Ed Kizer the other day showed me an Indian flint fishhook which appears to be as perfect a specimen of the flint worker's art as you will ever see. The hook was found in a pile of gravel at the former Dr. Ben Bradley home about a year ago. Mr. and Mrs. Kizer owned and lived at the place for several years and until they sold it a few months ago.

Although the little implement was found there, Mr. Kizer believes it was dredged up in a load of gravel from a creek bed and hauled to the Bradley place.

"You wouldn't be likely to find fishhooks on a hill," he suggested. "You'd expect to find them about a fishing hole or creek."

Which is reasonable unless the Indian artisan happened to have his shop on a hill near a supply of flint in which case there would be stone chips, broken implements and other relics of his industry.

The hook, of course, is crude compared to the modern, steel article. It is much larger, the stone shank and hook much thicker, and it has no barb. It has no eye, but instead, a sort of cross-piece at the top about which a piece of rawhide, if that is what the Indians used for line, could be tied.

But it represents a skill that could command the respect of any modern maker of hooks. According to the author of "The Comanches," the Indian maker of arrowheads and the like used heat and water to shape his product, flaking off bits of flint by heating the stone and putting drops of water where he wanted the flint to chip off. It was a slow and difficult process and it took nice judgement to work the proper design out of the rough. Arrowmakers were usually old men of long experience in the work and for whom the hunters and warriors of the tribe had much respect.

The sale of cigarets, I am told, is greater than it was a year ago in spite of the U. S. Health Service report that inhaling cigarette smoke is a prime cause of lung cancer. It just goes to show that people are going to do what they want to do regardless of statistical evidence or warnings of peril.

"There is no use in condemning a bad habit," writes a Houston doctor. "There is no use in bringing the facts to bear on it and expect that this alone is going to remove a particularly undesirable habit from the world. We have to begin very early in the education of little children at school, in the education of our youngsters at home if we are going to remove not only the habit of smoking but the bad habits in human relationships, the bad driving habits which kill people on the road, the bad habits between all of us which make life miserable and bitter and so unnecessarily tragic."

Bravo, Doctor!
But who is going to teach them?

County Farm Bureau Queen Contest To Be Held at Eastland August 20

Eastland County Farm Bureau's annual barbecue and queen contest will be held Thursday, August 20th at 7:00 p.m. at the Eastland City Park. Three girls have entered the contest so far, according to Mrs. Beth Coats, Rt. 1, Cisco, Chairman of the Queen contest.

The purpose of this contest is to give recognition to the farm and ranch girls of the county.

The girls will be judged on grace, poise, charm, vivaciousness and all the qualities that go to make up winsome future homemakers. There are three points on which they will be judged; namely, (1) Appearance, (2) poise, (3) personality. Eligibility for the contest is a girl to be a daughter or sister of a Farm Bureau member of Eastland County. They must be single, age 16-22.

Those entered so far are; Miss Carolyn Key, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Key, Rt. 2, Eastland, Texas; Betty Easter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Easter, Rt. 3, Cisco, Texas, and Kathy Browning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bob Browning, Rt. 1, Gorman; Glenda Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn O. Jordan, Rt. 1, Gorman, and Sharon Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown, Ranger.

Mrs. Ruth Nay is recovering from surgery at Odessa, where she underwent an operation Friday of last week.

Final Rodeo Of Summer Series Friday Night

The final rodeo performance of the summer series sponsored weekly by the Rising Star Roping Club will take place at the local arena Friday night. The arena is located on Highway 36 about a mile and a half east of the business district.

The current series will conclude 12 consecutive summers during which the roping club has sponsored what has proved to be a most successful project in western style entertainment. The Rising Star rodeo is unique among rodeos in that it is a weekly event operated by a non-profit community organization.

Jack Jackson is president of the roping club and Frank Huddler is secretary.

Results of the contests last Friday night were:

Barrell races, under 12-year-olds — Doug Horner, 20 sec.; Sherran Jessup, 22.5; Barrell races, 12-16 years — Mary Davis, 19.4; Pat Horner 19.8; Calif roping — Connie Mack Gibbs, 12.1; Jos Templeton and Turner Harvey (tie) 13.4; Bronc riding — Larry Moore, 66 points; S. M. Moore, 65 points; Bull riding — Dee Ogden 67 points; Wayne Stewart 66 points; Jackpot roping — Connie Gibbs, 13 sec.; Jeff Davis 13.4; Connie Mack Gibbs, 14.2.

20 Acres Grass On Collins Farm Burned

Some 20 acres of grassland belonging to Co. Comm'r J. J. (Buck) Collins and bordering Highway 36 about five miles east of Rising Star was burned over last Friday.

High winds hampered the Rising Star fire department in fighting the spreading blaze, and the Cross Plains department sent a truck which helped to bring it under control.

The fire started, it was said, from a cigaret thrown by a motorist. Trees and grass along the highway right-of-way at the point provide a shady and inviting placet which motorists frequently make use of in a break from driving monotony.

Football Candidates Are Summoned August 17th

Some 30 candidates for the 1964 edition of the Wildcat football team were expected to answer the call of Coaches Weldon Hill, Frank Gray and Eddy Joe Henry to report Monday night, August 17, at 6:30 o'clock at the High School gym.

The boys, among whom are 17 lettermen from last year's team including seven of the starters, will work out in shorts during the first week. Interscholastic League rules prohibit contact work for one week.

The squad will have its first scrimmage at Santa with the Mountaineer squad August 29. Coach Hill said that all boys who expect to play on the team secure their physical examination report blanks at the school at once and turn in the doctor's report before the start of the practice period. Under League rules a boy will not be allowed to participate in play or practice until such a report showing

Airman, Accident Victim, Buried Here Wednesday

Funeral services for Walter Mack Looney, 30, A/2c, who was accidentally electrocuted Saturday at Charleston, S. C., were held at the Church of Christ in Rising Star at 2 p. m., Wednesday of this week. Burial was in Rising Star cemetery.

H. McDonald, minister of the Rising Star church, officiated. Higginbotham Funeral Home was in charge of burial arrangements.

Mr. Looney, who was born September 18, 1934, at Odessa, is survived by his wife, Pat, of Charleston; a daughter, Elizabeth, of Charleston; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lee Looney, of Trickham, and a sister, Marie Kornegay of Odessa.

Lakewood Project Viewed Favorably By FHA Officials

Whether or not the Lakewood Country Club site of 70 acres on the shores of Lake Phil-Pe Co, midway between Rising Star and Cross Plains, can be developed into a major recreation center for this area under the Farmers Home Administration financing program depends specifically upon whether or not the proposed project meets the FHA requirement that land so developed represent a shift from uses in which there is over-production to a use in greater demand.

So a group of Rising Star and Cross Plains citizens meeting at the First State Bank with officials of the FHA Monday afternoon agreed.

Officials of the FHA who were present were Elmer L. Foster, area supervisor; Homer P. Cole, county supervisor, and Darrell Cooper, assistant county supervisor.

Heading the bi-community group of Lakewood club directors were Wm. E. (Bill) Tyler of Rising Star and R. L. Needham of Cross Plains.

Mr. Foster explained that the program under which the Lakewood project would, if approved, be financed, is relatively new and only two or three of the nature have been processed in the State. He said his agency is anxious to be of any assistance possible and that it would be glad to provide the funds under the FHA rural recreation program if the project meets the requirements and is proved financially and operationally feasible. He and the other FHA officials were definitely impressed by the community interest reflected in the large attendance of local citizens at the meeting. Altogether some 20 Rising Star and Cross Plains business and professional men attended.

The FHA rural recreation program was established, the FHA officials said, to increase farm income to individual farmers and to divert unproductive land to more essential uses. Recreation, they said, is rapidly becoming one of the major rural income factors. Foster said it has been forecast that within the next decade it will rival the income from the cattle industry.

There are two phases of the program, one which assists individual farmers in developing additional income from recreation facilities on their land, and a second which offers financial assistance to associations diverting land from over-production to more profitable use as recreation centers.

In discussions with the bi-community group Monday it was agreed that there is a definite need for a recreation center serving a large rural area here; that the Phil-Pe-Co site is admirable for the purpose; that it can be developed into a recreational area without excessive cost, and that it would pay its way and meet its debt charges. Approval, it was agreed, would depend upon whether or not it would represent a shift of land use from surplus production to production of a commodity more in demand.

Club officials pointed out that if the project is not successful the land would have to be sold and returned to farm or ranch use.

The first step in promoting the program, the FHA officials advised, would be the naming of a steering committee to develop a preliminary plan and cost estimates and submission of a preliminary application. If approved, a detailed plot and firm cost estimates would be developed. These would be the basis for a formal loan application.

It is up to the Lakewood group to determine just what in the way of recreational facilities are desired, they said.

The FHA officials praised the interest shown by the two communities and declared this interest would be an impressive factor in favor of approval.

Discussing what the FHA has done in helping numbers of rural communities build their own water supply systems, Mr. Foster suggested that the rural recreation finance program offers similar opportunities for rural communities to develop resources which will not only improve living conditions but enhance their appeal as residential and business centers.

"We would like very much to work with you on this project," he said. It would, he suggested, be a sort of "ice-breaker" in promoting the rural recreation program.

The Lakewood directors said definitely that they would go ahead with the program planning.

"We were just waiting to find out what we would have to do," said Mr. Needham.

Among those attending the meeting were County Agent J. M. Cooper, Eastland; John Lee, Soil Conservation Service, Rising Star, and the mayors of the two communities, Walter Smith of Rising Star and Dr. E. M. Roth of Cross Plains.

Hay, Grain On Diverted Acres Gets Approval

Eastland County, according to a telegram from Cong. Omar Burlison to the Rising Star Record, "has been approved for haying and grazing privileges in diverted crop land through October 31, account drought."

This approval by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will do little to alleviate the conditions caused by the drought in the county, County Agent J. M. Cooper told the Record since it covers only about 10,000 acres of cropland under the Soil Bank program. It is far short of the relief asked for, he said.

LOW INTEREST DROUGHT DROUGHT LOANS ASKED

EASTLAND — Disappointment was expressed by County Judge Scott Bailey because Eastland County has been denied aid under the emergency drought relief program.

In commenting upon the action, Judge Bailey expressed the opinion "that we must seek every possible avenue of relief." The Eastland County official has written the Farmers Home Administration and urged that qualified farmers and ranchers be extended low interest loans through that governmental agency.

In the letter to the FHA, Bailey stated that "it is my feeling that the severe and extended drought conditions prevailing at this time make it imperative that all avenues of possible help be sought. For this reason, I am urging that Eastland County be declared a disaster area and qualified borrowers be served through your office."

Farmers who have not planted at least 75 per cent of their 1964 cotton and peanut allotments due to extreme drought conditions or other conditions beyond their control may file written requests that the planting provisions be waived, according to an announcement by Jesse G. Meredith, Eastland County office manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, made earlier this week.

Requests concerning cotton allotments must be filed not later than Sept. 15, and peanut farmers must file by Nov. 1, Mr. Meredith said. Questions about the provision can be answered at his office.

Feed grain farmers were reminded that in order to qualify for price support and diverted acreage payments, the feed grain base or permitted acreage may not be exceeded on any farm in which they have an interest. They must also be within their conserving base on participating farms, Mr. Meredith said.

It's the Law in Texas

JURY DUTY

Jury duty is an experience everybody ought to have. In a criminal case twelve jurors have a duty to do justice as each one sees it, and yet be unanimous. In most trials both sides have much to say, and the evidence is conflicting. The twelve jurors vary in their ability, temperament, character, education, and their experience in the world, and in the question at stake.

Yet a jury made up of both sexes, with wide age and educational differences, jobs and origins, must all come up with the same verdict. Upon their verdict much depends — the life or liberty of others, and the public good. So it may take them days of talking among themselves, all to agree.

Jury duty calls for insight, common sense, courage, tact, fair-mindedness, patience, (especially toward the jurors who disagree with you), good humor, tolerance, balance, willingness to hear others out and change one's mind, readiness to go over and over the facts to find something to bring agreement. In short, jury duty demands a "decent respect for the opinions" of others.

More and more women share civic duties especially as jurors. Time was in Texas when women could not serve on juries. They still cannot in four states.

A jury finds facts. It hears and weighs evidence and then comes to a verdict. It does not make law — the legislature does; and the judge "charges" or instructs the jury concerning the law applicable to the particular case it is considering.

The judge will tell you not to find the accused guilty until he is proved so under strict rules of evidence. If you have any "reasonable doubt" — not imaginary or far-fetched — acquit the accused.

Civil cases do not demand a moral certainty, merely the "preponderance" of what you regard as reliable and believable evidence.

About Your Health

AUSTIN — Those golden years have the possibility of taking on more of a healthier hue now than ever before.

About 20 years ago the average American could expect to die when he reached the retirement age of 65. But today, 17,500,000 Americans are over 65, and the generation being born today may well be the one that can expect to live to be 100 years old.

But just living longer isn't enough. Extra years mean little unless they are healthy, active years. You can enjoy all the added years modern medicine has given you — you can keep young in spirit, body and mind — by practicing a little moderation and following some simple rules.

First, see your family physician regularly for a physical checkup. Today he can diagnose and treat successfully almost any disease or ailment, if he finds it early enough. He can also prevent many of the illnesses that may otherwise come your way.

As the years pass, you usually need less food, and there is some shift in nutritional requirements. You will need more protein, vitamins and fluids but fewer fats and calories. No one can feel young and peppy when he's carrying extra weight. Adequate rest is essential as both your mind and body need peace and quiet to recuperate after the rigors of the day.

The mark of an "old" person is creaking joints, aching back and myriad other complaints. Keep all your body parts in

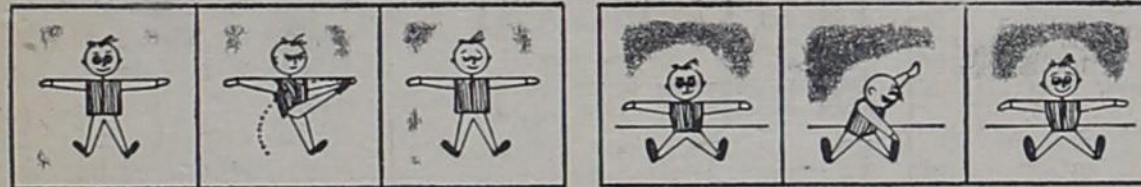

Regular Exercise Can Provide Both Physical and Mental Tonic, says AMA

Stretcher (4 to 10 times). Reach high, rise on toes. High-stepper (10 to 20 steps). Run in place, pumping knees and arms. Side Bender (6 to 15 times). Raise first one, arm then the other straight over head.

Push-up (6 to 15 times). Men on hands and toes; women on hands and knees. Starting in raised position, with trunk and neck straight, lower trunk to two inches from floor and return. Curl (6 to 15 times). Starting on back with knees bent, hands behind head, tuck chin and "curl" as far forward as possible, aiming elbow to opposite knee. Stride Squat (6 to 15 times). Hands behind head, as stride forward deeply with right leg. Keep left toe in place, left knee off floor. Return and exercise opposite.

Compressor (6 to 15 times). Lie spread-eagled on back. Roll onto hip and with leg and arm straight touch toe to opposite hand. Return and exercise enoposite. Twister (6 to 15 times). Sit with legs and arms extended straight. Touch fingers to opposite toe. Return and exercise opposite.

ISOMETRIC EXERCISES —

The following exercises do not involve movement, but rather muscular contractions. One of their advantages is that many can be done at times and places where normal exercise would be impossible, such as in the office. Hold each contraction forcefully for six seconds. Repeating is not necessary.

(1) Organ Grinder. Push hand against hand, then pull hand against hand.

(2) Thimble. Push forehead against palm, then push back of head against palm(s).

(3) Bird. Put back of hands against door jambs, then push palms in the same manner.

(4) Sampson. Push palms against door jambs, then straighten arms high against jambs and push against.

(5) Sixes. Sitting with back against one door jamb, push foot against other side, then push other foot in same manner.

There's more to physical fitness than mere muscles, but you can't be truly healthy and a bundle of flab at the same time.

To be physically fit you must be both medically fit and dynamically fit. The two don't necessarily go hand in hand, points out Raymond L. White, M.D., director of Environmental Medicine and Medical Services for the American Medical Association.

"Medical fitness means body soundness. This can be determined only by a medical examination. Dynamic fitness or 'action capacity' is a measurement of strength, agility and endurance," he said.

"A person who shuns activity may get a 'clean bill of health' from his doctor but if he can't endure even slight exertion, he's hardly physically fit. On the other hand, neither is the athlete with a chronic or undetected health problem."

In a sense it seems silly to be concerned about strength and endurance in a push-button age.

But the fact is, the human body was not designed for push buttons but for work, said Dr. White. "The absence of dynamic fitness through lack of physical exertion is a detriment to health. Furthermore, muscle tone, or lack of it, can be a factor in your whole outlook on life."

Strength and endurance, developed through regular exercise, leads to skill and agility and adds to poise and grace. Not only do daily tasks become easier, you also look better and so feel more at ease in social situations.

Even more evident, however, are the benefits to physical health, Dr. White pointed out.

Since exercise is a factor in weight control, it indirectly aids in preventing degenerative diseases, such as diabetes and arthritis, which are more prevalent in the obese.

Evidence indicates that exercise also may help prevent heart and blood vessel diseases. Active people have fewer heart attacks and a better recovery rate when such attacks do occur.

The best exercise is enjoyable exercise. Activities such as hiking, swimming, skiing, tennis or gardening along with their physical benefits can provide relief from tension, thus serving as a safe, natural tranquilizer.

When there is no opportunity for taking exercise in such form, however, a daily walk and series of calisthenics can provide much the same tonic.

Above are a few examples of scientifically sound exercises, taken from the AMA pamphlet, "Physical Fitness." Used daily, they will help to increase muscular strength, body suppleness and motor reaction, and to improve circulation and other body functions.

Start out slowly, Dr. White warned, and gradually work up to the point where you can do all of these exercises quickly without stopping.

good working order by using them.

Fill your days with productivity. The quickest way to "old age" is through boredom. So keep up your interest in your work and your surroundings.

Participate in community affairs rather than fussing and fretting about yourself at home. If you want to be among the happiest people — the doers — share your time and talents with such things as raising funds for charity, getting out the vote and participating in other civic programs.

Another shortcut to "old age" is worry — and worry, besides putting you in an unpleasant frame of mind, can sometimes lead to illness. Many worries about tomorrow can be avoided if you plan, and act, today.

financing arrangements are being worked out.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Frank Crisp and son of Abilene visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elgie Crisp, and other relatives here Sunday, August 9.

New Record For Enrollment At CJC Is Forecast

CISCO — Another new record for enrollment has been forecast for Cisco Junior College for the 1964-65 school year on the basis of pre-enrollments, inquiries and an expanding curriculum, according to a report by President G. C. Hogue.

"We have our sights set on 500 students this fall," Mr. Hogue said. This would give us a gain of a little over 10 per cent over last year and would be in keeping with our growth picture for the past five years."

Plans call for regular pre-enrollment to begin Sept. 1 with registration Sept. 14-15 and classes beginning Sept. 16. The football team, the Wrangler Belles Drill team and the Wrangler Band will report Sept. 1 to begin training.

Those interested in Drill Team and Band Scholarships will be interviewed until Sept. 1, Mr. Hogue added. Uniforms will be measured and ordered on that date. Some 40 aspirants for the football team are scheduled to report to Coaches Jim Puryear, Leland Willis and Carroll Scott.

Both men's and women's dormitory space is nearing capacity, Mr. Hogue reported. The college has built two new men's dormitories in the past three years and doubled the capacity for women students. Applications are on file now to finance further dormitory expansion.

An extensive remodeling program for older buildings on the campus is nearing completion. A new dormitory, library and student center are on the architect's drawing board while

Fire can destroy the Bond... but not your savings

All that the owner of this charred U.S. Savings Bond has to do is mail the remains to the Treasury Department, with as much more information as he can give—serial number, and date and place of issue. He'll get a fresh Bond to replace it. No charge.

The Treasury has grown accustomed to providing this sort of service. In the past 20 years it has replaced over 1,300,000 Savings Bonds that have been lost, stolen, burned or mistakenly tossed out with the trash.

Every U.S. Savings Bond sold is registered in the name of its owner, and a microfilm record made. So the

This assurance against loss is another of the many reasons why Americans now hold over $47 billion in Series E and H Savings Bonds. The money they're saving is providing for their personal security. And it's also helping to build the strength of America at a time when the enemies of freedom are stronger than ever.

What in the WORLD! by TED

The Last Frontier

It is just as normal to live in the Arctic and Antarctic as in other parts of the world—and more normal than tropic dwelling.

That conclusion by the World Health Organization (WHO) is based on reports by medical and public health experts of 11 countries with interests in the polar regions. As far as the human body is concerned, the authorities say, adaptation is relatively easy.

"No special diet is necessary," they conclude. "Eskimos do not eat seal blubber to keep warm but because it is an excellent all-around food—and they like it."

Spurred by commercial and strategic interests, the population is increasing year by year in the Arctic and Antarctic, which account for nearly one-fourth of the globe's land mass. Both the United States and Canada are developing their Far Northern regions. Siberia's population growth exceeds half a million a year.

Even Antarctica, the "white continent," has lost its terror. Nearly 300 men live throughout the year at U.S. Antarctic bases; at the height of the summer season, the population rises to 1300 civilian scientists and military men. A dozen other nations also man bases on the continent.

The conquest of the last terrestrial frontier is in sight.

Take Half and Leave Half Is Accepted Rule to Follow in Proper Range Use

By JOE SCASTA
Rising Star SCS

Proper range use may be defined as "Grazing at an intensity that will maintain or improve forage and livestock production without soil or plant deterioration."

The object of range management is obtaining maximum forage consistent with the perpetuation of the vegetation. It becomes necessary then to know how grazing influences plants and just how much can be grazed without permanent damage.

The accepted rule to follow in obtaining proper use is to take half and leave half. By balancing livestock numbers, planning periodic deferments, and making adequate plans for periods of drouth the amount of forage removed by grazing should be no more than 50 per cent of the annual growth.

Several factors influence how a plant reacts to grazing. The most important of these are: intensity or amount of grazing, frequency, and season of use.

Many studies have been made regarding intensity of grazing. These studies show that root growth is directly proportional to top growth. Since approximately 95 per cent of a plant's food is taken from the air, severe overuse results in decreased root growth. By removing too much of the leaf surface the plant cannot make food, thus resulting in decreased production. A conservation workshop report points out that severe overuse may result in lasting damage to root growth. This damage to root growth may occur before effects on foliage or top growth are visible.

It may be possible to overgraze for a short period of time without serious damage. However, frequent or continuous overuse will result in a marked decrease in production. Proper use may be obtained by a periodic deferment or setting up a deferred-rotation grazing system. By using proper range management practices the rancher can plan for proper use.

There are three periods when grazing is most harmful to plants. These are during the period of early growth, during a prolonged drouth, and when food reserve is low. The rancher should have some plan for obtaining proper use during these periods. Food reserves in grasses are lowest at the beginning of new growth and just after the seed crop matures. If the grass plant is heavily grazed at this time there is no chance to store extra food for re-growth. A planned deferment covering these periods allows the plant to build up a reserve of food. If a deferment is not possible stocking rates should be adjusted to properly use the grasses. Enough leaf surface should remain to manufacture the plant food necessary for re-growth next spring.

In order to obtain proper use it is necessary to know some of the indicators of proper use. Since an overgrazed range has a smooth, even appearance, a properly used range should have a rough, patchy appearance. Seedstalks and seed of the desirable plants should be visible over the pasture. A properly use drange should have an accumulation of litter on the ground.

Proper use should be the result of a combination of good range management practices. Good grass results from proper use and this should be utmost in a conservation plan, for: No grass means—no meat.

Lemuel Scott of Tahoka, his son and daughter, John and Rose Larue, were here a few days to visit Miss Florence Scott, Mrs. Nora Harris and other relatives.

Over-65 Segment of Eastland County Population Growing In Importance

EASTLAND — Steadily growing in importance in Eastland County is the over-65 segment of its population.

This group, which has been increasing more rapidly than the population as a whole, has also been gaining in financial strength.

As a result, it is becoming a sales target for retail merchants, manufacturers and others who are making efforts to cater to its special tastes and needs.

A wide range of products, designed for men and women over 65, is now available to them.

Recent studies of the old-age market and its composition have been conducted on a national basis by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and by other agencies.

They show that there are now over 17,600,000 people in the United States over 65, or 1,000,000 more than there were a mere four years ago. It represents a gain of 6.2 per cent.

The 1960 census showed for Eastland County, a total of 3,668 in the plus-65 bracket, 1,672 of them men and 1,996 women.

The present estimate applying the average rate of change locally, sets the number at 3,895 as of the beginning of this year.

Because of this rapid growth rate, the older people in Eastland County comprise a larger part of the total population than ever before, 18.8 per cent.

This compares favorably with the ratio in other parts of the United States, 9.2 per cent, and with the 8.4 per cent in the West South Central States.

The American Medical Association declares that "older persons are much better off economically, mentally and physically than some people seem to think."

They are arriving at age 65, it notes, with more zest and ability to do things than was the case a generation ago. Many of them continue in their regular occupations for a number of years thereafter.

The report states that the average senior citizen has much less cash at his disposal than younger people have, but that his financial condition is improving.

In the last 15 years, because of better pensions, larger social security payments and personal investments, his income expressed in current dollars, has gone up 25 per cent.

OFFICE SUPPLIES AT THE RECORD

"Serendipity": A New and Happy Event

"Serendipity" is becoming a household word owing to nine attractive, talented youngsters calling themselves "The Serendipity Singers". "Serendipity" means "the discovery of a new and happy event" and these bright nine are living up to their name! They have hit recordings on Philips, make top TV appearances, and are heavily booked for college concerts and night club dates. The Serendipity Singers were formed at the University of Colorado and unlike many passing-fancy performers on the music scene today, they are prepared for their instant-celebrity status and prepared for the future beyond it. Taking a firm stand against school drop-outs, each of the Serendipities, a college graduate, is prepared for another career should he or she exit show business.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young and three children of Giddings visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Crisp, during the week of August 1-10. They also visited his parents at May. Charles is vocational agriculture teacher at Giddings.

Mrs. R. D. Brown, accompanied by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Christian, who teaches in the San Antonio schools, are visiting Mrs. Love Shults. They also visited members of the Brown family at Putnam.

Rising Star MYF
Members To Cisco

The First Methodist Church at Cisco had a Youth Activities' Week August 3-7. They invited different Methodist youth groups from surrounding towns each night. Rising Star was invited Wednesday night. We met at the Church in Cisco and organized a group and went out to Wright's ranch, northeast of Cisco. Each person had brought his own refreshments. We had an old-fashioned weiner roast and enjoyed it very much. Cisco showed us a good time with wide open country, a still night with lots of stars, and the most beautiful sky.

It was very good for the heart and soul to see this beautiful country which God has so graciously given us. Cisco had a good program with singing, Scripture reading, and a very appropriate talk on the theme, "Build your house upon a solid rock." It was planned to have a hay-ride back to Cisco but after the third night the truck just did not feel up to it.

We went to Cisco with Mrs. York Eberhart, our MYF sponsor. The Rising Star MYFers who attended are Frances and Gwen Eberhart, Katie Howard, Calvin Easterly, and Bonnie Byrd. Two most welcome guests were Vicki Hardwick and Mrs. Dora Walker. — Reporter.

machine with the built-in brain

As you know, it takes a while to learn to do something right—how long depends on what you're trying to do. The same goes for a piece of machinery—you've got to get the mechanical brains working right so the rest of the machine will do everything it's supposed to do.

Well, according to the toughest critics there are—our customers—the Lilliston Peanut Combine has the job down pat. As one peanut farmer put it—"there must be a built-in brain in the Lilliston that knows what has to be done to harvest peanuts. That kind of perfection can only come with years of experience."

Fifty-two years, to be exact. Of course, it didn't take half a century for us to deliver the kind of mechanical harvesting that works. Combines we made fourteen years ago are still doing the job they were made for. But you've really got to see what happens when the '64 Lilliston takes the field. There's nothing like it.

The Lilliston Peanut Combine famous for peanut profits—wherever in the world peanuts are grown.

Lilliston Peanut Equipment is produced by Lilliston Implement Company, manufacturer of world-famous rotary cutters and the amazing Reeling Cultivator.

When the days are hot you probably use more electricity

Certainly you do, that's because your air conditioning system is working harder, your refrigerator is working harder and all of your other electric appliances are performing tasks which, without them, you would have to do. Let's face it---there's no substitute for all the comfort and convenience that electricity can give. Besides, the average WTU residential customer is paying an average of 17% less per KWH than in 1953---isn't that a happy thought?

Electricity costs so little you can use lots of it.
