Legislature finishes a busy session

AUSTIN (AP) - Although a special session has been called to try to finish reform of the workers' compensation system, top state leaders today praised other work of the 1989 Legislature.

Clements announced the June 20 special session on workers' compensation about six hours before Monday's midnight session end, insisting he wants a reform bill adopted.

"Our current workers' compensation system is one of the worst in the nation ... It's hurting our efforts to bring new jobs to Texas," Clements said.

But he said the rest of the session was productive.

"Texas is at the crossroads, and the Texas Legislature will be known for its tough and courageous decisions in a time of historic change in our state," said Gov. Bill Clements.

Clements hailed passage of a $47.4 billion, two-year budget that won't require a tax increase, plus the overhaul of the state's criminal justice system, construction of 11,000 more prison beds and mergers of South Texas colleges with the Texas A&M and University of Texas systems.

The session, Clements said, "will rank as one of the most productive in Texas history."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby noted those achievements on his list of major accomplishments. He also cited legislation to provide water and sewer service to colonias and a six-fold increase in funding for AIDS research, treatment and education.

House Speaker Gib Lewis called it "a very successful session. We addressed major issues of this state. We made some very hard decisions. We were very lucky that we were able to increase our budget without a tax bill and at the same time decrease taxes in some areas."

The $47.4 billion budget that won approval represents a 12 percent increase over the current, $42.3 billion spending plan. It also allows about $500 million in temporary taxes passed in 1987 to expire on Aug. 31.

Some lawmakers criticized the budget as shortsighted and virtually requiring a tax hike in 1991.

Money was much on the minds of legislators, who decided to ask for a raise. Their last pay increase came in 1974, when the salary for their part-time jobs was boosted to $7,200 a year.

Under the proposed constitutional amendment that sailed through the House and Senate, lawmakers would see their salary tripled to $23,358 if voters agree this November.

Under the new plan, legislators in the future would be paid 25 percent of the governor's salary - which they set. That would allow them to control their own pay scale instead of constantly asking voters to amend the Constitution.

The lieutenant governor and House speaker would get half the governor's salary, or $46,716 in 1991.

Although the 1989 session lacked the extraordinary tax-and-spending battles of recent years, lawmakers dealt with numerous issues. Those included:

Prisons

A criminal justice bill would allow the now-overloaded Texas prison system to become the nation's second-largest, with more than 60,000 beds, by 1993.

The plan calls for the construction of about 11,000 more prison beds at new state and regional correction facilities, along with up to 7,500 additional spaces in community-based programs.

These county-based facilities - seen by lawmakers as critical to easing overcrowding at the Texas Department of Corrections - include so-called "boot camps," restitution centers, alcohol and drug treatment units, work-release facilities and halfway houses.

"Criminals now know that if they commit the crime, they'll soon hear the jail door slam," the governor said.

Colonias

Clements said he supports a sweeping bill to provide millions of dollars to build water and sewer facilities in the substandard housing developments called colonias.

The measure, sought by Rio Grande Valley residents and others for years, also would give counties powers to restrict the growth of such developments in the future.

Agriculture

Each state agency faces "sunset" review every 12 years, when a bill continuing it must pass, or the agency dies. This year, it was controversial Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower's turn, and the outcome remained in doubt until the last days.

Clements, a Republican, had indicated he might veto the bill and kill Democrat Hightower's agency as Hightower took heat over pesticide regulation and promotion of hormone-free beef.

A last-minute compromise won the governor's support. Pesticide regulation was turned over to a nine-member board, of which Hightower is chairman. He's seeking a third term and apparently will have a Department of Agriculture to run if he wins.

Foreclosures

Perhaps inevitable when the state leads the nation in bank failures and depressed real estate, lawmakers tangled over a proposal to make it harder for lenders to sell foreclosed property for less than it's worth, then sue for the difference.

The bill applies to someone whose home or other property is foreclosed on and sold. If the lender sued in an attempt to recoup the difference between the sale price and the debt, the debtor could go to court to try to prove the property was worth more than the sale price.

School Finance

With eight minutes left on the clock, the House gave 126-21 approval to a plan to pump an extra $450 million into public education as a start toward solving the school finance dilemma that produced a lawsuit by property-poor school districts.

County struggles with budget

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

The struggle continues as commissioners attempt to balance expenditures with income in the proposed 1989-1990 Deaf Smith County budget.

"Everybody I talked to, except one person, said they'd rather see taxes raised than services cut," said Commissioner John Stribling during a meeting Friday morning.

County Judge Tom Simons and other commissioners indicated that they had received a similar reaction from the public.

"The ones that'll tell us differently will do it after the fact," said Commissioner Troy Don Moore.

During the Friday meeting, a continuation of last Monday's regular meeting, commissioners reviewed a proposed budget item-by-item. They were attempting to eliminate an estimated $496,895 shortfall between revenue and expenditures.

The first draft of the proposed budget, presented to commissioners last Monday, included an estimated shortfall of $645,100. Cuts made during Monday's session were included in the revised draft presented by County Auditor Alex Schroeter.

The commission was able to subtract another $234,600 from the deficit after focusing their attention on road and bridge budgets for the precincts. In the past, those precincts which did not spend their entire road and bridge budget at the end of a fiscal year would retain those balances during the next year.

"That ending balance is basically used as a contingency fund," Moore said.

Over $200,000 was cut from the road and bridge budget by basing the upcoming budget on actual expenditures from the current year.

Discussion of the road and bridge budget helped trigger an agreement by commissioners to eliminate deficits in the accounts for Precincts 1 and 3. Commissioners Austin Rose and Johnny Latham, agreed to use funds from their precincts (Precincts 2 and 4) to cover any deficits in the other precincts as of the end of this fiscal year.

In some instances, deficits have been carried from past years making it extremely difficult for commissioners to balance the road and bridge budgets in their individual precincts.

This one-time elimination of deficits will allow all commissioners to, as Judge Simons said, "start with zero and live with their share of the pie."

The financial benefit of cuts from road and bridge was somewhat negated when commissioners recognized the need for a contingency or emergency fund in the county's general budget.

"One day, not long back, we spent about $30,000 we hadn't budgeted for," said Latham.

Latham reminded his fellow commissioners that there was always a need for funds to cover the unforeseen.

"A contingency fund just scares the dickens out of me because that's money people think is there to spend," Stribling said.

"That's why I object to taking it out of road and bridge," Latham said.

"I think we'd have less of a problem keeping a contingency fund rather than keeping it in road and bridge," Moore said.

It was suggested that the term "emergency fund" might be a more accurate description.

Schroeter was instructed to include an emergency fund along with several other additions in the next draft of the proposed budget. These additions negated much of the accounting benefits of cuts made to the road and bridge budget.

Better than $400,000 remains in the gap between income and expenditures in the proposed budget.

The current problem is "not due to an increase in budgets," Judge Simons said. "It's due to a decrease in revenue in recent years."

"We've had a surplus in the past, and the surplus has been used up," Commissioner Stribling said.

Changes in the way ad valorem taxes are assessed have been instrumental in the current budgetary problems. For example, cattle and farm equipment are no longer included on the tax rolls. This has meant a decrease in revenue to the county.

An increase in the tax rate is likely to be included in discussions as the budget workshop continues. The county commission recessed Friday at noon with plans to reconvene the budget workshop on June 30.

Congress ready to tackle tough bills

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate plans to rework a $3.7 billion domestic spending bill this week, a politically difficult act that would take center stage except for the leadership struggle among House Democrats.

The spending bill took two months for the House to finish and is under a White House veto threat because of its drug spending proposals. Work on the measure is likely to provoke disputes over the federal deficit, fuel House-Senate rivalries and focus attention on 1990 politics.

But despite those attention-grabbing elements, most eyes will doubtless be riveted instead on the travails of House Speaker Jim Wright. Lawmakers struggling over the bill will find themselves in the position of vaudevillians following the animal act.

Wright, D-Texas, is expected by many to step down this week, his 35-year congressional career sunk by ethics allegations over his personal finances. Jockeying among Democrats hoping to move up on the party's leadership ladder is already consuming time in the House.

The spending is a priority because it contains money for programs for the 1989 fiscal year, which lasts until Sept. 30. It includes $1.2 billion for veterans health care, benefit increases and other

Department of Veterans Affairs programs, as well as for college student loans, foster care efforts, United Nations peacekeeping activities, refugee assistance, and other initiatives.

The measure contains nearly twice as much money as President Bush sought when he sent a $2.2 billion version of the bill to Capitol Hill in March. Bush's advisors say the legislation is too costly, considering a federal deficit expected to reach about $160 billion this year.

But most controversial of all is $822 million the House shoehorned into the measure for new law enforcement officials, additional prison cells, counseling and other anti-drug programs.

House Democrats - with an eye to surveys showing the public thinks illicit drugs are America's worst problem - argued that the money would finance a war on drugs that Bush has merely talked about.

Republicans said the provision simply threw money at a problem that is already adequately financed. The Republicans complained that Democrats were merely trying to put them in the embarrassing position of voting in opposition to a more muscular federal effort against drug dealers.

But according to congressional aides who asked to not be identified, the Senate version of the bill will probably not include the drug money. Lawmakers in that chamber think they have a deal with the White House on a bill the president would sign lacking the drug funds but containing more money than Bush has so far supported.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., plans an effort to insert some anti-drug spending anyway, his office said Friday.

The Senate may also try to insert spending priorities of its own into the bill. Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., may try to find $6.6 million for a program that subsidizes air carriers serving small communities, and $75 million to replace a giant radio telescope that crumbled last November.

On the other side of the Capitol, the House may consider legislation aimed at putting conditions on a $7 billion deal for Japan to construct a new generation fighter plane with the help of American technology.

The Senate approved the deal two weeks ago after voting to limit Japan's ability to bolster its aerospace industry by using the advanced U.S. jet engine technology.

NATO reaches agreement on missiles

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - Western allies early today hammered out a last-minute compromise over nuclear missiles, providing a trouble-free ending for summit talks hailed by the White House as "a very decisive and historic turning point for the NATO alliance."

At the final session of the two-day summit this morning, Bush told the 15 other Western leaders that "a strong Europe means a strong America," and that U.S. troops would remain on European soil as long as they are needed.

After eight hours of bargaining, NATO foreign ministers drafted a formula for U.S.-Soviet negotiations to reduce short-range nuclear weapons on terms acceptable to the United States, Britain and West Germany.

The missile issue once threatened to disrupt the summit celebration of NATO's 40th anniversary, but harmony was assured when West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher gave up his fight for negotiating a total missile ban.

"It's a success," Genscher said.

Under the compromise, NATO will delay until 1992 a vote on whether to modernize Lance tactical nuclear weapons "in light of overall security developments."

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush regarded the summit as "a very decisive and historic turning point for the NATO alliance."

The post-midnight missile accord was the second major achievement of the two-day summit. On Monday, President Bush proposed, and the allies endorsed, a plan for cutting American and Soviet combat troops in Europe to 275,000 on each side.

After today's reading of the summit's final communique, Bush planned to hold a news conference and then fly to Bonn, West Germany, for talks with Chancellor Helmut Kohl, another participant at the meeting here.

Bush and Kohl had represented opposing camps in the quarrel over short-range nuclear missiles. The compromise, which the White House said was crafted primarily by Secretary of State James A. Baker III, was written to allow each leader to claim a partial victory.

"We're very satisfied," Kohl told reporters as he entered NATO headquarters this morning for the final summit session. Asked how the agreement was reached, Bush replied, "Very carefully."

NATO foreign ministers worked into the early morning hours to reach the agreement. It was subject to final approval by the 16 leaders.

British sources said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher had abandoned her effort to have the final agreement include a "reservation" explicitly forbidding a negotiated elimination of all tactical nuclear weapons.

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: Today I'm going to tell you about a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for men and women who want to be physicians.

If you are a U.S. citizen, a college graduate, 27 or younger, married or single, and have the desire to work in the field of medicine and serve your country, the U.S. Department of Defense has a four-year medical school program at the F. Edward Hebert School of Medicine.

Your tuition and books will be free.

Upon entering, all medical students will be commissioned as officers (ensigns or second lieutenants) and will draw full pay and benefits while in school.

After graduation, students receive the M.D. degree and a promotion to captain or lieutenant. In exchange for their medical education, students must serve seven years in the Army, Navy, Air Force or the U.S. Public Health Service.

The purpose of this medical school, located in Bethesda, Md., is to prepare these young men and women for their global mission as military physicians, with a special emphasis on emergency trauma medicine.

Fewer than 1 percent of those who enter this program fail to graduate for academic reasons, and there is virtually no incidence of stress-related dropout.

About a third of the enrollees are married. Some newlyweds have enrolled in this remarkable school. Others have met their mates in the classrooms and married while students.

During the fourth year of study, students can take some courses abroad and study submarine medicine in Australia, internal medicine in London and contagious diseases in Africa. The opportunities for broadening one's horizons as a student are endless.

Anyone who would like more information should write to: Office of Admissions, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, Md. 20814-4799.

P.S. Drop me a line and let me know how you like it!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just saw Phil Donahue's show and it really opened my eyes. It was as if some greater power made me turn on the TV at that very moment.

I am 24 and have always wanted to be a model. My parents don't have much money but they would make any sacrifice to help me.

Yesterday, I went to a modeling agency and applied for a job. I was told it would cost $1,200 to enroll in their school and that after graduation they would place me. I was also told I needed photographs that would cost $500.

On the TV show was Christie Brinkley, a top model. She said she never knew a model who got a job from an agency and the pictures were a waste of money. I was shocked. What do you say, Ann Landers?--Providence, R.I.

DEAR R.I.: I say Christie Brinkley should know what she's talking about.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every member of the family should practice reporting a house fire. A typical call phoned in to the station sounds like this:

"Help! Send the fire trucks!"

"Where's the fire?"

"At our house!"

If this sounds ridiculous, let me assure you that it is not. In emergency situations, the brain often cuts out and automatic pilot takes over. It pays to think ahead and rehearse what you're going to say. Tell your readers.--J.D.

DEAR J.D.: You did and I thank you.

Dear Heloise: Your directions for seasoning a cutting board were certainly a great help. I hope you can also give me directions for seasoning a new iron skillet before using it for the first time. — Yvonne McKenzie, Garden Grove, Calif.

It may already be seasoned. Most cast-iron utensils sold now are pre-seasoned, so no further treatment is necessary. Just wash thoroughly and dry. Be sure to lightly grease any cast-iron piece before storing.

If it does need to be seasoned, use solid, unsalted shortening to coat the inside of the skillet. Place the skillet in the oven on a cookie sheet and leave it for a couple of hours at about 250 F. Keep the shortening evenly distributed by swishing it around every so often with paper towels. — Heloise

Social Security

It's easier now for people in the Amarillo area to find out if their earnings under Social Security are recorded correctly, Jim Talbot, Social Security manager in Amarillo, Texas, said today.

People can send for a free Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement (PEBES) which shows an annual breakout of earnings recorded since 1951 to their Social Security record. Earnings before 1951 are summarized.

When received, PEBES should be carefully examined. It should be compared to your past tax returns and W-2 forms. If an error is found it should be corrected while the information is readily available, Talbot said. The usual rule is that a correction must be made within three years, three months, and 15 days of the year the error occurred, but there are some exceptions. A person can call the toll-free number shown on the PEBES for assistance in correcting the records.

Because the earnings record is so important for Social Security Benefits, a person should check his or her Social Security earnings record at least every three years to make sure the earnings are properly recorded. This will help insure a correct benefit amount in the future.

Checking the earnings record is particularly important if a person changes jobs frequently or works at more than one job, if he or she works in very small businesses, or is self-employed, Talbot said.

Herd rallies for 9-7 win over Lions

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

LUBBOCK - The Hereford Whitefaces continued The Year of Living Dangerously as they came back, not once, but twice to beat the Brownwood Lions, 9-7, Saturday in Game 2 of their regional playoff series at Chaparral Stadium.

"This was a great game," Herd coach T.R. Sartor said. "The kids battled back and did what they had to do to win."

The win, which gave the Herd a sweep in the series, was the seventh in which Hereford has come from behind in the sixth inning or later.

Clint Cotten pitched all eight innings for the Herd, running his record to 7-0.

Hereford now advances to the quarterfinal round where they will meet the Leander Lions in a one-game playoff set for 8 p.m. Friday at Hunter Field at Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene. Ticket prices for the game are $3 for adults and $2 for students. All tickets will be sold at the gate.

Leander advanced by beating Lubbock Estacado in three games on that field.

Brownwood drew first blood in the game when outfielders Brian Davis and Kurt Jones led off the bottom of the first inning with singles. Sammy Kasberg lifted a sacrifice fly to left to score Davis.

Lion starter Jes Rathke almost gave the advantage back to the Herd in the second when he walked Russell Backus and hit Cotten and Jared Victor to load the bases. Hereford was unable to take advantage of the situation, leaving the bases full.

Rathke's wildness was his undoing the very next inning as he walked the first three. Hereford batters and the gave up three straight hits before being pulled from the mound.

Glenn Parker received the first free pass, but was thrown out attempting to steal second. Keith Brown fouled off three pitches with two strikes before taking ball four.

After Roger McCracken watched four pitches pass wide of the strike zone, Backus singled to left to tie the score.

Cotten added two more with a triple and scored when Kyle Andrews singled.

That was enough for Brownwood coach Mark Howeth, who elected to bring Mike Smith on in relief after having pitched five innings in Game 1.

"We felt like we were in a position where we had to go with our best to win," Howeth said of the decision to bring Smith back on 15 hours rest, "and Mike's our best."

Smith got two outs to end the inning and went on to retire the first nine batters he faced.

Hereford's 4-1 lead lasted only as long as it took Brownwood to get into the batter's box in the bottom of the third as the Lions sent 10 men to the plate.

Jones started off with a triple to the fence in left and scored on Mitch Stovall's single. With one out, Smith hit a grounder to third which was booted for a three-base error.

Ernesto Rivera followed with another triple to score Smith and came home on Gene Brandstetter's ground ball to second.

After a single by Lewis Vasquez, Cotten got the final two outs to end the inning with Brownwood leading 5-4.

"That (third) inning was real uncharacteristic of the way we've played defense this year," Sartor said. "But the kids were able to put it behind them. Their tough kids -- mentally tough."

The Lions added two more runs in the fourth when Stovall worked a walk and Kasberg singled to lead off.

With one out, Rivera hit into a force play but beat Victor's relay to first to prevent the inning-ending double play.

Brandstetter made the most of the opportunity with a two-run double to give the Lions a 7-4 lead. That was where the Herd said "Enough."

Vasquez lined a shot towards left that seemed destined for extra bases, but Stuart Mitts went horizontal to make a Brooks Robinson-like diving catch to atone for his earlier miscue and end the inning.

"I was just trying to knock the ball down and keep it in front of me," Mitts said of the catch. "I wanted to keep the ball in the infield and not let the run in."

Mitts brought the Herd a step closer in the sixth when he singled and advanced to third on a wild pitch and a passed ball, becoming the first batter to reach base off Smith.

Mitts came home when Stovall misplayed a grounder by Jason Scott.

In the seventh, the Whitefaces pulled even. McCracken doubled with one out and Backus reached on a fielder's choice when second baseman Kyle Montague tried to tag McCracken diving back to the bag instead of taking the out at first.

Cotten faced a single back up the middle to score McCracken and with two outs, Mitts came up with his second clutch play of the day.

Swinging on the first pitch, Mitts popped up into foul territory behind third base. The wind blew just hard enough to carry the ball to the batting cage, which was squeezed between the fence and the left field foul line.

"I thought, 'Oh God, I popped up to end the game,'" Mitts said. "Coach (Sartor) told us to take the first strike, but with two outs, I was trying to make contact."

After a massive sigh of relief from Hereford partisans, singled to score Backus with the tying run.

"We made a couple of bad choices on defense," Howeth said, "and they (Hereford) made them hurt. That's the kind of team they have."

Brownwood came to bat needing any kind of a run to force a third game and almost got one.

Rivera walked and moved into scoring position on Brandstetter's single.

Cotten managed to get easy ground balls from the next three batters, two to Mitts to cut down the winning run at third and one to Backus to end the inning.

The Herd wasted no time in putting the go-ahead run on the board.

Scott led off with a single and took second when Parker's sacrifice bunt was bobbed by Smith for an error.

Brown then took a page from the Stuart Mitts Hitting Manual, popping up behind the plate and watching as Rathke dropped it for another error. Brown made the most of his reprieve as he drove in Scott with the winning run on a single.

McCracken added some insurance with a sacrifice fly to right that scored Parker.

But the game, as well as the excitement, was not over.

Stovall walked with one out and was immediately lifted for pinch runner Bobby Montgomery. With two outs, Smith blasted a double to the gap in left-center. Scott cut the ball off and whipped a throw to cutoff man Backus, who relayed to Andrews and nailed Montgomery at the plate by 10 feet.

Andrews blocked the base path completely, forcing the smaller Montgomery into a bone-jarring collision. The senior backstop held his ground and the ball to end the game.

Offensively, it was a team effort by the Herd, as eight of the nine starter either scored or drove in at least one run. Cotten helped himself by going two for three with three RBI, and McCracken and Backus each scored two runs.

Brownwood was sparked by Brandstetter, who was two for four with three RBI, and Stovall and Rivera, who each scored two runs.

Cotten gave up seven runs on 12 hits in eight innings, chalking up five strike outs and four walks on the day.

"I always fell better late," Cotten said of his performance. "At the first, I just had to see what they could hit and what they couldn't."

Cotten faced a total of 15 batters and did not allow a base runner past second over the last four innings.

"We were pretty much committed to going the whole way with Clint," Sartor said. "He pitched well the whole game."

"We had Jason warm up before the seventh as an emergency procedure. If Clint got into trouble, I wanted to know if he (Scott) could go."

Trying to hang on

Padres shut out Phils

By The Associated Press

In the span of a few hours, the Philadelphia Phillies lost a legend and a ballgame.

Third baseman Mike Schmidt announced his retirement in an emotional farewell Monday and told his teammates to start a new era in Phillies baseball.

But Bruce Hurst and Mark Davis combined on a four-hitter as San Diego beat the Phillies 1-0, putting the new era on hold.

"I challenged my teammates to move ahead with a new enthusiasm," Schmidt said. "It's up to them to bring new life to the Phillies' organization."

But Hurst took the life out of the Phillies.

The Padres' left-hander allowed four hits and struck out six in 8 2-3 innings to improve to 5-3 while sending the Phillies to their sixth straight loss.

Ricky Jordan singled and Von Hayes walked with two outs in the ninth and Davis came on to retire Chris James on a grounder for his 16th save in as many opportunities.

James was named as Schmidt's replacement at third base.

Tony Gwynn's RBI single in the first scored Roberto Alomar with the game's only run.

Elsewhere in the National League it was Montreal 3, Los Angeles 2; San Francisco 3, New York 2; Atlanta 2, Chicago 1; Pittsburgh 12, Cincinnati 3, and Houston 3, St. Louis 2.

Schmidt finished his career with 548 homers, seventh on the all-time list. But after a good start this season, he struggled and ended at .203 with six homers.

Expos 3, Dodgers 2
Andres Galarraga's run-scoring single snapped a ninth-inning tie to lift Montreal past Los Angeles.

Wallace Johnson led off the ninth with a pinch single and Rex Hudler, running for Johnson, was sacrificed to second. After a walk to Tom Foley, Alejandro Pena relieved Tim Leary, 5-4. Galarraga then lined a shot off first baseman Eddie Murray's glove for the game-winning hit.

Pascual Perez, 1-7, pitched two innings of hitless relief for the victory and Tim Burke retired the side in the ninth for his 10th save.

Giants 3, Mets 2
Brett Butler drove in two runs with sacrifice flies and scored another on Will Clark's double as San Francisco beat New York.

Don Robinson, 3-4, allowed six hits before leaving the game with a stiff right arm after seven innings. Craig Lefferts pitched two innings for his ninth save.

Astros 3, Cardinals 2
Bob Knepper allowed two runs in 7 1-3 innings and Craig Biggio had a two-run double as Houston beat St. Louis.

St. Louis rookie Ken Hill, 2-4, didn't allow a hit until Terry Puhl's ground single to center with one out in the seventh. Second baseman Jose Oquendo fielded the ball in short center field but Puhl beat the throw to first base by a wide margin.

Braves 2, Cubs 1
Rookie Derek Lilliquist allowed one run and seven hits in seven innings.

Lilliquist, 3-3, struck out three and walked none. Paul Assenmacher pitched one inning and Joe Boever got the last three outs for his seventh save. Dale Murphy and Darrell Evans each drove in a run off Scott Sanderson, 5-3, in the fourth inning.

Pirates 12, Reds 3
Barry Bonds' two-run homer capped a four-run second inning after center fielder Eric Davis dropped an apparent inning-ending fly ball as Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati.

Bob Walk, 5-3, shut out the Reds on three hits over six innings until being lifted in Cincinnati's three-run seventh. Bob Kipper finished for his first save.

Tigers down White Sox

By HILLEL ITALIE
Associated Press Writer

With 46-year-old Tommy John facing retirement, and 42-year-old Nolan Ryan allowing three Baltimore home runs, it was up to 38-year-old Doyle Alexander to retain the honor of baseball's senior pitchers.

Alexander shut down the Chicago White Sox on three hits in seven innings, leading the Detroit Tigers to a 4-2 victory Monday night and snapping a personal four-game losing streak. The right-hander has allowed just one earned run in his last 22 innings.

"Up to this point, I've probably pitched as well as I ever have before," said Alexander, who lowered his earned run average to 2.88. "I've had one bad start, and other than that, I've pitched pretty doggone well."

Alexander, 4-4, had retired the last 10 batters he faced, but told Manager Dick Tracewski to take him out after the seventh inning.

"It was my decision to come out," Alexander said. "And, no matter what would have happened, I would have stayed by it."

Elsewhere in the American League, it was New York 6, Seattle 3; Cleveland 5, Toronto 3; California 12, Milwaukee 3; Baltimore 6, Texas 1; Boston 3, Oakland 2, in 10 innings; and Kansas City 7, Minnesota 1.

Matt Nokes provided the Tiger offense by connecting in the fourth inning for his third career grand slam. His seventh homer of the season came with two outs after Eric King, 4-6, had walked the bases loaded.

Yankees 6, Mariners 3
While New York was informing John that he had 24 hours to decide between retirement and release, Richard Dotson helped his own struggling career by beating Seattle for the first time in five years.

Dotson, 2-2, allowed nine hits and three runs in 6 2-3 innings.

Dave Righetti, the third Yankee pitcher, replaced Lance McCullers after Harold Reynolds' leadoff single in the top of the ninth and earned his eighth save.

Dennis Powell, 1-2, started for Seattle after Erik Hanson woke up with a stiff right shoulder.

Indians 5, Blue Jays 3
Jerry Browne had three hits and two RBIs, and Joe Carter also drove in two runs to lead Cleveland.

Tom Candiotti, 6-2, allowed three runs, two of them earned, on six hits in seven innings.

Toronto starter Mike Flanagan, 3-5, allowed three runs on five hits in two innings before leaving with a sore shoulder.

The Indians scored in the bottom of the first on Carter's single to right and added two in the second on Browne's two-run single.

Angels 12, Brewers 3

Claudell Washington's two-run single capped a five-run third inning and Lance Parrish went 4-for-4 to lead California's season-high 18-hit attack.

Paul Molitor had four hits for Milwaukee.

Bert Blyleven, 5-2, scattered nine hits in seven innings. Greg Minton and Bryan Harvey finished up. Mike Birkbeck, 0-4, failed for the ninth time to pick up his first victory.

Red Sox 3, Athletics 2

Marty Barrett celebrated the signing of a new contract by singling home the game-winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning.

Barrett, who before the game signed an extension through the 1991 season, singled with one out to score pinch-runner Randy Kutcher from second.

After fouling off several pitches, Barrett singled to right against Oakland starter Bob Welch, 6-4, and Kutcher just beat Stan Javier's throw to the plate.

Reliever Lee Smith, 3-1, retired the side in the top of the 10th.

Royals 7, Twins 1

Bo Jackson doubled and tripled as Kansas City battered Minnesota's Frank Viola for seven runs in five innings.

The Royals jumped on Viola, 3-7, for four runs in the third and three in the fifth.

Orioles blast Texas, 6-1

BALTIMORE (AP) - Larry Sheets has quieted the boo birds, at least for a while.

The Oriole designated hitter hadn't heard many cheers from the hometown crowd this season, but the fans were happy with him Monday night when he drove in two runs, one of them with a second-inning homer off Nolan Ryan, as the Orioles beat Texas 6-1.

The homer was Sheets' third in his last four games, but the others had come on the road. He has seven hits in his last 14 at bats.

"A lot of it had to do with just getting away from here and going to the plate without worrying about what was going on around me," said Sheets. "But it was a relief to finally do something positive here."

There were few negatives Monday for the Orioles, who also got homers from Mickey Tettleton and Cal Ripken as they jumped on Ryan, 5-3, for two runs in the second inning and two more in the third.

Ryan struck out ten, the sixth time this season and the 187th time in his career he's been in double figures, but also allowed five runs, four earned, in six innings of work.

"You have to be able to get a lead early because he does get stronger as the game goes on," said Oriole manager Frank Robinson.

Tettleton's homer, leading off the second, was his 12th of the season. That is a career high for Tettleton, who has been in the major leagues for at least a part of the last six seasons. He is now tied with Bo Jackson and Rob Deer for the American League lead.

"I can't explain it," said the 29-year-old catcher. "I've never led a league in homers...not even Little League."

Ripken's homer, with one out in the third, broke a streak of 40 games and 163 at bats without a home run.

"It wasn't bothering me until someone asked," Ripken said. "The only time it leaks over is when you get to 2-0 or 3-1 and you think you have to change your approach to hit one, but the object is to hit the ball hard, and if you can hit home runs, they'll come."

Brian Holton, 2-4, earned the victory for the Orioles, his first as a starter. Holton made his second start of the season Monday, and his sixth in 126 major league appearances. He pitched 5 2-3 scoreless innings, with only one runner reaching third.

"We were a little flat," said Texas manager Bobby Valentine. "We were missing a little spark. Nolan's human. We have to give him support when he needs it."

A trio of relievers - Mark Huisman, Kevin Hickey and Gregg Olson - finished up for Baltimore, and the Rangers finally broke through to score against Hickey in the eighth, breaking a streak of 24 scoreless innings from the Oriole bullpen.

Houston edges Cards, 3-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Houston Manager Art Howe answered with a wink when he was asked about the play that snuffed out a rally by the St. Louis Cardinals Monday night and preserved a 3-2 win for the Astros.

The Cardinals had scored two runs in the bottom of the eighth and had the tying run at second and the lead run at first in the speedy personas of Vince Coleman and Willie McGee.

A double steal seemed likely and the usual play would be at third base to try to cut down the lead runner.

But when Coleman and McGee took off with Pedro Guerrero at the plate, catcher Craig Biggio gunned the ball to retire a startled McGee and end the inning.

After the game, Howe tried to be low-key about the unorthodox play. "Many times, the guy on first can't get a good jump because he has to wait for the guy at second to go. We've had this play for awhile, but this is the first time we've used it in a game," Howe said.

Instead of batting with two runners in scoring position, Guerrero led off the ninth against Houston's ace reliever Dave Smith. Guerrero flied out and Smith earned his ninth save of the year as the Astros won their fourth in a row and their eighth consecutive road game, tying a club record set in 1971.

PGA TOUR
PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) - The 1990 PGA Tour will begin with the MONY Tournament of Champions in Carlsbad, Calif.

The tourney will be held Jan. 4-7 and will be followed by the Northern Telecom Tucson Open, Jan. 11-14.

The first of the four Grand Slam events, the Masters, will be played at the Augusta National Course April 5-8.

McGee said he was embarrassed by being thrown out so easily. "It was a bonehead play on my part. They caught me napping - it was my fault," McGee said.

Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog has been complaining about his team's failure to steal bases. The Cardinals lead the league in hitting but are sixth in stolen bases.

But Herzog was not critical of McGee for being thrown out. "It would have been a helluva play if he had made it," he said. "Vince and Willie have done that pretty well in the past. Willie probably should have stayed at first."

Howe said he had another idea up his sleeve if the Cardinals had pulled off the double steal. "We would have walked Guerrero and taken our chances on Tom Brunansky," Howe said.

The play overshadowed strong performances by both starters. Cardinals starter Ken Hill (2-4) had a no-hitter going into the seventh inning while Houston's Bob Knepper (3-6) gave up just five hits and two runs in the seven and 13 innings he worked.

Hill didn't allow a hit until the seventh, but Houston had a 1-0 lead after scoring an unearned run in the first. The Astros scored on two walks.

SAYS NYU TOUGH
NEW YORK (AP) - Lloyd Winston, basketball coach at Emory, is not sure New York is a nice place to visit, even for a basketball game.

"When we played NYU," Winston said, "our players were all goo-goo eyed about being in New York. There were security guards frisking everybody at the doors. The locker room was a sweat box and the fans never stopped screaming at us."

a stolen base and an error by Guerrero. That run held up until the seventh. Terry Puhl broke up the no-hit bid with a bouncing single to center. With two outs, Rafael Ramirez singled and Biggio hit a two-run double.

The Cardinals scored their two runs in the eighth before the pivotal double steal attempt.

Pinch hitter Jim Lindeman drove in one run with a double to right after Jose Oquendo led off with a walk and Coleman singled Lindeman home with a single to left.

Knepper said he didn't think he had his best stuff when he was warming up before the game.

"My fastball didn't have much velocity and my curveball wasn't snapping," he said. "I had to rely on location."

The Cardinals have scored a total of six runs in Hill's four losses this season.

Houston's road record of 15-7 compared to a home losing record of 10-17 is a puzzle to Howe. The Astros are usually hard to beat at home and have winning records there 21 times since the Astrodome opened in 1965.

"I can't explain it," Howe said. "All I know is I like the way we're playing right now, no matter where it is."

RUPP ROUGH
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - When asked about tough arenas to play basketball games in away from home, Rick Barnes of Providence was quick to answer: "Kentucky's Rupp Arena." "It holds 23,000 fans and they seemed to be involved even before the tipoff," Barnes said. "They booed every call by the officials, whether it was for or against the home team. Over a 40-minute game, it has to take a toll on the officials."

Spurs surprised by trade

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Alvin Robertson isn't the only one in San Antonio who's surprised and saddened by his trade to Milwaukee for veteran forward Terry Cummings.

Several Spurs players said they're sad to see the five-year guard go.

Robertson, who was considered the most popular Spurs player since the days of George "Ice Man" Gervin, was dealt to the Bucks along with second-year forward Greg Anderson and future considerations Sunday.

"They traded two quality players for one player who may be over the hill in two or three years," said guard

Willie Anderson. "This trade will upset a lot of people. I didn't expect to lose two quality players like that in one trade."

Cummings has led the Bucks in scoring each of his five seasons with the team, averaging 22.9 points. But he and Robertson also were disappointed by the deal. Both hoped to stay with their team for several more years.

Robertson said he looked forward to being with the Spurs when David Robinson joined this fall. Robinson, the Navy superstar who was the first player picked in the 1987 draft, is a 7-foot-1 center who had to complete a two-year commitment to the Navy before turning pro.

Robertson, a three-time NBA All-Star, averaged 16.2 points per game, 5.4 assists and 2.9 steals for the Spurs. His stature grew in San Antonio during his five years there. Many fans viewed him as the team's biggest star since Gervin, the Spurs' leading scorer.

"It surprises me because Alvin has been a mainstay with San Antonio," Spurs reserve Scott Roth told the San Antonio Express-News.

Johnny Longden was the first jockey to ride 5,000 winners. He arrived at that mark in 1957.

Summer time for salads

When you want to eat something light, you choose a salad, right? Crisp greens, vegetables and fruits are refreshing and, best of all, low in calories. Plus, they're full of vitamins and fiber.

But some salads are more healthful than others. Before tossing your greens with dressing or mounding them high with other salad-bar goodies, check your options. The amounts and types of dressing and toppers often determine your salad's healthfulness. Compare these salad selections:

SALAD A: Includes 1 cup of mixed greens topped with diced tomato, shredded Cheddar cheese, crumbled bacon, sunflower nuts and a generous 2 tablespoons of Thousand Island Dressing. Sound good? Maybe, but the total calorie count is about 300; about two-thirds of the calories come from 23 grams of fat.

SALAD B: Also starts with 1 cup of mixed greens and diced tomato. But it's topped with low-fat fixings including sliced cucumber, alfalfa sprouts and diced green pepper. The salad is then dressed with 1 tablespoon reduced-calorie Thousand Island dressing. Sounds good, and the calorie total sounds even better. This salad contains fewer than 70 calories and less than 25 percent come from fat.

NO-CHOLESTEROL DRESSING
For a tasty dressing, try this recipe for Apricot-Sesame Dressing. It contains 22 calories per tablespoon, with a trace of fat and no cholesterol.

APRICOT-SESAME DRESSING
In a small saucepan combine 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder and 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger. Stir in one 5 1/2-ounce can apricot nectar, 7/8 cup red wine vinegar, 1 tablespoon honey and 1 teaspoon sesame oil. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more. Chill, covered. Stir before serving. If desired, sprinkle 1 teaspoon toasted sesame seed over salad greens. Makes 2-3rds cup.

BEST-DRESSED SALAD TIPS
- Read labels. Many bottled dressings average 60 to 80 calories per tablespoon, reduced-calorie versions just one-fourth to one-half that amount.
- Before serving creamy dressings, dilute fat and calories by combining some dressing with an equal amount of low-fat plain yogurt.
