this is government acreage. North of Childress there were crops on the sand, but the frost would have to hold off until next July if they were to mature.

At Childress we met our kin and in the dining room of a large cafe we talked over old times, and had a generally good time. The food was not only good but plentiful, and reasonably priced.

Here we parted with our brother who accompanied his wife and daughter to their home in Lone Wolf. Incidentally, our brother had been blind for several years, but a surgeon in Amarillo completely restored his sight.

From Childress we took off for Memphis. In between was Steeleen. We had heard of Steeleen for many years but this was the first time we had seen it. It was a decaying town, the victim of modern transportation.

The route leading to Memphis is, indeed, a scenic sensation. We don't think we have ever seen a more beautiful country. On top of the Caprock we turned off to visit the Boy Scout camp in Palo Duro Canyon. As we came upon the canyon there was a sheer drop of more than a thousand feet, and below were trees, grass and varied colored walls of the canyon, the layers of dirt and stone stacked as if laid by human hands.

To reach the bottom we took a winding, narrow road—a one-way affair which clung to the wall of the precipice and wound round and round. As the heavy car eased downward you could hear the rocks being dislodged on the side and dropping into the chasm.

One couldn't help but think, "What if the brakes failed".

In the bottom of the canyon were shelters for the scouts. There was running water and a living spring and beauty which all but took one's breath away. But, it was hot. Not a breath of air disturbed the leaves on the trees, and above the rim we could see the clouds peaking over—they appeared to be right on the ground. Marching away to the east is a valley with multi-colored plants and shrubs.

RETURNS FROM CHICAGO, ILL.

C. C. Brooks, International Harvester Company dealer in Meadow, Texas, was in Chicago several days last week attending an Introductory showing of the new line of International Harvester tractors, just off the production line.

In addition to six basic power sizes and many different models of Farmall and International tractors,

Mr. Brooks saw a number of new McCormick farm implements, also introduced at the Company showing, attended by most of the 8,500 Harvester dealers and sales personnel in the United States and Canada.

The new line of tractors is in keeping with the trend towards larger and faster operations, both on the farm and in industry. There are six-cylinder engines on the big tractors, advanced styling, increased power, in most models, and a host of new operating features; a wider selection of gasoline, L.P.G., distillate or distillate engines, and new power steering on more models than ever before.

New tractors are being shipped to District I.H. Sales offices and soon can be seen in dealers' show rooms. In the meantime, Mr. Brooks announces that Meadow Implement Co. will join with other Harvester dealers and the district sales office in presenting a big public I. H. Field Demonstration Day, to show the new tractors and equipment, at Plainview on August 15th. Complete information on the Field Day Demonstration can be obtained from the Meadow Imp. Complete Meals from "extra" food made possible with my food freezer!

says Mrs. Marvin Shurbet, PETERSBURG, TEXAS

What housewife can always measure exactly how much of each food her family will eat? Even the most exacting woman will occasionally have vegetables, meats and desserts "leftover." It's a shame to throw good food away and no one really likes to do that. Well, Mrs. Shurbet has solved that problem. Here's what she says, "When I cook more than my family eats at a meal, I put remaining servings on foil, divided plates, seal in SARAN WRAP, and store in my food freezer. If additional portions are needed to make complete dinners, I simply add them from various meals."
