School board focuses on special programs

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford school board focused on programs designed to help school students at the board's September board meeting on Tuesday at the Hereford school administration building.

The featured programs were on Peers As Leaders (PALS), Drug Awareness Reinforcement Education (DARE), and phonics.

PALS is an offshoot of the We Are The Caring Hands (WATCH) program begun last year at Hereford High School. While the WATCH program will continue with special counseling, meetings and positive reinforcement, PALS will be a "positive peer pressure group made up of students from all walks of life," said one of the group's sponsors, Adele Clements.

Clements explained that students joining PALS make a public, written commitment that they will not consume drugs or alcohol, provide a positive example, and support other PALS, for at least a one year period.

PALS was formed after a sample survey of 200 HHS students indicated a need and an interest in the student-oriented group. "Adults have an impact, but peers and their press are a greater factor in the success of students at school and in their personal lives," Clements said.

"The group has really mushroomed. We have had 112 students join PALS in three weeks. We don't set any of these kids up as a haloed example. Some of them have been in-involved in drugs or alcohol in the past, many have never been involved, but they have all pledged they will not be involved.

"We don't recruit or pressure students to join. It's a personal decision to join PALS or make the pledge. In the beginning it was a lifestyle commitment, but some wanted more interaction with other students because they weren't involved in extracurricular activities."

Mark Scott, Renee Mercer, Shea McGinty and Susan Bell, all HHS seniors, spoke to the board.

"Hereford has been in the news about all of the bad things," Mercer said. "We want people to stop talking about all of the bad things in Hereford. We don't want all of the drugs here. In the past, people who drank and did drugs were the 'in' crowd. Now, PALS is the 'in' crowd."

"We are working with the Hereford Police Department and DARE to become role models for the younger children. I have a sixth grade brother who has been offered drugs. We need to let these young kids know they don't have to do drugs or alcohol to be accepted."

McGinty told the board that PALS has gotten discounts for members at several fast-food restaurants, is planning a party over the holidays, sponsored a movie last Friday to give students an activity on a football-free Friday night, and will have other activities through the year.

Scott told the board the group will be selling special tags this week in an effort to reach more students who may not want to join PALS but who are, or will be, drug- or alcohol-free.

"We wear PALS T-shirts every Monday so everyone can see people who are willing to take a stand," Bell said. She explained that several PALS attended a meeting in Georgetown last summer where they were able to talk to other PALS groups across the state and get ideas to use in Hereford, and that parents sponsored a dance last summer that provided a drug- and alcohol-free setting.

"We're not promoting dancing, but we want them to have an opportunity to have fun without drugs or alcohol," said sponsor Renee May. "We know there are students who don't do drugs or alcohol that are not members, and it's okay not to join. We have a cross-section of students that transcends all barriers, but these students have a common, powerful bond."

"The whole board is excited about this program," said board vice president Kathy Moore. "We, as parents, can preach, stand on our heads, do everything, but students, as peers, can do more than all of us. We are behind you 100 percent."

"If the parents would make the same commitment it would help tremendously," said board member Shirley Wilson.

Hereford policeman Roy Rector, one of two officers working with the DARE program in Hereford's public schools and at two private schools, explained that DARE teaches life skills, risk management and self-confidence, among other things, in each of the 17, 45-minute lessons to sixth graders.

Rector explained that he goes into the classroom unarmed, and visits with students during recess and lunch.

"I want to show them that I'm not there to get them," Rector said. "We are there to help them."

"The students learn to resist abusing drugs. The concept of DARE is to never do drugs. We urge the students to take a stand against drugs, including an essay at the end of the course."

"If one kid says, 'I remembered what I learned in DARE and I was able to walk away from drugs,' then it will all be worth it, but I want to reach all of them."

Rector gave a synopsis of all 17 classes taught during the program.

Hereford teachers Cuca Salinas, Dorothy Brownlow and Carlynn Delozier gave an overview of the phonics program in the schools, which, Moore said, was the board's top goal.

Salinas, a kindergarten teacher, explained that phonics was the basis for reading, but was used in all other classes.

Salinas said the lessons go through the alphabet emphasizing both the long and short vowel sounds and various consonant sounds.

Bivins stays on senate campaign trail

Republican state senate candidate Teel Bivins visited Hereford on Tuesday, visiting several businesses and listening to concerns of voters.

Bivins will face Democratic candidate Mel Phillips in the November 8 general election to decide the replacement for Bill Sarpalus, who is giving up his seat to run for U.S. Representative in the 13th congressional district.

Bivins, who has put over 28,000 miles on his vehicle since beginning his campaign over the 29-county 31st senatorial district last February, said he's still hearing the same concerns today as he heard last winter. "They don't want a state income tax and they don't want to see continued wasteful spending by state lawmakers.

"The people here are also concerned about crime, education issues and measures that will help bring in more jobs. If I'm elected, I will take these concerns to Austin and will do something about them."

Bivins, a cattleman and businessman in Amarillo, said agriculture has been a key for him throughout the district.

"Every county, even Potter and Randall, has at least some agricultural base to the economy," Bivins said. "That's something that people will listen to. Even people that seem kind of turned off to you, when I tell them that if I'm elected I'll be one of two senators who makes a living in agriculture, they listen to you."

Bush unveils savings plan

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer

George Bush unveiled a modest savings plan aimed at assisting average Americans as the Republican nominee sought to stem criticism that his interests lie only with the rich. Democrat Michael Dukakis ridiculed the proposal for its limited financial benefits for the middle class.

The vice president, campaigning in the Midwest on Tuesday, introduced his "individual savings account" plan as an opportunity for low- and middle-income savers to put away up to $1,000 a year and defer paying taxes on the interest.

Bush said the system would help Americans be "better able to afford a home, pay for college, or start a business."

But Dukakis, calculating that the plan would provide a mere $20 a year to the taxpayer, questioned whether his GOP opponent was offering a serious solution to the economic crunch facing the middle class.

"Twenty bucks a year — that's Mr. Bush's solution for average Americans," Dukakis told an audience in the Chicago suburb of Melrose Park. "He says it will make them, and here I'm quoting, 'better able to afford a home, pay for college, start a business.' Twenty bucks a year, who's he kidding?"

Bush was planning to address some of the nation's average citizens today as he took a 150-mile bus tour of rural Illinois with stops at the Play Pin coffee shop in El Paso, a Del Monte processing plant in Mondota and a farm progress show in West Brooklyn.

Dukakis, after attending a rally in Greensburg, Pa., was traveling to New York City late this afternoon to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. The Democratic presidential nominee has come under attack for a lack of experience in foreign policy matters.

Bush's running mate, Dan Quayle, was spending his second consecutive day in Texas with campaign appearances in El Paso, Amarillo and Dallas. The Republican vice presidential nominee was expected to be the focus of Lloyd Bentsen's speech today in Independence, Mo., where the Democrat was planning to discuss qualifications for the vice presidency.

In the latest public opinion poll, 42 percent of 416 likely voters surveyed said Sunday's debate between Bush and Dukakis was a tie or didn't know who won — more than double the 20 percent who expressed one of those views after the debate.

The ABC News poll, which included voters who had not seen the debate but had heard or read about it, indicated the other post-debate polls and news media accounts reinforced perceptions that the debate was a dead heat.

JSEC adopts by-laws, goals

Goals were outlined and by-laws adopted when the Deaf Smith County Job Service Employer Committee (JSEC) held a quarterly meeting Tuesday at noon in the chamber of commerce office.

Mike Carr, chairman, reported the committee approved the following goals for the new year: Provide a means of formal communication with Texas Employment Commission and the employer community; increase awareness and effective use of TEC programs and services; improve the capability of TEC to service employers and applicants; and design and implement programs to meet business and community needs.

The group initiated plans for a student "Job Fair" to be held in May of each year. Purpose of the program will be to provide employment opportunities for 16 and 17-year-old students for the summer, including some tax-credit jobs.

Jerry Cash, TEC manager, reported the local office had increased placements dramatically over the same time a year ago. Job placements in July and August amounted to approximately 1,700 as compared to about 500 a year ago.

At a regional meeting recently, the Hereford TEC office received an award for the most improved office services in the region.

The JSEC by-laws adopted at the meeting provide for members to serve three-year terms, with one-third of the terms expiring each year. The committee will have a chairperson and a vice chairperson, each serving two-year terms. The members will elect the vice chairperson, and the immediate past chairperson will appoint the chairperson.

Members present for the meeting included Carr, Cash, Lewis, McDaniel, Ismael Gamez, LaJean Henry, and Speedy Nieman.

A male chauvinist was sitting in his room one day and he began to talk to God. Then man said, "God, why did You make women so beautiful?"

To which God replied, "Well, so you would like them."

"Oh," the man replied. "Why did You make women so soft?" Again god replied, "So you would like them."

The man was pensive for a moment and then asked, "God, why did You make women so darn stupid?"

To which God replied, "So they would like you!"

The United Way of Deaf Smith County campaign is off to a slow start, as usual, and leaders are expecting the drive to pick up momentum in the next week. Whether you give a lot, your fair share, just a little, or nothing, we urge you to be courteous to the volunteer worker who calls. These people are giving of their time for a very worthwhile cause.

Please remember, too, that this campaign funds 12 United Way agencies. You will be giving one time for 12 agencies. Just the idea of having one person contact you for a contribution, rather than 12, should be incentive enough to give a fair share!

We took off the past weekend for a little rest and relaxation in the pines at Ruidoso, N.M. We didn't know that motorcyclists were holding a convention in the resort town at the same time, but that fact didn't create a problem for us—except for one minor incident. The problem arose when we didn't see one of the bikers and almost ran him down when we changed lanes of traffic.

The biker seemed to be a nice sort of guy. He pulled up along side our car, waved one finger and yelled something at us. I think he was indicating that we were No. 1 with him and he wanted us to have a nice day. I could be wrong.

Babbling Brooks

By JOHN BROOKS

It's amazing how some things can be plumb blown out of proportion. Take the example of a Hereford woman who was found in her home this weekend by two friends.

The friends had seen the woman in her front yard as they were driving by.

The next day, something told them they needed to go by and check on her again. When they did, they had to break into the house, then go call an ambulance. The woman had fallen and broken her hip. She had lain there for about 23 hours, the best they can figure.

Now, Red Garrett can tell a story, but this one is his because he was one of the people who found the lady.

When Red got to Troy's Sweet Shop on Monday morning, though, it had already been plumb blown.

Red may have been more disappointed with the fact that he didn't get to tell the story first, but he wanted to set the record straight in a hurry, especially since it got plumb blown in a hurry.

No, Red told his friends, the lady hadn't been lying there for three days and found by some Hispanic folks.

Instead, it was much more dramatic.

Red summed it up this way: "I think God just wanted us to go over there."

The Lufkin paper had another example of how stories get turned around.

One of their columnists traced down a story to the first guy who told it in Lufkin. He had brought it to town from Atlanta or New Jersey or somewhere off where they tell Pollack or Armenian or some other kind of joke.

To give the story a little more effect in Texas, some of the characters were renamed. In fact, it got to the point where it was being told about a Lufkin man who is probably a crack entomologist or agronomist or Astroturf irrigator or county agent that decided to spend Daddy's money at a famous Texas agriculture school near Bryan.

Instead of the joke being told about some Pepsi-Cola salesman in Atlanta (that's where Coca-Cola is headquartered, ya know), it was changed to give it a more local perspective.

This astroturf irrigator looked out his front window and saw his dog clutching his neighbor's rabbit between his teeth.

The astroturf irrigator was really flustered because the neighbors were gone on vacation, so he finally decided to go chasing after the dog. After about five minutes of cussing, screaming, kicking and pulling, the dog finally released the rabbit.

The rabbit was dead. However, it wasn't too badly mangled, so the astroturf irrigator took the rabbit into the house, sham-poed it, blow-dried it, fluffed up its fur, and put it back in the neighbor's rabbit hutch.

The rabbit looked like it had expired right there in the cage.

A few days later, the neighbor returns from vacation and goes by the astroturf irrigator's house.

"How was your vacation?" the astroturf irrigator asked.

"It was great, but the most incredible thing just happened. We found our rabbit dead in its cage," the neighbor said.

"Oh, my," said the astroturf irrigator, clutching his face in his hands. "That's just unbelievable."

"Yeah, it really is," the neighbor said. "We buried that rabbit a week before we left."

You see how stories get changed around? That story has a little less flair around here if you tell it on some Yankee guy named Dukakis or "ush. We sometimes change stories or jokes so we can all better identify with the victims.

Encouragement

"Before, we didn't get into letters," Salinas said. "We got into phonics much later. Now, we begin very early with all of the sounds, and that is very helpful when these students get into the first grade and start reading."

Salinas said her students get several phonics lessons during the course of the day, stressing different vocabulary words in various subjects that contain the "letter of the day."

The letter of the day is contained on badges worn by the students and on a stuffed figure that waves a pennant that has the letter.

Salinas also uses picture cards, story cards, records, tapes, small books and special supplements, some that she has obtained on her own, to help with the program.

Salinas stressed that the phonics program should be uniform at each school in Hereford because of students who transfer in and out of the district or switch schools during the year.

"Phonics helps these students in art, social studies and science," Salinas said. "A lot of my students have a limited vocabulary, and if we teach them vocabulary words along with the sounds it helps in many aspects. The stronger their foundation is in phonics, their reading skills will help in other areas during their school years and make it easier on them."

Brownlow, a first grade teacher at Tierra Blanca Primary School, said her reading program revolves around phonics. She also uses a student's knowledge of phonics, besides various assessment tests, in placing the students in special areas.

"I usually have three groups of students each year: one is short in phonics, one has the phonics basics, and one group is ready to begin reading," Brownlow said.

Along with the school's basal reader, Brownlow uses materials gleaned from workbooks and other programs over the years. Besides the basal reader, workbooks, supplementary readers and basic review, Brownlow also uses overhead transparencies "for a change of pace."

"It's a challenge, but you have endless opportunities to tie in with other subjects," Brownlow said. She told the board how she used a science lesson on the five senses to tie in with phonics, placing various letters of the alphabet inside a box, had her students reach into the box and try to identify the letter by touch, then give her a word that contained that letter.

"One of my major goals is to have the child be as independent as possible," Brownlow said. "All of the children should learn phonics, and we should make it stronger over the years. The students need to develop word attack skills so they don't ever have to ask about what they are reading."

Delozier, a fifth-grade teacher, said she can easily identify students who have not had phonics training because they lack the word attack skills.

"They usually rely on memory and memory words," Delozier said. "Most of them try to compensate for their shortcomings in phonics. With a child who is already reading, phonics is confusing, but we are able to use phonics in spelling."

"We need to see education is not just a single strand (in each subject area). You use reading and English skills in other classes. We stress phonics in spelling, and we stress pronunciation keys and other helps in all of our subjects. We make an effort to use phonics and writing skills in all of our studies."

The board also approved changes in the job description for the bilingual director, okayed the tax abatement and reinvestment zone guidelines, approved new policies for fund-raising activities, and referred a change in career ladder policy to the board's policy and personnel committee for consideration before the October board meeting.

Gang rape testimony hurt case

SAN DIEGO, Texas (AP) — Several of the jurors who convicted the first of 10 gang rape defendants say the defendant's testimony was damaging to his defense and two of the jurors say they fear retaliation from friends and relatives.

Jurors deliberated about two hours early Tuesday before finding Orlando Garza, 24, guilty of forcing the woman to have sex with him and then took about 20 minutes to recommend that he be given the maximum sentence of 20 years in prison.

The victim claims that as many as 23 men forced her to have sex with them after she was abducted by Garza and three other men as she walked on a street near her home in the Duval County seat town of 5,000.

Some of the jurors Tuesday told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times they developed a sense of mistrust of Garza while listening to his testimony.

Garza testified that the woman willingly accompanied the men to the scene of a cock fight north of San Diego and agreed, in fact, urged him to have sex with her.

Some of the jurors were hesitant to discuss the case and two were fearful of retaliation by friends or relatives of Garza or the other 10 defendants.

Jurors were subjected to a 23-hour ordeal in reaching the conclusion of the trial because District Judge Ricardo H. Garcia wanted to attend a judicial conference in Fort Worth. The final day of proceedings began at 9:30 a.m. Monday and ended shortly after 7 a.m. Tuesday.

The judge gave jurors the option of going home to rest or remaining to finish the trial. They chose to stay.

The six jurors who would comment on the trial said they felt that they reached the right decision in finding Garza guilty.

Juror Edna Garza of Benavides, said that the two hours of early-morning deliberation yesterday were tedious and tense.

"There were two jurors who thought he (Garza) was not guilty, and this held things up," she said. "They didn't think the 12-year-old had any business at the trial, because he was so young, and wanted to disregard his testimony."

A 12-year-old boy testified last Friday that he saw the woman being sexually attacked at the cockfight. He named all 10 men charged in the case.

Ms. Garza said she told her fellow jurors that if her husband were killed or attacked, she'd want any witness to step forward, regardless of age.

Letters to the Editor

Dear sir: I am writing to you in regard to an article your newspaper printed in the Friday, Sept. 23 edition.

The article in question is the one concerning Ted Langgood, police captain, and current sheriff Joe Brown.

Mr. Langgood and Mr. Brown both want the public to believe that they are the perfect man for the job. They would like us to believe that they will be as harsh as Hitler.

In all actuality, sir, they each are nothing but lost little lambs, like Bambi, underneath their semi-hard exterior.

In the future I would enjoy seeing articles with more literary merit and less political underpinnings.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Billy Cockrum

USSR holds up withdrawal

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze says the Soviet Union has suspended the withdrawal of its troops from Afghanistan because of persistent violations of a U.N.-negotiated agreement.

Also Tuesday, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev told the United States and Pakistan to "come to their senses" and stop arming the guerrillas fighting the communist Afghan government.

In remarks reported by the official Tass news agency, Gorbachev said Pakistan was trying to install leaders in neighboring Afghanistan to its own liking despite the wishes of the Afghan people.

At the United Nations, Shevardnadze said the Soviets have not yet begun the second stage of their withdrawal from Afghanistan. Half a Soviet force of more than 100,000 troops had pulled out by Aug. 15.

"Let's wait and see," he told reporters. "It is necessary to stop the violations that take place. It is the most important thing."

In a speech to the General Assembly earlier, he asked the five members of the U.N. Security Council to discuss violations of the withdrawal agreement with Afghanistan and Pakistan.

"As soon as Soviet troops began to withdraw, a non-stop production line of violations was set in motion," said Shevardnadze.

He did not name Pakistan, but the Soviet Union has filed numerous complaints with the United Nations.

Community Concert slated Monday

Renowned violinist Robert McDuffie will be featured in the first concert of the season sponsored by Hereford Community Concert Association. The event will be held Monday, Oct. 3 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium, and membership cards are required.

McDuffie's highly personalized playing has won him a favored position among both audiences and critics. Martin Bernheimer of the Los Angeles Times called the violinist "spectacularly gifted," going on to describe how "McDuffie flew over the hurdles with invariably sweet and slender tone, with razor-sharp precision, with impeccable rhythmic punch. This was fiddling of the highest order."

Devoting as much of his concert season to concerto appearances as to the recital stage, McDuffie has an enormous repertoire, which feature several contemporary works. His orchestral engagements have included concerts with the Chicago Symphony, Atlanta Symphony, Baltimore Symphony, St. Louis Symphony, Cincinnati Symphony, Calgary Philharmonic, San Diego Symphony and Pasadena Symphony, and such foreign orchestras as the Czech Philharmonic and Danish State Radio Orchestra.

The 1988-89 concert season finds Mr. McDuffie on a European tour, appearing as guest soloist (Mendelssohn concerto and Bach Double Concerto) with the Netherlands Chamber Orchestra under conductor Yehudi Menuhin, which includes prestigious festivals of Switzerland, Italy and Holland.

He is scheduled to perform and record his first disc for Angel Records, with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra and Leonard Slatkin. The repertoire will be the Bernstein Serenade and William Schuman's violin concerto. The latter will be the vehicle for McDuffie's Carnegie Hall, concerto debut. McDuffie will tour the U.S. in special performances commemorating composer Olivier Messiaen (Quartet for the End of Time). The season continues with his participation as guest soloist with the Warsaw Sinfonia and performances across the continent. This follows McDuffie's tour of the Orient.

With over 25 active works for violin and orchestra in his repertoire, Mr. McDuffie has been lavished with praise for the Dvorak concerto, in particular.

Summers have found McDuffie appearing with the chamber music festivals of Seattle, Vancouver, and Santa Fe. This year, he returns to Colorado's Aspen Festival as artist-in-residence. He will also perform Bernstein's Serenade at the Keystone Festival (Colorado) with the National Repertory Orchestra.

McDuffie's recent engagements have also been highlighted by two of the more notable engagements in the U.S., appearances with the Chicago

Symphony Orchestra at the Ravinia Festival (Tchaikovsky concerto) and a special all-Brahms chamber music concert at Carnegie Hall in New York which commemorated the 150th anniversary of the composer's birth.

McDuffie and Yehudi Menuhin collaborated once again, this time on Lincoln Center's Great Performers Series; McDuffie also appeared as the only soloist in the 25th anniversary concert of Lincoln center at Fisher Hall with the Juilliard Orchestra. Last season marked his first Lincoln Center recital at Alice Tully Hall (works of Beethoven, Prokofiev, Peter Mennin, and Bartok were performed).

McDuffie was soloist with the Czech Philharmonic in the Dvorak Violin Concerto during the Orchestra's recent North American tour. He has been heard in recital throughout the U.S. and Canada and was featured as guest soloist with the Danish National Orchestra, on their U.S. tour under Sixten Ehrling, in the Mendelssohn Concerto. He has toured Greece as guest soloist with the American Symphony Orchestra, including appearances at the Athens Festival, and has toured the Soviet Union. He has also performed with Brazil's State Orchestra of Sao Paulo under conductor Eleazar de Carvalho, returning to South America repeatedly over the past several seasons.

An artist with an unusually diverse repertoire, McDuffie gave the world premiere of American composer David Diamond's Second Violin Sonata, written for and dedicated to Robert McDuffie, at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. (He has recorded both of the composer's violin/piano sonatas for Grenadilla.)

An active chamber music participant, he regularly performs with such colleagues as cellists Lynn Harrell, Gary Hoffman, and Nathaniel Rosen; violists Michael Tree, Toby Hoffman, and Nobuko Imai; pianists Misha Dichter, Lilian Kallir and Lee Luvisi.

Among McDuffie's numerous television appearances, this year was highlighted by a special profile on NBC's Today Show and he has been the subject of numerous articles. This season, Ovation magazine will present a feature article, and Musical America, an article on the occasion of the Bernstein/Schuman recording. A favorite of Washington, D.C. musical circles, McDuffie has given two special, private recitals at the invitation of the U.S. Supreme Court.

McDuffie studied with Dorothy DeLay at the Juilliard School of Music, in New York City. Among his former teachers are also Henrik Schwarzenberger, Margaret Pardee, and Jens Ellerman. He is a native of Georgia, presently residing in New York with his wife, Camille Taylor McDuffie.

Ever get the idea your banker is somewhere else when you need him most?

While our example may be a bit extreme, our point is disturbingly real. It can be a waste of time and money to entrust your financial relationship to people unresponsive to your business and personal needs.

At Hereford State Bank you deal on a principal-to-principal basis with one of our loan officers, who have a personal interest in their business and therefore will be highly motivated to take a personal interest in your business.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Not organizing financial records is one of the major money blunders many people make, according to Aetna Life Insurance and Annuity Co.

It says credit card statements, check stubs and receipts, if they are organized properly, will allow you to monitor and adjust your spending. You can take the deductions you're entitled to at income tax time and you'll feel confident you know how your money is being used.

Whitefaces make quick work of Levelland

A winning kill

Hereford's Jill West slams home a winner out of the reach of potential Levelland blockers in Tuesday's varsity volleyball match at the Hereford High School gym. Hereford ran its District 1-4A record to 4-1 with a 15-1, 15-2 win.

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

The Hereford Whiteface varsity volleyball team played like a team possessed Tuesday night. If you could see their collective aura, it was an aura of confidence.

Unlike some other matches this season, the Whitefaces didn't play as if they couldn't make a mistake. Instead, they played as if they wouldn't make a mistake.

Hereford made very few mistakes. They allowed their opponents, the Levelland Loboettes, to serve the ball only 13 times in two games Tuesday. Hereford served the ball only 34 times. On 30 serves, Hereford scored.

Hereford looked like the No. 2 team in the state looking for No. 1 as the Whitefaces whacked Levelland, 15-1, 15-2 in a District 1-4A match at the Hereford High School gym.

Shock wouldn't be the best description of Hereford coach Brenda Reeh after the short match. Very, very pleasantly described may be better.

"I have never seen our kids want to get to the ball like they did tonight," said Reeh, beaming, after the game. "We had three hitters on every play wanting the ball. We displayed more confidence and poise than ever before. This is the best we have ever played."

Levelland served, then Hereford reeled off three points to start the match, let Levelland have a serve, scored four points more on Poppy Richardson's serve, gave up a Levelland point, scored the next seven points behind the service of Cande Robbins, let Levelland serve the ball one more time, then scored the game point when Jill West served the ball backward over the net and into a Levelland no-man's land.

That's the first game. Short and sweet. Five lines of shorthand notes.

The second game, Hereford gave up two points but made even quicker work of the Loboettes. It took just four lines of notes.

At least the Whitefaces shared the fun this time: They actually rotated all the way around with the service and cleared the bench.

Highlighted by a scoring block by Richardson, a service ace by West, and two kills by Libby Kosub, the Whitefaces allowed Levelland to serve the ball only eight times as Hereford scored on 15 of its 21 serves to take the easy win.

"When we played Dumas (a two-game loss at home on Sept. 17) we were scared to make a mistake, afraid we would fail at something," Reeh said. "Since then we have been working hard on setting goals, and one of those goals is to display an air of confidence."

"Volleyball is such a mental game. The mental game in volleyball is a lot stronger than in any other sport. It's not directed just at the other team, but at yourself, too."

"When you lose your mental control over your confidence you don't play well. It's got to be a conscious thought. We spend a lot of time on mental toughness."

"There's never been any doubt that we could compete physically."

We've just got to be better than the other team mentally.

"I have never seen our kids play this well. We have lots to be proud of."

Kosub led Hereford's attack with nine good hits, including four kills. Cande Robbins had four kills, while Shantel Cornelius, Jill West and Poppy Richardson had two kills each.

Nikki Self and Robbins each had seven service points.

The JV contest was tougher for Hereford, but the Whiteface JV slugged out a 15-11, 16-14 win.

"The JV missed a lot of serves, but Levelland free-balled a lot, and we earned a lot of points from that. That's important for the JV to do," Reeh said.

"Traci Brush had one of her best games, coming in and serving several points for us," said coach Lynn gilbreath. "Jayme Moore was a solid player for us again tonight. She always comes through with some great passes with almost never an error. She's our rock."

"Kelli Thames' net play was great. She came in and played a real strong game at the net."

This win fair and square

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — This time, there was no controversial finish, no debate about how three mysterious seconds kept showing up on the clock, no argument about the outcome.

This time, the USSR won fair and square — with a little help from its professional friends.

In their first meeting since the 1972 gold medal game that ended in confusion and America's only other Olympic basketball loss, the Soviet Union beat the U.S. 82-76 in the tournament semifinals Wednesday.

That moved the Soviets into the gold medal game and left the U.S. facing the prospect of nothing better than a bronze, its poorest finish in Olympic history.

Does this mean the world has caught up to the country that invented this sport? Well, not necessarily. It means only that in a tournament where every team has lost one game, the Americans had the bad judgment to lose its game in the medal round.

And, it also means that it pays to have the right friends.

Some time ago, Soviet Coach Alexander Gomelski, who looks like central casting's prototype grandfather, decided basketball in his land was on something of a treadmill, unlike the fertile American program.

"In U.S., there is fantastic basketball," Gomelski said. "There are many coaches and the boys dribble and shoot right after talking in the U.S."

This, he decided, would be a fine place to seek help for the fledgling Soviet program which, despite the 1972 Olympic gold medal, was struggling. In the spirit of glasnost and detente, Gomelski and the Soviets got the help they needed from that most capitalist operation, the NBA.

There were annual exhibition series against the Milwaukee Bucks and the Atlanta Hawks. And the Portland Trailblazers, admittedly with a vested interest, supervised the Achilles tendon rehabilitation of Soviet center 7-foot-3 Arvidas Sabonis, whose pro rights they held.

For all this, as well as annual pre-season tours against top U.S. college teams, Gomelski was grateful. "It was very good preparation for my team," he said. "NBA games help. I am happy. Thank you, U.S. basketball."

Now it might strike you as strange that American basketball interests would help Gomelski's team, while Thompson was trying to assemble a team that could beat the same Soviets in the Olympics. Gomelski, however, saw nothing unusual about it.

"I am basketball man," he said. "My politics are basketball. All people in all countries are happy friends now. People sleep with no problems. Maybe Coach Thompson does not understand this."

What Thompson did understand was the emotion and anxiety that comes from a game against the Soviets. There are the bad memories of '72, the differences in political systems, the whole package that raises any meeting with the USSR beyond the level of a simple basketball game.

So, just for good measure, Gomelski tweaked Thompson one more time on the issue of the American pros helping the Soviet program.

Bosox clinging to narrow lead

By HILLEL ITALIE Associated Press Writer

Boston's got it wrapped up, right? They can't miss, right? Well...

While Milwaukee and New York were winning, the Red Sox continued to stumble against Toronto and kept the race alive in the American League East.

The Red Sox still lead Detroit, New York and Milwaukee by 3½ games with five left to play, but after being pounded by the Blue Jays a second straight night, they can't be blamed for feeling a little antsy.

"We gotta go out there tomorrow and show a little character," Boston reliever Bob Stanley said. "We have to show we can come back after getting beat up two games in a row. Tomorrow's a big game for us."

Ernie Whitt drove in six runs with two homers and a single in Toronto's 15-9 victory Tuesday night. Whitt, who spent six years in the Boston farm system, couldn't help enjoying his role in slowing the Red Sox' title drive.

"We're out of the race, but we're still trying to finish as high as we can. And it's nice to play spoiler."

Yankees 5, Orioles 1

New York got two homers from Don Mattingly and seven strong innings from Ron Guidry to pull into a tie for second place in the AL East.

Mattingly connected in the first and third innings and Guidry improved to 2-3 with his longest outing of the year.

New York jumped on Baltimore's Curt Schilling, 0-2, for two quick runs in the top of the first when Rickey Henderson opened with a single and Mattingly homered.

Indians 4, Tigers 0

Tom Candiotti won his sixth straight decision, a career high, and pitched his first shutout of the season as Cleveland prevented Detroit from gaining ground on the Red Sox.

Candiotti, 13-8, allowed four hits, struck out four and walked two for his 11th complete game of the year.

Frank Tanana, 14-11, allowed nine hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Reggie Williams and Carmen Castillo homered in the bottom of the eighth.

Brewers 6, Angels 5

Don August also won his sixth straight decision and Milwaukee held off a ninth-inning California rally to keep its faint title hopes alive.

August, 13-6, allowed seven hits in 6 1-3 innings. He led 6-0 after five innings but was chased in the seventh after giving up an RBI double to Devon White.

Chuck Crim replaced August and gave up a three-run homer to Johnny Ray.

Twins 5, Athletics 0

Allan Anderson pitched his first major league shutout and Minnesota set an American League record for attendance in a single season.

White Sox 3, Rangers 2

Shawn Hillegas and Tom McCarthy combined on a two-hitter and Mike Diaz homered on a 3-0 pitch in the ninth to lead Chicago.

Diaz's homer, his third, came off Texas starter Paul Kilgus, 11-15, who lost his fourth straight decision.

Mariners 10, Royals 3

Darnell Coles went 4-for-4 with three RBI and three runs scored, and Alvin Davis also drove in three runs as Seattle beat Kansas City.

Steve Balboni and Edgar Martinez added two RBI apiece in support of rookie Erik Hanson, 2-2, who gave up six hits in six innings. Mike Jackson worked three innings and earned his fourth save.

Tom Gordon, also a rookie, lasted just 4 1-3 innings and dropped to 0-2.

Chicago drops Montreal, 8-3

By The Associated Press

Calvin Schiraldi knows the difference between Wrigley Field and Olympic Stadium.

"The wind doesn't blow out here like it does at Wrigley Field," he said. "You can afford to give up those 400-foot fly balls, and I gave up some tonight."

Schiraldi scattered eight hits over 8 1-3 innings to end a five-game losing streak and Mark Grace drove in two runs Tuesday night as the Chicago Cubs beat the Montreal Expos 5-3.

Schiraldi, 9-13, struck out four and walked two before Rich Gossage finished for his 13th save, allowing a run-scoring groundout to Tim Lincecum.

"I struggled in the sixth, seventh and eighth," Schiraldi said. "I sweat a lot and it gets pretty chilly here with the air conditioning, and my arm stiffened up."

Chicago had five hits in the four-run first. Mitch Webster singled, stole second and Grace singled him in. Andre Dawson tripled and scored on Rafael Palmeiro's squeeze bunt. Vance Law followed with an RBI double. Grace added an RBI double in the second.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 2

Bobby Bonilla hit a two-run single and Andy Van Slyke threw out the tying run at home plate with two outs in the ninth inning as Pittsburgh clinched second place in the National League East.

Phillies 5, Mets 4

Tommy Barrett hit a run-scoring single off Roger McDowell, 5-5, to snap a ninth-inning tie. With one out, Chris James singled and took second on Greg Gross' groundout before Barrett pinch hit for Steve Jeltz.

Steve Bedrosian, 6-6, got the final out in the top of the ninth after relieving Don Carman, who gave up seven hits in 8 2-3 innings.

Astros 3, Braves 2

Alex Trevino hit a run-scoring single in the 10th inning, sending Atlanta to its seventh consecutive loss. Rafael Ramirez singled off Joe Boever, 0-1, Kevin Bass sacrificed and Trevino singled to left.

Danny Darwin, 8-13, pitched 1 2-3 innings of hitless relief.

Padres 8, Dodgers 4

Eric Show, 16-11, pitched a six-hitter for his career-high 16th victory, striking out a season-high nine in his 13th complete game, the most for a Padres pitcher since Randy Jones had 25 in 1976.

Tim Leary, 17-10, gave up eight hits and seven runs in 3 2-3 innings.

Giants 6, Reds 3

Jose Uribe had three hits and drove in two runs as San Francisco snapped Cincinnati's eight-game winning streak.

Auditions for Chamber Singers slated Sunday

Members of the popular Hereford Chamber Singers are preparing for their 15th season as auditions are planned at 4:30 p.m. Sunday in the choir room at Hereford High School. The Singers are looking for all types of voices to add to the group depending on the needs of the choir. Various Chamber Singers will accompany a prospective member who auditions in a quartet. Further information may be obtained by calling the Singers' director, Bill Devers, at 364-4053 after 6 p.m.

Since its inception Oct. 29, 1974, the main goal of the Hereford Chamber Singers has been to develop human relations through music. The seven co-founders include Bobby Boyd, Devers, Jane Guley, Sylvia Holman, Dr. Duffy McBrayer, Douglas Morris and Jan Walser.

The Singers have performed in Brisbane, Australia, Romania at numerous area functions. They give at least two major concerts annually for the Hereford community. The musical themes performed have covered a broad range—sacred, country-western, Broadway musical hits, Eugene Butler and Houston Bright compositions, Walt Disney musicals and contemporary selections.

THIS TEST IS SIMPLE
ORADELL, N.J. (AP) — Testing a typical patient with early Alzheimer's disease now takes only about 15 minutes with the Neurobehavioral Cognitive Status Examination.
 This is a new, short test that screens for cognitive dysfunction in the five major ability areas, says Diagnosis magazine. It's brief enough for use either at bedside or in the office and helps identify the source of an individual's difficulties.
 It also aids the patient, doctor and caregivers in devising appropriate management strategies for the impairments.

September. The Hereford Garden Center, once the site of the Camp Fire Lodge, has been landscaped and maintained by members of the Hereford Garden Club for many years.

Hints from Heloise

STICKY MEATLOAF
 Dear Heloise: This is the way that I make meatloaf and it is great because it keeps it from sticking to the bottom of the casserole dish.
 I place a couple of strips of bacon on the bottom of the dish and then add the meatloaf mixture. It is easy to remove and has a good flavor. — Diane Patton, San Antonio, Texas

GRAHAM-CRACKER CRUST
 Dear Heloise: I recently started to make my favorite pie, a no-bake chocolate with a graham-cracker crust.
 After beginning I realized I didn't have any graham crackers!
 I searched through my cupboards, but the only thing I could find was chocolate-chip cookies. Since I didn't want to go to the store, I figured I would use the cookies for the crust.
 I crushed them and used them in place of the graham. What a delicious and different crust this made! Now I regularly use them instead of the graham crackers. — Cindy Wrangler, Kansas City, Mo.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was 17 I ran away from home. (I'm a girl.) I was running away from an alcoholic father and a mother who had a nervous breakdown and was off the wall most of the time. I have several brothers and a sister who were stoned a lot. They sold drugs and stole to support their habits.

I knew I had to get out of that environment, but I should not have run away from home. It is too dangerous. Teen-age runaways are easy prey for pimps and drug dealers because they are naive and vulnerable and have no money. They often get raped and end up as prostitutes.

I didn't know there were courts that could have put me in a foster home where I would have had food and shelter, and maybe, with luck, some people who cared about me.

Ann, please keep telling kids who are having trouble at home that it is awfully dangerous to go off on their own. Tell them again and again to talk to a school counselor or a favorite teacher or a clergyman—or the parent of a friend. Anything is better than the streets.

I found my way back from a living hell and am determined to make a respectable life for myself. Believe me when I tell you I am—Lucky to be Alive, Baton Rouge

DEAR BATON: I hope to heaven you stick with it and that you will help your brothers and sister find a way to a decent life.

Father Bruce Ritter, that saintly priest in New York who operates shelters for runaways, says that their biggest problem now is AIDS. Most of the kids who come to them are already infected. He says no matter how bad it is at home, it is better than the streets. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to once again focus on this tragic problem.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read something in the paper that has convinced me that people are going nuts because they don't have enough to do.

A man in San Francisco, whose business it is to sell checks to banks, got bored one day because all the checks looked the same. He dressed up what he calls "naughty checks." These checks have drawings that are supposed to be funny. There's one of a man making obscene gestures, another of a dog with his hind leg raised. A third is of a man mooning. The creator of these checks says that his job is a lot more interesting now and business is good.

Ann I am a respectable, church-going woman who used to work in a bank. I would be terribly upset if I ran into that kind of trash on the job.

Is there any law that could make such checks illegal? I mean how far down are we going to allow the First Amendment and freedom of expression to take us anyway?—Burned Up in Fresno

DEAR BURNED: Personally, I think the idea is geared to the mentality of idiots. But so long as the drawings aren't hard-core porn they cannot be outlawed. It's part of the price we pay for being a free people and, in my opinion, it's worth it.
