Shows Bring Mixed Reviews from Residents, Manager

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

A Supreme Court justice, asked what is pornography, hesitated for a moment, then answered, "I know when I see it."

That may be the best way to define one of the most controversial issues in the country—pornography—a subject that has raised quite a furor in Hereford lately even though most city and Deaf Smith County officials consider the city to be relatively clean.

It is difficult to define. Federal courts haven't been able to define it, their role has been to decide whether state laws and definitions are violations of the First Amendment.

Some Hereford folks have decided that the X-rated movies at the Tower Drive-In west of the city of pornographic-obsence under state definitions—and should not be shown.

Thomas Albracht, a locomotive engineer with Holly Sugar and the local president of the national anti-porno group Citizens for Decency through Law, is leading the fight against the drive-in, which regularly advertises three types of movies—Spanish shows, regular shows and X-rated shows.

"It will be our process to do whatever we can in the law to bring the showing of these movies (X's) to an end in our community," said Albracht, who has urged city commissioners to adopt an ordinance restricting so-called pornography in the community.

The drive-in is located outside the city so an ordinance would not govern the showing of movies as it might the sale of magazines which depict nude bodies. And since county law cannot supersede state law, Albracht knows that preventing the showing of the X's is a doubtful proposition.

"We have a definite problem with the movies being shown at the drive-in...I wish they wouldn't show these kinds of movies."

Bob Ostercamp, manager of the Tower and the downtown Star Theatre, which does not show X's, says the movies in question at the drive-in are not the hard-core variety.

"They're not the hard-core, commercial X's. There's nothing really damaging in them," said Ostercamp, adding that the Tower won't show X-rated movies for a few months beginning Oct. 1.

"The reason we do away with the movies in the winter is for lack of a product. The film companies aren't producing many decent X pictures anymore."

"So we hold off for a while and between the time we shut down and open up again and there'll be some more good quality X's made."

The Tower will remain open Friday through Sunday after Oct. 1 but will show movies only rated as high as R (restricted).

Ostercamp added that minors are not permitted to view the drive-in movies rated X, despite the fact there have been allegations concerning young people being admitted.

"Our employees lose their job if they let somebody in under age. There aren't any minors out there."

The allegations still may prompt an investigation by the Deaf Smith County district attorney's office.

"I've heard reports that there were minors inside the drive-in and that violates state law," DA Andy Shoval said. "It can cause the manager, owner and operator to be filed on with a possible jail sentence."

"It's also come to the attention of our department about the nature of these movies. We plan to make an investigation as to whether it is hard or soft pornography."

Sheriff Travis McPherson said the movies seem to show simulated sex—which would make them the soft variety—and there have been no minors on the premises during three searches by his office.

"We've been out there and we've not

Gun Found, Might Not Be Evidence

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Atty. Tim Curry said today a gun has been found but has not and may not be connected to the Cullen Davis capital murder case.

Curry, chief prosecutor in the Davis capital murder trial here, confirmed rumors circulating overnight that a mystery pistol has surfaced in the case.

Investigators reported never finding the weapon used in the so-called mansion murders of last year.

Curry said there was nothing at this point to connect the gun with the shootings but said he had advised the defense of the discovery.

"I doubt if anything will come of it," Curry told newsmen, adding that he was bound by rules of the court from telling when and where the weapon was found.

Defense attorneys today were prepared to zero back in on Priscilla Davis, after describing her Thursday as "scheming, greedy and devious."

Mrs. Davis, meanwhile primed for round number ten today, said in an unsolicited remark to the defense Thursday that her estranged husband once called his stepdaughter Andrea "stupid" and "kicked at her."

Davis is accused of killing the 12-year-old girl last summer in a grim prelude to a midnight ambush of Mrs. Davis and her boyfriend Stan Farr, 30.

Mrs. Davis, 36, was critically wounded and Farr was slain in the shooting spree at the $6 million "dream house" Davis built for his wife during less turbulent times.

In her two weeks of testimony, the blonde socialite has repeatedly named Davis as the "man in black" who shot her in the chest and gunned down Farr.

Thursday's session was unusually volatile as defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes questioned Mrs. Davis about a telephone conversation between her estranged husband and Andrea in the spring of 1974.

She testified that Davis, angry and cursing, banished Andrea from his mansion, ordered her not to return and told her to send back everything he had ever given her.

At the time, Andrea lived with her father Jack Wilborn, Mrs. Davis's second husband.

Haynes suggested Mrs. Davis attributed profanity to her husband that she somehow neglected to mention in a statement given Asst. Dist. Atty. Joe Shannon about the incident.

"You didn't tell Mr. Shannon about the obscenities," Haynes began.

Mrs. Davis interrupted. "I also didn't tell him about Davis calling her stupid and kicking at her."

There was this exchange:

Haynes: "You were just embarrassed to use that language with Mr. Shannon?"

Mrs. Davis: "Yes sir."

Haynes: "But you weren't embarrassed to use that language before the jury, were you?"

Mrs. Davis: "Yes sir."

Haynes, sarcastically: "You don't use that kind of language, do you?"

Mrs. Davis: "I have been known to use some, yes sir."

Haynes: "Yes, even in public?"

Then this, as the thrice-married Mrs.

TAMPICO, Mex. (AP) — Hurricane Anita, a mighty display of nature's raw power, moved ashore early today with 155 mile-per-hour winds over a sparsely populated area about 100 miles north of this port city, but then spent itself rapidly.

Anita moves west-southwest into Mexico and by midmorning, Anita's winds had diminished to less than 100 mph, dumping several inches of rain over the farming communities in its path.

Mexican authorities said there were no reports of casualties.

"We haven't had anything we can't handle," said Mario Flores, director of public safety for the state of Tamaulipas.

Electric power was cut off in Soto La Marina, the town directly in the hurricane's path as it came ashore at about 5 a.m. rushing in at 12 miles per hour.

Soto La Marina and La Pesca, both on the edge of the Laguna Madre, had most of their residents evacuated by the Army early Thursday ahead of torrential rains and vicious winds.

"People are more afraid of the wind than the water," Flores said.

Mayor Leonel Tavares said the drought of recent months would help keep floods to a minimum.

Anita, the first hurricane of the season, first had aimed its punch at the lower Texas coast, but veered south Thursday morning and drifted into northeastern Mexico as South Texas sighed with relief.

In Matamoros, across from Brownsville at the tip of Texas, nearly 8,000 people were taken to shelters. Officials said today most of them were returning to their homes and there appeared to be little danger of flooding.

"We were very, very lucky," said Brownsville meteorologist Al Druemont. "Torrential rains and excessive winds missed us by only 25 miles."

The National Weather Service said that the primary concern was a serious threat of flash floodings in northeastern Mexico as rains of more than 8 inches fell in the area.

La Pesca, a tiny coastal fishing village, and Soto La Marina bore the brunt of Hurricane Ella in 1970.

Brownsville, some 100 miles to the north, recorded winds of 45 mph and "moderate" rain.

The leading edge of the storm dumped torrential rains along about 200 miles of the Mexican coast. Water covered some Tampico streets and the highways north of Tampico and Ciudad Victoria were reportedly flooded.

"This is sparsely populated area, but some communities are so isolated, that it is possible they may not have heard warnings and may not have a chance to get out," said Al Druemont, Weather Service chief meteorologist in Brownsville.

"If a storm of this intensity hit an

Athiests File Suit Over US Currency

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Three Texas atheists claim their constitutional rights are violated every time they handle money.

Madalyn Murray O'Hair and her two sons filed suit in federal court Thursday asking that the slogan "In God We Trust" be dropped from U.S. currency.

The suit cited the 1963 U.S. Supreme Court decision in Murray v. Curlett that outlawed official prayers in schools. The Murray in that case was William Murray, Mrs. O'Hair's son.

The other son is Jon Murray.

The suit filed Thursday in U.S. District Court here names Michael Blumenthal, secretary of the treasury, and James A. Conlon, director of engraving and printing, as defendants.

"Plaintiffs are forced to handle and display with regularity currency and coin which is imprinted by defendants with a religious motto, 'In God We Trust,' with which plaintiffs disagree," the petition states.

"This inscription on the currency and coin compels plaintiffs to subscribe to and affirm a belief which is antithetical to plaintiffs' most deeply held convictions and represents an abridgement of their rights under the free clause of the First Amendment."

"Plaintiffs must pay their financial obligations on a daily basis with United States currency and coin."

"This compelled dissemination of religious symbolism by plaintiffs through their regular and unavoidable handling of currency and coin so imprinted deprives plaintiffs of their right to disaffirm the motto in contravention of the First Amendment right to free speech," the petition says.

Texans Called 'Lucky', Leave Shelters

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — South Texans slowly trickled out of shelters and sighed with relief today after escaping serious damage by Hurricane Anita.

Anita, a mighty display of nature's raw power, slammed into the northeastern coast of Mexico early today hitting a sparsely populated area after deviating south from a route that originally had placed it on a collision course with the lower Texas coast.

Nearly 10,000 persons took refuge in shelters in Brownsville and other Rio Grande Valley towns.

All but about 40 of the 3,000 residents of Port Isabel, near the tip of Texas, evacuated the town. Among the hardy souls were some eager fishermen who said they were waiting for things to settle down so they could take advantage of the good fishing conditions created by the hurricane.

Late Thursday night winds of up to 60 miles per hour lashed Port Isabel and South Padre Island, a resort area of nearly 4,000 that had been evacuated by noon Thursday.

Today the sun came up over a rosy Gulf of Mexico horizon off South Padre. A newsmen on the scene said that early in the morning palm fronds and some aluminum roofing could be seen on the sand and some high waves were still rolling deep into the shore near the abandoned hotels and residences.

Electrical power stayed on all night and street and home lights were left on in the naked town which was still enveloped by a sand storm at 2 a.m.

Authorities did not allow residents to return immediately at daybreak.

The only entrance to the island is through the Queen Isabella Causeway which connects it with Port Isabel.

Some rain was reported along the lower coast and there was the possibility of some flooding, but the danger of serious damage appeared to be over as Anita spent itself over the Mexican mountains.

Small craft warnings, however, were still in effect for the lower coast.

"We were very, very lucky," said Brownsville meteorologist Al Druemont as he watched Anita on the radar screen veer into Mexico.

"Torrential rains and excessive winds missed us by only 25 miles," he said.

From Corpus Christi to Brownsville, Texans were primed for Anita's onslaught. Homes were boarded up, low-lying areas, including Port Isabel and South Padre Island, were evacuated and emergency personnel were on standby.

South Padre Island, a glistening strip of sand covered with about $60 million in new resort construction, was evacuated early Thursday in the face of tides more than five feet above normal. At one point, it was directly in the storm's path.

The town has a city ordinance requiring evacuation in the face of hurricane danger.

Low-lying portions of the coast near Baytown were evacuated Wednesday.

"Considering the 155-mile-an-hour winds that were within a hundred miles of us, we have been extremely lucky," said Brownsville city official Gene Fernandez, who said the only real damage was to a

Labor Department Checking Abuses in Job Programs

By The Associated Press

The Labor Department is looking into charges of abuse in a federally financed job program in three cities after ordering Chicago to repay nearly $1 million allegedly used for political hiring.

Announcing the start of a nationwide crackdown, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said Wednesday that an investigation found Chicago used a "political referral system" to fill jobs intended for the long-term unemployed and financed under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

Under the CETA program, the government is paying states and cities $5.5 billion to put 725,000 unemployed persons in public service jobs. The program is intended to create new jobs to ease unemployment and requires applicants to have been unemployed for a minimum of 15 weeks.

Marshall said he did not think abuses of the CETA program were widespread but that "I intend to find out." He described the alleged abuses in Atlanta, Gary, Ind., and New York as "serious enough to look at fully."

Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic denied any illegal actions by the city in the jobs program. However, he said the city agreed to repay the $965,460 allegedly misused, to avoid a fight that would "needlessly take the time" of federal and city employees.

"We have a difference of opinion with the federal government," Bilandic said after Marshall's announcement. "We have not admitted any wrongdoing."

Chicago officials also will no longer participate in the processing of applications for CETA jobs in the city, Marshall said. The Illinois Bureau of Employment Security has been given that job.

Abuses were found in about 250 of the 7,500 CETA jobs filled so far this year, Marshall said. Chicago was allotted $129 million for 15,000 jobs, paying about $10,000 a year.

Marshall said Chicago officials had handed out the 250 jobs as political favors to persons recommended by local politicians instead of allotting them to the unemployed on a first-come basis.

Businessmen Say Government Is Burial Ground for Talent

NEW YORK (AP) - A growing feeling that the federal government is a "national tragedy" is causing many top business executives to forego a stint in Washington, according to a confidential adviser to chairman and presidents.

"They feel it is peopled by bunglers, fools and wasters," said Prof. Eugene Jennings, an authority on corporate management who has advised numerous blue chip executives on career management and job change.

"They say it is preposterous that they, whose careers were shaped under the rules of planning, organization and efficiency, should lend their talent to a behemoth of opposite qualities."

Jennings, a management professor at Michigan State University and author of many books on personnel management and career routes, says he is inclined to feel the same as the executives. "It is a burial ground for careers," he said.

While Jennings, whose clients include some of industry's top names, feels corporate talent stays away from Washington because "they feel it is an obvious loser," several other factors appear to sway their decisions.

Foremost, he believes, is the growing awareness among corporate chairmen and presidents that they "are a crucial element in the remaking of society. They feel the private sector is the productive sector and that more than ever they must be relied upon to produce the goods and services of a better society."

But fear also plays a large role, Jennings adds, in that post-Watergate ethics represent an ideal impossible to live up to. "Few chief executives could pass the test put upon Bert Lance today," he said.

SAVE THE CHESTNUT
WASHINGTON (AP) - The American chestnut tree, nearly wiped out by a fungus blight, may be revived by a new strain of the same parasite, according to Dr. Richard A. Jaynes, an associate geneticist at the Connecticut Agricultural Station in New Haven.

Jaynes thinks there is a good chance that the new "H" (hypovirulent) strain may take over the killer fungus and sap its debilitating powers.

The original fungus was imported from Japan in 1904 along with a few Japanese chestnut trees. It first appeared in the New York City Zoological Garden, then swept across the forests of the eastern United States like a forest fire.

By 1950, little was left of the 9 million acres of American chestnuts.

James says it will take at least two more years of study to know whether the "H" strain is strong enough to overtake the virulent strain and to spread naturally through the forests, but he is hopeful.

VACCINE CUTS POLIO INCIDENCE
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) - No polio cases have been reported in Czechoslovakia since 1960, according to the news agency C.T.K.

Polio vaccinations, begun in this country 20 years ago, are compulsory, but free of charge.

Jennings said his remarks, in an interview, were intended neither to defend nor denounce the embattled budget chief, but simply to illustrate the problem.

The reason, Jennings continued, is that everyone has a skeleton in the closet. "What makes the skeleton uneasy is the door," he said. "There is always a door on the closet and in Washington today everyone is reaching for the knob."

This, he said, is because we live in an "information-rich" and "information-addicted" society, in which there is little respect for privacy.

Jennings said he has found that most chief executive officers will decline to subject their wives and families "to such intense and unethical scrutiny."

But more important than this reason, Jennings believes, is what some executives perceive as another negative, that in the vast tangle of government it is sometimes impossible to effect any significant and lasting change.

He has observed among executives, he said, a growing disrespect for government and government people.

As viewed by the executives, he said, "These bureaucrats are bunglers, stumblers, incompetents. They are becoming more convinced that government is no place for talented people."

Women May Serve In Wartime Army

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Army is conducting a major new study which could result in women serving under fire in a future war, officials say.

The study, the most detailed of its kind ever conducted by the Army, is aimed at establishing how women can fit best into the service structure and how many can be used effectively.

Army officials said Thursday there is no intention to change longstanding policy barring women from a direct combat role - as an infantry soldier, machine-gunner, or member of a tank crew. But they said they are looking at how women might serve in what they call a "combat environment."

As the officials explained the concept, women eventually might be assigned to signal, military police, transportation, maintenance or medical units with a role in the battle zones.

Traditionally, women soldiers have been kept far to the rear in higher headquarters or hospitals, although women nurses sometimes have been exposed to shellfire in past wars.

Meanwhile, leaders of women's organizations appealed to Congress on Thursday for more jobs for women in the armed forces.

Testifying before a Joint Economic Committee panel, they said expanding participation of women in the armed forces would result in greater military effectiveness.

One witness, retired Col. Mary A. Halaren, a former director of the Women's Army Corps, testified that WAC's served in London during World War II bombing raids. "No one ever asked for a transfer to a safe billet," she said.

"There are women, as well as men, who crack under stress, who cannot take pressure, but working with men and women over the last 50 years, both in and out of the Army, has convinced me that it is the individual and not the gender that determines a person's strength under pressure," she said.

The Army study is being carried out in several sections, with most of the results due for consideration next spring by Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Gen. Bernard Rogers, Army chief of staff.

One of the most important tests involves about 200 women who will go into the field with units in Western Europe this month.

...Welcomed by JoAn Dwyer

Three Guest Ballet Artists To Dance in Amphitheatre

Canyon, Texas—Although the summer season is over, the amphitheatre in the Palo Duro Canyon will awaken on September 8, 9, 10 to embrace the dancers of the Lone Star Ballet, some distinguished singers from the Golden Spread and their audience. Tickets are available now at the "Texas" Box Office.

Three dancers from the fame New York City Ballet will join the company for this occasion. They are Lauren Hauser, Lisa Hess, and Jay Jolley.

Lauren Hauser was born in Teaneck, N.J. and began Ballet study at the age of nine at the School of American Ballet in New York City. As a child she danced at New York State Theatre in Balanchine's "Nutracker" and "Harcuinade". In 1974 she danced in Rudolf Nureyev's "Nureyev and Friends" at New York's New Urban Theatre. She danced the lead in "Sleeping Beauty" in 1975. She has been a dancer with the New York City Ballet for three years. This is her first visit to Texas.

Lisa Hess was born in Amarillo and accepted a scholarship at the School of American Ballet in 1973. From there she advanced to the New York City Ballet. Like Miss Hauser, she was chosen for Nureyev's Company. She has danced in the "Nutcracker", "Chaconne", "Four Temperaments", "Union Jack", and "Square Dance". She recently appeared with Jolley and Miss Hauser in the Saratoga Festival in Upper New York State with the New York City Ballet.

Jay Jolley was raised near Salt Lake City, Utah. He studied Ballet at the University of Utah and then joined Ballet West. He auditioned for Balanchine in 1974 and was accepted into the New York City Ballet. Since his move to New York, he has danced many important roles with this prestigious company.

Some of his parts include the lead male dancer in "Fanfare", "Four Temperaments", "Chaconne", and "Dybuk". He has appeared with many other dance companies throughout the U.S.

Jolley, Miss Hauser, and Miss Hess just returned from Nashville, Tenn. where they participated in the New York City Ballet's filming of some Balanchine masterpieces to be shown on national television this fall.

The three dancers from New York will be appearing with eight others who are well known in this area. Matt Sharp and Joe Clark are returning for the occasion from their work with the New York City Ballet and their performances this summer in the Metropolitan Opera House with the Stuttgart Ballet. While still living in Amarillo, they appeared in "Texas" and many other productions.

Two of the dancers appeared in "Texas" this year as did Joe Anderson who has played "Dave Newberry" the past two summers and who won many admirers for his delightful "Music Man" last spring at West Texas State University.

For reservations call 806-655-2182 or write Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015.

There will be priority seating in the Center Section for those who make their reservations early and wish it. These tickets must be picked up before 7:30 p.m. the evening of the performance.

Prices are $3 for everyone in the priority section, $3 for all adults, and $1.50 for children under 12 years in other parts of the theatre.

In case of rain, those holding priority tickets will have space at an indoor performance at the Branding Iron Theatre on the campus of West Texas State University. Since this theatre only holds 300, those who purchase tickets later will have to come another night, or write Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 for a refund.

The Lone Star Ballet Company grew out of an informal association of Amarillo people interested in Ballet. Through their efforts, money was raised for scenery, props and costumes for the "Nutcracker" Ballet which has been produced in marillo for the past five years. The organization was formalized a year ago as the Lone Star Ballet Company and Neil Hess serves as its artistic director.

Hess has taught Ballet in the Panhandle for more than twenty years and has trained the dancers for many of the musicals given in the area during this period. Forty of his pupils now hold positions on the professional stage. After serving as drama teacher at Tascosa High School for many years, Hess has just begun the work of introducing Ballet as a course at West Texas State University.

For air-conditioning efficiency, check the filter, advises Dr. Carolyn McKinney, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "Check periodically for clogging," advises Dr. McKinney. "If necessary, read the owner's manual on how to clean the clogged filter," she says.

Ann Landers Contributions Unappreciated

DEAR ANN: I am the wife of a funeral director in central Illinois. I could never say this to anyone in our town—it would ruin my husband's business—but I think an awful lot of your readers could profit from what I have on my mind.
You wouldn't believe what some people bring in for their loved ones to be buried in. Men's ties with gray stains, wrinkled, soiled shirts, frayed around the collars and cuffs. Dresses with torn seams and in awful condition. Many times I have washed and ironed shirts and sewed on buttons—or used one of my husband's shirts or a blouse of my own in place of what was brought in.
Maybe these people think because the body is going into the ground, it doesn't make any difference what they have on. I am referring to open-casket burials, Ann. Don't they realize friends and family who pay a last farewell notice such things? Sometimes if the death was sudden it's understandable that there wasn't much time to "prepare"—but even then there are at least 24 hours to get a decent outfit together. Just yesterday a woman who had been ill for a year was brought in. When her daughter gave me the burial dress, I was shocked. Please print my letter, Ann. Your column educates a lot of folks and I can tell you they sure do need it.—Mrs. X

DEAR ANN: I am a 15-year-old boy and a high school sophomore. My father rejects me like I was a mistake at birth. I am the youngest of six kids and I don't think they were exactly thrilled when I came along.
When my dad ignores me or criticizes me or curses me out, Mom just sits there and never speaks up. I went to my school counselor and told her about it. She suggested family counseling. I told Mom what the counselor recommended and got no response. I'm afraid to mention it to my dad. He'd probably get real upset with me for "squealing." Where do I go from here?—Repressed in Modesto

DEAR ANN: Your dad sounds like a bully. Your mom is probably afraid of him, just as you are, and this is why she "just sits there."
I doubt that your dad would go for family counseling, but ask your mother if she will go with you. Two out of three is better than nothing. If your mom says no, go back to your school counselor and ask if she will help you sort out your home problems. She sounds like an understanding and able person who could do a lot for you.
DEAR ANN: I've already heard from plenty of men and they all say you're right. So, girls, don't smile—snarl!

Work Break Can Lessen Stress

NEW YORK (AP) — A walk around the block; time out for meditating or reading; lunch hour exercise at a health spa. These are some of the ways business professionals find relief from job stress, reports a registered nurse in the occupational health field.
Interviews conducted by Dawn D. Kinsler, health administrator of Texas Commerce Bank, Houston, revealed individual workers' personal habits played a major role in creating stress, she says. Among them:

PROPERTY ENTERPRISES

Las personas mas importantes para nosotros son "Ustedes" nuestras clientes. Estamos para servirles con seguridad para su automovil, hogar, negocio comercial etc.

Hablenos al 364-6633 de dia y al 364-6465 de noche y fin de semana.

poor dietary habits, elimination of daily breaks from work routine and skipping breakfast or lunch.
Ms. Kinsler, writing in "Occupational Health Nursing," official publication of the American Association of Occupational Health Nurses, suggests a number of ways to reduce excessive work stress.
These include understanding organization objectives, having ready access to superiors, starting a task with adequate facilities and supplies, maintenance of maximum organization and efficiency, a positive attitude toward success of an endeavor, being assertive rather than aggressive and not relying on others for positive self-affirmation.
Weekends with proper rest and good nourishment, leisure time spent with entertainment, sporting events, exercise programs and generally "doing your own thing" were advocated.

AMERICAN GREATNESS WAS BUILT BY FAITH AND HARD WORK

The fact that Labor Day, the last holiday of the summer season, was named in honor of the workers of America is a tribute to their vital role in the building of this nation and our way of life that became a reality through the combined efforts of the men and women of every occupation and cultural heritage. But all their achievements were built on a foundation of faith in God, who gave them the incentive and the ability to perform these feats. Salute their accomplishments by attending your Church and letting your own faith inspire you to join them in the never-ending task of maintaining our standard of living that is unsurpassed anywhere on earth.

"...let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth."
— Ephesians 4:28

Municipal Officials Confident Of Carter Concern for Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) - Municipal officials are expressing confidence that President Carter is committed to a revitalization of the nation's cities and to the notion that civic leaders should have a voice in the formulation of specific programs. But representatives of the National League of Cities, emerging from a closed meeting with Carter administration officials Wednesday, said it is clear the administration does not now have a comprehensive urban assistance program. The officials said, however, they were pleased that the President dropped in on their meeting to reaffirm his commitment to the cities.

Christie Quits Insurance Board; Recommends Woman Replacement

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - State Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie resigned Thursday, saying he wanted to make a decision whether to run for U.S. senator "on my own time, not at the taxpayers' expense." Christie said he would announce in October whether he will make the race, and most observers already view him as a candidate. He leaves the board at a time when several major decisions are pending, including how much to increase car insurance rates. Insurance companies want an average 17.4 per cent increase while the board's private consultant says only 1.8 per cent would be needed. "There will always be some decision pending," said Christie, who recently moved the car insurance question off the board agenda because of reports that companies were making sizeable profits. Christie said he would return to his private law practice, which he maintained in El Paso while a state senator, and would "get more active in the oil business." He said he has several oil interests, including five producing wells in South Texas. Oil and gas price deregulation has been the chief issue of U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels, the only announced Democratic candidate for the Senate seat now held by Republican John Tower. Christie said he was not sure now whether there were any energy questions on which he and Krueger would differ. He expressed optimism about his changes against Krueger. "The Christie Committee tells me things look good and that there is strong grassroots support for my candidacy," Christie said. He said he had suggested to Gov. Dolph Briscoe that he replace him with a woman. A chairman, he said should be a lawyer with some trial experience, since "our hearing are virtually non-jury trials." The committee chairman also should be a strong personality who can stand between feuding board members Durwood Manford and Ned Price. "My experience with women is that they have strong natures...I believe there are women in Texas who meet those requirements," Christie said. Summarizing his four years on the board, Christie said it had been able to cut its budget by $1.7 million. "We have closed the loopholes and eliminated the fine print in accident and health insurance policies, making the board a truly consumer-oriented agency," he said. Christie said he was confident Briscoe would name a new chairman quickly and that Price, who voted with him on virtually every major issue, would continue having a "consumer-oriented" outlook. Christie has urged Briscoe to replace Manford, whose term expired seven months ago, but all indications are that Manford will get another six-year term.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the congressional Black Caucus, who also met privately with Carter, said he believes that "obviously there has been neglect" of blacks by the administration. Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., said Carter agreed to meet with all members of the caucus next Tuesday to listen to their "areas of concern." Some black and urban officials have stepped up their criticism of the administration, contending that Carter has not given sufficient attention to the problems of the cities. Carter told the city representatives "to hang in there with him" in devising an urban strategy, said Mrs. Phyllis Lamphere of Seattle, president of the municipal league. She said the President spent 10 minutes "reaffirming his commitment to a national urban policy." Mrs. Lamphere also said Carter acknowledged that the administration's movement on urban problems so far has been "at a slower pace than he might have hoped." There were these other developments Wednesday: --Carter called for strict enforcement of the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, saying the move would lower traffic fatality rates and save the nation between eight and nine million gallons of fuel a day. --The White House acknowledged that through an oversight the Carter campaign committee failed to pay for rides by candidate Jimmy Carter on corporate and state-owned planes during a swing through the Carolinas in April 1975. But Doug Huron, a White House attorney, said the estimated $1,000 bill is being paid. --It was announced that the President will campaign next month for Democratic gubernatorial candidates in New Jersey and Virginia.

Why Is Being A Girl So Important?

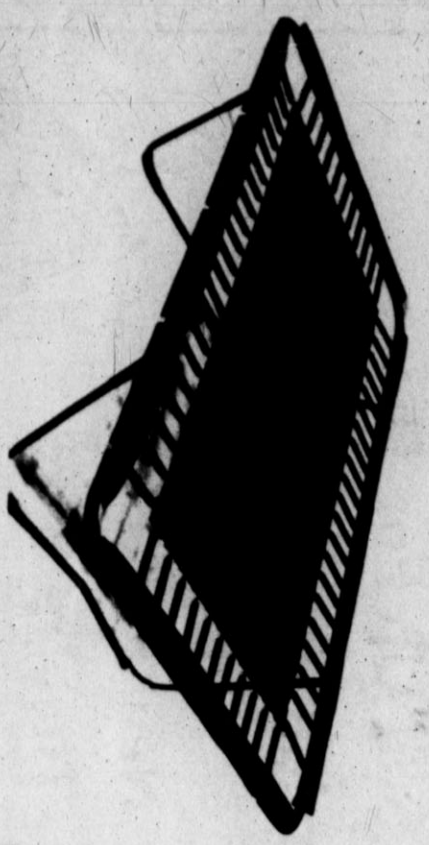

When 10-year-old Angela Haas put on her jersey and her helmet, she looked just "like one of the guys" and that's the way she says they treated her. Last year was 10-year Angela's first year on the all-boy team.

"I didn't know being a girl was so important," one of Angela Haas's teammates told The Mini Page. He had seen us taking her picture and asking her questions.

Being a girl is important... especially when the girl is a football player. Angela played third string right guard and left tackle.

Q. What did she like best about football?

A. "Tackling them."

Q. What did the other teams think about playing against a team with a girl on it?

A. "They didn't realize I was a girl."

Q. Are you going to play again?

A. "No, just one season. It was rough."

Q. What is your favorite football team?

A. "The Miami Dolphins."

Football is not Angela's only interest. For two years she played on a Little League baseball team. She took this past summer off to study art. She also likes skateboarding. And soccer is another favorite sport.

Draw a line to the part in this story that is about these pictures!

Who Was Pop Warner?

Pop Warner has been called the greatest college football coach of all time. He coached for 45 years and had 316 wins. He invented the body block, the three- and four-point stance and many other football firsts. He also started putting numbers on players' jerseys, so fans could tell who they were. He also wanted his players to be good students, too.

Pop Warner lived from 1871 to 1954.

Pop Warner Football

There are 6000 teams across the country that play Pop Warner football. Kids from 8 to 15 can play. What team they play on is decided by their weight and age. Big players can't play against smaller ones. The teams are broken into age and weight groups called: Tinytot, Junior Peeewe, Peeewe, Junior Midget, Midget, Junior Bantam and Bantam. Kids often travel to bowl games. Using the "buddy" system, they stay in the homes of the opposing team. Girls can play, too.

In 1929, Joe Tomlin asked Pop Warner if he could name a junior league football program after him. Pop Warner said he could. Mr. Tomlin is president of Pop Warner Little Scholars, the company that owns the Little League program.
