Our Foreign Policy- What's It All About?

BY BEN A. BUTLER

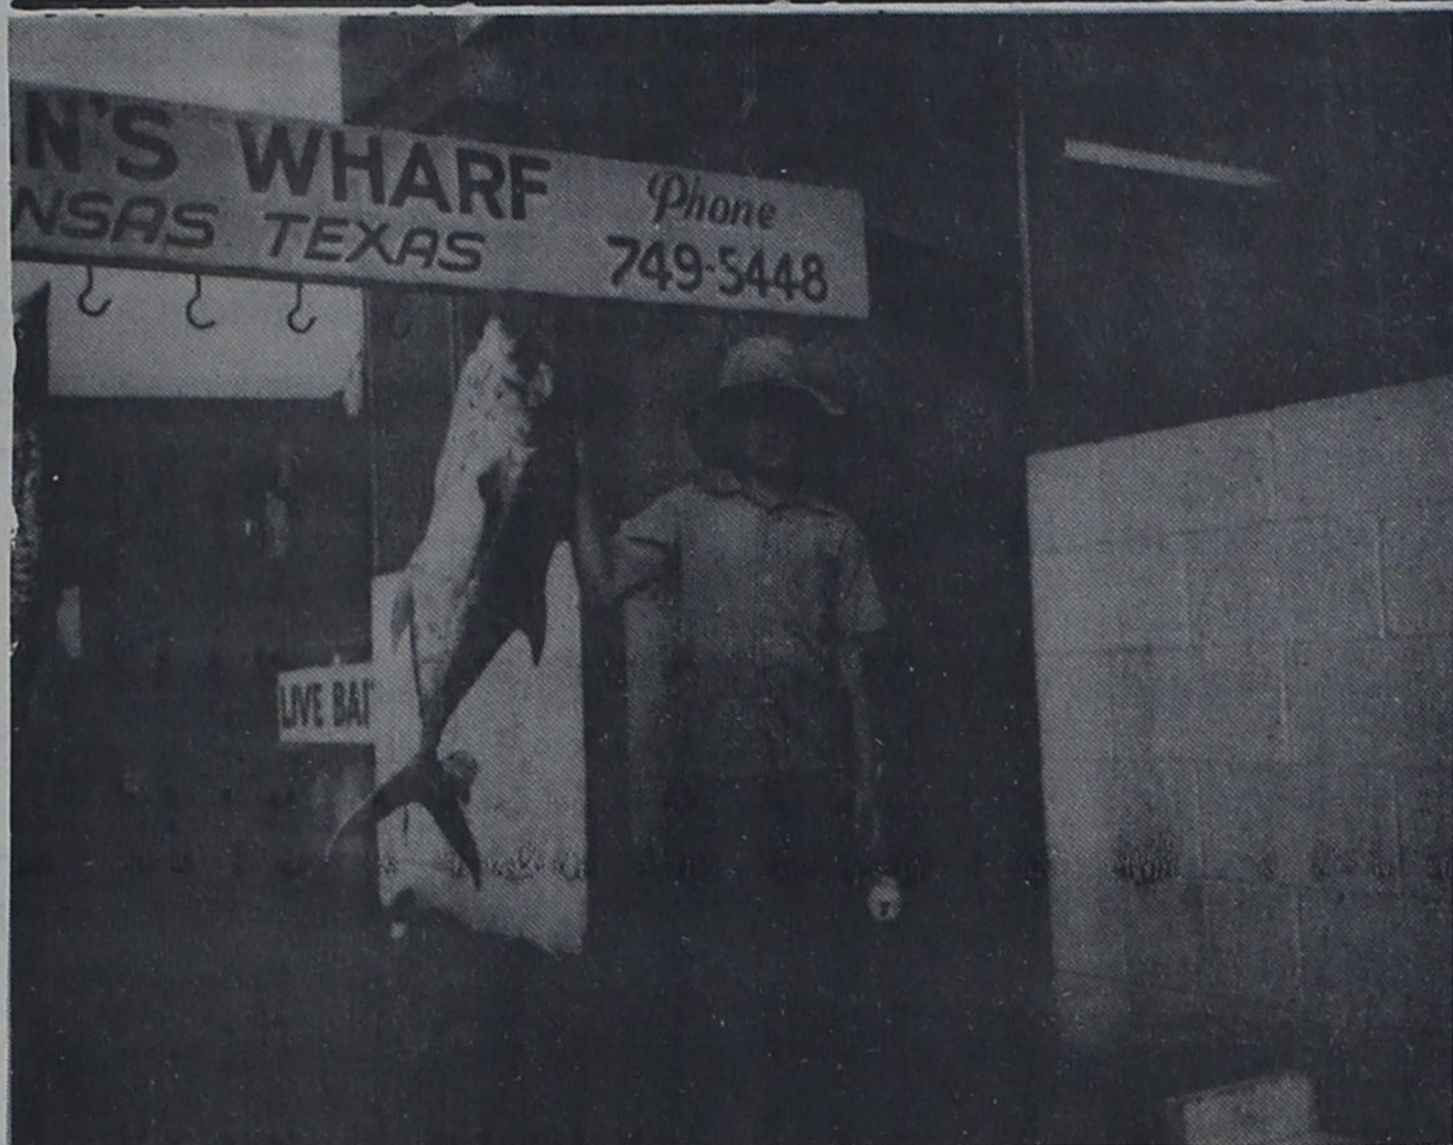

There is a tendency in the present political campaign to differentiate between foreign policy and domestic issues, which is to say that the price our farmers get for a bushel of peanuts and the wages a carpenter is paid have no relationship to what the government does in its dealings with foreign nations. Each is considered a separate field of interest.

Most of today's voters, however, are much better informed and knowledgeable than was the case fifty years ago. They recognize that there is a direct, if ultimate, relationship.

They know that what the Russian citizen today has on his table or what he would like to enjoy of the good things denied him is a definite potential involved in the state of business and employment in this country. If the American and the Russian could meet on a common ground to trade their goods and skills each would benefit in a better standard of living. Ditto the Chinese.

Underneath all this talk of differing ideologies, armaments and the struggle for power and our unhappy involvement in foreign wars, this affluent but very difficult - to - achieve equation between the needs and contributions of diverse and suffering economies is ultimately what our foreign policy is all about.

Unfortunately, there is no simple formula for this result. It is much more complicated than going to one's neighbor and trading him a pound of meat for a sack of potatoes, so that each can have meat and potatoes. It is a trade that must be approached through torturous and often frustrating negotiations between more or less rigid political institutions which partake of the worse characteristics of human

Jr. High Pep Squad

Mrs. Edith Bibb, sponsor of the Rising Star Junior High Pep Squad, has announced that the material and patterns for this year's uniforms are now at Higginbotham's.

The uniforms this year will be the same as last year, vest and long pants. Any girl who was in the Pep Squad last year may use last year's uniform again.

All sixth, seventh and eighth grade girls are eligible to participate in the Pep Squad.

Richardson Reunion Well Attended

Those attending the Richardson reunion held in Cisco last Sunday at the American Legion Hall were Mr. and Mrs. Gary Richardson and daughter, Shannon of Brenham; Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Richardson of Loco Hills, New Mexico; and their granddaughter, Cyndy of Artesia, New Mexico; Mr. and Mrs. L.D. Stanaford of Littlefield; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Stanaford and two sons of Midland; Mr. Grayson Brown of Brownwood; Mr. Buster Brown of May; Mrs.

Myrtle Richardson of Eastland; Mr. and Mrs. George Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Dinky Hill and son Kerry, Mrs. Maud Hill, and Mrs. Louella Carmichael of Rising Star.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hart and daughter, Sandra, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Harrelson, Rev. and Mrs. Mart Agnew, Mrs. Lela McBeth, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ziehr, Mrs. J.E. Stansell, Mr. and Mrs. G.C. Stroebel, all of Cisco; Mrs. Beulah Sheridan and Mrs. Agness Townsend of Nimrod; Mrs. Ronnie Hasting and baby of Bryan.

isolationism it would simply be repeating in an even more perilous time, the disastrous policies of the 'twenties.

Contrary to some irreverent politicians and impractical dreamers - whose simplistic solutions to the problems of human nature are revived as often as they are discredited - wars do not start because of an arms race; building armaments are rather the symptoms of the real causes. The failures of peace are more often to be found in the fact that free nations are unwilling to pay the price of vigilance or seek out the underlying causes and remedy them before it is too late.

Oddly enough, World War II was the product of disarmament and a foolish complacency. It had its beginnings in a selfish economic nationalism, the same conditions that gave rise to our own great depression.

Had there been a "Marshall Plan", after World War I to rescue Germany from the economic disaster that gave birth to Hitler's Nazi movement - a plan such as saved Western Europe from falling to Stalinist communism after World War II - it is reasonable to believe that Dunkirk and Pearl Harbor and all the subsequent holocaust of murder and destruction that followed would never have occurred.

But the western allies, in spite of dire warnings from ignored but more perceptive leaders, preferred to sit out the growing crisis in a dream world of isolation and disarmament. There was nothing to deter Hitler and the Japanese militarists from implementing their more sanguine dreams of world conquest. When you compare the cost of what happened to the cost of maintaining an adequate deterrent, you can see how dearly we paid for our supineness.

Certainly the reduction armaments is desirable; they put a heavy cost into the price of everything we buy. But as long as other and less benign nations are arming to the teeth, we can't afford to hand them a superiority that could tempt them to aggression. Our own arms and a determination to use them if necessary are an indispensable and proven part of the price we must pay for peace and honor in the family of the earth.

A flourishing international trade on equitable terms means more jobs and markets at home. A strong and respected position in the world community will insure these terms to be equitable and help maintain a world peace in which both trade and the spiritual and cultural values that make life worth living will continue to flourish.

Any foreign policy that would surrender a parity in national strength without reciprocity is incredibly naive; it would invite national impotence and ultimately international disaster.

Enthusiastic Program Concludes Church of Christ VBS

A crowd of approximately 150 students, parents and friends heard the "special bell", a well-worn copper-colored cowbell, rung by several Bible school students Friday night for the last time in the 1972 Vacation Bible School at the Rising Star Church of Christ.

The unmelodic bell was used through the school to open and close the assemblies and classes and was a favorite of the students who vied to ring it each day. The crowd had gathered Friday night for an enthusiastic and well planned closing program for the school.

Average daily attendance in the five day school had been 89, the highest attendance in several years. Motion pictures of the Bible school taken earlier in the week were shown and a program was presented in which several classes participated. Several special awards were made and certificates were presented to the students, after which refreshments were served and the classrooms were opened for inspection.

Marissa Polk won a red Bible for being the all-around outstanding Bible school student. Winning small New Testaments for being selected honor students were Sybrina Killion, Brad Fortune, Toby White, Dona McCanlies, Jackie Jenkins, and Danette Collier.

Director of the school was James Haney, and teaching various classes were Vellita Aaron, Belinda West, Lyn Haney, Jennine Childers, Cherry Lee, Arla Hill, Vonda White, Marguerite Alford, Jimmie Claborn, Gladys Carter, Irma Hudnall, James Haney and Oleta Seale.

Secretary of the school was Mary Clark, and LaVern Carroll and Edith Bibb served as department supervisors.

Lyn Haney was chairman of the refreshment committee which included Willie Hill, Oleta Seale, Opal Boyd, Sula Harris, Nora Harris, Kate Cooper, Pate Goss, Rada King, Helen Jackson, Irene Mayfield, and Mildred Hounsel.

Excited Kids Invade Baylor University

By Debbie Nunnally

The 1972 Texas Farm Bureau Citizenship Seminar I attended in Waco last week was a very enjoyable and informative experience. Of the approximately four hundred and fifty students attending, many were sponsored by their local county Farm Bureaus.

On Tuesday, July 18, Baylor University was invaded by eleven busloads of excited kids. Registration began at three p.m., after which we were assigned to our dorms. Dinner was served at 6:00 p.m. and the opening session began at 7:00. Orientation was conducted by Al Grauer, and Warren Newberry gave us many facts concerning our host, the Texas Farm Bureau.

Wednesday morning (at six o'clock, to be exact) our counselors were banging at our doors and doing their best to get everyone up for breakfast. By 8:15 we were in Waco Hall - a little sleepy, but ready for our first lecture.

Dr. Clifton Ganus, President of Harding College, delivered the first lecture entitled "Understanding and Preserving Our American Heritage". Dr. Ganus' lecture really made everyone there stop and think what a wonderful country America really is and how very privileged we are to live here. He gave two more lectures - "Moral Foundation of Freedom" and "The Pyramid of Freedom". The second speech might be summed up like this: "America is great because she is good; but when America ceases to be good, she ceases to be great". The third one compared the many rights we have in America to those that people behind the "iron curtain" do not have.

Classes were usually over by 4:00. Having our choice of swimming, tennis, or bowling, we were given about two hours for recreation. Then we ate dinner and heard our last lecture of the day. As you can see, nearly every minute was full.

Thursday Jerry Kirk kept us all glued to our chairs while he related his experiences as an undercover agent for the FBI. He told us about his joining the SDS, The Black Panthers, and finally the Communist Party. Believe me he told us some pretty hairy facts about the Communists' stratagem of which many people are unfortunately unaware.

Dr. Kay, Assistant President of L.C.C., presented two talks including slides he had taken on his visits to Cuba and East Berlin. Again we were made aware of the freedom we too often take for granted.

Friday we heard another really super speaker. Tom

AVIATION CORNER

By Walter T. Le Blanc CFI

This week I am going to give you some tips on Mountain Flying which is encountered very little in this part of the country, but of which you will find a lot if you fly to the Eastern seaboard or to the West Coast. Much has been said about flying around mountains and most of it bad.

Someone may come up to you and say, "I was flying through this mountain pass this afternoon, and boy did I get into a bad downdraft, I must have lost 5,000 feet of altitude." Or, "I landed at this mountain resort last week and then when we took off, man I could barely clear the trees at the end of the runway." Another? "This field was 7,000 feet above sea level and as I was making my landing I thought my airspeed indicator was bad. It read 70 MPH, same speed as I always make my landings, but boy that ground was moving fast, about 85 or 90 so I slowed down until the airspeed read 50 MPH. Boy did I hit the ground hard, tore up my landing gear and bent my prop up. That investigator blamed me for the whole thing, said it was pilot error and lost of flying speed. What do they know, I've been flying over ten years now and I know more about flying than any of them ever heard of!"

Sound typical of maybe some pilots you know? How about

Sure we have our pilot's license, maybe a few hundred hours under our belts and if that guy who flew the mail route over the Rocky Mountains for the last ten years without trouble, why can't I do it? Sure you can...maybe with luck.

Now mountain flying has its many traps and pitfalls but it can be safe and without the hazards I mentioned earlier. Let's begin by stating, the higher you go, the thinner the air breathes. Ever climb a high mountain, and notice you have to breathe deeper. Pilots who fly for long periods above 10,000 feet have to breath in oxygen from a tank in their plane. Now for an airplane to fly it must have air passing over and under their wings to create lift. Now the higher this airplane flies, the less air there is to move over these wings, so in order to get lift it must go faster, but the airspeed indicator also not getting much air also reads slower. So now, our airspeed reads 125 miles per hour but actually we are going over the ground about 140 miles per hour. To go a step further, we pick up a tail wind of 20 miles per hour also. Now we are going over the ground at a speed of 160 miles per hour even though the air speed indicator still only reads 125 miles per hour. Another factor to enter now is Density Altitude. As you go higher, the air gets colder as well as thinner. I won't try to go to deep into this but the colder it gets the higher your altimeter reads so if your altimeter reads high, you are actually lower than your true altitude.

The pilot who landed at the 7000 foot field stated the ground was moving much faster than he thought it should be and thought his airspeed indicator was wrong. First, he was correct about his ground speed being faster, but wrong about his airspeed indicator. In order for the airplane to fly in the thinner air it had to go faster. Now normally, as he stated, he made his landings at 70 mph. Now at this altitude he should have used the same indicated airspeed even though the ground under him was moving much faster. That's why most mountain airports are pretty long. So when he slowed his airplane down he lost his flying speed and the airplane quit flying. Lesson 1, believe your airspeed indicator. Now about the guy at the mountain resort.

When he landed, he probably didn't have to much fuel on board, plus the fact he may have had luggage and passengers. We begin by stating, that the heavier the airplane is the longer it takes for it to reach flying speed on take off. A good example, your car with just yourself in it. Boy did you spin them 'ol' wheels at the stop sign when you gave her the gas. Now put 6 heavy adults in that car, fill the trunk with heavy baggage, and even hook up a house trailer to it. Now let's see you spin them 'ol' wheels. The same goes for an airplane. After he landed he filled the plane up with gas, maybe 40 gallons at 6 pounds per gallon, loaded another 50 pounds of souveneers. Now being a good sort, a buddy of his missed his last bus at this resort so he just squeezed him into the back seat plus his 70 pounds or so of baggage. Heck, there's plenty of space back there so why not use it, so now if you figure it out carefully, this plane was taking off with 530 pounds more then when it landed. Lucky for our friend he had a nice long runway, so he rev'd up the engine started down the runway and went and went and went. Finally not being able to stand the strain no longer, for those trees were coming up mighty fast at the end of the runway, he hauled back on the wheel, and the plane just having enough speed, flew and cleared the trees. A few hundred feet shorter and our hero would have been on the front pages of the next edition, plus his passengers and his buddy. Was the airplane or the airport at fault? No. Only the pilot. Lesson 2. He should have only put aboard enough gas to take him to another airport plus enough for a reserve supply, second those souveneers should have been mailed home, third his buddy and baggage should have never gotten on the plane. And fourth, our hero should have figured the weight carefully, computed the density altitude, consulted the aircraft handbook to find out lengths of runways needed at various altitudes and weights. By failing to do this he endangered his life as well as his passenger plus the complete loss of the aircraft.

Now what about the guy who lost 5000 feet while flying through a mountain pass. While this is possible, he may have been off about 4,500 feet. Sometimes 500 feet lost of altitude may seem like a lot when are close to the ground. As wind is blowing across mountains, wind will move down slope on one side and up the other. If our friend was on the downwind side, then he has no recourse but to go down also, unless he has an engine strong enough to combat this, which few planes have. So down he goes. So lesson 3. Find out which way the wind is blowing, so that you can fly near the mountain that the wind will now be climbing up. This will keep you in a constant updraft which is now working to your advantage plus the fact that is taking you to a safer altitude. In mountains, don't fight the drafts, turn to get out of them if necessary. Sail planes use the drafts in order to keep aloft, going from one updraft to the next, and staying out of downdrafts. Fly either to one side or the other of a mountain pass. This leaves you ample room to turn around in if necessary. Above all don't fly into a blind canyon. These canyons always seem to get closer together and higher, possibly to the point where you can't climb at a fast enough rate and you can't turn around. Mountains have few emergency places to land in, so if possible plan your route close to a highway or nearby airports. Check weather very carefully along your flight before take off and call FSS (Flight Service Stations) while enroute to check for unforeseen changes. File a flight plan, and follow it closely, but don't forget to close it upon landing. I'll tell you about flight plans later in another issue of The Rising Star. Above all let someone know where you are going at all times. Don't buzz down low to take a look at the wild life. Pilots who have flown in the mountain areas, have many years of experience behind them, and they don't take chances either. Stop at various airports enroute, to talk to pilots who have flown into the area that you are going. If you still seem unsure of yourself, then by all means don't go. Get check rides with instructors on mountain flying. The few dollars you spend this way may well be a life saver in the end. I can't ride beside you to tell you not to do this or that, so all I can say is let your common sense guide you. As I said before, get a check out on mountain flying and read every book you can about the mountains and how to fly them properly. I can only hope that these few tips will make you realize that mountain flying can be safe, and the only one who can make it safe, is you. Happy Landings.

FROM OUR CHURCHES

Church of Christ Rising Star

With our enthusiastic Vacation Bible School behind us, a lot of our people looked a little tired Sunday - - tired but with a slight glow of countenance. That radiance, as subtle as it may be, comes from working hard for the Lord and seeing that work produce real fruit. Our daily average of 89 in attendance was the fruit, for they were all precious souls learning about Jesus.

Marissa Polk won a beautiful Revised Standard Version of the Bible, with a beautiful "strawberry red" cover. She was our outstanding VBS student and we were glad to present her with a nice Bible to aid her study. Seven other youngsters from various classes were selected as the honor students from their classes and presented with small RSV New Testaments. We were proud of each of these youngsters.

My wife Lyn worked hard as our kindergarten teacher and as chairman of the refreshment committee. She also helped in the pre-planning of the school, and much of its success was because of her tireless efforts. Adrian Jenkins is back in Hendrick Hospital, Abilene, after being home a short time. Both Laroe Jenkins and Jeannine Bailey are out of the hospitals and back at their homes. Others have been sick from virus - like ailments, but none seem to be serious.

Last Sunday morning we had 110 in Bible classes and 201 in worship. Several visitors were with us and a number of our members had returned from vacation trips.

It's easy for us to become anxious over the future or even worry about things of the past. Recently I came across a little poem by Abigail Cresson titled

"A Small Corner" that I want to share with you. Here it is: Tomorrow is not here, and yesterday, with all its sad mistakes, is far away; I think I shall be busy with today! The Bible tells us, "So then, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all men" (Gal. 6:10). This means work even at little things, even those things that are constructive but which are not known by most people. A lot of good can be done if we don't care about getting credit for it. In this way, each of us makes this a better world.

Twelve young people and their sponsors are attending the 1972 Youth Congress at the Heart of Texas Baptist Encampment this week. The group reported having a wonderful time and experience in the Lord. A great staff is on hand for the week with a lot of inspiring music, Bible teaching, and challenging messages. Young persons attending the camp from our church include: Deanna Walker, Sharon Wilson, Lorri Kelley, Taronna Chambers, Susan Walker, Kathy Wilson, Brenda Butler, Stony Smith, Randy Ware, Clark Smith, Russell Poynor, Chip McCarver, and James Steel. Sponsors attending on a 24-hour basis are Monte and Linda Mills, Jeannette Kelley, Emma Jean Steel, Ruth Smith, and Ronnie and Sharon Alford. The efforts of everyone who had a part in preparations for attending camp are certainly appreciated.

Our church extends deepest sympathy to the family of the Rev. Neal Greer of Clyde. Rev. Greer was a former pastor of

First Baptist Church, serving here about eight and one-half years in the late 1920's.

Our sick list includes Shannon Dale Dudley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dudley. The Dudley baby was to have surgery Tuesday morning in Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene.

Next Sunday night, young people that attended the Youth Congress will share some of their camp experiences.

Sunday was a wonderful day, as all days are wonderful, because the Lord made them. There were empty pews in church that should have been filled by members, and always we extend a welcome to friends and visitors to come worship with us.

Wedding bells have rung in the Ralph Kizer home since last news. Betty and Jackie Bibby were united in marriage. We wish them a happy future.

M.Y.F. met Sunday evening with Shirley and Jay Benson in their home. Twelve young persons were present. Clara Burkhead gave devotional on "How Thankful We Should Be". Mrs. Crawford and Mary Colcer served refreshments. Games of croquet were played. We need the support and cooperation of church, parents and children to have a program for our youth. Anything worth while is what we make it. We are small, but we can grow, if we will work together. Please won't each one help?

Rev. Harol Orr and family of Sterling City visited Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd Coker Wednesday. They were on their way home after spending a few days of their vacation at Lake Whitney.

Those we have heard were ill were: James Armstrong, Geneva Boben, and John Stock. Also Doris Mathis is in Hendricks Hospital Abilene, undergoing tests and X-rays. Surgery is scheduled for Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

Lucy Boase was seen having lunch with two young men Thursday - - Mike and David Smith.

Winnie Armstrong was pleased to have her son with her in church Sunday. W.S.C.S. met Monday morning at church.

Bible Baptist Church Rising Star

Bible Baptist Church received a special blessing last Sunday afternoon by going to Brownwood and hearing the testimonies of about fifty girls and a heart searching message by Bro. Lester Roloff.

The message was entitled "Fasten Your Seat Belts - - We're Headed For Turbulent Air". In it we heard how we have lost a generation of young people to the TV, Rock Music and Dope, because the American home has left out the Bible and the Family Altar.

The girls testimonies were evidence of the truth of the message as they related how they had gone into the depths of sin. Most of them had been on dope and many had been in mental institutions and nearly all had a criminal record at the age of twelve or thirteen. They came from all churches and denominations.

But they testified to the grace of God as they told how Jesus saved them and changed their life and how they are happy serving him. They are just a few of the many in the five homes of the Roloff Enterprises.

When Bro. Roloff is asked about his homes and what kind of therapy, they use and the number of Psychologists, his answer is "All we use is the preaching and teaching of the Bible" (King James Version)

Bro. Roloff and the girls can be heard over KEAN Brownwood radio station at 6:00 p.m. each day.

We invite you to come to our services where you can meet with the Lord.

Saul Pullman Reports On National Convention

By ORA LEE WOODS

Saul Pullman expressed real appreciation to the Eastland County delegates who supported his nomination and election as a delegate to the National Democratic Convention which met in Miami Beach, Florida the week of July 10. Since this was his first national convention, he found the entire experience very worthwhile and a quickie education in practical politics. On the whole the proceedings were more orderly than the Chicago convention in 1968, but every delegate felt free to speak on any question that came up on the floor.

until the wee hours of the next morning. Sack time was from 3 a.m. (at the earliest) until noon when things had to start moving to get to the daily state caucus by 3 o'clock.

Most of the delegates were of the opinion that the party platform was not the place to air positions concerning social reforms such as a guaranteed annual income, recognition and representation of gay organizations, regulation of marijuana, and therefore these measures were voted down and rejected as planks in the 1972 Democratic platform. The part of the platform that had to do with bringing the boys home from Vietnam within three months after inauguration sounded good to the delegates and the young people held McGovern to this position. Mr. Pullman found the youth at the convention well informed and fully aware of what they wanted and very capable of using political means of getting it. They dressed un-conventionally for the most part, but were clean, courteous, and very interested. In discussions with groups of them Mr. Pullman was favorably impressed and came away with the distinct impression that the young vote would determine the outcome of the election. Those who were there were far from apathetic.

Concerning security: All parcels were searched and sealed, and all delegates were identified and marked by a hand stamp as they entered the convention hall. This being done they had free access to and from the hall and free movement within the hall. There were no extra precautions taken when Wallace made his platform appearance, and none were needed.

The big job between now and November is to unify the party from the grass roots up. Mr. Pullman thinks that Democrats will carry Texas at the local and state levels, but he foresees that Texas will go for Nixon and Tower on the national ticket. Texas is very conservative politically and cannot quite stomach McGovern and all his apparently radical positions at this time. However, personally Mr. Pullman says he will support the Democratic ticket all the way, and that by 1976 the state and the nation will be carried by the Democratic party again.

From Higginbothams

"To Market, to Market, to buy..." what? Wow! If you could only see what all there is to choose from! And the furniture, hardware and gifts merchants must choose. They must choose. They must choose the items that will sell to the customers that shop at their stores. It is something like going through a cafeteria line for someone you have just met; you know the person but you can't be absolutely sure that you are choosing the exact foods that will meet his desires and make him truly happy. But you try.

What is Market, anyway? You hear the word all the time in advertisements of Market Specials, New Goods Fresh From Market, etc. But most people do not get to see Market firsthand. You must be a buyer for a retail store in order to pass through those swinging doors and into the confusing and fascinating labyrinth of showrooms.

The Dallas Market consists of three huge buildings, the Trade Mart, the Home Furnishings Mart, and Market Hall, and one shopping center called the Decorative Center. The Trade Mart is a 1,028,000 square foot, four - story building which houses showrooms for 2,500 lines of furniture, floor coverings, curtains and draperies, lamps, gifts, accessories, china, silver, glassware, housewares, appliances, costume jewelry, and toys.

The Home Furnishings Mart is a 438,000 square foot, two - story building with 300 furniture manufacturers represented in its showrooms. Market Hall is a one - story building petitioned off for 207 exhibitors. And the Decorative Center as 145,000 square feet under roof in multi one - story buildings. 263 manufacturers of fine home furnishings are represented there.

As you can well imagine, "the most important tool one can take to Market is a pair of extremely comfortable walking shoes! Other tools include an alert mind, a huge note pad, a pen with a new ink cartridge, some purchase orders, a list of specific items customers have asked you to find for them, and all of the knowledge and understanding you can muster about the people in your area and their likes and dislikes.

It's a job, but it's a pleasure too. Your Higginbothams buyers appreciate your comments. It makes the job easier and they can make you happier!

'Tune' Tires First To Save Time For Summer Fun

Motorists' chances of truly enjoying the lyrical "lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer" are a lot better if they bone up on warm weather tire care.

These maintenance and safety tips to drivers preparing for summer vacation trips or, traditionally, just more time on the open road:

-- Make sure you have enough tread on your tires to last on long trips. If you're near the minimum safe tread depth of 1/16 inch in two or more grooves you may want to make replacements before you take off for isolated areas.

-- If you buy any new tires remember the law requires the seller to register them if they were made after May 22, 1971. In the unlikely event a recall is necessary because of possible safety defects the manufacturer will notify you directly.

-- Check for proper inflation when tires are "cold", before starting out. Follow the car manufacturer's recommendations in your owner's manual, or posted in the glove compartment or affixed to a door pillar. Add up to four pounds of air per tire for long periods of highway driving at high speeds, but never exceed the maximum pounds per square inch (example: 32 p.s.i. max.) marked on the sidewalls.

-- Use your own air pressure gauge if possible. Studies have shown station air towers are often inaccurate up to plus or minus four pounds per square inch.

-- Vacation trips often mean heavy loads. Make sure the weight is distributed as evenly as possible, including weight in any towed vehicle. Check your owner's manual or a tire dealer for the maximum load limits of your tires.

-- Driving on snow tires for any prolonged period in warm weather is poor economy. Abnormally high heat buildup in these thicker tires can wear down the tread faster than in regular tires. It may also cause sudden disablement.

-- When the rain comes, beware of skidding on "summer ice". Water mixes with oil and gas films already on the road to form a slick surface. The risk of losing control is five to ten times more likely on wet pavement.

-- Check front end alignment frequently, especially if you notice uneven tread wear or "pulling" to one side while driving. Back roads or a few solid bumps on any surface can throw alignment out, even if it was recently adjusted.

-- Check for debris such as stones and glass embedded in the tread and in the grooves before starting out.

-- Rotate your tires according to the recommendations in the owner's manual. If you notice abnormal tread wear or seem to be getting a bad ride, this is a good time to have your tires balanced.

-- Let experts check your tires for proper inflation, cuts or other damage. You'll like the folks at

National Farm Safety Week, 1972

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

The Nation's unparalleled technological advances have given farmers and ranchers the ability to produce far more, with far less drudgery and uncertainty, than their forbears. This technology, combined with the skill and energy of our farmers and ranchers, has made possible a plentiful supply of high quality agricultural products, thus enabling us to make great strides in the battle against hunger.

Unfortunately, however, the implements of modern technology have also increased the risk of accidents to our farmers and ranchers. Each year thousands are injured or lose their lives in agricultural accidents or in mishaps on public roads, in homes, or in recreational activities. The dollar cost of these accidents exceeds $2 billion annually, but the price in terms of pain and anguish and disruption of family life is immeasurable.

This drain on the human and economic resources of the agricultural community and the Nation can be reduced if our rural people, acting individually and in concert, take a decisive stand for safety. Many accidents can be prevented by eliminating hazards and using protective equipment at work, by defensive driving, and by general safe practices at home and during recreation.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate the week beginning July 25, 1972, as National Farm Safety Week. I urge all persons engaged in agriculture and all those allied with agriculture to take appropriate measures to reduce the number and severity of accidents. Let us strive to bring the technology of safety to agriculture as successfully as we have brought to it the technology of production.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this seventh day of March, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-two, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-sixth.
