

As It Looks From Here

By Omar Burleson, M. C. 17th Texas Dist.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—THE NATIONAL COMMISSION ON marketing has issued this report after about a year's study.

BEARING IN MIND that figures can prove about anything the Commission's findings, although controversial, will hold a very great interest and will be the basis of considerable discussion in the future.

THE REPORT PLACES emphasis on the farmer's share of the consumer's dollar spent for food. The lengthy survey of the economics of food marketing which, from farmer through retailer, comprises the Nation's largest industry, concludes that farmers are not to blame for higher food prices.

IT IS OBVIOUS that when the housewife buys a food product in the store she pays for all the services involved in producing, processing and distributing each item. Using figures for 1964, the Commission determined that consumers' expenditures for domestically produced farm food totaled $69.8 billion. The marketing cost made up 68 percent of the food dollar for that year. The farm value was

32 percent. THE $69.8 BILLION SPENT by consumers in 1964 breaks down as follows:

Over all marketing cost were $47.3 billion, of which $20.8 billion was for labor; $5.1 billion for transportation; and 18.7 billion is classed as "other" costs. (This last item includes such things as buildings and equipment, containers and supplies, advertising and promotion.) This leaves $2.7 billion for corporation profit. The remainder of the total bill was $22.5 billion, (the 32 percent for the producer.)

THE REPORT ITEMIZES the different commodities which have different cost spreads. For example, the farm share for butter is found to be approximately 70 percent because processing is relatively simple, transportation cost are low since the product is highly concentrated, and handling cost are moderate. By contrast, the farm share of the dollar spent for canned tomatoes is low, since 16 percent is charged to the high processing and containers cost. A pound of choice beef retailing for 70.8c include 17c for retailing, 2.3c for wholesaling, transportation and distribution costs, 5.3c for processing and 3.8c for "assembly" cost. For this one pound of beef, the farm value is found to be 42.4c.

FOR ONE POUND of white bread retailing at 20.7c, the breakdown is: retailing 3.7c, wholesaling, transportation and distribution 6.1c, processing 6.7c, assembly 2c and farm value at 4c.

THE COMMISSION'S report states that although farm prices of a marketbasket of food were unchanged between 1950 and 1965, the farmer-retailer spread rose 37 percent and retail prices increased by 20 percent. The conclusion here is that farm efficiency has notably increased and, of course, continues to increase as larger units are operated. This means that the marginal farmers are being eliminated but this is not particularly the point or concern of the Commission's report. It is a concern in the terms of their future in some other endeavor and their probable contribution to problems already acute in urban centers.

FOLLOWING THE REPORT of the National Commission on food marketing it is obvious that the producer of agriculture products, whether food or fibers, must continue his struggle to produce at a cheaper unit cost if he is to receive his fair share of profits related to the cost of food from the grocer's shelf. This is to say, for instance, if cotton sold for 50c a pound, the percentage of the producer's profit would still be out of proportion to the price paid by the consumer if it cost him 44c to produce that pound of cotton.

IT MIGHT HELP US AT times to remember: Not all men are equipped by nature to be great, but all have the capacity to be good.

Little Leaguers Asked To Turn In Uniforms

Gene Rhodes, president of the Little League in Rising Star, this week asked that all members of the Little League who have not turned in their uniforms to do so, either to the managers of the teams on which they played this summer—or to him.

The League season has been completed with the Yankees winning the pennant.

Ten members of the North Star Club attended the Four-County all day workshop in Blanket, Tuesday July 26. The following women went from Rising Star, Mmes. Lee Burkhead, Mattie Irby, Nora Harris, Roy Rutledge, Martin, Easter Gray Julia Townsend, Joe Algood, Mabel Ralston and J. W. Morris.

Mrs. Florence Parsons of Van is here visiting her sister, Mrs. Dan Doyle, and Mr. Doyle, and Mr. and Mrs. Doss Alexander.

Enrollment In Medicare Now Is Continuous

"Medicare enrollment will be a continuing process from now on," said R. R. Tuley, Jr., social security district manager for the Abilene area. The general enrollment period that ended May 31 was an all-out effort to enroll those persons who were already age 65 or older.

Persons not yet 65 will have 7 months in which to enroll for doctor bill insurance, Tuley continued. The individual's enrollment period for that part of Medicare will run from the third month before his 65th birthday month to the third month after it. Thus a person who will be 65 in October, 1966 may enroll from July 1, 1966, through January 31, 1967.

There is no special enrollment period for the hospital insurance part, he went on, adding that a person past 65 could sign up for that even after he becomes an inpatient at a participating hospital. There are no premium payments involved for the hospital insurance half of Medicare.

Whether or not a person has retired or has ever worked under social security has no effect on Medicare coverage, but failure to enroll in the 3 month period before age 65 will result in a delay of from one to three months in acquiring the medical of doctor bill part of Medicare coverage. A higher premium cost will apply for those who do not enroll at their first opportunity but decide to come in during a later October-December period in 1967, 1969, or other odd-number years. Persons nearing age 65 are urged to ask their social security office for the free booklet on Medicare, Tuley added.

It Has Been

By VADA ARNOLD

Perhaps no single subject in the history and fiction of our country has been given the publicity that the Indians and Indian fights have.

Shortly after white men landed on the shores of North America the Indians resented their encroachment on the land that had always been their own.

As frontiers moved forward, encounters between "red men" and white men became more and more bitter.

Many times the white men made no distinction between friendly and hostile Indians, looking upon all of them as enemies. This attitude brought about many bloody battles that would not have occurred otherwise. On the other hand there were outrages committed against whites, including women and children, followed by scalping and mutilation that caused the disgust and hatred against all Indians.

Early settlers in our community encountered some savage Indians, and a number of Indian fights took place.

Brown county was directly in the path of raiding Comanches and Apaches that were among the last of Indian tribes in this section to succumb to white supremacy.

Between the years of 1854 and 1879 many instances are reported of work or hunting parties made up of several men, being caught and killed, after a bitter fight. On two occasions in particular almost entire families were wiped out by marauding bands of hostile "red skins".

There is a story of two massacres in Brown county, the Jackson and Williams families.

In the autumn of 1858, when Mr. Jackson and his wife, an eighteen-year old daughter and four younger children were on their way to keep a timber cutting rendezvous with members of the Jay and Charles Kirkpatrick families. They did not arrive on the day they were expected. The first day no anxiety was felt but the next day some of the men set out to locate the Jackson family. Before going far some of the younger boys found the wagon with oxen removed, two of the young Jackson children were dead in the wagon with their throats cut from ear to ear.

When the rest of the Jay and Kirkpatrick men arrived at the wagon, they found the body of Mr. Jackson about 100 yards away, lying beside the road, his body full of arrows and horribly beaten. On the other side of the road the bodies of Mrs. Jackson, the older daughter and two smaller children lay. They too had been brutally slain.

TIGER IN THE TANKER—The U.S.S. Navasota, a fleet oiler which has adopted Humble Oil & Refining Company's advertising slogan, "Put A Tiger in Your Tank," is shown flying her tiger flag during the refueling of a Navy fighting ship supporting the action in Viet Nam. According to the ship's skipper, the flag, which was especially made for the Navasota by Humble, is flown during refueling operations "to the great delight of our crew and the crews of the ships we service."

Later the Indian band was taken by surprise, and a party of white men surrounded them. Two white children who had been taken captive were recovered by the white men.

Early one morning in 1873, Bill Williams, who lived on Sand Creek in Brown County, with his grown son set out to cut timber for rafters to be used in the new house he was building for his family. His wife, a nine-year-old daughter and a baby six months, were at home. Shortly after her husband left home, Mrs. Williams took the buckets and went to the cow pen to milk. Building a small fire she laid the baby on a pallet to keep warm, and started milking. Suddenly a band of Indians came yelling out of a nearby brush and attacked Mrs. Williams, shooting her with arrows and beating her severely. The baby was dragged through the fire number of times and then dragged face down until all the skin was gone from the face and body of the baby. They took the nine-year-old girl and

Late in the afternoon when the older son and his father returned, they found the mother dying, all she was able to say was, "Indians". She died shortly after seeing her husband and son. The baby lived three days and then died.

The nine year old girl was found some time later hanging from a mesquite tree by buckskin thongs tied under her arms. Birds had pecked her eyes out.

Months later a party of white men captured an Indian squaw, after a skirmish with a band of Comanches, the squaw was wearing an apron, which Mr. Williams recognized as the one worn by his wife the morning he left her to go into the woods to cut timber. A few days later the squaw was turned over to Mr. Williams and another man and they shot her.

This was not taken from a television show, but actually happened in our neighboring Brown county.

Miss Judy Clark of Fort Worth has spent one month here with her grandmother, Mrs. Effie Gayles. She returned home because of the illness of her mother Mrs. Thelma Clark.

Nation's 300,000th M.D. To Be A 'Family Doctor'

NORMAN, Okla.—The nation's 300,000th physician was graduated from medical school in June at the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine.

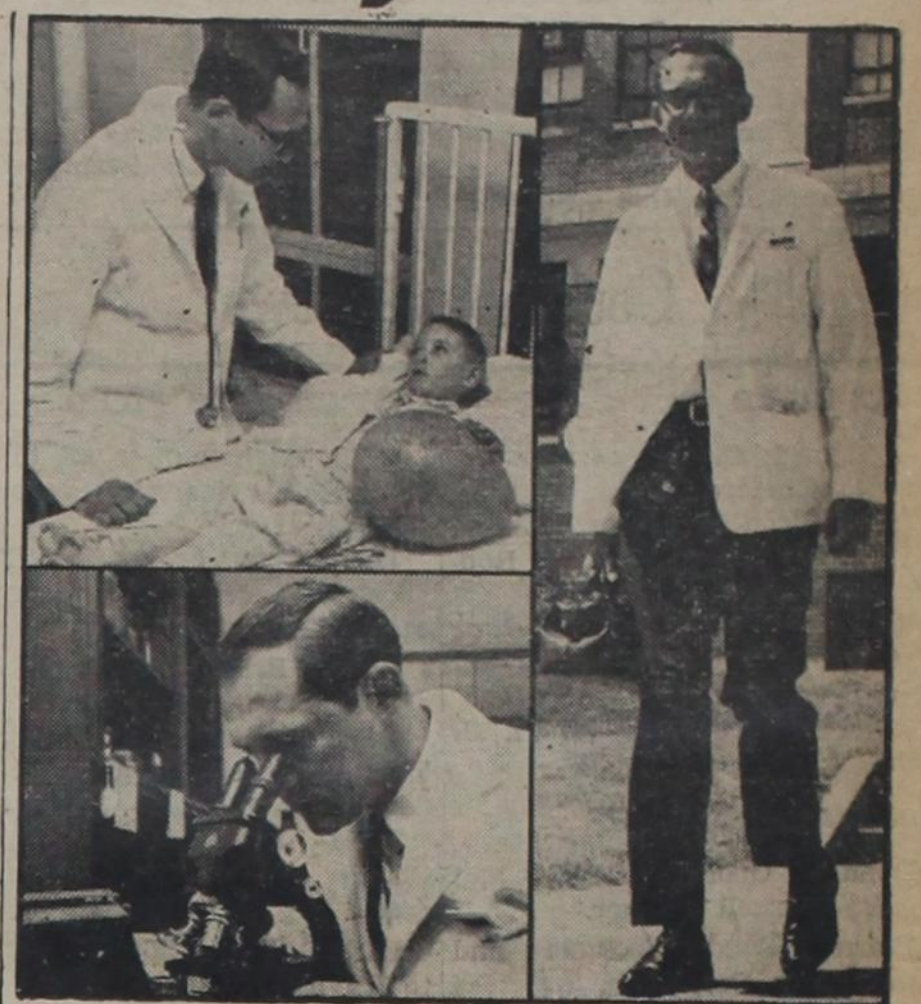

Jerry Dean Leu, 29, of Alva, Okla., plans to become a smalltown "family doctor." First, however, he will go on for four more years of internship and residency training in internal medicine.

Dr. Leu's graduation marks a medical milestone—the first time 300,000 physicians have been available to serve Americans. The number of M.D.'s in the U.S. now is increasing faster than the general population. The ratio is better than one physician for every 680 people, compared to one for every 737 in 1960. By 1975, the AMA estimates, the ratio will be down to one physician for every 638 persons.

Even more physicians are needed to meet an insatiable demand for medical services, the American Medical Association says. The increase in demand for medical services has come about through a growing health consciousness on the part of the public, scientific advances in medicine, new government health programs and the growth in population, the AMA pointed out.

Becoming a doctor wasn't easy for Jerry Leu.

"When I was in high school, I wanted to go to medical school, but I had doubts about my ability and whether I could obtain the necessary funds," he said.

Dr. Leu said his wife's work and loans through the AMA's Education and Research Foundation and the Oklahoma State Medical Association made it possible to obtain his degree.

He was accepted for medical school in 1962 after graduation from Northwestern State College, Alva, and Air Force service as a medical research technician.

"I want to establish a family-type practice in a smaller town of 15,000 to 30,000 population," Dr. Leu said. "Why a family practice? It's hard to explain. I want to know my patients—know them as individuals and as families."

He plans to take his internship at the University Hospital, University of Oklahoma Medical Center.

der the Health, Education Facilities Program. Funds for the project are to be released on July 18 and authority to solicit bids for construction of the building will be made at that time.

Music In Your Life

by Mildred Alexander
Teaching Consultant
Hammond Organ Company

Today each member of the family unit is aggressively engaged in his own pursuits, so there's less and less of the "pull-together" feeling of yesteryear. Specialization seems to have a fragmenting effect on today's family unit.

Where oh where is the natural spirit of family participation? With each member of the family selecting his own favorite TV program, his own sport and his own circle of friends, where is the joy and strength of participating together?

Well, there is one way to develop family bonds easily and enjoyably. The formula is to enjoy music together. Sure, Sis has her favorite records and musical idols, and so does Buddy. So do grandparents and parents. But, once they're all indoctrinated into the creative fun of making music together, the oldtime spirit of "one for all and all for one" really shines through. An active, rather than passive activity—making music can be a really important and gay uplift for the home.

The instrument that's done much to bring back this family harmony is the Hammond Organ. In the past 30 years, it has become an all-family, all-taste, all-age instrument. An older in the seventies can start to learn as well as the moppet of 7. And usually in a matter of a few minutes, the novice of almost any age can learn to play a simple tune of his choice.

Whether it's a hymn or a Beatle beat, a sentimental tune or a lusty college song, the electric organ has built-in ways of making each sound "authentic." That's because there's such an infinite variety of tones, styles and instrument sounds on this organ.

Your shoes should be built for walking, and your old shoes are your best guides to what you need in a new pair.

So, if you made mistakes in selecting your last pair of shoes, both you and your shoes have suffered. The way the old shoes look now may show you what those mistakes were.

Here are some of the common signs you may find on your old shoes that indicate some "buy-manship" mistakes.

If the shoe is worn unevenly, with most of the signs of wear in the front, the shoe is too short for you. Soles should wear through first at the center.

If the upper portions of the shoe bulge over the shoe line, the shoe is too narrow. Shoes that are worn completely out of shape show that size is all wrong for you. In that case, you'd better have your shoe salesman make a special check of the exact size you need.

When the shoe heel pushes under or new lifts are needed often, the shoe is too short. Wear at the toe tip also means that the shoe is too short.

Heels that wear on the inside indicate that your arch is weak. Slight wearing at the back or outside line is normal. When "pockets" for the toes wear inside the sole, the shoe is too tight.

A shoe that is puckered or wrinkled behind the ball along the arch show that it is not long enough from ball to heel, thus, pushing the ball of the foot forward. While the overall length of the shoe may be right, the proportions probably is not.

Next time you go shopping to buy new fitted cotton sheets, here's a suggestion that will help you pick a long-wearing style and save you money.

According to recent test made by the American Institute of Laundering, fitted bottom sheets with elastic sewn into the corners wear longer than those fitted cotton sheets with normal elastic corners.

In the research test, sheets with elastic corners were used and washed for 52 weeks with no repair needed. Fitted sheets with non-elastic corners had to be repaired after only 21 weeks of use. Both types of sheets were of comparable quality materials.

Fitted bottom sheets usually do not last nearly as long as flat sheets which can be rotated to distribute the wear more evenly.

It may be more economical to purchase the better quality sheets at slightly higher cost than to attempt to economize on the price.

Many of you are aware of the versatility of eggs and their value as an important protein food. However, here are some points you may want to consider.

A high quality egg covers only a small area when broken. The white is thick and stands tall and firm around the yolk. As the storage time of egg increases, the amount of the thick white decreases and the egg tends to spread and cover more surface area. Color of the egg shell is determined by the feed of the hen. If the hens have been fed the same type of ration, the eggs will be nutritionally equivalent regardless of shell color. They will also have the same flavor, the same keeping quality and the same whipping and cooking characteristics. The conditions where the shells do not peel easily from hard cooked eggs is related to fresh eggs, generally of high quality. As eggs are stored, they lose carbon dioxide and thus shrink away from the shell, making them easier to peel when hard-cooked.

ONE OF THE MOST ENCUMBERING FASHIONS EVER DEvised WAS THE BUSTLE. BESIDES ITS OUTLANDISH SIZE, IT WAS FAR FROM COMFORTABLE (AN ESSENTIAL MATERIAL WAS STEEL WIRE).

currency in his pocket could take his money to the bank and exchange it for gold coin.

But this is no longer possible, and as little as you may have thought about it, the prohibition to American citizens of the ownership of gold money, has greatly lessened the control which we have over our government by removing the one effective check which the people have upon the spending and taxing policies of the government and through this upon all other governmental activities and policies.

It has made us more susceptible to bureaucratic control which always finds the excuses and means to grow.

As long as citizens can exchange their currency for gold money it serves as a check on wild and inflationary government spending and the nation's money remains sound.

Gold has been the collateral back of currency from time immemorial because its value is stable. All other money values relate to it. No matter how hard the times or how inflated the prices, a person with his money in the precious yellow metal can always be assured of a purchasing power in line with real values.

If you care to examine how far we have drifted from a real gold standard in the last few years, look at the bills in your pocket. None of them say "Gold Certificate", which means that they are redeemable in gold, of course. But you will notice that fewer and fewer of them have the words "Silver Certificate" printed on them, meaning that they are redeemable in silver coin.

They are "Federal Reserve Certificates" which means they are only promises of the government to pay.

As long as the credit of the government is good the value of the bills is sound. But you can wonder how long that will hold true should the people abroad who own 26 billions, more or less, of American dollars suddenly take a notion to ask for them in the gold stocks we have. We have only a little more than $13 billion of these stocks.

What a run-away inflation that might trigger!

NOTEBOOK—PATTERNS FOR PROGRESS

INDUSTRIAL SITES AND BUILDINGS

...basic for new and expanding industry

Industries' requirements for land and buildings are one of their most important interests when selecting a town in which to operate. Each industry has its own peculiar needs. Therefore, a wide variety of different type industrial sites gives a community increased chances of obtaining new industry as well as helping its existing industry to expand. Planning and zoning by a community is important to the community as well as to industry. Land is now available in West Texas. Wise planning for the future can easily be accomplished.

INDUSTRIAL SITES— range from industrial parks, planned industrial districts, individual sites (with all utilities) to raw land to be developed. Communities desiring new industry should have the following information on firmly committed industrial sites . . .

PLATS— Showing size, shape, location of utilities, access to transportation and topography.

LOCATION— Inside or outside of the city and any zoning restrictions.

PICTURES— Aerial photos tell an excellent story on an industrial site.

INDUSTRIAL BUILDINGS— existing buildings are very important as they are usually available at a lower cost than building new ones. In addition to the above information on sites, a community should have the following information on buildings. . .

FLOOR PLAN— Showing the size and dimensions of building, wall and ceiling heights, floor bearing capacity, office space, whether it has sprinkler system for fire protection and what type heating and air conditioning would be available.

PICTURES— Show the type construction of the building as well as many other items of information that industry would be interested in.

VIP (Very Important Part)— Have firm commitments in writing on all industrial sites and buildings as to sale price and/or lease price, cost of extending utilities or roads and basic construction costs in the area for new facilities.

Ask your WTU local manager for additional information and services available.
