Vo. Ag. Class Lab. For Applying Science and Math.

High School vocational agriculture is a laboratory for applied science and math.

Teachers of vocational agriculture have long realized the importance of training scientists. Without agricultural scientists, it would have been impossible to have made the progress in agriculture that has been made during the past few years.

There is still a great need for scientists in agriculture. Each year in agricultural research there is a need for approximately 1,000 more research workers than is available. The future will probably demand even more than this.

A study of vocational agriculture can be the beginning of a career in science. A very large portion of the material studied is of scientific nature. In studying animal production, students learn about nutrients, vitamins, reproduction of animals, digestive processes, and many other such things.

When studying crop production students learn about the chemistry of fertilizers, plant reproduction, the science of genetics, and other scientific facts.

Mathematics, which is sometimes thought of as a dry, uninteresting subject, is made to have real life meaning when applied to the field of vocational agriculture. For example, geometry has real meaning to students when applied to the measurements of fields, pastures, barns, etc. Arithmetic, when used to calculate the price of commodities has a real life meaning and students have a sincere purpose for learning such.

Science and math may not be extra ordinarily meaningful to a youngster in the laboratory but the fundamental processes should become real and meaningful as taught in every unit of vocational agriculture.

Next week Mr. Geyer will discuss "Agriculture and You."

12 Units Low Rent Housing For Rising Star

Rising Star has been tentatively allocated 12 units of low rent housing to be constructed with government financial assistance by the Housing Authority of the City of Rising Star, Texas, it was announced. The new housing to be built on a site yet to be chosen will be for occupancy by tenants unable to pay standard rates of rent and eligibility for renting the units will be based upon income.

Various steps required by the Public Housing Administration, which administers the program, are now being taken by the local authority, looking toward final approval of the program and construction of the units. Matkin and Osbourn of Houston are the architects for the local authority who are planning the units. Members of the local authority are B. A. Butler, chairman, Elgie Crisp, A. D. Jenkins, Floyd Joyce and Rev. Ed Jackson.

Included in the steps for final approval of the program are a local housing survey, election of a site, and the preparation of a development program under which the type of construction, development cost estimates and other details will be determined.

Associated with the PHA low rent housing program are two other government assisted programs upon which the City is working to improve housing and community conditions here. They are an Urban Renewal program, under which government financial assistance will be available for improving community services such as streets, sewage disposal and water system, etc., and FHA insurance of private residential building for sale or rent.

Approval requires that the city adopt what is known as a Workable Program which will insure proper standards in building and community development in the future.

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas

"RIGHT OF WAY"
RULES EXPLAINED

Possibly the most mystifying of all traffic rules to the average driver are those relating to "Right of Way" at an intersection. In reality, however, these rules are quite simple. In trying to understand the laws regulating intersecting traffic, it is bet to start off with the premise that all streets are of equal dignity, legally speaking. Traffic signs and signals may vary this rule somewhat, but when in doubt it is safest to assume that all drivers crossing your path have a claim to the right of way equal to your own.

Obviously, however, in many cases one driver or the other will be legally entitled to the right of way. When it becomes necessary to determine right of way in a particular situation, the driver who reaches the intersection first, or who is going to get there first, is ordinarily favored.

But when two automobiles are an equal distance from the intersection, that one approaching from the other driver's right normally has the right of way.

Some intersections are known as "courtesy corners," having a stop sign or a flashing red signal facing each direction of approach. The first driver reaching the corner and coming to a complete stop will normally have the right of way over other vehicles not already in the intersection. However, don't depend too much on the other fellow's courtesy, and be sure to keep a "proper look-out" and your care under "proper control," as explained in an earlier column.

At intersections involving one through street and another street having a stop sign, a driver approaching the stop sign and coming to a full stop is ordinarily said to have the right of way through the street but not over vehicles approaching on the street at the intersection.

However, this last rule must be qualified by saying that you should not proceed, cross or turn onto the through street until you can do so without interfering with oncoming traffic. In other words, if an approaching car will arrive within the intersection before you are completely clear, wait just a little longer. The same rules apply to entering a highway from a side road containing a stop sign.

Many drivers violate the rules of right of way covering left-hand turns at intersections. When turning left, you should always be on the inside (or center) lane, displaying the proper hand signal. You must allow all cars coming from the opposite direction, already in the intersection, to pass through before completing your turn. Even when the intersection is cleared, do not proceed unless other oncoming traffic is far enough away to be able to see your signal and slow down to allow you to turn with safety to all concerned.

Stay in the inside lane until your left-hand turn is entirely completed, and only then move hand lane at all times. Do not gradually over to the right-hand lane into the center lane, as to do so is unnecessary, unlawful and dangerous.

Many detailed rules and suggestions for safe driving are included in the official "Texas Driving Handbook" which is

WASHINGTON, D. C. — AS USUAL, THE 86TH CONGRESS opened with ceremonial fanfare and with many big question marks in front of it.

After a few days in session, the first burst of activity accompanying an opening session of Congress dies down and the routine of assigning members to various committees begins. This is no small task because of the great increase in Democratic members. The next step of activity is the meeting and organization of the committees, and a review of bills already introduced and referred to the committees.

In the early part of any session there is a flood of legislation introduced, much of which will never see the light of day. Many carry out a political commitment on the part of the member of Congress when he was running for election. He is available to any person requesting same from the Texas Department of Public Safety, Drivers License Division, Austin, Texas.

(This column, based on Texas law prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts because the facts may change the application of the law.)

...measure, but he may find it easier to promise than to actually fulfill.

More than two thousand bills were introduced on the opening day. At the last check on the number, it had reached between 2,500 and 3,000.

In the two years of the last Congress there were about 20,000 pieces of legislation introduced, but only about 1800 were finally passed to become law.

A Committee Chairman may naturally introduce more bills than an average Member, but it is with some degree of pride that all of the measures I presented in the last Congress, all were finalized into law. It should be added, however, it is the first two-year period this has happened during my tenure of office.

Legislation generally is divided into two categories. One deals with peace and security, which comes under our foreign affairs, and the other is our domestic economy and social welfare.

Unless our nation guarantees its safety from enemies abroad, the second of these propositions becomes unimportant. With national defense as foremost, then the many problems dealing with our domestic welfare fall into their proper place.

The Domestic issues are usually the bills which make the politics of our nation. In some instances this is unfortunate, but nevertheless, it is true and has always been true.

As times goes on it will be my purpose to discuss the various issues as they arise, and seek the views of the people whom I represent in the Con-

Big Increase Forecast In Texas Pork Supply

Texas 1958 pig crop totaled 1,867,000 pigs, a 27 percent increase over the 1957 crop, according to the Texas Crop Reporting Service, Postmaster C. L. Smith. The increase is based on livestock surveys cooperatively made by the Post Office and Agriculture departments of the federal government. A pig crop of this size will boost potential pork production on Texas farms and ranches 24 percent above last year, but is still below the 10-year annual average of 1,867,000 pigs. Fall farrowing, estimated at 127,000 sows, were 27 percent above farrowing a year ago. The average 7.0 pigs, with a record. Bulk of these fall pigs will reach slaughter weight during the spring of 1959. Breeding intentions for 1959 spring farrowings in Texas point to a 40 percent increase above the 1958 spring season. An unusually favorable ratio between grain costs and finished hog prices stimulated renewed interest in hog production. Bulk of this sharply increased spring farrowed pig crop will reach market weights during the fall of 1959. Postmaster Smith pointed out this information on prospective pork supplies was made possible by voluntary reports from farmers and ranchmen along mail routes served by Harry B. Sone, reports from all parts of Texas and the Nation. The Nation's 1958 pig crop totaled 94.8 million head - 8 percent larger than the 1957 crop of 88.0 million. Reports on breeding intentions indicate 8.3 million sows to farrow in the spring of 1959. This will be 12 percent more than the number farrowed last spring, but only slightly larger than the 1947-56 average.

How would you like to be able to change your kitchen decor in a matter of minutes? This is the time of year when you are likely to get the urge to brighten up your home after the casual outdoor living of summer, but the problems of major redecoration often seem too great to face. Fortunately, there is a product available that eliminates all the uncertainty and fuss of a big redecoration job and yet produces an attractive new look. It is a self-adhesive material made of Velon which sticks to any surface after the easy-to-remove paper backing is peeled off. It is waterproof and washable, which makes it particularly good for counter tops, or as spatter protection behind the range or sink.

Why not be your own decorator using Stix to create an individual decorative scheme tailored just for you? There are plenty of designs and colors available to give your talents full scope. There are patterns suitable for any room in the house, for walls, waste baskets, lamps, and table tops. Because of the practical qualities of the material, it is particularly appropriate in the kitchen. You can even use small leftover pieces to coordinate your color scheme by covering flower pots, canisters, and the like. The imaginative homemaker can give her decorating whims a free rein to devise dozens of other uses.

Another advantage is that you can experiment for the best effect, with no risk of not being pleased with the result, as the material can be removed and re-applied with no damage to the original surface.

15% and 20% protein pellets are now available at the businesses listed below. The 20% pellet consists of 48% ground peanut hulls, 17% peanut meal, 15% ground milo, 10% alfalfa meal, 6% percent cane molasses, 2 1/2% urea and 1% salt. The 15% protein pellet is the same except has less meal and more milo. All pellets available in sheep size and cow size.

THOUGHT For MEDITATION

The routes through life which we select, They may not always prove correct, But best of thoughts will give us aid, When making right mistakes we've made. It isn't hard to understand, Why best of thoughts are in demand, 'T would be a world of great dismay Without good thoughts to guide our way.

THE VIEW FROM A SENIOR'S HEAD

Hello again! Yes, we lived through those brain testing mid-term exams and we're almost back to normal. I use the word "almost" rather freely because around here nothing can ... simply everything and everybody be confused and frustrated. It's the style nowadays you know, and we're not ones to argue with modern trends. As you probably know, conference basketball play has begun and by the time you read this we hope to have a couple of victories to our credit—both boys' and girls' teams. The best way I know of to stimulate the spirit of our basketball players is for you and me to be present at the games and rooting for our home teams; how about it?

It may be that you've been wondering what the Seniors have been doing besides loafing. I suppose the most lingering issue we have been faced with is trying to decide where we want our Senior trip; we've been kicking it round for weeks now and here's hoping we get it settled before long. Also, we've been patiently awaiting the rise of junk-iron prices so we can rid ourselves of our little "trinket" collection. As always, we're willing to take off your hands any junk-iron that you might like to contribute.

The reason that I haven't been reporting much gossip to you lately is not because I don't know any; it's because I'm "chicken" and I'm not ready to die just yet 'cause I want to be able to go on that Senior trip for which I have waited so long. Until next time, this is your lonesome buddy—"Naughty Nellie" leaving you with this final view— "Do not resent growing old—many are denied the privilege."

A BRIEF HISTORY OF TEXAS SCHOOLS

Did you know that the Texas school system is 105 years old? It was on January 31, 1954 that Governor Elisha M. Pease approved the bill setting up the

... of conquest. Mrs. C.; you know we can hardly stand the suspense of not knowing all about everything that goes on up here at R.S.H.S. Here we were, all of us, thinking that our own C.P. was practically engaged; when she pops up with El Tigre from another guy. We would say "What dool Clifford think of this, C.P.," but that wouldn't work, either. You see, both fellows have been tagged with Clifford for a first moniker. Ah, sweet mystery of life. Or something. Actually, at this writing, we haven't started District Conference Play; but by the time it comes off the presses, we will have either lost or won a game with Oiden. We, of course are of the mind that we are going to win. As Mr. Putman would say, "Of course we're going to win," we're the best team, aren't we?" And we say, "We're with you, Putman."

Today, our school system is characterized by comparable extremes of conditions. Some of the nation's poorest and some of the best school systems are found in Texas. Because of this it is difficult to estimate the exact value of the system as a whole.

As is the case in many states, Texas also has its share of interested and not-so-interested school systems; yet Texas remains near the top in rank among the states, and we can truthfully say that we have a school system to be proud of.

JUNIOR LIVE-WIRE

After all those extra long periods during the Mid-term exams, it has been hard for us to re-adjust to regular schedules again. We Juniors think we are pretty lucky; most of us were flying high, wide, and handsome with big, fat, exemptions. We are here to tell you that is the only way to spend Mid-term!

Our sponsor, Mrs. Claborn, is thinking about the theme for the Junior-Senior banquet. You know the Junior class will be playing host to the Seniors for

... of be let in. Mrs. C.; you know we can hardly stand the suspense of not knowing all about everything that goes on up here at R.S.H.S.

Here we were, all of us, thinking that our own C.P. was practically engaged; when she pops up with El Tigre from another guy. LaVeda, what goes on at your house practically every day? Someone said there were around ten noisy girls up there at one time—several times. It IS fun, isn't it, Mary Lois, Jettie, Betty, Lydia, Katie, Tammy, Ginger, Bonnie, LaVeda, and Janis?

Did you ever find you had completely exhausted your supply of information? That is what has just happened to your Junior Reporter this time. Could it be that the liveliest class on the campus has slowed down to a run? But rest assured; they'll have done something worth talking and reading about by next week; maybe.

—Reporter.

At last, at last Mid-term is over. And we all saw it through. (We hope). This year is surely passing by fast for the fresh-

Denig Set For Somewhat Lower Beef Prices

College Station - It appears that beef prices in 1959 may not be greatly different from those of 1958, though the average price in 1959 could be a little lower, predicts John G. McHaney, extension economist.

However, he adds, increases in cattle inventory are setting the stage for a price decline sometime in the next few years. Any increase in cattle numbers sets the stage for a future price decline and one is very probable in some early year after 1959. But if the rate of expansion can be kept within bounds the drop will not be too severe.

McHaney says the average price received for slaughter cattle in 1959 may be slightly below that of 1958 and profits from feeding cattle may average less than in 1958 when returns were the best of recent years.

The greatest price streak in 1959 will be in feeder and breeding stock, just as in 1958, extension economist points out. The bumper 1958 feeder harvest, the several consecutive years, show that the demand for feeders at a high level. The strong demand for young cattle, both for feeding and herd expansion, also will keep the price of feeder and breeding cattle high relative to slaughter and fed cattle.

Consumers will have more meat to eat in 1959 than in 1958, McHaney says. It has been estimated that about six percent of the meat will be produced in 1959, most of the increase will be in pork and a sizeable increase in pork supplies will tend to hold down cattle prices.

Mrs. Ollie B. Jones, accompanied Mrs. Edna Mauldin to hospital in Ranger on Tuesday, Jan. 20. Mrs. Mauldin has been ill for some time.

FHA NEWS

The May F.H.A. Chapter held its regular meeting January 13, 1959. It was a business meeting, so we went right into business after having the roll call.

We elected Delores Compton to represent our chapter and run for an area office.

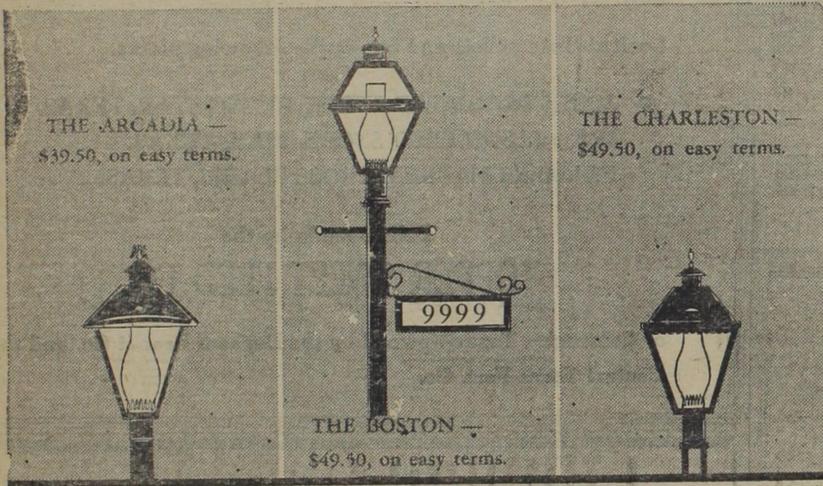

We voted to buy two pins for her Junior Homemakers Degree which she received last year and the other is for completing the necessary work required for her chapter Homemaker's Degree. She completed this only last Friday.

We have 6 Freshman girls working on their Junior Degree this year and we have 4 girls who already have it. These are Delores Compton, sophomore; Jo Anne Tyler, Frances Cook, and Barbara Childers, seniors.

We also have two girls who have their chapter degrees. We are really proud of them. They are Jo Anne Tyler and Barbara Childers.

Our club is selling homemade candy and cupcakes. We have done real good on them.

We're planning on having a box supper and game party in the near future. So watch the paper for the time, date and location.
