If today's weather is like Wednesday's, we should have some dripping Little dribblers as the girls meet this afternoon (Thursday) at 5 p.m. for their first practice session. The response to the program has been great, showing that there is a need for it in our community. The boys will begin their practice as soon as they have enough young men registered for eight teams. A meeting was scheduled last night for

Some of our local Scouts are buying Ponderosa Pine trees as a nature project through the Chamber of Commerce beautification project. This would be a good one for any organization, the cost is not great, and the results can be beautiful. Why not bring it up in you club this week?

It was ironic that our local hospital, along with several students and civil defence authorities, ran through a drill to see how well our community would be prepared in case of emergency. They used a bus accident as the "fake" emergency, with students being "victims" of the accident. And, during the same week, several of the same type, but REAL accidents have happened on the South Plains. As our hospital administrator, Phillip McDonald said, it could happen to us. We can be grateful that our hospital is prepared.

Check page 7 of The Slatonite this week as local merchants salute our Boy Scouts of America during Boy Scout Week. Local groups are having a great program for the youngsters here, and the Boy Scouts is being expanded into two Troops for Slaton. Boys over 10 1/2 years old wishing to join the new troop, #123, may contact Weldon Self.

Another feature in The Slatonite this week, and weekly hereafter, is the new Hospital Report, showing admissions and dismissals to Mercy Hospital here in Slaton. I hope our new features are of interest to you.

Did anyone figure out what the old Groundhog decided last week? I never have decided that I really know how that is supposed to work or not. I guess since the sun was shining, he saw his shadow, and decided to hide for six more weeks of bad weather. If Wednesday's weather was a sign of what is to come, I guess he's pretty smart.

Bigger "Window" on Bacon Packages

As of February 19, 1973, bacon packages must have a window opening that shows at least 70 percent of the length of a "representative" strip of the meat. The window must also show 1½ inches of the bacon stack. This regulation came about be-cause quite a lot of people from around the United States had written to the U.S. Department of Agriculture requesting some change in bacon packaging. These consumers felt that the view of just one edge of bacon strips could be misleading.

From now on, these shoppers and their fellow consumers will have a better idea of what they're getting for their money since hey'll be able to see more of the bacon that they are buying.

Important fact: Each year, 30, 000 Americans are killed and another 20 million injured in accidents associated with faulty or unsafe products.

Cotton producers have long had the burning desire to secure greater income from the marketplace, thus reducing de-pendency on the federal government. Through their organizations producers over the years have invested millions of dollars in research and promotion projects aimed at realizing this ambition.

Once this goal is reached -once farmers have some assurance that market prices will cover production costs and a reasonable return to management, labor and capital -- then and only then will there be justification for substantial cuts federal expenditures cotton programs.

"But this time has not yet come," says Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., "and in the fore-seeable future a cotton program with solid producer income protection is going to be an absolute necessity.'

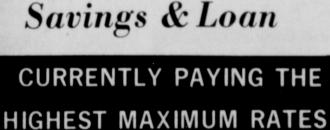

Historically the marketplace has been an unreliable source of adequate income for farmers. Prices are sufficient to cover production costs only when supplies are short. Then supplies go up, prices come down, and only the strongest of the strong

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz currently is pointing to record high average prices for farm commodities and saying this new found "prosperity" reduces the need for farm programs. He has said the current administration's farm policy will be focused on increasing farmers' profits from the marketplace and reducing their dependence on government.

"Which is well and good," Johnson points out, "if the Sec-retary has found a way to main-tain high market prices over the long term.

For cotton, a government program to stablize prices and supplies is particularly important, he continues. "When cotton supplies are short and prices high, we lose our markets to man-made fibers.

Roosevelt will have the opportunity of seeing a big theatrical production Feb. 15 in the auditorium at 7 p.m. when the Speech Club presents a three-act comedy, "You Can't Take It With You."

"The play, written by Moss Hart and George Kaufman, is one of the most successful plays of modern times," said Mrs. Georgia Blythe, director. "It was set in 1936 and has been updated to the 1970's for the benefit of Roosevelt theater goers. Admission tickets are being sold at 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for students for the two hour production.

The terms familiar to that of the depression era such as WPA, Alf Landon, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers would be lost to young audiences of today, so the setting has been changed to the Roosevelt area rather than New York City for Convenience as well as humor.

Frank Rayner presented a brief report to the committee showing the estimated effects that the generation of only one inch of beneficial rainfall would have on groundwater conservation, and the resultant savings in natural gas -- the fuel used to pump most of the area's irrigation water. He reported that one inch of ideally beneficial rainfall could result in a savings of over one billion cubic feet of natural gas. He went on to note that the potential savings in energy used to pump groundwater may generate widespread interest in rainfall augmentation in the

He went on to stress that the area applicable to his estimates was only that area within the High Plains Underground Water Conserva-District No. 1, which represents only a fraction of the total High Plains of Texas. There was considerable discussion of the differences in the purposes of weather modification for hail suppression, as compared to weather modification for the sole purpose of creating additional rainfall. It was noted that there is considerable diversity of opinion as to the effects that hail suppression has on rainfall. Some claim that any hail suppression will result in a corresponding reduction in rainfall. However, the proponents of hail suppression contend that their practices create rainfall. It was the opinion of the committee that without an adequate, scientifi-cally controlled evaluation of weather modification practices, neither the pro-ponents or the opponents have much proof of their contentions. Jaeggli noted that the layman is caught in the middle, not knowing what to believe.

Rayner reported that the District's Board of Directors has not adopted a policy in regard to the ongoing hail suppression program covering a part of the area within its boundaries. He noted that the policy of the District, and its purposes and functions, is to facilitate the conservation of the area's groundwater supplies.

The committee agreed there is a critical need to commence programs for evaluating weather modification in Texas; and the chairman concluded that, "Since the Weather Modification Act of 1967 places full jurisdiction for such practices in Texas within the prerogative the Texas Water Development Board, it is logical for that fact-finding agency to take the lead and responsibility for such evaluation programs.'

Ivie reported that the Texas Water Development Board had taken preliminary steps toward this end by recently establishing a Weather Modification And Technology Division within that agency. Ivie reported that the Board's meterologist, John Carr has been named the Director of the new division.

The committee members agreed to seek an audience with the five members of the Texas Water Development Board's Weather Modification Advisory Committee at their next regular meeting. The members of the TWDB committee are Horace Byers, College Station; Howard Taubenfield, Dallas, Flip Calhoun, Plainview; George Parker, Dallas; and Richard Dobbs, there, the Pinnock Funeral Home was equipped with three direct telephone lines. One connected the residence with the operator in Warren Center, Pa., and Nichols, N.Y. (the Moore Line); one with Camptown, Pa. (The Camptown Line); and one with our local switchboard in LeRaysville borough (the People's Line). The number was the same for each . 2151. The ring was the same on each of two wall phones and a desk phone - one long and one short ring. Mother and Daddy knew which one to answer from the tone of the respective bells. There were three phone bills but a minimum of toll calls and needless to say, many availed themselves of our services in case of emergency. Many preferred to come down to the funeral home if they needed the funeral director during the night, instead of havple out of bed, because the switch board was located in their home. Naturally, there were no phone booths back in those days. (Send contributions to this column to The Old Timer, Box 639, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

SOUTHWESTERN PUBLIC SERVICE

RULES ON ADOPTION UNREALISTIC? Family Laws In Texas

Remember when a mother might tell her child that his baby sister was deposited on the doorstep by a friendly stork?

Today's sophisticated youngsters are no longer taken in by stork stories, but Texas law still solemnly adheres to a similar fiction. It says that a child whose mother and father are not married does not have a father.

is fooled by this Nobody story, but the result is that thousands of children cannot claim support from their fathers and the tax bill for welfare payments keeps mount-

For this reason a paternity act, making the fathers as well as the mothers of children born out of wedlock responsible for their support was one of the law reforms to be presented to the current Texas Legislature by the State Bar of Texas. Other proposals are designed to provide additional safeguards for abused children and to strengthen the adoption laws.

Texas shares with Idaho the distinction of being the only states in the nation and among the few governments in the western world without a paternity law. Under present Texas law the father of the illegitimate child has neither the obligations nor the privileges of parent-The mother alone is liable for support, and if she cannot manage, the burden is shifted to the taxpayers via the welfare rolls.

The State Welfare Board has come out in favor of a paternity law. State Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell said, "The fathers of these illegitimate children are roaming the street. . .and I think they ought to be made to show some responsibility."

The proposed Texas paternity act is carefully designed to prevent its use by an unscrupulous woman for black-Both the mother and the child must submit to blood tests or the suit will be dismissed. If the blood test evidence, presented at a secret pre-trial hearing, shows the defendant could not be the father of the child, the suit is dismissed and never becomes a matter of public record. Today's blood testing procedures allow for the comparison of more than 30 factors, and experts in the field say that the chances are overwhelming that if the defendant is innocent.

the child will have a blood factor not possessed by the defendant, thus proving innocence.

The Bar is also suggesting some changes in the Texas adoption law. These are aimed principally at making sure that the legal rights of the natural parents are finally and forever terminated before the child is adopted. This has been complicated by a 1972 United States Supreme Court ruling holding that the father of illegitimate children has a right to object to their adoption. Inasmuch as present Texas law does not even recognize the existence of the "illegitimate father," these revisions are needed at once. Other proposed changes would deal with the problems arising from the parents, who because of their own personality problems, abuse or neglect their children, sometimes to the point of death.

A new provision would allow Slaton. for the intervention and removal children from dangerous homes. Additional sections would allow for the eventual termination of the parent-child relationship, if circumstances justify it, so the child may become adoptable.

Present statutes for declaring a child dependent and neglected so that he can be taken from his parents and adopted are described by lawyers and judges as so archaic and technical as to be almost unworkable.

"People will beat or starve a baby nearly to death, inflict third degree burns or maybe leave it in a garbage can," said one East Texas juvenile judge. Even so, he said, the problems of making that child legally available for adoption are great.

CITY FIRMS PAVE THE WAY Youth Attends Special Olympics

BY DUANE MITCHELL Vocational Adjustment Coordinator, Slaton School

During the summer of '72, the City of Slaton had a representative to the 1972 Special Olympics that were held in Los Angeles, Calif. This young man was Irvin Washington, son of Elizabeth Washington.

The Special Olympics was opened Aug. 16, 1972 by vice-presidential candidate, Sargent Shriver, and a number of famous actors, actresses and athletes. Over 3000 handicapped youngsters from all over the United participated. They gathered in the UCLA Stadium to witness the impressive ceremonies that marked the beginning of what is becoming one of the great sports events in the world today.

After an address by Eunice Kennedy Shriver, the director of the Special Olympics for the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation, NBC television star, Lorne

Buttons, Denise James, Mel-burn Stone and Ester Williams. The traditional Olympic torch was lighted by a young blind boy from California, who followed the voice of his coach as he ran the stadium and lit the Olympic flame that burned throughout the four-day event. Ninety - five Texas athletes dressed in white cowboy hats, blue jackets and white pants to represent the Lone Star State, as they competed for the victory metals.

The great victories in the Special Olympics are just a few that these young people will have chance to compete for. In what most of us have to take for granted, these young people have had to strive hard to Green, Grand Marshall, led the accomplish through physical therapy and training.

Slaton's representative, Irvin Washington, was a member of an eight man team that represented Slaton in the State meet in San Antonio. After winning the 300 yd. dash, and placing second in the 50 yd. dash, he was invited to compete in the International Special Olympics.

During the national meet, the youth was entered in the 300 yd. dash, placing second in his heat, and in the 500 yd. dash, placing fifth in the nation. Irvin is but one of the fine athletes that Slaton has and this will be shown in the next Olympics meet.

This experience could not have been a reality for Irvin, or for any of the other boys if it had not been for the many local firms and civic organizations that contributed to the project. The total cost for the youngsters to attend both the state and national events was approximately $600.

We take so many common daily blessings such as these for granted. We take the ordinary blessings of health, sunshine, safety, freedom, and home for granted. Hence we often forget to thank God for them. How often have you thanked or the faithful partner?

God for the fresh air, the smile of a baby, the song of a bird, Thanks for ordinary things transforms them into divine blessings. In suffering we can be thankful for the discipline. If we offer our suffering to God, it can become redemptive.

Our lives become brighter and more helpful by thanksgiving. PRAYER: Heavenly Father, we thank You for life with its opportunities and challenges. We are grateful for the bitter cups as well as for the sweet ones. Above all, we thank You for the unspeakable gift of Your Son. Amen.
