THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1963

Pictured above is the Primrose school building, at one time located two miles south of Ropesville on the Blankenship land, the first school to be established in Hockley County. According to Mrs. Harry Copeland of Ropesville, the school was opened in 1904. Mrs. Copeland could name only a few of the children pictured. In 1926 the school was taught by Brenda Clifford, a cousin of Mrs. Copeland, who later married the late Odis Copeland, and now lives in Lubbock.

Storms Rip Across South Plains for 9 Straight Days

Small Tornado Does Damage West of Ropesville—Another Waltz Over Town—Crop Damage Will Top a Million Dollars in This Territory

Right now the storm weary folks of the South Plains are hoping for bright, clear days, free of rain, hail, high winds and tornadoes. Such weather was predicted for Monday night by the Lubbock Weather Bureau, but as this is written Tuesday at fifteen minutes to three o'clock, clouds have begun to build up in the south and southwest, with the promise that before the night is over more storms will be on us.

Of course, this is a guess, just as the weather bureau makes and if we missed it, you can consider the source.

The severe storms started in this area Wednesday evening of last week, just after the Plainsman was put to press. Clouds had been making up and backing off most of the afternoon when between six and seven o'clock a cloud came in from the southeast and for several minutes pounded us with golf ball size hail. Following this came rain. This lasted for about a half hour, then the electricity went off and we were in the dark. Then the rain stopped, and after taking a look at the clouds we decided the trouble was over.

Going home from the office we noticed the wind started blowing, but we thought little of it. So, by candle light we set about cooking supper, when of a sudden we heard the siren on Dub Riney's car. We knew something was wrong—Dub never blows the siren except in extreme emergency—so we dropped everything and took off for the cellar. All we had was high wind and rain, but our transistor radio told us, "A tornado which had traveled on the ground for eight miles lifted just two minutes before it got to the town of Ropesville."

Ray Tussy, whose experience in Oklahoma with tornadoes qualifies him as an expert, told us next day, "I saw the tornado after it lifted, and it went directly over Ropes."

A police unit out of Brownfield, who followed the cloud, stated, "The only thing good about it was that it lifted about two minutes before it reached Ropesville."

It is the same cloud which smashed things at and near New Deal.

However, the Ropes community suffered heavy damage. At the Corky Price place 6 miles northwest, a barn was destroyed, while 4 miles V. L. Wallace lost the top and west end of his barn. The torrential rain and hail wiped out most of the crops over a six or seven mile radius west of Ropes. East of town suffered like damage. As a matter of fact, few crops are left in this territory.

Sunday night's storm finished the crops east and also southeast. E. G. Moore stated the hail beat the roof on his house for the second time recently. Ray Tussy and J. C. Pointer lost their cotton, and also as far as A. Ryals' seven miles east.

As this is written Wednesday the entire South Plains, from one border to the other is denuded of crops—for nine days a storm cycle has brought upward to twenty tornados, hail as large as baseballs, and cloud bursts which has turned the entire area into one vast lake destroying all the crops.

Tuesday we had a rather pleasant day until around 4 o'clock in the afternoon when clouds commenced making up all around us. Seemingly the clouds were moving north and tornados were reported in the vicinity of Littlefield, Plainview, Earth and other points north.

However, at the same time, and unreported and undetected by radar, a small tornado was reeking damage just west of Ropes. This occurred shortly after seven.

Mrs. M. M. Collins told the Plainsman the storm came out of the southwest. The rain, hail and sand were so thick you couldn't see out the window. I know we were on the edge of the tornado.

At the old Bates farm, now occupied by C. P. Arnwine the tornado completely destroyed a 20x40 building, scattering it out across the field, also a workshop, and took off the roof of another barn. At the Jephcott place a wellhouse was destroyed and the motor lifted off its base and turned over. Down the road, at the Bradshaw place, he told us, "There is no question about it, it was a small tornado." Here a big barn was completely demolished and other damage done.

Ben Stephens had damage, but we failed to reach him by phone, but one report was it lifted the roof on his house, and scattered a barn over the countryside.

During this time Ropes had only a high wind. Clouds were on all sides. Then, everyone thought the storm was gone, when about eight o'clock Marshal Dub Riney sounded the fire siren. At that time a small tornado was visible, going northeast. It dropped its tail, just east of town, doing no damage, then curled back up in the clouds.

Three-fourths inch of rain was registered in Ropes, and seven-eighths was reported at the Chitwood place, west. Rain amounted to a half inch and more than an inch over this territory with some hail.

FOR SALE—Washer and Dryer in good condition. Phillip Kimberlin, or call 3891 Ropes.

Most reformers are satisfied with themselves. If everyone thought alike, it would be a strange world.

DIRECT DISTANCE

DIALING (DDD)

(Following is the first in a three-part series on Direct Distance Dialing, which General Telephone Company of the Southwest is introducing here June 27, 1963.)

Just three weeks from now this area will have the most modern long distance telephone service available—Direct Distance Dialing.

But, just exactly how does DDD work?

To answer this question, we went to Paul Farrar, district manager for General Telephone of the Southwest. Here are some of the important points to remember in preparing for your use of DDD.

With DDD, a new key number—112—will become a dialing line, as these three numbers are always the first ones you dial to connect you to the DDD equipment (just as "O" connects you with the long distance operator).

At the same time it will be necessary to dial the code number of the area you are calling. With nearly 80 million phones across the country, the industry found it necessary to divide the United States into areas, assigning a specific code number to each area such as 505 for New Mexico and 303 for Colorado.

"Some of the more populated states such as California, New York and Texas were assigned several different area codes," Farrar explained.

Texas six area codes. Area code 915 covers most of West Texas, 512 includes South Texas, 713 is for Southeast Texas, 214 for the Northeast corner of the state, and 817 for North Central Texas. The sixth and final area code for Texas, 806 includes the Panhandle South Plains portion. 806, then, is the area code for Ropesville.

Only the station-to-station calls may be dialed direct. Person-to-person, collect, credit card and pay station calls must still be directed through the Operator.

On all DDD (or station-to-station) calls there are three steps:

1. Dial the access code, 112.
2. Dial the area code of the place you are calling. There is one important exception here. If the city you are calling has the same area code designation as the town from which you are calling, step number two can be eliminated. In other words, if you are at a number here in town and are calling a number in Lubbock, which is also in the 806 code area, you need not complete step number two—simply go on to step three described below.
3. Dial the number you are calling.

At this point the phone user will hear a "zip-zip" tone indicating that a checking operator has come on the line to record his number. Upon hearing the "zip-zip", the calling party should immediately give the operator his number without her having to ask for it and the call will be sped on its way.

To further explain Direct Distance Dialing, here are some examples of calls from this area and what you would dial.

A. You're in Ropesville and wish to call Porter 5-2521 in Lubbock.

1. 112, the access code.
2. Dial PO5-2521. (No area code necessary since both the called number and the calling number are in the same dialing area, 806.)

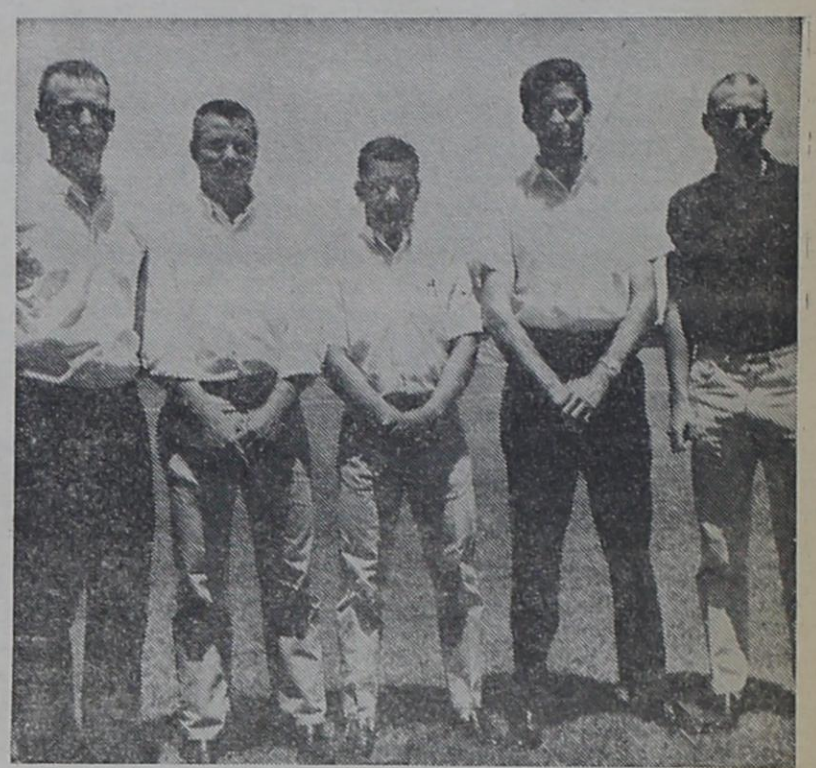

B. You're in Ropesville and wish to call EXpress 3-2101 in Hobbs, New Mexico.

1. Dial 112, the access code.
2. Dial 505, the area code for New Mexico.
3. Dial EX3-2101.

C. You're in Ropesville and wish to call Murray Hill 7-3400 in New York City.

1. Dial 112, the access code.
2. Dial 212, the area code.
3. Dial MU7-3400.

NEWS FROM THE NATION'S CAPITOL

Washington, D. C., June 6—The House of Representatives in Washington last week voted down a bill which would have extended the bracero farm labor law for two more years. This was an unexpected setback for the legislation. The present law expires on December 31.

Representative George Mahon, who supported the House Bill and spoke in its behalf, expressed disappointment over the refusal of the House to extend the program and pledged his best efforts toward renewed efforts to meet the threatened crisis in farm labor.

Mahon said that it was too early to predict future developments. An attempt to pass a one-year extension rather than a two-year extension is being considered. Another alternative being considered is the possibility of securing emergency farm labor under the provisions of existing immigration laws which permit the recruiting of foreign farm labor under certain conditions. In previous years Mexico has expressed opposition to this procedure.

Mahon pointed out that he and other supporters of the bracero legislation feel that domestic workers should be given preference and that braceros should not displace domestic workers. The regulations prohibit the use of braceros unless they are urgently required.

At the peak of the program in former years as many as 445,000 braceros have been used. By last year the program had dropped to less than 200,000 workers. Despite rapid developments in mechanized farming a limited number of braceros are required, according to Mahon, in order to prevent severe hardship and crop losses in certain areas.

Braceros are used principally in Texas and California and other areas of the Southwest. They are also used in vegetable crops in Colorado, Minnesota and Michigan.

Mahon has advised West Texas bracero users that he will continue to be of all possible service in connection with efforts which must be made to avoid a crisis in farm labor in bracero-using areas next year.

WHAT IS A FARMER

Mrs. L. S. Rosser turned in the following article which she clipped under the heading, "Grain Producers News", and decided it was worthy of reprint.

A farmer is a paradox—he is an over-all executive with his home his office; a scientist using fertilizer attachments; a purchasing agent in an old straw hat; a personnel director with grease under his fingernails; a dietitian with a passion for alfalfa, amines, and antibiotics; a production expert with a surplus, and a manager battling a price cost squeeze.

He manages more capital than most businessmen in town.

He likes sunshine, good food, State Fairs, dinner at noon, auctions, his neighbors, his shirt collar unbuttoned and, above all, a good soaking rain in August.

He is not much for drouths, ditches, throughways, experts, weeds, the eight-hour day, grasshoppers or helping with house-work.

Farmers are found in fields—plowing up, seeding down, rotation from, planting to, fertilizing with, spraying for, and harvesting. Wives help them, little boys follow them, the Agriculture Department confuses them, city relatives visit them, salesmen detain them and wait for them, weather can delay them, but it takes heaven to stop them.

A farmer is both Faith and Fatalist—he must have faith to continually meet the challenges of his capacities amid an ever present possibility that an Act of God (a late spring, an early frost, tornado, flood, drouth) can bring his business to a standstill. You can reduce his acreage but you can't restrain his ambition.

Might as well put up with him—he is your friend, your competitor, your customer, your source of food, fiber, and self-reliant young citizens to help replenish your cities. He is your countryman—a denim-dressed, business wise, fast growing statesman of stature. And when he comes in at noon, having spent the energy of his hopes and dreams, he can be recharged anew with the magic words: "The market's up."
