Dukakis says late responses could hurt

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer

Michael Dukakis admitted that "perhaps I responded too late" to rival George Bush's attacks as the Democratic nominee shrugged off a double-digit deficit in new polls. The Republican contender renewed his charge that Dukakis lacks the necessary experience to govern the nation.

With less than two weeks remaining until Election Day, Dukakis insisted in a late-night television interview Tuesday that there was still time for him to overtake front-runner Bush.

But when asked shortly after the program about polls showing him trailing by 13 and 14 percentage points, the Democratic nominee simply replied, "Forging ahead."

In the 90-minute interview on ABC's "Nightline," questioner Ted Koppel asked Dukakis what Bush had done to "nail your hide to the wall thus far." The Democratic nominee failed to challenge Koppel's assessment of the White House race before answering the question.

"Two things," Dukakis said. "The Bush campaign made a very careful and deliberate decision way back in the spring to run a tough, attacking, negative campaign. And they've been doing it ever since and perhaps I responded too late, perhaps I should have been out there attacking or counterattacking from the beginning."

He also criticized Republican advertising and charged Bush with running a campaign "loaded with distortion and misrepres trying to run away from his record. I have factually pointed out where he stands on the record," Bush said during a campaign stop in Akron, Ohio. "And I am not going to be deterred. I am going to keep doing that honestly, factually."

The vice president, targeting a must-win Dukakis state, told an audience in Lima, Ohio, that the election is a referendum on peace and prosperity and that Dukakis is too inexperienced to be president.

"We cannot gamble America's future on a president who hasn't had one single day's experience in national defense matters or foreign affairs," Bush said.

Bush was delivering a speech on economics today in Detroit before traveling to South Dakota and Montana. Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle was in Florida, campaigning for Senate candidate Connie Mack III and touring Miami's Little Havana community.

Dukakis was meeting with Hispanic leaders in Denver before traveling to Illinois while running mate Lloyd Bentsen was stumping in Montana and California, the major electoral prize with 47 votes.

Polls released Tuesday suggested that the Democratic ticket faces a difficult task in its quest for the White House.

A CBS News-New York Times survey of 1,287 probable voters showed Bush leading Dukakis 54-41 percent while a Gallup poll of 815 likely voters showed Bush up by 14 points, 53-39 percent.

The CBS-Times poll was conducted Friday through Monday and had a margin of error of three points. The Gallup survey was done Friday through Sunday and had a four-point error margin.

Meanwhile, the Republican ticket picked up an endorsement from a newspaper all too familiar to Dukakis — the Boston Herald.

Red Ribbon Day

Trees, light posts, and other structures in most Hereford parks have been decorated with large "Just Say No" ribbons like the tree pictured here for National Red Ribbon Week. Today is Red Ribbon Day, part of a nationwide anti-drug effort. Many Hereford people are wearing red ribbons today in support of the anti-drug campaign.

FmHA to mail letters on late loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 90,000 farmers who are behind in their loan repayments to the Farmers Home Administration will be getting notices shortly after the Nov. 8 election telling them to start making arrangements for settlement.

The Agriculture Department agency said Tuesday the notices will be an attempt to collect about $8.8 billion in past-due loans.

Spokesman Marlyn Aycock said rules implementing new credit legislation will take effect Nov. 14 and that "Dear Farmer Jones" notices will start going out soon thereafter to the delinquent FmHA borrowers.

Aycock said the notices will say: "This is to inform you that you're seriously behind in your loan payments and to inform you of your options. Farmers who are more than 180 days late in making payments have several options."

The notices will explain that the FmHA borrowers must notify the agency within 45 days if they intend to apply to make arrangements for settling their debts. Details regarding the options, including debt restructuring and write-offs, also will be provided.

Aycock said the timetable for sending out the notices as promptly as possible took into consideration the months of rulemaking, periods for public comment and time for training FmHA people to handle the additional job load.

Congress ordered FmHA to revise its lending practices in the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987. The agency is often called the farm lender of last resort because it makes loans only to those who cannot qualify at banks or other commercial sources.

The debt write-down, or forgiveness provision, is regarded as one of the most important parts of the 1987 law. It allows FmHA to reduce a farmer's delinquent debt to the recovery value of the collateral, which is usually land or farm equipment, depending on cash flow and other factors.

Also, as the result of lawsuits, the FmHA is under court order to redo many of its loan regulations and to hold up on foreclosures and forced liquidations until those actions are completed.

Estimates of the extent of FmHA loan delinquencies and numbers of farmers potentially threatened by foreclosure under the new rules have varied.

Last May 23, when the new regulations were proposed, FmHA losses resulting from write-offs and other settlements were estimated at about $8.7 billion and that about 118,000 borrowers were delinquent. About 64,800 of those could be pushed into liquidation or foreclosure because they couldn't qualify for help under the new law.

Another major step was an interim rule announced on Sept. 14, including procedures for making debt restructuring and write-downs. Those were to take effect on Oct. 14 on an interim basis and called for final adoption on Nov. 14 after a 60-day period for public comments.

Low voter turnout feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The turnout in the presidential election is expected to be one of the lowest this century, continuing a trend of declining voter participation in a nation that prides itself as a beacon of Western democracy, say political analysts.

Public interest groups are warning that only 50 percent or less of the eligible voters will go to the polls on Nov. 8, about the same as the record low 49 percent turnout in the 1924 presidential election.

The declining turnout, down from a record high 79 percent in 1896, puts the United States at the bottom of the voter participation list in the world's democratic systems.

Belgium heads the average voter participation list with 95 percent while the United States ranks last with 53 percent and Ireland second to last at 62 percent, according to figures compiled by Frances Fox Piven and Richard Cloward in their book, "Why Americans Don't Vote."

Most political scientists attribute the low American participation to the requirement that voters register days or weeks before they cast their ballot. In contrast, registration in West European democracies is generally automatic, with the voter receiving a notice in the mail.

"In fact, American registration procedures are Byzantine compared with those that prevail in other democracies," said Piven and Cloward.

Walter Dean Burnham, an expert on voter participation, says that without "the two-step hurdle" of registration and voting, turnout would increase 8 to 10 percent. Figures show that 87 percent of those who do register go to the polls on Election Day.

As every general election approaches, there is a get-out-the-vote campaign carried on by the media and other organizations. Political observers are now concerned that Nov. 8 election will have the lowest voter turnout in years.

The Brand has joined these campaigns in the past, urging people to vote. We quit doing this a number of years back because we believe people should not have to be begged to cast a ballot. If they don't have enough interest to vote, if they don't register because they might be called for jury duty, or if they vote the way some political boss or friend tells them to vote, we'd just as soon they went fishing or whatever else they want to do on election day.

While we live in a time when we are surrounded by information on elections, it still takes an effort to separate the political rhetoric from the facts. Millions of voters will study the issues and the candidates and make their choices. This is the way our election process should work. Hopefully, the majority of voters will cast those "informed" ballots that decide the outcome of the elections.

From time to time, we are reminded to count our blessings, and a job is one of those items to be included on the list of positive things. In today's economic climate, a regular paycheck is a blessing—even if it's not as big as we think it should be.

We saw a church bulletin recently that had an item about blessings. It told of an elderly farmer who listed his property for sale with a real estate agent. When the Realtor wrote up the advertisement, he read it back to the farmer for his approval.

The farmer was quiet for a moment, then said, "I don't believe I want to sell. That's the kind of place I've been looking for all my life. I didn't know I had it until you described it to me!"

Local Roundup

Bonfire is Thursday

A bonfire and pep rally for the Hereford varsity football team will be held Thursday at 9 p.m. at the Kids, Inc. Baseball Complex on East Fifteenth Street just east of the Hereford city limits. All local football fans are invited to attend.

Weather change coming

Tonight will be fair and cool with a low of 48. South winds will be 10-20 mph and gusty.

Thursday will be sunny, windy and warmer with a high of 78. South winds will be 20-30 mph and gusty, becoming northerly during the afternoon as a cold front approaches the area.

This morning's low at KPAN was 45 after a high Tuesday of 73.

Man injured in accident

Marvin Koetting, a Deaf Smith County farmer, is listed in critical but stable condition today at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo after he was injured in a farm accident Tuesday.

The accident occurred at about 1 p.m. Tuesday northwest of the Simms community. Witnesses said Koetting was standing beside his tractor, which was still in gear, when it started moving. Koetting became entangled in a wheat drill behind the tractor and suffered internal injuries and several broken bones.

Sheriff's office arrests two

A 34-year old Hereford man was arrested Tuesday by Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputies on a driving while intoxicated jail commitment.

Theodore Argeonas, 35, was picked up in Oklahoma City on Tuesday after his arrest there Friday in connection with bad check charges.

Argeonas is charged with writing at least 17 bad checks as far back as September 1987. Charges against him were filed here on March 30.

Police investigate incidents

Hereford police are searching for suspects in connection with reckless damage at the Holiday Motel at 915 West Highway 60 in Hereford.

A vehicle hit a wall outside a room, causing $1,000 in damage sometime between 7 and 8 a.m. on Tuesday.

Other reports include $10 worth of damage to carpet in the 100 block of Beach Street; terroristic threat in the 800 block of Third Street; assault in the 300 block of Avenue H; and child enticement in the area of 14th and Avenue K.

Police issued 15 citations on Tuesday.

KKK to pay $1 million to rights marchers

ATLANTA (AP) — A state lawmaker vowed to seek wages, guns and even Confederate flags from 11 Klansmen to collect his share of a $1 million award to civil rights marchers pelted with rocks in nearly all-white Forsyth County.

A federal jury found the Ku Klux Klansmen and two white supremacist groups responsible for disrupting the Jan. 17, 1987, march north of Atlanta, and awarded $948,650 in damages to 49 demonstrators who filed suit.

"It is a message to the Ku Klux Klan nationwide that this can happen to you," said state Rep. J.E. "Bilby" McKinney, one of the demonstrators.

McKinney said he and the other plaintiffs "are determined we will get every dime that we can get out of the Klan."

The award, the second major one involving a Klan organization in two years, includes $400,000 each from the Southern White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and the Invisible Empire Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. David Holland, grand dragon of the Southern White Knights, was ordered to pay $50,000, the highest of the 11 defendants.

"I guarantee if (Holland's) got a pickup truck, I'm going to take it. If he's got a shotgun in the back (of the truck), I'm going to take it, too — and I want his Confederate flag,"

Defense attorneys stunned

McKinney said.

Defense attorneys were stunned by the verdict unsealed Tuesday and said they would appeal. Holland's attorney, Jeffrey Sliz, called it "grossly unreasonable."

Another defense attorney, Jane Plaginos, said the plaintiffs had no proof for any injury that would mandate such severe damages.

"They did not prove anybody was hurt, literally, or lost wages, anything. They did not prove anything," she said.

She said that within 30 days she would ask U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moyer Jr. to dismiss or lower the damages.

The jury reached its verdict Oct. 5, agreeing that the violence amounted to a violation of the marchers' civil right. Moyer ordered the verdict sealed until Tuesday to give those who brought the lawsuit time to decide whether to join City Councilman Hosea Williams, who wanted to drop it.

Williams, who helped organize the march and was among those who filed the lawsuit, urged toward the end of the trial that the suit be dropped because it would impoverish the families of KKK members.

Williams said he has forgiven the Klan "and other white supremacists for brutalizing us" during the march.

There had been 57 plaintiffs. Williams and three others dropped out during the trial and four others dropped out Tuesday.

The jury awarded $50 to each plaintiff in compensatory damages. The rest was in punitive damages. The lawsuit had sought $1.5 million.

One defendant was found not liable.

Ed Stephens, grand dragon of the Invisible Empire Knights, was ordered to pay $30,000 but he said the marchers may have a hard time collecting it.

"If the $30,000 holds up, and I don't feel that it will hold up, they would play the devil getting it," Stephens said. "I don't have anything such as that."

Stephens, an electrician, said he rents his home.

In February 1967, an all-white federal jury in Alabama awarded a black woman, Beulah Mae Donald, $7 million from the United Klans of America and six members or former members of the group after her son, Michael Donald, was beaten, strangled and hanged in a tree in 1961 at age 19.

Democrats, Republicans woo Hispanic vote in debate

HOUSTON (AP) — Representatives of the Democratic and Republican parties traded criticisms, argued over the facts and praised the merits of their own presidential candidates in an effort to woo the powerful Hispanic population to their camp.

"He needs us, he understands us and he will let us participate," former New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya said of Michael Dukakis at a debate Tuesday night.

But Florida Gov. Bob Martinez said Vice President George Bush would help everyone, including Hispanics.

"George Bush is best suited to lead a very complex world," Martinez said at the 1 1/2-hour National Hispanic Issues Debate at Houston's George R. Brown Convention Center. "George Bush has a vision that includes Hispanic opportunities."

In addition to Anaya and Martinez, former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, who ran in the Democratic presidential primary, and Republican Linda Chavez talked about immigration laws, jobs, drugs, English-only efforts and foreign policy during the debate. San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros was the moderator.

About 400 people attended and the majority seemed to support the Democratic Party and their presidential candidate.

Martinez and Ms. Chavez argued that the national economy had vastly improved under President Reagan and would continue to do so if Bush were president. Those gains, they said, would also be felt by Hispanics.

But the Democratic representatives blamed the Reagan administration for federal budget cuts that have hurt education and efforts to fight the war on drugs.

Babbitt also criticized the Reagan administration's stand on immigration, saying it was one of "vengeance and indifference." But Ms. Chavez countered that the sanctions for employers who hired illegal aliens were designed to stop people from exploiting illegals, not to hurt those trying to get into the country.

One of the most heated arguments came over the issue of foreign policy in Central America and Mexico, with Babbitt claiming that the Reagan administration has ignored Mexico's economic problems while addressing too much attention on the Sandinistas in Nicaragua.

"The last eight years have been an ultimate failure," Babbitt said. "Mexico is at risk and they (the Reagan administration) have done nothing."

Jobs for Hispanics also proved to be a controversial issue. Ms. Chavez, who recently resigned as president of U.S. English public interest group, drew boos of disbelief from the crowd when she said some 17.6 million new jobs created during the Reagan administration paid over $26,000 a year.

'88 Health Fair a success

The Deaf Smith County Health Fair '88 was held Tuesday at the Hereford Community Center. County Extension Agent Beverly Harder said a "huge" crowd turned out for the fair, which included many informational booths about healthful living and how to create a more healthy household, along with several free tests.

Survivor search goes on

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — At least 143 people survived the sinking of a passenger ship during the height of Typhoon Ruby, shipping executives said today as efforts continued to find hundreds more still missing.

There were unconfirmed reports scores of others may have reached safety on another island.

The 2,855-ton Dona Marilyn was carrying about 518 passengers and crew when it sank Monday in heavy seas about 300 miles southeast of Manila in the Visayan Sea. Ships and helicopters searched the area today.

Bernardo Cabigon, Tacloban station manager of Sulpicio Lines, which owned the Dona Marilyn, said 120 of the 143 survivors managed to reach the small, remote island of Almagro with lifejackets and life boats.

In Cebu, Sulpicio President Carlos Go said the remaining survivors had been found by rescuers on other islands and in the choppy seas.

Cabigon said he had been informed some survivors washed ashore wearing two lifejackets. "I'm expecting more survivors. We have not called off operations."

He said the bodies of 26 victims washed ashore at Almagro. The Coast Guard said another body was found today in waters near where the ship sank. Almagro's mayor, Raul Escalante, said he had buried 18 of the victims in a common grave.

The Dona Marilyn left Manila on Sunday bound for Tacloban but was buffeted Monday by strong waves and winds of up to 140 mph, Cabigon said. The coast guard said the skipper reported the vessel listing to the port side in heavy seas in a radioed distress signal before the ship went down.

In a second, smaller rescue effort, the U.S. Navy said the USS Blue Ridge found four crewmen of the 300-foot Philippine freighter Jet Nann Five, which sank about 150 miles south of where the Marilyn is believed to have gone down.

'Christmas in October' scheduled

"Christmas in October" will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the Church of the Nazarene located on the corner of Ironwood and La Plata. Sponsored by the Ladies Prayer Fellowship, the event will feature crafts, baked goods and door prizes. Goods will be displayed in a Christmas setting complete with a fire burning in the fireplace, a decorated Christmas tree, and refreshments of spiced tea, cinnamon rolls, cookies, and punch will be served.

Among the crafts to be offered will be complete gift baskets, kitchen items, padded photo albums and picture frames, Bible covers, lace fans and wreaths, painted sweatshirts, T-shirt dresses, satin pillows, paper ribbon wreaths, country folk art (wood paintings), and inlaid carpet pictures. Also offered will be refrigerator magnets, festive pine cone baskets, Christmas ornaments, Southwestern items, girls' hair accessories, stuffed animals, and dolls. A one-of-a-kind item will be featured in the form of a ballerina bunny. Special services such as face painting and hair painting will be offered as will personalized balloons.

Baked goods will include cakes, cookies, pies, etc. Homemade bread will be baked that morning and will be for sale.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the Nazarene Christian Academy.

Every effort has been made to keep prices low so everyone is able to afford a beautiful gift," said a spokesman for the event. "With so many of the materials donated and with the craftsmakers donating their time, the items should be reasonably priced."

John Chapman, alias Johnny Appleseed, planted nurseries of apple seedlings in clearings before pioneers arrived. He planted to his dying day, March 18, 1845, near Fort Wayne, Ind., where his grave is now the center of a small park. Some of his trees still stand, though many believe the last one toppled in a storm near Mansfield, Ohio, in 1959, after bearing apples for more than 100 years.

Switzer remembers promise

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer
Promises, promises.
"I told him four years ago if he came with me he'd win the Heisman Trophy," Barry Switzer said.
The only thing is, Switzer coaches Oklahoma and Troy Aikman plays quarterback for UCLA. That might make him the first player — neither the NCAA nor the eminent football maven Beano Cook of ESPN could come up with anyone else — to play on national championship teams at two different schools. Remember, Aikman began the 1985 season as Oklahoma's No. 1 quarterback and UCLA is currently ranked No. 1.
Aikman also is generally conceded to be No. 1 in the Heisman sweepstakes — with Southern Cal quarterback Rodney Peete, Oklahoma State tailback Barry Sanders and Miami quarterback Steve Walsh hot on his heels — so Switzer's first promise may come true.
His other one didn't.

It is impossible to accurately convey the inflection in Aikman's voice, but you could almost hear the sigh when he said, "I wanted to believe Coach Switzer so much when he said they'd throw the football. He said the wishbone was obsolete, it wouldn't work any more, they had to throw to win."
"But three days after I signed a letter of intent, I read in the paper that Coach Switzer said they were going back to the wishbone."
Aikman started the first four games of Oklahoma's national championship 1985 season, but suffered a broken leg in a 27-14 loss to Miami. He completed 27 of 47 passes, which means that Oklahoma was throwing a dozen times a game while running the wishbone. This year, the Sooners have thrown only 68 passes in seven games.
When Aikman went down, Jamelle Holloway, a little waterbug and a wishbone magician, stepped in. The rest is history.
"I wasn't happy. I didn't feel comfortable in the wishbone. I didn't like it. I felt awkward. I felt I was too big for the wishbone," the 6-foot-3½, 217-pound Aikman said.

One week into 1986 spring practice, Aikman decided he wanted out.
"The injury was responsible without a doubt," he said. "It was a frustrating time to get hurt. And Jamelle had such a great year that I realized it was going to be tough to start the following season."
This time, Switzer came through.
"It came down to UCLA, Arizona State and Stanford," Switzer said. "(Stanford coach Jack) Elway never returned my call. (Arizona State coach John) Cooper knew him from when he coached at Tulsa and tried to recruit him (Aikman's family was living in Henryetta, Okla., at the time), but if you could go to UCLA, where would you go?"
"(UCLA coach Terry) Donahue didn't know anything about him. Most people don't like to take transfers, but I told Terry he'd be a first-round draft choice and he took him on my recommendation."

Tony La Russa named 1988 AL manager

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Tony La Russa got two of the three championships he was looking for this season. Now the Oakland Athletics' skipper has picked up a bonus title: American League Manager of the Year.

La Russa outpulled Boston manager Joe Morgan in close balloting to win the award announced Tuesday by the Baseball Writers Association of America. He received 103 points to 89 for Morgan and 37 for Sparky Anderson of the Detroit Tigers.

The 44-year-old La Russa also won the award five years ago when he led the Chicago White Sox to 99 victories and the AL West title.

"This is an award for the organization," said La Russa. "I'm pleased for myself, but what the writers are saying is that the Oakland A's did a good job."

La Russa piloted the Athletics to an Oakland-record 104 victories, the divisional crown and a four-game sweep of the Red Sox for the AL pennant. The A's lost the World Series in five games to the underdog Los Angeles Dodgers.

"If you lose the World Series, you should be very upset. I don't want my players to say 'We made it and 24 other teams were watching us on TV.' I was, until today, very upset," he said with a smile.

La Russa got 15 first-place votes, six more than Morgan, in balloting by a committee made up of two writers from each AL city. The other managers receiving first-place votes were Anderson, with three, and Milwaukee's Tom Trebelhorn, with one.

Each first-place vote was worth five points. Second-place votes were worth three points each, while a third-place vote counted as one point.

Under La Russa, the A's improved by 23 victories in 1988 and won the division by 13 games over the defending World Series champion Minnesota Twins.

Oakland finished first in the league in pitching with a 3.43 earned run average, third in defense and best in the club's 21 years in Oakland, and second in homers with 156. The A's won a franchise-record 14 straight games in April and May and set a San Francisco Bay area attendance record, drawing 2,287,335 fans to the Oakland Coliseum.

Not as flashy or colorful as other successful managers, La Russa earned a reputation for hard work, sound strategy and even-handed dealings with his players. He said he demanded two things of his players: show up on time and always play hard.

A native of Tampa, Fla., La Russa played professionally for 18 seasons and made his big-league debut at age 18 with Chicago Cubs. He had a meager career batting average of .199 in 132 games over parts of six seasons as a utility infielder.

His managerial career began in 1978 when he took over the White Sox' Class AA team in Knoxville. The team went 53-25, earning La Russa a promotion to Chicago's coaching staff.

La Russa came to the A's on July 7, 1986, managing the team to a 45-34 record that season and 81-81 in 1987. He makes $350,000 a year on a contract running through 1989.

His managerial record is 879-750 in 10 seasons, or .537, and 6-7 in the postseason. He is 230-173 with the A's in regular-season games, a .571 winning percentage that ranks him third, trailing only Dick Williams and Alvin Dark, with Oakland.

NFL will tighten controls on steroid use

CHICAGO (AP) — Beginning next season, NFL players testing positively for steroids a second time will be subject to the same suspensions now handed down to players who use cocaine and other illegal substances. Commissioner Pete Rozelle told NFL owners at their fall meeting Tuesday that the policy will apply to players who tested positively for steroids during training camp this year — a figure he estimated at 6 percent of those tested.

So far this year, 20 players have been suspended for second violations of the NFL's substance abuse program — 19 for 30 days, or four games, and one, Tony Collins of the Indianapolis Colts, for the season as a third-time violator.

"Our legal staff feels we know more about it," Rozelle said in explaining his decision on steroids.

Asked if that meant he thought it could withstand a court challenge, he replied:

"That's part of it. Steroids are bad for the players. We know they can affect life after football."

Rozelle also said he thinks the suspensions are having an effect, noting that the majority came in preseason and in the first six weeks of the regular season, with only one, Mike Bell of Kansas City, who was disciplined last week, suspended since the early rash.

"I think the suspensions are having an important impact on players who might be tempted to do something with drugs," he said. "Because there has been a slack period, I would hopefully assume there will be fewer cases the rest of the season."

Still, Rozelle urged the teams to make sure they have contacts both with drug treatment facilities in their areas and with doctors who specialize in addiction rather than just relying on team doctors.

"So many teams," he said, "have orthopedists or internists as their team doctors," he said. "We're going to hit them about getting close to a local treatment facility and a drug doctor."

While Rozelle was lamenting that the lack of a contract with the NFL Players Association and the union's objection to random testing prevented him from implementing a stronger policy, the union seemed headed for steps of its own.

According to an NFLPA source, the union is preparing a class action suit complaining that the NFL's drug testing program is a violation of the 1982 collective bargaining agreement. While that agreement expired last Sept. 1 — just before last year's 24-day strike — many of its provisions are still being honored.

Rozelle and league officials, however, contend that they are following the provisions of the 1982 agreement by testing players only for cause, such as erratic behavior or a previous positive test.

Rozelle acknowledged that the labor situations limits his option, noting that without agreement with its players association on a testing program, the league was limited in both how much it could test and on the length of suspensions.

After he announced a program of random testing three years ago, an arbitrator overturned several sections of the proposal after the NFLPA objected.

Bradshaw glad to be back

ROANOKE, Texas (AP) — Former Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw says he worried himself sick the past few weeks after doctors told him he might be very sick.

"Not knowing what's wrong is the thing that drives you crazy," Bradshaw said Tuesday, a day after a series of tests turned up negative and he was given a clean bill of health.

"If you know what it is, now we can handle that. If you don't know what it is, your mind just says, 'You've got a massive tumor in your chest, it's malignant and you've got six months to live,'" Bradshaw said.

The rumor that Bradshaw had a tumor was reported Sunday, when he missed his second NFL commentator assignment in a row for CBS Sports.

"Somebody just took it and ran with something that was a big mistake," Bradshaw said, emphasizing that the possibility of a tumor had been mentioned but never substantiated. "They messed my whole family up and all my friends and caused concern over nothing."

"I felt badly for my family because they thought I'd hurt them."

Doctors told Bradshaw Monday that scar tissue had developed around his heart as the result of a softball injury he sustained as a child.

"You get hit so much as a player — in the chest, broken collarbones and shoulders — that you never think about it," Bradshaw said in an interview at his suburban Dallas home. "The doctor noticed all the scar tissue when looking at X-rays, and he connected the two together."

Bradshaw, 40, led the Pittsburgh Steelers to an unprecedented four Super Bowl championships during an NFL career that spanned from 1970-83. A native of Shreveport, La., he also starred at Louisiana Tech.

Bradshaw said he was about 7 years old when the softball accident occurred. He broke his sternum when hit in the chest by a softball thrown from a pitcher who was warming up for a fast-pitch game.

Bradshaw first complained of chest pains on Oct. 11 while en route to Miami for a speaking engagement. After organizers convinced him to deliver his speech, Bradshaw checked into a Miami hospital for tests. He was released the next day.

Over the next 12 days, he underwent a series of tests as doctors tried to diagnose the ailment.

"I've worried myself sick these past few weeks," he said.

Monday's impending tests made for an especially long weekend, said Bradshaw's wife, Charla.

"Terry's anxiety level will show through — pacing and humor and fidgeting, I guess you could say," Charla said. "He doesn't talk a lot about it. In fact, he'll talk about things that are so totally opposite that you know it's on his mind."

Now, having missed the past two weeks of the NFL season, Bradshaw has work on his mind and he will work for CBS in New Orleans when the Saints host the Los Angeles Rams.

"I'm going to New Orleans Friday," a jovial Bradshaw said before pausing to reconsider. "I might go Thursday."

Ghosts still bedevil Wyche

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Sam Wyche is bedeviled by ghosts — many of them real. In fact, it's widely conceded he kept his job as coach of the Cincinnati Bengals this season only because tight-fisted management didn't want to pay him for sitting idle during the final year of his contract.

So after the Bengals beat the Oilers 44-21 Sunday, opening up a 28-0 first-quarter lead that stood up to repeated second-half threats, Wyche couldn't help calling up one of those spirits — a game last season in which the Bengals lost 41-24 to New Orleans after leading 24-10 at halftime.

"What (Saints coach) Jim Mora told his team at halftime of that game is no longer true," Wyche said. "He said 'Keep going after the Bengals and they'll fold.' We did then, we don't now."

Indeed, the question most asked about the Bengals, 4-11 last season, 7-1 halfway through 1988, is: "Are they for real?" The answer: Decidedly. Make that probably. To begin with, last year was more the fluke, not this one.

The 4-11 record was the product of a slide that began in the second game with Wyche's bizarre decision to try to run out the clock instead of punting on fourth down from his own 25 while holding a 26-20 lead over San Francisco. The play failed, the 49ers got the ball with four seconds left and Joe Montana threw a 25-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Rice for a 27-26 victory.

Then came the strike and things were never the same — that loss to New Orleans was typical.

But the 1986 Bengals went 10-6, and missed the playoffs only in a complicated tiebreaker. In fact, they might have won the AFC Central had they not inexplicably lost 34-3 at home to Cleveland the next-to-last week of the season, following that with a 52-21 win over a team that did make it, the New York Jets.

Moreover, the unquestioned offensive talent of that team has been augmented by some on defense, particularly third-year strong safety David Fulcher and second-year cornerback Eric Thomas, who had two interceptions to set up two touchdowns against Houston Sunday.

And finally, Wyche has finally decided to let well enough alone, eschewing the gimmicks like the fourth-down play against the 49ers or reverses on first-and-goal from the 3. One of those a few years ago ended up as a 21-yard loss and cost Cincinnati another game.

"Now we just play straight football," says quarterback Boomer Esiason, a former Wyche critic who now gets on famously with his leader. "Guess what? It works."

In fact, until Sunday, there had been no gimmicks at all — the closest being when James Brooks faked a reverse to Eddie Brown, then continued around right end.

But holding a 21-point lead in the third quarter, Wyche couldn't resist. He actually gambled calling a fake punt from his own 25. It worked, sort of — a wide open Ray Horton took a pass from punter David Fulhage and raced to a touchdown, but it was called back by a holding penalty.

The maligned Wyche has become a master psychologist.

After his team's only loss, a 27-21 defeat in New England two weeks ago, he found a new trick to avoid what in the past has turned one loss into a three- or four-game losing streak.

"I told the players that we were starting over, that this was the first game of the season," he said after the Houston game.

Did it work? You can't argue with 44-21.

In 1960, their first year in the NFL, the Cleveland Browns defeated the Los Angeles Rams, 30-28 in the title game. Lou Groza kicked a field goal for the winning points with 20 seconds to play.

Self-esteem focus of program

What do youth who raise animals to show at the county fair have in common with children raising their self-esteem to avoid later problems with substance abuse, dropping out and teenage pregnancy? The answer is 4-H.

Through a program called "It's Up To Me," developed by Texas 4-H, thousands of school children are studying topics such as "accepting yourself," "dealing with peer pressure," and "competing instead of comparing," this school year.

The 10-lessons and age-related activities were designed as a resource for teachers and youth workers to use in their classrooms and programs with children in grades 3 through 8.

Working cooperatively with the Texas Education Agency (TEA), the Texas Agricultural Extension Ser-

Toastmaster wins award

Hereford Toastmaster Joe Weaver represented the local club Saturday in a district speech contest and returned home with a second place award.

Weaver participated in the Plainview meeting after advancing from his Area II win in the Oct. 8 Amarillo speech contest. "Words Fitfully Spoken" was his entry in the humorous speech contest in Plainview as well as Amarillo.

Also attending the Plainview meeting were local Toastmasters Joe Don Cummings, Larry Leon and Bob Lohr.

vice has already distributed 1,200 of the teaching guides to school districts in Texas.

The Extension Service also has conducted training for more than 7,500 public school teachers, county Extension agents, Sunday school teachers, juvenile probation officers, day care workers, 4-H and other youth leaders who will conduct the lessons.

The focus on building self-esteem is nothing new to 4-H, an 80-year-old youth development program that's part of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, an educational outreach arm of the Texas A&M University System.

"The techniques we've used have always worked. Our programs teach kids practical life skills through learning projects ranging from nutritious meal planning or consumer shopping skills, to computers and community service projects," said Tom Davison, assistant director for 4-H and youth.

"But the point of any project is to also give youngsters the opportunity to plan, accept personal responsibility and interact with responsible adults. All things that build their self-esteem and sense of worth," he said.

Awareness of the problems facing young people prompted a 35-member statewide group of 4-H youth development workers and extension specialists to put together the teaching guide, said Dr. Judy Flynn.

Flynn, district extension director from Amarillo, has trained more than 350 counselors, school administrators, county extension agents and juvenile probation officers to use the teaching guide.

extension agents in rural Gray County, helped develop the program and have trained 45 school teachers and numerous 4-H leaders in their county.

"People think growing up in rural areas is ideal," said Brauchl. "But everychild at some time goes through a phase of low self-esteem and the kids here are just as likely to experience peer pressure and other problems as those who live in the cities," she said.

In Houston, the curriculum is being taught to all 4-H club members and this spring, Houston Independent School District counselors will be receiving the materials for classroom use.

According to Harris County extension agent Sandra Farris, a unique element of the Houston area program is that 79 4-H Ambassadors, outstanding 11th and 12th grade 4-H members, have received the training and are now teaching some of the lessons and serving as role models for youngsters enrolled in after-school day care programs.

With plans to teach the curriculum in 97 counties this school year, it will be some time before the effects of the program are known.

But Davison said initial experience with the teaching guide has been highly positive.

He said teachers who are interested in obtaining a copy of the guide and participating in training should contact the "At Risk" Program Coordinator for their school district, or their regional TEA office. Other youth workers can contact the Texas Agricultural Extension office in their county.

Zucchini Cheese Casserole

Here's a new way to use up your garden's bounty of zucchini and tomatoes. You may substitute crook-neck (yellow) squash or a combination of crook-neck and zucchini for a colorful feast.

- |                                |                         |
|--------------------------------|-------------------------|
| 3 medium zucchini              | 1 tsp. basil            |
| 1/2 cup chopped onion          | 1/2 tsp. oregano        |
| 2 fresh tomatoes, sliced       | 1/3 cup Parmesan cheese |
| 2 tbsp. oil                    |                         |
| 1 pound low-fat cottage cheese |                         |

Saute zucchini and chopped onion in oil. Whip cottage cheese with basil and oregano in blender. Place alternating layers of zucchini, cottage cheese and tomato in a 1 1/2-quart casserole dish. Top with Parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees, uncovered, for 25 to 30 minutes.

Yield: 6 Servings

Teens eat poorly but know better

Most teenagers know what constitutes a healthy diet, but still tend to make food choices that may lead to a lifetime of poor eating habits.

According to a recent Gallup Poll of 375 12- to 17 year-olds, 87 percent of teens surveyed said they put "a lot" or "some" effort into a healthy diet.

However, the teenagers listed potato chips, corn chips, cookies, candies and ice cream among their top snack food choices. Hamburgers, cheeseburgers, pizza and luncheon meats ranked among their top lunch choices.

About 63 percent of the teenagers said they learned about cholesterol in school, but less than a third were able to identify cholesterol-rich foods, such as butter and eggs.

"Skipping meals, snacking, eating away from home, eating fast foods and going on fad diets are common teenage eating patterns," said Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten, a nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University.

In spite of their eating patterns, Sweeten said the nutritional status of teenagers as a group is good, except for a few problem nutrients. For example, adolescents have higher requirements for iron and calcium, but many teens, especially girls, don't get enough.

"Teenager girls tend to drink soft drinks instead of milk, which may contribute to low calcium status. Yet they need the calcium to build bone mass which will help prevent osteoporosis late in life," she said.

"While teenagers' eating patterns may do little harm while they're young, they are also forming habits which probably will not serve them very well as adults," said the specialist.

Parents can help insure their teenager's nutritional status by making sure that meals eaten at home are balanced, containing lean meat, poultry or fish; vegetables and fruit; whole grain products; and dairy foods, Sweeten said.

Offering plenty of nutritious snacks, such as fruit, low-fat yogurt, unbuttered popcorn or oatmeal cookies rather than high-fat snack foods may also encourage better eating. "It's not too soon for older teenagers to begin thinking about their cholesterol intake either," said the nutritionist. "Health authorities recommend that adults get no more than 300 milligrams of cholesterol per day, but by the late teens many boys are getting 500 milligrams or more and girls intake levels are at about 300 milligrams per day."

Teenagers can start gradually reducing cholesterol intake by choosing low-fat or skim milk and other reduced-fat dairy products; eating a plain hamburger instead of a bacon double cheeseburger or cutting back on chocolate bars.

All teenagers, and especially those from families with a history of heart disease, high blood pressure or obesity, can reduce their future health risks by working on a healthier diet today, said the nutritionist.

POLITICAL CONVENTION
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The word "convention" came into English in the 15th century from a Latin word meaning an assembly or meeting.

Today, a political convention is a meeting of the delegates of a political party for the purpose of formulating a platform and selecting candidates for an office. A person acting for another or "delegate" from the Latin word "delegatus" has not changed in meaning since it came into the language in the 15th century. "Delegation" was first used in 1612.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The 19-year-old nephew of my friend (they live in California) crashed into a concrete road abutment. He was intoxicated, according to the tests. Fortunately no one was hurt. It was his first offense.

His sentence was:
A fine of $1,000.

A visit (along with other drunk drivers) to the morgue to look at an accident victim who had been badly mangled.

Seven evenings in a row spent in the emergency room of a hospital.

License changed to "Restricted," which means he can drive only to and from work.

The young man must repay his father the $1,000 that he put out for the fine as well as $2,000 for the auto repair bill.

I think it would be just dandy if this penalty was imposed on drunk drivers in every state in the union. Why don't you suggest it, Ann?—Somerset, N.J.

DEAR SOMERSET: I did, in a column that I wrote several months ago. I'd like to think that my column had something to do with this kid's sentence. It would please me immensely.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I enjoy my job, but there is one thing that bothers me terribly. I am absolutely certain that my boss listens in on my phone calls several times a day.

I have worked here for five years. I never make personal calls from my desk nor do I receive any except in cases of extreme emergency.

Several times during the day I hear my boss pick up by calls in his back office and he stays on the line. He has never commented on anything that I have said nor have I mentioned to him that I resent his eavesdropping. I am ready to explode.

Do you have any suggestions? I need my job and enjoy it a lot, but I am deeply offended by his noisiness.—Gestapo Tactics in the Midwest

DEAR MIDWEST: I believe you should confront the boss head on. Say something like this:

Mr. Grubberyong, when you monitor my phone calls I feel as if you don't have confidence in my ability to handle the customer. I don't believe I need surveillance and it makes me uncomfortable. I'd appreciate it if you'd trust me to handle calls on my own.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you stand one more letter about throwing rice at weddings?

Some nitwit wrote that it was bad for the birds because rice swells in their stomachs and kills them. Birdseed was suggested instead. Your ornithology expert must have been on vacation. I'm not surprised that you were inundated with howls from readers who screamed, "Nonsense!" You humbly admitted that you had hatched a bummer.

Are you aware that a great many churches prohibit the throwing of rice at weddings because it is dangerous? Rice under leather soles is slippery and could land guests on their rear ends. Birdseed crushes easily and poses no threat.

Get it right, Annie.—Your Fans in Portland, Ore.

DEAR PORT: Mine was the face with egg on it, and I said so after I received no less than 6,000 letters telling me I had goofed. Rice is out. Birdseed is in! Thanks, my little chickadees!

What are the signs of alcoholism? How can you tell if someone you love is an alcoholic? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. To receive a copy, send $3 and a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Ham hosts Bay View Study Club

Bay View Study Club met Thursday, Oct. 20, at the home of Mrs. Sid Ham, 217 Ranger Drive.

Following a brief business meeting led by the president Mrs. Kenneth Halbert, refreshments were served to the members and guest by Mrs. Austin C. Rose.

Mrs. Ham displayed many pieces of pottery she has made and talked about this hobby and craft. She then demonstrated how to take sheared and cleaned wool, card it, and spin it into strands of yarn.

Sitting at her loom, Mrs. Ham wove strands of wool into a piece of cloth she is making. She explained blends that can be spun and natural dyes that can be used to achieve different textures and colors.

Following the presentation, the meeting adjourned.

About 5,000 blacks served in the Continental Army during the American Revolution.

Each American eats about nine pounds of turkey a year.

Names In The News

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors told Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida, Congress' oldest member at 88, to take it easy this week following his discharge from Walter Reed Army Hospital after minor surgery, an aide says.

"We're going to hold a meeting about the end of the week to see if he goes back on the campaign trail Saturday, Sunday or Monday," administrative assistant Frances Campbell said after Pepper's release Monday.

The Democratic chairman of the House Rules Committee entered the hospital Thursday. Doctors on Friday removed scar tissue where Pepper had a hernia, Campbell said.

"He is in very good condition for someone who has had a minor surgical procedure," she said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A street party by 50,000 ecstatic Dodgers fans to celebrate their team's unlikely World Series triumph had pitcher Orel Hershiser quoting Jackie Gleason.

"How sweet it is!" the ace righthander yelled during the celebration Monday outside City Hall.

Hershiser, the fall classic's Most Valuable Player, struck out the final Oakland batter Thursday to win the championship and rack up his second Series victory.

"I want to thank the greatest team that any manager could ever have," said Manager Tommy Lasorda.

Moments later, he began lurching back and forth in a unique twist-style dance step. During spring training, he predicted that, come October, he would be dancing in the streets.

The party isn't over. On Wednesday, the Dodgers are set for a White House reception with President Reagan.

PHOENIX (AP) — Laser surgery is planned this week for Brigitte Nielsen, whose illness fiancée Mark Gastineau cited as his reason for quitting pro football, the actress' publicist says.

Publicist Joel Brokaw said from Los Angeles that Nielsen did not tell him what her ailment was, but said it was not life-threatening when he spoke with her Monday afternoon.

Last week, Nielsen told The New York Times she had cancer of the uterus and planned to enter an unspecified Arizona hospital on Monday for a biopsy.

Brokaw said he had no other information on the surgery.

Tips suggested for microwaving baby food

Most parents feel strange feeding their baby a "cold" dinner. Now that almost 80 percent of households have microwave ovens, mothers and fathers frequently ask us, "Can I microwave baby food?"

The answer to this question is "Yes, but..."

There is a hazard to microwaving baby food or any food product for a baby. Microwaving heats the interior of a food much more than the exterior. The container may not feel very hot, but the bottle of the jar of baby food may contain very hot food.

This creates two dangers:

-The food can get so hot it can actually explode the container and burn you;

-It's easy to feed very hot food to your baby inadvertently and scald his or her mouth and throat.

There is a solution to the problem. Careful research by Beech-Nut has led to the following directions for safe microwaving of baby food.

-Never microwave baby meats: They're very thick, can overheat easily, and are more likely to explode than other products.

-Baby vegetables and baby dinners: First, remove the metal cap; always make sure the pop-top quality-seal cap pops when you first open the jar so you know that the food is safe.

Second, cover the jar with microwavable plastic to avoid explosions in the microwave and after you remove the food.

-Time and power: For the smaller jars of 4½ ounces, 15 seconds of medium heat or 50% power is enough to warm the baby dinner or baby vegetable. Microwave longer than this and the food might become hot enough to scald your baby's mouth and throat.

For larger jars of six or 7½ ounces, 30 seconds at medium heat is enough to warm the food. The ideal temperature for warmed baby food is about 90 degrees Fahrenheit; anything hotter runs the risk of scalding.

-Always mix the food after warming: Microwaved food is notorious for having one part of the food very hot and another part very cool. Mixing evens out the temperatures.

-Taste it yourself: Always taste microwaved baby food before you feed it to your baby. Something to remember: When you taste food, enzymes in your mouth get on the spoon.

Baby never should be fed directly from the jar, for these reasons. Food should be spooned onto a dish before feeding. If you use the same spoon to feed your baby, products with no modified starch can get very watery because the enzymes from your saliva start to digest the food. Beech-Nut products are made without modified starch and are highly digestible, to match a baby's digestive system.

-Keep food from spoiling: Do not spoon the food back into the jar when you're finished. Again, the enzymes from baby's saliva can get into the untouched food and make it watery.

-Divide large jars: For large amounts of food, like the 12-ounce Beech-Nut Table Time products, where half of the jar is a serving, remove about half of the jar to a separate bowl that can be microwaved, cover with microwavable plastic wrap and heat at medium heat for 30 seconds.

Mix the product well to make sure that the temperatures are evened out; taste it yourself to make sure that it's not too hot. Now, let your baby enjoy.
