Man Lands; Walks on Moon

Last Rites Conducted For Tom Redman

Services for Thomas J. Redman, Sr., 86, were conducted Friday at 4:00 p.m. from the First Baptist Church in Ropesville. The Rev. Wayne Perry of Lubbock officiated. He was assisted by the Rev. Bill Curry, pastor.

Interment was in Resthaven Memorial Park, Lubbock, under direction of George Price Funeral Home of Levelland.

Mr. Redman passed away Wednesday in Heritage Manor of Levelland where he had been a resident since April.

Mr. Redman and his family moved to Ropes in 1938 from Meadow, where they had resided since 1929. He, and the former Miss Mary Lee Goad were married January 19, 1913 at Childress, Texas.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. T. J. Redman, Sr., of Ropesville; three sons, T. J. Redman, Jr. of Ropesville, Dalton Redman of Morton and James Redman of Wellman; three daughters, Mrs. Sylvia Winslow of Portland, Oregon, Mrs. Verida Fuller of Canby, Oregon, and Mrs. J. P. Riley of Berryville, Arkansas; fifteen grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were H. Joe Schwartz, Eugene Lewis, Glenn Price, Merlin Hobbs, Doyle Darby and Earl Palvado.

The Plainsman, and many friends in the area express deepest sympathy to the family in their time of sorrow.

It is hard to describe; the thrill, the feeling of pride; the awesome moment when the astronauts stepped from their spaceship to the surface of the moon. A wonder that exceeds our wildest imagination.

When we step out the door at night, and behold the moon, in all its beauty, that lights our dark hours, and realize that an American flag actually stands there, placed by human hands. The greatness of such a feat to crowd the pages of history.

We know that we have seen many wonders in our lifetime, but this far surpasses anything yet accomplished. In all truthfulness, we thought it couldn't be done. Which brings to mind the following lines from a poem. We don't even remember who wrote it, but it seems very apt at this time for all pessimists like myself:

Somebody said it couldn't be done, But he, with a chuckle, replied "That maybe it couldn't — But he would be one, Who wouldn't say so 'till he tried.

We can now believe anything is possible.

Almost in proportion to walking on the moon, is the ability of the great minds who produced the camera which made it possible for us to watch this time of history. When you consider the distance, and realize that sitting in your living room, you are able to observe what is going on thousands of miles away, and through outer space, it is astonishing.

When we pause to go into the depths of what has been accomplished, we are not only amazed, we are frightened, and also proud.

We have heard some remark, "What is the good of it, so they landed on the moon." Well, we don't know, but there is no telling what might come of it. In the future, these great minds who were able to devise the equipment for this trip, are liable to come up with anything. We believe good is bound to follow.

That Our Creator should give this knowledge to mere man is something to be thought about. A purpose is surely behind it. For man does not progress, and learn and find what to do and how to do it, without the help of the Almighty.

July 19, 1969 will forever be a day to remember. Regardless of what follows, this "first" cannot be duplicated. From now on, it will be AFTER the feat performed on that day.

Aren't you proud to be an American? We are.

JEST SOME THOUGHTS —

We were completely pooped last Saturday night while waiting for the astronauts to walk on the moon. We stayed glued to the boob tube for fear of missing this great spectacle.

However, it really wasn't dull. We suppose with kids around, it never is.

Our nephew, Troy Shanklin, who was visiting here at that time, came up with, "Hey, I've seen this movie before."

While our youngest remarked, "Let's turn to the other channel, maybe they're already walking on that one."

Our little grandson played ball all over the living room, oblivious to the great scene occurring right in front of him.

Our oldest remarked that is our son had a date on the moon, he would have to leave three hours early to do all the paraphernalia required to step out on the moon.

While our better half spent some time convincing us that the space ship we were watching that was so beautifully colored and clear was only a replica of the actual ship resting at that time on the moon's surface.

Our Mother admired the rocks and bushes around the replica the same as we did.

Meanwhile, our grandson played ball and irritated poor Tony by grabbing his toys and sitting on his stool.

Our oldest said she is glad she is out of school — oh, the dates and times that will have to be memorized.

Then, after devouring everything else in the house, we decided it was time to pop some corn. Just as we got to the kitchen, came the yell, "they're coming out!" So we all rushed back to the living room.

While our grandson played ball.

You know, it was hard to decide this week which was the most important for headlines, the moon walk or the rain.

But, as our youngest would say, "Not really." (That's what follows when she sees I don't approve of something.)

It's been dry here before, but the moon walk is definitely news.

The smiling faces of the farmers, the crowded pool hall and cafes, the jolly "good morning's" and the big smile displayed on every face, the result of much needed moisture.

So, we sincerely hope we really get stuck in all that new caliche on our street.

And, good news from the sewer, it is progressing right along.

So, all seems to be well in the little City of Ropesville tonight.

For once we'll try not to be such a pessimist and draw on tomorrow's sorrows — oh joys.

NEW LIFE IN OLD WAYS

—Don McWhorter

Today, in school here in Dallas I learned of a new way the Church is going about bringing the Gospel to people in the world. They taught us that the latest thing in Evangelism is to meet in small groups and study and learn of God. These groups are to discuss problems which confront the people and state their concerns and perhaps find a way to serve in the community or in the church better.

Another way is to go out to the countryside where the people are going for recreation and minister to them there.

Isn't this strangely like the old fashioned country churches who met out in the old brush arbour or met in the home of one of the community farmers. It sure sounds like the very beginnings of the Methodist Societies in England which John Wesley started.

But wait — didn't Jesus go out on the mountain, down by the river, out on a boat, down by the lake, and even preach to fishermen?

How about that, our school is teaching us to like Jesus did. God called each person who is a Christian to do this same thing. Go out where the people live, where they work, and where they go for recreation and minister to their needs even there.

The church is no longer being thought of as a certain denomination meeting on Sunday in a certain building. The church is PEOPLE (believers in Christ) who go about their daily lives in witness of the fact that God can change lives.

Yes, you, and you and you and I, we are the church. We must act like a church and proclaim the Gospel; serve those in need; witness to the Gospel; fellowship together and with everyone; and most of all do these things everywhere we are.

We are learning to put new Life into old ways.

For Bill Chandler

Big Rain Brings New Hat

And it fell, and it fell, and it fell. To the north, the south, the east and west. Life-giving, joy-giving raindrops that pattered down to the tune of harsh claps of thunder and brilliant displays of lightning.

But it fell easy, and soaked into the parched earth, giving the crops a new lease on life, and bringing a smile to the faces of all in this rural area who depend so much on the farmers for their livelihood.

Monday night about 11, the choking dust rolled in, and was followed by rains that lasted approximately four hours. The amounts received ranged from an inch to three inches, and every little drop was appreciated.

A few of the reports we received were: Liston Bevers, one and two tenths inches; Howard Johnson, one and one-tenth; Lockettville, three inches; Bud Rucker, one inch; Alvin Ryals, two and three-fourths; Frank Sylvester, one and six-tenths; Gerald Ward, two inches; Farm Center Gin, two and a half inches; Ennis Moore, two inches; Emory Hobbs, one and two-tenths inches; and in Ropes proper, our gauge in north Ropes showed one and a half inches, while Emra Walling way down here in south Ropes had a gauge showing one and six-tenths.

Nevertheless, things were a little soggy Tuesday, and the rains brought new hope for all the crops.

And the irrigation wells pump on. The good rains also brought a big smile to the face of local weather prognosticator Bill Chandler, as he was handed a collection of $13.61 for a new hat for producing this life-saving rain. If anyone deserved it, he does. Goodness knows, he has worked hard enough to bring some moisture to this dry land.

In all truthfulness, Bill has hit the weather much more often than the weather forecasters with all their instruments, and we are glad he is in Ropes to let us know when it is going to occur. He hasn't missed it very many times.

Be Familiar With Amendments by Aug. 5

(We bring you this week the final amendment to be voted on August 5. We hope you have clipped these amendments out for future reference. It is our desire to have a well informed public when it comes time to vote in just a few days now. So often, when the amendment vote comes up, it is Greek to everyone. Our next desire is to urge you to be sure and vote on these amendments on August 5th. They concern every Texan, and their future.)

AMENDMENT NO. 9-H.J.R. NO. 8 (Providing for annual sessions of the Texas Legislature.)

This proposed constitutional amendment to Article III, Section 5, of the Texas Constitution adds a new paragraph to provide for the holding of regular sessions in even-numbered years. Present provisions prescribe that regular sessions be held biennially in odd-numbered years. Thus the proposed amendment would institute annual sessions.

The amendment provides that regular sessions in odd-numbered years would retain the present split session concept whereby the first 30-day period of the session is set aside for the introduction of bills and the consideration of appointments and emergency matters submitted by the governor, the second 30-day period is allocated to committee hearings, and the final 60-day period is used for action on bills and resolutions then pending. Section 5 also retains the present provision allowing either house to determine its order of business by an affirmative vote of four-fifths of its membership.

The proposed amendment provides that regular sessions held in even numbered years shall not exceed 60 days in length and will be limited to legislation on the "subjects of providing funds for the support of... activities of the state government and emergency matters submitted by the Governor in messages to the Legislature."

The proposed amendment also provides that, commencing in 1971 the legislature, at each regular session, must appropriate funds for the support of activities of the state government for the succeeding fiscal year.

ARGUMENTS FOR —

1. Economic and efficient state government requires minimum time lag between the date budget estimates are actually prepared and the passage of an appropriation bill. State agencies can prepare a more precise and practical budget which takes into consideration only those funding requirements for the succeeding fiscal year instead of incorporating the inadequate guesses of longer-range planning.

2. The actual business of state government has reached such proportions that adequate supervision can no longer be given to the affairs of state by one legislative session every two years. More frequent legislative sessions would insure more considered legislation on budgetary and other matters since fewer items would be considered at each individual session and the legislature as a whole would be more in tune with the progress and activities of state government.

3. Annual sessions continue to gain support; more and more states are abandoning the biennial session as inadequate to serve the legislative needs of a modern, progressive state.

AGAINST —

1. The added regular session is uneconomical in itself that the cost of the additional session represents a significant increase in the cost of state government.

2. An additional session is unneeded because of the power of the governor to call a special session in the event that unforeseen circumstances require any new legislation prior to the succeeding regular session. On the basis of existing programs, adequate information is available for budgeting over a biennium. New or changed programs of sufficient importance can be provided for by special session.

3. The increased frequency of regular sessions would make service in the legislature a full-time job and even more economically unattractive than it is at the present time.

ABSENTEE VOTING PERIOD FOR CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT ELECTION

Raymond Dennis, County Clerk, announces that the absentee voting period for the August 5th proposed Constitutional Amendments election will start in his office on July 16, and continue through August 1st.

Also those persons who are already absent from the County temporarily, or those persons who are hospitalized or confined to their home will be permitted to vote absentee by mail. To be able to secure a ballot to vote by mail, whether you are absent from the County or confined in the hospital or at home, a person must mail a written request to the County Clerk giving their name, address and voters registration number. Also those persons who are sick and vote by mail will be required to have their Doctor sign an affidavit attesting to the fact that the applicant is unable to come to the Clerk's office and vote in person.

PUNISH CRIMINALS, NOT GUNS

For years, the National Rifle Association has said that the surest way to curb crime is to penalize criminals. Anti-gun leaders, however, taking advantage of public hysteria and emotions, managed to enact laws whose principal feature seems to be the pointless harassment of honest firearms owners. While the anti-gun element chased after guns in the empty name of crime control, law-breakers scrambled after loot and preyed on decent citizens with increasing success and little fear of punishment. From 1961 through 1966, for example, crime increased 61 percent while the number of criminals in jail decreased almost 10 percent. Due to the lenient attitude of most courts and the convenient smokescreen of the anti-gun campaign, habitual law violators never had it better.

The inconsistency of those who would control crime by restricting firearms shows itself most plainly and clearly when it comes to the mandatory penalty policy. Under this policy, which the NRA has long advocated, a criminal convicted of using a gun or similar means to commit a crime automatically gets extra years in jail and no authority can let him off with a slap on the wrist. Twenty-four Federal mandatory penalty bills are pending in the Congress. Sever States passed such laws last year, 9 more did so this year, and the New York Legislature also did so only to have Governor Nelson Rockefeller, a persistent advocate of registration and licensing, veto it.

More and more Americans appear to be accepting the clear logic of punishing criminals, not guns. Yet on virtually every test vote on this policy, in Congress or in State Legislatures, the lawmakers who call loudest for gun control usually have voted against mandatory bills—against the surest form of penalizing crimes in which the perpetrator used a gun. They even watered down a mandatory provision in the 1968 Federal gun act. One of their pat but unconvincing arguments is that sentencing ought to be left up to the judge.

A revealing example of where that can lead occurred recently in Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania sportsmen succeeded last year not only in unseating anti-gun U.S. Sen. Joseph Sill Clark but in persuading the Pennsylvania Legislature to pass a mandatory penalty law. Under it, criminals convicted of willful killings, rapes, robberies, burglaries, and kidnappings with firearms or deadly weapons of any sort automatically get at least 5 years in prison added to their other sentences, and no wriggling off. Judges have no alternative to cracking down on lawbreakers.

Now, it is asserted, some Pennsylvania judges haven't obeyed the law. Although Pennsylvania Attorney General William C. Sennett has ruled that "there is no doubt, that the law is mandatory," certain judges have balked at it. Director Warren Krein, of Allied Pennsylvania Sportsmen, Inc., termed them guilty of a "ridiculous abdication of judicial responsibility." The Pittsburgh Press, often anti-gun, editorialized that the judges "have no right to repeal an enactment of the Legislature by their own inaction or by a misreading of plain legal language." The newspaper also published a letter from a reader about a judge who objected to a mandatory sentence for a paroled convict who committed 6 fresh armed robberies while on parole. "This means," the letter writer said, "that many people were a trigger's pull away from serious injury or death. . . . It's about time judges start thinking about law-abiding citizens and quit coddling the criminal." Most Americans, we believe, agree on that.

The punishment should be made to fit the crime rather than, as it often is now, to suit the criminal.
