cheese.

Put the broccoli in sauce, then add total mixture to the potato soup base and heat until hot and bubbly.

Serves well with fresh garden salad and hot garlic bread.

A GOOD TUNA CASSEROLE

Package of macaroni noodles package of frozen peas
About 1/4 can dehydrated onions
1 or 2 cans drained tuna
Basic Cheese Sauce

In a pan of boiling salted water, add the macaroni, noodles, frozen peas and dehydrated onion all together. When cooked, drain and put in big casserole dish. Add the cans of tuna by flaking it in the mixture.

Add the basic cheese sauce, poured over the first mixture, and sprinkle with shredded cheese. Bake at 350 degrees until it's hot and bubbly.

BUTTERMILK PIE

3 tablespoons flour
1 stick butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup buttermilk
3 eggs

1 teaspoon vanilla
Mix all ingredients and pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

NO FAIL PIE CRUST

(No rolling needed)

1/4 cup water
1/2 cup solid shortening
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cup flour

Boil first three ingredients until shortening melts. Add flour and salt until blended. Put in pan and pat it out. Prick with fork to keep from splitting. Bake 400 to 450 degrees for 10-12 minutes. Makes one 9-inch crust.

Self-examining breast clinic to be conducted

The local chapter of the American Cancer Society, in cooperation with Deaf Smith General Hospital, will be conducting a self-examining breast clinic on the last Wednesday of each month.

The clinic, which will be open from 1-6:30 p.m., will be held in Dr. James Herbertson's office in the hospital. It will be conducted by Rose Ann Smith, RN practitioner.

The self-examining technique will be taught free of charge. Call the hospital at 364-2141, extension 291, for an appointment.

Kingdom Seekers meet

Dora Barnett led the opening prayer when members of Kingdom Seekers Sunday School met recently in Erma Bains' home.

President Nita Houle presided over a brief business session and Pauline Landers presented the Bible study.

Those present were Landers, Rosie Wall, Barnett, Trudy Gray, Houle, Louella Thomas and Wilma Bryan. Maxine Coleman closed the meeting with a prayer.

Walker feted with bridal shower

Linda Walker, bride-elect of Joseph Clayton Crews, was honored with a bridal shower recently in the home of Elaine Rains.

The honoree's sister-in-law, Kandi Walker, invited guests to register and punch and coffee were served by Sherri Whitaker, Lynn Hamby and Julie Jorde. Other refreshments included tea sandwiches and cookies.

The refreshment table, which was accented in the honoree's chosen colors of nordic rose and silver, was covered with a pink cloth and white lace overlay. It was decorated by a double branch candelabrum entwined with pink roses. Further enhancing the table were a silver coffee service and punch bowl.

Honored guests included Miss Walker's grandmother, Mrs. Virgil Walker, and Eva Mae Livesay. Serving as hostesses were Pat

Green, Arvella Lauderback, Mary Lou Aven, Bonnie McCathern, Louise Leasure, Kathy Polan, Margaret Carnahan, Marian Goodin, Joyce Hickman, Ann Beard, Georgia Sparks and Mrs. Raines.

Marketing
 According to The Second World Almanac Book of Inventions, F. Cromwell is credited with the invention of marketing in 1901. His book, "Report on the Distribution of Farm Products," laid the groundwork for this practice.

According to Texas Tech Survey

Many Texans considering major purchases this year

LUBBOCK — Despite a stormy 1986 state economy, many Texas consumers as they headed into 1987 seemed to be weathering the downturn with enough confidence to consider major purchases during the next year.

That is the conclusion drawn from a survey by the Institute for Communications Research (ICR) at Texas Tech University. The mail and telephone survey of 387 Texas residents asked the likelihood that they would make a major purchase of a home, car, major home appliance or personal computer during the next year.

Almost 40 percent thought it likely they would buy a major appliance and more than a quarter felt the same about buying a car. Almost 19 percent considered it likely they would buy a personal computer and nearly 10 percent thought a house was a likely purchase during 1987.

On a new home — the biggest investment most people make — 9.4 percent of the survey respondents considered a purchase likely or very likely in the next year. Men and women were almost identical in their belief a home purchase was likely as 9.6 percent of the males and 9.3 percent of the women thought so.

Surprisingly, the likelihood of a home purchase cuts across all income levels fairly closely. About 7 percent of those making under $10,000, 7.9 percent of those making between $10,000 and $20,000, 9 percent of those making between $20,000 and $30,000, 11 percent of those making between $30,000 and $50,000 and 12 percent of those making over $50,000 thought a home purchase possible.

Of the survey respondents, 27.5 percent considered it likely or very likely that they would buy a new car during the next year. That compares with 68.1 percent who thought it unlikely and 4.4 percent who were uncertain.

As income rose, the greater the likelihood respondents would buy a new car. Those making under $50,000 totaled 61 percent of the respondents but only 12.6 percent thinking a car purchase was likely. By contrast, those making more than $50,000 accounted for 39 percent of the respondents and 15.9 percent of those planning on buying a new car.

Some 39.2 percent of the respondents said they were likely to buy a major home appliance during the next year. Of the respondents, 49.2 percent said they were unlikely to buy an appliance and 11.5 percent expressed uncertainty. And, the percentages of males and females who said major home appliance purchases were likely were almost identical, with 39.6 percent of the men and 39.3 percent of the women so answering.

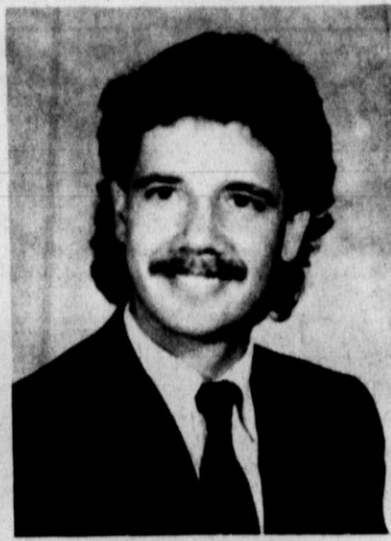

Likelihood of a new appliance purchase generally rose with income. Thus, 32 percent of those making under $10,000, 34 percent of those making between $10,000 and $20,000, 46 percent of those making $20,000 to $30,000, 59 percent of those making $30,000 to $50,000 and 48 percent of those making more than $50,000 thought they would make appliance purchases during 1987.

Among Texas consumers, 18.9 percent thought it likely they would buy a personal computer during the next year. Those making $20,000 or more annually were more likely to be considering a personal computer than those making less.

Some 21.7 percent of the persons making over $20,000 annually thought a computer purchase was likely, compared with 16 percent of those making less than $20,000.

Generally, the more education a respondent had, the greater the likelihood of a personal computer purchase. Only 14 percent of the respondents with a high school diploma or less were considering a personal computer, compared with 21 percent who had attended college or earned one or more degrees.

Results of the survey conducted in October were released by ICR Director H.J. Hsia. The survey had a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent.

WESLEY EADES

Residents' son is awarded degree

Wesley Martin Eades of Prairie Village, Kan., son of Mr. and Mrs. R.W. Eades of Hereford, was awarded the Doctor of Philosophy from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary during the school's 158th commencement Dec. 19.

Eades was among approximately 250 persons to receive degrees from the schools of theology, church music, Christian education and social work.

Benjamin S. Baker, pastor of Main Street Baptist Church in Lexington, delivered the commencement address. Roy L. Honeycutt serves as the seminary's eighth president.

DAR chapter officers elected at meeting

A slate of 1987-89 officers were elected when members of Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR, met recently in the home of Margaret Bell, 132 N. Texas.

Violet Reinauer will serve as regent; Kathryn Ruga, vice regent; Bell, treasurer; Charlotte Clark, recording secretary; Ruth Knox, corresponding secretary; Ruth Newsom, chaplain; Nell Norvell, curator; Mildred Drake, librarian; Corene Smith, historian; and Patricia Robinson, registrar.

Committee chairman were also named. Newsom will serve as chairman of American History Month; Drake, Constitution Week; Bell, DAR Good Citizen; Lois Gilliland, DAR Magazine; Lois Gilliland, museum; Mary Williamson, service for veterans; Pat Smart, flag; Robinson, genealogical records; Norvell, lineage research; and Robinson, membership.

The opening ritual was conducted by Regent Reinauer and Chaplain Robinson. Williamson led the Pledge of Allegiance and Reinauer led the National Anthem. The American's Creed was led by Drake.

Ruth Fish read the President General's Message and the Preamble to the Constitution was led by Helen Rose.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and filed and Bell gave the treasurer's report.

"What Is Going On In Panama?" was the national defense report discussed by Knox.

Public relations was discussed by Charlotte Clark and Margaret Durham and Corlene Smith discussed transportation and safety.

"To Defend Our Constitution" was the program presented by Argen Draper. The message was taken from the 1986 DAR resolutions. The Bicentennial of the Constitution is the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution of the United States of America to be celebrated Sept. 17, 1987.

Draper stressed the importance of all DAR members as well as all Americans to reflect on the form of government chosen by founding fathers. She said that it is everyone's responsibility to acknowledge his or her birthright to preserve and protect this charter of freedom now and forever.

Refreshments were served by Robinson, Fish and Smart to those present.

LIMITED EDITIONS

NEW YORK (AP) — "Painters teach me how to see, to read, to compose, hence to write, to lay out signs on a page," according to French novelist, poet and critic Michel Butor.

Dozens of examples of his collaborations with artists — they've been called "dialogues between text and graphics" — are on view at Columbia University through Feb. 26 in an exhibition of rarely seen limited edition books.

Among the works in the display marking Butor's 60th birthday are collaborations with Alexander Calder, Jacques Herold, Andre Villers and George Duchene.

New officers preside during Bippus meeting

New officers presided at the regular meeting of Bippus Extension Club when the group met recently for their first meeting of this year.

Mariellen Homfeld is president; Flora Homfeld, vice president; Becky Mays, secretary-treasurer; and Kate Bradley, council delegate. During the business session, it was announced that club members have three pounds of pecans for sale. Anyone interested in placing an order may contact a club member.

Also, yearbooks were filled out and club projects were discussed. Members will continue to assist with the upkeep of the Bippus Community building and will send cards, notes, etc. throughout the year to "adoptive neighbors." Also, secret pal names were drawn.

It was announced that a leader training meeting for this district for T.E.H.A. will be held Thursday at the Hereford Community Center. Also, the club will serve as hosts during the County Council meeting Monday, Jan. 26.

Special guests included Marietta Britten of Groom, mother of Mariellen Homfeld, and Alta Mae Higgins of Hereford, a sister of Kate Bradley.

Mrs. Britten gave an information account of her recent trip to China and Japan. She explained that the first priority of the trip was to get a name stamp according to the month of her birthday. Hers was the rat and others included the alligator, kangaroo, etc. She also exhibited dolls and pictures.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 11 in the home of Margaret Hall.

Abundant Life

TRY MODERATION

By Bob Wear

Much of Life, as we see it, seems to be moving in the fast lane. Of course, some of us don't keep up very well, and we must be on guard lest we be run over or crowded to one side.

It seems that the more we do, the more we want to do; the more we have, the more we desire; the more we go, the more we want to go; the faster we go, the faster we want to go. In the process, peace and contentment become more and more elusive. We seem to be unmindful of the fact that our appetites grow and increase by that on which they are fed.

We can do so much that we actually leave undone some of the most important things. We can possess so much that we lose some of the things that cannot be bought. We can go so much that we seem to forget where home is. We can move so fast that we bypass some of the things most needful to the best of living.

This does not mean that we should be lethargic, or improvident, or unconcerned about making justified improvements, or trying to meet the reasonable challenges of life. It does mean that there is a proper balance which we must seek, in order to be able to making living the worthwhile and meaningful experience it can and should be.

We must not permit ourselves to be over-stimulated or over-motivated by all that is designed to do just this. By our nature, we have limitations which must be respected, and needs which must be met. These things will not and cannot be done, unless we take control of our lives and maintain the balance suitable for us.

All sources of wisdom available to us reveal the need for 'moderation', as an essential in well-balanced and effective living. This is not weakness, but the real strength of life. Weakness is in 'excessiveness', 'intemperance', 'unreasonableness', etc. Where we find these, we find all kind of problems and difficulties. "Moderation is the secret of survival."—Manly Hall.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS STORY

"I Have To Cut Expenses, So Advertising Is Out For A While."

Sound Familiar?

Newspaper advertising is unlike any other media choice. You're reaching a friendly, receptive audience with your advertising message. So receptive that they pay to have the paper delivered to their home. No wonder consumers consider newspapers the most believable advertising medium.

Newspaper advertising can help your business. It can increase sales and in a competitive market, it can give your business and edge over the other guy.

NOT CONVINCED?

When business is slow, you can't afford not to advertise, because advertising builds your business for you. It gets people interested and into your store. Moreover, advertising is the first part of selling - it's what get consumers interested in your store offerings.

Don't tempt fate. Join the many successful businesses who know what works for them and what doesn't. Advertise in the newspaper and get results.
