STEWARDSHIP

Homer Henderson

Stewardship is a most familiar word to all Christians. Every church member hears a number of pleas each year urging him to practice stewardship through the giving of his money. One of the most frequent criticisms of the minister is that "all he talks about is money," and one of the most talked about concerns among ministers is the difficulty involved in raising the necessary funds to support the work of the church. Somewhere within the bounds of this "budget problem" lies our misunderstanding and misuse of the word stewardship.

We pervert the Christian concept of stewardship when even we think of it only in terms of our money. Indeed, stewardship does involve the use of our money; but it also involves the totality of our lives and how we use them. A steward is one who holds in trust something which has been entrusted to him and to his responsible use. A steward of a business corporation is held responsible for the use of the corporation's money. In a like manner, we are stewards of a life which we did not earn or in any way obtain for ourselves. Life itself is a gift which has been entrusted to us by Almighty God. Consequently, God claims us, and holds us responsible in our total being for the use of our lives in His service.

Therefore, if we restrict our stewardship to the use of our money alone, we have not simply limited our stewardship; but we have perverted the very concept of real stewardship which must embrace all of life. Giving our money on the basis of a tithe or a percentage is certainly an admirable aspect of stewardship. However, a tithe or percentage, whether large or small, is not enough within itself to give account of what our stewardship must be.

Another perversion of stewardship is the notion that our obligation is fulfilled when we have given of our money and time and talent to our local church or denomination. The idea that we can set aside a certain amount of money or time or talent for the service of God and then use what is left as we wish is a denial of the term stewardship. We are stewards of life, not owners; consequently, God calls us to account for all of our money, all of our time, and all of our talent. If a dope peddler tithed 10 percent of his income to the church, he still could not be called a faithful steward inasmuch as the stewardship of his life would be woefully lacking. We either recognize God as the Lord of every moment or we do not.

Certainly, the church member needs to practice stewardship of his money if he believes in the life of his church. No church can live without the service of money. Yet the local church is also a steward and in a two-fold way. The money which the church spends belongs to the people who gave it and ultimately to God. Therefore, the church must be willing to practice stewardship, particularly the stewardship of money. Just as individual members are urged to give themselves for others, so the church must also be willing to give its life for others. The church which can easily raise the money for its local expenses but which has difficulty in obtaining the funds for missions and for other services outside the interests of the local congregat-

JEST SOME THOUGHTS—

We don't understand the weather this year, but we do comprehend the fact that the ole mercury has really done some unseasonable dipping.

Sunday night, for the first time ever recorded, it was 32 degrees above 0, and then on Monday night, May 1, a new low of 30 degrees was recorded for this section.

The late freeze has reportedly killed the cotton that was up, nipped the top of the feed, and also killed Irish potatoes, and our apricots sure didn't look very perky Tuesday morning.

Guess there's some good in every thing though—we sure haven't heard any mosquitoes buzzing lately.

We've about decided good ole Spring got sidetracked somewhere along the way.

Same old story, if we get our car washed, it rains, if we manage to get our house dusted, the sand blows, and if we remove the blankets from the beds, and get our air conditioner to going, it turns cold.

We enjoyed a trip to Louisiana this past weekend. Saw a few of our relatives. Also saw mosquitoes that looked like flies, and stung like hornets. Didn't see the sun!

Guess the best thing about getting home was the water. Their water tastes to us just like a river bottom smells. Can see why most of them use chicory coffee.

We had no rain, except a little mist before we reached Longview. On the return trip it rained some just ahead of us at Fort Worth.

Was nice to get away for a couple of days, but nicer to get back.

Well, it's about that time of year again when school will soon be out. We are ready. Just the extra week to make up for the Easter holidays, seems much longer.

For our part we would just as soon have school straight on through, except for a few days at Christmas.

When you don't get out until the last of May and begin in August it seems to make summer very short.

Know what to do in case an elephant breaks his toe? Call a tow (toe) truck.

That's the latest from the fifth grade.

And finally, we pass the following on to you:

Trying to rest after an exceedingly hard day at the office, poor father was being bedeviled by a stream of unanswerable questions from little Willie.

"What do you do down at the office?" the youngster finally asked.

"Nothing," shouted the father.

After a thoughtful pause, Willie inquired, "Pop, how do you know when you're through?"

Erlan Gresham Elected To School Board Sat.

31 votes.

Monday night, May 1, the Board met and was reorganized.

Re-elected as president was G. W. Sosebee. H. Joe Schwartz was re-elected vice-president, and Bill Odom was elected secretary.

Nola Knows

By Nola White

Dear Nola - I am a postman and it's getting to the time of year when people turn on their sprinklers and thoughtlessly place them where I have to walk through them to get to their mailbox. I hate this. Isn't there something I can do about it?

Postman

Dear Postman - I suppose it would be unethical to hold their mail in your hand while you walk through the sprinkler.

Dear Nola - Why don't the Latin Americans living in Texas speak English? It always irritates me when I'm around a bunch of people speaking a language I can't understand.

Texas

Dear Texas - It is naturally easier for anybody to speak his native tongue. However, Latins should speak English for the sake of their children who will go to English-speaking schools. To be assimilated in the culture of an adopted land, one must adopt the culture of that land—and this includes their language.

Dear Nola - I visit my neighbor often and like her very much except for one thing. She has a large, long-haired white cat that invariably jumps up in my lap when I'm visiting and gets cat hair on my dress. I've told her that I don't like this, but she won't do anything about it. What do you think of this?

Fuzzy

Dear Fuzzy - If the cat ever comes to your house and jumps in your lap, you have a right to squawk. However he and his master seem to agree that in his house he can sit where he pleases. If you don't like it, leave.

Dear Nola - There is a girl who works at the bank where I do who is always cutting clippings and cartoons and putting them on my desk. Every two or three days I find one and some of them are pretty snide. I know who is doing it. Should I speak to her about it?

Burned Up

Dear Burned Up - The girl is inferior, insecure and jealous. She is more to be pitied than censured. You can cut this clipping and put it on her desk in the morning.

Dear Nola - There are so many problems involved when one gets married, I think you should devote your entire column this month to weddings. Don't you?

Bride to Be

Dear Bride - Not everyone is getting married in June. No matter how important and exciting an event it is to you, it's dullsville for those not in-olved. Although I do have more letters than usual on this subject, you may find, as others have, that the problem of the wedding is nothing compared to problems after the wedding.

Dear Nola - One of the doctors at the hospital where I work was caught out in an affair with his nurse. She was fired; he wasn't. I don't think this is right. Do you? Innocent Bystander

Dear Bystander - It's tragic how economics condition our morality. If there had been a shortage of nurses and an abundance of doctors, she would have been kept and he fired. They are equally guilty. If one goes, both should; if one is retained, they both should be.

Dear Nola - I read recently that your new in-laws should tell you what to call them. Do you agree with this?

June Bride

Dear June - Considering what some people call their in-laws, it's probably safer than leaving the matter to chance.

Dear Nola - Every year it's the same thing. I try to have a pretty yard and the neighborhood dogs and children trample my flowers into the ground. What can I do to stop this?

Green Thumb

Dear Green - You can build a fence around yourself, which, in my judgment, is the world's saddest sight. Or you can get acquainted with those children and dogs and you may find them to be more fun than the flowers.

Send your letters to Nola Knows, Box 411, Temple, Texas. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Jonathan Winters Will Appear In Lubbock

Original and inventive are two words that go hand in hand with Jonathan Winters. Whether playing the Dreamer in "The Loved One" or appearing as Granny Frickert on his own television "Special," he never fails to give his audience a perceptive and satirical impression of his fellow man.

The actor-humorist was born and raised in Dayton, Ohio. His childhood proved formative in the development of his career when he found that by studying people who visited his family, he could imitate them. This proved entertaining to both himself and his friends.

With a solid background and high reputation as an outstanding performer in television and on records, Winters now finds himself one of Hollywood's most sought after actors. His first motion picture role was in "Mad, Mad, Mad, World" for Stanley Kramer.

Civic Lubbock Inc. is proud to present, for the only currently scheduled appearance in the Southwest, Jonathan Winters in Concert with The Levee Singers, Saturday, May 13, at 8:15 p.m. in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Tickets are $3, $4, and $5 and may be purchased Monday through Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Coliseum box office or write P. O. Box 5486, Lubbock, Texas, 79417.

ODE TO OUR GARBAGE COLLECTORS

—by Emilie Peck

Now they may not sport a manicure... or wear Fifth Avenue clothes... But we couldn't do without these guys... Heaven only knows! Their job is mighty huge; and their pay is very small... And wouldn't we be in a 'heck of a fix'... If they didn't work at all... Their job's lots harder, with longer hours... than most guys, you can bet... And yet we take them just for granted... And no thanks do they get!... Beneath their humble 'garb'... beats the heart of a real good guy... Who does a job that anyone else... Would willingly let go by... So, once again, before I close this verse... Accept a heart-felt 'thanks'... Thank you fellas... For what you do... To ease an ugly task... For it's not a pleasant job to do, under any circumstance!... And if I could - A gift I'd give... To each and every one... 'Cause you're doing a job, that no one else... ever woulda' done!

Methods of Cooking Meat

The methods used in cooking beef, calf and veal are: dry heat, moist heat and in fat. There are several ways to cook meat by each of these methods.

Dry heat methods:

Broiling Panbroiling Roasting Oven-cooked steak

Moist heat methods:

Braising Cooking in liquid

Cooking fat methods:

Pan frying Deep-fat frying

Regardless of the method used, beef, calf and veal cooked at a low temperature have less shrinkage. Hence there is more meat to serve and it is:

More attractive and palatable Juicier and more flavorful More tender, uniformly cooked

Salt is a de-hydrating agent and if meat is salted before cooking the juices are extracted and the meat is dry.
