Rising Star Corp. Will Organize Tuesday Night

Tuesday night, August 7, will be an important date in the history of the Rising Star Development Corp.

It will make the moment when the corporation, a new and bold venture in community economic planning and self-help, becomes of age and functioning.

On that date, at 7:30 p. m. stockholders of record in the new community firm, will meet to elect a permanent board of directors who will organize the corporation for the role it hopes to play in building and improving the business assets of Rising Star.

Of the more than $17,000 in stock subscriptions more than $10,000 has been paid in, an amount sufficient to place the corporation on an active basis under terms of its charter.

Only stockholders who have actually paid their subscriptions can vote or hold office, and the temporary directors and officers are anxious that everyone who has subscribed will pick up their stock certificates at the First State Bank, if they have not already done so, in order that they may be qualified to have a voice in the selection of a management and the operation of the corporation.

The corporation, organized under the sponsorship of the Rising Star Chamber of Commerce, will seek feasible industrial or commercial projects which can be financed through loans from government agencies or other sources, and which will add to the economic stability and income of the community.

Temporary directors and officers were chosen at a meeting early in June when the corporation was initiated. They are Cecil Shults, E. O. Kizer, George Steel, C. R. Tyler, Charles Rutherford.

This group carried the corporation through the development stage, secured the charter and the stock subscriptions and are now ready to turn the management over to the permanent group to be chosen Tuesday evening, August 7.

"We want everybody who has subscribed stock to have a voting voice in the selection of the projects and the operation of the company," said James Rutherford, secretary of the corporation, and president of the sponsoring chamber of commerce.

There are still quite a few who haven't paid in their subscriptions. We hope they do so and have their stock to qualify them for voting and holding office in the company before next Tuesday night.

"We are happy to have this event and want those attending to be our guests for a ranch style lunch at noon," Adams continued.

The affair is being jointly sponsored by his organization and the county agent's office in Eastland.

James A. Gray, sheep and goat specialist, Agricultural Extension Service, San Angelo, will discuss and then demonstrate the selection of breeding animals.

The future price outlook for wool and mohair will be discussed by Sidney Jenkins, Area Farm Management Specialist, Extension Service, Stephenville.

Others invited to be on the program include: Dr. J. B. Henderson, Coleman, Texas and Dr. Rudolph Radeleff, Kerrville.

Our great schools are simply being fundamental in their insistence upon high ethical concepts and individual honesty. Knowledge is worthless, even a curse, without this.

But what of the influence upon a high school athletic star when he is approached by a representative of one of these schools, so meticulous in its moral standards where classwork is concerned, with the suggestion that he wish upon his pledged word to another school? It is extremely doubtful, or very

Reed Implement Company To Have Bidders' Bonanza

Reed Implement Co., Local Case dealer announced today that they will hold a Bidders' Bonanza community auction August 6 through 11. As the name Bidders' Bonanza implies, those attending will have the opportunity to submit sealed bids on both new and used items of all kinds.

Because of space requirements, this is limited to one item per family. W. G. Reed requests that any one interested in submitting an item for bid first check with them so that suitable display space can be made available.

All items up for bid will carry a card indicating terms and conditions.

July Rains Make Area Crop Prospects Finest in Years

Peanut crop prospects in the Rising Star area are the finest in many years following a series of July rains which totaled, according to official city records,

6.27 inches. The showers, culminating in 3.10 inches last week-end, broke a June drouth and put the peanut crop, planted normally during late May and early June, off to wonderful start, according to farmers.

Given some late August or early September moisture, the yield of this important Eastland County cash crop would be great according to growers.

There is some difficulty with grass and weeds, but many farmers discounted the effect of this unwanted vegetation. "It is not so bad," said Oscar White, prominent grower living east of Rising Star. "We have the best prospects we have had in many years."

Similar and optimistic reports were received from almost all sections of the Rising Star area. With hopes for a good harvesting season when the peanuts can cure normally in the fields with consequent improvement in quality, growers and business men alike were looking forward to a right good fall.

Pastures, water and livestock conditions generally were also in excellent shape.

Brown County Approved for Operation Under the Great Plains Soil Program

Scott Lanford, Chairman of the Brown-Mills Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors, announced today that Washington approval had been received setting up Brown County for operation of the Great Plains Conservation Program. This makes available a complete cost share conservation program in addition to the regular SCD type of Basic Farm and Ranch Plans and in addition to or supplementing the ACP individual practice cost share program. This type program has been in effect in the western part of the State for the past three years. It sets up all conservation practices needed on a farm or ranch in a complete program for soil, water and plant conservation on a contract basis with cost share varying from 50 to 80 per cent of the average cost. The contract may be set up and carried out in a three to ten year period with cost share assistance obligated on a planned calendar basis by years. The County Great Plains Conservation Program Committee will be composed of the designated technician of the Soil Conservation Service as chairman, Chairman of the County ASC Committee and County FHA Supervisor with representatives of other agricultural agencies and organizations included as advisory members.

The County Program Committee met last Friday afternoon and selected approved recommended conservation practices to be included in the Program along with the percent of cost share assistance. The Program will cover all of Brown County which is being covered at the present time by the Brownwood and Rising Star Soil Conservation Service Work Units. The primary objective of the GPCP is to provide cost share assistance for applying the conservation program to meet the needs of the land on both small and larger operating units. Funds for cost sharing are made available to operators for applying a conservation program on a definite schedule as rapidly as the farmer or rancher elects to complete his program. More information will be available as the program advances; but in the meantime, farmers and ranchers in Brown County who may desire further explanation of this program may contact John Lee in charge of the local Soil Conservation Service Work Unit Office or other members of the County Program Committee.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

By Omar Bursleson, M. C., 17th District, Texas

May 11, 1961, the President of the United States appointed a Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime. The Committee has now made its report. All through the report this Committee of experts signifies the belief that the Federal Government should accept a major responsibility to find "creative and effective solutions" to the problem, in partnership with local communities. The policies evolved by the President's Committee call for development of a pattern of technical assistance and demonstration grants by Federal agencies concerned with youth problems. The Committee refers to "planning," "training," "demonstration," and a "curriculum of study."

All this suggests that, although the term "partnership with local communities" is mentioned, emphasis is on the initiative of the Federal Government.

The lack of supervised recreation is given as one of the causes of juvenile delinquency, and the report discusses suggested remedies.

No place does the report take cognizance of the responsibility of the home, the school or the church. Neither does it make any criticism of the coddling of "adult juveniles," proved to be the most dangerous criminals in the country. The report makes no mention of the laxity of the Courts in imposing sentences on offenders old enough to know better.

This is not to condemn efforts towards meeting this increasingly serious problem. It is, however, another example of what cities and local communities are not doing, which gives excuses to those who would impose the authority of the Federal Government in such matters.

There are all sorts of schemes for Federal supervision in most every field and facet of our national life. Whether it be those now in control of our Government or those in the future, when they control the youth in thought and action, they can bend the twig in the direction which they want it to grow. It might curb juvenile delinquency, but it also regiments and further centralizes Federal authority.

Apparently there are those who would impose the control of the Federal Government over the entire nation as it is in the District of Columbia. If that be the case, the controls in the Nation's Capital are far from satisfactory. The coddling of juvenile criminals, the over-lenience of the Courts, the handicaps placed on the police in Washington, D. C., where this report was created, are a disgrace and a horrible example to the rest of the country.

Research studies at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute conclude that most food fads are just a lot of "yogurt and molasses." It indicates that people will try any new idea to help them find the proverbial fountain of youth or help take off pounds, put on pounds, have more pep or look more glamorous.

Figures indicate that the public is gullible when it comes to some 50,000 door-to-door salesmen selling food supplements. These, added to retail mail and health lecture food fadists, add up to a $500 million annual business, according to the Institute studies.

Nutritionists, however, believe that progress is being made. During the past half century there has developed a better understanding of the relation of food to health. Getting the proper information to the public results in better fed and less gullible customers.

Miss Elizabeth Chamberlain has returned to her home in El Paso after a visit with relatives here.

Visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hudler are Mrs. Hudler's sister, Mrs. L. E. Thompson and their two children, Lowell and Lydia Jane.

A Special Report

Army National Guard's Mobilization Termed 'Most Successful' in History

WASHINGTON—Now that the period of the "Berlin Mobilization" is coming to an end—now that the active services have had time to increase their striking power and the immediate need for the reserve forces is over—many people are asking: "How effective were these National Guardsmen and Reservists, anyway? How long did it take them to become truly combat-ready?"

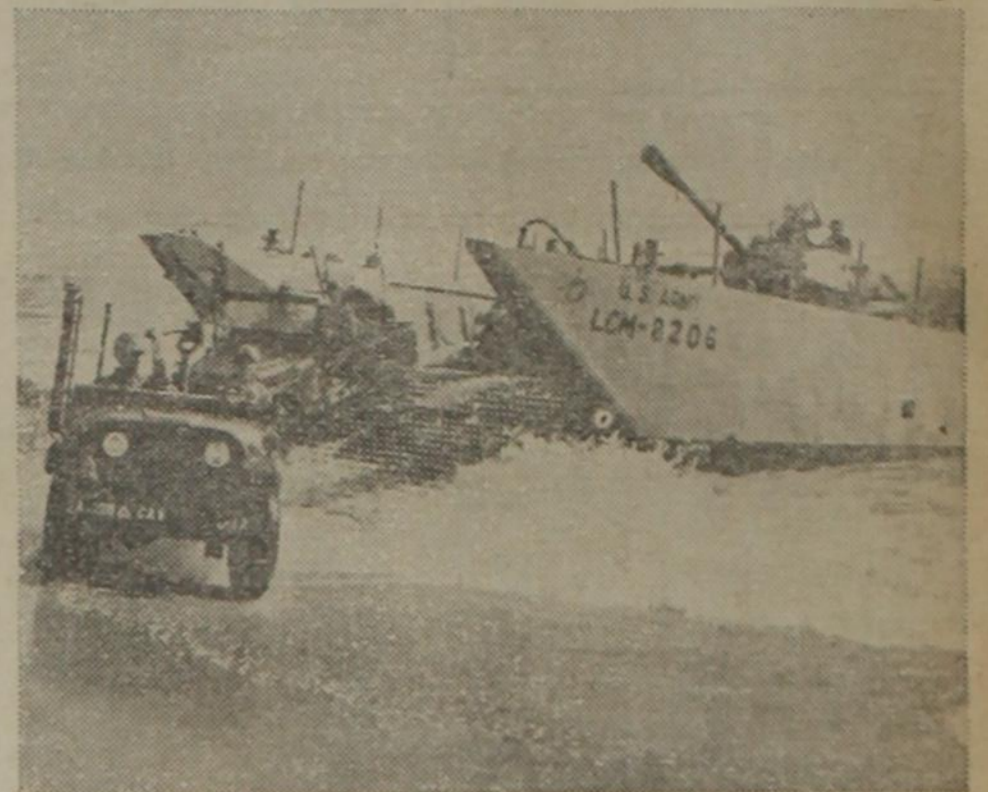

The answer from one high Pentagon source: "This was the most successful mobilization in the history of the United States." Thus states Major General Donald W. McGowan, Chief of the National Guard Bureau.

General McGowan is a man who ought to know. He has spent a lifetime in the National Guard and has been through three mobilizations himself. His accomplishments include leading an armored cavalry regiment through the Normandy invasion, commanding a Guard combat division, and guiding the entire 470,000-man Army and Air National Guard through the most crucial—and fruitful—years of its existence.

"To see how well the Guard did in this mobilization," General McGowan said recently, "you have only to look at the record of the two divisions that were called to active duty: the 32nd Infantry Division of Wisconsin and the 49th Armored Division of Texas."

Here are the facts that bear out General McGowan's claim. Back in 1955, both the 32nd and the 49th were among six National Guard divisions selected for a new high-priority status by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, then Army Chief of Staff. General Taylor called this his "Six-by-Six" plan because he required these six divisions to be combat-ready within six months after they were mobilized. All but forgotten by the general public, the plan is significant now by the contrast that it offers to the events of the past ten months.

Instead of taking six months, the 32nd and 49th were declared completely combat-ready in four months—and this included the two weeks it took them to get to camp and two weeks to leave at Christmas time. If the world situation had required it, they could have made it in three months.

HIT THE BEACH!—Jeeps and tanks of the mobilized 150th Armored Cavalry Regiment of the West Virginia National Guard roar down the ramp of a landing craft at Ft. Miles on the Delaware coast. The swiftness with which the 150th became combat-ready last winter earned it a place in the Army's elite Strategic Army Corps (STRAC).

It was a grueling experience, not soon to be forgotten by the members of these units.

At Fort Polk, Louisiana, the 49th Armored was challenged in the dust and mud with rugged combat exercises requiring its tanks and men to maneuver and fire exactly as they would on the battlefield. At Fort Lewis, Washington, the 32nd was challenged in the tall pines and in the mountains, day and night, against a tough, clever aggressor who turned a routine tactical exercise into an infantryman's nightmare.

But all this seemed worthwhile when, immediately after being declared combat-ready, both divisions were assigned to the Army's Strategic Army Corps (STRAC), the first National Guard units ever to be assigned to this elite fighting force.

So impressive was the Guard's performance, in fact, that General James Van Fleet reported: "The quality of these units is far above any previous mobilization that took place in World War II or Korea."

Are there any specific reasons for such a marked improvement in our citizen-soldiers?

"Yes," says Gen. McGowan, "and the primary one is the six months training program which provides active duty basic training for every non-prior service man we enlist. This has raised National Guard training to the unit level across the board.

"Then, too, we avoided our mistake of both world wars of reorganizing Guard units after they were called up. In 1959 we converted the entire Army Guard to the new Pentomic structure and when the Berlin crisis came upon us, we were able to provide the Army with the type of units it really needed. All they had to do was finish their training."

"And finally, this was the first mobilization in modern history in which we were able to preserve the integrity of our units. In Korea, you will remember, many of our key officers and NCOs were pulled out of their units to beef up overseas-bound active Army units. This helped the Army but it sure weakened our Guard units."

These are the facts of the Berlin Mobilization. But they do not tell the whole story. It remained for Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington to put the overall effect into words.

"This is the first time," he said, "that a President has been able to use the military power represented by our reserve program to achieve a foreign policy objective."

Baptist President To Be Speaker For

ABILENE — Dr. Herschel H. Hobbs, president of the nine-million-member Southern Baptist Convention, will be principal speaker for the annual rally of the District 17 Baptist Brotherhood at Hardin-Simmons University Aug. 3.

Dr. Hobbs, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Oklahoma City, will speak twice during the afternoon-evening rally, said Lowell W. Queen of Abilene district Brotherhood president. His first talk, at 5 p.m., will be on "Southern Baptists and World Missions." His closing address at 8:30 p.m. will be on "A Great Door Is Opened Unto Me," theme of the rally.

More than 1,000 Baptist men are expected for the rally from the 11 West Central Counties that make up Baptist District 17, Queen said. Counties to be represented are Kent, Stonewall, Haskell, Fisher, Jones, Shackelford, Stephens, Nolan, Taylor, Callahan, and Eastland.

The rally, to be held in the air at Hardin Simmons University, will be opened with registration at 2:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 3. The program will begin at 3:30 p.m. with the afternoon session to last until about 5:30 p.m.

A barbecue supper will be served in H SU's Rose Field House from 6 to 6:40 p.m. Tours of the H-SU campus also will be conducted during the supper hour for the visitors, Queen reported.

The evening session will begin at 7 o'clock and the rally will be concluded following Dr. Hobbs' final address at 8:30.

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

Ever since the first spark of life appeared on this earth, cancer has been one of the most fearsome, most enigmatic diseases mankind has had to contend with. But we know more about it than is generally realized. We know enough, in fact, that a diagnosis of cancer need not be considered a sentence of death.

We know that all types of cancer are different since they affect different tissues of the body. We know cancer has no respect whatever for age, although it does occur more frequently after 40. Conversely, we know it ranks high as a cause of death among children.

Cancer is not inherited, although a tendency towards cancer sometimes occurs in families.

We know that cancer is not contagious or communicable from one person to another. We know that certain agents or conditions will cause certain types of cancer or are factors in causing cancer. For example, exposure to sunlight over long periods of time (farmers, seamen) is known to cause skin cancer. Certain chemicals such as aniline dyes may cause cancer in experimental animals.

An injury or prolonged irritation of the mouth or lip area, such as sometimes comes with habitual pipe smoking is also a factor in causing cancer. Prolonged exposure to x-ray or radium may also cause cancer of the skin or other parts of the body.

Perhaps the most important thing we know about cancer is that many cases can be cured by early removal by surgery or by irradiation with cobalt, x-ray, or radium or a combination of these techniques. Rapid strides are now being made in treatment of certain types of cases with chemical compounds.

Since it can be cured, why do more than 10,000 people die in Texas with cancer each year? Because by the time the disease is recognized it is too far advanced for effective treatment. Many of these persons could be saved by early diagnosis and treatment.

If this one cardinal fact could be drilled into the minds of people until it moved them to have periodic health check-ups, cancer could be greatly reduced.

(A weekly feature of the Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.)

CJC Approves Half Million Dollar
Budget for 1962-63

CISCO—The board of regents of Cisco Junior College approved plans and specifications and ordered construction bids for a new science building at a meeting July 20 at the Victor Hotel. The school's budget for the coming year was approved along with the employment of three teachers to complete the staff for the 1962-63 school year.

The regents will open bids for the science building at 2 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 9, at the college cafeteria. Funds for the project were approved in a $125,000 tax bond issue here last winter. Architect J. D. Hinton of Snyder prepared the plans for the structure.

President Grady Hogue said the 1962-63 budget was a record for the college. Totalling $515,098, the budget provides for some $235,000 to be spent on building including a new boys dormitory and the science structure.

Other items in the budget include about $115,000 in operating funds raised locally through taxes, tuition, the cafeteria and so forth. The payroll for all teachers and others totals about $155,000. Local taxes collected each year amount to about $38,000.

Teachers who were employed included Mrs. Don Jobe, Carroll Scott and Tom Stevenson.

Mrs. Maud Hill and Dinky, Mr. and Mrs. George Stephenson and daughter, Pat, and Pat's friend, Miss Vera McBeth and Mr. and Mrs. George Hill of Rising Star; Mr. and Mrs. Emory McBeth and daughter, Sue, of Mount Pleasant, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hart and daughters, Sandra and Sylvia, Mrs. A. RETURN FROM HOUSTON

Mrs. Dorothy Shook and father, Allen Hancock, have returned from Houston where Mr. Hancock spent two weeks in a hospital under treatment for a stomach ulcer. He became ill while visiting a son at Houston, and was there for five weeks. Mrs. Shook went to Houston to be with her father, returning him to her home here. His condition was improving steadily.

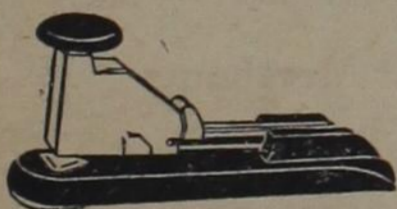

Mr. and Mrs. Granville McKenzie and family of Grand Prairie spent last week with Rev. and Mrs. Slayden, parents of Mrs. McKenzie. Diane remained with her grandparents.

Mrs. Addie Culwell has returned from Phillipsburg, Kansas, where she spent a pleasant vacation of three months visiting her son, Dick Culwell, and family on their large wheat farm. The wheat was bountiful this year.

WORSHIP TOGETHER EVERY WEEK!

You know the hymn—"How firm a Foundation?" Of course you do; but it's more than a hymn. To many it is a way of life.

The foundation is faith. Faith that gives every day a shining new quality. Faith that provides a strong shelter in time of need. Faith that sustains you in sickness and trouble. Faith that makes life a great adventure, truly worth living.

You find faith as a member of a family, as a member of a community: Worshiping together every week, with those you love, with others who believe as you do—gives you strength to carry through with hope and courage.

You can build a stronger, richer life—on a firm foundation of faith: Worship together this week :: every week!

Bridesmaids were dressed in yellow street length dresses.

You know, it will not be long until hunting season. We have a new bulletin that will come in handy for the hunter and his cook titled "Wild Game Care, Cooking."

While modern hunters pursue their sport mostly for the thrill of outdoor recreation, game foods can add pleasant variety to the family menu.

Since the first hunter took weapon in hand to search for game, experience has accumulated in field dressing and preparation of game for eating. The above-mentioned publication describes the time-tested methods of handling game in the field until it is tastefully served on the table.

"PA"

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following was written by Mrs. Francis Wilkerson by way of a tribute to Allen Hancock.

His laugh is lifting as his spirit light,
Outbreaking, careless of his eighty years;
As normal as the smoke of long-stemmed pipe,
A lurking waggishness delights the ears.

"I'll either be at home or be down-town,"
And, stick in hand, the highway is his own;
Let scowling motorists condemn and frown,
Or growl that favored age demands a boon.

It makes no difference to impish "Pa,"
For, in his hearing dull, and dimming sight,
Each one who passed was but a friend he saw,
Someone to wave a greeting, quick and bright.

For all the years have dimmed his sight,
And touched arthritically his sturdy frame,
The humor of the boy survives,
And is 'father of the man's' domain.

Fred Harrell of Littlefield was in Rising Star Wednesday visiting relatives and friends.

rare, that the appeal can be put upon a moral basis. It must either tell him to ignore ethical considerations or, what is even more serious, that his own self-interest is superior to any such standards.

It is hard not to admit that this sort of argument is damaging to the boy's concepts of what is morally right, no matter how earnestly it may be urged on the score of his own training and the better opportunities at the soliciting school. The latter is a dubious argument, in the great majority of cases, because as between most of the great schools there is comparatively little difference in educational opportunities for the earnest student.

The fact that the boy can make a big contribution to the school's athletic program is implied rather than argued, but it is quite obvious that none of the solicitors of football material seem concerned for the boy's educational welfare if he can't make an outstanding contribution to the security of the coach's job and the pride of the alumni.

Obviously such tactics tend to discredit the sportsmanship which it is some of the purpose of a good athletic program to teach. Coaches who are honestly concerned for the welfare and good character of their youngsters would do well to avoid such questionable raiding methods, no matter how speciously they may stick to the "rules".

It is high time they started winning boys before they win games.

Recently while tidying up at the First State Bank, Art Fisher came across a card on which was printed a condensed statement of the First National Bank of Rising Star. It is dated February 14, 1908.

The figures are not impressive. Accustomed to speaking in terms of millions, it is difficult in this age of space and debts, to understand that there could have been a prosperous community with financial assets reflected in bank resources of less than $90,000. The First State Bank of today does a rate of business in one day, money-wise, as the statement reports for the entire quarter, or the year, for that matter. There were two banks in Rising Star at the time, so I understand, but the comparison stands.

There are many conditions enity nowadays. Most important of these is the expanding standard of living. We use a lot more things require a lot more services today than we did a half century ago. The automobile was a negligible economic factor. Today the capital investment the average family has in its transportation equipment is several times the entire income of such a family half a century ago, when old Dobbin was the motive power. Similarly the modern farmer's investment in tractors and tools would have made him rich in the days when a man with a thousand dollars in the bank wore winged collars and a gold watch chain and had his special shaving mug lettered in gold at his favorite barber shop.

Back in 1908 most of the production and processing of the food and clothing used by the family, as well as the fuel for its livestock power, were done at home. Today we not only use much, much more of the good things of life, but most of what we require comes, not from our hands or soil, but through the operation of an infinitely complex economy by which hundreds and sometimes many thousands of specialists make contributions for which they require to be paid. We no longer grow and grind our own flour and meal. The grain is grown on great farms elsewhere, reaped by custom harvesters, transported, ground and processed into packaged specialities which make superb baking merely a matter of transferring the contents to a pan and cooking in an oven fueled by the turn of a switch. In 1908 the only pre-processing that the grain received was to be ground into flour. All the rest of the processing was done in the home kitchen with milk from home-milked cows, lard from home-grown hogs and stovewood felled, cut and split from the woodlot back of the barn.

When industry takes over these preparatory processes, it perhaps hands the housewife a better product and more of a varied menu, but it also demands a price. It takes a lot more money to run a pre-cooked, handy-andy economy.

And when taxes take another 30 per cent of the price of every mouthful of food you eat, you have another, and inflationary, boost in money volume.

We've got a wonderful country and we enjoy a great standard of living, but never forget that if you get what you pay for, you also pay for what you get.

How the money you save for your family's future can help your country now

Some up-to-date facts about the U.S. Savings Bond way to security

It takes more than arithmetic to add up the benefits you get from U.S. Savings Bonds. You'll have no trouble counting the dollars and cents at 3 3/4% interest, but the other benefits—not so easily counted—are every bit as necessary to your family's future.

One of these benefits is freedom itself.

Every dollar you invest in a Savings Bond gives Uncle Sam exactly that much more help in the vital task of safeguarding liberty today. You not only save money, at the same time you also help save your future freedom to enjoy it.

That's why Bonds are such a sound way today to reach any savings goal. With Bonds, you save for a home and a better world to build it in. With Bonds, you save for your own retirement and the liberty to enjoy it as you choose.

Why not buy a Bond today? All you need is $18.75 and a little of the "spirit of '76."
