In conversations straying to the national political situation — as conversations so easily do now that the drama of the big party presidential conventions is upon us — two themes persistently emerge: the poor quality of the presidential tinber offered by the two major parties and the challenge of George Wallace.

"You are going to be surprised at the vote Wallace gets," said a Dallas attorney. An Abilene attorney echoed the prediction. The conversation was objective, not related to the political preferences of either. The general sense of their assessment would be something like this:

There is little, if any, dramatic strength among the leading contenders for the nomination in either the Democratic or Republican parties. None of them has offered a challenging program—nothing except a nebulous restatement of what has become merely trite. There is no real inter-party conflict out of which drama grows.

The platform principles of both major parties seem to have become frozen into eloquent generalities, less designed to provide a really constructive program of national leadership than to capture an office.

Wallace, on the other hand, is saying things that a lot of Americans have been quietly thinking—things about state, local and individual rights, the right of people to own, administer and sell their preference, personal rights as party without government in-rights, federal dominance and related to overall "racial" rights, lawlessness and violence abetted by federal legislation and a growing, powerful and meddlesome oligarchy of federal judiciary.

Whether or not you agree with the man — and to me he seems much less a qualified leader than a voice of dissent — he speaks for a lot of Americans, and through his advocacy they are gaining courage to make themselves heard in the councils of the electorate. What he may accomplish is certainly not a radically different national administration. He hasn't the strength to be elected. And it would be most unfortunate if he were.

But in making it possible for a significant and hitherto submerged element of the national mind, so blithely ignored by the major parties in their pursuit of political shibboleths, to be heard, he may re-emphasize the fact that there can be no civil rights of any sort without personal rights.

For all the elements of demagoguery that his candidacy may exhibit, he is competent to expose this suppressed aspect of the public mind and to make it effective upon the level of conscious public policy. In doing so he could make a constructive contribution to the American political scene.

Medicare Rules Threaten City-County Hospital

The Ranger Times last week carried a story entitled "Ranger Could Be Without Hospital" in which it was reported that the Department of Health and Welfare has notified the Ranger General Hospital that "action has been taken to terminate the Medicare Provider Funds."

One of the reasons given, said the story, is that the hospital building does not qualify under the terms of the Medicare Law.

James Rutherford of Rising Star, a county member of the board which governs the joint city-county hospital, said that ever since the Medicare program became effective the hospital had been confronted with requirements for building modifications to conform to Medicare standards impossible financially to meet.

"The only solution," he said, "is the construction of an entirely new building possible only by forming a district and voting hospital bonds. That seems to be the objective in mind among the Ranger citizens who are showing concern over the matter."

Rutherford pointed out that prior to the Medicare program, the hospital was paying its costs and had a large reserve fund. That is no longer true, he said. "Medicare owes the hospital over $20,000 which the hospital won't receive before the end of the year, and the institution is having a difficult time meeting current operating expenses, the more so because of the heavy charity patient load it is required to bear by reason of its county affiliations."

The hospital is housed in a high rise building constructed over 40 years ago. It is operated under a tentative Medicare approval, and is constantly under inspection by Medicare representatives, no two of whom can seem to agree upon the modifications necessary to conform to Health and Welfare Department requirements, he explained.

A committee of Ranger citizens has been named to study the situation and the feasibility of a new hospital.

Carefully-laid plans for a complete jail break at the Eastland County jail, during the month of May, 1929 was foiled by the county jailor, E. P. Kilborn.

When Mr. Kilborn went up stairs in the jail at noon on May 26, 1929 to take the prisoners noon meal, he first locked all of them in their cells, except one, a young man Walter Fitzgerald, 19, from Fredrick, Okla., under conviction for forgery, and had been given a six year sentence. Fitzgerald was left in the run-around to pass the food around to the inmates. Mr. Kilborn entered the run-around with a large basket of food and set it on the floor. Fitzgerald told him that he had an electric bulb that had burned out and wanted him to take it downstairs, he was told to put the bulb into the basket. As the jailer stooped to pick up the bulb, Fitzgerald threw pepper in his eyes and hit him on the head with a "blackjack" that the prisoner had made of pieces of broken glass, small particles of metal and what have you.

Realizing his plight the jailer hit Fitzgerald on the head with a large key that he carried tied to a leather strap, the lick knocked him down. Fitzgerald jumped to his feet and the fight started in earnest. Mr. Kilborn struck the prisoner a blow that almost knocked him out. All the time the jailer was trying to reach the run-around door.

As Fitzgerald rubbed his head and tried to regain his composure, the jailer made his way out of the run-around and locked the door.

While the fight was going on Fitzgerald tried to unlock the cell doors by working the lever with which each cell door was locked or unlocked, he hoped to open the doors and let his fellow prisoners out, put Mr. Kilborn out of the way and make their get away.

Thinking the other prisoners might try to escape through an outside window, Mr. Kilborn went down stairs, bleeding profusely and growing weaker by the moment. He picked up his gun and went outside the jail, to greet the first prisoner to climb down the wall of the building.

The Kilborn family, hearing the commotion upstairs, called the Sheriff's office and deputy Sheriffs Jap Jobe and Steele Hill rushed over to the jail.

Doctors were summoned to attend the wounds of both men. Mr. Kilborn suffered two deep gashes on the head and one on the back. The prisoner had a deep cut on his head. Several stitches were taken on each victim.

Noticing that something unusual was happening at the jail, soon several hundred people gathered on the grounds.

There were fifteen prisoners in the jail at the time, including Clyde Thompson and Woodrow Davis, both under death sentences for the murder of Lucien and Leon Shook in Eastland County in September, 1928. After a thorough search of the jail evidence was found that an all-out escape had been well planned. Officers found "a knife made of a steel bed slat. Several 'billies' made from tobacco cans and tied up in pieces of cloth torn from the bed clothes. A number of automatic pistol bullets and numerous other small items of metal tied up in cloth from the beds.

The county attorney's office announced that Fitzgerald would be charged with assault with attempt to murder as a result of his attack on Mr. Kilborn.

Searching Oceans Grows To Rival Space Effort

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Alcoa has taken three major steps to broaden its diversification into oceanography — the growing new field of scientific endeavor, the magnitude of which promises to rival the space effort within a decade.

The moves involve: FORMATION of a new company, Ocean Search, Inc., to engage worldwide in a variety of exploratory projects related to ocean environment and its enormous potential for mankind's welfare. Ocean Search is a joint venture of Aluminum Company of America and Ocean Science and Engineering, Inc. of Washington, D. C., a pioneering global leader in oceanography in which Alcoa has had an equity interest for more than a year.

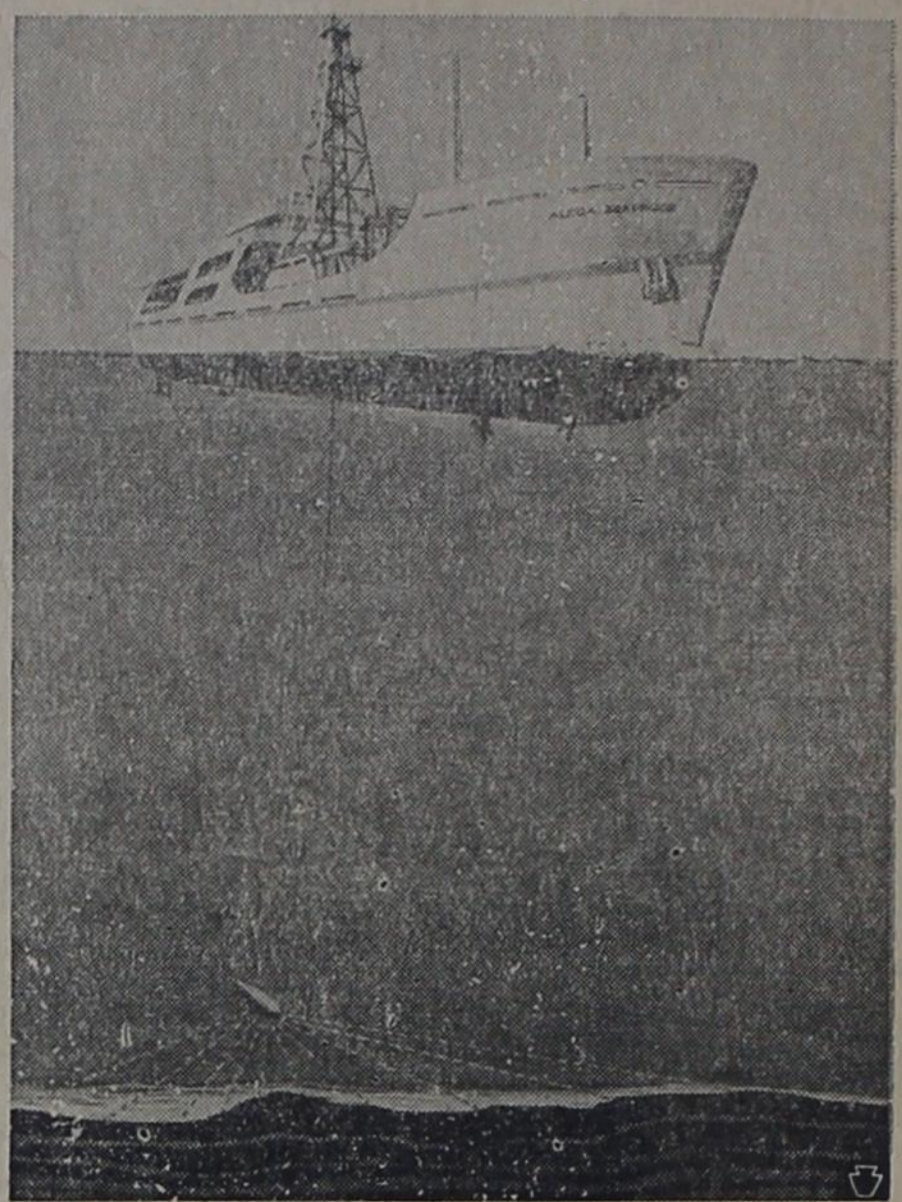

DESIGN and construction of the all-aluminum ALCOA SEAPROBE, largest and most advanced deep ocean search and recovery surface vessel ever planned, with capabilities of recovering 200-ton payloads from 6000-foot depths.

A PROGRAM of intensified research and development in the area of new aluminum marine alloys and products for a host of existing and potential on-surface and undersea applications.

Spearheading Alcoa's expanded involvement with oceanography will be the ALCOA SEAPROBE . . . its name symbolizing the ship's unique purpose and capabilities. Construction by a shipyard yet to be named is scheduled to begin in October, and the vessel is to be fitted out and ready for sea trials by May, 1970.

Hull and superstructure of the 244-foot vessel will be of Alcoa-developed aluminum marine alloys, making it the largest all-aluminum vessel yet to be launched. With its 50-foot beam, nine-foot draft, and 2000-ton displacement, it will constitute a trail-blazing "State of the Art" use of aluminum, much as the 30-story Alcoa Building in Pittsburgh achieved the technological breakthroughs which, since 1932, have inspired the construction of hundreds of aluminum-clad skyscrapers.

Utilizing patented OSE techniques and equipment, ALCOA

OCEAN DEPTHS UNEXPLORED since the beginning of time will soon come within man's reach. Objects 6000-feet down and weighing as much as 200 tons are within the search and recovery capabilities of the all-aluminum ALCOA SEAPROBE, depicted in this artist's sketch. Most advanced craft of its type ever designed, the ship will be built and put to sea within two years.

SEAPROBE will possess the ability to hold its position in rough seas; search, core, drill, and sample mineral deposits on the sea floor; locate and retrieve heavy objects more than a mile beneath the surface; and to perform other research and exploratory oceanographic functions. No existing or proposed ship has anything approaching these capabilities.

To accomplish its multiple tasks, the vessel will constitute a floating complex of sophisticated electrical and electronic gear manned by 40 scientists, technicians and crewmen.

Powered by diesel electric generators giving it a 10,000-mile 45-day cruising range, the ALCOA SEAPROBE will be equipped with radio telephones, radar, sonar of several frequencies, undersea cameras and television, and a variety of special-purpose retrieving equipment.

While the ALCOA SEAPROBE's precise missions are yet to be determined, they are expected to involve priority undersea geological explorations in behalf of Alcoa's unceasing quest for new mineral resources. Ocean Search, Inc. also plans to operate the ship under charter on a variety of projects. These could include undersea drilling for oil, gas, and mineral deposits; the salvage of valuable weapons and objects lost beneath the sea on U.S. Navy and Atomic Energy Commission test ranges; and deep marine archaeology to recover historically valuable art and other treasures.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stephen-Albuquerque, N. M.; Mr. and Mrs. Dinky Hill and Mrs. G. C. Stroebel had a telephone call from her youngest brother, Lewis Richardson, who lives in Detroit, Mich., saying that he will probably visit her at a later date.

Faith doesn't just stand there.

It does something.

If you think all's right with the world, read no further.

But if you're like most people, today's headlines are profoundly disturbing.

Narcotics. Alcoholism. Murder. Racial strife. Poverty. Cruelty. War. The "inhuman-ness" our society seems to be breeding.

Your Faith has something to say about every one of the moral and ethical problems facing us. More important, if you listen to what your Faith has to say, you're in a better position to help solve those problems.

But you find out for yourself. Worship this week in your church or synagogue.

Then take your Faith out in the world and put it to work.

Eastland Co. Agri. Agent

Tomatoes have done well in Eastland County this year. Those who grew even only a few plants have had an abundance of tomatoes. During the spring I mentioned a new tomato variety, the Nematex, in this column. I know of several people who bought Nematex seed or plants. Everyone I have talked with is very happy with this new variety. It produces a nice size tomato that is very high in quality. The vines are also stronger and resistant to most types of nematodes as well as to severe tomato diseases. Vines are heavy producers under varied growing conditions. Patsy Moseley, Olden 4-H girl, had the grand champion tomatoes at the 4-H tomato show July 26. Her champion entry was the Nematex variety. The 4-H members grew three or more varieties and most agreed that the Nematex was their best tomatoes.

Red spider mites are causing some damage to tomato vines as well as other vegetables. Charley Marshall of Eastland said the spider mites attacked his plants about the middle of July. Spider mites are about 1/60 inch in size. They are a yellowish or reddish mite which suck juices from the underside of leaves. They cause pale blotches on upper and lower surfaces of foliage. A little webbing is often present. Plants gradually lose vigor and die. Kelthane is the best insecticide to control spider mites. Tomatoes can be harvested as early as to days after the Kelthane is applied. The Marshalls are using Kelthane on their tomatoes. Charley and his two sons are known as good tomato growers. Both boys, John and Charles, won champion ribbons at the 4-H tomato show.

bands around their bodies. The borers feed principally on the pegs, pods, stems and roots. Peanuts should be sprayed as soon as full grown larvae are found in the soil. The three insecticides recommended for the control of this borer are Diazinon, Parathion, and DDT. They can be applied as granules or sprays. Apply granules in a 12-14 inch uniform band directly over row just prior to pegging. Work into the top few inches of soil immediately. For spray applications use two nozzles per row so that the lower stems and a 6-8 inch band of soil are covered on each side of the row. Repeat applications at 3-4 week intervals as needed.

Powdery Mildew Pecan Problem

COLLEGE STATION — Powdery mildew on pecans is becoming an increasing problem in Texas, Jerral Johnson, Extension plant pathologist, says. This is due largely to the cool humid weather that has prevailed in the pecan growing areas of the state. The disease usually does not present much of a problem, but this year, due to the consistent rainfall powdery mildew is continuing to develop. The disease is easily recognized by the white, powdery growth which partially or completely covers the developing nuts. Johnson stated that a protective fungicide used for pecan scab control, such as Du-Ter, Cyprex, and Dithane M-45, will also help suppress powdery mildew.

These materials should be applied on a two to three weeks interval until the disease is no longer visible, said Johnson. Another disease affecting pecan growers is pecan scorch. This, too, is due to the large amounts of rainfall in the state. Pecan scorch is a physiological disease brought on by an imbalance of moisture, said Johnson, either too much or too little. It causes the leaves to turn brown in between the veins, appearing to be burnt. The disease occurs randomly in the orchard and may affect the trees differently. Only control would be to maintain a uniform moisture balance under the trees through the use of irrigation, says Johnson.

Miniature Meat Loaves

HAM LOAF, A FAVORITE with most families, offers a wonderful way to use up the last of that whole or half ham. For a change, make Individual Ham Loaves in muffin pans. They are especially easy to serve and can look very festive when you tuck a little fruit into each pan before adding the mixture of meat, seasonings, and 40% bran flakes. Glazed carrots make a pretty platter garnish.

INDIVIDUAL HAM LOAVES

- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon butter, melted
- Lemon slices
- Maraschino cherries
- 1 cup Post 40% Bran Flakes
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Dash of cayenne
- 1 cups (1 lb.) ground cooked ham

Combine brown sugar and butter. Spread a little of mixture in bottoms of 6 medium muffin pans. Place a section of a ham slice and a cherry in each pan, if desired. Combine cereal, milk, eggs, and seasonings; mix thoroughly. Add ham and stir until well blended. Pack ham mixture firmly into muffin pans. Bake at 350° for 1 hour, or until browned. Invert onto warm serving platter. Makes 6 servings.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — SAN ANTONIO'S HEMISPHERE IS MORE than just San Antonio's. It is Texas', the Nation's, and the Western Hemisphere's and the World's.

THIS COMES ABOUT BECAUSE AFTER the film has shown many wonders of the United States - its great productive capacity, its beauties of nature, its enterprising people, its great flowing rivers and lakes, majestic peaks, waving fields of grain to feed millions in the world, its pulsing industry - comes the seamy side. It shows hunger and want, poor people and the disadvantaged, streams polluted by the refuse of our industrial plants, as well as the air from automobiles and smokestacks. It shows dead automobiles covering acres in junkyards; a newly married couple spend most of the day and night stuck in a freeway traffic jam in some great city.

BY REASON OF IT HAVING BEEN APPROVED by the International Exposition Headquarters in Paris, it is international. IT IS MOST IMPRESSIVE IN ALL THE ways that fairs may impress people but it makes impressions in more simple terms.

THE CONTROVERSY, SIMPLY STATED, is why show the bad or "seamy" side of America and does it mean that to not show it is a denial it exists?

SOME OF THOSE WHO ARE NOT TEXANS and lacking in bias, which those of us from Texas may have, are quick to comment upon the orderliness, its cleanliness, its courtesy, its lack of ballyhoo, which might otherwise be expected.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO, WHEN EDGAR R. MURROW WAS APPOINTED Director of the United States Information Agency for our Government's propaganda overseas, he introduced the idea that we should portray America exactly as it is to foreign peoples. When questioned on this policy his reply was that we must not deny to foreigners that we do not have problems and that to honestly reveal them would be greater cause for them to believe the good things. Many of us disagreed and questioned him at length.

THERE IS, HOWEVER, ONE CRITICAL NOTE. It has come under attack from numerous sources. It is the controversy of the film "Confluence USA" at the United States Pavilion. What does that mean? A coming together of peoples, a joining of forces - everything, nothing - but officials of the Department of Commerce, the Agency under whose jurisdiction comes exhibitions, fairs and expositions, say that "world's fair films are not suppose to mean, they are suppose to be, like laughter or morning dew." When Mrs. Lyndon Johnson saw the film she is quoted as saying "It lacks the element of hope." Former Ambassador Ed Clark, now Commissioner of the United States Pavilion at HemisFair, said "They had to pass up a thousand good things in America to find one of its bad things to show."

A GOOD SALESMAN NEVER SAYS "You don't want to buy any of this, do you?" He extols the virtues of his product. Advertising people try to put in words, music or pictures the merits of what they are trying to sell to make people want to buy.

NOT ALL OFFICIALS OF OUR GOVERNMENT NOR OUR CITIZENS think it is bad. Some view it as a great film that just sweeps down on you and say "Look America - Look what you are doing to yourself." At a bend in the corridor on leaving the theatre, you see yourself on television with the caption "Are you a part of the problem?" and at the next turn another television picture of yourself above which is "Are you a part of the solution?"

TO WITHHOLD THE SEAMY SIDE OF AMERICA is not to deny we have a lot of it. But the point is that by portraying the best, it emphasizes the system of Government which is able to produce more things for more people and where people are better off than any other place on the face of the earth.

"Section 11a. In addition to the bonds enumerated in Section 11 of Article VII of the Constitution of the State of Texas, the Board of Regents of The University of Texas may invest the Permanent University Fund in securities, bonds or other obligations issued, insured, or guaranteed in any manner by the United States Government, or any of its agencies, and in such bonds, debentures, or obligations, and preferred or common stocks issued by corporations, associations, or other institutions as the Board of Regents of The University of Texas System may deem to be proper investments for said funds; provided, however, that not more than one per cent (1%) of said fund shall be invested in the securities of any one (1) corporation, nor shall more than five per cent (5%) of the voting stock of any one (1) corporation be owned; provided, further, that stocks eligible for purchase shall be restricted to stocks of companies incorporated within the United States which have paid dividends for five (5) consecutive years or longer immediately prior to the date of purchase and which, except for bank stocks and insurance stocks, are listed upon an exchange registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission or its successors."
 "In making each and all of such investments said Board of Regents shall exercise the judgment and care under the circumstances then prevailing which men of ordinary prudence, discretion, and intelligence exercise in the management of their own affairs, not in regard to speculation but in regard to the permanent disposition of their funds, considering the probable income therefrom as well as the probable safety of their capital.

"The interest, dividends and other income accruing from the investments of the Permanent University Fund, except the portion thereof which is appropriated by the operation of Section 18 of Article VII for the payment of principal and interest on bonds or notes issued thereunder, shall be subject to appropriation by the Legislature to accomplish the purposes declared in Section 10 of Article VII of this Constitution.

"This amendment shall be self-enacting, and shall become effective upon its adoption, provided, however, that the Legislature shall provide by law for full disclosure of all details concerning the investments in corporate stocks and bonds and other investments authorized herein."

Sec. 2. The foregoing constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of the state at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November 1968, at which election all ballots shall have printed thereon the following:

POPULAR CONNECTICUT FIFE-DRUM CORPS SETS RETURN TO STATE FAIR IN DALLAS

Those colorful Colonials from Connecticut, the fifers and drummers of the Deep River (Conn.) Drum Corps, will march again at this year's State Fair of Texas, coming up Oct. 5-20 in Dallas. The New England music makers, wearing white wigs and red and black uniforms carefully copied from those of Revolutionary times, will give several free performances daily Oct. 12 through 17. The two dozen parading Pied Pipers in three-cornered hats drew huge crowds in 1963 and 1965 at the nation's largest annual exposition. The Deep River citizens have been popular favorites since 1873; The State Fair of Texas has been the people's choice since 1886.

News From May

By Mrs. V. O. King

The directors of the newly organized Brown County Farmers Union held a meeting Monday, Aug. 5, at 8:30 p. m. in the May High School agricultural building. The purpose of the meeting was to direct the officers in their duties. Aubrey Goss, president, called the meeting to order and the invocation was given by Norman Claborn. Fred Brown of Midland, organizer, brought a very interesting and informative program. He said that the Farmers Union is working for a better program for the farm people, although you do not have to live on the farm to be a member. The only other requirement is that you be a land owner.

He said that the Farmers Union believes that each commodity group should write its own program.
