New members inducted into Rock Wall Chapter, DAR

The Rock Wall Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution conducted a new member initiation ceremony on April 5 at the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Heath.

Eight new members -- Becky Henderson, Sherri Nerren, Nancy Peirce, Beverly Williams, Rhea Aryani, Haille O'Connor, Nikki Van Wey and Cheryl Fiske -- were added to the organization's membership roll.

Additionally, guest speaker John L. Greer, vice president of the Fletcher Warren Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, spoke about America's national anthem. Greer has served for 19 years in SAR. He is past president of the Plano Chapter, past District 11 vice president and member of the East Fork Trinity and Ambassador Fletcher Warren chapters. Greer helped establish the SAR speakers bureau and served on multiple committees for veterans as well as Revolutionary War soldiers buried in Texas.

Greer's presentation discussed the making of the United States flag in 1813 by Mary Pickersgill and the flag's display at Fort McHenry, which inspired Francis Scott Key to write a song that eventually became the United States' national anthem. Pickersgill designed and sewed the 30x42-foot garrison flag.

On Sept. 14, 1814, U.S. soldiers at Baltimore's Fort McHenry raised a huge American flag to celebrate a crucial victory over British forces during the War of 1812. The sight of those "broad stripes and bright stars" inspired Francis Scott Key to write a song, "The Star-Spangled Banner." Key's words gave new significance to a national symbol and started a tradition through which generations of Americans have invested the flag with their own meanings and memories. The flag now is housed in The Smithsonian National Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C.

The Daughters of the American Revolution, founded in 1890, is a service organization dedicated to service to the nation. For additional information regarding DAR, call regent Peggy Atterberry, 972-771-5067.

Former Royse City truck catches fire

Former Royse City brush truck #4 caught fire and burned on March 24 following a suspected leaking fuel from the carburetor. Fire Chief Rickey Bell said the 1986 truck was retired from use by the city in 2005 because of the age of the truck and ongoing mechanical problems. It had been stored at the Royse City Service Center until it was auctioned off four or five years ago. The truck was on the grounds of J.D. Newell Auctioneers on I-30 at the time of the fire. The entire inside of the truck was totally destroyed. Royse City Fire Department was called out to handle the fire.

Storm shelters coming back into fashion

MILLIE JEAN COPPEDGE
Reminiscing
Roysse City

by Millie Jean Coppedge
rcn.millie@yahoo.com

Brad planted flowers and decorated the top with rocks to make it more attractive. Then he planted trees on each side. Notice there is no door on the cellar. That is because he took it off and is in the process of making a more secure door. This cellar is made entirely of concrete. Crystal said they bought the house only eight months ago and haven't used the cellar yet, but will if bad weather is predicted.

When the young couple went to clean out the cellar after they moved in, a 10-foot snake crawled up the steps and slithered away. Remember their encounter with the snake as you will hear again about snakes at the end of this column.

Don and Peggy Becknell of Roysse City have a storm cellar. It is a heavy-duty cellar with extra steel and concrete on the sides and the top. Peggy says that they have had as many as 13 people in it on April 3, 2012, when the bad tornado came through Roysse City that did so much damage to the town of Forney. They have lights, electricity and did have a refrigerator in it until the number of people coming for shelter got so large that they had to take it out to have enough room to get everyone in.

When I was a child well more than 60 years ago, storm cellars were common at many homes. People called them storm cellars since many types of canned foods from peoples gardens were stored down there where it was cool. There were no fans or air-conditioning in the homes then and the canned goods kept longer in the cool cellars.

Back in the late 1940s and '50s, the entire cellar was made from earth, including the steps descending down into the shelter. Some people laid wooden boards for the steps. But today they are made of concrete. If a bad storm was coming, entire families would go to a neighbor who had a cellar. Coal oil or kerosene lamps were stored in the cellar to be used for light and to be ready in case a storm brewed up quickly. Once the storm cellar door was closed (and often locked down from the inside) those inside we in total darkness; very scary, especially for children.

Many of the old homes in Roysse City and surrounding towns have storm cellars. Not many new homes have them, but in the last few years with the surges of dangerous storms, hail and extremely high winds and tornados, people are beginning to build shelters again. I remember being terrified, not of the approaching storm so much, but of the thought that there might be snakes, rats, bugs or other such varmints down there.

Since the floor, walls and ceiling were of dirt, worms crawled around everywhere.

I would like to share my story of a storm cellar. When I was newly married, my husband and I, along with another young couple named Ron and Sarah, went rattlesnake hunting on the weekends. Sarah and I were 17 years old and Ron and my husband, Charles, were both 19. We had no money, so this was our only entertainment.

After dark, in the summertime, snakes would crawl up onto the warm dirt roads and just lay there enjoying the warmth. We would drive the back country dirt roads in our 1949 Ford, and when the headlights shown on the rattlesnake, it would freeze. Ron and Charles would throw the car in park, jump out and head toward the snake. One held the tow sack and the other had a long broom handle they had rigged with a long wire with a loop on the end, called a snake-catcher.

After easing the loop down over the head of the snake, the wire would be pulled from a top loop on the broom, which tightened around the snake just below its head. The snake would be lifted into the air and slowly dropped down into the tow sack. A wire was quickly tied around the top of the sack to keep it from getting out. The tow sack was thrown into the trunk of the car and off we went looking for another one.

Sarah and I never got out of the car on any of these adventures, but were always terrified that the snakes would get loose and come sliding between the seats and bite us.

It was not fun for the two of us, I assure you. We were horrified, but the husbands would not let us stay home. They would laugh and cut up on these escapades and just have the best time.

And no, none of us drank alcohol. We were just young and stupid, I guess. Some nights Ron and Charles would fill three or four sacks with several snakes in each sack. Normally, the men would go back in the daylight the next day and let the snakes out to slither off into the woods, but never let them go in the dark as the snakes might backlash and strike them.

On this particular Saturday night, they had several tow sacks full of snakes, so since Ron's parents were out of town and would be gone for several more days, Ron suggested they take the rattlesnakes to his parents' house and put them in their storm cellar, then go back the next day and take them to the woods and let them loose.

We drove into the back yard of his parents' home, Ron and Charles opened the lid of the cellar, stood on the top step and threw the snakes still in the tow sacks tied with wire, down onto the cellar floor. That night of great accomplishments for the snake-hunters, we all went home prepared to return the next day.

The next afternoon when we drove up in the yard, Ron's parents came out into the yard screaming, mad beyond belief. It seems that his parents had decided to come home early Sunday morning and when his mother started down into the cellar to get a jar of corn and beans to prepare dinner, she immediately heard the rattling of the snakes, saw snakes laying everywhere and ran screaming to the house, but had an alert enough to slam the cellar door shut first. She told her startled son that he had almost had a heart attack from the experience.

"What were you boys thinking?" his daddy blurted at both of us. "We could have been bitten over and over and both of us be dead!" Ron's dad was really mad.

His mother insisted they clean out the cellar at once. All their tow sacks were still laying in the bottom of the cellar. After they obtained more, they returned, afraid of what they would find once they stepped descended down the steps.

What Ron and Charles saw was worse than they could have imagined. Once they opened the squeaky door, light filled the cellar and the cellar began to rattle. There were rattlesnakes lying all along the shelves on top of the canned fruit and vegetables, crawling all over the floor lying on and around the chairs Ron's parents kept down there to sit on during the duration of storms, and snuggled or coiled into places in the dirt that had crumbled and caved in over the years.

Now, you would think that for Sarah and me, watching our husbands ease into the cellar, one with the tow sack and one with the catcher, would make us laugh our heads off, but not so. We watched, absolutely terrified. One wrong move would probably have meant death. It took hours to get the snakes out, starting with the one that was the closest and easiest to get.

Do I have to tell you that I never went rattlesnake hunting again? No, we did not. We went on playing canasta on our Saturday nights, much to the delight of Sarah and me.

My final comment here is to think storm cellars need to be built as the turn of weather seems to be for the worse across the country. My advice is to build totally of concrete, seal all corners, attach an extremely secure, tight fitting door and enter it carefully when it must be used. Oh, and a big bright flashlight and a slow, even if it is in the middle of the day. When people ask why I'm so afraid of snakes, I tell them my story.

Meals on Wheels seeks funding to match grant

Meals on Wheels Senior Services of Rockwall County has been awarded a challenge grant of up to $20,000, meaning contributions are needed to match the grant funding.

The agency is in need of additional funding because of the increased demand for services as the aging population increases, according to a press release issued last week.

"Historically, we have relied heavily on federal and state funds for our home-delivered meal services" Margie VerHagen, executive director, said. "We are excited that the Carl C. Anderson Sr. and Marie Jo Anderson Charitable Foundation has awarded us a challenge grant of up to $20,000. This couldn't have come at a better time since we have seen reductions year after year as the government works to trim its own budget."

The 150 volunteers delivering the program's weekday meals provide a valuable social experience for isolated clients and the opportunity for early intervention in threatening situations.

All donations to the Meals on Wheels program in Rockwall County, an independent 501(c)(3) non-profit, are tax deductible. Donations can be made online through the MOWSS Web site at rockwallmealsonwheels.org or brought or sent to Meals on Wheels Senior Services, 950 Williams Street, Bldg. C, Rockwall, TX 75087. For more information call 972-771-9514.

This storm cellar is owned by Crystal and Brad Bumpass in Roysse City. There are many cellars to be found in the original part of town, where many of the homes were built in the late 1800s or early 1900s, and many of them still used today when bad weather moves in. The oldest home in Roysse City built in 1882 has a storm cellar, no doubt, used many times over the years.

On God's Word

by Timothy W. Burnett

Freedom is a result of salvation ...

A key factor in the true freedom that God's beloved children have through our Lord Jesus Christ is salvation.

It helps to have a clear understanding of what He saved His children from.

1Thessalonians 4:13-18 and 5:1-9 shines more light on the subject of salvation.

Verses 13-18 of chapter 4 are about the Day of Christ. This event is also commonly referred to as the rapture in many churches.

It starts, "But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren concerning them which are asleep, that you sorrow not, even as others which have no hope." The hope is directly related to the confidence and eager anticipation of the Day of Christ. It is hoped for because it is absolutely set to occur.

Chapter 5 reveals the Day of Christ will save God's children from the extremely terrible events that will occur as spoken of in Revelations, which will culminate in the terrible day of God's wrath.

Imagine being in bondage. Enslaved to a life of hardships, sickness, etc. It's not hard to do. We've all experienced it to some degree. It's available to be absolutely saved through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Duncan gives program for Newcomers, Friends

The Rockwall County Newcomers and Friends welcomed Margaret Duncan, program coordinator for the Dallas Arboretum, at its March meeting.

Duncan, a retired fourth grade teacher and a docent at the DeGolyer House and former chairman of the Docent Board, presented a program on the new Roy Meyers Children's Adventure Garden. A volunteer at the Arboretum Education Department, Duncan showed numerous slides of the new children's section at the Arboretum.

At the Exploration Center arboretum guests can be a CSI (Cool Science Investigator) and take a look at the DNA of a strawberry. By visiting the Texas Skywalk visitors can walk in the treetops. In the Habitats section visitors can visit a fabricated live oak, sit on an egg at the eagle's nest or venture to the Plants are Alive area and see a huge flower pot or celery slide.

The Newcomers will meet at 10 a.m. on April 10 at Occasions at Stone Creek in Royce City for a spring fashion show. Reservations deadline is March 31. To reserve a luncheon ticket for $20 contact Marion at 972-722-9896 or De at 972-722-1090.

For God has not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him. 1Thessalonians 5:9-10

Anyone who enjoys meeting new people, listening to interesting programs and eating a delicious lunch is invited to join the group. You may come to two meetings before joining Rockwall Newcomers and Friends; all women in the Rockwall County area are welcome. The club offers clubs, Bunco, bridge, canasta and other activities throughout the year. For further information, visit newcomersrock.com.

Dr. Brigitte Koetter, April English and Erika Stephens recently were inducted into Aspasians. The group's Spring Arts & Crafts Fair will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 26 at temporary location, Wilkerson-Sanders Memorial Stadium. Courtesy photo/Rockwall County News

Johnston is finalist for education award

Rockwall Independent School District middle school principal Jason Johnston has been named a state finalist for a 2014 H-E-B Excellence in Education Award.

Johnston is the principal at Cain Middle School and was chosen as one of five state finalists out of 900 applicants in the secondary principal award category, according to a RISD news release.

At a surprise assembly on March 26, representatives from H-E-B presented Johnston with a $1,000 check and a $2,500 check for Cain Middle School.

Johnston will travel to Houston on May 2 as part of the statewide competition.

H-E-B's Excellence in Education is the largest monetary awards program for educators in Texas, and among the largest in the nation. The honor was kept a surprise from Johnston, who learned he was a finalist when he was called down to the Cain gym and greeted by the entire staff and student body, representatives from Central Office, members of his family and the H-E-B prize patrol.

In addition to the monetary awards, the H-E-B representatives presented him with balloons, a gift basket, and a cake.

Each year, H-E-B asks customers, employees and community members to nominate teachers, principals, districts, early childhood facilities and school boards in Texas for the Excellence in Education Awards. Each nominee is sent an invitation to compete through an online application process. Nominees are asked about their professional experiences, educational philosophies and achievements both in and out of the classroom.

A team of judges reviews the applications, narrowing the field to semi-finalists. From that pool, five regional judging panels comprised of former winners, administrators and university and community leaders select the state finalists in each category. State finalists are interviewed by a panel of judges.

The winner of each category will be announced at an awards gala hosted by H-E-B. The winner of the secondary principal category will receive $10,000 and a $25,000 grant for their school.

This is the second straight year the Rockwall ISD has had a secondary principal named as a state finalist. In 2013, Carri Eddy — who was principal of Utley Middle School — was named a finalist and competed at the state level.

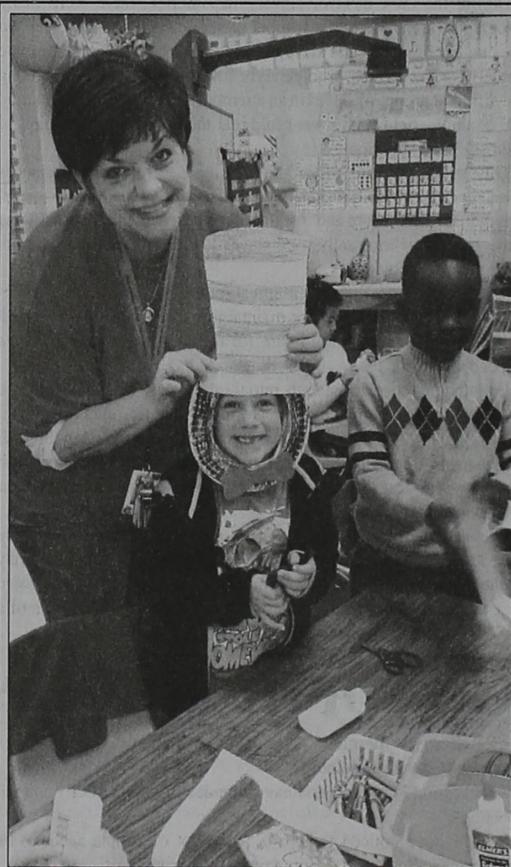

Students at Springer Elementary raised more than $2,920 for the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society during the recent Pasta for Pennies campaign. The sixth grade Kindness & Compassion Club members helped organize the program and encouraged students to collect spare change during a three-week period. What if Secrecy Trumps the Constitution?

by Judge Andrew P. Napolitano

What if the National Security Agency (NSA) knows it is violating the Constitution by spying on all Americans without showing a judge probable cause of wrongdoing or identifying the persons it wishes to spy upon, as the Constitution requires? What if this massive spying has come about because the NSA found it too difficult to follow the Constitution?

What if the Constitution was written to keep the government off the people's backs, but the NSA and the president and some members of Congress have put the NSA not only on our backs, but in our bedrooms, kitchens, telephones and computers? What if when you look at your computer screen, the NSA is looking right back at you?

What if the NSA really thought it could keep the fact that it is spying on all Americans and many others throughout the world secret from American voters? What if Congress enacted laws that actually delegate some congressional powers to elite congressional committees -- one in the Senate and one in the House? What if this delegation of power is unconstitutional because the Constitution gives all legislative powers to Congress as a whole and Congress itself is powerless to give some of its power away to two of its secret committees? What if the members of these elite committees who hear and see secrets from the NSA, the CIA and other federal intelligence agencies are themselves sworn to secrecy?

What if the secrets they hear are so terrifying that some of these members of Congress don't know what to do about it? What if the secrecy prohibits these congressional committee members from telling anyone what they know and seeking advice about these awful truths? What if they can't tell a spouse at home, a lawyer in her office, a priest in confessional, a judge when under oath in a courtroom, other members of Congress or the voters who sent them to Congress?

What if this system of secrets, with its promises not to reveal them, has led to a government whose spies have intimidated and terrified some members of Congress? What if one member of Congress -- Sen.

Jay Rockefeller, a Democrat from West Virginia -- wrote to then-Vice President Dick Cheney and voiced fears that totalitarianism is creeping into our democracy? What if he wrote that letter in his own hand because he feared he might be prosecuted if he dictated it to a secretary or gave it to his secretary for typing? What if he was terrified to learn what the spies told him because he knew he could not share it with anyone or do anything about it?

What if the NSA's chief apologist in Congress -- Sen. Dianne Feinstein, a Democrat from California -- took to the only safe place in the world where she could reveal what she learned from the spies and not be prosecuted for violating her oath of secrecy and there revealed a secret? What if that place is the Senate floor, and what if, while there, she revealed that she approved of the NSA spying on all Americans but disapproved of the CIA spying on her staff? What if it is unlawful and unconstitutional for the CIA to spy on anyone in the United States -- whether private citizen, illegal alien or member of a Senate staff?

What if the equality of the branches of government is destroyed when one of them spies on the other? What kind of a president spies on Congress? What kind of members of Congress sit back and let themselves become victims of spying? What if Congress could stop all spying on all Americans by a simple vote? What if Congress could stop the president from spying on its own members with a simple vote? What if Congress is afraid to take these votes?

What if secret government is unaccountable precisely because it is secret? What if the people's representatives in government have a moral obligation to reveal to their constituents that the president's spies are spying on all of us, and they -- members of Congress -- have not lifted a finger to stop it? Would we all vote differently if we knew the secrets the government has shared with a select few but kept from the rest of us? What if your own representatives in the House and the Senate are lying to you because of fear of the consequences of revealing secrets?

What if the NSA chief claimed to a congressional committee -- of those with which he secretly shares secrets -- that all this spying has stopped 57 terror plots? What if the next day he changed the number to three plots? What if he has declined to say what the three plots were? What if a federal judge found that all this spying has not prevented any identifiable plots?

What if all this spying doesn't work? What if the NSA has too much data about all of us? What if the president knowingly declines to uphold the Constitution and instructed his spies to do the same? What if the NSA is so accustomed to spying on all of us all the time that it lacks the ability to obtain probable cause and to identify the person upon whom it needs to spy? What if the government's culture of secrecy and spying has taken on a life of its own? What if even those who started it are afraid to stop it?

What if the NSA missed the shoe bomber, the underwear bomber, the Ft. Hood massacre, the Times Square bomber, the Boston Marathon bombers, the coup in Kiev and the Russian invasion of Ukraine? What if the NSA wasted its time spying on Aunt Tillie in Des Moines and the Pope in Rome and Chancellor Merkel in Berlin instead of Vladimir Putin in Moscow?

What if secrecy has replaced the rule of law? What if that replacement has left us in the dark about what the government knows and what it is doing? What if few in government believe in transparency? What if few in government believe in the Constitution?

What do we do about it? Andrew P. Napolitano, a former judge of the Superior Court of New Jersey, is the senior judicial analyst at Fox News Channel. Judge Napolitano has written seven books on the U.S. Constitution. The most recent is "Theodore and Woodrow: How Two American Presidents Destroyed Constitutional Freedom." COPYRIGHT 2014 ANDREW P. Outwitting the Purveyors of Dependency

by Ben Carson

Divide and conquer is an age-old strategy, effectively used by many in positions of power to ensure that they retain their wealth and authority.

During the dark days of slavery in America, there were many geographic areas where the number of slaves significantly surpassed the number of whites and slave owners. This occasioned appropriate anxiety for the owners, who cleverly sowed seeds of discord among the different groups of slaves in an attempt to effectively destroy unity. For example, field slaves were told that the house slaves thought of themselves as superior.

This worked in most cases, although there were notable instances of secret cooperation between the slaves to accomplish various goals. It required real wisdom and insight to avoid easy manipulation by the slave owners, who usually used slaves loyal to them to accomplish their nefarious objectives.

In today's culture, there are political forces that see the descendants of slaves as useful objects for maintaining their positions of wealth and power. By promising to care for their every need, they create dependency.

Frightening those dependents into thinking they will be abandoned if others are in control, they create loyalty that is undeserved but fierce, loyalty that translates into the real goal: votes. Anything or anyone that threatens this paradigm of victim and protector must be destroyed, lest the victims recognize the deceitfulness of their manipulators and revolt.

The most dangerous people to the modern manipulators are people who have freed themselves from the plantation mentality. They eschew the propaganda of victimhood and advocate for personal responsibility. They see the value found in the true compassion of a hand up rather than a handout.

The tragedy is that many "leaders" of the black community succumb to the poison of the controlling elites, who make them feel "cool" and important. I'm sure that some actually realize what is happening, but -- like the kids you remember in high school -- they don't want to risk being ostracized and expelled from the "in crowd" and therefore remain silent.

It is so important for the black community to realize that there is tremendous strength in unity and that disagreement on some issues does not have to create animosity. In fact, by engaging in open discussions rather than demonizing, a great deal can be learned by all parties.

I am a registered independent, but I have many friends who are Democrats and many who are Republicans. One friend who identifies himself as a Democrat left Alabama at age 16 and headed to Boston in search of employment. He accidentally ended up in Hartford, Conn., and worked in a lowly position as a construction aide for a hotel that was being built. This young black man from Birmingham had a strong work ethic and was gifted with common sense.

Today, he not only owns that hotel, but he also owns many other businesses and is a philanthropist. We do not disagree about most important things, but we have some political disagreements, which have no negative impact on our friendship or our ability to work together on projects. If someone tried to exploit our differences, we would have a hearty laugh at their expense.

Those who spew venom at black conservatives would do well to read about the lives and philosophies of such luminaries as Booker T. Washington, George Washington Carver, Frederick Douglass, Harriet Tubman and many others who refused to subscribe to the victim mentality.

They should make an attempt to understand what it takes to ascend from the lifestyle of Southern sharecroppers to the office of secretary of state of the United States of America. Perhaps then they would be on the side of Condoleezza Rice, who achieved this and much more, including becoming a concert pianist. When the black community tolerates a group of liberal Rutgers professors who succeeded in disinviting Rice to their commencement because she is a conservative, they embolden the controlling elites and dramatically minimize accomplishments that any ethnic group should be proud of.

We must fight for the precious hearts and souls of all of our people. We have to give them the "can-do" attitude that characterized the rapid ascension of America. We must defang the dividers, ignoring them and thinking for ourselves.

I wish the haters and manipulators would take a moment to examine their hearts and motives. I hope they will think about using their intellectual talents for good. They would be wise to ask themselves this question: How much good did being one of the cool guys in school do in the long run? Let us all give honor to the concept of hard work, integrity, kindness, compassion, personal responsibility, family values, and faith in and obedience to God.

Many people from all backgrounds gave up their freedom, blood and even their lives to provide a life of liberty and dignity to those trapped by the chains of legal discrimination and hatred. They must not allow their sacrifice to become meaningless by allowing "do-gooders" to substitute the chains of overt racism with the chains of dependency, low expectations, victimhood and misdirection. Go forth and be informed by Brittany Williams

rcn.brittany@yahoo.com

At this point in my career, I have attended my share of city council meetings.

What I have noticed though is that a lot of people seem to be uninformed about what is going on in their community.

Even at my age, I see the importance of knowing what is going on in their community.

And when I say community, that's exactly what that means. Your neighborhood, your city, your state, your country.

So maybe you can't go sit in on Congress every time they meet, but you get my point.

There are so many ways that you can get informed and involved. The only reason I can come up with that people aren't is that they don't know how.

Even my own mom said had I not been going to the city council meetings and been coming home and telling her what was going on, she wouldn't know what was going on.

Maybe it's just me being the journalist I am and me wanting to know these things, but I guess I see now why people don't know about the cell phone tower going in down the street from them or that the curfew that had previously been in place will no longer be.

This doesn't have to be the case though. There is still hope for you!

First of all, I would urge everyone, young and old, to put "attend city council meeting" on their bucket list. And cross it off, please!

From experience, I wouldn't go to one with a bunch of permits on the agenda. The agendas are posted at least a few days prior to meeting, so go find one and inform yourself.

My advice beyond that? Go to one with something more exciting than just a bunch of permits. Something with the possibility of little drama in the council chambers. Those meetings always get journalistic senses tingling. Those meetings are my sky dives. BASE jumping, my tightrope walking across the Grand Canyon. They get my adrenaline pumping.

And do your homework. Know what you're walking into. Know what your rights as a citizen of the community are.

Beyond that, if you have questions, ask. Call the city offices, write your congressman. They're there for you.

In college, the First Amendment was ingrained into me and for I will be forever grateful.

Not familiar? Let me refresh your memory.

Moose Legion to make Moose presentations

By Millie Jean Coppedge
rcn.millie@yahoo.com

The Farmers Branch 2277 Moose Legion celebration and First Responder Fish Fry is set for April 12.

Special guests will include the director of Mooseheart, Ill., Bob Neff, head of Moose Legion, Ritual and Council of Higher Degrees.

All first responders -- police, fire, and other emergency workers -- from Farmers Branch, Carrollton and Addison are invited. Many chapter members live in Rockwall County and the surrounding area.

The Moose Lodges and chapters give Tommy Moose, a soft, cuddly stuffed animal to law enforcement officers and firefighters to be given to a child/children when they are injured, in time of crisis or under great stress. The Moose Legion also gives them to hospitals and shelters to help the children cope with change and the stress going on in their lives. Tommy Moose coloring books are given to schools and the Tommy Moose book markers are given to libraries to be distributed to the children.

Since 2002, more than 100,000 Tommy Moose stuffed animals have been distributed.

"Mooseheart is an unincorporated community and home for children run by the Loyal Order of Moose in Kane County, Ill.," according to the

Moms Club event raises Rainbow Room funding

The Moms Club of Rockwall's 2nd Annual Bunco Tournament, a fundraiser for the Rainbow Room of Rockwall, generated funds that resulted in a $7,000 donation.

The bunco fundraiser took place Feb. 6 at the at the San Martino Winery, a co-sponsor of the event. Organizers said the turnout for the event was remarkable, especially since the fundraiser took place during an ice storm.

Several other local businesses co-sponsored the event, including gold level sponsors Zanata's, Cranium Kids, Wonderfully Made, Mathnasium, The Matteson Group, Sense-able Gym, Eclipse Fitness, Leah Clausen Photography, Shanks Jewelers, Larry and Jessica Robison, Rockwall Modern Dentistry, In Front of the Lens Photography, L. Patrick Grisanti II D.D.S., Marigold Learning Academy, Dallas Mavericks, Designs By Donna, Dixie Love's Pies, E'lan Hair Studio, Jewel Kade, Yet to Be Determined Furniture Refinishing and several others.

"The Rainbow Room of Rockwall County appreciates the continued generosity and enthusiastic support from Moms Club of Rockwall," Rainbow Room board president Dorothy Burris said. "This donation will help us serve the children in our community who are in the care of the Department of Family and Protective Services. The fundraising proceeds from the extremely successful bunco party will assist with the purchase of backpacks and school supplies for the school aged children in DFPS care. The Rainbow Room could not continue, in some small way, to make the lives of these children better without the overwhelming support of community organizations such as the Moms Club of Rockwall."

The Moms Club of Rockwall is part of an international service organization requiring one local project a year.

Local observations mark National Library Week

A commissioners court proclamation and a check for more than a $250,000 marked Rockwall County's observation of National Library Week.

At the April 8 Rockwall County Commissioners Court meeting, Judge Jerry Hogan and the commissioners issued a proclamation designating April 13-19 as National Library Week. Volunteer representatives Madi Hartley and Darlene Bealmear accepted the proclamation.

Bev Stibbens, president of Friends of the Rockwall County Library, presented the court a check facsimile for $274,590.28, representing the value of 12,402 hours of volunteer services performed at the library during fiscal year 2013.

Volunteers shelve books, maintain the Book Alcove and perform light clerical duties that help keep the library running smoothly, Stibbens said. Student volunteers work in the children's area and assist during the Summer Reading Program.

Stibbens said 79 tutors work with the library's literacy program, Reading for Adults. These volunteers teach 285 adults who are in the English as a Second Language (ESL) program, work with 305 students who are studying for the GED test, tutor people who have never learned to read and conduct citizenship classes for 56 students. During this past fiscal year 1,538 classes were held. Seven students learned to read and write, 37 adults have earned GED certificates, four were accepted to college, 150 advanced a class level and three became citizens.

The Friends of the Library board members will honor the library staff with a luncheon on April 15.

City of Rockwall continues Stage 3 landscape watering restrictions

The Rockwall City Council agreed to continue Stage 3 landscape watering restrictions once every two weeks as needed with sprinklers or irrigation systems through April as requested by the city's water supplier, the North Texas Municipal Water District (NTMWD). Subsequent extensions will be considered on a month-to-month basis.

Council approved the extension at their April 7th meeting on the recommendation of City Manager Rick Crowley. NTMWD remains in Stage 3 of its Water Conservation and Drought Contingency and Water Emergency Response Plan due to below average rainfall, declining water levels of their reservoirs and the temporary loss of Lake Texoma raw water supply due to the zebra mussel infestation.

Lake Lavon, the primary water supply, is approximately 11 feet below conservation pool level following April rains through April 7th. City and NTMWD officials ask that residents continue to conserve water until there is relief from the drought.

Hall's drought monitoring bill passes U.S. Senate

Last month the Senate approved H.R. 2431, Rep. Ralph Hall's (TX-04) reauthorization of the National Integrated Drought Information System program.

The bill, passed by unanimous consent, extends authorization of the critical drought-monitoring NIDIS program through 2018, according to a news release from Hall's office.

NIDIS was established in 2006 by legislation introduced by Hall. "I am pleased the Senate joined the House's effort to swiftly reauthorize this important drought-monitoring legislation," said Hall. "Over the last two years more than half the country experienced some degree of drought conditions. Fourth District constituents have been personally affected as we have experienced challenges with water supply, agriculture production and negative impacts to local tourism. The NIDIS program proactively and effectively works to minimize (continued on page 10)

Taste of Rockwall & Business Expo completes 21st anniversary

Rockwall Chamber prepares for Leadercast event

Submitted by Paula Kerr
Rockwall Area Chamber of Commerce

The Taste of Rockwall and Business Expo celebrated its 21st anniversary on April 3rd, showcasing a wide variety of Rockwall's best restaurants and businesses. The 2014 event was presented by the Rockwall Area Chamber of Commerce and sponsored by Lake Pointe Medical Center.

Like the city itself, the Taste of Rockwall and Business Expo has grown each year with continued success. The Rockwall Area Chamber stages the event to help build community connections. A large, steady crowd enjoyed sampling delicious food and visiting a number of business booths, including car dealership displays from Heritage Buick GMC, Lakeside Chevrolet, Randall Noe Auto Group and Toyota of Rockwall.

"We were pleased with the outcome of the Taste of Rockwall this year," said Chamber President Dana Macalik.

There were several new restaurants participating this year, serving up many wonderful dishes. There was fierce competition for the coveted People's Choice Award. The #1 People's Choice Restaurant Award was presented to Rob Gates, owner of Cole Mountain Feed Store. The runner up was a new Rockwall restaurant, Chateau Bistro.

The Culinary Excellence Award was judged by a panel of three judges. This Award is based on the overall taste of the dish, its presentation, appearance, and the originality of the exhibitor booth. The first winner in this category was Cotton Patch. The second place winner was Lotus Japanese Grill.

Congratulations to these winners and all of the participating establishments for setting such high standards in their food presentation and display!

Jack Crain with American National Bank was the Grand Prize winner this year. He won a Staycation for Two at the Hilton in Rockwall Lakefront, including breakfast, dinner for two at Dodie's, a cruise for two on any of the Sail With Scott boats, and a bottle of wine.

There were 73 area businesses and seven nonprofit organizations participating this year. Brandon Lessard's Scentys Wickless Candles home the Best Business Expo Exhibitor Award. DJ Greg LaRosa and Black Tie Entertainment entertained the crowd throughout the evening.

"This is such a great way for business and community to come together. This event would not be possible, nor would it run as smoothly and successfully without the help of so many volunteers - from Chamber Ambassadors and Board of Directors, to the banks and organizations that sold tickets," said Macalik. "We also wish to thank the Rockwall ISD crew and custodians who prepare the facility, then clean after the event closes. The Rockwall High School Interact Club and Boy Scouts from Troop 314 kept the eating area clean throughout the evening. Thank you all - we just couldn't do it without you!"

Now the work begins on the Leadercast event being held on May 9th at the Rockwall High School Performing Arts Center at Utley Middle School. "This is going to be a great opportunity for you and your employees to attend a first-class, nationwide leadership summit via simulcast live from Atlanta, Georgia with nine nationally known authors and speakers mark your calendars - you won't want to miss it," Macalik said.

To purchase Leadercast tickets or for more information, visit LeadercastRockwall.com or call Paula Kerr at 972-771-5733.

Hawks soar past Jackets, remain undefeated in district

by Ryan Garrett

Tyler Ivey's 11 strikeouts and the Heath bats were too much for the Yellowjackets as the Hawks continued their undefeated district streak in a 12-2 victory on Saturday at Rockwall's Campbell Complex. Rockwall-Heath broke the top ten in the Texas High School Baseball 5A rankings, moving up seven spots from the previous week.

With the win, the Hawks took a two-game lead over Rockwall in District 12-5A standings. The Jackets' two district losses have been to Rockwall-Heath.

The Yellowjackets threatened in the first inning, loading the bases with singles by seniors Brad Barnett and Gary Burton and a walk by Garrett Moon. The Hawks escaped the frame, stranding all three base runners.

Heath began to light up the scoreboard in a four-run second with help from an error, a fielder's choice, an RBI single by Ryne Randle and an RBI double by RJ Williams. The Hawks added three runs in the third, including a two-RBI triple by Clayton Rasbeary and Randle's third hit of the game.

Barnett knocked a leadoff single and stole two bases in the fifth and the Yellowjackets pushed their first run across off a wild pitch by Ivey. Following a five-run seventh in which the Hawks extended the lead 12-1, Rockwall scored their final run of the game off a single by Burton.

Ivey earned the win with 11 strikeouts, no earned runs on eight hits and one walk over seven innings. Rockwall's Carter Lilly suffered the loss after pitching just two innings with three walks, five allowed runs and two strikeouts.

Hall's drought monitoring bill ...

the personal and economic impacts of drought. "While I can't make it rain, I can legislate. As chairman emeritus of the Science, Space and Technology Committee, rest assured that I will continue to work with my colleagues on the Committee and in the House to address the serious issue of drought. It is my hope the president will quickly sign this bipartisan bill into law."

The NIDIS program provides information and tools to monitor and predict droughts, assess the potential impacts and better prepare for and mitigate the effects of droughts. NIDIS established the U.S. Drought Portal, drought.gov, which has become a valuable resource for decision makers at the federal, state and local levels, and for farmers, businesses and individuals. This website provides current data from weather observations, early warnings about droughts, and support services for managing droughts. The website includes the U.S. Drought Monitor map, another valuable feature that is updated weekly.

The NIDIS Reauthorization will improve interagency coordination, early warnings, critical data sharing, and decision services related to drought. The bill encourages further research, monitoring and forecasting, along with further development of regional early warning systems that will help state, local and federal officials, farmers and water managers better prepare for and respond to drought.

Taxable property renditions are due April 15.

Does this apply to you?
If you own tangible personal property that is used to produce income, such as the equipment or inventory owned by a business, it does.

What is a rendition?
A rendition is a report to your county appraisal district that lists all of the taxable property that you owned or controlled on Jan. 1 of this year. This often applies to furniture, fixtures, equipment or inventory owned by a business.

What are the advantages of filing?

- If your property's value depreciated, you can file a report of decreased value.

What is the deadline?

- The last day for filing renditions is April 15.
- An automatic extension to May 15 is available if requested in writing by the April 15 deadline.
- The chief appraiser may grant an additional 15 days to an owner who shows good cause in writing.

REMEMBER!!
Filing is your responsibility. If you render late, don't render or file an incomplete or false rendition, you may face a 10 to 50 percent penalty.

Varsity soccer squads stumble in Area Championships

Ryan Garrett
Eliminating the Bi District round the previous week, the Rockwall teams fell in the Area playoffs on Friday night. The playoff round for Rockwall's boys and girls and the Heath Lady Hawks. The Yellowjacket boys played a hard-fought game against JJ Pearce at Plano Stadium, falling in a shootout 2-1. Scoreless at halftime, the boys scored first in the second half off a penalty kick. The girls' teams trailed for much of the second half until Clay Rittershaus scored the tie with one minute remaining, and to send the game into overtime. The boys lost two players to red-card penalties and played two men through overtime. After two scoreless overtime periods and eight shootout rounds, Pearce eliminated the Yellowjackets. Also on Friday, The Lady Jackets had a tough task of going up against the defending 5A State Champions Plano West. The Wolves overwhelmed Rockwall 9-1 at Mesquite Memorial Stadium. Led by Abby Grace Cooper's three goals, Plano West controlled the game early, going into the half up by three. The Lady Jackets came out of halftime on fire and Alyssa Higdon scored the Jacket's single goal two minutes into the second. That was all Rockwall could manage, as the speed and fielding of Plano West was too much for the Lady Jackets. Despite their great efforts, the Heath Lady Hawks also fell in the Area playoff, 2-0 against McKinney Friday at Plano Clark Stadium.
