Senators Request Vance's Resignation

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says there's not much use in trying to be dignified if dignity is no part of your character.

If you expect perfection from people, your whole life is a series of disappointments, grumbings and complaints. If, on the other hand, you pitch your expectations low, taking folks as the inefficient creatures which they are, you are frequently surprised by having them perform better than you had hoped.

WITH THE FOOTBALL season underway, you can count on the new car "fever" to hit before long. The new models, the '78s, will be out in the next few weeks and folks are already talking about the "smaller" new cars the American public will apparently have to live with in the years to come.

IF YOU THINK the controls of the federal government over energy, water, autos, poverty, and re-distribution of wealth is leading us down a one-way street, a feller named William W. Clark agrees with you.

Writing for the Butane Propane News, Clark carries the current administration policies to their natural extension in 1984 and beyond and comes up with a new version of a "Midsummer Nightmare" following is his fable.

It was sometime after 1984, but if the exact date is a bit hazy in the mind the events of that year are definitely not. They stand out in the mind's eye brilliant and clear.

The energy crisis was well into its second decade, and although the supply of gasoline had dropped back to the 1922 level, the President's master plan for energy had succeeded in redistributing the wealth from the middle classes into the hands of illegal aliens.

The plan had actually been fiendishly clever: the gasoline tax, which had risen to $7.95 a gallon, was being returned to families at the rate of up to $10,000 per person. Anyone having no car at all was entitled to the maximum.

This had naturally attracted large numbers of illegal aliens with large (See HEREFORD BULL, Page 2)

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is resisting efforts to get Bert Lance to resign as White House budget director, despite warnings that by two leading senators that serious new allegations about Lance's financial affairs have been uncovered.

At a White House meeting Monday, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., told Carter the new allegations are "of such a serious nature" that Lance should step down before trying to defend himself.

But it was learned that Carter and Lance will not consider a resignation at this point. The President, it became known, still feels Lance has done nothing wrong and will be vindicated by the committee's investigation.

Ribicoff and Percy are ranking members of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, which confirmed Lance as budget director. The committee and two other congressional panels are investigating Lance's activities as the head of two Georgia banks before Carter appointed him to head the Office of Management and Budget last January.

Among those scheduled to testify before the governmental affairs panel was Robert Bloom, who had been acting comptroller of the currency and had praised Lance before the committee during confirmation hearings. He reportedly planned to testify that he had not mentioned that he knew of Lance's financial problems, because he had assumed senators had been told about them by White House aides.

The senators declined Monday to tell reporters what new information their staffs had uncovered about Lance's financial affairs, but Percy called for appointment of a special prosecutor to handle the investigation.

Ribicoff planned to brief the committee on the new allegations today as a House banking subcommittee was asking banking examiners how thoroughly they investigated Lance when he was first confirmed.

Ribicoff had been a staunch defender of the budget director after previous inquiries into his finances. After hearings in July he asserted that Lance had been "smeared" by the press.

But Ribicoff told reporters Monday: "I think it would be wiser for Bert Lance to resign. I don't think Bert Lance can be an effective budget director while this is going on."

The only official White House comment on the Monday statements by the two senators was that the President appreciates their plans to begin hearings without delay.

Lance had no comment, but Ribicoff said he understands Lance is determined to remain in office and feels he has been maligned.

Comptroller of the Currency John G. Heimann cleared Lance of any crimes in a report to the committee Aug. 18. But Heimann has said his investigation did find unsafe and unsound - although legal - banking practices.

The congressional investigations center on bank overdrafts by Lance and his family, Lance's pledge of the same collateral for separate loans at different banks, his personal use of bank aircraft and whether he fully disclosed his investment holdings at his confirmation hearings.

Hereford Raises $10,000 For Jerry Lewis Telethon

Through a concerted community effort, more than $10 thousand was raised here over the Labor Day weekend for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon.

More than half of this Hereford total was collected Sunday afternoon in Dameron Park, during a Carnival for Muscular Dystrophy, sponsored by Hereford Elks Lodge. Kenny and Karren Ruland directed that carnival, which amassed approximately $5,400. That sum is almost $2 thousand more than the amount raised at last year's MD Carnival.

More than 50 volunteers received $5 thousand in door-to-door and telephone pledges for the MD Association. Approximately 30 more Hereford citizens served as block captains during the residential-collection and manned the telephones at Knights of Columbus Hall, headquarters for this year's MD campaign.

Robert Diller, local MD chairman, expressed gratitude to all volunteer workers and contributors for their support in the fight against muscular dystrophy. Directing the house-to-house collection was St. Anthony's Women's Organization.

On an area level, KFDA-TV reported more than $107 thousand donated to MDA from the tri-state area. Nationally, Jerry Lewis earned a staggering $26 million for "his kids" in a 21 1/2 hour telethon which was beamed to 200 stations.

Glad He's Back in School

Albert Cervantez, age 6, an Aikman Elementary first grader, doesn't seem to mind that the Labor Day weekend is over as he gets off the school bus this morning to return to classes. Probably not all of Hereford's students shared Albert's enthusiasm. School officials expect to release attendance figures for each of the nine schools later this week. (Brand photo by Paul Sims)

Hypnosis Aids McPherson in Sheriff Duties

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Travis McPherson probably knew more about the Travelling Rapist, who terrorized Texas Panhandle women for two years, than anybody else.

He knew the rapist's face, his approximate age, his height and weight, even his mannerism. He learned it all through hypnosis, a new and effective tool being incorporated by law enforcement agencies all over the country.

McPherson, Deaf Smith County Sheriff, hypnotized victims - those who were not killed after getting raped - and witnesses. About 15 in all.

"This was a tremendous challenge. It became an obsession - I'd work day and night on that guy. The procedure would be to get information from victims and witnesses through hypnosis.

"Some of the people were hypnotized three or four times."

Details of each incident of terror were remembered by the victims. In some cases, reliving the incidents was too traumatic for the women, causing McPherson, one of two certified law-enforcing hypnotists in Texas, to use a different technique.

"If they suffered a lot of trauma I'd put them in third person. They would become a television reporter and they'd see this scene through the eyes of a camera."

Though McPherson grew to know the rapist, he did not hate him.

"You really get to feeling an identity with him. I never hated the man; I just began to know everything about this guy. Except who he is."

Through the unusual work of McPherson and Jim LaFavers of the Amarillo Police Department, the other certified hypnotist in the state, and a break by Amarillo police, a suspect, Samuel Christopher Hawkins, is in jail today, charged with two murders and several rapes.

McPherson produced a composite drawing of the rapist, created while one of the victims was under hypnosis. He then compared it to a photo of Hawkins. The pictures were nearly identical.

McPherson and LaFavers were certified by the behavioral science department of the Los Angeles Police Department in 1976.

McPherson, Deaf Smith County's sheriff since 1970, said that hypnosis is not widely accepted yet in law enforcement circles but its popularity is growing.

"It's such a new technique in law enforcement. I think it got kicked off with the Chowchilla bus kidnaping (1976). They hypnotized most of the kids and the bus driver."

McPherson received requests from throughout the state and often from out of Texas to hypnotize witnesses to crimes. One of the most unusual requests was earlier this year in Amarillo.

Two men, dressed in military uniforms and wearing black-rimmed glasses, plastic noses and fake mustaches, held up a hardware store, taking $18,000 in cash.

McPherson hypnotized a salesman, who during the crime did not realize the robbers' noses were fake.

"They didn't realize they had all this on. They just thought these guys were extremely ugly."

Under hypnosis, the salesman remembered one of the men pulled his phony nose off.

"We were able to get a real good description of these people."

Hypnosis isn't limited to crime solving (See MCPHERSON, Page 2)

Legionnaires Disease Discovered in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The appearance of Legionnaires disease in Columbus late this summer has health officials speculating that a link may exist between weather and the infection that killed 29 persons in Philadelphia last year.

Dr. Ian Baird, director of the infectious diseases at Riverside Hospital where all four confirmed cases were admitted, said the disease's recent history indicated it becomes active in late summer.

So far the disease has claimed the life of Catherine M. McCoy, 56, of Columbus, who died Aug. 6. Three other women, including one who recovered was released Friday, are confirmed victims.

One other person, a 65-year-old woman, remains in serious condition at

Commissioners

Purchase Pickups

Deaf Smith County Commissioners, in special session this morning, approved the purchase of two pickups for Precinct 4.

Commissioners studied bids from three local automotive dealers. Low bids were accepted from Orval Watson Ford in the amount of $3,541 and from Pratt Chevrolet in the amount of $2,890.11.

The amounts were not differences after trade-ins. A 1970 Chevrolet pickup was traded in on the new 1/2-ton Chevrolet pickup. The county also received bids from Stagner-Orsborn GMC.

There was no other business on the agenda for the special session, which was held at 10 a.m. today. The court's regular meetings are on the second and fourth Mondays of the month.

the hospital with symptoms of the disease, but a final diagnosis is not expected from the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta for at least a week.

Baird said his research shows there were late summer outbreaks of pneumonia-like deaths in Pontiac, Mich., and Washington, D.C., before the infection was isolated when 29 of about 180 persons stricken with the disease died during or after an American Legion convention in Philadelphia July 21-24, 1976.

He said blood samples saved by "far-sighted health officials" in Michigan and Washington show an antibody that is the same as those found in the blood of the Philadelphia and Columbus victims.

He said the appearance of the disease in Columbus lends more credence to the theory that the weather may increase the activity of the yet unnamed organism labeled as the cause of the disease, often undetected because its symptoms are similar to those of pneumonia.

"Really with Mrs. McCoy, we didn't know it was Legionnaires disease," Baird said. "She had rapidly progressing pneumonia and was only sick about a week. An autopsy didn't show the disease."

"But then 10 days later, a second case - an honest-to-God identical case - was seen and we called the Ohio Department of Health and sent blood from the second case to the CDC. We sent lung tissue from the first victim. A few days later we knew what it was," Baird said.

Although he will admit there may have been earlier undetected cases of the

Amin To Execute 12 for Conspiracy

SAIGON, Korea (AP)—Twelve persons sentenced to death by a military tribunal in Kampuchea for conspiring to overthrow President Pol Pot will be executed in public Friday, Uganda Radio announced today.

Amin previously signed the order for execution by firing squad of the former ruling government and military officials, the radio said in broadcasts broadcast last week. The court issued its sentence on Monday.

The radio said the public executions will be held under a dark tower on the grounds of Kampuchea at 5 p.m. Friday and will be photographed by authorized personnel. Officers attempting to photograph the executions will do so at their own risk, the radio added.

High School Junior Kills Black, Self

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A 17-year-old white high school junior who turned a 30-caliber rifle on a crowd of blacks at a Labor Day picnic, killing one man and wounding three others before killing himself, was "daffy about Wood War II," one of his teachers said.

Police withheld the identity of the gunman who fired at more than 200 picnickers Monday while they were on an annual gathering at the Jonestown African Methodist Episcopal Church.

But the Charlotte Observer today identified the youth as Kenneth Wilson, 17, who attended East Mecklenburg High School.

Apparatuses of the youth verified the gunman's identity.

Mecklenburg County police said the gunman stood about 40 feet from a softball field where some of the picnickers were playing and began firing the carbine without warning about 1 p.m.

3 Masked Gunmen Slay 5 Diners

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Chinatown residents, usually uncooperative with police, are providing leads in what is being called by investigators the worst mass murder case in the city's history.

The slaying of five persons and the wounding of 11 others at a Chinese restaurant.

Three masked men believed sitting at a table in the restaurant fired a submachine gun, shotgun and pistol into the crowded Golden Dragon restaurant at 2:40 a.m. Sunday police said.

They left the crime scene with their arms and legs and some of the victims had something to do with a gang, authorities said.

"We're getting feedback from people in Chinatown," homicide Lt. Don Murphy said Monday. "Some people are coming forward."

Voyager's Sister Has No Problems

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—After weeks of grappling with malfunctions aboard Voyager 2, engineers have sent its sister ship toward the outer limit of the solar system and beyond with a near perfect launch.

It was a perfect flight in terms of getting everything where I wanted to go," said Andy Stefan, director of launch vehicles.

The Titan Centaur rocket, being used for the last time in the space program, blasted off from Cape Canaveral, Fla., with Voyager 2 precisely on schedule at 8:56 a.m. Monday belching orange flame and scattering birds and wildlife.

The first stage was ignited less than two minutes later and shortly afterward the 1,820-pound spacecraft entered orbit at 12,480 miles per hour.

Police Report

A 25-year-old Dimmitt man was in serious condition at Deaf Smith General Hospital this morning following a 12:50 a.m. shooting at the Waiting Well, 2nd and Main.

Archie Cortman, 24 of 407 1/2 Grant was charged with aggravated assault following the shooting of Pablo Adams of the Dimmitt Labor Camp. Adams was stabbed in the stomach area following an argument at the dance hall.

James Brunes Jr., 34 Bradford was arrested by Hereford police Saturday and charged with felony possession of marijuana.

Police searched Brunes car in front of his house and found 12 bags and one package of the alleged drug.

Hert's Moving Laundry, 104 Park reported that three coin-operated machines were broken into and about $50 was taken early Saturday morning.

Jeff Murray, 74 S. 25 Mile Ave reported the theft of a green felt cowboy hat from his pickup between 1 and 1 1/2 p.m. Thursday.

Police investigated traffic accidents Monday.

Weather

West Texas—Mostly fair north partly cloudy south with widely scattered showers and thunderstorms today and tonight. Warmer south today. Mostly fair Wednesday except widely scattered thunderstorms extreme southwest in the afternoon.

Published in the May 4, 1977 issue of the Federal Register, the final regulations are effective now for every institution that receives federal monies. Few colleges or universities are excluded.

Some, however, like The University of Texas at Austin, are prepared better than others to meet the requirements.

Since the 1964-73 academic year specific appropriations have been placed in the University's budget to remove architectural barriers on campus. To date $65,000 has been appropriated in this line item and another $100,000 was included in the budget for 1977.

That doesn't include money used to remodel older buildings, for the sums spent on new construction. Every building constructed within past seven years has been built with the handicapped in mind. That includes new buildings that will be widely used by students—the Perry-Castaneda Library, the Texas Olympic Swimming Center, the new Special Events Center, Welch Hall addition which will have many general classrooms and many more.

Nevertheless, said Dr. Ronald M. Brown, vice president for administrative services, "for everything we do, we think of that we have done a handicapped person can show us what we have done."

Dr. Brown has been designated the coordinator as the law required for a campus-wide compliance program. It is his business to be aware of all the ramifications of the regulations and to see that they are implemented.

In addition to an ongoing program of structural changes in buildings other problems are being tackled to make the program accessible.

For example, last spring every elevator on campus was equipped with metal strips embossed with raised numbers and letters and also Braille numbers and letters indicating floor numbers and other messages important in the use of an elevator.

This summer the "don assignment" for a class was moved from the second floor to the first in one of the campus buildings so a handicapped person could attend.

Other areas, however, that need attention are not necessarily structural barriers, Dr. Brown noted. Teaching must be considered also.

"I sometimes unwittingly lecture to the blackboard," he remarked. "Many teachers do. When I have someone in my class who is deaf and must read lips, I will have to change."

New programs, too, may have to be instituted. For example, Steve Carrier, a handicapped graduate student working with the dean of students office on organizing activities for the handicapped, wants to see whether wheelchair basketball games started.

Handicapped people need physical activity, too," he noted.

Such programs are not unprecedented. The University of Illinois has a longstanding program of wheelchair sports.

According to Dr. Brown, the administration and the university as a whole are sympathetic with the regulations. "I have not talked to anyone at any level who is not supportive of the objectives of the law," he said.

That does not eliminate, however, concerns connected with the cost. How fast the rules must be implemented and some contradictions in the regulations, Dr. Brown noted.

"Costs will be substantial" to implement all the regulations within the three-year period, he observed. In addition to the cost of removing structural barriers, special equipment such as talking calculators or magnifying readers may have to be purchased and special aides hired. In South Carolina, Converse College was ordered by a court to hire a sign interpreter for a deaf student.

Although all facilities do not have to be accessible for three years, all programs must be accessible now, Dr. Brown said.

There is one other problem, Dr. Brown said, that has not yet

Water District Directors Hire Special Consultant

Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District have hired a special consultant to study the operation and responsibilities of the organization.

The directors took the action in an apparent attempt to beef up board control of district business, following the recent resignation of High Plains manager Frank Rayner.

Rayner's resignation was apparently prompted by pressure from the board.

Walter Wyatt, an engineering and water consultant from Austin, will recommend long-range goals for the district, following board guidelines.

The water district includes 15 counties in the South Plains and in the Panhandle.

A study of the district responsibilities to taxpayers will be a primary area of attention while the district's role in public education on water conservation will also be examined.

An evaluation of the present staff and establishing long-range budget goals will also be included in the study.

The study by Wyatt should require about two months, and Cliff Thompson, in charge of the permit section, will serve as head of staff at the district's Lubbock office during that time.

Wyatt will consult with state and local officials during the course of his study and will submit his recommendations to the board in a written report.

The board members announced plans to advertise statewide for a new manager, but indicated no inclination to rush the search.

Written applications for the manager's position have already been received from Don Smith, the district's current head geologist; Duncan Ellison, who currently heads the Lubbock-based Water Inc.; Richard Wright of Lubbock, an air force retiree; and Bernie Parkey, a Floydada farmer.

At The Library

Doctor Studies Death

The mysterious question of "Is there life after death?" is brought to light in one of the two books suggested this week at the Deaf Smith County Library.

"Life After Life" by Dr. Raymond A. Moody, Jr. is a book which tells people who have been medically dead and yet at the same time could see themselves, those who surrounded them and were aware of everything that was going on.

Oliver's Story, by Erich Segal is also another book which has been suggested for reading by the local library. The fictional sequel pertains to the years after the tragic death of Oliver's wife and how he one day meets another by accident.

Deaf Smith County Library is open free to the public from 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. Monday and Thursday; from 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. other weekdays and until noon Saturday.

LIFE AFTER LIFE

by Dr. Raymond A. Moody, Jr. There may be the hope that our "Doubting Thomas" nature has sought for centuries. To most, death is an unpleasant subject-full of unanswerable questions which tend to almost raise the hair on the back of one's neck. Yet death is the ultimate culmination of life; no matter how it is dealt with, there is no escape - except to another different, and perhaps better, existence.

Thanatology - the study of death and dying - was once the domain of philosophers and clergy; yet today, increasing numbers of medical professionals are learning more about the experience of death through revelations similar to those in this trail-blazing investigation.

The Common phenomena experienced by those who have been revived from clinical death and, until now, have been reluctant to relate this experience for fear of ridicule, are significantly portrayed for all who will admit there is such a possibility.

Dr. Moody has isolated fifteen points of commonality in the experience of those he has interviewed - from the "black tunnel (or void)" to "my life flashing by," and including the meeting of an intense light radiating love and security.

Club president Mrs. Terry Johnson directed an informal business session, during which members discussed plans for a Country Christmas Bazaar, scheduled Nov. 5 at the Community Center. Further details will be announced at a later date in hopes that other clubs and individuals will participate.

Mrs. Richard Patzig was welcomed as a new member by others in attendance, including Mmes. Gaylon Bryan, Bill Bookout, James Perkins, Thad Keyes, Johnson, Carlton Richardson and Grave Covington.

The HD club's next meeting is scheduled at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 15 in the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service.

Conclusions about a "new life" are left to the readers. The author does present a believable, unemotional analysis which points surly to hope, and the need for a continuing study of the life-ending phenomena.

For all who might question his methods or motives, Dr. Moody asks, then answers questions regarding both his methodology and the reliability of his research. In order for the reader to better evaluate the validity of the investigation, the author has included biographical information in the Foreword: "If you don't know where I've been, how do you know where I'm coming from?"

While of value to those professionals who must counsel the dying, this exploration of life after life signals a new beginning rather than an end for every human being.

OLIVER'S STORY

by Erich Segal Jenny Cavilleri's death was the tragic climax of LOVE STORY. Now, two years later, her husband, Oliver, is still unable to come to terms with his guilt and grief. All around him friends go on with the joyous experience of living. But he exists in a void.

Until one day, by accident, he meets an unusual woman whose personal life is veiled in mystery. Oliver's search to find out who she is becomes a quest for his own emotional identity: to find out who he is.

Plainview Fills Craft Fair Booths

All of the available 124 booths at the Running Water Draw Arts and Crafts Festival has been filled, according to its director, Rob Strong. The third annual Festival is scheduled for October 14-16 at the Hale County Agriculture Center in Plainview.

Co-sponsored by the Plainview Rotary Club and Llando Estacado Museum, the Festival has attracted almost 150 talented artists and craftsmen from Texas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma.

These artists and craftsmen represent many media including painting, sculpture, weaving, pottery, glassblowing, eggery, quilting, photography, wood-working, and quilting, among others. Many of them will be giving demonstrations of their art or craft form during the Festival.

The Festival will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and from 12 noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $1 for adults and $.25 for students. Proceeds from the Festival benefit the Museum and various Rotary projects in the community.

The Festival last year attracted almost 30,000 people. A capacity crowd is also expected this year.

Rex Allen Impressed By WT Rehab Center

ABILENE--Country and western singer Rex Allen said he was "impressed" on the West Texas Rehabilitation Center (WTRC) here the first time he saw the facility back in the early 60's.

"I was doing a rodeo in San Antonio," Allen recalled, "when Shelley Smith (executive director of the WTRC), called me and said he wanted to show me something in Abilene. I visited the center on my way home and told Shelley: 'Whatever you want me to do, I'll do'--because I was sold."

What impressed Allen? "For one thing, the kind of work they were doing and the fine quality of it," he said. "What especially impressed me about this operation though was the fact that such a large percentage of the money collected goes directly to serving handicapped patients. I've been involved with several other charities where this has not been the case."

About 80 cents out of every dollar donated to the WTRC goes to direct patient services, according to an independent auditing firm. The remaining 20 cents finances administration and fund-raising costs.

What Smith wanted Allen to do was star in the center's first telethon--now, 14 years later, one of the WTRC's major money-making events.

"The first year," Allen said, "the stage was set up outside. I brought one fiddle player with me, and a couple of hours before we were supposed to start, I told Shelley we needed to practice with the band."

"What band?" he said. "You're it!" So he played the entire six hours all by ourselves."

Allen has been in every telethon since that first one in 1963, and last year's donations totalled $325,000.

"This is a really special place to me," Allen said.

Ann Landers Pantyhose Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since your column is the world's bulletin board for gripes, both pretty and grand, may I have my say.

What man would tolerate socks that had to be replaced every week or ten days? You would think an industry that can produce fabrics and fibres for the moon could come up with a no-run stocking for women.

We like nylons. We feel undressed without them. But as long as women keep buying this inferior product the manufacturers will think it's what we want. Well it's not what we want. We want some wear for our money.

Where does one start? Ann Landers? Ralph Nader? The Better Business Bureau? Perhaps since nylon is a petroleum byproduct and tons of it go into the weekly trash cans across America, we should write to our Congressmen. Or do we ask the Japanese to come up with something better?--Irked

DEAR IRKED: Haven't your heart of "planned obsolescence"? It's the simple technique of putting things together so they will fall apart and have to be replaced.

I assure your American fabric companies already know how to make run-resistant nylons for women, but why kill the goose that lays all those golden eggs?

Are you willing to go barelegged as a protest? I'm not. So stuck is stuck--and that's what we are.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Next year our parents will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. They are very big on outward appearances--highly social. The world thinks they are so charming and refined. But the truth is they are a pair of House Devils. The never-ending carping at each other kept our family in constant turmoil. My sister and I left home as soon as it was legal to do so. Whenever we go to see our parents we can count on a ruined day. The fighting is incessant. The demands they make on each other, and on us, are terrible.

Now they are beginning to talk about the upcoming anniversary. They want a huge party. My sister and I don't see how we could give a party to celebrate such a phony relationship. May we hear from you?--Big Brother

DEAR BROTHER: What do you want to hear from me? If you and your sister don't want to give your parents a party for their 50th wedding anniversary--don't do it. I suspect you'll have some guilt over this--and that's the problem that needs to be resolved.

DEAR ANN: A recent letter sounds like my mother wrote it. It contained her favorite word three times. "Prestige."

She is always on my back because my friends have no

"prestige." Dad's associates have no "prestige." Even our parish priest doesn't have it.

Mom knows Dad has a lady on the side. We guessed it because Mom and Dad have had separate bedrooms for two years. Mom thinks this is "prestige."

Their marriage is a farce but they stay together "for us kids." We wish they'd split. What can we do? (P.S. What does prestige mean anyway?--Us'uns

DEAR US: You can do nothing. It's between the two principals.

Prestige means "one's standing in the eyes of other people--reputation." Buy Mom a dictionary for Christmas or her birthday -- whichever comes first.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

One of the most personal experiences I've shared with readers over the past 13 years was the occasion of sending my last child to school.

Boy, how I had lusted for that day. I was going to have all my stomach muscles back by lunch, go to the bathroom without locking the door, pull the shades and sing duets with Barbra Streisand, and burn my maternity clothes. (The statute of limitations had run out and I had won!)

But there was no exhilaration in my victory, watching "the baby" sit pathetically at the curb. I thought of the woman he was going to--Miss Chalkdust, or whatever. And I wrote "Miss Chalkdust, give him patience and gentleness. Please have a soft lap and a warm smile. I submit to your tender, loving care my son who is a little shy and a lot stubborn. Who can't cope yet with zippers that stick or buttons on sweaters that don't come out even. One who makes his Ss sideways and doesn't know B-O-Y-S from G-I-R-L-S on the door. I may sue you for alienation of affection but for the moment, God bless you."

Those small, pathetic, scared children who are sitting out on the curbs this morning for the first time don't have their own column. If they did, they might confess that they didn't have breakfast this morning because they couldn't swallow. They didn't sleep well last night. They're afraid. Afraid they'll get lost. Afraid they'll goof up. Afraid they'll look different. Afraid they'll be called upon. Afraid they won't find the straw for their milk. Afraid they'll lose their lunch money. Afraid they won't get to the restroom on time--or ever. Afraid someone will laugh at their name. Afraid they won't find a friend. Afraid the wind will blow their papers out of their hands. Afraid of you.

One of the most poignant insights into a child's venture into education comes from a book written by Albert Cullum called "The Geranium On The Window Sill Just Died But Teacher You Went Right On." It deals with an insensitivity of the feelings of children and what they are going through. This is one of my favorites.

"I have a messy desk,
 I have milk money that rolls,
 I have a lazy pencil,
 a book that won't open,
 a mouth that whispers,
 I have a zipper that doesn't want to,
 homework that won't work,
 and a hand that throws crayons.
 I have a shirt that's out,
 shoelaces that won't tie.
 And sometimes I wet my pants--
 but never on purpose."
 Miss Chalkdust...this is a day for all the love you have to give.

Area Grid Squads Open With Success

By BOB NIGH
Brand Sports Editor

District 4-4A and 3-4A football teams opened the 1977 season with reasonable success last week, with seven of the ten schools grabbing wins in the first outing.

In 4-4A, Hereford's own Whitefaces surprised Pampa 31-20, while overwhelming favorite Monterey squeaked by Canyon 7-0 and Plainview clipped Estacado 15-6. District 3-4A winners included Palo Duro, 49-15 over Dumas; Amarillo High, 16-6 over Odessa; Tascosa, 14-7 over Midland Lee; and Caprock, 14-7 over Odessa Ector.

Lubbock High and Coronado suffered setbacks among 4-4A teams with the Westerners embarrassed by Berger 42-14 and the Mustangs a 12-0 victim to Wichita Falls.

Pampa was the sole 3-4A squad to lose in the setback to the 'Faces.

In Hereford's confidence-builder quarterback Kelly Kitchens directed the 'Faces to 380 total yards while passing for 151 markers in a nine for 12 performance. Junior tailback Paul Bell decimated the Harvester defense for 153 yards rushing and three touchdowns.

The Herd defense allowed 20 points, but the coaching staff saw a few question marks in the stage of being answered. Linebacker Charles Reyna and safety Jackie Mercer picked off Pampa passes in the fray, and Balen Ramirez fell on one fumble and an onside kick, while Mercer found another Pampa fumble.

Lubbock High opened the season Thursday night in the 42-14 shocker loss to Berger. The Bulldogs broke open a close game with two quick touchdowns in the final minute of the first half to take a 21-7 lead.

Richard Horn tallied three TDs for the winners as Berger outgained Lubbock 380-166, all but 80 of those markers came on the ground.

Friday night Monterey came up against an always tough Canyon Eagle squad and barely escaped with a 7-0 decision. Ron Reeves broke over from the one in the third period for the game's only score.

The talented Palinsmen signal caller set up the score with a 20-yard burst that went to the Eagle five. As can be expected by the score, defense dominated the game with Canyon amassing but 127 yards offensively and Monterey held to 269.

"I'm embarrassed," Monterey coach John Odum was quoted as saying following the contest. "I just didn't think we got after it like we should have. I'm most disappointed in the lack of consistency and the fact we didn't play with emotion."

On the other hand Canyon coach Deane Wright was elated. "Our kids played with great spirit and showed great courage," he said.

In Plainview Jay Miller and Billy Williams each tallied one touchdown as the Bulldogs upset District 3-3A favorite Estacado 15-6. The matadors amassed but 78 yards offensively while running up 183 themselves.

Williams, and Royce Coleman, led the way for the winners with 42 yards rushing each. Quarterback Jamie McAlister showed his firepower with a 10-yard scoring toss to Miller.

Wichita Falls' Richard Barns clipped the Coronado Mustang defense for 167 yards on 22 totes.

as the Coyotes clipped Coronado 12-0 at Lowrey Field Friday night.

The 225-pound Coyote tailback rushed for 85 yards in the first half, 21 of those on one play as he scored the first TD of the game on a fourth-and-two play at the Mustang 21.

He got his second score of the night on a 45-yard sprint as the final period began. With the 12 point bulge, Wichita Falls fell back on its defense, which did not allow the Mustangs a first down in the second half.

In games this week Lubbock and Coronado try for their initial wins against Estacado and Dunbar respectively. Monterey hosts Odessa Permian Saturday, while Palo Duro visits the Herd and Plainview tests Tascosa in Amarillo Friday.

Shipp Weighs Anchor; Leads

Joyce Shipp's sails were full last week as she correctly predicted 20 of 26 winners in the initial Fearless Forecasters Panel. Mrs. Shipp leads her four male counterparts in the contest with Brand sports editor Bob Nigh one guess behind with a 19-7 mark.

Publisher Speedy Nieman is third with a 17-9 mark, while Craig Nieman posted a 16-10 record the first week and Paul Sims brought up the rear with a 15-11 mark.

Mrs. Shipp outguessed the entire panel on the Tascosa win over Midland, the Caprock win over Odessa Ector, and the Levelland conquest of Brownfield. She incorrectly picked Pampa over Hereford, however, as did Sims.

All of the panel suffered one miss when Andrews and Big Spring played to a 14-14 tie. They were also unanimously wrong in picking West Texas over Wichita State and Tulsa over SW Louisiana.

Mrs. Shipp's other misses were the Wichita Falls win over Coronado and the Phillips win over Canadian. Nigh was amiss in picking Coronado as did the entire panel excepting the elder Nieman and Sims.

Craig Nieman missed two upset bids when El Paso Bowie dropped a 13-8 game to Dunbar and Friona was clipped by Floydada 14-7. Speedy Nieman and Sims also lost out picking Guyman, Oklahoma over Dalt, a 20-0 victor.

The consensus column finished just behind Nigh and ahead of Speedy Nieman with an 18-8 mark. The group's collective favorites which fell included West Texas, Tulsa, Coronado, Midland, Odessa Ector, Brownfield, Andrews (tie), and Canadian.

A total of 189 entries were received for the first week's contest, the first of 13 such contests this season. The season prize again this year is $100 for first place.

Marsh Claims First Weekly Grid Prize

Karen Marsh got a good start in this year's football contest, winning the top prize of $25 the first week on the basis of her tiebreaker guess. Mrs. Marsh missed six games on the initial contest, the same number of miscues as five others, but won the top prize with a guess of 42 on the tie breaker guess of the total points Hereford and Pampa would score. The Herd and Harvesters totaled 51 points in their game.

Tying for second the first week were Alan Wartes and Jimmie R. George of Dimmitt, who also missed six games and had the breaker guesses of 36. Jeri Bezner claimed third place with six misses and a guess of 28.

George and Wartes will split the second place prize of $15, while Bezner will receive $10 for third place.

Marsh missed the West Texas loss to Wichita State as did the other three winners. She did predict the SW Louisiana win over Tulsa, however. All of the group missed the Andrews-Big Spring tie, while Marsh, George, and Bezner missed the Plainview win over Estacado. Marsh and Wartes missed the Tascosa win over Midland, and George and Bezner were incorrect in picking Lubbock High over Berger.

A total of 189 entries were received for the first week's contest, the first of 13 such contests this season. The season prize again this year is $100 for first place.

The lucky winner will have to submit entries for 11 of the 13 weeks. If he or she enters all 13 weeks the worst two scores will be thrown out.

The second edition of the football contest appears in today's issue.

Overstreet May Start For Sooners Saturday

By J. LEE CARRIER
AP Sports Writer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—The development of freshman sensation David Overstreet has given No. 1-ranked Oklahoma one more potent weapon in an already devastating offense.

The Big Sandy, Tex., product has worked his way into a possible starting berth at right half with the Sooners open their season this Saturday here against Vanderbilt.

"Overstreet is on the No. 1 team right now, but we haven't made a final decision yet," Coach Barry Switzer said Monday at his weekly news conference. Battling Overstreet is redshirt sophomore Billy Sims.

Overstreet's rapid development has permitted Switzer to shift junior Jimmie Rogers, who was No. 1 at right half, to fullback behind Kenny King. Fullback is more difficult to play than halfback and Rogers knows more about what is expected than the younger players," Switzer said.

The only problem on offense is a minor injury to starting quarterback Thomas Lott.

"Lott's knee is still sore," Switzer said. "I'm a little concerned. But he thinks he'll make it, and the trainer thinks he'll make it. We'll just have to see. He didn't practice today, but will try tomorrow (Tuesday)."

If Lott can't play, senior Dean Blevins will start. The play of another freshman, Jay Jimeron, at quarterback also has been a pleasant surprise for Switzer.

"It gives us real good depth at quarterback and allows us to redshirt J.C. Watts," Switzer said. Watts, a sophomore, has the potential to be the first complete wishbone quarterback at Oklahoma, able to throw and run equally well.

Defense is the one area that continues to worry Switzer, however.

"We're in a situation where we may start five people on defense this Saturday who have never played a down of defense for Oklahoma," Switzer said. "That worries me."

The positions include both

The warmup weekend is over and now the real college football season is about to stand up.

Only two members of The Associated Press Top Twenty have seen action thus far - No. 13 Penn State mauled Rutgers 45-7 and No. 16 Mississippi State shaded North Texas State 17-15 - but 17 more are scheduled for action this weekend and there are two key match-ups between ranked teams.

Pitt, the defending national champion and ranked seventh in this year's poll, entertains No. 3 Notre Dame Saturday, while No. 11 UCLA visits No. 14 Houston Monday night. Both games will be nationally televised by ABC-TV.

Meanwhile, top-rated Oklahoma entertains Vanderbilt and runner-up Michigan visits Illinois. Elsewhere, it will be fourth-ranked Southern California at Missouri, Miami of Florida at No. 5 Ohio State, No. 6 Alabama against Mississippi at Birmingham, Ala., No. 8 Texas Tech at Baylor, Kansas at No. 9 Texas A&M, and No. 10 Maryland at Clemson.

Games involving Second Ten teams find Stanford at No. 12 Colorado, Washington State at No. 15 Nebraska, No. 16 Mississippi State at Washington, Oregon at No. 19 Georgia, and No. 20 Oklahoma State at Tulsa.

Mississippi State needed 80-yard touchdown runs by Len Copeland and James Jones with a tremendous block from Copeland - and a 30-yard field goal by Dave Marler to edge North Texas for the second year in a row.

Ambitious Rutgers, whose 18-game winning streak was the nation's longest, was no match for Penn State, which may be ready to reclaim the Eastern title it yielded to Pitt last season. The Nittany Lions got two touchdown runs from Matt Suhey in the first period and a pair from fellow sophomore Mike Guman in the second quarter en route to a 38-0 halftime bulge.

Mississippi got a 100-yard performance from James Storey, including a 19-yard run for the game's only touchdown, as the Rebels edged Memphis State 7-3.

East Carolina, last year's Southern Conference champion, made its debut as an independent, bouncing North Carolina State 28-23. In overcoming a 301-yard passing show by N.C. State's Johnny Evans, the Pirates scored on Leander Green's 82-yard run, Zack Valentine's 60-yard interception return, a 62-yard pass from Jimmy Southerland to Billy Ray Washington and a 23-yard run by Southerland.

In Missouri Valley Conference games, Wichita State upset West Texas State 14-10 and New Mexico State held Southern Illinois to minus 10 yards rushing in defeating the Salukis 29-7 - quite an embarrassment for a team which last year had one of the nation's top runners in Andre Herrera.

Eastern Michigan whipped Northern Illinois 25-2 in a Mid American Conference opener. Elsewhere, it was South Carolina 32, Appalachian State 17; Southwestern Louisiana 48, Tulsa 21; Northwestern Louisiana 28, Texas-Arlington 24; Tennessee State 27, Middle Tennessee 0; Southern Mississippi 42, Troy State 19; William & Mary 27, Norfolk State 13; Central Michigan 39, Alcorn State 7; Miami of Ohio 26, Dayton 23; Illinois State 20, Eastern Illinois 0.

Steve Carlton's 20th victory. Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs downed the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2, the Atlanta Braves blanked the San Francisco Giants 4-0 and the Montreal Expos edged the New York Mets 4-3.

The Astros tagged Seaver for eight hits and all five runs in six innings, including a homer by Enos Cabell and triples by winning pitcher Mark Lemongello and Cesar Cedeno.

Lemongello held the Reds to six hits and their only run came on a homer by Seaver, who must have thought he was back with the light-hitting Mets.

Padres 1, Dodgers 0
Owchinko avenged a heart-breaking 1-0 loss to the Dodgers on July 16, a game in which he retired the first 22 batters. This time, the rookie left-hander walked one, struck out five and didn't permit a runner beyond first base. The Padres scored in the third inning when Gene Richards singled, stole his 41st base of the season, went to third on a single by Bill Almon and came home on a throwing error by first baseman Steve Garvey after pitcher Doug Rau picked Almon off.

Pirates 3-1, Phillies 1-11
Carlton became a 20-game winner for the fourth time, scattering seven hits in eight innings and rapping his third home run of the season in addition to a run-scoring single. Jay Johnstone gave him all the runs he needed with a two-run homer in the second inning.

In the opener, John Candelaria, 16-4, and Rich Gossage scattered seven hits, including a homer by Jerry Martin. Duffy Dyer connected for Pittsburgh.

Cubs 4, Cardinals 2
Bill Buckner drove in three runs with a homer and sacrifice fly and Larry Bittner had three hits including a solo homer to back the six-hit pitching of Dave Roberts.

Braves 4, Giants 0
Atlanta's Dick Ruthven hurled a three-hitter for his first shutout since his first of the season. Jim Barr was the loser.

Austin Talk of the Town

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) - "She is living in the age of innocence," said Arthur Ashe. "She is so young she hasn't learned guile and gamesmanship. To her, it's still just a game - a fun game like jacks."

"Unless her parents are very careful with her, she may be burned out at 20," warned John Newcombe. Around the old concrete horseshoe at Forest Hills, where the 1977 U.S. Open Tennis Championships are being played, everybody is talking about Tracy Austin.

Is this 14-year-old, 93-pound wisp of a girl for real? Already, gliding over the green clay court in her oversized pinaflore dress with the bow in back and slashing winners with a racquet half as big as she is, tennis' Alice in Wonderland has beaten four older opponents, including England's fourth-seeded Sue Barker and Romania's Virginia Ruzici, on consecutive days on center court before a national television audience of millions. She now faces big Betty Stove in the quarter-finals.

She has become the darling of the galleries. "She is David and everybody else is Goliath," said Ashe. "The women all dread playing her. There is no way they can win."

Tracy, a spindly miss with blonde hair tied in two pony tails and every smile reflecting the braces on her teeth, looks like a lost child in the aged arena where crowds once cheered big Bill Tilden, Helen Wills and Don Budge.

The checked party dress hanging almost to her knees, the bows and the brace make her look nearer 9 than 14 - the youngest player to seize center stage here and at Wimbledon.

Yet she gives the impression of being a wound-up toy machine when she starts raking the sidelines with those wicked flat forehands and hammering her two-fisted backhand, both feet off the ground.

"I understand the consequences," he said afterward. "I know that I'm going to have some problems."

After re-injuring the knee last week against Tampa Bay, Bartkowski was fitted for a Joe Namath-type brace and sat out the first half while the Chiefs rolled to a 16-7 lead.

But he came out in the third quarter and converted three Kansas City turnovers into a pair of touchdowns and a Nick Mike - Mayor field goal while the Falcons' defense was shutting the Chiefs out.

Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett was hesitant to play Bartkowski after the knee slipped during warm-ups. "We talked to the doctors and we talked to Steve," Bennett said. "He wanted to play. He wanted to test the knee."

Bartkowski, a first-round draft choice in 1975, has been so hampered by injury that his total playing time amounts to about 14 games. Team physicians have ordered him to wear the brace at all times for at least three weeks, and every time he plays for probably the rest of the year.

After Rick Byas intercepted a Mike Livingston pass at the Chiefs' 27, Bartkowski fired a 31-yard touchdown strike to Jim Mitchell at 10:16 of the third period. After Rolland Lawrence picked off another errant Livingston pass on the next series, Bartkowski drove the Falcons 63 yards, capped by Haskell Stanback's three-yard plunge.

A fumble by Chiefs' rookie Mark Bailey moments later led to Atlanta's final score, a 34-yard Mike Mayer field goal. Behind reserve quarterback Kim McQuilken, the Falcons had used a flea-flicker play and a fake field goal to roll to a second-quarter touchdown and a brief 7-3 lead.

Jan Stenerud booted field goals of 30, 43 and 48 yards in the first half, and Bailey rambled 29 yards with a Livingston pass for Chiefs' touchdown.

Tracy is the unspoiled "baby" of a tennis playing family. She has three older brothers - Jeff, 26; Doug, 23, and John, 20 - and a 21-year-old sister, Pam. Her father, George, is a nuclear physicist. Her mother, Jeanne, is the chaperone.

The mother said Tracy is a normal child at home with a cluttered room of stuffed animals and tennis posters - no celebrity to her classmates. She goes into the ninth grade at Rolling Hills, Calif., High School, this fall.

She has been swinging a racquet since she was 5, playing tournaments since she was 10. For the last eight years, she has been coached by Robert Lansdorp, but, once on the court, nobody tells her what to do.

"I just play my game," she says. "Soon the courts will be cluttered with Tracy Austins," predicted Ashe. "Girls are stronger at a younger age than boys. Look at our Olympic swimmers, at their peak at 15, washed up at 17."

"Tracy is going to grow up quickly," added Newcombe. "Think of all the agents and newsmen who will be pressuring her now. It's a crushing experience."

"It's already come too fast," said Mrs. Austin with a sigh.

Sports Shorts Fought Wins Amateur

CLEVELAND (AP) - Cleveland Browns defensive tackle Jerry Sherk will miss at least the next five to six weeks with stretched knee ligaments, a spokesman for the National Football League team said Monday.

The spokesman said Sherk will have to wear a heel brace to immobilize his left leg in an attempt to heal the injury suffered during Saturday's 19-14 victory over Green Bay in exhibition play.

It appears, however, that Sherk won't require the surgery which would have meant he'd be out of action for the whole season.

PALOS VERDES, Calif. (AP) - A 22-year-old Santa Clara woman has broken Grete Anderson's 1958 record for swimming across the Catalina Channel both ways.

Penny Dean swam the 52 miles in 20 hours and three minutes Monday, beating Miss Anderson's time by six hours and 50 minutes.

Earlier in the day, Miss Dean made a 26-mile, one-way crossing in a record eight hours and 33 minutes. That was 20 minutes faster than it took Mary Beth Colpo three weeks ago.

Conditions for the swim between Catalina Island and Marineland were reported to be ideal.

By RALPH BERNSTEIN AP Sports Writer NEWTON SQUARE, Pa. (AP) - Look out Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Jerry Pate and Gene Littler: here comes someone who started the same way you did - by winning the U.S. National Amateur golf championship.

John Fought of Tualatin, Ore., had not gotten the wet grass off his spikes after winning the National Amateur on Labor Day when he announced he was turning pro.

The 23-year-old Fought annihilated Doug Fischesser of Connersville, Ind. 9 and 8 in the scheduled 36-hole final over the 6,958-yard Aronimink Golf Club course.

"I am going to turn pro," said Fought, an accounting graduate from Brigham Young University. "As much as I'd like to stay an amateur, it's a nice way to go out."

Fought tried to make it clear that while money was necessary for security, it was the love of the game and competition that motivated him to try for a PGA tour card.

"I want to play golf eight hours a day," he said. "I want to practice and improve my game. Nobody can do two things well. Golf is a game you play with pride, whether amateur or pro. Money doesn't mean anything standing next to pride."

And Fought has set his sights high. "A lot of guys seem content to make the top 60 on the money winners' list," he said. "But I like Jack Nicklaus' philosophy. He tries to win every tournament. That's where the challenge is."

"If I make the tour, I'll try to become the best," said Fought, who works for his father's accounting firm when he isn't playing golf. "I don't think I'd like the tour as a job per se. It's the type of work I'd like to do only as long as I keep improving. I'd like to play golf the next 15 to 20 years."

Fought shot a par-70 on the first 18 and was one stroke under after the first nine of the afternoon round. He led six up after 18, eight up through 27, and closed it out on the 28th hole.

The victory boosted Fought's string of consecutive match play triumphs this year to 20, six in the Trans-Mississippi, five at Broadmoor, two in the Walker Cup and seven in the Amateur. He is not fond of match play, but says that a good golfer has to be able to compete in all kinds of competition.

Armour Captures Softball Crown

Armour Foods claimed the city softball championship last week in winning the second-half tournament. Armour downed Toters 9-4 in the finals to claim the title. Since they also won the first half tourney they wound up the champs without a playoff.

Totes finished second again after working their way back through the loser's bracket after losing to Armour. Caviness packing finished third in the league.

All 10 teams in the local league participated in the tournament, Ron Hale of Armour Foods reported.

By The Associated Press CLEVELAND (AP) - Buddy Bell, regular third baseman for the Cleveland Indians, was scheduled to undergo further examination of an injured left knee today.

Bell fell heavily on his left side after making a spectacular back-handed stab of a bouncing ball down the third-base line in Sunday's 7-3 loss to the California Angels. He limped off the field under his own power and the injury was first diagnosed as a contusion to the knee.

However, a team spokesman said Monday it now appears the injury could keep Bell sidelined for the rest of the season, with surgery a "slight" possibility. Bell was hitting .292 with 11 homers and 64 runs batted in this season.

SEATTLE (AP) - Wide receiver Duke Ferguson, who suffered a broken hand in last week's Seattle Seahawks game against the Denver Broncos, will miss the Hawks' contest against the San Diego Chargers, club officials say.

The San Diego - Seattle clash on Sunday will be the Seahawks' final preseason game.

Bartkowski Shedding Injury; Ready to Play

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski is ready to disregard the possibility of a ruinous knee injury and get started on the brilliant career that has been forecast for him.

The third-year pro who missed virtually all of last season with a brace on the knee Monday night and, making adjustments in his delivery, led the Falcons to a second-half surge and a 24-16 exhibition victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

AL East Race Tightened Up

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer The New York Yankees lost twice, the Boston Red Sox were stranded and the Baltimore Orioles split a doubleheader - all of which closed the gap in the American League East Division race.

"Thank goodness they lost," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver about the Yankees. "Maybe they'll lose another."

New York Manager Billy Martin was glum but undaunted. "I'm not going to lose any sleep over it," he said of his team's double setback to the Cleveland Indians Monday, 4-3 and 5-4.

The Red Sox, who finished off the day with a doubleheader sweep of the Toronto Blue Jays, started it off at an airport in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

"It's been quite a day," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "I wouldn't want to go through too many like that."

At the end of the Labor Day 11-game marathon, the Yankees held a 2 1/2-game lead over Boston while Baltimore is four games back of New York.

Even with Monday's twin loss, the Yankees have won 24 of their last 29 games. But Monday, it was Cleveland's turn as the Indians ended a 13-game losing string against New York.

Boston blanked Toronto twice, 8-0 and 6-0, while Baltimore lost to Detroit 8-7 in 11 innings before defeating the Tigers 5-0.

In other AL games, Oakland and Chicago split, the A's taking to opener 8-7 and Chicago winning the nightcap 2-1; Minnesota edged Texas 5-4, Milwaukee nipped California 6-5 and Kansas City defeated Seattle 8-4.

The Indians' Bruce Bochte drove in five runs in the twinbill, including game-winner in the opener, and Andre Thornton's checked-swing eight-inning bloop double scored the decisive run in the nightcap.

Don Hood, 2-0, who started for only the second time this season, gave up two runs and five hits in seven innings in the opener. Jim Kern picked up his 18th save of the season despite giving up a solo homer to Reggie Jackson in the eighth.

Tigers 8-0, Orioles 7-5

The Tigers used seven pitchers in the opener, which Detroit pulled out on Rusty Staub's two-out homer in the bottom of the 11th.

Baltimore came back in the nightcap as Rudy May, 15-12, scattered eight singles in hurling his 10th complete game and fourth shutout of the season.

Red Sox 8-6, Blue Jays 0-0 Rookie Don Aase, 4-1, hurled a three-hitter in the first game and Reggie Cleveland, 9-7, tossed a five-hitter in the second as Boston blanked Toronto twice.

Jim Rice pounded a three-run homer and Carlton Fisk knocked in three runs in the opener while Rick Miller's two-run double started the Red Sox off to a three-run fourth inning to break open the nightcap.

A's 8-1, White Sox 7-2 Mitchell Page sparked Oakland in the opener and Wilbur Wood, 7-7, led Chicago in the nightcap as the two teams split their twinbill.

Page drove in two runs, scored another and stole three bases in the opener. Eric Soderholm's run-scoring double backed Wilbur Wood's pitching in the nightcap.

Twins 5, Rangers 4 Butch Wynegar knocked in two runs with a single and a homer as Minnesota broke a four-game losing streak. Paul Thormodsgard, 11-10, got the victory.

Royals 8, Mariners 4 Kansas City raced to its sixth consecutive victory behind Fred Patek, who scored twice and drove in two runs, and George Brett's two-run homer.

Jim Colborn, 16-13, snapped Seattle's three-game winning streak to get the victory. Dick Pole, 7-12, took the loss after lasting only 11-3 innings.

Brewers 6, Angels 5 Sal Bando and Sixto Lezcano slammed home runs to power Milwaukee over California and snap a four-game Brewers' losing streak.

Jim Stanton, 9-14, required relief help from Bob McClure and Eduardo Rodriguez to get the victory. Angels' starter Frank Tanana, 15-9, who has won only three games since July 5, took the loss.

YMCA Still Needs Flag Grid Players

The Hereford area YMCA will assure the Y of an increase of four teams over last year's 12.

Also a coaches' meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, September 8 in the Y club room.

Players will be assigned to teams at that time.

Wadkins Still In State of Shock

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - Lanny Wadkins still is in a state of shock. The 27-year-old Virginian, his career threatened by a gall bladder operation less than three years ago, has won the PGA and the World Series of Golf titles and $145,000 in the last month.

His first prize of $100,000 in the World Series Monday exceeded his entire winnings for 1975 and 1976.

"It hasn't really hit me," Wadkins said after his record-breaking 65-267 total over the feared 7,180-yard Firestone South course.

"The PGA still hasn't sunk in. I hear them announce, 'PGA champion' and I look around to wonder who in the heck it is."

Even a record-tying 29 by playing partner Tom Weiskopf, six-under par on Firestone South's front nine, failed to

PUZZLED BY INCREASING ELECTRIC BILLS?

Here's part of the answer:

The cost of office supplies, vehicles maintenance, equipment, etc., have risen at a rapid pace the past few years. We wish we knew the answer to stop this thing called "inflation." Unfortunately as long as our bills continue to go up, so will your electric bills. Just as you've felt the pinch of rising cost in your homes, we've felt the pinch in our business. Proving dependable electric service AT THE LEAST COST IS WHAT WE'RE ALL ABOUT.

Pennsylvania River 'No Surrey Ride'

OHIOPILE, Pa. (AP) - With a roar and a splash, the Youghiogheny River offers quick baptism for white water enthusiasts.

The Entrance Rapids, the first of eight foaming thrills on the 12-mile excursion into the wilderness of the Appalachian Mountains, lie just below the Ohiopile Falls at the start of the seven-hour trip.

"Be prepared to get wet - and paddle," said Jon Kruper, a former professional guide with White Water Adventurers who commanded our two-man raft. "This isn't a surrey ride."

The raft crashed through the rocks with a whump, spraying water on a pair of furiously paddling adventurers. "Welcome to white water," said Kruper, clad in a mandatory life jacket and enjoying the sunny summer afternoon.

What the Youghiogheny (pronounced YOCK-eh-gay-nee) seems like is a series of roller coaster rides, except you have control of the trip and the excitement is prolonged.

"The nicest part of the trip is that you have to participate. You just don't sit back and float down. You have to guide and steer. You become part of the river, or else," said Kruper, a 27-year-old physical education teacher.

Padding is essential. Forward and backward strokes determine which way the raft goes in the swift, northward flowing current. Without steering, rafts will go sideways, careening into rocks or getting pinned.

The Youghiogheny, which runs through Ohiopile State

Park, has become a hot tourist spot. The river is rated among the top white water stretches in the East, and nearly a million people have answered its challenge.

Water flow is controlled by a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers dam upstream, but the water level has been low this summer because of a dry spell. The trip is a little rockier, but the excitement is there.

The rapids, which have colorful names like Double Hydraulic or Cucumber Chute, demand total attention. Calmer stretches in between allow your pulse to slow and provide an opportunity to enjoy the wilderness setting.

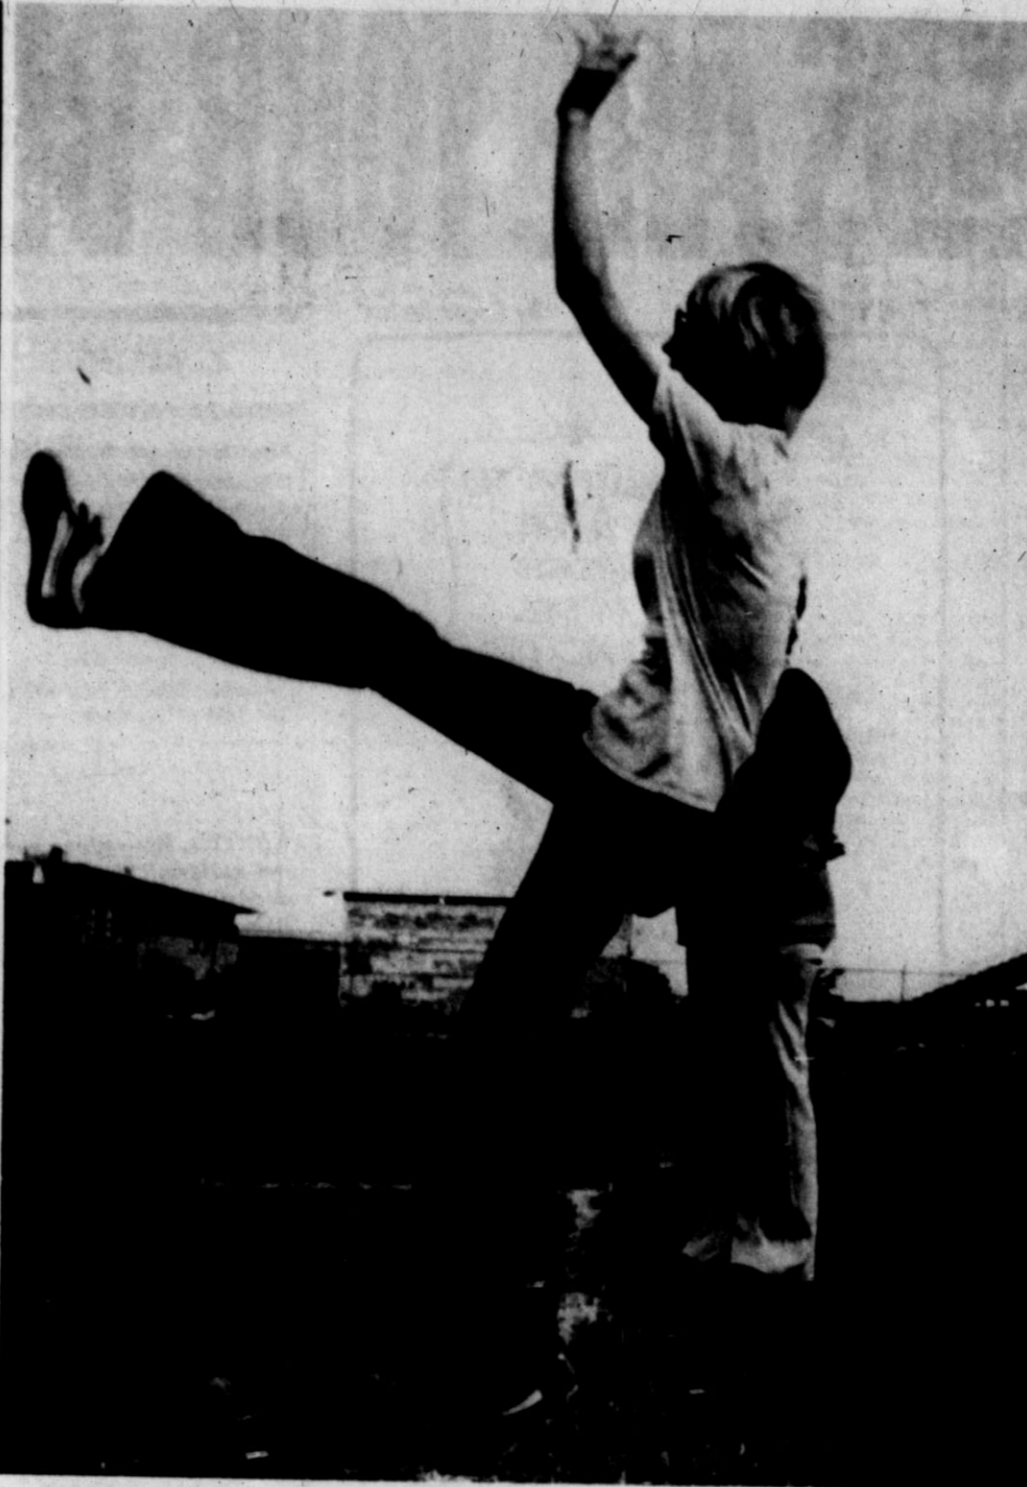

The river winds through a pristine valley surrounded by hardwood trees, hemlocks and mountain laurel. No roads lead into the lush valley in southwestern Pennsylvania, about 90 minutes by car from Pittsburgh.

The only access is by raft or kayak, although a Chessie Systems rail line parallels the river in spots.

Much of the river bed is solid rock. The water is quite deep in spots; knee high in others.

If you don't get thrown overboard during the trip, you can beach the raft and body surf with the current. Sneakers are essential to protect your feet from the jutting rocks.

The rafting season runs from May through October. In addition to White Water Adventures, three other groups - Mountain Trails and Streams Outfitters, Laurel Highlands River Tours and Wilderness Voyagers - offer guided tours.

Doing the Kickover

Sixth graders at Northwest Elementary School are being treated to a soccer-like game called Kickover during their physical education periods early this fall. Paige Phillips demonstrates the proper way to launch a soccer ball, while playing in a heated game with other sixth grade girls. Outdoor games will not last much longer at Hereford schools as cooler months will cause activities to be moved indoors. (Brand photo by Keith Ribnick)

Industry Using Wood As Boiler Fuel Source

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

Wood, which once heated every home, is slowly making a comeback in the boilers of the American industry.

Faced with soaring prices for natural gas and oil and tighter restrictions on the use of coal, some companies are eyeing wooden pallets and packing crates, residues from the sawmills, and forests' dead and crippled trees as new fuel sources.

Burning wood is older than civilization. It's acquired an old-fashioned image in this century, even though paper and sawmills have run on it for years, drawing energy from their wastes.

Forests Provide Industry
Only lately have other industries considered it. And only recently has anyone suggested that forests can be harvested for energy.

Just a few nonwood product companies are burning wood now, but hundreds are considering it, energy consulting firms say.

Those who believe it in say it's only a matter of time - and another cold winter like the last - before more industries catch on.

"What do you think a Ohio subdivision would have paid to have a wood-burning plant last winter?" asks Traverse City, Mich., broadcaster Les Biederman, whose statewide campaign for wood energy has pricked the imaginations of several Michigan industries.

"All we have to do is wait a little while as the cost of oil and natural gas goes up. I get to be a little bit more right each day," Biederman says.

Part of wood's attraction is its cost in heavily wooded states such as Michigan, Oregon, Washington, and much of New England. There, wood is half as expensive as coal and two-thirds less expensive than oil.

Trees Grow Faster
Clearing forests of dead or unmarketable wood lets quality trees grow faster and better, proponents say, transforming forests from "jungles" to "parks." They claim environmentalists have no objections to the idea, either, as long as some areas are left as is.

Some industries also feel they can depend on wood more than on supplies of other fuels.

Consumers Power Co., which provides electricity to 1.2 million Michigan customers, has concluded enough wood exists in the state to fire a generating plant. It's now pondering whether to build one.

"As you look at the future and find yourself limited to coal and uranium - with all the problems we see in licensing both of those - we thought it only reasonable to look at wood, since Michigan's got a lot of trees."

said Consumers President John D. Selby.

Dow-Corning Co. of Midland, Mich., makes silicone products like artificial finger joints. It's seeking federal funds to help build a wood-burning generator "so we're energy independent from other sources," said William D. Betts, an engineering manager. Otherwise, he said, "We'd be fighting the same kinds of battles as everyone else who's using oil or gas."

Still Too Costly
General Motors Corp., the nation's biggest automaker, says it's still too costly to haul wood from the forests, but boilers at three GM plants are ready to burn it when the price is right.

Last year, GM chopped up wood pallets and scraps, along with other fuels, to run its Pontiac, Mich., truck assembly plant.

In Alexander City, Ala., the Russell Manufacturing corp. recently began burning wood at its athletic apparel manufacturing plant and estimates $1 million in savings annually.

Vermont officials are thinking of using wood to heat the state's mental hospital, and small utilities in various states are mixing wood with coal, experimenting and trying to save money.

Although some call it a conserving figure, the U.S. Forest Service estimates the nation's forests contain the equivalent of a billion tons of dry, unmarketable wood.

Burning that waste wood could create the same amount of energy as 10 billion barrels of oil - about twice what the nation used in 1976.

Having a Problem

While the wood is relatively inexpensive - $7 to $8 per ton - the problem and extra costs come in handling and hauling it.

Much of the available wood is in wilderness areas and would cost too much to get and transport. Wood chips are also bulkier than other fuels - boosting hauling costs.

"When we're generating it in our own plant, wood's economical," says Donald Van Zile of

GM. "but when we must go out and buy it, handle it, load it, unload it, chip it up - so far we haven't been able to make the economics work."

"It sounds so attractive and people say, 'Why aren't you doing it?'" But I think they're ignoring the economics. When things become economic, people do 'em. That's all that's holding us up."

The U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration - ERDA - is reviewing a grant proposal from six U.S. firms that say they can build a plant and haul 1,000 tons of wood a day to run it economically.

Not New Concept

The technology of burning wood is nothing new, says Nello Del Gobbo of ERDA. "What we're trying to prove to people is that we can, in fact, pull out a quantity of wood from the forest at a reasonable price to support a generating facility," he says.

In Winn, Mich., Norval Morey, a former lumberjack, says that's entirely possible. He wants to prove it by building a 10 megawatt generating plant fueled entirely with wood chips from nearby forests.

Morey's firm, Morbark Industries, Inc., produces machinery to chip down trees like a mower cuts grass, then feed them into another contraption that spins out close to two tons of chips per minute.

That machine can chop a six-ton tree - the fuel equivalent of about five barrels of oil - into wood chips in 27 seconds. Morey says he could easily provide the 125,000 tons of woodchips his plant would need annually.

Yankee Clambake - Gala Affair

SOUTH DARTMOUTH, Mass. (AP) - The Indians may have held the first clambake, but the Yankees around here will tell you that only a Yankee can run one right.

Others will argue. The Portuguese who arrived on these shores a couple of centuries after the Yankees say they run a fine clambake, and so do the Italians and Irish - whoever.

But the Yankees have a point. A clambake is a complicated thing and something filled with tradition. One false step, and you wind up with just a picnic that smells of fish.

Each Labor Day, and Fourth of July, and many of the weekends in between, in the small New England oceanside towns large pits are dug in the beach, great quantities of lobster and corn and clams are set aside, and teams go out to prepare this curious ritual feast.

Some are townwide events, to raise money for local lodge or volunteer fire unit. A committee puts those together, and the public pays an admission fee to eat what the committee cooks.

It tastes good, of course, but I wonder if it compares with our clambake - a smaller affair, on a spit of private land, where friends chip in for the groceries, and for the privilege of working up a hunger equal to the meal. It is a mixed crowd of old friends who gather every year - Midwesterners and New Yorkers, Jews and Italian, French-Canadians and Yankees. At ours, the Yankees are clearly in charge.

A bakemaster, who grew up near here, runs the show, and after enough beer he may tell you about his ancestor, the sea captain. He may tell you the lore of clambakes - of the Indians who invented them but stayed away from lobsters, which were taboo; of the mammoth clambakes that were run by previous generations of Yankees. The stories sound apocryphal; he swears they are true.

Meanwhile, he organizes people in teams and assigns them their tasks.

And somehow, lubricated by cold beer, the work gets done. Each year, as we learn from our mistakes, the food comes out tasting better.

The first arrivals dig a pit six feet or so long, three feet wide, two or three feet deep. Another team shoves about in the salt water, raking in rockweed, filling bags with it, lugging it near the pit.

Someone is sent to find rocks the size of soccer balls - no sandstone, please; it won't take the heat of the fire. Others bring firewood - red oak if you can get it, because it burns the hottest.

Still others fetch the food - one lobster apiece for 30 or 40 people; crates of corn that will cook, soaking, in the salt water, until ready to be cooked, softshell clams to be wrapped in cheesecloth bags so they can be retrieved from the steaming pit; potatoes, onions, sausage and fish filets; butter to be melted over a campfire; watermelon to finish it off.

The wood goes into the pit, lining the bottom for a fire that will heat the rocks so hot that the carbon on them will burn off. When that happens, they are ready to cook the food.

A layer of rockweed is thrown on the rocks, and great clouds of steam billow up. Then the potatoes, then another layer of rockweed, then the other ingredients in layers alternated with rockweed, and in the top layer, live lobsters and a final potato. A tarpaulin goes over the pit to seal in the steam; rocks around the edge hold it on the ground.

In an hour or two, when that final potato on top of everything is soft, it means the steam has reached even the coldest parts of the pit. The lobsters are a brilliant red; the bake is ready.

It comes out a succulent melange - the rockweed has given off a briny steam that permeates everything; the lobster and clam juices have soaked through the corn and the onions, and they in turn have flavored the shellfish, the filets, the sausage.

The sun is low in the sky now, and we bend over the pit and bring the food out piping hot.

A cloud of steam, billowing up from the ground in our faces, provokes a surreal, primal feeling. It makes you admire the Indians who thought it all up - and the Yankees who preserved it, the newer immigrants who have adopted it, and the mixed groups like ourselves who enjoy it.

We sit on the seawall, smashing lobsters open with nutcrackers or small rocks, washing down shellfish with wine, trading reminiscences.

A favorite story involved the Yankee lady from town, a quick-witted sort who takes delight in flirting, and who each year brings the marshmallows. A few years ago, she ran into a young man in a bathing suit who had just swam ashore from a boat, and who introduced himself exuberantly: "I've been at sea for two weeks and I haven't seen a marshmallow."

"If you've been at sea for two weeks and all you've missed is a marshmallow, you're in trouble," she said with her sauciest flourish - and then he laughed, she found out why, and she turned purple.

The bakemaster told her to watch herself in this crowd. She's been flirting with an out-of-uniform Catholic priest.

Liddy Could Be Released If He Is Poor Enough

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) - For G. Gordon Liddy, the mastermind of the Watergate break-in who has kept tight-lipped on the burglary that toppled a president, freedom is just a pauper's oath and a sunrise away.

Liddy, 46, faced one final obstacle before being paroled after more than four years in prison.

Part of his sentence was a $40,000 fine, and federal authorities can release him only if he proves he has less than $20 to his name, counting debts.

To do so, Liddy was to swear to the pauper's oath today before U.S. Magistrate William Askey of Williamsport. With Askey's approval, usually a routine step, Liddy can be released Wednesday from the medium-security penitentiary at Danbury, Conn.

U.S. marshals said Liddy would be brought here from Danbury and returned there after the hearing.

Liddy was sentenced to a term of six years, eight months to 20 years for his role as the architect of the Watergate break-in. The 20-year maximum was reduced to eight years by President Carter in April, making Liddy eligible for parole beginning July 9. Without the commutation, he would not have been eligible until 1981.

Carter's action did not change the $40,000 fine, however.

"The debt is not forgiven, just the imprisonment," Askey said, noting Liddy would have to arrange to pay the fine later.

A former FBI agent and lawyer for the White House staff of then - President Richard M. Nixon, Liddy served most of his 52½-month imprisonment at the Danbury penitentiary.

He was transferred to a minimum-security prison at Allenwood, Pa., last January, but he was returned to Danbury in August after playing a key role in an inmate hunger strike.

The hearing today was scheduled for Williamsport because Liddy applied for the pauper's oath while at Allenwood.

Liddy planned and supervised the June 1972 burglary of the Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate complex in Washington. Of seven persons involved in the burglary, and several others convicted on related charges, Liddy received the longest prison term.

The bulk of his sentence was on burglary, conspiracy and wiretapping convictions, but he got an additional 18 months for refusing to testify about Watergate before a federal grand jury.

The six others involved in the Watergate burglary served shorter sentences and are free.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

By Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN—It's the law... Five hundred new ones took effect September 1 reaching into nearly every aspect of life and even death.

One of the new laws banned the electric chair and provided for execution of condemned criminals by lethal drug injection.

Another allows terminally-ill patients to specify that their lives not be postponed by artificial methods including mechanical devices.

The largest state budget in history—$15.5 billion—was passed by the legislature this year, and September 1 was opening day of the new fiscal period.

Merger of the Texas Water Development Board, Texas Water Quality Board and Water Rights Commission into a single Department of Water already has been discussed in this column.

A "Sunset law" sets up a procedure for determining whether state agencies should be continued or phased out. Twenty-six, mostly minor regulatory agencies, must send self-evaluation reports to a Sunset Advisory Commission for review by October 30. The legislature in 1979 will decide whether they should be abolished or renewed.

Other laws taking effect this month would require mandatory supervision of released state prisoners, legalize Laetrile for cancer treatment, expand the Court of Criminal Appeals, establish a procedure for criminals to make payments to victims of their crimes, establish a statewide adult probation system, allow cities to increase hunting and fishing license fees, and give coal slurry pipelines power to condemn land for rights of way.

POLITICS POPPING

Statewide political races are beginning to shape up. State Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie resigned his post and said he will decide by October whether to run for the U.S. Senate. U.S. Rep. Robert Krueger of New Braunfels is already campaigning actively for the Democratic nomination to oppose U.S. Sen. John Tower, a Republican.

Meanwhile, State Republican Chairman Ray Hutchison designated himself as campaign treasurer for a prospective race for governor. Gov. Dolph Briscoe has announced for a third term, and Atty. Gen. John Hill is expected to oppose him in the Democratic primary.

MARSH SALE REJECTED

Gov. Briscoe disapproved sale of Jefferson and Matagorda county marshlands to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for national wildlife refuges.

He suggested state or local ownership as an alternative. The federal agency had proposed to buy McFaddin and Sea Rim marshes in Jefferson County and the Smith marsh in Matagorda County.

Briscoe noted Jefferson and Matagorda commissioners opposed the sale. He suggested the State Parks and Wildlife Department work with the federal service and local governments to "explore all reasonable alternatives and methods of preserving these natural wetlands."

PORN STUDY ORDERED

House Speaker Bill Clayton has set up a special committee to study the problem of child pornography and find out what to do about it.

He named an 11-member committee, headed by young Houston Rep. Ralph Wallace, to make recommendations to the 1979 legislature.

Clayton estimated 1.2 million children between eight and 16 are involved in pornography and prostitution.

COURTS SPEAK

The State Supreme Court refused to block Houston disbarment proceedings against Don Yarbrough, a former member of the court.

A U.S. Supreme Court justice ordered Lo-Vaca Gathering Company not to shut off gas to Crystal City.

Fifty-third District Judge Herman Jones in Austin held Atty. Gen. John Hill could not sue the Texas Water Quality Board because the attorney general is supposed to represent state agencies. Hill indicated he may appeal.

AG OPINIONS

Atty. Gen. Hill said the open meetings act does not prevent a city council from meeting in closed session to discuss selection of a mayor pro tem unless the nominee objects.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded: Texas A&I University board has authority to select administrative officers by any procedure it chooses as long as the action is not unreasonable, arbitrary, capricious or discriminatory.

The comptroller may delay entering contracts authorized by the recent amendments to the public employees deferred compensation plan until federal income tax consequences can be established.

APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED

Gov. Briscoe named District Judge Robert R. Murray of San Antonio to the Fourth Court of Civil Appeals.

Fort Worth oilman Perry R. Bass was named to the State Parks and Wildlife Commission.

SHORT SNORTS

George M. Cowden was elected to succeed Garrett Morris as chairman of the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Secretary of State Mark White ordered Waller County Tax Assessor Collector LeRoy Symm to stop using questionnaires as a voter registration prerequisite.

Texas Railroad Commission will intercede with the Federal Power Commission to help eight East Texas cities save their natural gas supplies.

The State Welfare Board ruled tax funds can be spent for abortions only if mothers' lives are at stake.

Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation has ordered an investigation of alleged patient abuse and improper drug handling at Rusk State Hospital.

Tape Recording Proves Graham Didn't Have 'Secret' Fund

NEW YORK (AP) - Get something on a famed "good guy" and it sizzles. Even if it only raises a question mark. That is sort of what has happened to evangelist Billy Graham. But he has laid out his detailed answer.

Also, an old tape recording has turned up which seems to undercut the original implication that he had set up a "secret fund" alongside his evangelistic operations.

"It put a question in people's mind concerning my integrity and responsibility," Graham said in a telephone interview before he left on his first preaching mission in Hungary. "The basic impression it leaves is groundless."

That appears confirmed by the tape recording, made by an Akron Beacon Journal reporter, Peter Geiger, five years ago and used in a series on Graham in which he talks about the fund to aid other evangelical work.

"It vindicates Graham," Geiger said. "It doesn't speak to whether the fund ought to exist, but the tape certainly speaks to the fact that it wasn't any secret."

Recent reports about the fund were carried by the Charlotte, N.C., Observer in a series on Graham. The series is being distributed in augmented form by Universal Syndicate of Mission City, Kan.

In the tape recording in 1972, Graham says that the fund had been set up a year and a half before, with headquarters in Dallas and was "raising money to be used for evangelical work throughout the world."

That also is the gist of his newly issued, extensive statement about the $22 million fund, called the World Evangelism and Christian Education Fund. It was established in 1970 to aid seminaries, evangelical training and periodicals, missions, relief work, hospitals and scholarships throughout the world.

"In its early years, we talked about it freely to various reporters and at press conferences, to anybody who would listen, but it generally was ignored as too dull," Graham said.

Later, however, he said he "quit talking about it" partly because heavy demands on it were more than could be met, and because it now is concentrating on financing a major Christian education center at Wheaton College in Illinois for missions and evangelism training.

"It's not really untruthful for stories to say we'd quit publicizing it, but to go on to imply that it was hidden or secret is just not true," Graham said.

He noted that the fund is independently audited annually and regular reports are filed on it with the Internal Revenue Service of a type open to public inspection at all times.

Members of the executive committee who oversees the fund without pay are Dewey Presley, president of Dallas' First National Bank and board chairman of Baylor University; William Mead, head of Campbell-Taggart, a large Dallas banking firm, and George F. Bennett of Boston, for 10 years treasurer of Harvard University.

"Not one penny from the fund goes to any board member or staff," Graham said. Graham, now 58 and the world's leading evangelist for a quarter century, has always emphasized openness about his finances and early in his career spurned the system of unrecorded "love offerings" which sometimes have brought abuses in evangelism. He insisted on oversight by a board of leading lay people, with all his staff members on fixed salaries, including himself.

He said his salary currently is $39,500 annually, with fringe benefits such as hospitalization making it worth $42,000. He also gets some additional, variable income from his newspaper columns and his father's farm estate. Royalties from his books lately all have been contributed to Christian education.

"We have insisted on the highest possible standards of financial ethics, business procedures and spiritual principles in the business affairs of our evangelistic association," Graham said in his recent 2,800-word statement.

However, his long-time clean-cut image makes him a tempting target, and a new book by a Los Angeles radio newsmen, Chuck Ashman, "The Gospel According to Billy," published by Lyle Stuart, Inc., even purports links to organized crime - theorized from Graham's past conversion of some ex-convicts.

Of some of the recent insinuations, Graham said, "I really don't understand it. It mystifies me."

Nevertheless, because of the recent flap, Graham said he plans to urge his organization's board to start issuing fuller, more detailed annual financial statements "so everybody will know exactly where the money goes and just how it comes in," whether or not they're interested.

Boat Accident, Drownings Head Holiday Weekend Fatality List

By The Associated Press

While Labor Day weekend traffic deaths failed to reach projected levels, the Texas violent death toll was swollen by a five-fatality boat accident and several drownings.

The Department of Public Safety predicted that 44 persons would die during the three-day weekend, but early today the traffic toll stood at 28. A total of 46 persons died violently, however, as six drownings had been recorded.

"We're delighted that the traffic toll ran lighter," said DPS spokesman Jim Robinson, who pointed out that 53 persons were killed in the three-day Labor Day weekend last year.

"Strangely enough, traffic deaths last year were down, except during the holidays. This year, traffic deaths are up 6-7 per cent, but holiday deaths have been much lower," added Robinson. "Apparently, motorists are being more careful on the holidays this year."

Seven motorcyclists were killed in holiday accidents, however. Of those, the DPS said at least four wore no helmets on the first weekend since a new law took effect, making helmets optional for Texas cyclists over 18.

"We have to believe that fewer would have died if they had been wearing helmets," said one DPS spokesman.

The death count began Friday evening and ended at midnight Monday.

Five persons died and one was missing late Sunday when two pleasure boats collided on the San Jacinto River near Houston and then crashed into a third, Harris County officials said. Seven persons were rescued from the water.

The victims were identified as Tommy D. Griffin, 22, Colleen Griffin, age unknown, B. E.

Grant, 24, Larry Outlaw, 20, and Virginia Grant, age unknown, all of Pearland. The body of the sixth victim was still missing late Monday.

Four of the victims were decapitated and two of the boats sank, said authorities.

Michael James Allen, 19, became the seventh motorcycle rider to be killed when his bike collided with an auto in Dallas on Monday, authorities said.

Two young Converse, La., brothers drowned in the Sabine River near Carthage Monday, officials said. The bodies of Michael Leo Manshack, 13, and Donny C. Manshack, 15 were pulled from the river after a brief search.

Four persons drowned at Galveston over the weekend, including Catherine Prejean, 14, Albert Prejean, 19, Janice Stewart, 10 and one unidentified victim.

Raymond J. Kline, 19, a soldier stationed at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, was killed early Monday when his motorcycle overturned three miles west of Junction on Interstate 10.

Here is how some Texans died:
Rhonda Faye Smith, 24, of Conroe was killed when she was hit by a car early Monday one mile north of Conroe on Interstate 45.

Anthony Beasley, 24, of Corpus Christi was killed late Sunday night in a two-car collision.

Alton B. Parker Jr., 46, of Aspermont died Monday when his car ran off the road on U.S. 380 seven miles west of Swenson.

A pickup truck hit a guard rail six miles north of Snyder Saturday killing Maximino Fuentes Jr., 24, and Benito Ruiz, 25, both of Snyder.

Autumn Prompts Changes In American Lives

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - On this day after Labor Day it's as if the summer were shot dead, executed by the same gun that begins the mad race to get everything done that should have been done the day before yesterday or earlier.

School is in, new cars are out, new TV shows are on. The calendar is loaded with big plans, conventions, sales promotions, ad campaigns, budget reviews.

Football nudges baseball. Hayfever blows into town. Congress returns. Elections begin. It's far too much for a nervous system that had lain becalmed all summer and is now fighting to keep from the rocks.

It is a time of conflict. A time when the guilty boss, trying to make up for all the time lost as he, and assumedly you, idled through the summer, clashes head-on with the subordinate determined to get a pay raise.

The stock market seems to react too. If averages rise Tuesday through Friday of this week the market probably will be higher for the next month, or so you will find in the vast archives of stock market mythology. Beware.

Greeting the new season will be a spate of statistics that should get you in the mood or, you might say, marching to the numbers again.

The Federal Reserve today will tell us all about consumer credit, which everyone is concerned about. Are we spending ourselves into a crisis?

Some interpreters of those statistics will tell you we are. Through the courtesy of the same sponsor, the Fed, we will also learn the condition of the big commercial banks, which everyone is concerned about. Some of the interpreters will say the big banks ought to tighten up.

Another house of numbers, the Bureau of Economic Analysis, will present the statistics on plant and equipment investment, which everyone is concerned about. Some of the interpreters will say we're in trouble unless spending rises more.

All this and more. And while there will be good economic news too, it seems that all news of late has been cast by critics in the shape of an ogre, in keeping with the shortening day sand the lowering clouds.

Jumping the gun, the United Jersey Bank of Hackensack, N.J., announced prior to the holiday that as of today its prime lending rate is 7.25 per cent instead of 7 per cent.

United Jersey about $1.2 billion in assets doesn't hold the leadership role played by the Bank of America more than $60 billion, but the timing, the eagerness to get itself on record might portend another round of general increases.

Yes, the silence of summer is shattered. Reality is here, the noise begins and most of us are off and running in the dash to next spring, when we can contemplate a little vacation.

Meanwhile, a certain few well organized individuals who have learned to think ahead, and who recognize that the secret of comfort often is in doing things when others aren't, are about to take their off-season vacation at discount rates, far, far from the madness of it all.
