Mrs. Marion McDonald, of Houston, daughter of Mrs. E. F. Bucy of Rising Star, brought with her on a visit here last week a copy of the Houston Chronicle of April 15 with a column on lovely place names in Texas.

"Is there a state in the Union," wrote the columnist, "which has a town with a prettier name than Rising Star, in Eastland County? We won't believe it."

"The descriptive names on the Texas map call to mind a parade of beautiful spots. Oh, sure, not all of the towns themselves live up to the names given them by their founders. Some of them, perhaps, never were quite as delightful as they appeared to the first comers."

These people, says the Chronicle writer, "who came early to our state were often rude and crude. They had to be tough of mind and body to cope with

Rebekah Lodge Host to State President Here

The Rising Star Rebekah Lodge was host to a district meeting on Thursday night in the Rising Star High School gymnasium to welcome Mrs. Sadie Patterson of Jacksboro, the state president of the Rebekah Assembly of Texas on her official visit. Mrs. Patterson was accompanied by the assembly warden, Mrs. Leona Shepherd of Denton.

Also present was Mrs. Pauline Ragsdale of Coleman, a past state president.

Mrs. Patterson was presented a yellow rose corsage, as her chosen flower is the yellow rose, and her theme for her term in office is "Take Time for Others." She has a very clever emblem of a clock which is set at the hour of 4 o'clock to indicate that she has four well chosen projects to accomplish during her year in office. The projects include: (1) improvement of the homes at Ennis and Corsicana for the orphans and the old folks; (2) to have birthday parties at both homes sponsored by the various districts; (3) to sponsor scholarship fund; (4) to sponsor Nurse's scholarship.

Mrs. Patterson wore a blue-green lace dress over satin with blue shoes and tiny yellow rose ear clips to carry out her chosen flower.

The meeting place was decorated throughout in the yellow rose theme in her honor. The table for refreshments was laid in pink and white and lemonade and pink frosted cake squares were served to the members of visiting lodges from Coleman, Goldthwaite, Bangs, Comanche, Brownwood, and to the members of the Rising Star lodge.

Mrs. Maude Spain of the Brownwood lodge served as musician for the occasion.—Norma Crawford, Lodge Reporter.

Sister of Mrs. Busbee Dies at Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS.—Funeral services for Miss Berta Wilson, 84, were held at 2 p.m. Monday from the Owens & Brumley Funeral Home chapel. Dr. James H. Landes, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated. Burial was in the Riverside Cemetery.

A resident of Wichita Falls, living at 1304 Polk Street, for the last three years, Miss Wilson died at 5:45 a.m. Saturday morning at a Wichita Falls hospital.

A retired music teacher, Miss Wilson was born Dec. 1, 1876 at Alabama. She was a former resident of San Angelo before moving to Wichita Falls.

Survivors include six sisters, Mrs. Noble Gray and Mrs. Ollie Niel, both of Wichita Falls, Mrs. Mattie Bills and Mrs. Ola Briggs, both of San Francisco, Mrs. Frances Jensen of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Sophie Jane Busbee of Rising Star, Tex.; one brother, Henry Wilson of San Angelo.

a raw new land and its hostile inhabitants. But most of them were homeseekers rather than adventurers, and besides hope and ambition they brought with them a love for the land, and imagination."

Throughout Eastland County there is air of pessimism. It is true of other rural areas, particularly of those with oil boom memories, which have been caught in a steady drift to urbanization without any clear idea of what to turn to replace lost resources and prosperity.

Faced with declining population and income many of our people have become dispirited. The other day, in one of our communities hard hit by an industrial reorganization, a citizen remarked, "We have no leaders big enough and interested enough to rally our communities to imaginative effort. Those who could are gone, or have become too old and disinterested."

Perhaps we lack leadership because our people have not demanded leadership. Perhaps as a people we have "tired blood", grown too old and too much occupied with our failures and disappointments, too concerned with justifying what we are, to be eager to attempt what we had hoped of becoming.

Perhaps we are simply not big enough for the problems and challenges of our changing day, as our forefathers were big enough and tough enough and imaginative enough for the challenges and opportunities of a frontier. Where once they battled to develop resources perhaps we are content to fight over what is left, inhospitable to new ideas and interests, afraid of competition and the challenge of measuring what we are against accomplishments and standards that could be stimulating and healthful. Perhaps we have lost both the imagination to see new opportunities and the courage to seize them.

Meanwhile our greatest resource—our youth—is being drained away in a process of social reorganization which is robbing us of virtue at both extremes. At one we are losing a spirit of imaginative adventure and the character building influences which arise from close contact with the soil, the ultimate basis of all civilization. At the other a warm human spirit is being lost in an armour of sophistication, in the casual elegances and enameled eggs of an urbanized existence. From the latter spring our essential ideals, out of the former the will to realize them. Those two human resources were the real endowment of the pioneer character.

Long ago old Abe Lincoln said in one of those masterful expressions of human hope that this country needed a new birth of freedom. With equal, perhaps even greater emphasis, we can say that what it needs today is a new birth of the pioneering spirit—the spirit to face things as they are and to do the work that needs to be done with the tools that lie under our hands.

Brother of R. M. And Gus Earp Dies

Clarence Earp, 74, brother of R. M. and Gus Earp of this city, died at his home in Pueblo, Colo., Wednesday of last week and was buried the following Saturday, August 13, at Pueblo. Death was attributed to a heart attack which he suffered shortly after he had put his daughter, Miss Bess Earp, an exchange teacher to Italy, on the train to leave for her foreign post. He died within a few moments of the attack. The daughter postponed her trip to attend the funeral.

He is survived by his wife, three sons and the daughter. R. M. Earp attended the services. Gus, who lives at Okra, was unable to attend.

Clarence was a member of the 1904 football team at Rising Star high school. He was also a student at the

2.8 Inches Are Recorded by City Gauge Over Week

A total of 2.8 inches of rains, as recorded by the City gauge, and which appeared to be general over a large part of the Rising Star area, brought broad smiles to the faces of farmers and businessmen alike during the week just past.

The rains, breaking a long summer dry spell which threatened to cause another peanut crop failure and retarded feed crops and pastures, fell most heavily in the sections north, east and south of Rising Star. The sections west, northwest and southwest, received lighter showers as a rule, according to reports here.

The August moisture, coming at a most opportune time, brought new vigor and promise to the peanut crops, revived pastures and insured a better crop of late feed.

In many sections farmers were looking forward to the best peanut yield since 1950. With further showers in late August or early September, observers said, the yield would be heavy in many places.

The showers began with light precipitation Wednesday of last week, when .3 of an inch was recorded. The heaviest rainfall came Thursday, August 11, when the gauge recorded 2.25 inches. A quarter of an inch of rain fell Tuesday morning of this week.

There was a promise of more rains as skies remained clouded and a cool, humid air covered the area.

Communities Ask Rising Star CofC For Project Aid

The Chamber of Commerce at its noon meeting at the Elite Cafe Tuesday heard a request from citizens in the Proctor, Milburn and neighboring communities that the organization do what it can to push designation and construction of a farm-to-market road from Criswell Store to a junction with the Pioneer-Nimrod road.

The group was told that plans for the road were already well advanced, and it invited Commissioner Bob Carter to be a guest at the next meeting and explain the status of the project on which the county and highway department have been working.

A petition signed by 30 or more residents of the Okra and Long Branch communities asked that the CofC name a committee to help them in their efforts to secure direct telephone connections with Rising Star, their trading point. On motion, Vice-President Bill Dennard, who presided, named three of the members to employ an attorney on their behalf. It was pointed out that only two or three of the petitioners now had telephones.

Quarterback Club to Be Organized Here

All who are interested in the organization of the Quarterback club to support Rising Star school athletics, were invited to meet at the Elite Cafe Wednesday night of next week at 9 o'clock.

IT'S THE LAW IN TEXAS

CLEVER ADS

Like some newspaper columns, newspaper advertising can be copyrighted.

In 1903 Justice Oliver W. Holmes declared that advertisements could be owned and copyrighted even without having any special literary or artistic merit.

An author, business, or agency that puts work and skill into an ad can protect it as a rule with a "general notice of copyright."

One publisher made special road maps for an advertiser, and got them copyrighted; the court held that the advertiser couldn't sell these maps to a rival publisher.

In another case a clever picture ran in one ad. The court told a competitor he couldn't use the same picture for his ad.

You cannot copyright some things such as a list of names publicly available or an ad so common it lacks uniqueness.

Most ads are "owned" by the advertiser, not the newspaper or magazine.

Ads which are run to get business may also create property right in a "trade name" of great value to a business even without a copyright.

Besides, a business or product name itself may often be copyrighted. Now and then, unfortunately, a company name may become so well known that without proper protection it can lapse into the common language and lose its character as property.

Trying to gain from someone else's ads may well get you in trouble.

It can be a crime for anyone to violate a copyright on purpose, and he may have to pay money damages covering all his profits. And then some.

False or misleading ads can cause loss or suspension of certain business licenses; the post office sometimes gets rough if someone uses the mail to advertise fraudulently.

Of course ads aim to brag about one's product—a fact well known to the public. Therefore, within limits, some "puffing" is allowed. But the Federal Trade Commission often stops advertisements if they are false or misleading, especially as to factual claims.

LETTERS TO THE Editor

Dear Editor:

The apostle of the GOP, Americans for Constitutional Action, blasts the GOP platform for subscribing that "big, powerful, centralized government can be paternalistic, coercive and moral—all at the same time."

Then, the GOP nominee urges Congress to strengthen civil rights, enact medical care for the aged and increase foreign aid!

Meanwhile the Texas GOP, by this season usually campaigning "I vote for the man," are inferentially silent.

Without platform or motto to embrace, Texas' GOP acts frustrated.

We Democrats offer a Texan candidate. The GOP never has.

So cheer up, you Texas GOP. Join "The Texan's Ticket"—back Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. If you can't vote Wall Street this time, you can at least vote Texas.

"I GIVE YOU TEXAS"

By Boyce House

To seek or not to seek the gold of Pete the Hermit? That was my problem.

Stationed in Fort Worth was a detachment of Texas Rangers and the captain was a friend of mine. So I consulted him and he said, "There's one way to find out if there really is a treasure or if it is a practical joke and that is to go out there. If you want to go, I'll go with you—and if anybody springs anything, we will see who gets surprised."

But I was working that day and then we had a spell of unfavorable weather; then the paper sent me out of town to cover the campaign of a candidate for governor and the whole matter faded from my mind.

About two years later, in clearing out my desk at the office, I came across the bulky envelope with the letter and the map. I had never received a second communication and surely I would have if the story was genuine for the man in Philadelphia would have grown impatient and would have written to urge me to act or ask when I was going to send him his two-thirds of the $13,000.

I walked to the city editor's desk in the center of the big news room the better to view the logical suspects, my colleagues. My eye (actually, both eyes, but that's the way writers write) fell upon a fellow reporter, E. D. Alexander, a solemn-faced individual who was known for his practical jokes. (Incidentally, we worked side-by-side as his desk was next to mine.) Marching to his place where he was pounding away on the typewriter, I slammed the letter down and demanded, "What do you know about this?"

He looked up and said, "So you did get it!"

For two years he had wondered whether it had even been received—but he could not ask without thereby revealing that he was the perpetrator or at least that he knew about it. We had a laugh and I told the others in the office and they were amused, too.

But that was not quite the end of the story of the treasure. The office boy ("copy boy" is the newspaper term) asked for the letter and the map as souvenirs. He took them home and one day, while he was at work, an older brother came across the documents. He did not know anything about the story and was so fascinated by the details that he went out to Mary's Creek and dug all day for the $13,000 in gold (which had never existed), belonging to the late Pete, Ranger's hermit (who had never existed, either). When the "copy boy" told him the facts that night, the man was very mad. And he is my treasure experience.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Brantley of Monahans were guests Sunday, August 7, of Mrs. Brantley's brother, Ira Hudler, and Mrs. Hudler.

Mrs. Mary Pierce of Oklahoma City was here Friday to visit her sister-in-law, Mrs. Wilburn, and Mr. Scott.

FARM PROFIT

Cattle Pay For Summer Shade

You can slip into this "piggy bank" as much as $5 per head extra profit by giving your cattle good shade and fresh cool water during hot summer days. This estimate is according to research conducted by the Kansas Experiment Station. Their experiments found that heifers fed in shaded lots outgained heifers without shade by .16 pounds a day for each animal.

In California, research test proved that steers in shaded lots gained 2.28 pounds a day, but steers in open corrals gained only 1.63 pounds a day.

The heifers shade ate 640 pounds of grain sorghum, 48 pounds of soybean meal, and 298 pounds of alfalfa hay to gain 100 pounds. Heifers in the sun ate 663 pounds, 52 pounds, and 332 pounds respectively to gain the same amount.

As a result, it cost $3.27 an animal less to feed heifers in the shade than heifers in the sun. The extra 22-pound gain during the 140-day feeding trial yielded still greater profit.

Massey-Ferguson research found out that cattle drink less warm water than they need to use their feed efficiently. That's why steers provided with plenty of cool, fresh water gain one-fourth to one-half pound more a day than they gain when they must drink warm water left standing in the sun.

It also pays to locate water tanks under shade trees or in any cool, shaded spot which cattle can reach easily.

Rising Star Man Advanced in Reserve

Six members of U. S. Naval Reserve Electronics Division 8-21 here have been advanced in rating from Seaman Recruit to Seaman Apprentice, according to an announcement by Lieut. James A. Hallum, Jr., commanding officer.

Naval reservists who were promoted were W. W. Barnes, and C. S. Bruce, Jr., both of Brownwood; R. A. Needham, Cross Plains; F. B. Pringle, Rising Star; Bobby G. Edgar, Blanket, and T. D. Jacobs, formerly of Brownwood and now of Fort Worth.

Lieut. Hallum pointed out that naval reservists have the same opportunities for advancement in rating and pay grade that the regulars have. He added that young men who join the reserve and participate in weekly drills are paid for their attendance and enjoy the benefits of longevity and higher pay grades when they report for active military duty.

The Brownwood reserve unit, which offers training in the field of electronics to new recruits, has pay billets open for young men under 18 and a half years of age and veterans of recent military duty. The navy office is open week days and Monday nights in the naval reserve building on Howard Payne College campus.

Mrs. Lionel Paquette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Sellers, and her two children, Martha and Stephen, are here from Tucson, Ariz., for a visit with her parents.

1,200 Students Are Expected at HPC This Fall

BROWNWOOD. —Enrollment at Howard Payne College is expected to hit 1,200 this fall—an increase of approximately 100 students over last fall's total of 1,095—Dr. Guy D. Newman, HPC president, has predicted.

Dr. Newman's prediction was based on pre-registration requests in the office of Mrs. B. O. Herring, registrar, and room reservations for campus residence halls.

For the first time since its opening in 1955, Veda Hodge Hall will be full this fall, according to a report from Mrs. E. N. Elsey, dean of women.

This week, Mrs. Elsey had 265 reservations from women students. Veda Hodge Hall has a student capacity of 254 residents.

"This means that we already have 11 reservations on the waiting list for Veda Hodge Hall," Mrs. Elsey pointed out.

"We will find places for a women students," Mrs. Elsey said, "however, women who still need rooms on campus for this fall should make their reservations immediately so provisions can be made for them."

The applications for Veda Hodge Hall this year are more than double the number for the hall's opening fall of 1955, when 124 women students lived there. Residents in Veda Hodge Hall last fall totaled 204.

Room reservations also are coming in fast for the men's residence halls at Howard Payne. Thomas Taylor Hall already has been filled, and Howard Payne Hall is well past the half-way mark in advance reservations.

Registration week activities at Howard Payne for this fall will get underway September 5.

Miss Mary Palmer has recently visited her friend, Mrs. Ethel Young in Abilene.

Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Joyce visited relatives in Abilene on Sunday, August 14.

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

A poison control center (PCC) is a place which helps family doctors keep patients from becoming statistics.

Each year a hundred or so Texans—mostly children—become statistics by virtue of becoming accidentally poisoned. In the last four years, State Health Department record keepers have added 364 new names to the grim list of deaths by poisoning. PCC's undoubtedly have kept the list from being much longer.

Fifteen PCC's now operate in Texas under local physicians' guidance. The most recent one was set up in San Antonio July 18. Others are located in Abilene, Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Fort Worth, Galveston, Grand Prairie, Harlingen, Houston, Tyler, Wichita Falls, Odessa, San Angelo and Waco.

Hugh D. McGaw, a State Health Department occupational health engineer who works intimately with them, describes a PCC's round-the-clock operation like this:

"A curious young boy eats some of his mother's cosmetics and it makes him sick. His mother calls the doctor, but he doesn't know what toxic ingredients the cosmetic had in it. So he calls the nearest PCC, reports the brand name. A quick check of an index card file reveals the toxic substance and the antidote."

McGaw says that PCC's in Texas major cities handle some 150-250 emergency calls every month. An the volume is increasing all the time, with more and more potentially hazardous products being marketed each year.

"Poison control centers are not intended to answer queries directly from the public," says McGaw. "They're set up to serve the physician who serves the patient. This is the way they can be of most benefit."

Even if the ingested product turns out to be harmless, the PCC has still saved the patient the discomfort of having his stomach pumped, McGaw points out.

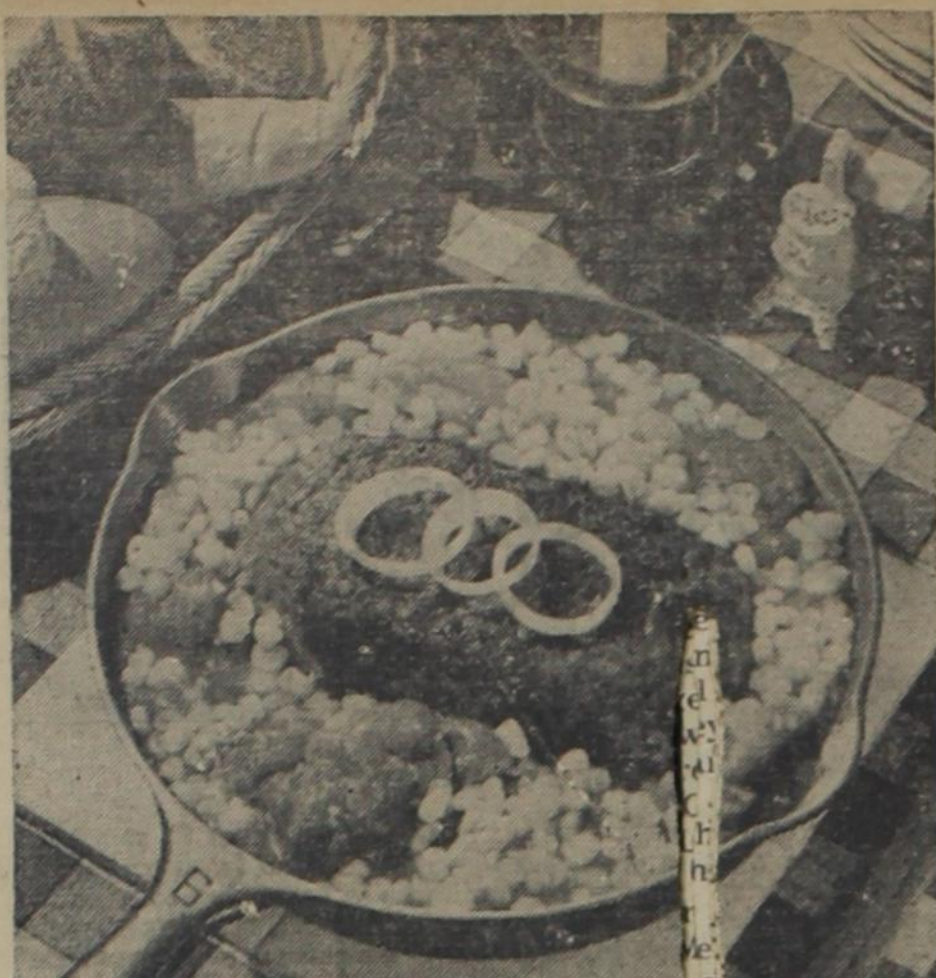

He and other state health officials would like to see centers in the Panhandle, on the Southwestern border, and in far West Texas so all areas of Texas would be within an economical telephone call of a center.

The Department's division of occupational health supplies a file of information on poisonous materials and their antidotes after the center has been established. (A weekly feature of the Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.)

Safety Expert Urges Caution On Cook-Outs

COLLEGE STATION. — Nothing smells better on a soft summer evening than a steak or chicken cooking over a charcoal fire. A burning house or a burned hand adds nothing to the pleasure derived from a cookout, however. W. L. Ulich, extension agricultural engineer, says that a few precautions will help keep accidents from marring an otherwise pleasant occasion.

One of the first safety measures to take, says Ulich, is to set up your grill or dig the barbecue pit in an open place, well away from buildings, trees, dry leaves, grass or brush.

If you use a charcoal-lighting fluid, be sure to use it according to directions. Soak a little into the briquets, before starting the fire. Never use gasoline, paint thinner or any other highly combustible fluid to kindle charcoal, Ulich warns.

The safest way to kindle charcoal is to use dry, crumpled paper, or a light substance like excelsior, under the pile of charcoal. Simply light the paper as in starting an ordinary wood fire. It may take a little fanning to get the charcoal kindled, but when you see grey of whitish spots around the edge of the charcoal, it is kindled.

In 20 minutes or so it will be hot enough to grill.

Ulich suggests that the charcoal chef—and others who join in the cook-out—wear heavy, fireproofed gloves, both in building the fire and using it. He also suggests that cooking will be done more conveniently with long-handled forks, tongs, skewers, skillets and saucapans.

As a final suggestion, Ulich recommends having a pall of water handy so that you can douse the fire in an emergency or when leaving the picnic site.

When you have taken these precautions, sit back, relax, and enjoy that wonderful aroma of charcoal cookery.

Texas Stands Third in Number Of Tree Farms

COLLEGE STATION — Texas, with 1,339 certified Tree Farms, ranks third in the nation in the number of these farms, according to Bill Smith, extension forester. The latest count released by the American Forest Product Industries, Inc. showed Mississippi first and Alabama second.

A Tree Farm is a privately owned, tax-paying woodland dedicated to continuing growth of forest crops for man's use, Smith pointed out. He added that the words tree farm mean the owner is recognized for doing a good job of woodland management.

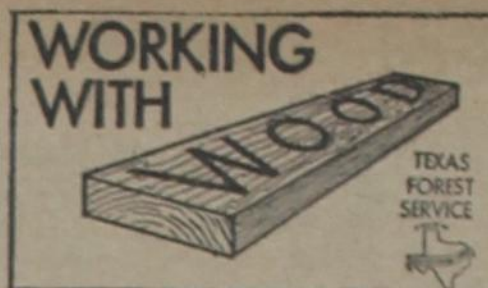

In terms of Tree Farm area, Texas ranks sixth with over 3,730,000 acres devoted to the production of timber and other forest crops, he said. The Lone Star State is headed by Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Washington, and Oregon.

There are still over 60,000 timberland owners on about 7,750,000 acres in the Pineywoods of East Texas who could improve their woodlands and become tree farmers. Most of these lands are growing less than one-third of the timber they are capable of producing, Smith stated.

When a tree farmer's lands are certified, they receive a certificate and large metal sign to mark the property from the sponsors of the program, the Texas Forest Industries Committee. In order to attain certification, timberland owners must do certain things to keep timber growth rate and quality high, and protect the land. These practices include protecting the woodlands from wild-fire, insects, disease, and destructive grazing; harvesting trees when mature or ready for thinning; and planting tree seedlings on idle acres.

Pineywoods landowners may contact county agents, Texas Forest Service district foresters, or foresters employed by the wood-using industry in East Texas for information on how they become members of the Texas Tree Farm Program, Smith said.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shults of Brownwood were visitors in Rising Star Sunday, August 14.

WOOD FOR FUEL

Almost everyone enjoys the cozy heat of a fireplace in winter and each of us prefers a certain kind of fuelwood for his fire.

General preferences of long standing frequently lead to misconceptions regarding wood, such as the notion that oak and other heavy hardwoods have a higher value than pine. Such is not the case. In fact, pound for pound, the wood of pine and other similar resinous species will generate more heat than the hardwoods. However, the heat from resinous woods produces a hot, quick fire which also consumes the wood and releases the heat quickly. As a result, it is difficult to maintain a uniform temperature when burning resinous woods, because the heat is intense at first and then quickly cools. The denser hardwoods longer to ignite and when burning, release their heat more slowly than pine. Long experience has taught us to start our fires with pine and to maintain them with hickory, oak, or similar hardwood species.

We Like to Talk About Abstracts
... because making abstracts has been our job for many years. And it's an interesting subject. Every day people come to us with their title problems. Some cases are tragic. Take the example of the couple who have spent their all for a home to find out later they have no title. Most title problems are simple and the abstract helps to make them simple. So before buying a real estate better talk to us about the title.
