

Personally Speaking

By E. M.

It's strange about attitude, isn't it?

Two people may look at the same thing and react to it in absolutely opposite ways.

A mother, gazing after her little freckly-faced son, may croon "Precious Lamb!" but a neighbor, glancing out her window, may mutter, "Imp of Satan!" It's all the way we look at things.

Two people may be heard expressing their opinions of the pajama-cutout sandal—no hose mode of modern girls.

"Girls are certainly getting immodest now days. What's the world coming to?" one may gasp in horror.

"How much more sane and sensible is the modern girl than her grandmother who wore tight corsets, four petticoats, and high-topped shoes," remarks the other. Again, it's all in the way we look at things.

So it is in larger realms. A morning paper prints the statement of an eminent scientist that humans beings are made of the chemical element as rocks and plants and animals and even the distant stars. One reader says, "How terribly humiliating! If we are made of the same stuff as the animals, we might as well admit that we are animals, and act like them."

But a mystic murmurs, "God sleeps in the stone; He dreams in the animal; He wakes in man!" Once more, it's all in the way we look at things.

One man may complain, "The world has never been so full of wickedness as it is now."

Another looks at the same world and exalts, "Never have there been so many signs of promise, so many individuals and organizations working and caring intelligently to right ancient wrongs, to build a new social order in which there shall be justice and love and life for all."

Still again, it's in the way we look at things.

What we are is largely determined by our attitude toward life—or how we look at things. If we go about with a permanent chip on the shoulder and think that the whole world has it in for us, we shall not be very happy; nor will we make others about us happy.

But if we are gay-hearted and go about with a smiling face and have a friendly word for all with whom we come in contact, we shall not only be much happier ourselves but we shall make the world a better place for our associates.

Happy is he who, when things go wrong, gathers himself together and says cheerily, "Better luck next time, old top;" then proceeds to see that things are better next time.

It's all in the way we look at things.

Commercial Group Donates Money For Contestants

A contribution of fifteen dollars was made to the Darrouzett school for the purpose of assisting contestants to enter the district Interscholastic League meet at Canyon this week, by the local Chamber of Commerce at the meeting held Monday night at the Hotel Erts.

Mrs. William Erts, hotel proprietor entertained the commercial group at dinner.

S. F. Cross of McCloud, Okla., was a special guest. Others present were C. H. Powell, J. E. Speer, Otis Travis, A. H. Montgomery, M. L. Beck, Glen Phillips, R. W. Perry, C. T. Phillips, Carson Altmiller, Rev. A. Blair Grubb, and Miss Elsie Montgomery.

A discussion of road conditions in the town and community was held. Carson Altmiller, local road overseer reported that road improvement work south of town was progressing. He also stated that the new tractor and road equipment belonging to the county is still available for use here and that more road improvement will be started.

Dairy Cows Pay Dividends Says County Agent

Dairy cows in Lipscomb County are still paying dividends, according to statistics from experiments on demonstration herds under the supervision of W. K. Cottingham, county agricultural agent.

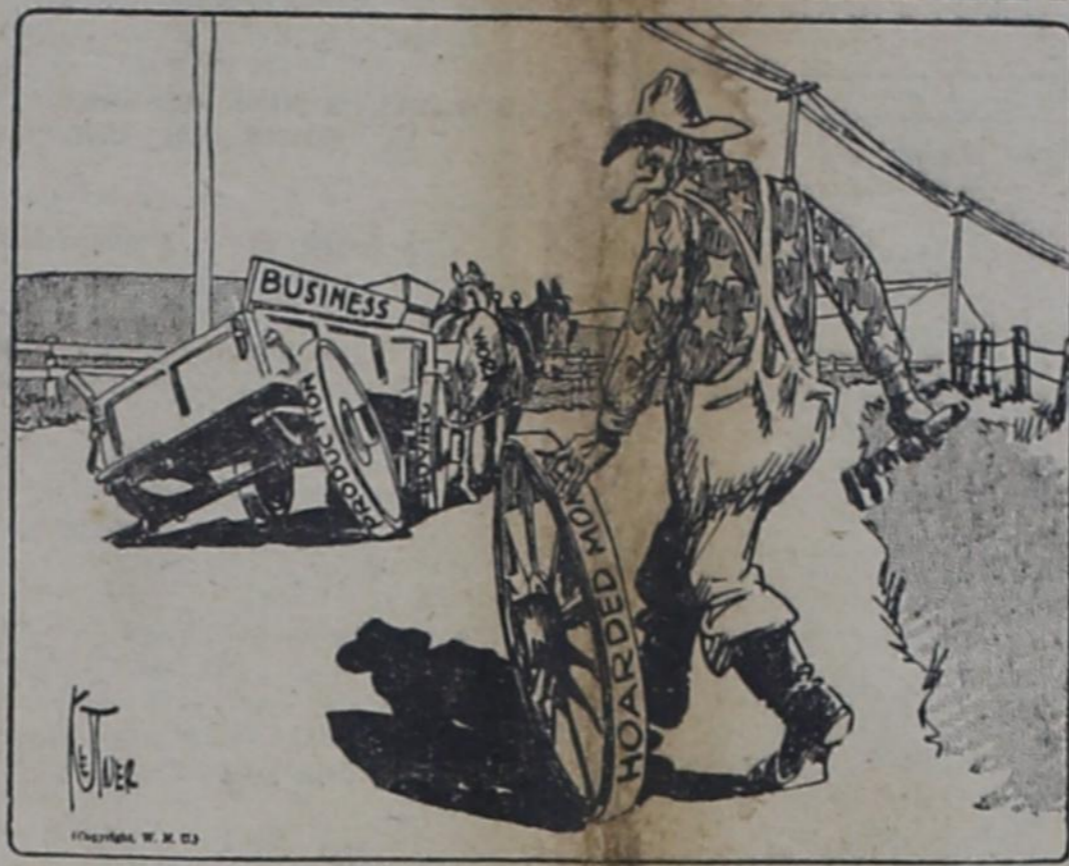

Forty-six dairy cows in five demonstration herds produced 29.25 pounds of butter fat per cow at a feed cost of 10.2 cents per pound during the months of February, Mr. Cottingham stated. The butter fat sold for an average price of 18.05¢ per pound.

In addition, the 46 cows produced an average of 645.7 pounds of skim milk valued at 40¢ per hundred pounds as feed for hogs and chickens.

Included in the feed costs are home grown grains and hays valued at market prices, and pasture valued at 36¢ per cow per month. However, very little pasture of good quality was available to any of the herds during February, the county agent says.

This record was made possible by keeping production records and by feeding a well-balanced ration according to each cow's production, Mr. Cottingham believes.

The Fourth Wheel

In Spring, Our Thoughts Turn To --- Improvements

With the coming of spring weather, thoughts of people in this locality have been turning to improvements and building projects about their homes and offices.

During the past few days a number of projects have been started, while several others begun earlier have been completed.

The Darrouzett Co-operative Association has been remodeling its office this week. A partition has been changed to make a private office in the east part of the old office. Window screens are being built, and paint is being added here and there. All in all, the Co-op officials seem to be getting ready for the summer wheat rush which, by the way is getting near and nearer.

The James Motor Co. has also felt a touch of spring fever. Equipment is being moved around and improvements are being made in plans.

Churches, too, are not exempt. The Panhandle Lumber Company and supply of yard fencing to the Germ Church at Lipscomb this week.

The local school has also been improving the school grounds by filling in the front yard with dirt, getting it in a condition to be planted to grass later, and replanting trees.

Various individuals have also been making improvements at their homes or building new houses.

A complete bath outfit was installed recently in the John Martin home. Mrs. G. W. Sumner, who is moving to Follett, is painting and re-decorating a house there. G. A. Jenkins is tearing down an old barn and is considering building a residence on his place.

Fred Smith, who lives north of Logan, is erecting a one-story Spanish house.

L. J. Mitchell, northwest of Gaylord, is finishing a one-story frame house.

Workmen are about to complete the new brick and tile house being built for Fred B. Hart of Amarillo on the old Alex Young ranch. The house is a story and a-half structure with 7 or 8 rooms, and it is to be modern in every way. H. T. W. Hill of Higgins is the contractor in charge.

Mr. Hart is a Santa Fe roadmaster, with headquarters in Amarillo.

New Ford To Be Shown Here On Monday

A new Ford 8 will be on display at the James Motor Company on Monday according to R. E. James, manager.

The Ford which belongs to the Ford Motor Company, is being shown in a number of towns nearby. It was shown at Higgins on Tuesday of this week, and it is to be displayed at Booker on Saturday.

Seniors Continue Tradition Of Beautifying Grounds

Carrying out the tradition started by the Senior class of last year, the 1932 Seniors have been making improvements and assisting in the beautifying of the school grounds.

They have supervised the work of filling in the front grounds with dirt, preparing it to be planted to grass later. Four Chinese Elm trees were also set out this week to replace those planted last year that had died. The trees were replaced by the

L. C. S. A. Holds Last Meeting Of School Year Here

The last meeting of the school year for the Lipscomb County Superintendents Association was held on Thursday evening, April 14, at the Hotel Erts, according to J. E. Speer, secretary.

C. A. Dickenson, chairman of the group, served as host. Others present were L. Hill, Follett superintendent; L. H. Bond, head of Booker schools; Ben Lawrence, superintendent at Lipscomb, and Mr. Speer.

Mr. Hill led discussion on the topic, "Does our Curriculum fit our various committees?" In the general discussion that followed Mr. Hill's remarks, the superintendents expressed the opinion that the various curricular in this county fit the communities as well as possible when the state requirements and the facilities of each community are considered.

In a comparison of the courses of study of the five high schools in the county, it was found that Darrouzett and Lipscomb followed rigid requirement outlines while the three larger schools were able to offer a few electives.

During their meeting, the superintendents agreed to attend the next meeting of the Panhandle Superintendents' Association at Amarillo if possible.

Letters of appreciation to the organization for its work during the school year from President J. A. Hill of the West Texas State Teachers' College at Canyon, and "The Outlook," official publication of the Texas State Teachers' Association, were read by Mr. Speer.

The group decided that the association had been worthwhile and that a great deal of good had been accomplished in that the school heads had become better acquainted and that a better spirit of friendliness and co-operation had been established among the schools of the county.

Albert Frazier of Follett visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reger on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Cross and son, Phillip K., of McCloud, Okla., visited with friends and relatives here this week.

Large Crowd Sees Band Benefit Play On Saturday Nite

A large crowd assembled at the Darrouzett school auditorium last Saturday to see the melodrama, "Three Glasses A Day," or "The Broken Home" given for the benefit of the local band.

Over twenty-two dollars was taken in as proceeds.

The players acted their parts well. M. L. Beck, playing the part of Ralph Aubrey who took the "three glasses a day," was especially good in the part of a drunk man. Mrs. G. A. Jenkins as Mrs. Aubrey; Florella Woods as Clara Aubrey; and Fred Mullins Harry Montford, the gambler, all acted their parts well.

Mrs. Stella Beck as Julia Lovegrove the hired girl and Glen Mills, as Zeke Wintergreen, the hired man, furnished a great deal of amusement for the crowd.

Three monologues given during the evening, "The Joy of Ill Health," given by Mrs. A. Grubb; "Talktive Tillie," by Mrs. R. D. Hennigh; and "Hiriam Blows In," by Lewis Woods, proved very entertaining.

Other popular numbers were duets by Faynell Walton and Oklahoma Tingley, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Otis Travis; a pantomime, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine;" and selections by the male quartet composed of Jess Davis, Perry Jenkins, Wilber Messner, and Mr. Guy.

Musical numbers were also furnished by the band.

Mrs. M. L. Beck directed the play.

A letter of appreciation to the community for its response to the boosters of the Panhandle Agricultural and Mechanical College on their trip here on April 12 was received by THE DARROUZETT NEWS this week from President Albert W. Fanning.

The letter follows: "Through the columns of your paper we want to thank the Chamber of Commerce and the citizens of Darrouzett for the very fine reception that they gave our booster band at Darrouzett.

"We take this opportunity to thank you for the generous space you have given us in your newspaper. If at any time you feel that the college can serve your community, please call on us."

The entertainment will be given by the organization in behalf of the community.

Every family in the community is invited to come to the schoolhouse at 6:30 that evening, bringing a covered dish or other food.

While a regular program was not been planned, outdoor games and a supper will be part of the activities of the evening, Mrs. Grubb said.

Election of officers for the coming year will also be held.

The program for the musical recital to be presented at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, April 23, at the Darrouzett school auditorium is being announced on another page of THE NEWS.

Has Spring Come to Town? Answer Is "Yes"

When grass and trees begin to turn green, when sunshine and rain alternate, when people turn their attention to gardens and yards, and when vacant lots are filled with boys playing baseball, spring has really come. Taking those as requisites, spring-time is surely here at Darrouzett. Especially have we had sudden changes from rainy nights to sunshiny days. Numerous improvements are being made about town. Everyone seems to be trying to get things ready for the coming of harvest time, which is getting nearer and nearer. Yes, surely spring is here now.

Help People To Help Themselves

How far should a community go in giving aid to its unfortunate members?

This is a problem every community faces at one time or another.

Gifts of food, clothing, and money, although they are at times very necessary, afford only temporary relief. Furthermore too many gifts make people unwilling to work.

The ideal way is to remove the cause of dependency or to assist the unfortunate to regain self-support and usefulness. In other words, a community should strive to help people to help themselves.

Education Needs Protection

"Only a people that had no conception of the place of education in its national life could contemplate the ruin of the next generation as the best remedy for governmental insolvency," says Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, in the April Journal of the National Education Association.

Writing on "Education as a National Enterprise," President Hutchins describes American schools of all education levels from the primary to the university as a unitary system, a shock to which at one level is at once transferred to all others. "If the schools are cut to pieces this year, the state university will be next year. If the schools are crippled now, the colleges will be later, either through reductions in the funds or through gross defects in the preparation of their students," warns President Hutchins.

"We hear a great deal about frills in education. What are these frills?" asks President Hutchins in discussing possible retrenchments in education. "Teachers' salaries appear to be frills in some cities. The health of school children is a frill in others. Since night schools are a frill in one community, we close them, and throw 75,000 people into the streets. The plain fact is that the schools are under attack because it is easier to get money from them than it is to correct the fundamental iniquities and antiquities of local government."

"Undoubtedly in the hysteria of inflation the schools, like the colleges and universities, did some things that they can now do without. But the things that communities propose to do to them in the hysteria of economy far surpass the wildest aberrations of bull market days."—The Prairie.

A GIFT

By Mildred Crabtree Speer

God planted a gift in me;
 I felt it stir and demand
 An outlet, a chance to spread,
 But I had no chance to tend it
 For there was my regular work, and
 My friends with their demands
 Left no time for the plant to be fed.

I thought that God's gift in me
 Had died, for it seemed still.
 I was content to go my way
 Feeling only a vague sullenness
 That I should be the one to carry
 A dead mark of God. I thought
 The hurt would pass in a day.

Then it was that you, my friend,
 Reached down into the soil
 Of my heart, and cried to see
 The choking weeds of selfishness.
 Not heeding my cries of pain
 You pruned away the dead limbs
 From the gift God planted in me.

You opened my heart to sunshine;
 I watered the plant with tears
 Of regret for what had been mine.
 Then, wonder of wonders, the plant bloomed;
 The earth marveled at its beauty.
 But you, my dear, were the gardener,
 And what once was mine is yours.

ROOSEVELT'S NINE REASONS FOR GOING TO CHURCH

FIRST:

In this actual world, a churchless community, a community where men have abandoned and scoffed at or ignored their religious needs, is a community on the rapid down grade.

SECOND:

Church work and church attendance mean the cultivation of the habit of feeling some responsibility for others.

THIRD:

There are enough holidays for most of us. Sundays differ from other holidays in the fact that there are fifty-two of them every year—Therefore on Sundays go to Church.

FOURTH:

Yes, I know all the excuses. I know that one can worship the Creator in a grove of trees, or by a running brook or in a man's house just as well as in a church. But I also know as a matter of cold fact the average man does not thus worship.

FIFTH:

He may not hear a good sermon at church. He will hear a sermon by a good man, who, with his good wife, is engaged all the week in making hard lives a little easier.

SIXTH:

He will listen to and take part in reading some beautiful passages from the Bible. And if he is not familiar with the Bible, he has suffered a loss.

SEVENTH:

He will take part in singing some good hymns.

EIGHTH:

He will meet and nod or speak to good, quiet neighbors. He will come away feeling a little more charitably toward all the world, even toward those actively foolish young men who church-going as a soft is a man's joining in church. Look for the sake of showing his faith by his work.

Third and Fourth Grade Activities

The attendance of the third and fourth grade room has been very irregular the last few days on account of several cases of measles. Those who have been out so far with the measles are: Daisy Painter, Gertrude McGee, Wayne Lash, Don James and Frances Fausset.

Vernon Painter, the small brother of Daisy and Everett Painter, was a visitor the latter part of last week.

A picnic was planned for Friday afternoon of this week but on account of so much illness, it has been postponed until more of the students get back to school.

Tuesday morning in citizenship period each student was given a chance to show his ability to do physical work as well as mental work. Borders were erased and washed off the blackboards, erasers were dusted, desks washed, floors swept, and a general and thorough job of house cleaning was accomplished. After the board was washed the teacher was asked to draw a pansy border on one board and a bird border on the other. A greater feeling of pride existed in the room after the work was done.

Tuesday some of the students brought hoes, rakes, etc; to school that we might plant the flower seeds that had been previously ordered from the "Children's Folwer Mission Company." Fire Bush, Zinnias, Poppies, Petunias and several other kinds of flower beds have been planted. Some of the boys offered to water the flowers during the hot summer months. It is the hope of all that next fall the school grounds will be much more beautiful than they are now.

The primary room sent their spring booklets in to be judged. The books were very interesting and much enjoyment was received from the work.

Ross Montgomery brought some lovely red carnations to school Monday morning.

ATHLETICS IN HIGH SCHOOL

by Lewis Woods

Athletics such as baseball, basketball, tennis, and track are good measures in high school.

The first good point is that in team athletics each player has to work with the others and all must work together as one. In this way a spirit of good fellowship is created among school mates.

Second, the exercise obtained in athletic training aids not only in the development of one's health but develops his mental ability, trains the eye and helps him to be more accurate with his hands. It trains his eye, mind, hands, feet, legs, and whole body to work in harmony. It also develops one's determination.

Thus athletics in high school aids in the development of the man, physically and mentally, and creates a spirit of good feeling among high school mates.

The following essay, "Why I Don't Want to Grow Up," won first place in the recent Interscholastic League meet. It was written by Miss Leona Bozarth, a student in the Follett High School.

It is reprinted here from the Follett Times.

It is strange, and sorrowful too, that the nature of man is such that he does not recognize happiness, nor live in the present. He is always looking forward or backward, building on the future or dreaming of the past. His everyday life is a mere existence. A monotony of passing days. It is in a far-off glorious time that he intends to really live, or it is in a misty past, which his memories magnify into a time when he drank of the fullest enjoyment, he was perfectly happy. How many old people have we heard, recalling pensively the days of their youth. They may live in ease and comfort; they have reared families; they have amassed a comfortable supply of worldly goods; they have nothing left to do but sit back easily in their soft-cushioned chairs, and enjoy that rest and security which they have been striving for since they began their battle with life.

But do they say to themselves, "I have reached my goal. The way has been rough, the fight has been hard, but it is over now and I can realize a fulfillment of all my plans. I shall now proceed to enjoy life." They do not. They gather their youthful prognies about them, and they weave a tale of recollections. They recall their by-gone days; they live in reminiscences. They advise youth solemnly and impressively to "enjoy yourselves while you may. These are your happiest days and they will soon be past and gone."

Meanwhile, ambitious youth gazes cairvoyantly into a far-off day and visions himself, a person that bears no resemblance to his present shell, robed perhaps in the garb of a judge, clothed in the garments of an aviator, or adorned with the sparkling dress of a dancer or singer. It matters little the exact profession; whatever it be, it is magnificent and far above the plane of his present existence.

There is one person, however, who neither thinks of the past nor longs for the future. He has no past, and the future matters not at all to him. He is filled with an eagerness to learn all about the beautiful happenings of this world; he is eager, he is interested. There is nothing too commonplace to arouse in him a consuming curiosity. Tasks that adults are tiresome, and are done simply because they must be, are to him entrances into realms of glory. How excited he becomes if he is permitted to accompany an older person on a shopping expedition! How awake he is to all he sees, and how he desires to learn more about every thing! The clerks behind the counter are not mere men, but figures clothed in majesty. He wants to know what each box and barrel contains: pickles, molasses, soda-crackers; he delights afresh at each of them. These are words, not new to him, but they open up to him undreamed of worlds of thought. He has never before associated a pickle with a barrel, nor has he ever seen a huge feather-duster, with yellow bananas in place of feathers. One sparkling glass case in particular holds his attention. He has a sweet-tooth, and the colored candies fascinate him.

All of life, to the child, is an adventure. He awakes in the morning, refreshed, ready for whatever the day may hold for him. He is sure that it is something glorious. He is not drowsy and lazy, reluctant to leave his bed. He bounces out into the crisp morning and immediately starts on explorations.

It is certain that the child does not think to himself, "These are my happiest days, and I must take the best from them." Instinctively and naturally he puts the best of himself into living. Therefore, life is full to the brim for him and he drinks it deeply to the last sweet drop that falls into his red, young mouth.

It is a sad thing that age can rob us of our most precious possession. If everyone could keep that absorption, that enthusiasm, in life that he has as a child, what a different world this would be! Once in a while a person is born who keeps it, a poet, or perhaps a philosopher, who never grows old.

I want to keep my grip on youth; I cannot keep my body always young, but my spirit can be always vitally alive, enthusiastic and responsive, and I shall never "grow up!"

SWINGING IN THE APRICOT TREE

When I was a small child about five or six years old, I would swing in the apricot tree. I would have one of my brothers put a rope on one of the highest limbs. Every day I would go there and take my doll, which was usually my only company. Sometimes I would have one of my girl friends stay all night with me; then the next day we would take our dolls and our lunch to the orchard, and spend nearly all of the day swinging our dolls and singing songs to them as if they were real.—Gwen Pugh, Freshman English Class.

Fifth and Sixth Grade Notes

Work on our salt map is progressing rather slowly, as so many pupils have been absent.

Last Friday eleven pupils were absent on account of colds or measles. However, on Monday Robert and Thomas Burke were back in school, bringing our number present up to nine.

Robins and branches of apple blossoms were colored for our window decorations for this month.

Examinations were held on Thursday and Friday of last week for the fifth six-weeks' term.

Mrs. Ludlum visited our room on Wednesday afternoon.

Health booklets in the shape of milk bottles are being made in fifth grade health class. Little jingles and rhymes teaching the values of milk as a food made up a large part of the booklet.

Pictures of children drinking milk through a straw from a milk bottle were used by the sixth grade for poster making.

The "Jungle Book" is being read by the teacher during opening exercise period. This book proves to be quite interesting as it deals with animal life in the tropics.

A Weekly SERMONETTE

SHE SPEAKS THEIR LANGUAGE

By Arthur B. Rhinow

From a balcony in the large hall on Ellis Island I watched the immigrants enter for a final inspection. One group in particular interested me. They were bewildered, talking and gesticulating excitedly. One by one the employees tried to calm them, only to be met with shakings of the head and cryptic shrugs of the shoulder. Finally a young lady approached, and after a few words all was smiles.

Inquiringly I turned to my friend who knew the ways of the Island. "She speaks their language," he explained.

What a perfectly simple explanation. How happy those immigrants must have been to hear their own sweet mother tongue in a strange land. Then the clouds lifted and the sun shone. They were easily directed.

If only we could understand one another; not merely the spoken and written words of different nations and races, but the vernacular of the soul in which a person communes with himself. A man may be able to converse in nine languages and yet not understand his neighbor. Every individual has a sphere of his very own, with thoughts and feelings that often defy translation into words. There we are ourselves; there we speak our own language.

And sedom do we find anyone who can "speak our language." Only one who truly loves his fellowmen can penetrate to that silent sphere. When that happens there is a family feast: brother and brother and Father.

David Livingstone in the heart of Africa could not speak the language of the natives, but they understood him, for they knew he loved them.

Mr. Stone and Mr. Wood were standing on the corner talking when a very good looking girl passed by. Stone turned to Wood; Wood turned to Stone; they both turned to rubber; and the girl turned into Beck's Drug Store, returned with a box of Crazy Crystals, and everything turned out all right. Adv.

Grade Room Again Wins P. T. A. Banner

The third and fourth grade room taught by Mrs. Ray T. Hennigh again won the P. T. A. attendance banner at the meeting of the group on Wednesday afternoon, April 14, at the school auditorium.

The meeting was opened with the singing of the P. T. A. song by the assembly. Mrs. A. Blair Grubb gave a talk on "Teaching Children the Story of Life." Mrs. J. E. Speer also talked on the same topic and read from pamphlets.

A report of the recent P. T. A. convention held at Panhandle was read by Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, president. She stated that Mrs. J. E. Griggs of Amarillo is the new P. T. A. district president and that Mrs. W. E. Lamaster of Perryton is the new first vice president.

The group voted to buy pamphlets of the story of life for parents and children and to distribute them to each family in the community. The members discussed the plan to secure diptheria inoculation here and decided to drop the matter for lack of sufficient funds to carry out the project.

An election of officers for the coming year will be held at the next meeting on Friday evening, April 29.

FARM LOANS ARE HELPING BUSINESS

APPLICATIONS FOR MONEY MUST BE FILED BY APRIL 30th

A noticeable improvement in business conditions in those sections of the state where farmers in large numbers are obtaining agricultural loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is being reported to Regional Manager, Owen W. Sherrill by bankers, merchants and Chamber of Commerce Executives.

"Hundreds of thousands of dollars being spent for seed, supplies, fertilizer, fuel and oil for tractors, feed for work stock, repairs and miscellaneous expenses of crop production," said Mr. Sherrill, "is causing money to circulate rapidly and widely. Increasing consumption of farm supplies is a very effective, practical and fundamental means of actually restoring prosperity from the ground up.

"Full credit should be given county committees in some sections of the State for the readiness with which loans are being made. Where applications are prepared properly, they are cleared with dispatch at Dallas office and checks are mailed within twenty-four hours.

"In many sections community committees or sub-committees have been established by county committees. Farmers in a locality can have their loans passed on by these sub-committees, which saves the farmers' time and a great amount of travel. This procedure is being encouraged by the Dallas Office to expedite the work and better serve the farmers."

It is expected that approved loans for Texas, New Mexico and Arizona farmers will total from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 by the end of this month. Applications for loans must be filed by April 30, it is announced by Mr. Sherrill, and application forms may be obtained from county Committees, sub-committees, or through county agents or Texas Cotton Co-Operative Association Branch Offices.

Amarillo to Celebrate Opening Of Theatre

Amarillo celebrates this week the opening of the new half-million dollar Publix theater, the Paramount. While building activities have remained static throughout the entire nation, the group engaged in this project have pushed forward steadily this construction work to a successful conclusion, and thus has enjoyed the advantages accruing to the far sighted builder of today.

With labor and material cost at a low figure unusual advantages have been made possible in all construction lines, and thus the erection of a theater comparable to any similar structure in the nation today has been put at the disposal of the Panhandle citizens that might otherwise have been beyond their reach. In addition this work has kept scores of otherwise idle laborers at tasks during the past seven months and thus contributed to the betterment of general conditions of unemployment in this section.

A mild winter has also speeded up this work generally and those closely associated with the project state that a more suitable selection of the time element could not have been found in the past five years for such a piece of work.

The theater embodies most of the latest developments of theater construction and is modern atmosphere in motif. The theater proper occupies the back portion of the lot on which it is situated, thus allowing the use of the frontage on the main street, Polk, for the housing of other commercial business houses. The Theater proper rises three stories in height with the commercial rooms a story and a half in height.

A huge upright sign sixty feet above the sidewalk will become one of the familiar landmarks of the "Helium City." The theater will seat close to sixteen hundred and is said to be as luxuriously appointed and decorated as any theatre in the southwest. Paramount Publix will operate under lease arrangement with local capitalists.

Don't miss seeing Mae Murray, Lowell Sherman, and Karen Morley, in "High Stakes" at 2:30 Saturday afternoon. Adv.
