WE TRAVEL PART IV

We visited San Antonio principally to see the missions and the Spanish governor's palace, but due to some fancy car trading (James winding up with a new Chevrolet), we failed to see all the missions, but we did learn the missions were the forerunner of civilization in Texas.

Back in the latter part of 1600 A.D. Spain claimed most of what is Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma, and began to fear for their claim when the French established a trading post, so they sent into Texas friars, with soldiers to build missions.

The first missions were of wood and erected in East Texas, the ruins of which have long disappeared. Says one historian:

"The missionaries' untiring vigils and untold privations helped bring to Texas the learning and culture of the Old World. These devout men came to the New World to heal the wounds and repair the ruin of the conquerors' cruel plundering. The memorial of their sacrifice, heroism and labors are to be seen in the crumbling missions of the Lone Star State."

Our first stop was at San Jose Mission. As we neared it we saw its steeple, grayed with age, rearing its head into the blue. Turning from the main highway to pull up in front of it, we saw it was surrounded by an aging wall.

This mission, established in 1720, has been rebuilt in recent years, as a severe wind storm caused it to collapse. The reconstruction was brought about by the United States Government, the State of Texas, and the Catholic Church, and today it stands much as it did two hundred and thirty-nine years ago.

Walking toward the main entrance we saw the main gate was recessed into the wall. In a moment we discovered the strategy of this—above the gate were rifle slits; on each side of the entrance were places for guns. If an enemy reached the gate he would be under a deadly cross fire.

For a moment we stood and viewed the surrounding country—the flat plain—and in our imagination we jumped back to those good old days when the mission flourished.

Waving in the gentle breeze were crops of grain, gardens and orchards, with red men tending to the gathering of a rich harvest made possible by irrigation ditches running three miles to the river—these red men labored

Hail Damages Crops West of Ropesville --Rains Brings Much Needed Moisture

Rain, which ranged from a half inch to more than an inch accompanied by a fine hail, in spots, fell over the Ropes territory Sunday evening.

Tom Price, west of Ropes about ten miles, reported about a half inch fell at his place with high winds. He said there was no hail damage.

Skeet Robinson, Lockettville Farm manager, told the Plainsman from a half inch to an inch of rain fell over the farms, and that in spots there was heavy hail which beat the leaves, squares and bolls from the cotton. "I have no way of estimating the damage," said Skeet, "but in spots it was heavy, while in others no damage was done."

Mrs. Wilson Campbell, nine miles west of Ropes, reported their gauge showed eight-tenths of an inch on Friday, and Sunday night it showed a half. They also report a high wind Sunday night.

At the Ben Stephens place, some five miles west of Ropes, an inch of rain was reported, with hail knocking the leaves from the cotton.

Tony Sims, north of Ropes, reports eight-tenths of an inch, with little or no hail.

At the S. D. Buchanan place, some three miles northwest of Ropes, seven-tenths fell, with a small amount of hail that did no damage.

The Bradshaw place, across from the Stephens place, suffered hail damage.

About one and one-fourth inches fell on the M. M. Collins place, and no hail. Mrs. Collins said, "We didn't think it rained that much, but that is what our gauge showed."

Mrs. Weeks, near Foster's Store west of Ropes, told us, "I don't know how much it rained, but we had an extra high wind which blew down fences and roiled tubs around."

At the Foster Store the rain gauge showed three-fourths of an inch and no damaging hail.

East of Ropes, Mrs. Bob Thomas reported that three-fourths of an inch fell and little hail.

Northwest of Ropes, Winston Jones reported a good rain with some hail damage, while Gene Jeffcoat said his crop had been heavily damaged, and Newt Green in the same vicinity reported little damage from hail.

The storm which brought the rain and hail came in from the southwest and for a few minutes was a vicious appearing cloud. It came first, toward Ropes, then split and the heavy portion of it went south. Monday morning many folks reported they had gone to the storm cellar.

This section was more fortunate than some others, as tornados destroyed houses and hail flattened crops in places north and east of us.

Archie Moore Passed Away Monday at 4:20

Archie G. Moore, 65, pioneer citizen of the Ropes community but who for the past thirteen years has been living in Lubbock, passed away Monday in the Methodist Hospital in that city following a heart attack.

Archie was well and favorably known to the folks of the Ropes community, he having lived here for a long number of years, and still owned farm property near here. Since coming to the Plains in 1922 he has been identified with every move that has had for its aim the betterment of the town and community, and it can be said that he was instrumental in making this country a better place in which to live.

He was a pleasant man to meet and know; he was a devoted husband, a loving father, a progressive citizen and a good neighbor, and the community has suffered the loss of a friend in his passing.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at the First Church of the Nazarene, Lubbock. The Rev. Milton Poole, pastor, officiated, assisted by Dr. Joseph Gray, Lubbock, and the Rev. Dan Jones, Ropesville Nazarene pastor. Burial was in the City of Lubbock Cemetery under direction of the Franklin - Bartley Funeral Home.

Survivors include the wife; two sons, Audis and Charles, both of Lubbock; a daughter, Mrs. Joe Harris of Ropesville; his father, W. J. Moore of Ropesville; four brothers, E. G. of Ropesville, D. G. of Lubbock, the Rev. Austin Moore of Pampa, and W. O. of Wolforth; and seven grandchildren.

Pallbearers were G. H. Nelson, Jack Payne, John Denman, Floice F. Drake, J. W. Warrick, Ed Young, Otto Sims, and Clarence Jordan.

FAMILY REUNION IS HELD

A family reunion was held this past week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hatter in north Ropes, with the following in attendance:

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Thompson of Hereford, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Thompson of Henrietta, Mr. and Mrs. Gaylon Bryan and daughter of Hereford, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Thompson of Hereford, and Mrs. James Thompson of Ports Mouth, Virginia.

ATTEND McCOY FAMILY REUNION

Rev. and Mrs. Roy McCoy were in the Hodges community, 14 miles west of Abilene, Sunday where they attended a reunion of the McCoy family.

There were more than one hundred and fifty people present.

Rev. McCoy preached to the group in the afternoon.

VISITORS IN WEAKS HOME

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Orr, of Tahoka, were visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Weeks this past Sunday.

Mr. Orr expressed surprise at the shape of the crops in this section, stating that in his vicinity there were grain fields in which a combine would never be placed. He also stated that they had damaging hail in their section. There is little or no irrigation water where Mr. Orr lives and most farms are of the dry land variety.

LOONEYS GO TO EL PASO

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Looney, of Teague, and who ran Walt's Cafe while Mr. and Mrs. Weatherly were on vacation, have gone to El Paso where they have the concessions at the race track near that city.

BILL PATMAN HAS RAIN

Bill Patman was among those in Ropes Tuesday. Bill lives some five miles east of Ropes, and stated that on Sunday night nine-tenths of an inch fell in his neighborhood. There was no hail damage.

In discussing the rain situation, Bill and S. D. Buchanan stated that during the past five days the grain crop had deteriorated, and there was nothing one can do about it.

Mr. Buchanan told the Plainsman that he had quit watering his cotton crop, as he thought if he stopped the water the older bolls would have a better chance to mature.

INTEREST IN SKATING MOUNTING

E. N. Exum told the Plainsman Monday that interest in skating at the Community Center is growing, with over forty being present this past Saturday night.

"We have added forty sets of new skates," he stated, "and think we will be able to take care of every one."

NAZARENE CHURCH NEWS

Rev. Dan Jones, Pastor

Dan Jones, Pastor

The visible organized church of Jesus Christ is the most magnificent institution we have. It is composed of men and women from all walks of life, financed voluntarily by sacrificial giving of its members. Led by men and women whose lives are dedicated to the will of God and marked with heroic service.

It has withstood the opposition of its enemies of every age because it is built on the word of God and has the promise, "That the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Through the centuries the essential message of the church has remained the same, "Salvation from Sin". It is the presentation of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

The remarkable thing is that, in spite of confusion and failure on every hand, the church of Jesus Christ has retained its identity, and there is still enough gospel preached so that any interested, hungry soul can find God if he desires.

The Church of the Nazarene welcomes you to share

HELEN MARTIN VISITS SHARON CAMPBELL SUNDAY

Miss Helen Martin, of Levelland, was the guest of Miss Sharon Campbell Sunday.

WE TRAVEL

in security and peace for they had given their lives to the Almighty God, while about, in strategic places, stood soldiers in the uniform of Spain, rifles ready should a wild band of Indians start an attack.

It was evening and the bells in the temple chimed to call the workers to prayer—they heard, and trooped in to the encircling wall to file into the mission and on bended knee say their prayers, "Hail Mary, Holy Mother of God."

WE saw the admission window and laid down a silver coin to view this sacred temple which had withstood the ravages of time. It is evident they had night visitors, for along the path are lamp chimneys in which candles are burned in the dusk of the evening.

Along this path are the cubby holes where the people of the mission lived—some four hundred of them. Some of these places were open, others were padlocked. These chambers form the outer wall, and in each room was a rifle slit. The walls were of stone and the roofs of about six inches of dirt, making it in those days, impregnable—men with blunderbusses could take a horrible toll of an advancing enemy and yet be in comparative safety as there was never an arrow built that would penetrate those walls.

The mission, a fortress within itself, was prepared for a siege—within it were wells, hand dug, to furnish water, while in the grainary was sufficient room to store enough food to last several weeks. We noted in this building, which is well preserved, there was a niche in the wall for the image of the Virgin Mary.

In front of most of the small rooms were outdoor ovens in which they cooked their bread, and an inscription said that such ovens are in use in New Mexico today.

Passing around the enclosure, we came to the living quarters of the priests. These were more commodious than the rooms we just left. The rooms were furnished with antique furniture and stone cooking stoves, built into the walls. We were told charcoal was used for cooking purposes.

To digress a little. In one of the rooms we found a loom used for weaving cloth from wool. Sheep, goats and cattle were kept in great quantities, being furnished by the Spanish government.

An interesting item was the old watermill, which was used for grinding grain into flour. This mill was water powered, its water coming from an irrigation ditch and running away toward the river. By the side of this mill was an old ox cart with its heavy wooden wheels and short bed.

And now to the mission itself. As we stood before it we think we saw the most beautiful carvings it has ever been our lot to behold—cherubs, saints and angels cut from marble marched around the opening, and high above was the belfry—all of stone. This mission, even to the roof, was made of stone, and we wondered how it was done. Then we remembered reading that the outer walls of the mission were built to the required height, then the interior was filled with dirt and the dirt was shaped so the roof could be laid. The stones forming the roof, were cemented into place, and when the cement was dry the dirt was scooped from the building—it's logical.

Then we stepped into the vast auditorium. From the ceiling hung huge chandeliers which in ages past held hundreds of tallow candles, but today progress has moved in and electric bulbs replace them.

Immediately to the right as we entered was the confessional, and solid stone had been worn by human knees until there were cavities six inches deep.

In the front of the auditorium was the pulpit and a place for the choir, and an image of the Virgin Mary, as well as other images.

For over two centuries this image of the Virgin Mother, carved from wood, has stood, and we wondered at the number of candles that had been lighted, flared into life and slowly melted; how many men, women and children had knelt, according to their teaching, wailed and moaned for her help in passing their supplications on to the Christ who hardly recognized her during His ministry.

In back of the mission were the cloisters, with only the walls, with arched doorways and windows, standing, the roof gone. This had been a two story building.

Then we came face to face with the famous Rose Window—a work of art carved from marble. The story is:

The artist came from Spain, and behind him he had left his bride. As he labored he dedicated his work to her, carving a masterpiece in her name. His longing for her became so great he sent for her to join him. The wagon train was due to arrive on the day he finished the window. But when the wagon train arrived she was not with them—to his horror he learned she had died enroute.

In back of the wall and over a locked gate we could barely see parts of new edifices through the trees, and upon inquiry we learned the buildings were a modern parochial school, a convent, a monastery, and a parish. They still use the auditorium in the old mission for worship.

DO-IT-YOURSELF SHELTER PROJECT

For Family Protection From Radioactive Fallout

BASEMENT SHELTERS generally are the least expensive type that will give substantial protection. The basement shelter shown here can be built with solid concrete blocks as a do-it-yourself project for $150 to $200. Standard 8-inch solid concrete blocks are recommended because hollow blocks would have to be filled with concrete to give effective protection. Bricks are an alternative. If they are used, the walls and roof should be 10 inches thick to give the same protection as 8-inch solid concrete blocks. Plans for this do-it-yourself "allout Shelter," OCMD booklet, Copies may be obtained from Box Home Shelter, OCMD, F. Michigan.
