

Texas leaders criticize nuke site selection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department's efforts to pick a high-level nuclear waste dump were criticized in statements by Texas Gov. William P. Clements Jr. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen filed with the Senate Energy Committee.

A nine-square-mile area in the Texas Panhandle west of Amarillo is one of three sites being considered by the government for location of the dump, which will house 70,000 tons of high-level waste. The other sites are in the states of Washington and Nevada.

Clements attacked the way DOE has conducted its investigation at the three sites under consideration in the West as inadequate, and particularly the way federal scientists had probed the West Texas site.

Bentsen reiterated complaints about the postponement of a search for a second site in the East and a failure by the department to consult the states involved.

"We in Texas recognize the need to serve the national purpose of disposing of these dangerous wastes in a safe, acceptable and timely manner, but, regrettably, I must report to you that our confidence in that goal being reached through the current implementation of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act is severely stressed," Clements said in his statement.

Clements' statement, submitted by Steve Frishman, state director of nuclear waste programs, criticized DOE for failing to adequately investigate the geology of the West Texas site.

"The DOE has been told in numerous communications that the Deaf Smith County site has a number of characteristics that raise serious doubts about whether it will be suitable for a repository license from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission," read the Republican governors' statement.

He said the department has failed to collect basic physical data from the site and that without the data, such as earth plugs from bore holes where the waste would be deposited, the Deaf Smith site should not have been included as one of the three final sites.

The Panhandle site is an enormous salt deposit in Deaf Smith County that scientists believe would be a potentially safe geological formation to store high-level nuclear wastes.

One of the critical "geotechnical" issues regarding the Deaf Smith site is whether the host rock characteristics will permit compliance with the statutory and regulatory licensing requirement that the waste be retrievable for 50 years, Clements said.

The governor's statement also pointed to the recorded deterioration of similar salt deposits in New Mexico as a reason for greater study.

"The shafts must transect two major underground aquifers, preclude the possibility of ground water leakage across formations and to the host salt horizon, and ultimately avoid creating or serving as pathways for escape of waste from the repository over a period of thousands of years," he said.

The department's credibility is at "an all-time low," according to the written testimony of Washington Gov. Booth Gardner, whose statement was read to the Senate Energy Committee by an assistant, Curtis Eschels.

"Unless some bold action is taken soon, the program will be brought to an abrupt halt by the courts," in the wake of state protests, according to Gardner.

Similarly, former Nevada Gov. Grant Sawyer, now chairman of the Nevada Commission on Nuclear Projects, said that "the state of this program is very bad and appears to be getting even worse." Sawyer said the three states and several Indian tribes whose reservations might be affected by the site selection "really can no longer tolerate DOE's mishandling of this program."

"DOE's blatant political and illegal actions in disregarding the act in its cancellation of the second repository program ... should enlighten and shock this committee," said Sawyer. You can now see the type of cavalier, and arrogant attitude and approach that we have been experiencing."

Officials of the Yakima Indian Nation, Nez Perce Tribal Executive Committee and the Confederated Tribes of the Umatilla Indian Reservation also protested the Energy Department's plans. The tribes have large landholdings near the Hanford site.

The three states have filed a total of five lawsuits in the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals, claiming that the department has violated the 1982 Nuclear Waste Policy Act.

In his statement, Gardner said "it is senseless to wait for the conclusion of what could be a very long process of litigation before taking action to get the site selection process onto the right track."

Gardner cited Energy Department documents, obtained by House investigators last fall, in which Hanford ranked far behind a proposed site in Mississippi. The Mississippi site was subsequently eliminated.

Sawyer charged that the department has ignored serious environmental questions.

Governor Clements backs $2.9 billion in new taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — Although the budget he has presented to the Legislature will require a $2.9 billion tax increase, Gov. Bill Clements says he will offer no apologies.

"I'm proud of the plan. I have no apologies to make for the plan. I think it's in tune with the people of this state," Clements said after delivering his State of the State address Wednesday.

In that 35-minute speech, Clements unveiled his long-awaited state budget, proposing a "hold-the-line" spending plan and acknowledging the need to keep $2.9 billion from temporary tax increases approved last year.

"The time is past for business as usual, for the old politics of tax, tax, tax, spend, spend, spend," Clements said. "The simple fact is that this budget holds the line on government spending while we get our economy moving again."

Clements proposed total spending for 1988-89 of $36.87 billion, an increase of $766 million over current levels.

In presenting his plan to the Legislature, Clements also endorsed keeping the higher level of tax revenues that began Jan. 1 when "temporary" sales and motor fuel tax increases took effect.

Those hikes — passed by lawmakers last fall and signed by White — raised the sales tax rate from 4½ percent to 5¼ percent and lifted the motor fuel tax from 10 cents per gallon to 15 cents. They are scheduled to expire on Aug. 31.

But Clements said in his 35-minute speech and at a subsequent news conference that the extra $2.9 billion raised by those temporary levies still will be needed after Aug. 31.

He said he would sign legislation to keep that additional money flowing into the state treasury.

Clements said he favors restructuring the sales tax system to lower the rate — to perhaps 4 percent or 4.5 percent — while expanding the base to include services not now taxed. He also voiced support for lowering the fuel tax to 13 cents per gallon.

The extra $2.9 billion is the limit for any tax bill sent him by the Legislature, Clements said. "I will veto any plan that increases revenues above current levels ... I will veto a $5.8 billion tax hike."

Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated that lawmakers face a $5.8 billion deficit over the next 30 months.

During his campaign, Clements and aides criticized White for signing the temporary tax increase into law.

On Oct. 1, one day after White signed it, Clements campaign manager George Bayoud — now the governor's executive assistant — said Clements wanted Texans to "fully realize Mark White gave them the tax increase and Bill Clements is the one candidate who will ensure it is, in fact, temporary."

On Wednesday, Clements defended his decision to rely on the extra revenue.

"I made it very clear in the campaign ... that there would be no new taxes in this fiscal year, but that I

Hereford School Board last week voted not to extend Supt. Harrell Holder's contract for an extra year, and it came as no surprise to many people close to the school scene. The matter may be a little confusing to some readers because board members won't comment on the action.

What it means to us is that Dr. Holder has been fired but it is not effective until June 30, 1988.

The superintendent's contract here is set up for a three-year term, and it is normally extended each year so that the term of the contract is always three years. It's not written down anywhere and you won't get school trustees to say it, but a vote not to extend a contract is a polite way of asking for a resignation or letting the person know he needs to be looking for a job before the contract expires.

We got in contact with trustee Bud

Patterson yesterday and asked him if the board has started looking for a new superintendent. "No," said Patterson. "We are not looking for another superintendent because we have one under contract." Until the situation changes, he added, no action will be taken.

It's no secret that Dr. Holder's position with the board has been a little shaky for a couple of years. It apparently started with the controversy over implementation of a mastery learning system in the schools. A citizen's group was formed to study the problems which were vocalized by teachers and parents, and then some new school board members were elected.

The board took no action on the contract last year, allowing it to become a two-year contract. This year the board voted by 6-1 not to extend the contract beyond its present status, meaning it will expire June 30, 1988. Last year, Holder said he told the board not to consider the extension of the contract. He has been quoted as saying he was exploring other job possibilities this past year.

What also makes the matter confusing is that contract discussions between the board and Dr. Holder has taken place in closed sessions. We don't know what negotiations, if any, might have taken place. If you have a close friend who is a trustee, you may know more about it than we do.

We may have a "lame duck" superintendent but I'm not too concerned. Here's what Dr. Holder had to say about the situation:

"I have a deep feeling for the students of the Hereford schools. As long as I am superintendent, I will work with the board in the best interests of these young people."

Texas prisons close second time in month

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas prison officials say it may take a couple of days before the inmate population dips below a state-mandated level and new prisoners are accepted.

The Texas Department of Corrections, the nation's second largest behind California, closed the doors to new arrivals Wednesday for the second time in a month because the number of inmates topped a 95 percent limit set to curb crowding.

"It could be Thursday or Friday before we get some relief," Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Charles Brown said Wednesday. "We've got some serious problems."

As of midnight Tuesday, the number of inmates in the 26-unit system totaled 38,472 prisoners, or 95.21 percent of capacity. The tally, announced Wednesday, was 86 inmates over the 95 percent mark.

"This is to inform you that effective 5 p.m., Feb. 4, 1987, the TDC will be unable to accept prisoners due to court-ordered capacity limitations," James Lynaugh, interim department director, said in a message teletyped to Texas sheriffs. "You will be notified by separate message when we are next able to accept prisoners."

TDC General Counsel J. Kirk Brown said inmates would be accepted until the close of business at 5 p.m. Wednesday, but that no admissions would be made beginning Thursday.

"We didn't think it was fair to some guy who was en route here all day," the attorney said, explaining why admissions would continue throughout the day.

He said officials would not know until midday today — when the Wednesday midnight count is available — whether the system would be able to reopen.

"But we may be looking at least a period of days this time," attorney Brown said. "It is certain we will lose at least a day of admissions."

On Wednesday, 68 inmates were released, but about 200 were admitted, Charles Brown said. The figures meant it was likely the department's margin above the 95 percent capacity would be even greater when a new headcount is announced today.

The prison system closed the doors early last month after topping the 95 percent mark set by the Legislature in 1983 as a result of a federal judge's order to ease inmate crowding.

After the shutdown Jan. 16 — a Friday — parole officials worked feverishly over that weekend to designate inmates eligible for release. Enough prisoners were freed to enable the doors to reopen Jan. 19.

Since then, the system has flirted with the 95 percent cutoff.

"But we are in a different posture now because it is not the weekend," Charles Brown said.

"We have been of the opinion it was just a matter of time," Kirk Brown said. "If it hadn't been for the cooperation of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, this would have happened long before."

"When you're walking a tight rope for a couple of years, it's just a matter of time before your head bumps the ceiling."

The crowding problem is not new to Texas prisons. In 1982, the system was shut for a week because it had too many inmates and not enough beds.

Local Roundup

Two seats blank on city filing

No person has filed for the two at-large posts being created this year on the Hereford city commission, according to city records.

Only incumbents have filed for mayor, the Place 1 and Place 3 seats open. Loran Nixon, appointed to serve the end of Joe Reinauer Jr.'s term, has filed for Place 1 and Tom LeGate is seeking to keep his Place 3 seat. Mayor Wes Fisher has filed for his job again.

The two candidates receiving the most votes in the at-large contest will fill Places 5 and 6 on the commission.

Filing continues through Feb. 18.

Heart Walk set Sunday

Local volunteers of the American Heart Association will conduct the annual door-to-door Heart Walk this Sunday afternoon to collect donations for the association.

Last year the drive received $6,808.88.

One arrested on three charges

A 46-year-old male was arrested by Hereford police Thursday on charges of being drunk in control of a vehicle, having no driver's license, and no liability insurance.

One assault by threat was filed. Other offenses were burglary of a motor vehicle, criminal mischief, a lost dog being found, and a prowler report.

Police issued six citations.

State Ten dollar rock worth millions

PLANO, Texas (AP) — A Kilgore gem dealer who unveiled the largest star sapphire in the world said that the appearance of the 1,154-carat lavender stone after cutting and polishing exceeded his wildest dreams.

"There's just not another one in the world this large," said Roy Whetstone, holding the egg-shaped stone in his hand Wednesday at a jewelry store. "For a stone to be this large and have this kind of a star in it is unheard of."

"The Star of America" has been appraised at $2.28 million, but dealers have said it could bring as much as $4-6 million, a spokesman for Whetstone said.

"The rays are very, very straight," said gem cutter John Robinson of Plano, who spent 10 days cutting and polishing the opaque stone at King Arthur Clock and Jewelry.

"This is very important in a star sapphire, in a stone of this size. They radiate from the star on top of the gemstone. They arch down and touch the star on the bottom side."

Robinson spent 67 hours cutting and polishing the stone, originally the size of a baking potato.

The rough sapphire weighed 1,905.15 carats, the largest such uncut stone ever found.

"The Guinness Book of Records has already contacted us," said Whetstone, who bought the stone for $10 at a rock show. "The finished stone is larger than the largest piece of rough star sapphire material ever found prior to this. And it's at least 1 1/2 times as large as the largest finished stone."

AIDS victim sues employer

TYLER, Texas (AP) — An AIDS victim, who is the director of anesthesia at a Tyler hospital, has filed a $1 million lawsuit against his employer, claiming his duties and salary were cut after his superiors learned he had the disease.

Mark Bible contends he was prevented from performing anesthesia, told to refrain from any contact with patients and was isolated from the rest of the staff after he was diagnosed in September as having Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

He has worked as a registered nurse anesthetist at Mother Frances Hospital since July 1984.

Named in the suit, filed Tuesday in federal court in Tyler, are the hospital; Margaret S. Heath, an assistant vice president and Bible's immediate supervisor; and Ray Thompson, the hospital's assistant executive administrator.

His suit claims the hospital invaded his privacy by misusing his confidential medical records and violated federal laws that prevent discrimination against the handicapped, including AIDS victims.

Bible was diagnosed as having AIDS after he was hospitalized for pneumonia at Mother Frances. His physician authorized him to return to work without restrictions on Oct. 6, according to the suit.

When Bible tried to resume his duties at the hospital after the diagnosis, he was told to perform only managerial duties, according to the suit.

Whetstone said he spotted the stone at the Tucson Gem and Mineral Show while he was shopping for his sons Johnathan, 11, and Stephen, 4. The stone came from an Idaho mine, Whetstone said.

National Liberace, King of Glitter, dead at 67

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Liberace, the glittering showman and pianist who captivated fans for four decades with an inimitable personal and musical style, died quietly at home, holding a simple rosary. He was 67.

Fans who kept a vigil at his desert home, Casa de Liberace, and friends in the entertainment community mourned the loss of the man born Wladziu Valentino Liberace on May 16, 1919, in West Allis, Wis.

"Lee was the nicest person in show business," said Shirley MacLaine.

"That he was a consummate artist is not really as important as my telling you he was one of the finest human beings I've ever known," said Frank Sinatra.

The entertainer known for rhinestone-studded costumes and extravagant jewelry died in quiet dignity Wednesday afternoon, surrounded by friends and family, said his publicist, Jamie James. He slipped into a coma Tuesday and never regained consciousness.

"He had the rosary wrapped around his right hand. There was no jewelry. The rosary beads were his jewelry," James said.

The cause of death was cardiac arrest due to congestive heart failure brought on by subacute encephalopathy, an inflammation of the brain, said Dr. Ronald Daniels.

Liberace had been gravely ill for weeks with what aides said was anemia, emphysema and heart disease. Spokesmen denied a report that he had AIDS.

Liberace was one of the nation's most enduring entertainers, a master of pizzazz long before entertainers like Elton John combined glitter with music. As a boy, he played in speakeasies for $35 a week; he later gave command performances before royalty and earned an estimated $5 million per year.

The Guinness Book of World Records said Liberace was the highest-paid pianist in a single season, earning more than $2 million per 26-week season with a peak of $138,000 for a single night's performance at New York's Madison Square Garden in 1954.

He sold 60 million records. Once in the 1950s, when a critic savaged him, Liberace retorted, "I cried all the way to the bank."

International Peso almost 1,000 to the dollar

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican peso currency, badly battered in recent years by the nation's serious economic woes, is just a smidgen away from breaking the barrier of 1,000 to the U.S. dollar.

Private analysts looked for the peso to deteriorate to that level on Friday since banks were closed Thursday, a national holiday.

In Mexico City, bank-owned exchange houses ended business Wednesday offering 987 pesos for those wanting to exchange a dollar on the free market and demanding 997 pesos for those wanting to buy one.

Private exchange houses in Mexico City quoted rates of 988 to 999. The free-market rate is used in tourism and most border transactions.

A second rate, regulated by the government, stood at about 992 pesos to the dollar on Wednesday. It was expected to open Friday at 1,002.5 pesos to the dollar, according to a spokesman for the Bank of Mexico, the central bank.

The controlled rate, which is set daily by the central bank and commercial bankers, is used in about 80 percent of commercial transactions.

Despite the further weakening of the currency, private analysts were unconcerned about the peso's hitting the 1,000 mark.

"It's a non-event, other than psychological," said MBank vice president Don Shuffstall in El Paso, Texas. "The fact it's hitting 1,000 is (only) a milestone."

Jonathan Heath, senior economist at the private Mexican forecasting project of CIEMEX-Wharton in Philadelphia, said the steadily declining peso has helped the economy by making Mexican goods more competitive to foreign buyers.

"Mexican exports are way much more attractive," he said. Exports of non-petroleum goods were up 23.9 percent in 1986, to a value of $9.4 billion, he said.

TENNESSEE COLONY, Texas (AP) — A delicate stained-glass window in the background, Marvin Pearson stands proud in his blue robe as he raises his arms to direct the church choir.

The group bellows out a gospel tune, and the 200-member congregation looks on with obvious approval.

Such a scene is common each week in churches throughout the nation. But this is no ordinary church.

The choir director is a 39-year-old prisoner serving a 50-year murder sentence. And his chorus is comprised of 27 other inmates of the Coffield Unit, one of the largest prisons in the Texas Department of Corrections.

This particular service was part of a lay witness revival held this winter at prisons throughout the United States.

Sixty-eight volunteers from various Texas cities came to Coffield to visit with inmates and to talk with them about God. The experience was a new one for some of the lay people, who had never before been inside prison walls.

"I was looking forward to it, but I was still nervous," said volunteer Pete Blockham of Grapevine. "Before I became a Christian, I wouldn't have done it."

The men visited with inmates in their cells, played chess with them in day rooms and ate with them in the prison dining hall. To some of the prisoners, the visit was merely a chance to talk with someone from the outside world.

But to other inmates — many of whom have devoted their lives to God since coming to prison — the revival weekend was an opportunity to strengthen their beliefs.

It also was the culmination of weeks of preparation by a group of inmates who planned the chapel service and musical arrangements and advertised the event with the help of three prison chaplains.

Some of those Coffield inmates say their devotion to God is the way they plan to avoid returning to a way of life they knew before prison.

A Coffield inmate for 11 years, Pearson, of Houston, became involved with prison chapel work nine years ago. After he is paroled, Pearson hopes to work with a ministry in the outside world.

"You have so many disadvantages when you're released from prison," he said, adding that his religious beliefs will help him better deal with life.

The laymen coming into the prison proved that people do care about the inmates, many of whom have come from uncaring families, Pearson said.

"Inmates take notice of things like that," he said. "It shows that God does love everybody — regardless of what you have done or where you are from."

Pearson said he was brought up going to church, but eventually strayed from it. But shortly before he was sent to prison, Pearson said, he decided to devote his life to God.

Since then he has felt differently about his life, even though he is confined to prison.

"I'm actually free," he said. "I'm happy. I'm not happy to be behind bars, but I'm happy."

Other inmates involved in prison church work echo his sentiments.

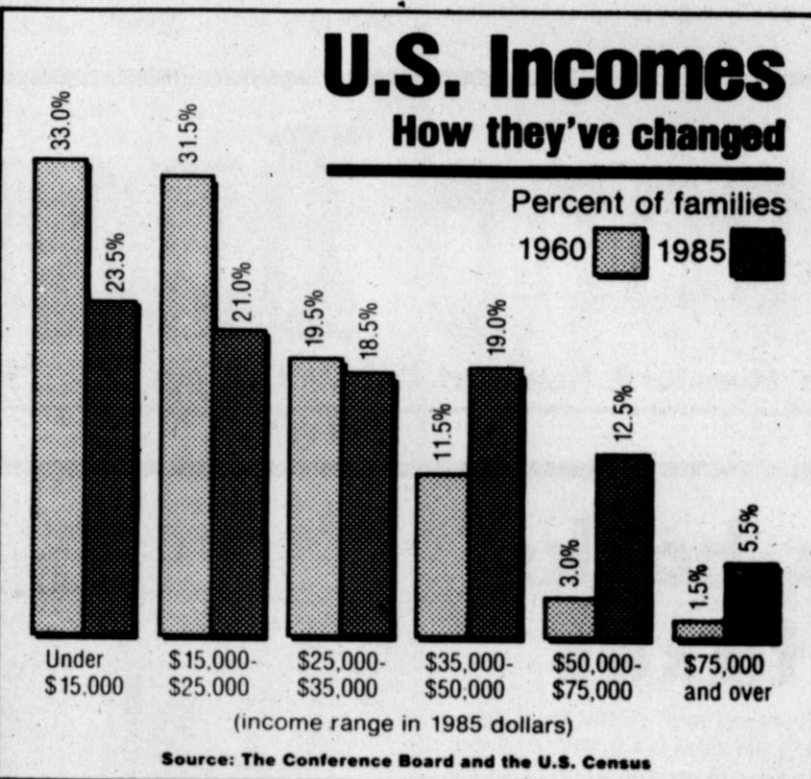

Ruben Morales of El Paso was convicted of sexual assault. He has been a Coffield less than a year.

Before his conviction, Morales said, he went to church, but mainly did so to please his wife. Often, he fell asleep during the services or did not listen to the sermons.

"I know there was something missing inside me," he said. "I was bad in spirit ... I committed that because I was wrong with drugs and alcohol. I was not myself."

Larry Dickerson of Dallas, a Coffield inmate for three years serving a burglary-of-a-habitation sentence, said he had been to churches of various denominations throughout the years.

But it was not until he came to prison that he committed himself to

The entry of more and more women into the labor force helped boost incomes of American families during the 25 years from 1960 to 1985.

Massachusetts official vows to stop jailing alcoholics

BOSTON (AP) — Kathleen Neal spent seven days in prison last year although she had committed no crime.

She was supposed to get treatment and counseling to help her overcome an eight-year bout with alcoholism. Instead, the 34-year-old mother of three was taken to prison, confined with four women charged with serious crimes and left to endure the agony of withdrawal without benefit of medication.

"I kept asking everybody why I was in prison," Ms. Neal said in a recent interview. "They said, 'Here is where you are, you're here for 30 days.' That's all."

She was among scores of women sent to prison under a 1973 state law that allows doctors, relatives, guardians or police to ask a judge to commit for 30 days an alcoholic whose drinking may be harmful to himself or others. The law was passed after alcoholism was decriminalized in the state.

Male alcoholics are sent to Bridgewater State Hospital on the grounds of the Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Bridgewater, where officials say they receive appropriate alcoholism treatment and counseling.

Women, however, are sent to the state women's prison at Framingham because there are no other facilities. They are housed with criminals and receive little treatment.

"I thought I was going crazy," said Ms. Neal, who agreed to be committed in October at the suggestion of her social worker and court-appointed lawyer.

Like other committed alcoholics, Ms. Neal arrived at the prison in handcuffs and was isolated from the inmate population much of the day.

East Texans enjoy pickin'

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — By the time Bill Torris launched into a rousing version of "Wabash Cannonball" in the foyer of the hardware store, he had help from more than a dozen enthusiastic pickers, pluckers and fiddlers.

Every one of the old-timers, armed with guitars, fiddles, banjos and a lot of good fellowship, pitched in on the old standard.

Torris, a sturdy-looking sort with a hearty voice who obviously loves to sing, urged one after another of his pickin' buddies on to solos, and the end of the song generated plenty of hoots, shouts of "all right!" and other exclamations.

Clearly, these guys, many of them retired, were having a good ol' time jammin' in the front of Pickle Brothers Builders Supply while the sun set spectacularly over the interstate outside.

Bobby Pickle, who picks away on a mandolin during the jam sessions because "everybody else plays a guitar, and I didn't want to play one," said his hobby began as a family affair.

"My daughter said, 'Let's learn to play something,' so we got guitars. Now she graduated from Baylor and she don't play no more," he said with a smile.

Pickle gets on the phone once or twice a week to get a jam session together at the shop, and said while the number of players at any one session varies, this much of a crowd was unusual.

To solve the problem of what to play, each musician in turn chooses a song and playing partners. After the first several bars, it appears anyone is welcome to join in the fun.

had an open mind and I had not yet considered what the circumstances would be for the next biennium," Clements said.

On Feb. 3, 1986, Clements formally launched his campaign by telling reporters: "I have the know-how and the commitment to tell Texas that I will veto any and all tax or fee increases. Bill Clements stands absolutely firm on this issue."

On Wednesday, Clements explained his change of mind from last February.

"That was under then-existing circumstances. As other people, including Mr. Bullock, changed those circumstances, I reserved the right to change my position. I can't be in granite in a changing panorama."

To finance his budget, Clements proposed that lawmakers maintain the current revenue, settle several outstanding tax issues, and use $276 million of the capital gains earnings from the Permanent School Fund and Permanent University Fund, an idea which many lawmakers sharply criticized when it was proposed last

Christ. "I practically live down here at this church."

Chaplain Mike Green said some of the Coffield inmates he works with truly have devoted themselves to God since coming to prison. Some did it immediately; others had been in prison quite some time beforehand.

"There are several inmates here that really had a cataclysmic change in their lives," said Green.

The inmates say other prisoners sometimes chide them for their beliefs, making remarks about how they only turned to God after being sent to prison.

But even the toughest inmates who make those statements often privately ask the men about God, Pearson said.

Dickerson said his philosophy is that the circumstances under which someone makes a commitment to God are irrelevant. "Whenever you're turned to God at, that's perfectly fine to God."

That also was the feeling of organizers and participants in the lay witness weekend, a program organized by Paul Carlin of Crockett.

A former federal prisoner in Texarkana, Carlin has planned lay witness programs throughout Texas and the nation.

Carlin became involved with the ministry in 1971 while serving time for counterfeiting. "So I got right with the Lord and established myself a relationship with the Lord in a cell block."

The federal prison warden asked him to work on a Methodist laymen's program, and he did, bringing in 47 laymen who spoke with 150 inmates who made commitments to Christ, Carlin said.

OBITUARIES

JIM HENRY AUTEN
Feb. 4, 1987

Jim Henry Auten, 69, of Hereford died Wednesday.

Services are pending at Guilland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Auten, born at McHue, Ark., was married to Thelma Taylor in 1937 at Judsonia, Ark. They moved to Hereford in 1947. He was a maintenance engineer at Hereford Medical Center for 17 years before retiring. He was a Baptist.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Jimmy of Louisville, Ky.; two daughters, Jane Hill and Beverly Curtis, both of Hereford; and five grandchildren.

Clements said he was flexible on many spending issues, as long as the legislative compromise didn't exceed his $36.8 billion bottom line.

"There needs to be open-mindedness on everyone's part in this regard," he said. "This is a place where compromise and accommodation are necessary."

Besides dealing with the budget, Clements used his State of the State speech to offer numerous other proposals to lawmakers.

He suggested several key changes in the public education system, including rolling back the no-pass, no-play extra curricular activity suspension period from six weeks to three weeks. Six weeks is so long it discourages students, he said.

He proposed spending an additional $520 million to help ease problems in Texas prisons. His plan includes constructing regional detention centers to add another 10,000 beds for low-risk inmates. He also proposed funds to purchase the Michaels Unit and trusty camps now in progress, which would add 4,250 new prison beds.

He urged lawmakers to streamline state government by merging agencies which have overlapping jurisdictions. "Let's merge some state agencies. We have overlapping and duplication in the some 240 state agencies," he said.

He promised to work for closer ties to Mexico and for better relations with the federal government.

Ann Landers

Ann goofs!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wish to challenge your answer to "Wanting Justice," the woman who felt cheated because she lost a suntan contest to a Mexican. If you go to Mexico, you will see many blond, blue-eyed, fair-skinner girls of Mexican descent.

You stated that the contest should have been limited to Caucasians. It is my understanding that there are only three races. According to the most recent edition of Webster's Dictionary, they are Caucasoid, Mongoloid and Negroid. The girl who won would be categorized as a Caucasian. Merely because most Mexicans in the movies and on TV are dark-skinned does not mean that they all look that way.

Did "Wanting Justice" find out whether the girl who beat her in the contest was naturally dark? Perhaps she had to work very hard to get that tan - harder even than "Wanting Justice."

You yourself belong to an ethnic group. Do you not consider yourself a Caucasian because you are not a blond?

I am a faithful reader of your column and I do think it is a good one, but this time you are wrong. Because of the subject matter, I doubt that you will ever print this letter. - A Spanish American Girl or Very Fair in New Mexico

DEAR V.F. IN NEW MEXICO: Well, here's your letter. We were both wrong. My mistake was far more serious than yours, however, and a great many people wrote letters to clobber me. To be perfectly honest, I can't understand how I let that one slip by. I do know better.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "Canadian Dilemma" wondered how to pay a nephew who was going to perform the marriage service of their daughter. You suggested no check and a gift instead. As a clergyman, may I inform you that I would much prefer a check.

I do not need another Bible. I cannot use another book from the local Christian book store since my reading time is sharply limited. My office cannot handle another pretty picture of the ocean with a Biblical verse printed on it. My desk is loaded with paperweights and pen sets with crosses. I have a drawer full of religious objects that people have sent instead of checks because they didn't want to be crass.

I appreciate the thought behind all the gifts I have received. However, like many other clergy, I am on a limited income and those checks for weddings give me an opportunity to do special things for my family. We can stay at the beach for an extra day. We can buy that lovely cashmere sweater for a birthday. We can go to the county fair and purchase the "all day" pass for the rides. Ann, tell them to send the check and let us choose the gift.-Pastor in Seattle

DEAR SEATTLE: You told 'em - and plenty other clergymen told ME! So, folks, go ahead and e "crass." Send money. The clergy can use it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: People unload their pet peeves on you from time to time. What I am writing about isn't exactly a "peeve," it's more of a "puzzler." Can you solve it for me?

Why is it that when a person misplaces something it always turns up in the last place he looks? Sign me - Spooked in Seattle

DEAR SPOOKED: Elementary, my dear Watson. The missing object always turns up in the last place you look because when you find it you quit looking.

Exchange student presents program to Legion Auxiliary

Oof Schoppan, exchange student from Germany, presented an informative program for members of the American Legion Auxiliary when the group met Tuesday with 15 members present.

The student discussed his homeland and made comparisons between Germany and America. He also conducted a question and answer session.

During the business session, an installation of new members was conducted. Troyce Hanna served as installing officer and was assisted by Beverly Jesko, Betty Jo Carlson, Ruth King, Pet Ott, Virginia Adams and Carol Lohr.

New members included Mildred Lafever, Ella Caudle, Irene Berger, Coza Mae Shelley, Lela Kemmerer and Lena Elmquist.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Kemmerer and June Koelzer, to members of the Auxiliary and Legion.

Dating custom

The custom of dating events B.C. (before Christ) and A.D. (year of the Lord) was introduced about the year 525 by Dionysius Exiguus, a Roman abbot and astronomer who set Christ's birth 753 years after the founding of Rome.

Dr. McBrayer speaks to members

Dr. Duffy McBrayer explained the concept of a family practice when members of Toujour Amis Study Club met recently in the home of Armon Lauderback. Serving as hostesses were Ange Lauderback, Shannon Hagar and Patti Brown.

Mr. McBrayer answered questions submitted by club members.

Patti Brown called the meeting to order and Rhonda Nieman called roll and read minutes of the previous meeting.

The social committee gave a report on the upcoming Valentine's party Saturday. Also, thank yous were read and the meeting was adjourned.

Those present included Lori Hall, Kim Bigham, Nannett Ashby, Brenda Koenig, Brown, Leisa Lewis, Becky Reinart, Nieman, Karen Keeling, Tricia Workman, Cindy Black, Terri Laing, Marilyn Leasure, Elaine McNutt, Kathy Carthel, Hagar, Beverly Paetzold, Marsha Winget and Debbie Donaldson.

Woody Herman, Polly Fisher, Pat O'Brien, Spencer Tracy and Gene Wilder were all born in Milwaukee.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Wash takes wax off wall paneling

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - What can you use to remove built-up wax from wall paneling? - L.L.C.

DEAR L.L.C. - Try this heavy-duty wood wash. Mix together 3 tablespoons linseed oil, 2 tablespoons turpentine and 1 quart hot water. (These quantities may be increased in proportion if you need a larger quantity of wash.)

Use the mixture to wash down the paneling. Wipe dry with a fresh cloth when clean. Finish by polishing with a soft cloth and furniture polish if necessary to restore the gloss.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Homemade Soaps and Cleaners," which includes this formula as well as other homemade wood cleaners and furniture polishers, household cleaners, homemade laundry soap, and hand soap and laundry pre-soaks.

Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to include the title. - POLLY

Names in the News

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Willie Nelson has received the 1986 Roy Acuff Community Service Award in recognition of his concerts that raised approximately $14 million for financially strapped farmers.

"I'm accepting this for all the entertainers and people who put this together. It should be split into 1,000 pieces," Nelson said Tuesday.

Nelson raised the money at his FarmAid concerts in Champaign, Ill., in 1985 and near Austin, Texas, last July 4. He said he awaits approval from the University of Nebraska to stage FarmAid III there Sept. 19.

The Acuff award is sponsored by The Tennessean newspaper and the Country Music Foundation, a non-profit organization.

NEW YORK (AP) — Olympic gold medalist Carl Lewis and musical stars Clarence Clemons and Narada Michael Walden are helping kick off a world Peace Run that will encompass six continents.

The 103-day event, in which an estimated 20,000 volunteer runners will pass flaming peace torches, will begin April 27 and culminate Aug. 7.

It is sponsored by the Sri Chinmoy Marathon Team, an international organization that seeks to promote peace through sports and meditation.

"It's an honor to be the first to carry the torch," Lewis told a news conference Tuesday.

Walden, a Grammy-winning composer, is composing theme music for "The Peace Run" television special to be shown May 14 on PBS.

Clemons, a member of Bruce Springsteen's E Street Band, said, "It (the Peace Run) is not money ... it's love."

NEW YORK (AP) — "Top Gun" star Tom Cruise has replaced Sylvester Stallone as the top box office draw, according to a poll of U.S. motion picture exhibitors.

The top draws for 1986 were Cruise, who also starred in "The Color of Money," Eddie Murphy, Paul Hogan, Rodney Dangerfield, Bette Midler, Stallone, Clint Eastwood, Whoopi Goldberg, Kathleen Turner and Paul Newman.

In the poll, taken annually since 1932 by Quigley Publishing Co., exhibitors are asked who drew the most customers to their theaters.

Stallone led the field in 1985 and Murphy was rated second last year.

Martin Quigley, president of the company, refused to say how many exhibitors were surveyed, but said the sample "is not a small number" and was weighted to favor large theater chains.

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — The University of Idaho is naming its school of music after jazz great Lionel Hampton.

"It's highly appropriate and fitting the university extend this honor to a man who's not only a living legend in American music, but a humanitarian and educator of youth," University President Richard Gibb said Tuesday.

Hampton, 73, will be on campus this month for the 20th annual Lionel Hampton-Chevron Jazz Festival. The music school will be dedicated Feb. 28.

Hampton has established scholarship funds at Idaho, Duke University and the University of Southern California. He has raised millions of dollars for charities and helped break color barriers in American music when he joined Benny Goodman in the 1930s.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mel Torme says that for a time he was oblivious to the praise heaped on him by the judge of NBC's "Night Court." Torme, 61, has been a singer, composer, pianist, drummer, conductor, vocal and orchestral arranger, author, producer and TV talk show host.

Harry Anderson plays a judge on "Night Court" who is an ardent fan of Torme.

"I didn't know about this until six weeks into the show," Torme said. "Then people started coming to me and saying, 'Did you see this show, 'Night Court?'" My God, they do a plug about you every week."

"Needless to say, I tuned it in, and I was bowled over. So I called them, and they said, 'Do you think we could get you to do even a gag thing, on tape?'"

His response led to occasional cameo appearances on the show, allowing him to add actor to his resume.

NEW YORK (AP) — Holocaust survivor and writer Elie Wiesel and homeless advocate Trevor Ferrell will be among those honored by The Christopher at the Roman Catholic organization's 38th annual awards ceremony Feb. 26.

Wiesel, the winner of the 1986 Nobel Peace Prize who will receive a special Christopher Award, was described by the Rev. John Catoir, director of the Christophers, as "a man with a mission who speaks for human rights wherever those rights are threatened."

Ferrell, 14, who drew attention three years ago when he persuaded his family to help him provide blankets and clothing to people living on Philadelphia's streets, "is a young man who truly believes one person can make a difference," Catoir said Tuesday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Pat Boone will be host of the annual Dove Awards Show April 9 for achievement in gospel music.

The show will originate from the Tennessee Performing Arts Center and will be broadcast live by CBN.

Advertisers

Joann Urias, Shelly Webster and Lana Kosub display one of their posters made to advertise the Hereford High Keywanette blood drive scheduled Feb.

12. Free T-shirts, cookies and cokes will be given to donors from 3 until 7 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Jukebox maker still going strong

ADDISON, Ill. (AP) — Before there was rock 'n' roll there was David C. Rockola, whose name has adorned jukeboxes all over the world for more than 50 years.

"In Brazil, machines that play records aren't even called jukeboxes. They're called Rock-Olas. It's generic," Rockola said.

Ed Jones, a jukebox collector and renovator, says some people think the Rock-Ola Manufacturing Corp. derived its name from rock 'n' roll. In fact, "David C. Rockola ... was around long before rock 'n' roll."

At age 90, Rockola is still going strong as chairman of the jukebox company he founded.

He said it was good business sense that made him switch in 1930 from making scales to making jukeboxes.

"I wanted to get into something that would be important and something that people would go for," Rockola said Tuesday.

He rises every morning at 5 a.m. and drives from his Chicago home to his plant in this nearby suburb. Rockola's wife, Margaret, has been the company secretary for 50 years; his son, Donald, is president.

As a privately held corporation, Rock-Ola does not release sales figures. But Rockola says business is booming.

Rock-Ola always has ranked among the world's top three jukebox makers, along with Wurlitzer, Seeburg and AMI, collector Jones said in a telephone interview from his home in Des Moines, Iowa.

Seeburg twice nearly went out of business, Wurlitzer now is made in Germany and AMI merged to become AMI-Rowe, said Rick Botts, who writes a Des Moines newsletter for jukebox collectors.

"To me, their longevity and their reliability" set Rock-Ola apart, Botts said. "They've satisfied their customers, and they're still in business."

Botts described Rockola as "a very tenacious individual (who) still rules the company with an iron hand."

The company recently produced a nostalgia jukebox, modeled after the gaudy old-timers that featured bubble tops, brightly covered plastic panels, fancy grillwork and light shows.

It sells for $3,800, Rockola said, and buyers include restaurants, taverns, hotels and collectors who use jukeboxes at home.

In the 1930s and '40s, the heyday of jukeboxes, Rockola's models included "Luxury Light-up," "Rocket" and "Spectravox," an oblong machine covered in orange plastic that looked like a wall-telephone. Customers dialed selections as if they were placing a telephone call.

"At certain times, we shipped jukeboxes to 52 different countries in the world," Rockola said.

Today, the company makes a less flashy, "more sleek and more tailored" product, "more up to date," Donald Rockola said.

David Rockola considers himself a music fan, but prefers "the old-time music." He does not own a jukebox.

When he built his house 30 years ago, he had speakers installed in every room to accommodate a jukebox. But his wife objected.

"Mrs. Rockola said, 'There's enough jukeboxes at work so you can listen to them all you want,'" he recalled. "You can overdo a thing."

Silsbee couple builds dreams in elaborate doll houses

SILSBEE, Texas (AP) — The doll house Thomas and Faye Smith built was no small feat.

A little rocking chair no bigger than a parakeet rests beneath a small wooden awning on an even smaller front porch. Overhead, tiny paper flowers sprout from matchbox-sized window boxes.

Inside, a minute ceiling fan twirls above a baby, baby grand piano. And miniature Christmas tree lights in a tiny chandelier sparkle above an elegant dining room table set with china and wine goblets no bigger than matchsticks.

A miniature wooden staircase leads to the master bedroom, which is furnished with a brass, canopy bed the size of a baby's shoebox. And in the room next door, a tiny rubber plug smaller than a fingernail hangs from a shiny gold chain above a little brass drain in a miniature bathtub.

For the Smiths, it's a smaller world than usual.

But for the retired couple who turned their two-car garage into a workshop three years ago, a hobby of building elaborate, Victorian-style doll houses have turned into more than a small-time business.

"When I first saw an old doll house in a store window a while back, well it was just too much," says Faye Smith, arranging thumb-sized pillows on a four-poster bed in a doll house the couple saves as a "show house" for customers.

It's a smaller-than-usual business that both the Smiths take credit for.

Smith does the carpentry and electrical work, making sure polished, hardwood floors lay flat and tiny electrical fixtures keep their projects well-lit.

Mrs. Smith takes over when the construction ends, picking wallpaper and furnishings ranging from gumball-sized bird cages to bentwood rockers which fit into the palm of her hand.

"It's like we're playing all the time, sort of like a second childhood, I guess," she said.

He builds some doll houses from a kit, but prefers building them from scratch.

During the holiday season the couple focuses on building basic, two-story homes without furniture, since that's what most of the grandmothers shopping for their granddaughters prefer, Mrs. Smith says.

But during the year, the bigger projects start, such as building a house for a Beaumont doctor's daughter that is an exact replica of the doctor's home, complete with winding wooden staircases and chandeliers.

"We get our share of parents, but plenty of collectors, too," Smith says. "You'd be surprised at the number of grown-ups we sell to."

Tiny boxes with dozens of finer furnishings line the shelves of one workroom in their home — doll house goodies the couple orders from a Chicago firm that specializes in miniaturizing just about anything.

But Mrs. Smith has learned a few tricks of her own in furnishing her houses.

"The backs of earrings can make light-fixtures, and little beads can be used for doorknobs," she says, explaining how rolled, painted bread dough can become a tiny bouquet of roses.

Some of the houses the couple builds resemble log cabins — a popular variety since they are sturdy enough to support the weight, and subsequent abuse, of a youngster.

But Mrs. Smith says most customers prefer the Victorian-style houses.

"There's just something about them that's so ginger-breadish," she says.

Griffin named to Dean's List

Jennifer Griffin, daughter of A.T. Griffin of 133 Oak, was named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston, School of Allied Health Sciences.

Griffin is a 1980 graduate of Hereford High School and received a bachelor of science degree in education from the University of Texas in Austin. She is currently studying occupational therapy.

The first three Purple Heart medals awarded by George Washington for service during the American Revolution were presented to men from Connecticut.

By The Associated Press
 It appears that the Dallas Mavericks have the Seattle SuperSonics' number this season. Dallas beat Seattle for the fourth time in as many meetings, 124-94, Wednesday night at Reunion Arena. In those four games the Mavericks have outscored the Sonics by a total of 80 points. Those victories have enabled Dallas to tie the all-time series between the teams at 17 games each. In addition Dallas has beaten Seattle in 12 of the last 14 meetings. The Mavericks became the third team to reach 30 victories this season, joining the Los Angeles Lakers and Boston Celtics. Dallas has its best record in franchise history at the All-Star break. "I think the Mavericks own us or something," said Seattle forward Tom Chambers, who led his team with 19 points. "We've played well against everybody but them this season. They come out and just take us out of our offense and shoot the heck out of the ball. They bring out the worst in us. I don't know what we're going to do if we ever meet them in the playoffs because we're going to have a hard time." The Mavericks were never threatened, leading 64-40 at halftime. Seattle shot a miserable 39 percent from the field for the game to Dallas' 55.8 and was out-rebounded, 55-41. "We came out tonight and made sure we didn't have a letdown," said Mavericks guard Rolando Blackman, who joins teammate Mark Aguirre as members of the Western Conference All-Star team.

"We knew they had been playing well and we just tried to apply pressure on their guards. It really worked tonight." Although his team is playing its best of the season, having won six of its last eight, Dallas coach Dick Motta is ready for a break. "I'm ready to get away from the players for a few days," said Motta. "I know they love me but I suspect they're ready for a few days away from me too." Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Lakers trounced Sacramento 128-92, Boston edged Cleveland 104-102, and Philadelphia whipped New Jersey 121-95. Lakers 128, Kings 92. The Sacramento Kings were perfect in the first quarter — or maybe that should read imperfect. Actually, they were perfectly imperfect. The lowly Kings showed why they are one of the worst teams in the NBA with a record-setting display of futility. And at least one of their records will never be broken — a first-quarter shooting percentage of .000 — 0-for-18 — as they fell behind the Los Angeles Lakers 40-4 in after 12 minutes. The final score was 128-92. "The first time I looked at the score it was 22-0," said Los Angeles forward A.C. Green, who scored 12 of his 16 points during the Lakers' unprecedented 29-0 run at the start of the game. "I was out there hustling and playing as hard as I could. I never noticed that they hadn't scored a basket. My mind was just focused on doing my job." The officials had a hand in the record since two Sacramento baskets were nullified by loose ball fouls. The Kings didn't score until Derek Smith made two free throws with 9:06 gone. "It felt good to get on the scoreboard because it was frightening to think you're not going to score in the quarter," Smith said.

Reggie Theus added two more with 31 seconds left, prompting Kings Coach Phil Johnson to quip, "It's a good thing we're a good free throw-shooting team." Celtics 104, Cavaliers 102. Cleveland lost to Boston on the road for the 22nd consecutive time — but it took 29 points by Larry Bird, including four consecutive free throws in the final five seconds, for the Celtics to withstand the Cavaliers' comeback from an 18-point deficit. Kevin McHale scored for 27 points and Danny Ainge 15 as the Celtics survived Cleveland rookie Ron Harper's career-high 40-point performance. 76ers 121, Nets 95. Julius Erving scored 28 points and helped Philadelphia open a 22-point first-half lead as the 76ers handed the hapless Nets their seventh straight loss. The 76ers broke the game open with 20-6 run during a five-minute stretch in the first and second quarters that gave them a 40-22 lead. The 28 points was one less than Erving's season high and the 11-time NBA All Star did not play in the fourth quarter. The 26-point loss was the worst for the Nets this season.

AUTOGRAPH REQUESTS
 CLEVELAND (AP) — Athletes have different attitudes toward autograph seekers and Brad Daugherty, the star rookie of the Cleveland Cavaliers, is one of the more unique. "Sometimes people ask me for my autograph," he said. "And I can see they are successful businessmen. I feel like asking for theirs because they really are more successful than I am. On occasion, I have asked them and all I received in return was a weird look."

Ways with Wine
 by David Hutchins

THE SECOND TIME AROUND
 Immediately after the crushing of the grapes, all wines, both red and white, go through a violent or tumultuous fermentation. During this fermentation, the grapes' sugars are converted to alcohol by the action of yeasts. A second, less-violent fermentation called malolactic fermentation is caused by naturally-occurring bacteria. This fermentation will happen naturally in most wines unless it is deliberately cut out. Coming directly after the first fermentation, the second converts malic acid to milder lactic acid. Its effect on red wine is usually to smooth it and advance its maturation. While almost all red wines undergo malolactic fermentation, very few whites do. This is because malic acid gives whites a greater sensation of live acidity to the tongue, giving whites their fresh fruit flavor. Everyone at THE STORE loves to talk about wine so feel free to ask us any questions you may have. Keep in mind that every season of the year it's always nice to sit with family and friends and toast to good health or happy times. For quality and service that will please you we are here at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7882. Open: Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12. Who judges often shorten the phrase malolactic fermentation to simple "malo."

PRO™ TEXAS
 A NEW OPTIONAL CALLING PLAN FROM AT&T

On November 13, 1986 AT&T Communications of The Southwest, Inc. ("AT&T") filed with the Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas to introduce a new intrastate, optional calling plan, PRO Texas. A comparable interstate plan, known as PRO™ America, is currently available to Texas customers.

PRO Texas gives Texas consumers an opportunity to save money on direct dialed in-state long distance calls. Customers who choose this new AT&T plan will receive a 10% discount on all AT&T intrastate direct dialed station calls by paying a monthly charge of $15.00.

The PRO Texas discount applies to calls placed during all rate periods and all days. The discount is in addition to the AT&T intrastate evening discount of 25% and the night/weekend discount of 40%. A one time charge of $6.00 will be billed to initiate the service. However, this charge will be waived during the first 90 days that the offering is available.

PRO Texas will be available to all Message Telephone Service customers in Texas. AT&T estimates that it will generate revenues in the first year of almost $8 million, which is .7% of AT&T's annual revenues for all Texas intrastate service.

The PUC has assigned Docket No. 7194 to this proposed service offering. The proposed effective date for PRO Texas is March 16, 1987. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the PUC as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information also may be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Child support payments to be determined by new guidelines

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials were besieged with protests when they unveiled a new formula for computing child support.

The complaints prompted the Texas Supreme Court to throw out the plan, which was based on parents' gross income. Critics also said the formula left too little discretion for judges faced with unusual situations.

The supreme court today will try again when it introduces another plan, based on both parents' income after federal taxes have been deducted.

The guidelines were developed by a 110-member panel set up by Texas Supreme Court Justice C.L. Ray. He formed a 20-member task force last summer, which grew to 110, after the court rescinded the old formula for calculating payments.

"We think these guidelines will help us even further," said Attorney General Jim Mattox, who has beefed up child support efforts since taking office.

"I think it will be of major benefit to the children of Texas," Mattox said.

He said the new guidelines will better help judges determine payments that should be made in each case.

The guidelines say child support will be based on both parents' "net resources." The guidelines include 100 percent of all wage and salary income, Social Security benefits, royalty income, dividends and self-employment income.

The guidelines also assume that the court will order the parent without custody of the child to provide health insurance for the child or increased payments for the insurance.

Mattox said there are still disagreements over the guidelines, "but it is the best compromise of all interests that are available."

Under the new guidelines, a parent ordered to pay child support who has monthly net income of $4,000 a month or less would pay:

- 19 percent to 23 percent of the resources for one child.
- 24 percent to 28 percent of the resources for two children.
- 30 percent to 34 percent of the resources for three children.
- 35 percent to 39 percent of the resources for four children.
- not less than 35 percent to 39 percent for five or more children.

Prehistoric hunters probably used cave paintings of animals in rites intended to help them successfully hunt the animals.

America's Cup victory touches off celebrations

By The Associated Press

Stars & Stripes' victory in the America's Cup touched off wild celebrations, earned skipper Dennis Conner and his crew an invitation to the White House, and triggered another competition — the one to become host of the next America's Cup.

President Reagan said he won an Australian bush hat in a bet with that country's prime minister, Bob Hawke.

"I'm pleased to report that my head will remain warm and dry during my next visit to the ranch," he said in a congratulatory telegram to Conner, whose boat defeated Kookaburra III in Fremantle, Australia, Wednesday to take the best-of-seven series 4-0.

At the Norfolk Hotel in Fremantle, Australians joined Americans in toasting Conner after he recaptured the Cup he lost to the Aussies in 1983.

"I'm bitterly disappointed we have lost the Cup to the Americans, but we might as well enjoy ourselves," said Chris Haleva, a college student from Perth, Australia.

New Yorker Walker Mason said the party at the hotel reminded him of a U.S. event.

"I was in New Orleans for the Super Bowl last year and this is the same kind of atmosphere over a longer period," he said. "The Australians have been amazingly friendly. It's a fun, drinking, crazy kind of crowd, but there is no hostility at all."

Champagne also flowed freely at Robert Derecktor's Yacht Builders in Mamaroneck, N.Y., where Stars & Stripes was built.

"We were all very confident in the job we had done," employee Basil Kontis said. "We knew it was a winner."

In San Diego, Conner's hometown, city officials finalized plans for a parade later this month that will start with an armada of boats outside the San Diego Yacht Club and continue with bands and a float on downtown streets.

At Conner's drapery business, the 37 employees hung hand-lettered signs in Spanish and English to celebrate their boss' victory.

"The staff shared in the excitement," said Frank Trovato, Conner's business partner. "They felt like they were part of the team."

Meanwhile, officials in San Diego and Newport, R.I., started their campaigns to land the next America's Cup in 1990.

San Diego is considered the favorite to host the competition. But reports that Conner is concerned about light winds and thick kelp off the San Diego coast have fueled speculation about other sites.

"They're talking all kinds of different things, that maybe the Cup (races) won't be here," said Michael Arrington, manager of a gas station near Conner's business. "I hope it stays here. It would bring a lot of good tourists."

Mayor Maureen O'Connor has said the city will do anything short of spending city money to support the races. She said the San Diego Unified Port District has $175 million on hand and could afford to finance the estimated $25 million staging cost.

In Newport, which hosted the America's Cup races for five decades before Australia captured the trophy, residents want the yachts to return in 1990.

"It's a Newport tradition," said Chris Ferris, a chef at Cafe Zelda. "It was lost here; they should offer it back to us."

Rhode Island Gov. Edward D. DiPrete and Newport Mayor Patrick Kirby said they will lobby to bring the Cup competition back to the city.

Houston's hard luck continues

Sampson may be out for season

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The season that started for the Houston Rockets with the sweet afterglow of reaching the NBA finals and joining the league's elite has turned to brimstone.

Ralph Sampson's knee injury in the first quarter of Tuesday's 107-105 loss to Denver likely ended the 7-4 Twin Tower's season.

The incident added a chapter to the long list of bad news that has sent the Rockets crashing from the heights to the depths.

"You would never think all that's happened to us could happen to a team in a full season and ours is just half over," Rockets forward Rodney McCray said.

"There's nothing you can do about it. We just have to stick together and fight back."

Guard Robert Reid says the Rockets aren't ready to close the books on the 1986-87 season.

"We wouldn't be the Rockets if we folded our tents and told the fans, 'that's it for this season folks, see you next year,'" Reid said.

"Our young guys are going to have to come through now. We have to play smart. No more silly mistakes." Sampson's injury was described as a large tear of the lateral cartilage in his left knee that will require surgery to repair.

Sampson says he's out for the season and the Rockets fear he is too but they are holding out hope until Sampson gets additional medical advice.

"I'm probably out the rest of the season," Sampson said. "Now I have to get mentally tough to get ready for the rehabilitation, having a cast on my leg or whatever is necessary."

Sampson started Houston's season of misfortune by missing 11 of Houston's first 13 games with ankle injuries.

Akeem Olajuwon sprained an ankle Nov. 25 and missed seven games. Guard Robert Reid missed seven games after undergoing arthroscopic knee surgery Dec. 8.

The next bombshell came Jan. 13 when guards Lew Lloyd and Mitchell Wiggins, key figures in last season's title push, were banned from the league for life for using cocaine.

Each time the Rockets have appeared to be putting their woes behind them, they've been slapped down once again.

Their season has included a 56-point loss to Seattle and several fourth quarter fizzes, including a loss to Phoenix when the Rockets led by 21 in the second half.

The Rockets had made a charge since losing Lloyd and Wiggins.

They have a 13-5 record since Dec. 30 and Coach Bill Fitch was named NBA Coach of the Month after the Rockets went 11-4 for January.

Now they are back at the bottom and trying to climb.

"I am shocked, we'll just have to try to win every game," Olajuwon said. "When it happened, I didn't think it was that serious. Ralph just twisted his knee trying to keep up with his man."

Sampson appeared to slip on the Summit court with six minutes to play in Tuesday's game. He tried to return in the second quarter but could not get full extension of his knee.

Rockets trainer Dick Vandervoort said Sampson wanted to get more medical advice before deciding on treatment.

"I just told him it was very important to get it done as soon as possible," Vandervoort said.

Regardless of the surgery, Sampson will return at 100 per cent, Vandervoort said.

"It is in no way a career-threatening situation," Vandervoort said. "At this point, we don't feel there is any ligament damage."

Houston's hard-luck season is typified by the fact that shoe polish may have caused Sampson's injury.

Summit crews removed scuff marks from a pre-game warmup by a drill team with turpentine and players said slippery spots remained on the floor at the start of the game.

"That's the kind of luck we've been having this season," forward Jim Petersen said. "Every week or so we turn around and we have something else go wrong."

Petersen filled in for Sampson Tuesday and scored 19 points. Cedric Maxwell, obtained from the Los Angeles Clippers Jan. 16, also will get more playing time at the power forward position.

"I thought I'd be coming in here playing 17-20 minutes and watching Ralph and Akeem do their magic," Maxwell said. "But now I guess I've got my work orders."

The Rockets host the Golden State Warriors tonight in the Summit. Golden State has beaten the Rockets in all three meetings this season.

Kareem Abdul Jabbar of the Lakers is not only the all-time NBA scoring champion, but when he began his 18th season in the league in November of 1986 he set a record for longevity.

TCU's winning streak is snapped by Baylor, 66-63

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer

WACO, Texas (AP)—Now the Texas Christian Horned Frogs know how the 1981-1982 Texas Longhorns felt.

Texas was fifth-ranked six years ago. TCU was 15th ranked Wednesday night.

In both cases, 14-game winning streaks were shattered by the Baylor Bears in Heart O' Texas Coliseum.

In other SWC games Wednesday, Texas Tech beat Rice 79-63 and Texas defeated Arkansas 78-73.

The win gives the Red Raiders a record of 12-9 overall and 7-3 in conference play and drops the Owls, with their fourth straight loss, to 7-14 overall and 1-9 in conference play. Texas rises to 11-2 overall and 4-6 in SWC play, while Arkansas falls to 13-10 and 4-6.

TCU went into Wednesday's game with a perfect Southwest Conference mark of 9-0, the longest winning streak in the school's history, and a No. 15 national ranking.

Five seasons ago, Abe Lemon's Longhorns were stunned 69-59 after center Mike Wacker broke his leg in the first half.

TCU starting center Tony Papa stayed at home Wednesday with the flu, and the Horned Frogs fell 66-63 before 8,294 fans as Michael Williams scored four late baskets including a slam dunk with a second left.

TCU leads the SWC by two games over Baylor and Texas Tech. The Frogs must travel to College Station on Sunday.

"We just waited too long to get started," said TCU Coach Jim Killingsworth. "We let them take the boards away from us and we didn't play very quick."

"Baylor should be happy," said TCU guard Carven Holcombe. "We mainly just beat ourselves by not being ourselves. We just weren't the same team out there tonight."

TCU only shot 43 per cent from the field compared to 54 per cent for Baylor, the best a team has shot against the Horned Frogs this year.

"I can't honestly say this is the biggest win in my coaching career, but it's certainly the most important since I've been at Baylor," said Bears' Coach Gene Iba. "TCU is very, very good. They showed that by coming back strong."

"They did everything they needed to do to win except take care of the ball at the end of the game."

TCU suffered its first SWC loss in 10 games and dropped to 19-4 overall. The Bears improved to 7-3 and 12-8.

"Both teams played great pressure defense," Iba said. "I was very proud of our defense."

Williams finished with 15 points for Baylor while Jamie Dixon had a game-high 23 points for the Horned Frogs.

"I thought I was fouled down there at the end of the game," Dixon said. "I waited for a whistle but they just didn't call anything."

Killingsworth said the Frogs missed the 6-foot-9 Papa. The team two weeks ago also lost Carl Lott, who suffered a broken finger.

Methodist church seeking greater role in SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Church leaders want a greater role in governing Southern Methodist University in the wake of allegations of continued wrongdoing in the school's athletic program, officials said. Only 22.4 percent of SMU students are members of the United Methodist denomination, church leaders said.

"It's a tragedy that the Methodist connection has just seemed incidental," said the Rev. Spurgeon Dunnam, editor of the Dallas-based United Methodist Reporter. "M" stands for Methodist, but only as a part of its name, not a part of its identity." Church representatives, faculty members and administrators said denomination leaders in recent weeks have shifted from a traditional hands-off policy.

"If things are going well, there's a tendency to say, 'Fine, let's not pay too much attention,'" said McFerrin Stowe, SMU bishop in residence and former Dallas-Fort Worth area bishop.

Last fall's allegations of NCAA rules violations that led to resignations of the head football coach and athletic director were "the last straw," Stowe said. "The church has reacted because we feel that church institutions must have integrity," said Stowe. SMU's articles of incorporation state that it is "forever owned, maintained and controlled" by the church, which founded it in 1911.

The university is a nonprofit corporation that controls the use of its land and buildings, but cannot sell them without church consent.

Church leaders have left the university's operation to the 75-member Board of Trustees, said former provost Neill McFarland, alumnus and history of religions professor at the Perkins School of Theology.

"We have never been, at least within the last four decades, even close to being a sectarian university," McFarland said. "We like to think of religious faith as completely supportive of academic enterprise."

Two weeks ago, area bishops met with SMU interim president William Stallcup to ask for greater involvement in university affairs.

"We have met to discuss this with leaders of the university, to discuss seeking to advise, help, make suggestions, not only in the athletic department, but changes that may arise out of the form of governance," said Stowe.

"Bishops have not been as active as trustees as they should have been," he said. "They have determined they are going to be more active."

The church's eight-state South Central Jurisdiction elects members of the Board of Trustees, 50 percent of whom must be Methodist, at its yearly conference.

The University Senate, which oversees about 120 church-related institutions nationwide, sent an investigating team to SMU and prepared a report to Stallcup with recommendations on a "broad range of institutional issues," said Roy Shilling, the group's president.

Stallcup said the report, which he will furnish to trustees, has been helpful.

Woman's Health

MIXING DRINKS AND BABIES

By Harry S. Jonas, M.D., President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

About 6 out of every 10 women in America drink alcoholic beverages of some kind: beer and wine mostly, but some hard liquor, too. Drinking alcohol is considered a socially acceptable thing to do, but like many things we normally do in our lives, it needs to be reconsidered during pregnancy.

Many health professionals see alcohol as a drug because it affects the function of the brain, nervous system, and heart. When a pregnant woman drinks, alcohol not only affects her system but also that of her fetus.

It's very clear what happens to people when they drink. With each successive drink, their speech becomes slurred, their coordination goes, and their thinking becomes less clear. These are all signs that the alcohol has entered the blood system and is affecting different parts of the body. During pregnancy the baby receives all its oxygen and nourishment from its mother's blood system, so if mother has been drinking, the baby will receive some alcohol, too. Doctors do know today that women who are chronic drinkers stand a very good chance of having a miscarriage, a stillbirth, or a baby with "fetal alcohol syndrome" (FAS).

A baby with FAS tends to be smaller, with a small head and limbs, and will usually be underweight. The baby also may have birth defects such as a cleft palate, mental retardation, or other behavioral problems.

What happens during pregnancy when a woman is a moderate or light drinker—a glass of wine or beer once a week or so—is not clear. Right now, there is no medical indication that an occasional drink is harmful. But remember that occasional means once in a while for a special event—not two or three drinks every day. It's also important to know that a glass of wine, a beer, and a mixed drink with one ounce of alcohol all have the same amount of alcohol and the same effect on the baby.

If you are a heavy drinker, talk to your doctor about the best ways to cut down or stop drinking. Every drink not taken will help your baby's health. If you are a moderate drinker, you may wish to cut down even more or stop drinking altogether.

Today, many doctors advise that if you're concerned about the effects of alcohol on your developing baby, don't drink. You don't have to worry about risks if you don't take any.

Single, free copies of "Alcohol and Your Unborn Baby" (p-030) are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business size envelope along with the name of the booklet to: The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Resource Center, 600 Maryland Ave., SW, Washington, DC 20024.

Celebration, ceremony on Capitol Hill

Women in Sports Day is held

By DAVID GINSBURG
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Martina Navratilova and other notable female athletes used the first National Women in Sports Day to celebrate past accomplishments and declare they have "just begun to fight" for equality in the nation's sports arenas.

In a ceremony on Capitol Hill Wednesday, organized by the Women's Sports Foundation, Navratilova, winner of 53 Grand Slam tennis titles, received the first "Flo Hyman Memorial Award."

The award, named for the late captain of the 1984 U.S. Olympic Volleyball team, will be presented each year to the person who most captures Hyman's "dignity, spirit and commitment to excellence," according to the foundation.

Navratilova, brushing back tears, said, "This means more to me than any award I've ever gotten because of the type of person Flo was. I hope I can live up to her reputation."

After Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., presented Navratilova with the flag that flew above the Capitol on the first day designed to recognize nationally the role of women in sports, the focus of the ceremony turned to hurdles that female athletes still must clear.

Rep. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, who teamed with Bradley and Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., last year to present a joint congressional resolution to create National Women in Sports Day, said she hoped Wednesday's session would "be a stepping stone in our fight against sex discrimination in sports."

"The issue is getting Title IX back," said Anita DeFrantz, citing the Supreme Court's 1984 Grove City decision that rules the clause does not apply to athletics. DeFrantz, an Olympic medalist in rowing and the first and only American female member of the International Olympic Committee, claimed, "We have just begun to fight sexual discrimination against women in sports."

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 prohibits discrimination on basis of sex by any educational recipient of federal funding.

The event was attended by several senators and notable female athletes, including Olympic gymnast Mary Lou Retton, former tennis great Billie Jean King, 1984 Olympic basketball captain Lynette Woodard and race car driver Lyn St. James.

Earlier in the day, many of the athletes visited area schools in an effort to promote sports in the education of girls and women.

Before that, five women faced five senators in a round-robin squash tournament that left Sen. John Warner, R-Va., with a cut lip.

"I got what I deserved," Warner said. "I got beat and got a fat lip in the process."

In Los Angeles, skier Suzy Chaffee, a longtime women's sports activist, said: "It means that the women are finally getting the recognition they truly deserve ... And it also means that the country is beginning to be educated on the importance of women having the sports opportunities and encouragement that the men have had all along."

Tales of Ed Vargo

Life of umpire has risks

By Murray Olderman
BUTLER, Pa. (NEA) — Ex-umpire Ed Vargo once called off an International League baseball game because it was raining.

Raining bullets!

It happened in Cuba in the summer of 1959 when Fidel Castro was well into his first year in power. Castro, the one-time Havana University pitcher, decided to celebrate at the ballpark — by taking the mound himself in a special exhibition game.

Vargo, on the verge of beginning his long major-league career, refused to get behind the plate for Castro.

"I didn't want to have to call every pitch a strike," he says.

But Vargo did work the regularly scheduled minor-league game that followed, between Rochester and Havana of the International League.

The park was filled — with 45,000 barbedos (Castro's followers), most of them armed soldiers. A squadron of planes flew overhead at the stroke of noon, with the game already under way. Speakers blared out the Cuban victory song. And many of the 45,000 stood up and shot off their guns in celebration.

Tommy guns.

"It was the only time a ball player ever cursed me and stayed in the game — Charlie Neal, the second baseman of the Dodgers. They were short of players."

"I got him later."

Vargo moved up to the National League in 1960 and umpired there for 24 seasons and 4,000 games. He worked four World Series during his career, four All-Star contests, four League Championship Series.

After the '83 World Series, Vargo came home to Butler, where he used to work in the steel mill, and asked his wife, "Where are the kids?" The two older ones had already left home; the other two were away at school.

"I quit now," Vargo said. His wife had been both a mother and a father, he realized, raising four kids by herself.

Vargo was making $75,000 a year at the time he stepped down as a big-league umpire. That was a lot more than he once got for heating rivets in the mill. Or the $6,500 salary he got for his first year in the National League.

game.

He later went to George Barr's Umpiring School in Florida and was told he was too small. But in 1954, at the age of 22, he got a call to come down to the Georgia-Florida League. "The first game with me behind the plate," Vargo recalls, "lasted 1:43." He got $8.33 a day.

It took Vargo five years to work his way through the minors and catch the eye of Warren Giles, then the president of the National League — who saw Eddie work behind the plate one night in Rochester, N.Y.

"My first year, I threw out a lot of guys," remembers Vargo about his National League debut. "They were testing me."

Pitcher Joe Nuxhall of Cincinnati once hit him in the stomach after he called a runner safe on a close play. "I was going to throw a punch at him," says Vargo, "when Billy Martin (that noted peace-maker was playing second base for the Reds) stops me."

Vargo still puts on umpire blue once a year, to work the Hall of Fame exhibition game at Cooperstown, N.Y. Chub Feeney, the National League president, has retained Eddie as one of the three supervisors of umpires, scouting new talent.

He's looking for guys like himself, prudent enough to stop a game when it's raining bullets.
