COTTON crop sure is late this year, but there are a lot more bales harvested this year, and this year's output should be one. It could have been better, they say, and of course, they're right, but it's good, or will be, if they ever get it all.

Who lives in the Southland vicinity is working on a way to hook up his behind his stripper, so he can harvest a crop and plant the next one all same time. Another fellow said he was about planting in between the rows the current crop is still on the stalk.

So I tentatively comment that there sure isn't any one of them, which was probably one of the earliest observations to come out of the conversation.

Basketball Meetings Set

Boys 'Dribblers' Program Slated; Girls To Sign

Parents of boys age 9 through 12 who are interested in playing basketball in the Little Dribblers program are urged to attend an organizational meeting of Little Dribblers at 7:30 p. m. tonight (Thursday) in the high school auditorium.

Kenneth Housden will preside at the meeting of parents Thursday night. Also tonight, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium, girls age 9-12 will be signed up for play in the girls division of Little Dribblers. A registration fee of $5 per girl is required to pay for insurance, necessary in the program.

An organizational meeting for the girl's group was held last Wednesday night in the director's room of the Chamber of Commerce. Approximately 80 persons attended to hear the details of the program.

Bing Bingham, organizer of the city program here, was elected president of the organization. The former basketball coach is now principal of Stephen F. Austin School, where a large portion of the eligible girls attend school. Other officers include Mrs. Sue Bednarz, vice president; Jimalene Jenson, secretary; Nora Romero, treasurer; Margaret Bartley, publicity chairman, and R. G. Copeland, player agent.

The need was cited for junior basketballs for the group, which will be purchased with part of the registration fee. Slaton is eligible to have 16 girls' teams, eight in each age group, 9-10 and 11-12. Businesses wishing to sponsor one of the teams may contact Bingham or one of the organization's officers for more information. Each team will have colored gym suits.

The girls will work out with coaches until March 1, when teams will be divided. Parent-coaches then will begin working with the teams and games will be played in a city-wide program during March and April. Before the National Tournament to be held in Levelland June 6, 7, and 8, one team will be chosen from all the girls to represent Slaton.

One Wreck Is Listed In City

One wreck was investigated by Slaton police officers during the last week. The wreck occurred Friday about 11 a.m. when a 1971 foreign car driven by Kathleen Wischkemper of Route 1, Slaton, was involved in a collision with a 1969 auto driven by Pauline Martinez, Hereford.

About $250 damage resulted from the mishap at the intersection of FM 400 and Industrial.

Slaton Area's Cotton Bale Count Reaches 77,966

The total number of cotton bales ginned in the Slaton area inched upward by 3,000 bales during the last week, as 13 area gins were active during the week which was plagued by some bad weather again.

Snow fell last weekend, but a few days of good weather followed. Then along came damp weather again. Total number of bales ginned in the area rose to 77,966, with individual gins listing the following:

Slaton Co-Op 20,000; Farmers Gin 4,100; Posey Gin 4215; Union Gin 5870; Acuff Co-Op 14,900; McClung Co-Op 5722; Basinger 2828; Hackberry Co-Op 4967; Wilson Co-Op 5475; Wayside 4571; Catzki 1775; Gordon 1500; Campbell 2043.

The South Plains cotton harvest was delayed another week to 10 days by the rains and snows over the area, according to W. K. Palmer, in charge of the Lubbock Cotton Classing Office of the USDA. However, farmers were able to harvest some cotton during the past week. Also, some ginning, sampling and classing continued due to accumulated backlogs of cotton harvested before the unfavorable weather.

Samples from 57,000 bales were tested and classed at the South Plains cotton classing offices at Lubbock, Brownfield, Lamesa and Levelland during the week ending Friday, Jan. 26. This brought the total classed for the season to 1,375,000 bales.

Estimates indicate that 75 to 80 percent of this season's crop is now out of the fields.

Grades of cotton at Lubbock were lower than the previous week. Strict Low Middling Light Spotted (42) was the predominant grade, making up 18 percent of all cotton classed. Strict Low Middling (41) made up 13 percent, Strict Low Middling Spotted (43) 13 percent and Strict Low Middling Tinged (44) 12 percent.

Average staple length was also lower than the previous week. Staples were predominantly 30 to 33. Thirty-two percent had a staple length of 30, 21 percent stapled 31, 20 percent was 32 and 12 percent was 33.

Micronaire readings were considerably lower. Only 12 percent of all cotton classed at Lubbock had micronaire readings in the premium range of 3.5 through 4.9, 10 percent "miked" 3.3 through 3.4, 30 percent was 3.0 through 3.2, 35 percent 2.7 through 2.9 and 13 percent was 2.6 and below.

Prices were $10 to $15 per bale higher early in the week but declined on Friday to their earlier levels. Prices ranged from $2.50 per bale over the loan for low grade, low micronaire cotton up to $55 per bale over the loan for high grade, premium micronaire cotton.

Average prices paid for the most predominant qualities in the 3.5 to 4.9 premium micronaire range were: Strict Low Middling (41) staple 30 - 28.65

30 - Gallon Cans Not Required

Slaton residents are not required to purchase 30-gallon trash containers for garbage disposal, P. H. Coomer, manager of Triple C Sanitation Service, declared this week.

The barrels (mostly 55-gallon) that are in use at most Slaton homes are acceptable, Coomer said. His firm now is handling all garbage disposal in the city.

The firm has received many calls on the subject due to a misunderstanding. Most discussion stemmed from the fact that the city has an ordinance that could require the 30 gallon containers if necessary.

Of that total, 174 were graduate students, 25 qualifying for doctorates and 149 for masters degrees. FOOT NOTES
BY MARGRET BARTLEY

How about that wind Saturday! Some skinny people I know had to tie weights around their ankles to keep from blowing away. That was some puff.

Girls wanting to sign up for Little Dribblers should come to the high school gym tonight (Thursday) about 7:30, and bring a parent. The boys will register in the high school auditorium and organize. If you have children who would like to play, now is the time to go. Get in on the beginning. Adults who would like to help coach a team are welcome to volunteer.

There were a bunch of proud young men Tuesday at the Cub Scout Pack meeting as awards were presented, then the derby race held. The Scout House was packed to the brim for the event. I bet the boys feel good to know their families care about what they are doing.

Lewis Named Cotton Leader

RALEIGH -- Dr. H. L. (Hal) Lewis has been named director of agricultural research for Cotton Incorporated, the research, sales and marketing company sponsored by America's 300,000 cotton growers through their dollar-per-bale program. J. Dukes Wooters Jr., president, announced the appointment in a reorganization of the Cotton Incorporated research center here.

Wooters said the move gives new meaning and strength to agricultural research at Cotton Incorporated. "Agricultural research is the area of most immediate concern to cotton producers," Wooters said. "Now this vital area is represented within Cotton Incorporated for the first time at the director level."

Lewis said he is formulating plans for the organization of the new agricultural research division along lines that will work most effectively for producer interests. "At the same time, we will employ our people to obtain maximum benefit from their expertise in various fields," he said. Dr. Lewis, a native Arkansan, has served as manager of Physiology and biochemistry research since the inception of Cotton Incorporated. Last year he was elevated to the position of coordinator of agricultural research.

Test Soils Now For Fertilizer Needs

The pressure is on for farmers to get preparations underway for spring crop planting, states County Extension Agent Paul E. Gross. This includes getting soil tests made and arrangements for fertilizer applications finalized. Late harvests and unusually wet soil have seriously delayed fertilizer applications in most of the West Texas area, Gross reports. This means that when conditions permit, fertilizer dealers will be hardpressed to get applications made before planting time. For this reason, farmers who anticipate soil testing needs should allow a few days for soil analysis before ordering fertilizer applications. "If anyone has reservations about how much and what ratio of fertilizer is needed for a particular crop," Gross explains, "soil tests made by the Extension Soil Testing Laboratory at the Texas Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock can help. Tests are made for ph, nitrate nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium and salts on a routine basis. If desired, tests for the micro-nutrients iron, zinc and manganese can also be made." Gross emphasizes that reports stating the amounts of plant nutrients needed for the yield goal given by the producer are based on the soil test values and the field research that has been conducted by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station researchers working in the West Texas area. "Nitrate nitrogen and phosphorus generally rank first in importance among the determinations made on soils," Gross says. "Gross says a recent soil test can avoid deficiencies, either big money in a season." For information, a collection of charts should be obtained from County Extension Agent, 301 County Office.

High Blood Pressure: The 'Silent Killer'

This is the first of a series of three articles presented during Heart Fund Month to inform readers of this paper about the latest advances in combating heart blood vessel diseases.

One of the most baffling and mysterious medical mysteries in the U.S. today is high blood pressure, a silent and insidious killer. Silent because it has no characteristic symptoms. Mysterious because in 90 per cent of the cases, science doesn't know the cause, and doesn't have a cure.

The problem is urgent. The disease is a major contributing factor to heart attack, the nation's No. 1 cause of death. And high blood pressure — medically known as hypertension — afflicts 21 million Americans. Yet there's hope. A simple checkup can detect it and regular treatment can control it.

"But," says Cardiologist Paul N. Yu of Rochester, N.Y., president of the American Heart Association, "it will take years of research to answer all the questions baffling medical science. Meanwhile, awareness, early detection and treatment are the best medicine. And a routine checkup can be the first step toward averting heart attack and stroke — serious, disabling and often fatal end-results of high blood pressure."

"We need more research to find the underlying causes of hypertension—the kind of research the AHA has supported over the years," Dr. Yu says. "Finding the causes and developing cures takes time and money —the kind of money the Heart Association hopes to raise during its Heart Fund campaign in February."

Dr. Yu, head of the cardiology unit of the University of Rochester Medical Center, points out that, as a result of its annual Heart Fund campaigns, American Heart has invested more than $195 million in heart research since 1948. What does science know about high blood pressure?

- It's a major contributor to stroke, heart attack and kidney failure — diseases which will kill more than 900,000 Americans in 1973.

- It occurs more frequently in blacks than whites, more often in women than men, and is more common among low income groups than the affluent.

- A simple test can detect hypertension. Once found, it can usually be controlled. Treatment of even moderate hypertension can reduce the risk of heart attack, stroke and kidney failure.

- Too much salt in daily diet can cause blood pressure to rise; other contributing factors can be overweight, fatigue and undue stress.

- A man whose blood pressure is over 150 has twice the risk of heart attack and four times the risk of stroke than a man whose blood pressure is under 120.

Dr. Yu shares the view of Dr. John B. Johnson, director of cardiovascular diseases at Howard University in Washington, D.C., who believes hypertension should be declared a "public health problem." He cites action by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as a "step in that direction."

At a meeting last July, HEW Secretary Eliot Richardson appointed a Hypertension Information and Advisory Committee to set standards and conditions for treatment, to educate professional health workers, to distribute widespread public information and to study "the impact of an expanded hypertension program on the health care delivery system."

The recommendations were enthusiastically endorsed by Dr. Yu, Dr. Johnson and other health authorities. They believe the study will signal new victories in the war against hypertension and related heart and blood vessel diseases.

New Energy Legislation Is Supported

"The current energy shortage is one of the most serious problems facing the nation today," according to Burt F. Raynes, chairman of the board of the National Association of Manufacturers.

He said that the NAM Board of Directors will actively support appropriate legislation to deal with the potentially disruptive situation.

In a letter to President Nixon, Mr. Raynes said, "It is the unanimous opinion of our board that, for our nation and industry, few problems are more serious than the potential economic and national security consequences resulting from energy shortages. We are aware of the priority you have given this problem and we applaud your leadership in this effort. Be assured of NAM's desire to cooperate."

Major Farm Income Tax Errors Listed

COLLEGE STATION ----- Texas farmers and ranchers make a number of common mistakes each year that cost them additional dollars at income tax time.

With the deadline for filing farm income tax returns drawing near (March 1), key management decisions can still help reduce the tax load for 1972 by overcoming some common errors, point out Mike Spott and Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economists for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

They list the major income tax mistakes made by agricultural producers as the following:

1. Letting the tax accountant do it all. Turning your tax records over to an "authority" may not be the best decision. Producers must know tax laws themselves and must "think taxes" with every management decision they make during the year. Be sure the tax accountant selected knows farm tax laws and that he asks you questions about your operations that may affect your taxes.

2. Poor planning. This is a major area with far-reaching effects. Included is the failure to buy or sell before the end of the year and the lack of attention to timing sales and trade-ins to transform ordinary income into capital gains.

3. Failure to claim investment credit. This also reflects on poor planning since trading an implement too soon will reduce the amount of investment credit that can be claimed. Using the 7 percent investment credit can lighten the tax burden for many farm and ranch operations.

Many items, when purchased new or when bought with a farm, qualify for investment credit. Items often forgotten include tile drains, feeding floors, paved drives, wells, fences and grain storage bins. Investment credit can be carried back three years to retrieve tax money previously paid and may also be carried forward seven years to save on future taxes. Use Form 1040X to claim any refund due for past years.

4. Poor record keeping. To take full advantage of tax credits, good records are a must. A good record-keeping system should meet the needs of production operations and tax record requirements. Often, overhead expenses such as publications, insurance, electricity, telephone, interest, repairs, and car and pickup expenses are overlooked.

5. Failure to watch tax changes. Tax laws and court rulings change from year to year. And the agricultural producer must keep abreast of all items that may affect his operation. Of special importance is the Keogh Act which provides for tax-free retirement benefits. The Act allows a deduction of 10 percent of earned income or $2,500, whichever is less, to be set aside -- tax free -- in a qualified retirement plan. Also, up to $2,050 may be paid to each child annually for farm wages without losing their exemptions, and the child owes no tax as well.

6. Failure to use capital gains fully. Capital gains can be a major source of tax savings. A long-term capital gain means that only one-half of the profit is taxed if assets were held for six months or more, except for certain classes of livestock which must be held at least 24 months. "Think taxes, keep good records, make income tax a burden and may be a lighter tax load." The economist says, "Producers and ranchers need additional information on how to come tax returns. Copy of the '1973 Tax Guide' available at any county office."

Living With Children

LEGATION -- Avoid "clashes" with children's activities. Magazines can be short-circuited if imagination is used. Items provided for feeling according to one author's lead of punishing a child, or letting him take the reins instead.

Fliescher, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University. "For example, if he hits another child, going without companionship tells him what his behavior accomplished. "If he insists on running through mud puddles without boots, staying inside while his shoes dry is more effective than scolding," she contended. Miss Fliescher was quick to point out that this method isn't always easy on parents. "It may be quicker, easier and neater to do many things yourself, but the goal is to give the child responsibility for his own behavior." According to the specialist, six guidelines encourage the "positive" approach to living with children. * Give commands in line with a child's nature. * Commands often interfere with a toddler's natural curiosity, exploration, sense of adventure and perpetual motion. "For example, if the child enjoys getting into drawers, furnish him one of his own. By diverting his behavior through a substitute, reprimands will diminish." * Consider the child's ability and your expectations. * Match expectations to his current abilities. After all, it takes time for a toddler to eat without creating some mess. * Have more "do's" and fewer "don'ts." * Use the positive approach-- it works wonders with youngsters. Indicate what to do, not what not to do. "Instead of 'Quit jumping on the sofa this minute,' try 'Let's see how high you can jump on the floor.'" "Once a command has been given, follow it through," Miss Fliescher emphasized. "Otherwise, the child will stop paying attention." * Change the environment to achieve desired behavior. "Three tools are anticipation, diversion and substitution.

For example, in order to get a toddler to the bathroom, ask him to "Go find the soap." "Whispering often adds a magical effect." * Set limits. Although a child definitely needs limits, balance them -- and impose only those necessary, the specialist said. "A reasonable number is beneficial -- at least the child knows where he stands. "However, limits shouldn't be considered restraints, but channels for normal behavior. "A youngster needs things he can touch and places he can go, as well as those he shouldn't." In general, a child can't always control his own impulses. He may vary from great independence at times to clinging dependence. "Protect him from real harm, but not to the point he becomes upset over minor hurts. "When setting limits, don't tear the child down," Miss Fliescher stressed. "Give love and praise generously." * Show your love.

From the time they're infants, talk things over with children. Sing to them, read stories and recite nursery rhymes. "Show they're respected as persons," she added. "Thus, sharing should be on terms they understand -- such as the counting technique. An example of this is letting each child bounce on the horse for a count of 25. "Young children seem to understand this is fair," Miss Fliescher concluded.
