Hockley County Signup Moved To April 9th

The deadline for signup for the 1965 Hockley County Cotton Domestic Allotment program has been extended to April 9, ASC manager Jim Steward announced Monday. Operators of cotton farms on which the domestic allotment is less than the effective allotment must file the Intention to Participate on or before April 9. These producers must not exceed feed grain base on the participating farm. Farms with effective allotments of 15.0 acres or less have domestic allotments which are the same. Such farms are not required to sign up, Steward explained.

All farmers who take part in the 1965 Domestic Allotment Program will be eligible for price support payments and for loans on their cotton crop. This payment will be figured on 4.35 cent a pound on the normal yield or cotton established on the farm times the acreage planted for harvest. Loans will be based on 29 cent per pound for middling 1-inch cotton.

Only those producers on farms participating in the domestic allotment program will be eligible for the additional price support payment.

entertainment. Principal address will be given by Rev. Andrew E. Mild pastor of Shepherd King Lutheran Church, Lubbock.

Dee Lindley will give the response, and chapter officers will conduct the closing ceremony.

Chapter officers are: president, Dee Lindley; vice president, Ray Witt; secretary, Mickey Smith; treasurer, John Bain; reporter, Sammy Means; sentinel, Dennis Bartlett; and advisor, C. T. McCormick.

CHURCH

—Ted Dotts

What is a church? A church is a fellowship of men and women. And the men and the women who compose a church membership are a very special kind of men and women. They are men and women who have sinned. They know they have sinned and perhaps are sinning. So, they band together in order to help one another. And, they band together in the faith that God Almighty will help them up out of the muck and mire they have made of life to a new and a better life.

I do not know how the idea gets around that the people who go to church are better than anyone else. The people who go to church are just the same as saying, "Lord, I am a sinner and I need Thy help to pull me through." So when people tell me that the members of my church are weak, hypocritical, sinners I have to agree. I too am weak, hypocritical and a sinner. I too am a member of the church. This is what a church is all about: "The saying is sure and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" (I Timothy 1:15).

Jesus received His greatest condemnation from the Jewish leaders of the day because He associated with sinners. "Eating with others is for the Jew the closest form of intimacy" (Bornkamm). He ate with sinners! Jesus's people, the Jews, could never quite understand this. They thought that a holy man, the Son of God, would associate only with righteous, pure, upright people. But it soon became known that if you went to associate with Jesus, you also must associate with His sinner friends.

The church is no different today. If you are going to associate yourself with Jesus, then you are going to associate yourself with His sinner friends. And anytime you associate with sinners you are going to have a rough time because sinners are hard to get along with.

Indeed, sinners are so difficult to get along with that they might deny you as Peter denied Jesus three times. They may doubt you as Thomas doubted his Lord. They may quarrel over your power as did James and John. Or, even worse, they may betray you into the hands of the enemy as did Judas.

The church is a fellowship of sinners seeking to live in the faith that God revealed in Christ Jesus is the God who can come and save them.

Gift wrap paper has dozens of handy uses. Planning a birthday party? One mother-on-a-budget passes along this idea. Use gift wrap to make children's party hats. For young children, you can make a dozen simple hats from a package of gift wrap containing two sheets of 20" by 30" paper. From each sheet you get six squares that can be cut in triangles. Bind the triangles with plain or colored Scotch tape, and tape on cord or ribbon for tying them under the children's chins. You can scallop or pink the edges to be fancy, or top the hats with paper pompons. It's also easy to cut place-mats out of "Happy Birthday" gift wrap to lend festivity to even a picnic table. Children who are old enough can make their own trimmings. For place cards, plain white stationery can be decorated with designs cut out of gift wrap. Even a first-grader can make small baskets of gift wrap to hold mints. Children enjoy their handiwork. And considering that a pack of gift wrap costs a quarter, it's a modest recreation fund. There are plain wraps, and wraps picturing such favorites as Bugs Bunny and Donald Duck. You can also use psychology, one party-wise parent tells us. Crowns cut out of gold foil for 5-to-7-year-olds produced such dignity at a recent party that even the block's chief mischief-maker became quiet and polite. "Gift wrap can be used in games, too," points out C. W. DeWitt, chairman of the board of Whitman Publishing Company of Racine, Wisconsin, and president emeritus of the Gift Wrappings and Tying Association. For example, if space is tight for musical chairs, why not play musical apples? Wrap each apple in gift paper, taped at the top. Place all on a table. When the music stops, each child reaches for an apple instead of a chair. At game's end, the winner gets a prize. The gift-wrapped apples get passed out as refreshment to the rest of the marchers.
