Indian Artifacts On Display Here

Artifacts varying in age from several scores to several hundred years are included in the collection of Indian and stone age items on display here now under the auspices of the Howard County Museum association.

R. B. Selvidge, who assembled the collection during his many years among the Indians of Oklahoma, is in charge of the display and explains its many points. A share of the proceeds will go to the local museum, and Selvidge said he was attempting to secure additional items for the museum.

Early Map Of Area Found At Colorado City

COLORADO CITY, July 1. (Spl) — A map of Texas as it was in 1876, before there was a Colorado City and before West Texas knew anything of civilization except cow and buffalo camps and an occasional fort, has been brought to light in the vault at the Mitchell county courthouse.

The map was found by workers carrying on a county-sponsored Work Progress Administration project for re-working old papers in the vault. It was with papers filed in connection with a suit brought by the State of Texas vs. Bacon and Graves of Houston, representing the HATC railroad.

Not a town or a settlement was known in Mitchell county. Big Spring was marked in Howard county, but it was the spring, not the town. Taylor county was shown with one town—its original county seat, Buffalo Gap.

Tom Green county extended from the western borders of Runnels and Concho counties clear to the western edge of the state. Most of what is now El Paso county, however, lay at that time in the territory of New Mexico. Texas at that time did not have its familiar western tip.

Indeed, the whole area of Texas extending south from Andrews, Martin, Howard and Mitchell counties and west from Runnels, Concho, Menard, and other counties in a southern line with these was covered by four counties—Tom Green, Pecos, Freestone, and Crockett. Tom Green's territory alone covered what is now fourteen counties.

County Clerk James Harrington has had the map framed and will keep it on display in his office at the courthouse.

Texas New Governor Product Of Old West

COKE R. STEVENSON

By HOWARD G. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, July 3 (AP) — Coker Robert Stevenson, governor-designate of Texas upon the basis of unofficial returns from Saturday's election which will send Governor W. Lee O'Daniel to the United States senate, is a product of the frontier before the rough edges were smoothed away.

After nearly 40 years as legislator, lawyer, rancher, hardware merchant, hotel owner, warehouse operator, auto agency proprietor, newspaper publisher, janitor, freighter and banker, the 53-year-old official still smacks of the west.

Indicative of pioneer conditions, he grew up short on formal education, going to country schools only seven years for a total of 23 months, but very long on knowledge of how to get ahead in life.

For the last two and a half years, he has been lieutenant-governor, having been elected to that office in 1938 and re-elected in 1940. Previously he served 10 years in the house of representatives, and is the only man ever chosen speaker twice in succession.

The oldest of eight children in the family, Stevenson "began work" at the age of 14, trying "about everything."

After holding various ranch jobs, he acquired six horses and two wagons and "started freighting" between Junction and Brady, a distance of 95 miles. He was 18 years old.

The young freighter would camp in the open at night and cook his meals over a camp fire, which served a triple purpose. It supplied warmth on chilly nights, heat for cooking and light for study.

A year and a half passed and the ranch people organized a bank in Junction. It opened on June 7, 1908. "When I heard about it, I went around and asked for a job as bookkeeper," Stevenson continued. "The president laughed at the idea of a freighter being a bookkeeper, but said that, since no negroes were in the town, he could use a janitor. I took that job, although it only paid $40 or more at freighting."

A month later something happened to the bookkeeper, and Stevenson offered to fill the gap. The president asked if he could "take off a trial balance." "I told him I could," Stevenson said.

In March, 1908, when 20 years old, the cashier resigned, and the bank board of directors were willing to give Stevenson that position. His age, however, was an obstacle. He was not old enough to make the necessary bond.

District court was in session, so he hurried over, talked to the judge and his disabilities as a minor were removed. All in the same day he was made cashier.

Presently he appeared before the San Antonio court of civil appeals, passed the examination and was admitted to the bar.

Under agreement with the bank directors, he "practiced a little law on the side," taking care not to "alienate some good customer of the bank."

Feeling an urge to enter politics and pressed by friends to do so, he ran for county attorney of Kimble county, was elected and served from 1914 to 1918. Then he was county judge until 1921.

His real estate properties have expanded hugely, and now include an 8,000-acre ranch on which his home of natural rock is located. The ranch is 17 miles southwest of Junction.

In 1928 the incumbent representative from Kimble county retired from the legislature, and Stevenson was elected to the place, making the race, he said, "because I thought the ranch people needed representation." Four times he was re-elected for two-year terms.

After his second term as speaker, Stevenson returned to his seat on the floor as an unadorned representative. In 1938, he was elected lieutenant-governor after a hard campaign. He was re-elected in 1940 without difficulty, receiving 797,784 votes, compared with 160,722 for Alton M. Mead of San Angelo and 118,841 for Charles Lavergne Somerville of Dallas.

Stevenson gives his wife much credit for his political successes. Not only her abilities as a campaigner, but also her wide acquaintance, he says, have been big aids to him.

Stamford Rodeo Plans Complete

STAMFORD, July 2.—Final preparations have been completed by all committees for the opening of the twelfth annual Texas Cowboy Reunion here Thursday on July 3, first of the three day show, and officials are looking forward toward entertaining one of the largest crowds in Reunion history.

Advance ticket sales, hotel reservations and the number of spectators in the rodeo and other contests indicate that this year's attendance will equal and probably exceed any in the past.

New features added this year include trick and fancy roping and riding acts in the arena as a part of the rodeo performances, and a demonstration of square dancing and other old-time steps by the Stamford Square Dance Team on a floodlighted platform in the center of the arena at each night performance of the rodeo. This, it is predicted, will be one of the highlights of the three night performances.

The second annual official show of the American Quarter Horse Association will be held during the Reunion, and many entries of quarter horses already have been received. This show was inaugurated by the American Quarter Horse Association last year at the Reunion.

Approximately a dozen chuck wagons from ranches throughout West Texas, and their cook crews, will be here to assist in feeding the thousands of visitors.

Conservation Board Meets

Supervisors of the Martin-Howard Soil Conservation district studied sub-division of the district into five areas at their regular monthly meeting in Stanton Tuesday.

Under the new law, the district is to be broken into smaller areas from which supervisors will be elected. Plans are to have one election in one sub-district each year, the term to be for five years.

At the parley Tuesday, the board approved 20 agreements from the Garner-Soash and from the Ulmer Lake areas. Also discussed was the opening of a SCS office in Stanton, a move awaiting official announcement by the SCS.

Two meetings at which district planning methods and means of enlisting support in conservation program will be talked were set. One will be Thursday at 8:30 p. m. in the home of Ben Miller, R-Bar, and the other will be Saturday at 4 p. m. in the county agent's office with J. A. Bishop, Bill Satterwhite and W. H. Wise participating.

It was the old story of an electric iron being left on, firemen reported after making a run to 2001 Runnels street Tuesday evening. Heat of the iron had ignited a wall, and in turn fire spread to the ceiling. However, flames were brought under control before doing much damage.

R. E. Martin, who lives in the Coahoma area, says cotton flea hoppers are getting plenty bad. Worst part, he adds, is that there is a shortage of dusting equipment and the damage may be done before equipment can be had to combat it.

Cotton Stamp Plan Advances

Cotton order stamps, on which hinges the inauguration of the cotton stamp program here, have been received by the AAA office, it was announced Wednesday.

As soon as compliance checks are completed, the issuance of the order stamps will be started. In turn, these may be exchanged by the holders for domestically produced and processed cotton goods at approved drygoods and other stores.

Amount of the stamps initially requisitioned was $4,462.50. As compliance shows more entitled to order stamps, they will be requisitioned by the county AAA office.

Another development at the AAA office was the distribution of 47 wheat parity payment checks totaling $1,347.

Cutting Of WPA Rolls Is Studied

CHICAGO, July 2 (AP)—State administrators of the Works Project Administration tackled a huge WPA employment reduction job today.

They met with Howard O. Hunter, WPA commissioner, in an annual two-day session, faced this time with the necessity of cutting the rolls about 400,000 to a level of 1,000,000 for the nation.

A spokesman said the WPA appropriation bill passed by congress Monday allotted $375,000,000 for the program in the fiscal year which began yesterday. This would permit employment of about 1,000,000 a figure suggested to congress by President Roosevelt as a desirable average for this fiscal year. The preceding fiscal year appropriation was $1,350,000,000.

WPA employment nationally averaged 1,700,000 in the last fiscal year until spring when reductions brought it down to about 1,400,000 by June 30. The spokesman said the added 400,000 cut would be effected "immediately," possibly within a week and "surely" by July 15.

An example of how the reductions will be made nationally was furnished last week when George H. Field, Chicago regional director and acting Illinois state administrator, announced the Illinois July quota would be dropped from 93,000 to 66,000, an all-time low since the WPA program began.

H. F. Malone To Take Over WPA Recreation Work

H. F. Malone, who has been associated with the district WPA recreational office for the past year, is to return here as supervisor for Midland and Howard counties, it was announced Tuesday evening by Mrs. Mary Berry, district supervisor.

He will replace Malcolm Bridges, who is entering private employment, said Mrs. Berry. Bridges succeeded Malone when the latter was transferred to San Angelo last year.

Both men have had a big part in the development of Big Spring's recreational department. It was Malone who first organized it, and Bridges further expanded the program. Retrenchments this year made it necessary for Midland's program to be operated from here and Bridges added this to his work.

Wool Market

BOSTON, July 2 (AP) (USDA) Trade in wools was very spotty on the Boston market today. The occasional sales were mostly of small volume. Prices generally were mostly about steady to firm, scattered sales of fine Australian wools were closed at prices inclined to the low side of the range $1 to $1.04, scoured basis, including duty. Twelve months Texas wools received an occasional request and while offerings were firmly quoted at $1.05 to $1.10, scoured basis, sales were mostly on wools offered at prices on the low side of this range.

Grain

CHICAGO, July 2 (AP) — Medium sized mill orders and purchases of previous short sellers helped to lift wheat prices almost a cent at times today.

However, the market could not hold all its gain in the face of hedging sales associated with liquidation of old and new "free" grain and selling inspired by forecast of the largest domestic harvest in a decade, except for that of 1938.

CASTLE IN THE DESERT

Blaze walked behind for perhaps half a mile, then returned to the carriage.

Sherwood smiled again as if aware of her reaction and began telling her some of his experiences in the corners of the world.

The sun sank towards the Bekkan Bula mountains that had begun to loom on the far horizon before she roused from the spell of his words.

"That explains Dr. O——" he stopped, suddenly as if realizing he was about to speak private thoughts aloud.

When do we reach Chuka? she demanded, and poked the footman impatiently.

The man whirled, eyes glowing teeth bared, fists clenched in self defense. Then he grinned apologetically when he saw it was Anne who had attacked him.

"Have you ever tried to find the pulse of a native inhabitant of this country?" he asked and smilingly.

"Why should I?" He went on. "The skin is so thick that the pulse is almost undetectable. I've heard of a local tyrant who had leather gloves made of the skin of a particular enemy."

Chapter 14
STUFFED OLIVES

The bright, unearthly moonlight did strange things to them, cast exotic shadows about their eyes and the planes of their heads and bodies.

"Just who are we and just where are we?" queried Anne, as she stood wet and shivering before the curtain of the falls.

"I know where we are," murmured Sherwood, putting an arm around her as he stood at her side.

"Our audience believes that this is our wedding night, Anne," and he kissed her, guiding her into the tent.

"Nothing, I'm afraid," he said. "The next move is theirs. We know only that they won't harm us in this length of time it takes us to die from starvation."

"You're a pal," said Sherwood, giving his shoulder a friendly slap, his voice natural, but in his eyes Anne saw a look of torment.

NO PLACE TO GO

"Pete had a gun," Anne recalled. "Or he had," she said. "It was the same gun."

"I can figure it out in time. Go get your drink." She looked down at her long ruffled dress. "I'd better change and have a plunge too."

"Good-bye," she went out and lost in her bathing suit before closing the tent. She found him working busily with pencil and paper when she appeared.

"How wonderful if it proves to be true?" murmured Anne with shining eyes.

"The only man not a Nagaran known to have seen the city was a Tibetan hunter who came out carrying this two-headed image of mine in one hand and two rubies the size of marbles in the other.

Blaze gazed at her a moment longer, shaking his head.

"I've a hunch that a lover, like an artist, should not be too sympathetic," Anne continued to stare at him, blinking helplessly.

"Hungry?" he asked, scrutinizing her face.

"Not especially. A slight headache. You?"

"Not so bad. Think of our blessings! Free at last from all compulsions! Nothing to do but exist!"

"I can't keep from falling in love with me, Anne."

"I can keep from doing anything about it."

Dry Weather Spell Can Make Texas Crop Prospects Good

By LEDGERWOOD SLOAN
Associated Press Staff
A few weeks of dry weather probably would enable Texas farmers to obtain fair incomes from their wheat and cotton despite the unseasonable rains which have retarded greatly what promised earlier in the season to be bumper yields.

Cook rice, salt, cinnamon and milk 40 minutes in double boiler. Stir frequently with fork. Stir in 1-3 cup sugar, flour and yolks, mixed together. Cook five minutes. Add extracts. Pour into buttered baking dish. Beat whites, add three tablespoons sugar and beat a minute. Spread over rice, sprinkle with coconut and bake 15 minutes in a slow oven. Cool and serve.

21-Year-Olds Likely To Get Early Calls

WASHINGTON, July 2 (AP)—Selective service narrowed its age limits today with the blanket deferment of all men 28 years of age or older not now in training.

The effect of the order was to make only those from 21 through 27 liable to a year's duty with the army in the future, and it increased the likelihood of an early call for many of the 700,000 young men who registered yesterday.

The blanket deferment order was issued yesterday as local boards throughout the country were concluding the enrollment of the men who have reached 21 since the first registration last October. This second enrollment went off smoothly and apparently without major incident.

Brigadier General Lewis E. Harshy, deputy selective service director, who issued the instructions, said he acted at the request of congressional leaders in anticipation of final congressional approval of legislation which would have the same effect.

The order affects approximately 8,000,000 men between the ages of 28 and 36—or almost half of the 16,500,000 who signed up last October when all men between 21 and 36 were required to register.

Although the original rolls were cut almost in two, authorities said that there would be no comparable reduction in the number of potential trainees. Some, indeed, thought that yesterday's 700,000 new registrants probably would provide about the same number of military qualified men as could be deferred.

Furthermore, it was said, the youth of the new registrants made them better reserve material for the future after their year's training.

New Officers Take Places In Lions Club

Shelley Riley and other new officers of the Lions club were installed officially at a club banquet Tuesday evening in the Settles ballroom.

In the absence of H. C. Pender, Lubbock, newly elected district governor, Joe Pond, a past district governor, conducted the installation.

He also presented Burke Summers with a past president's pin as Summers handed over the gavel to Riley, Dan Conley, secretary, presented pins to more than a dozen members for records of 100 per cent attendance during the past year.

Entertainment for the occasion was furnished by Maurine Rowe and Wanda McQuain, club sweethearts, with Mrs. Annie Gibson House at the piano, Major L. W. Canning of the Salvation Army urged club support in the effort to subscribe to the Howard county quota for United Service Organizations. The affair Tuesday evening was a "ladies night" event.

Jailer Locks Self In Jail By Error

CANTON, Tex.—Prisoners laughed, Night Watchman Jim Cheyne fumed—it was embarrassing to say the least.

Cheyne, accidentally was locked in a cell when he went to feed prisoners. He fired a bullet to attract attention, then took the cartridge and used it for a whistle.

He fired and whistled, fired and whistled until his gun was empty.

He finally was freed by Officer Oscar Gamble.

Oil Control Bills In Hands Of Governor

AUSTIN, July 2 (AP)—While federal officials considered ways and means of coordinating oil production and transportation, the biggest oil producing state in the union—Texas—had cut its aggregate daily yield 85,000 barrels today.

Pending in the office of Governor W. Lee O'Daniel were bills making permanent the state's production laws and amending them toward prohibition of possible discrimination between fields on allowable production allocation.

Under procedural rules, the governor, if so minded, may veto the bills today or they will become law automatically. If vetoed, the legislature could act to override the gubernatorial disapproval.

Texas crude production dropped 85,610 barrels daily to a total of 1,347,926 yesterday when the July statewide production order became effective.

Railroad commission engineers calculated that unproduced allowances would reduce the actual yield from last week's 11,062 barrels daily over the U. S. bureau of mines market demand forecast to 23,251 under the federal agency's 1,324,000 estimate for July in Texas.

Among the most far-reaching moves of the Texas legislature, now apparently near the end of its general session, were adoption of the two bills now on the governor's desk, a bill placing wells which lift oil by gas pressure under the marginal well status and rejection of a plan to create an appointive conservation commission thus stripping the elective railroad commission of its regulatory powers.

Texas' membership in the interstate oil compact was renewed and the legislature killed a bill permitting use of natural sweet gas, now used for light and fuel purposes only, in the manufacture of carbon black.

Final Unofficial Count Gives O'Daniel 1,095 Vote Margin

Johnson Says He Will Await Final Canvass

DALLAS, July 2. (Sp.)—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, who three years ago was plugging flour on a radio program with hillbilly music, and songs of his own composition, appeared today to have defeated Lyndon Johnson, young new deal congressman, by a narrow margin in a special senatorial election.

After trailing through the earlier stages of vote counting, O'Daniel polled 1095 votes more than Johnson on the basis of complete unofficial returns announced by the Texas election bureau late yesterday.

Although Bob Johnson, election bureau manager, said the returns from all the state's 254 counties had been carefully checked, he warned there was still a possibility of error.

Congressman Martin Dies, chairman of a house committee investigating un-American activities, and Attorney General Gerald C. Mann lagged far behind O'Daniel and Johnson in the senatorial contest—one of the closest statewide elections the state has ever conducted.

Of the 571,095 votes tabulated by the election bureau, the final count showed:

O'Daniel, 175,368.
Johnson, 174,273.
Mann, 140,853.
Dies, 80,601.

The bureau said it would issue no more reports unless corrections were necessary.

The death of Andrew Jackson Houston, who was named by the governor to serve as senator until a special election could be held, occurred two days before balloting started. Houston, 87, was the son of Sam Houston, one of Texas' most famous heroes.

Johnson declared at Washington, where he went by plane yesterday, that until the "canvass" is complete, he has no statement other than to thank his loyal friends and supporters who did so much toward helping me get my message to the people of Texas.

Hand-hewn, flat-bottomed boats, propelled by 15-foot poles, are the principal means of transportation in the vast Frispet marshes of Soviet-held Poland.

Refreshments With Punch Make Warm Summer Days Seem Cooler

AP Feature Service
For refreshments on warm summer days, there's always fruit punch. It's cooling, refreshing, and at home in any crowd. Here's a recipe that makes a full gallon:

1 1/2 cups sugar, dissolved in 2 cups tea infusion (pour 2 cups boiling water over 8 teaspoons tea)
1 cup lemon juice
5 cups orange juice

2 quarts cold water or ginger ale or charged water
Orange and lemon slices for garnish
Cool tea. Combine ingredients. If served over block of ice in punch bowl, use less water. To serve a larger number, have sugar, tea and fruit juices mixed in correct amounts to refill punch bowl as needed. Orange blossom or jasmine tea adds flavor. This recipe fills 18 eight-ounce or 22 small punch glasses.

Cotton Oil Man Suggests Check On Flea Hoppers

L. W. Bramblett, field representative for Sweetwater Cotton Oil Co., Wednesday reported widespread damage over the area from cotton flea hoppers and suggested measures to control the insect.

Coinciding with those made by County Agent O. P. Griffin, Bramblett's suggestions were to examine each week terminal buds when plants have only six to eight leaves; if flea hoppers are present in damaging numbers, small, blackened dead squares less than one-quarter of an inch in size will be observed and young flea hoppers will be seen at the terminal bud.

Bramblett said sulphur dusting (10 pounds to the acre or 12-15 pounds in older cotton) should begin when damage is observed in one out of every 10 consecutive plants or when 20 hoppers are present on terminal buds of 100 consecutive plants.

Sulphur, he added, will hold good for a week if not washed off by rain. It should kill young flea hoppers within 24 hours after application if not washed off. This year they are particularly destructive since cotton is tender and growing fast.

An apparatus has been perfected in Australia by which pure water can be obtained from the human breath.

Strom Closing Out Home Appliances; To Remain Here

Announcement has been made by Carl Strom of the discontinuance of the home appliance store here bearing his name.

Strom stressed, however, that he is not leaving Big Spring, and said that he would make an announcement later as to plans for future activities. Strom, with his wife and daughter, came here four and a half years ago, opening the home appliance store. The family has erected a handsome residence on the outskirts of Edwards Heights.

"You couldn't shoot the Stroms out of Big Spring," said Carl. "We'll be around for some time, and will still be connected with the city's business life."

The Strom store has announced special offerings in connection with the closeout.
