The Luxury of Laziness

Homer Henderson
 Before Christmas, they were advertized to the saturation point. On the last shopping day, we rushed out to buy them in desperation. Now a few days after the family Christmas tree, we have all received them. I am referring to the "gift for the man who has everything." Since a good many of us fall into that category for someone who is trying to give us a gift, nearly every Christmas tree yields its share of clever gadgets designed to do everything under the sun. I was especially amazed over the transistorized contraption that was a combination radio, clock, flashlight and cigarette lighter all in one portable carrying case.

I suggest that out of such gadgetry a thesis emerges: Gifts for the man who has everything symbolize the luxury of sheer laziness! Few peoples in the history of the human race have been able to afford this luxury. We of the American middle class and above join a select elite who down through the centuries have been able to really enjoy a little laziness. As long as such enjoyment remains within certain limits, I suppose it is a good thing which we ought to wish for all peoples in the world and all classes in our own nation. All work and no play might indeed make Jack a dull boy; but surely all laziness and no work would make him duller still! Deadly laziness occurs at both extremes of the pendulum: Some are trapped in the poverty of no initiative, no education, no will to work, no drive to achieve; and they so often become helpless in their laziness. Others have worked with great initiative, great will and drive to achieve; and the luxuries of their success have made them once again helpless in their laziness. Ironically enough, the very rich and the very poor often have something in common: the luxury of uncreative laziness!

We men who have everything, as it were, are prone to be coldly critical of the man who is trapped in the squallor of poverty's laziness. Yet we often fail to recognize the exact same sickness creeping into our own lives. Once having made it, we lean back in the proverbial easy chair with the television's remote control gadget in one hand and with the other hand on the chair's lounging and stereo controls; and thus we slip into the luxury of laziness. And surely there is nothing wrong with that provided we remember how to get up after enjoying the luxury for a while. Alas, some of us die too soon in the easy chair, uncreative, unconcerned, apathetic and lazy. In one of his poem's, T. S. Eliot laments those who "measure out their lives in coffee spoons."

My prayer for the dawning New Year in this last third of the twentieth century is that those of us who are privileged to really enjoy the luxury of laziness from time to time will be able to rise from the easy chair again and again because of our concern for those in the world and in Ropesville whose laziness is poverty stricken and bitter, whose laziness is not momentary relaxation but a prison of helplessness. As long as our sense of easiness in the easy chair is a little uneasy because of our sense of responsibility toward our neighbors who sleep on cold floors, there is hope, real hope for a new year, a new world, new life.

Postal Rate

Increase January 7

Increased rates for all classes of mail except parcel post and international mail will go into effect on January 7, Postmaster Martin reminded postal customers today.

"Even with the new rates of six cents for first class mail and 10 cents for air mail, postal service is still a real bargain. For six cents you can send a letter to any of the 50 States, to any United States territory or possession, to Canada or Mexico, or to an American serviceman stationed anywhere in the world."

Postmaster Martin pointed out that the new rate for post cards will be five cents and for air mail post cards eight cents.

She said the added cent in the letter rate is a 20 per cent increase compared to a 24 per cent boost in the rates for mailing newspapers and magazines and a 34 per cent hike for advertising circulars, "occupant" mail, and other material in the third-class category.

The new rate of six cents per ounce for first class mail applies up to 13 ounces and the new rate of 10 cents per ounce for air mail applies up to 7 ounces. Under the new rate structure all first class mail over 13 ounces and all air mail over 7 ounces will be merged into a single category.

These heavier pieces of first class mail and air mail subject to the single rate schedule will be delivered by the fastest available means of transportation.

A flat rate of 80 cents will be charged for all mail in this category up to one pound. For all mail weighing more than one pound, the present air parcel post rates will continue to apply, except that the postage on matter weighing between one and five pounds will change at half pound intervals rather than one pound intervals.

Another rate change that will affect the general public is the increase from four to six cents for the first two ounces of individual pieces of third class mail. Unsealed greeting cards may be sent at this rate, Postmaster Martin said.

She emphasized that the new rate on unsealed greeting cards will not go into effect until January 7 and until then they can be mailed at the old rate of four cents.

The Postmaster also noted that effective January 7 special handling will be available on third-class parcels weighing between eight and sixteen ounces. Special handling has not been available on these parcels since 1958, when packages weighing between eight and sixteen ounces were transferred from fourth to third class mail.

There will be no changes in the charges for special delivery, special handling, registered mail, certified mail, cash on delivery or insurance, Postmaster Martin said.

"We have an ample supply of one cent stamps on hand," Postmaster Martin said, "for those people who have five cent stamps and need one cent stamps to make up the postage required under the new rates."

Higher rates also will go into effect January 7 for all categories of second class mail, bulk-rate third class mail, controlled circulation mail, and the educational materials category of fourth class mail. Matters using these classes who need information on the new rates should contact the local Post Office.

CHRISTMAS

— by Emilie Peck

Christmas! — It don't mean much to our fighting boys — Machine guns and rifles are their only 'toys' — We'll walk resplendent in our warm, new winter clothes — While freezing soldier, somewhere, — (A boy that no one knows —) Will be fighting hard, that we back here — May live in peace, instead of fear! — That we may light that Christmas tree — (The one that he'd so love to see) — Just suppose we stop to think about — What our boys must go without — Can we, today, our sons forget; who are racked with pain; and deafening d'n? — Come, let us pray for our boys tonight — That God will help them win this fight — Then, let us pause, and kneel to say — "God bless you men, this Christmas Day!"

Jest Some Thoughts - -

We have again just passed the time of year of 'I want' — 'Will you bring me' — and 'Can I have'.

him. In twelve short months he will be the image of 1967 and this weary world will move on to wear out the next hopeful year.

The little fellows are always sure the jolly man in the red suit and long white beard is going to make their wildest dreams come true. It is a renewed joy each year to see such innocence.

It is amazing how time moves on. It truly, honestly, waits for no man or event. The great tide of time has moved forward steadily since creation, except for the one Biblical account when the Creator held time in check for His people to win a battle.

The great pleasure of giving instead of receiving comes (or should come) in only a few short years. So instead of looking for the Santa of their dreams they enjoy being a Santa to their friends and loved ones and later on to their children.

We know not what the coming year may hold; for our family, our little City, the County nor our great Nation. We do know it will not be all joy. Neither will it be all sorrow. A combination of the two makes for the human life. Faith and hope make it possible to look forward to better times when the going gets rough.

The smallest of gifts given with love outweigh the costly presents given from a feeling of duty.

We look back on 1967 with mingled emotions. The first month held much sorrow in the loss of a very close loved one. We realize now that this vacant spot will never be filled. The last month brought much joy in the form of our first grandchild.

Christmas must be an awfully dull time for a person who can't enjoy it for grumbling about the extra expenses incurred.

We are looking forward to 1968. There are many goals we hope to achieve; such as newer model machinery so we can continue to print the little Ropes Headache.

We still find it exciting and fun to spend many days wondering just what could be in the gaily wrapped packages, and at last Christmas Eve arrives and we thoroughly enjoy each gift with the knowledge that each was bought especially for us.

One life ended. Another began.

Christmas also usually means the get-together of relatives and friends. This one was especially great as our new grandson and his parents from far off Florida are here.

To our readers we wish a very happy, prosperous year in 1968. May your dreams and hopes be realized.

We make the age-old grandparental statement — There's not another one like him — he's the prettiest, beet and smartest. We are sure no one else's grandchild can ever equal him. Though he is only three weeks old, he can outdo anyone's six month old, and we bet he knows who's responsible for the change in feeding habits and extra handling. Who ever heard of a schedule when they went to visit grandparents anyway.

We sure hope you lasted to the end of this column, because we want to remind you to be sure and register to vote. Even those who have been exempt in the past are now required to register. You may do so at Tyree's Insurance in Ropes.

We realize grandchildren are an old story to lots of people, but this being our first is something at our house. It's been a long time since there's been a little baby at our house. Besides, they're making us grandparents younger every day.

1968 will be a very important one for politics, so be prepared.

The little mite, weighing probably seven and a half pounds, who has come into our home for a brief stay and has captured every heart from Great-Grandmother down to Tony the poodle, is called Jeff, and he is the son of Harrell and Berrilyn Whitehead.

So, now we come again to the time of year for 'I resolve' — 'I will' — 'I will not' — and 'To heck with it, I'll try again next year'.

Old 1967 with his crooked back, staff and long beard has about had his say on the pages of history in this old world. Young 1968 is now rarin' to go full of hope, promises, and the ability to add another year to each person. But the laugh is on
