Greenbugs Infest Hockley Sorghum

Greenbugs are beginning to infest Hockley County Sorghum fields, according to County Agent Bill Taylor. Taylor said that infestations were heavier in older sorghum, but not yet cause for undue alarm. General recommendations are for control measures to be taken when infestations are enough to kill more than two normal sized leaves prior to hard-dough stage. The greenbug population usually reaches approximately 1200 to 1500 per plant to do this damage. Taylor further stated that control efforts the past few years had not generally increased yields much over five per cent or ten per cent.

Taylor said that where control measures are taken lower rates of insecticide should be considered. For example: a demonstration was conducted at the Lubbock Experiment Station last week that illustrates results of last years research.

The field having the highest number of greenbugs (estimated at 750 per plant) was treated for demonstration purposes to test an extremely low rate, intended to keep the greenbugs below damaging levels and retain beneficial insects. The greenbugs had killed one mature leaf and would have surely killed another within a few days. At the time the field was checked, the greenbugs were approaching a population density sufficient to cause economic loss, approximately 1,000 to 1,500 greenbugs per plant and loss of two mature leaves.

The 82-acre field was divided into two sections. One section was treated with 1/6 pint of Di-syston^R, and the other was treated with 1/2 pint. When the fields were checked two days following the treatment, the sector receiving the 1/2 pint showed a density of less than one greenbug per plant and no beneficial present. In contrast, the sector receiving the 1/6 pint of Di-syston^R showed a population density of approximately 100 greenbugs per plant; and more importantly, large numbers of predators and parasites were actively working this sector.

This demonstration points out three important facts concerning the control of greenbugs. The first is, don't treat unless there is definite need; the second is, don't apply more insecticide than you need. 1/2 pint of Di-syston^R will sterilize it as well as a pint. The final point is that some selectivity for preservation of highly important predators and parasites can be obtained with the low rate. This preservation of the parasites and predators of the greenbug will in most cases prevent them from reaching numbers sufficient to cause subsequent economic damage and prevent the field from being left defenseless to the attack of secondary pests, e.g. Banks grass mites. For this purpose the 1/6 pint of Di-syston would be better.

The lower dosage rates for other insecticides are quoted from new guides available at the County Agent's office.

Fresh Vegetables

Have you lost your pep and energy, your "get up and go"? Or do you have a faded appetite?

"Vegetables, packed with vitamin and minerals, can help build appetites that you'll need for upcoming summer activities."

Vegetables are the best food source for Vitamin A, dark green and deep orange vegetable items make best choices for this important vitamin.

Tomatoes, green peppers and members of the cabbage family—when served raw or cooked correctly—can substitute for the Vitamin C citrus family.

Vegetables can supply iron, calcium and other minerals needed in small amounts. Because of their bulk and roughage, the products aid in digestion, and they are life savers for the weight watcher. Most are low in calories but high in flavor, bulk and texture.

Butter or gravy comprise the calorie pitfalls of vegetable dishes.

Buying vegetables isn't governed by any set rules, vegetable items all have individual characteristics and values. Experience in personal selection is the best teacher.

The following guidelines can help the consumer in selecting top quality.

Personally select perishables, and keep use in mind when buying. If it's necessary to handle the vegetable items to learn quality or condition, don't burise them. Injuries cause spoilage, so handle carefully.

Large sizes aren't always of the best quality or the most economical. Again, buy with use in mind.

Also check quality, if waste and low quality offset reduction in price, purchase may prove a bargain.

Nutrition-wise, there is a considerable loss of Vitamin C when vegetables are wilted and limp, but other vitamins and minerals are retained.

Low prices aren't a guide. If prices are low due to an overabundance, it's possible that quality at these prices does constitute a bargain, but only when quality justifies.

Consider seasonal production, especially when freshness and economy are wanted

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Harrell Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Cox of Lubbock and Mr. and Mrs. John Ream were in Lubbock Thursday of last week attending funeral services for Thomas' brother-in-law, Edwin Powe, who died Tuesday in West Texas Hospital in Lubbock.

A resident of Acuff, Powe was 46 years old.

Travis Boyd, minister of Ropesville Church of Christ, officiated at the services which were held at Sanders Funeral Home. Interment was in City of Lubbock Cemetery.

Survivors include his wife, Orilla; three sons, Tommy of Shallowater, and Jerry and Marvin of the home; his mother, Mrs. Bearder of Acuff; and one brother, Jimmy Powe of Lubbock.

for canning and or freezing.

Cook vegetables quickly and to the tender-crisp stage for best flavor, brightest color and minimum loss of food value. Use a small amount of water, keep utensils covered and don't throw away cooking liquid. Avoid pre-soaking and stir as little as possible. Serve promptly.

Toxaphene To Be Used In Cattle Tick Dips

An amendment to federal regulations to allow use of toxaphene as a dip for cattle tick eradication has been adopted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Previously, the regulations governing inter-state movement of animals permitted use only of arsenic, dioxathion (Delnav) and coumaphos (Co-Ral).

The amendment became effective upon signature by an official of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

Both species of cattle ticks — Boophilus microplus and Boophilus annulatus — have been found in a quarantine zone in south Texas. The quarantine zone, necessary because of presence of the ticks in Mexico, extends from the mouth of the Rio Grande River 500 miles northwest to Amistad Dam near Del Rio and varies in width from a few yards to several miles.

APHIS officials have alerted cattle owners to watch for ticks and to submit specimens for identification. If fever ticks are found, infested and exposed cattle are dipped in tick-killing baths at regular intervals for at least one year.

To protect fish and wildlife, officials warn that after dipping, animals must be kept out of streams and ponds for at least seven days. Tests made at Beltsville, Md., have shown that until that much time elapses, animals retain enough dip solution on their legs and bodies to pollute water.

Public notice of the action is scheduled to be published in the Federal Register. Copies may be obtained by writing to Animal Health Programs, APHIS, USDA, Federal Center Building, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.
