Economic Survival Requires Action

If Eastland County and the cities in it are to prosper, according to Dr. Charles Barnes, we need to get more of the money we pay in taxes spent right here in the county, and we need to make our cities the most desirable in the area to reside in. We can get some of our tax money back by getting a state facility to locate in the county and that is what Project Hoos-Gow is all about, project director Dr. Barnes told the Eastland Rotary Club, a civic minded organization of business people who try to improve the community and world in which they live and encourage our young people.

With the exception of Eastland, our local cities are losing their populations at a rapid rate and property values are dropping right along with the loss. The County cconomy is hurting and if our cities are to survive, we must do something to turn the trend

Cisco, Eastland, Ranger, Gorman and Rising Star decline like Scranton, Pioneer, Desdemona and so many other towns in the county which once had large populations. As methods of travel improve, the smaller towns are dying out, and Eastland County could lose its cities unless we come up with something to keep them here. Project Hoos-Gow is a unified effort of Eastland County's cities and communities working together to bring money and jobs to the county. The money and jobs Money may be mailed to would be a benefit to every First State Bank, Rising city in the county, and even to Star, 76471, to be deposited in those in a forty mile radius. the Witt Reward Fund. The department was able to obtain an almost new truck for only $4,000 through the Rural Community Fire Protection (RCFP) program of the Texas Forest Service. The truck, along with several others, had been purchased by the state forestry agency. The forestry agency's fire control department, in turn, has made the trucks available at its cost to the state's VFDs.

The Rising Star VFD also received $1,250 in RCFP cost-sharing aid toward the purchase of its WEPS unit. Firefighters can vary the output of the unit from wet water to foam to meet the fire situation encountered.

Other VFDs can take advantage of the Service's RCFP cost-sharing program. Qualified VFDs can receive cost-sharing aid of 50 percent -- up to $4,000-toward truck purchases and up to $3,000 toward foamproducing Water Expansion Pump System (WEPS) units.

RCFP funds have assisted with the placement of over 1,500 trucks, WEPS units and other fire apparatus since 1973. In addition, several firefighter associations have obtained $5,000 in financial Plan your hand crafts and aid - plus designing, licensing and purchasing assistance - toward basic county-wide, high band raido communications systems. Rural firefighters have received training in wildland fire suppression and have taken advantage of discounts of around 30 percent on bunker gear purchased through the TFS RCFP Fire-Safe Fund.

For additional information about assistance available to rural firefighters, contact the Texas Forest Service, Fire Control Department, P.O. Box 310, Lufkin, Texas 75901, phone 409-639-8100. Thanks to two such contacts, Rising Star firefighters gained financial aid toward the purchase of a truck and WEPS unit.

Paul Hannemann from the Texas Forest Service presented the check for $1,250 to the Rising Star Rural Fire Department Saturday. He also gave a slide presentation on fighting wildfire and using the new WEPS unit, as well as demonstrating how to use the WEPS unit himself.

Present from Rising Star were Barbara Murphree, LaVerne Lee, Eulala Stover, Donnett Nall, L.T. Owen, Al Jones, Gene Lyons, Frank Agnew, Willie Vandivere, Jack Palmore, Mike Nall, Aubrey Lawrence, Doc Murphree, Charles Murphree, E.F. Agnew, John G. Lee, Carolyn Ratliff, Oliver West and W.E. Also present were representatives from Cisco and Carlton.

10 EXTRA TIPS FOR CUTTING OUT CALO-RIES AFTER THE HOLI-DAYS:

Eating to lose weight does not have to be a matter of munching on carrot sticks all day long. Here are some suggestions for lowering calorie intake without feeling deprived.

 Have a hamburger instead of a cheeseburger. Two slices of American cheese contain 210 calories.

 Drink one less can of soda a day or switch to dict soda. That will save almost 150 calorics.

 Bring a 100-caloric banana to the office so that when the urge for a sweet pick me up hits in mid-afternoon you won't buy a 200-300 caloric candy bar.

 If you must munch, munch on pretzels, a much less fatty snack than potato chips. The difference between pretzels and potato chips, in fact, can be as much as 100 calories an ounce.

 Buy cupcakes instead of a whole cake. A two-ounce chocolate cupcake has about 165 calories. A two-ounce slice of chocolate cake is an unsatisfying sliver, so you're bound to succumb to eating more.

 Go easy on tartar sauce. One less tablespoon means 70 fewer calories.

 To sweeten your French toast, spread a little cinnamon sugar over it rather than maple syrup. Sugar and maple syrup each have about 50 calories a tablespoon, but while sugar gets sprinkled, syrup is usually poured on thick.  Don't go to a restaurant ravenous. Eating is is an occasion to indulge, and you'll indulge a lot less if you're not overly hungry. Ordering your salad dressing

LITTLE LADY CATS

The Junior High Lady Cats gave the Lingleville Junior High Girls' Team a great challenge even though they fell short of a victory. The J.H. Lady Cats' offense scored nine points in the first quarter to put them ahead 9-8. The halftime score was RS 11, Lingleville 18. At the end of the third quarter, the score was RS 13, Lingleville 26. The final score of the game was RS 17, Lingleville 30.

The Lady Cats might not have won this game, but I thought all of the girls played a great game and took their loss as a learning experience. Especially comparing this game to the last game they played against Lingleville.

Governor Clements says that the state needs 13,000 additional prison beds, and subject to funding by the Legislature, that means that from six to ten prisons will probably be built in the near future.

In the past, Texas prisons have always been built in East Texas, where the state still has available land. But the prisoners come from all over the state and it is often a great ACP Signup - A signup for ACP cost-sharing will be held January 23 through February 3. The County Committee has determined that the establishment of permanent vegetative cover, critical area shaping, diversion terraces, water impoundment reservoirs, and reorganizing irrigation systems are of high priority during this signup.

Practices that are started prior to approval by the county committe are not eligible for cost-sharing.

Conservation Reserve Signup - The eighth signup for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) will be February 6 through 24. Applicants will submit bids stating the rental rate they would accept to convert their highly erodible cropland to permanent vegetative cover for 10 vears.

Land will be determined eligible if the land is highly hardship for the relatives of these prisoners, which the state hopes to rehabilitate before they are returned to Huntsville for release, to travel to East Texas to visit them. And besides, why should East Texas get more than its share of the state's tax money?

The new idea is to spread the prisons out over the state, with the prisoner closer to their relatives, and some of the state tax money returning to its source.

New prison units are under construction near Amarillo and Snyder in West Texas, but we are told that planners say that ideally a new prison unit should be located in North Central Texas about 100 miles west of Dallas-Ft. Worth Metroplex, which produces one-fourth of the state's prison population.

One hundred and fifty of the state's counties want one of the new prison units. Breckenridge has advertised their desire for a state facility and Comanche has shown some interest.

Project Hoos-Gow is seeking a 2,250 prisoner unit for Eastland County. Why? Because it would be the largest industry in Eastland County, employing 826 people with a monthly payroll of $1.6 million and a yearly payroll of $19.2 million. That is money and jobs, and it is steady, to turning, it is called an escape. site in a couple of weeks, says Some prisons, mostly in other states, once hired poorly paid "brutes," who were very physical with prisoners, and weren'talways desirable citizens in the community. Guards in the Texas Dept.

of Corrections are paid from $11,000 to $46,800 per year with wardens and professional employees sometimes paid much better. And a check with cities which have prison units reveals that prison employees often become local civic leaders and much of the "backbone" of the community. Hundreds of these state employees are certified police officers who will live in local cities, and who can help local law enforcement officers in a time of need or disaster.

Prison units are surrounded by two 12 ft. high fences, six guard towers, and about 300 acres of open land. If a prisoner should escape, his first concern is to get as far away from those hundreds of armed and certified officers, who might recognize him, as quickly as possible. And when you consider that only 25 per cent of the criminals in our communities are ever caught, and only two percent are ever sent to prison, and parolees regularly walk our streets, we should be more concerned about those on the "outside."

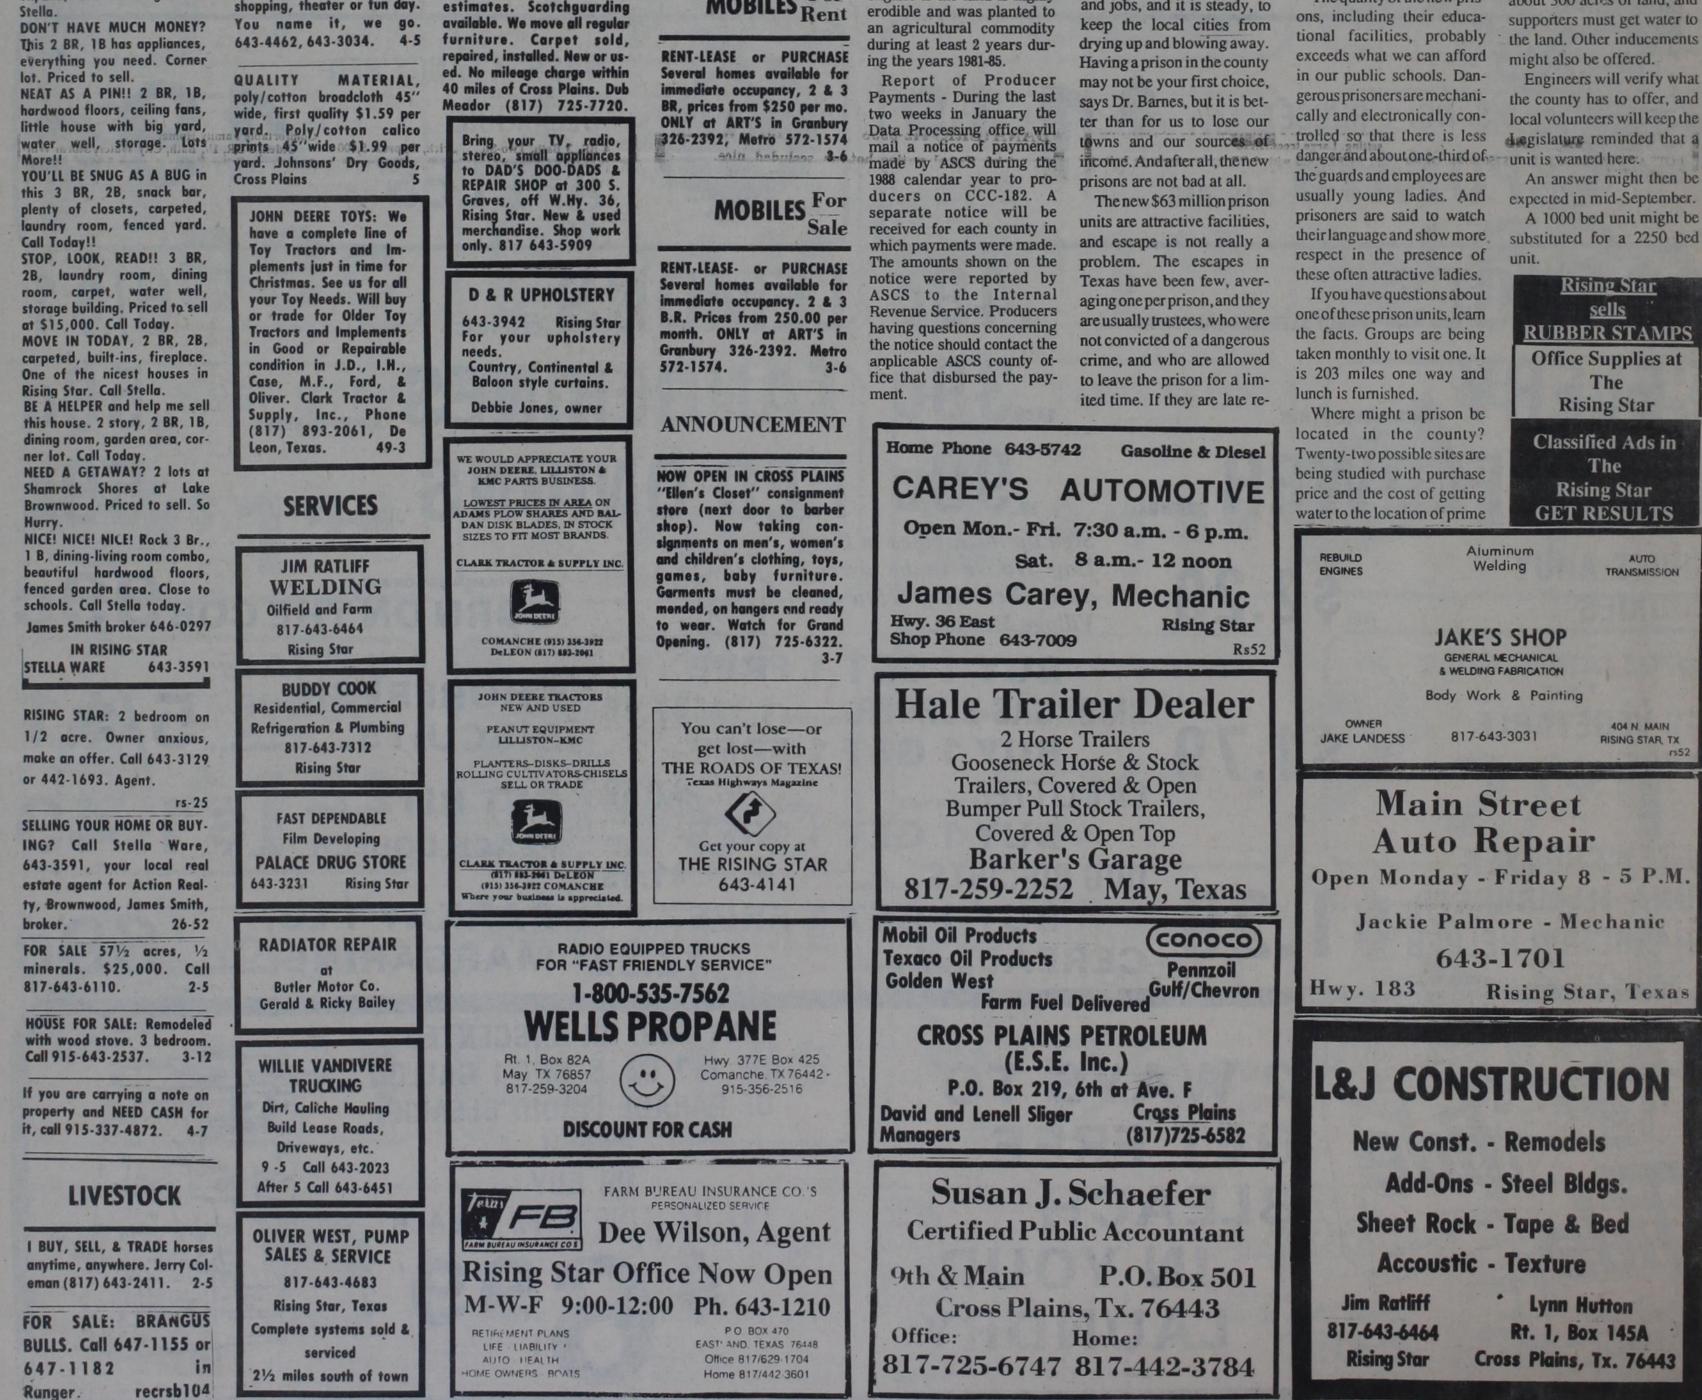

importance. Some of the land must be flat, and a central location in the county would be preferable. The organization should be able to select a Dr. Barnes.

Eastland County has much to offer that others in the area can't match. It has I-20 running through it, which is important if supplies must be trucked from and to Huntsville, and adequate water is available from local lakes and ground sources, though additional treatment facilities must be constructed whether a prison locates here or not. Peanuts, pecans, and fruit trees do well here and might be produced and processed by a unit for state prison usc.

It was found in other prison cities that some who opposed locating a prison there come to support it after about three ycars.

A prison located in central Eastland County could help Brownwood, Clyde, Breckenridge, Stephenville, Comanche, and all points in between. The two local junior colleges are assets to help draw the prison, and the prison could be a big help to them. Colleges in Stephenville, Brownwood, and Abilene could also benefit. We are told that Callahan County is already strongly support Eastland County's effort to acquire a prison unit.
