Kennedy Roberts of Caddo Mills stretches her arms as far as possible while Angela Cauble (far left) measures her arm span to qualify for raffle tickets provided by Behavioral Transitions, Sat. April 23, 2016, during the Aspasians Marketplace in the parking lot of Wilkerson-Sanders Stadium in Rockwall. Standing at right is Kennedy's mother Krystal Roberts. Owned by Angie and Ben Klutts, the business offers therapy for people with autism as an ABA Clinic. Proceeds from the art sales in the booth were donated to the J.R. Chilton YMCA Angel Camp. The free summer camp is scheduled for June 13 - July 29.

Thousands of shoppers enjoyed buying unique items from the 200+ vendors who participated in the event. Vendors showcased everything from jewelry and gifts to fine art, home decor, and trendy apparel. Visitors also savored delicious food from specialty food vendors and enjoyed the beautiful Spring weather.

The Aspasians organization, founded in 1972, is a group of 35 ladies who reside in Rockwall County and volunteer their time and talent to host Aspasians Marketplace twice yearly. They have raised and donated hundreds of thousands of dollars in scholarship monies, helping many high school seniors achieve their dreams of going to college.

Villarreal is sole finalist for RISD superintendent's seat

The Rockwall Independent School District Board of Trustees unanimously named John (J.J.) E. Villarreal, assistant superintendent of student services with the Carroll Independent School District, as its lone finalist for superintendent during a special board meeting on Monday, April 25.

"The board took into consideration the voice of the community, parents and staff in making our selection," Linda Mitchell Duran, board president, said in a news release. Villarreal has served in his current role since October 2011. In Carroll ISD, he serves as a leader for curriculum and instruction for one of the highest performing school districts in the state. He supervises 22 direct reports, which include principals, executive directors for technology, curriculum and instruction, special programs, athletics and coordinators in fine arts, counseling and accountability departments. Villarreal planned, organized and facilitated the district's recent strategic plan.

NCL honors 2016 graduating class

On April 2, the Lone Star Chapter of National Charity League honored members of the graduating class of 2016 for completion of the NCL experience and requirements along with their commitment to the organization and the community.

Highlights of the celebratory formal event at the Omni Dallas Hotel included individual presentation of each girl and her accomplishments, dinner and dancing, complete with the father-daughter waltz. Senior presentation is a time-honored tradition that serves as the finale of six years of learning and charitable endeavors.

"I was privileged to serve as the master of ceremonies honoring these beautiful young women and I continue to be amazed by them each year," said Dee Young, Lone Star Chapter president. "They have spent years serving our community and leading among peers and I look forward to seeing the difference they make in the next chapter of their lives."

NCL is a nonprofit organization comprised of mothers and daughters, with membership beginning when the girls are in seventh grade and continuing through their senior year in high school. Currently, there are 213 chapters and 58,000 members across the United States. The Lone Star Chapter was chartered in 1983 as the first chapter in the state of Texas and has grown to almost 350 members.

The mission of NCL is to foster mother-daughter relationships in a philanthropic organization committed to community service, leadership development and cultural experiences. The program facilitates sharing the joy of helping others, participation in meaningful activities and friendship, while growing together.

The young women of this class, along with their mothers, have collectively given more than 6,000 hours to Rockwall County philanthropies during their tenure, according to a NCL news release.

Members of the Lone Star Chapter of the National Charity League's 2016 graduating class, who were recognized on April 2, are pictured above. The young women of this class, along with their mothers, gave more than 6,000 hours of community service to Rockwall County during their NCL commitment.

On God's Word

by Timothy W. Burnett

Stand in true spiritual liberty ...

Understanding the difference between natural rights and true spiritual rights should serve as a check and balance for the hearts and actions of God's beloved saints and children.

In America, the cause of freedom can be quite passionate, with various ideas of what it means to be free. Yet, in the end, most people can be easily drawn into battles for political freedom and protection of natural rights.

Nearly 100 years after the English Civil War, the early American colonies established a new political system after driving the mighty British military away, with the help of France. With it came an obligation and tradition of the people to resist and rebel against their own abusive and tyrannical government. Of course, the standard did not protect people from Africa being taken by force and sold into slavery in America. But over time, even the slaves and many free people were making progress toward freedom, without the need of the American "civil" war.

This social thought of resistance and rebellion was passed down through generations. Even to this day, there exists a massive and silent number of people who are not afraid to question law enforcement officers, defend themselves in the courts, file criminal complaints against government officers for impairment of natural rights.

God's rightly divided word reveals a conflict between the rebel mind and His will.

This is a difficult topic to address because many Americans recognize that to keep this country and its principles of freedom and natural rights intact, it is necessary to take a stand and fight preferably in the courts.

Research of the Gospels and Epistles reveals that God never called His beloved saints to rebel against governments, including the same governments that persecuted them. Instead, we learn that the Christians that were dispersed during Roman-Jewish persecution, faithfully continued to spread the gospel of the living and moving Lord Jesus.

There are no accounts in Acts about the apostles teaching others to physically fight and rebel against the absolutely abusive and corrupt Roman government, or any other governments.

The question to ask is, if it's not in the scriptures, does this mean it's simply not God's will to fight for freedom? Answering this question might involve addressing the distinction between self-defense and warring against our own government or other governments.

The Acts refer to apostles Peter and Paul being imprisoned on different occasions. Peter was rescued by an angel and continued to proclaim the gospel against the command of the government officials. Paul utilized the Jewish and Roman judicial process on different occasions.

There was one case in which Paul appealed to the highest Roman official, against God's will.

Paul told the believers in Ephesus, "And now, behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there: Save that the Holy Ghost witnesses in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions abide me. But none of these things move me ..." (Acts 20:22-24). Between chapter 20 and 22, there are three accounts of believers giving prophecy for Paul to appeal to Caesar and travel to Jerusalem.

The phrase, "bound by the spirit" was translated from ancient Greek text that meant "firmly resolved."

The end result was that Paul was placed under house arrest for the rest of his life.

What can we learn from this? We have God's permission to fight in our defense in and outside of courts; even the defense and protection of our homes, other's homes, neighborhoods, communities, etc, but to not do so with the rebellious and vengant frame of mind. If we are being robbed by others more powerful, then it is acceptable by God to let the robbers take.

This is also true for the robbers who wear government uniforms, and are protected by the state or federal governments; and true for the crafty serpents who bond with purpose to do the will of the Devil, that is to steal (rob), kill (murder) and destroy. In many instances they are simply more powerful, represented by an arsenal of attorneys, and well financed.

If we know how to defend ourselves, then let's do so judiciously and with prudent, meek and humble hearts toward our heavenly Father who is mighty in His ability to fight for us; with clear understanding that our Lord Jesus has a name that is higher than every name on earth and in heaven, with all power and authority from his Father the Creator of the heavens and the earth; with the understanding that our Lord Jesus is our advocate who stands between us and that old Serpent who is called the Devil and his servants on earth.

Most importantly, let's remember that there is no shame in suffering robbery and persecution with full and complete trust in our heavenly Father who is able to judge and reward righteously.

Let this be the check and balance when we are motivated to defend ourselves or take an offensive stand against the wicked and their servants; "if it be possible, as much as lies in you, live peaceably with all men," Romans 12:18.

Alas we have this saying, "Knowing that He which raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise up us also by Jesus, and shall present us with you. For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might, through the thanksgiving of many, redound to the glory of God. For which cause we faint not; but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day."

"For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, works for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal" (2Corinthians 4:14-18).

If we must fight in defense, let our heavenly Father direct our paths so that we might fulfill the words of our Lord Jesus who said, "be wise as the serpent, and harmless as the dove."

Finally, "Standfast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ has made us free, and be not entangled again in the yoke of bondage."

Educational socialism versus free market

Richard M. Ebeling
Future Freedom Foundation (fff.org)
 Academia has long been thought of as the “marketplace of ideas,” a place where truth may be pursued through dispassionate discourse and openness to competing views. Yet higher education in America has moved a great distance from this ideal and its practice and into the realm of collectivist indoctrination.

Many of our colleges and universities have become cloistered “houses” of bias and intolerance—schools of closed-mindedness. Everywhere we look these institutions are dominated by “political correctness,” the common theme of which is disdain and disapproval of the American traditions of individualism, free enterprise, and constitutionally limited government.

The Closed Mind of a Socialist Academia

A mountain of criticism or doubt from outside those hallowed halls seems to affect either the professors or the administrators, who claim to be the stewards of the younger generation placed in their intellectual and moral care. Indeed, more often than not, they demonstrate contempt for those who challenge their entitlement to mentor and nurture our sons and daughters as they think fit. Their conduct shows that they consider themselves answerable to no one but themselves.

It should not be surprising considering the special, indeed, niche environment in which they operate. The vast majority of America’s colleges and universities have become insular islands of academic socialism. They are either directly owned and operated by government, or if they are “private,” they have become so dependent on government loans, scholarships, and research grants that they have little real interaction with the wider remaining private-sector economy.

Regardless of the lack of intellectual merit or usefulness of what is taught in fields such as history, political science, economics, sociology, and literature, the faculties at these schools are protected from any negative feedback. Their salaries at state institutions are paid through tax dollars; their jobs are secured through lifetime tenure; and the content of their courses are judged as good or bad only by themselves. Any doubts about or dissent against how and what they teach is responded to with shouts of “academic freedom.” That phrase has become a mantra to ward off the demons: those of us who may not agree with the “wisdom” they wish to “share” with our children.

Government funding, of course, comes from tax dollars expropriated from the hard-earned income of the American citizenry. Parents are therefore left with fewer financial resources with which to send their children to educational institutions outside the net of state sponsorship and control. Furthermore, the lure of less-expensive state-funded and state-subsidized colleges and universities creates a perverse incentive for parents to send their young to these politically funded schools.

Monopolizing the Minds of Young People

The damage from all this goes far beyond wasting the taxpayers’ dollars in guaranteeing these academics their annual incomes. It means that the future of America is predominantly placed in their hands. The vast majority of young men and women pass through their educational processing. They mold how our sons and daughters see and think about politics, economics, history, moral philosophy, and social institutions.

To put it bluntly, they push our children through an intellectual sieve of collectivism; as a result, these young people leave college with no proper and vital understanding of freedom, self-responsibility, and the character and value of a free society. They enter adulthood unaware of the noble and courageous struggle that was carried on over the centuries in the Western world to establish the legacy of liberty and prosperity that too many of us take for granted.

What applies to government spending on higher education of course applies no less to government spending on K-12 schooling as well. Indeed, it can be argued that government’s influence at this level is even more disturbing, since these are the most impressionable years, when young minds are shaped by core ideas about their world. Whether it is sex education or conceptions about the environment or even the basic capacity to read and write, the grammar- and high-school years can leave a mark on young men and women for the rest of their lives.

Freeing Minds from “K” through High School

It is not surprising, therefore, that public-school teachers and administrators are opposed to private competitive education during these formative years. Not only would it wrest from them near-monopoly control over the minds of America’s youth, but a free market in education would also show the disastrous job the state system has done in preparing the next generation for earning a living in the global economy.

Compare that with the marketplace of everyday commerce, where the sellers of ideas and the products that embody them must demonstrate their value to the buying public. Sellers must prove that what is being offered is worth the price being asked. If they fail to do so, their clientele drifts away; their market share declines; and their incomes decrease. If a seller does not mend his ways, those who more effectively serve consumers will finally drive him out of business.

In a free market, the private seller cannot shout “producer freedom” and claim the right to be protected from the disapproval of his customers. In the free economy there is neither tenure nor government-guaranteed income. Every producer and seller is ultimately answerable to those he serves.

This is what makes competition a mechanism for fostering innovation and excellence. Every day, in every way, sellers must constantly try to stay ahead of their rivals in the marketplace. And they cannot forget that new entrants could come into their corner of the market, apply their creative abilities to better serve the consuming public, and earn some of the potential profits from doing so.

It is clear why so many teachers, professors, and administrators show such hostility to business and market competition. And it is no wonder that they despise the profit-and-loss system. To advocate a real marketplace of ideas would threaten their protected government-subsidized utopian, ivory-tower existence. Defeating “educational socialism,” as I call it, will require effort to escape the government’s control of schooling. A growing number of parents in the United States are undertaking that effort, as demonstrated by the expanding attendance at private schools around the country and the increasing numbers of parents who incur the personal and family sacrifices to home-school their sons and daughters. Having lost all confidence in the government schooling system, they have taken more direct responsibility for their children’s education.

RISD superintendent finalist ...

and 2015. In the area of career and technology education, he facilitated and completed an audit of all courses to ensure compliance with House Bill 5 graduation endorsement requirements and increased the district’s revenue from weighted student funding.

Selection Process

The school board began its work in January with the hiring of Horn, Smith, Wood and Preston Educational Consultants to partner with the superintendent search process. The firm conducted a series of staff and community meetings, along with an online survey, in late February and early March to gather the input. The superintendent profile document was presented to the Board of Trustees in late March. The profile was an important part in the selection of the lone finalist.

Members of the school board spent time reviewing over 36 applications for the superintendent position. They conducted initial interviews and follow-up interviews before selecting the lone finalist.

In Texas, candidates for a school superintendent position must wait 21 days after they are named a lone finalist before they can sign a contract.

Bankhead Highway Vintage Car Tour stops in Royce City

Millie Jean Coppedge
 The Centennial Texas Tour consisting of 47 unique vintage cars made a brief stop in Royce City Friday morning. The cars were scheduled to arrive at 10 a.m. and stay for about 15 minutes, but arrived early, catching many who planned to attend off to work. The cars began leaving at 9:20 a.m. By the time many citizens arrived, the cars already were gone. The cars assembled across the street from the C.F. Goodwin Public Library and City Hall on Arch Street, then lined up and pulled out again headed to SH 66 for their next stop in Rockwall at the Historic Downtown Courthouse. The Bankhead Highway was one of the first all-weather transcontinental highways in the United States and extended from Washington, D.C., to San Diego, California, with about 850 of the miles crossing Texas. The highway was named after United States Sen. John H. Bankhead, who spearheaded the project in 1916. The highway passed through cities in Texas including Texarkana, Mount Vernon, Royce City, Dallas, Fort Worth, Weatherford, Abilene, Midland and El Paso. This tour celebrates the 100th anniversary of the highway. In 1917, it was designated State Highway 1 and later became SH 66. Mayor Janet Nichol, Chief of Police Jeff Stapleton, Royce City Fire Chief Ricky Bell and many employees of City Hall, the police department and the fire department were on hand to welcome the drivers of the tour.
