Many Attent Revival Meeting At First Baptist Church

LAY WITNESS MISSION

And they prayed, "Lord, send a revival" and He did.

September 1, 2 and 3rd was a time of something new, fresh and spiritual for the First Baptist Church of Ropesville. They participated in their first lay witness mission. The mission differed from the traditional revival in that there was not one speaker, but many people from many towns who came solely for the purpose of sharing their love of Christ with others. There were forty-seven people from towns such as Amarillo, Wellman, Dimmitt, Snyder, Earth and included farmers, ranchers, school teachers, students, electronic engineers, office workers, even a marine on leave. The services were not conducted in the usual manner but small "sharing" groups were formed during the traditional worship time and the team members encouraged each individual within the group to introspection.

So that each member of the church would have an opportunity to participate in the mission, men, women and youth came from the churches at Wellman, Sunnyside, and Littlefield to keep the nursery, help prepare the food and clean the kitchen each day. The Methodist Church at Wellman and Ropes Spanish Mission also helped with the nursery.

From the nursery age to the old, the lay witness mission was an unforgettable experience because of the love and sharing of Gods people.

"And if you welcome good and godly men because of their godliness you will be given a reward like their's "Matthew 10:41. The Living Bible.

Each of the team members were kept in homes in our community, thus enabling many of our town's people to know them personally. Local homes were also used for coffee and coke parties.

Snider-Gotham Vows Pledged In Ropesville

Miss Donna Cotham and Johnny Tucker Snider pledged double ring vows at 10:00 a.m. Saturday in a garden ceremony at the home of the bridegroom's parents in Ropesville.

Officiant was Rev. Ted Dotts, District Superintendent of the United Methodist Church of Pampa, Texas

Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Bell of Houston, Texas are the parents of the bride. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Crate Snider of Ropesville, Texas.

The bride chose a floor length dress of grey and white, accented with braid trim. Her matron of honor was her sister-in-law, Mrs. William Wymola of Lubbock. Chuck Braden of Houston, Texas served as best man.

The bride is a graduate of Bellaire School of Houston, and is employed by Arco Chemical Company of Houston.

Snider attended high school at Oklahoma Military Academy in Claremore, Oklahoma and received his degree at A&M University at College Station where he was a member of Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity. He is a Commodities Broker with Seigel Trading Company of Houston.

The couple will be at home at 14301 Laterna Lane, Sugarland, Texas.

AIR LIFT . . . A seriously ill Vietnamese boy is unloaded from an air ambulance of the U.S. Army's 498th Medical Company. An unidentified ARVN medic is assisted by crew member PFC Gordon A. Clohtier, Milford, Conn.

Deer Tags

Tagging the deer is normally the last legal step, but one more simple procedure is required this season of hunters who send parts of their venison in different directions.

Recent action by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission requires that any portion of the kill given to a fellow hunter must have a note signed by the hunter making the kill with his name, address, hunting license number and the date an location of the kill.

The note, or the regular tag if the hunter making the bag keeps all of the carcass, must accompany the meat until it reaches its final destination. Parks and Wildlife law enforcement officials interpret "final destination" as the permanent residence of the hunter or a commercial processing plant.

This helps game management officers do a better job by insuring that deer are harvested legally and identified as such.

Let's use an example of a hunter who kills a deer and wants to share the meat. He gives a ham to one hunting partner and the backstrap to another.

A note must accompany each cut, and, of course, the usual deer tag is required on the portion retained by the hunter.

Shred Cotton Stalks To Stop Boll Weevils

Even though the cotton crop may be harvested in some areas of the state, the 1972 season is by no means over! There's still a big job ahead if farmers want to grow cotton again next year. And that job is destroying cotton stalks to reduce the food supply of overwintering boll weevils.

"Boll weevils were numerous in many areas of Texas this year, points out Dr. Raymond Frisbie, entomologist in pest management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Therefore, it's critical that producers shred and destroy cotton stalks as soon as possible after harvesting so that fewer weevils will be able to feed and build up a fat supply necessary for successful overwintering (or diapause)."

The Texas A&M University specialist explains to diapause condition that boll weevils enter as a sort of "hibernation" state in which they spend the winter.

"Successful diapause control programs should reduce the need for early to mid-season insect control next year," says the en-

Santa Fe R. R. To Spend 19 Million For New R. R. Cars

Santa Fe Railway is ordering 1,000 hundred-ton covered hopper cars and 100 open-top cross hopper cars at a cost of about $19 million, John S. Reed, president, announced today.

Pullman Standard Mfg. Co. will build the covered hoppers and Greenville Steel Car Co. will provide the cross hoppers. This order is supplementary to the railroad's previously announced capital expenditure program of $100 million for 1972. Delivery of the cars is expected to begin in November.

The orders were prompted by increased business activity and by the rise in export grain traffic anticipated from the plans recently announced by the Administration for shipment of grain to overseas destinations.

"In the transportation of grain Santa Fe has been a pioneer in encouraging the gradual shift away from the old box car to use of the newer covered hopper car which presents a more attractive vehicle for most shippers," Reed noted. "As a result of this policy, the Santa Fe today owns the largest number of covered hopper cars in the country. Of its fleet of more than 14,200 covered hoppers, nearly 10,000 are of the 100-ton capacity 'Jumbo' type involved in the current equipment order," he said.

Reed attributed Santa Fe's success in handling recent grain harvests without any serious car supply problems not only to the company's large fleet of "JUMBO" hoppers and box cars, but also to the co-operation of shippers in accepting new procedures to enable better car distribution and utilization.

"Export movements require the greatest teamwork between railroads, port authorities and exporters in the scheduling of railroad shipments to coordinate with the movements of sea-going vessels. The forthcoming export program will put this teamwork to the test, and the Santa Fe is prepared to work closely with its customers to handle this transportation challenge successfully," he added.

Screwworm Regulations Modified

Screwworm regulations have been modified to give farmers and ranchers more time to get their animals inspected before shipment.

Livestock producers now have 72 hours in which to have livestock inspected and certified free of the parasites before being shipped interstate from the screwworm-infested areas of the Southwest. The time allowed for this previously was 24 hours.

Screwworms continue to be completely out of control throughout the state, and the only relief will come when freezing weather arrives.

Judges & Finances

The American Bar Association recently approved a new code of ethics requiring the nation's 15,000 federal and state judges to publicly report outside income, its source and all gifts valued at $100 or more.

It's the first overhaul of the code of ethics for judges in forty-eight years, and a long overdue one. While judges would not have to report some income from investments, they would have to be more careful in this field to avoid conflicts of interest.

Implementation of The Bar Association action must now come from state legislatures, state supreme courts and the U.S. Judicial Conference. The best interests of the courts and nation will be served by prompt affirmative action by these bodies.

The adoption of similar ethical standards for Supreme Court justices is equally desirable. Since they are not included in the recent ABA recommendation, Congress should move to establish such a code for members of the high court also hopefully with White House support.

Postal Workers & Strikes

The nation's postal workers (American Postal Workers Union) recently voted overwhelmingly to support Senator George McGovern for President. The 300,000-member union so voted after McGovern telegraphed he favored the right of public employees to strike and would also work to invalidate the Hatch Act, which prohibits federal employees from many election activities.

Both positions expressed by the Democratic candidate concern all Americans; there is currently an uneasy feeling among some Capitol legislators and those who depend on the mails to earn a livelihood, that the now-independent postal service is headed for strike problems.

Interruption of mail service (carriers comprise a different union and either could snarl mail service by striking) would create a national emergency. Many depend on welfare and social security checks to survive.

Additionally, a prolonged stoppage would put some out of business, perhaps permanently destroying their means of earning a living.

Permitting federal employees to take active roles in election and reelection campaigns greatly increases the possibility and danger of an all-powerful administration in Washington—able to perpetuate its reign through the political efforts of millions of federal workers.

On both counts McGovern's positions, while having won him the endorsement of a federal employees' union, a rarity, jeopardizes the broader welfare of the nation.

Olympics & Politics

The furor at Munich over the question whether Rhodesian athletes should be allowed to compete was unfortunate.

There is no doubt the Rhodesian government and laws and policies in Rhodesia favor whites, that blacks are discriminated against.

There is also no doubt that many other governments the world over are dictatorships, either of the right or left, and not representative of majority sentiment in their countries. In some, various minorities are discriminated against.

Such injustices cannot be rectified at international sports meets. Nor are such meets a desirable place to argue the legitimacy of various governments or their policies—however wrong.

The Olympic ideal is that athletes from all nations, who of course are not responsible for their form of government, or national policies, be allowed to compete in fair competition, free of all politics and racism.

If, however, the various squads and governments begin to decide which athletes are allowed to compete on the basis of approval of their governments or government policies, there will be no end of trouble and squabbling at future games, and politics will have finally invaded the Olympic spirit.

Sherlock Holmes

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle died in 1930. But his great fictional characters, Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson, live on.

They are not at 221 B Baker Street but live in the Chalet de Lucens near Lausanne, Switzerland. A reporter for one of the nation's leading newspapers found them out on a recent visit.

But he saw their sitting room, the cigars in the coal-scuttle, Holmes' tobacco in a Persian slipper, his pipe rack, violin, deerstalker hat and cape-backed overcoat.

Most encouraging of all, there was an unanswered letter on the Victorian mantel. The heavily-carved furniture, silver and china were all well-kept. To the millions who have found pleasure in Dr. Watson's accounts of Holmes' cases, this is, of course, most welcome news.

Wallace & 1976

Sources close to Governor George Wallace report the Alabama chief executive is already planning ahead to 1976.

It is said that the Governor's shooting, and resulting physical impairment, has almost insured his reelection as Governor in Alabama two years hence.

Sympathy connected with his narrow escape from assassination and his paralysis could work for Wallace in 1976. Even more influential might be his warning at this year's convention that the party was heading for disaster if it chose the present platform and nominee.

If Senator George McGovern is badly routed in November, then, a Wallace nomination bid seems highly likely in 1976.

World War II

In the first week of September, 1939, the Second World War began when German troops attacked Poland. Hitler had thought England might back down to avoid a war over Poland, once again. But the British, and French, declared war on September 3rd.

Poland was beaten by the Germans in six weeks; Russia invaded the hapless country shortly after the German attack, having secretly agreed to do so before the German assault.

Almost six years later, at a cost of millions of lives, Germany was beaten by practically the rest of the world. Poland, however, and eastern Europe were swallowed up by Russian Communism and remain Russian-dominated.

The great twentieth century struggle between facism and Communism thus ended in a Communist victory. Other than Hitler's unjustified and shocking extermination of Jews, there was little to choose between the two totalitarian systems. And Poland, the invasion of which touched off the war, was never freed by the allies.

In the Far East, Japan's infamous attack on the U. S. was properly punished and the Japanese beaten but the big result on the mainland was the Communist conquest of China from a corrupt Chiang Kai Shek regime. Thus the prime and original issue which caused U.S. hostility to Japan, its attack on China, was not solved by the war. China, like Poland, ended up in Communist hands.

Wars seldom accomplish the grandiose aims for which they are undertaken.

Divorces Up

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare recently reported the U.S. divorce rate at an all-time high. The rate has been rising steadily for years; today divorces and annulments each year total more than a third of all marriages.

Moreover, HEW says, the rate is rising faster than the increase in marriage and the nation's population growth. Government experts offer many reasons for the increase, not all of them gloomy or foreboding.

For one thing, divorce was so frowned on for many years millions of mis-matched couples, often miserable, driven to alcoholism, neuroses or worse, stuck it out and put up a false front.

Others stuck it for the children, for religious reasons, etc. But as the stigma of divorce waned, and as psychiatrists and psychologists convinced more and more people two happy homes were often better for all than one unhappy one, greater freedom was experienced and utilized.

Few would argue the proposition that one happy marriage is life's ideal goal, nor that all couples should give marriage their best, over a period of many years.

On the other hand, there is something to be said for the proposition that of the nation's 2,200,000 marriages each year all can't be perfect matches.

School Discipline

It is well to take stock of our local schools every so often, and the beginning of the new school year is a good time to review local conditions.

In the first place, capable school administrators—from the superintendent and principals on down—are not as easy to find as some imagine. The really good officials in this field are the subject of much competition.

Parents of children—many of whom have been raised on progressive theories which are now largely discredited—have an obligation to cooperate with school authorities in every way possible and to make their task easier as they attempt to guide, train and educate the children of this community.

Children must be disciplined, as well as educated, for if they are not disciplined they cannot be educated. This is one point parents must keep in mind. Also, it should be remembered that proper disciplining never hurt anyone, and is a prerequisite in our social order.

As the school year gets underway, we urge all parents to cooperate with teachers and school officials, and encourage their children to approach school with the proper attitude.

The Wheat

An irony of the Nixon Administration's massive sale of wheat to Russia is that the Russians are to be getting it cheaper than American buyers.

It now turns out that the U. S. Government will subsidize the sale, providing about one-fourth of the total price. (Meanwhile, the huge sale has caused an increase in U.S. wheat prices.)

In addition, the U.S. is subsidizing the sale by providing loans for the purchase at very low interest rates. While these circumstances do not outweigh the advantages of the sale, they do argue convincingly that future transactions of this kind should be based on more realistic, and fair, pricing practices.

Nina

Those familiar with the ways of the film world and the characters who flourish in it were not surprised recently when the man who produced the ballyhooed but unimpressive M*A*S*H chose Nina Van Pallandt to co-star in a new film.

For those who don't know, Nina is or was the Danish girl friend of Clifford Irving, recently sentenced to jail for his misdeeds. One was telling his publishers he was meeting and interviewing Howard Hughes in Mexico when he was, instead, enjoying a cozy rendezvous with Nina.

Nina's claim to fame, then, is as Irving's good-time girl. She has no acting experience. She is nevertheless signed to star in a film—the reasoning being people will be curious enough to see her to make the film profitable.

YOUNG BUYERS LIVE TWO WAYS

Virginia Frankel, a wry, witty decorator and author, has just written a book, What Your House Tells About You, and she had some unusually frank comments about young buyers today that are interesting.

One thing she notes is that often people of all ages are schizophrenic when it comes to purchasing. A conservationist will have a home filled with plastic pieces. Try disposing of them! A young couple starting out who want a more natural life-style for themselves will have an apartment filled with glass, chrome, and assorted plastics. Why?

Because many young people never stop and think about their own environment; they're often too concerned with environment on a grand scale. Sounds weird? It is. But young buyers are like that, she contends. They also don't always relate their own living habits with what they think because they haven't been exposed to the idea that a person's living environment is a reflection of what they are. This is something they gradually learn, however.

Many cities in the big building booms of the 1960's erected glass and steel office buildings with such disregard for the landscape that now, many once beautiful streets look more like stacks of ice cube trays. Architectural critics and sociologists contend that this increasing sterility has led to a growing feeling of coldness in the cities and a parallel feeling of isolation on the part of city dwellers.

Today, however, there is a popular outcry against it, and people are demanding greater warmth and variety in architecture as they become more aware of themselves and their roles in our society.

The same is true for decorating. The chrome, plastics, glass, and synthetics are headed for a tailspin, as the younger buyers become aware that they are talking one way but living another. A plastic society is what most young people are against and the fact that they haven't always related this to their own personal environment is only a matter of time.

In fact, there is much evidence that the time may be coming a lot faster than some people expect. Note the fashion trends, the interest in antiques, the revival of the motion pictures of the thirties, and the current renaissance of English furniture. All these facts put together suggest that the interest in plastics in home furnishings has peaked and that hardwoods and other natural materials are about to be re-discovered by young buyers.

TV COMMENTARY

TIMES CHANGE and swords do sometimes become melted into wedding rings. The most recent marriage of old adversaries consists of a union between the motion picture industry and television.

TV HAS pulled Hollywood out of the doldrums and given her a new lease on life. Hollywood has given TV a new way to produce with necessary speed the tremendous amount of material needed. Studios are filming more and more full-length movies for television.

IN RECENT WEEKS 152 television films have been in production. The Screen Actors Guild reports that TV is the biggest source of income for its performing members.

SINCE new productions put money in their pockets, Hollywood producers and unions are engaged in a campaign to get TV networks to expand the number of new episodes in a series from the present 22 to 26 per year. This would mean a decrease in re-runs, and should make for happier viewing. But the strain may give a hernia to the network's piggy bank.

HOLLYWOOD technicians are capable of producing. The average 30-minute TV program is filmed in three days. The two hour special can be done in 20 days or less.

SOME MAJOR corporations who use TV for advertising are now also investing in films for TV. Some companies who have plunged into this enterprise are The Quaker Oats Company, Mattel, Inc., General Electric Company, and Faberge, Inc.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

When I have a date I go to extra pains to look my best and I think that is the right thing to do because I want the boy I am with to be proud of his companion. Now my mother and my sisters laugh at me about this and say I am trying to be someone I am not because I don't look like this all of the time.

What do you think about this? Do you think I should go out looking just like I do when I am working about the house?

B.G.--Va.

Louisa.

household work. A neat dress or house coat with a clean face and brushed hair is appropriate and looks good at such a time. But I agree with you that you owe your companion to look as good as possible when you have a date. This doesn't mean heavy make-up but it does mean good grooming and becoming clothes. Just don't spend too much time before your mirror as too much artificial make-up may give you a cheap appearance.

Address your letter to
 Louisa, P.O. Box 532
 Orangeburg, S.C.29115

Answer:

I am a great believer in making the best of what we have. Now a person who is working about a house should look as good as possible, even then, but it stands to reason that after such work is done one has to arrange the hair, take a bath and change clothes.

This doesn't mean that one has to look like a refugee when she is doing tomologist. "Such in-season insecticide applications often trigger bollworm and budworm outbreaks by destroying beneficial insects."

Frisbie encourages producers who are still awaiting harvest to include an insecticide in their defoliant or desiccant or reduce the number of weevils entering diapause. "Needless to say, harvesting as soon as possible is another way to gain a step on these pests," he adds.

Once stalks are shredded, the debris should be plowed under to a depth of at least six inches.

"Destroying cotton stalks and plowing them under is a key means of cotton pest management," contends Frisbie. "As alternatives to insecticidal control become more prominent, various cultural practice such as this become more critical in reducing damaging insect populations."

The entomologist emphasizes that "a good way to set your sights on a prosperous cotton crop in 1973 is to take the necessary steps now to reduce boll weevil numbers."

Cotton iron-on interfacing is an excellent sewing aid. Use it in small areas for reinforcement and to prevent fraying. For instance, you can use interfacing behind buttonholes, for reinforcing points of gussets, and on the underarm curves of kimono-type sleeves.
