

Tigers Win, Now Will Host Tough Wildcats

By DALTON WOOD
 There was no joy in Mudville (Dimmitt) last Friday, but Slaton Tiger fans were happy to win one despite the cold and wet and mud as the Tigers overcame Dimmitt 14-0 at Dimmitt.

It was primarily a defensive battle played in a cold light drizzle and Slaton appeared to hang onto the slippery ball better than the Bobcats, who suffered their second loss of the year while Slaton was evening the mark at 1-1. Dimmitt lost the ball four times on fumbles, and Slaton did not lose a fumble, although twice Quarterback Mike Tumlinson had to fall quickly on bobbled snaps.

The Tigers pushed Dimmitt all over the place in the first half and kept the Bobcats in a hole with some nice punting and coverage down near the goal line, but could only manage one touchdown in the half despite several good opportunities.

Pass Interference
 Slaton scored in the first quarter on a 52-yard drive aided by a 22-yard pass interference penalty to the Dimmitt 30. Tiger Tailback Bill McClesky on five straight runs scored the touchdown, going 19 yards around left end to stumble into the end zone after shaking off tacklers. Steve Wood's attempted kick was wide, and Slaton led 6-0 at 6:02 of the first. Later in the half Slaton took over the ball at Dimmitt's 30 and then the 33, but couldn't score either time.

In the second quarter, Dimmitt moved to the Slaton 35 where the Tigers held. This was the home team's deepest penetration of the half, which saw Slaton at that point with 7 first downs to 1 for Dimmitt.

The last half was mostly Dimmitt's, at least from the line of scrimmage, but Slaton defensive back Gary Aycock excited Tiger fans and put the game out of reach (as it turned out) by returning a punt 72 yards for a Slaton touchdown. This time, Tumlinson whipped a pass to slotback Ernest Gipson for 2 points to make it 14-0 with 2:05 left in the third period.

Kickoff Bobbled
 Following this TD, an unintentional low kickoff bounced off the front line of Bobcat defenders and kicker Wood alertly fell on the fumble himself to give Slaton the ball at Dimmitt's 47. But again the Tigers, who failed to make even one first down in the last half, were unable to move.

Dimmitt's strongest threat came in the fourth period as they moved from their own 13 to the Tiger 8, then a fumble on the 5

Slaton managed just 96 yards rushing, with McClesky getting 78 of this on 18 carries. Tumlinson hit on two passes, 18 yards to Fullback Gaylon Buxkemper and 15 to Gipson, but a couple more completions were canceled by penalties.

Defensively, linebacker John T. Basinger, with 11 tackles, tackle Loran Roberts, defensive end Greg Basinger, tackle Geron Stricklin, Mark Ethridge and Clarence Hammons all did good work.

Brad Eblen did a good job of covering punts.

Slaton this week will host unbeaten Littlefield, which has stopped Cooper 37-7 and Levelland 13-6, and which has two really fine backs in Quarterback Ronald Parmer and running back Bill Turner.

Vardeman Chosen As Farmer Of Year

W.D. (Buzz) Vardeman, who farms 1,700 acres west of Slaton was announced as the Outstanding Farmer of the Year in the Slaton area for 1975 as Slaton Chamber of Commerce hosted the 18th annual Farmer-Merchant Barbecue Tuesday night in Union Complex.

The Burning Flames trio performed for the event attended by approximately 700 persons, with J.C. McClesky as master of ceremonies.

Stonewall Jefferson, who brought in the first bale of cotton in the trade area to Basinger Gin at Southland, was presented $150 from the chamber. Harold Wilson, producer of the second bale, will receive $100, but he was not present. No third bale has been reported; it will earn a premium of $50 from the chamber.

Vardeman, 47, has been farming for 27 years. A member of Cooper United Methodist Church, he serves on that church's board. Vardeman and his wife, Joyce, have two sons and a daughter.

A pilot, the Farmer of the Year also is a director of Plains Cotton Co-Op and a member of Cooper Young Farmers.

Roger Evans gave the invocation, and Chamber President Ernie Davis welcomed the farmers, commenting that "we appreciate you, and I hope and pray you have the best crops this year that you have ever had."

Speaking for the farmers present, Dale Kitchens expressed appreciation to the Members of Boy Scout Troop 125 voluntarily cleaned up the warehouse after the barbecue.

Rain Heavy ; No Crop Loss

A total of 2.4 inches of rain was recorded in Slaton over the weekend, and temperatures plunged into the 40s. However, most crop observers believe that cotton production will not be hurt by the rain, provided the weather stays warm.

A good warming trend early this week followed the cold, wet weekend.

Football Players Win Slaton Grid Contest

A couple of football players won first and second place in the weekly Slatonite grid guessing contest. First place winner was Gary Aycock, Tiger back who returned a punt 72 yards to score in last week's game, which coupled with his $10 first prize should make it a good week for Gary.

Aycock missed six, as did Kendon Wheeler, Southland Eagle quarterback, and Javier Lopez Gutierrez, 1055 S. 3rd, Slaton. The tie-breaker score at Dimmitt

I'm even sure what county the trade area's bale (by Harold Wilson) is in. For all I Lubbock County still doesn't have a first I never had brought up the subject.

Vocational Education: Job Oriented Training

Vocational education is on the increase, outpacing even colleges and universities in enrollment growth, according to U.S. Department of Education officials who say its emphasis on job market skills and a growing disenchantment with college among youth are contributing to this trend.

The swing in the direction of vocational education has been increasing steadily over the past decade. Between 1965 and 1974 enrollments in public vocational programs rose 659%—over six times the increase for the traditional academic sector, according to Dr. William Pierce of the U.S. Office of Education.

Private vocational schools, too, have been experiencing high enrollments, with a 12% increase last fall.

Seen as a permanent trend, Dr. Albert Riendieu of the U.S. Office of Education says by 1980 there is a good chance 60% of students attending a community college will be enrolled in occupational programs.

"Jobs are at the root of the trend," he says. "Vocational education means bread and butter. Today, people are looking for education which leads to jobs. For example, college graduates have discovered there aren't enough jobs out there—now they're back in school taking welding, or auto repair, or any other job-oriented course."

In addition to increasing enrollments, Dr. Riendieu stated that the average age of vocational students is also increasing, from 21, 30 years ago, to 28 now. "What this means," he says, "is that a lot of people already employed want to change jobs. They are dissatisfied and are going to school after work to learn a specific skill."

While vocational education is certainly not new—it has been around since before the Revolution when Benjamin Franklin owned and operated a printing school—it is gaining new attention in the wake of the worst unemployment in the postwar era.

Today, about six million Americans are enrolled in public or private vocational programs, attractive due to their emphasis on career preparation. Unlike the traditional "whole man" approach to education, i.e., learning a little about a lot, specialized private schools shun the liberal arts for hard knowledge in a skill which is "salable" on the job market.

Attracting a whole new student clientele, typical students in a welding class today would include women who are seeking non-traditional, high-paying jobs; laid off workers who need retraining in another occupational area; high school graduates who don't want to go to college but want some sort of skill before entering the job market; or college grads who have spent months looking for jobs that aren't there.

Tom Neely, a 24-year old business management graduate from a big Michigan university, couldn't find a job after months of looking. In order to support himself and his wife he had to wait tables. "One day I threw in the towel," he said, "and decided to get a skill which would enable me to open up my own business. Because of the need for good welders, I decided to make the 6-month investment in more schooling. I'm going to start a welding shop when I'm through."

Women who want to join the work force after many years are also seeking vocational training. Joan Nettleman, of San Diego, California, was 50 when her children finally all left home, either for college or marriage. To keep busy, she enrolled in a medical assisting program since she always liked helping people. Now, happy in her new career, she enjoys talking to patients and feeling useful again.

However, vocational schools are sensitive to job market demands, adapting to new technological advances or opening career areas. For example, the energy crisis has created a need for welders to work on oil refineries, pipeline, and utility plants. As a result vocational schools have stepped up their training programs. One welding school in Tulsa, Okla., has had to add extra classes now scheduled from 8 a.m. to midnight.

News And Views Of St. Joseph's

This week cheerleaders were chosen at St. Joseph's School. All six girls are in the eighth grade. They are Gail Wimmer, Patricia Kitten, Toni Huckabee, Marsha Dea Davis, Connie Buxkemper, and Conda Kay Bruedigam.

Their cheers and encouragement should be a real help in winning the ball games this year.

Monday, the teachers had an in-service day. The morning session was devoted to becoming familiar with the process that would be used in teacher evaluation, which is in compliance with TSTA requirements.

As a part of this evaluation teachers set performance objectives to be met during the year in hopes that these objectives will promote professional growth and improved teaching methods. A covered dish luncheon was enjoyed by all at noon.

School will dismiss at 1:15 p.m. on Monday, for the Panhandle South Plains Fair.

Thursday, today, the school nurses, Mrs. Davida Bednarz, Mrs. Barbara Bednarz, and Mrs. Joesetta Heinrich will record the weight and height of all students.

Junior High Jottings

By Glenn Culver and Joe Mercer

This week we interviewed a few teachers and asked them what they were doing in their classes.

While Mrs. Scialo's class was busy with library work Mrs. Turney's class was working with measures and the metric system.

Mr. Davis took each grade separately and explained all the school rules. He commended all the classes for doing an excellent job.

We'd like to congratulate both 7th and 8th grade football teams for winning their games against O'Donnell. The 7th graders, who won 28-14, were led by Michel Whaley, who scored three touchdowns.

The 8th grade, with revenge from its 14-0 loss last year as its motive, won 46-0. Glenn Culver and Lance Bownds each scored two touchdowns, and Jessie Titus and Joe Mercer each scored one touchdown. Outstanding defensive players were Greg Johnson, Lonnie Gray, and David Lacy. This week the 7th and 8th grade boys played Littlefield here.

BICENTENNIAL BITS

By NEWMA CARNES

The Slaton Bicentennial Committee will meet Tuesday night, Sept. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce building. All members are urged to be present. All Slaton citizens are welcome.

The Souvenir Calendars are still on sale at the C of C for $1. No more copies will be printed, so if you really want a copy, you should get one soon.

Members of the pioneer cookbook committee have been putting in long hours lately trying to get the book in shape for going to the printer soon. If you have a recipe you want included in the cookbook, turn it in to the C of C or to Mrs. Tunnell.

More than 500 high school students and some adults attended the Bicentennial certification presentation last week. The event caused several of the adults to recall, "That's the kind of assembly I remember we had when I was in school." "I felt the same chillbumps I used to feel when our flag went up at assemblies in our little school years ago." "I missed having an invocation—I hadn't realized we couldn't do that if we had it at school." "That Senator Hance is a good speaker—he said what he had to say one time and quit!"

CARD OF THANKS

Words cannot express our thanks to our many friends, relatives, and neighbors for all the kindnesses, food, flowers, and cards received during the illness and death of our loved one, Bertha Hancock.

Subduing The Sod Webworm
You develop a healthy and luxuriant lawn—that will be the envy of your neighbors—if you control the bugs that might infest it.

If, for example, you have a problem with sod webworms, your lawn could be ruined unless you come to its rescue with the proper cure. Fortunately, it's readily available.

Sod webworms are the larvae of small, buff-colored or whitish adult lawn moths that emerge to mate and lay eggs. They fly in a zig-zag pattern over grass in early evening. Adult moths do not feed. Worms cause the damage.

These gray to dusky green worms are night feeders that chew off grass blades at the soil line and bring them into their web-lined tunnels. Before too long, patches of dead turf appear. As the webworms continue eating, these patches merge, and your lawn can be severely damaged.

Early detection is vital. If you see a lot of adult moths flying over the lawn in the evening, or find them hiding in shrubbery by day, you can expect future webworm troubles. In controlling these pests, Ciba-Geigy's Spectracide® has proved highly effective, applied as spray or granules. A light watering will help carry the pesticide down to where the worms are working.

If you want to control the sod webworm, learn to know it, as well as the many other bugs that join together in sapping your lawn of life!

Job Market Requires Specialized Training

Even more than sports and Saturday night dates, the job market has taken over as the chief topic of conversation among youth today—especially since unemployment for 16 to 19 year olds has topped 19% more than double the national rate.

One of the problems is that high schoolers simply don't plan for careers, according to officials at the U.S. Department of Labor, who cite the lack of knowledge about various career opportunities and inadequate education as major factors.

Where a high school diploma was once an automatic passport into the work world, today about 80% of jobs require specialized vocational education. The unskilled will have the worst time job hunting since many occupations are becoming increasingly complicated and technical. The discouraging fact is that one out of every three high school graduates leaves school without definite career plans, and as a result is threatened to be left behind in the race for over 60 million job openings expected in the next decade.

While a lack of training is a major stumbling block, there certainly isn't a lack of information. The Department of Labor recently published a thick "Occupational Outlook Handbook," an economic crystal ball of sorts since it predicts future opportunities in over 800 occupations. The picture for teachers and boatwains, for example, is cloudy, while rapid growth is forecast for white collar positions and in the service producing industries such as computers, health care, the trades, repair and maintenance, banking and others.

Considerable growth is expected in the area of computers, the world's third largest industry. Computers are produced, used, outmoded and replaced with technical age speed. The need for qualified men and women to operate, maintain and repair them is staggering. There were 150,000 computer operators in 1972, and 175,000 programmers. Both occupations will undergo rapid growth through the mid-1980's requiring an additional 200,000 workers.

And, as banks, insurance companies, credit card companies and state and local governments increase their use, not only will the need for people to run them increase, but also for those capable of keeping them in good repair. The need for computer maintenance men will increase from 175,000 to 250,000 by 1985, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

In fact, the Handbook predicts that repairmen of just about anything from toasters to airplanes is one of the fastest growing occupations there is. Demand is expected to increase rapidly due to many factors including a growing population and a higher standard of living which will allow more Americans to buy more labor-saving devices, which inevitably have to be fixed.

A well-paid field, salary ranges between $4-$7 per hour—and every community needs its share of repairmen. While the trade may be learned on the job in about three years, vocational school courses will teach a trainee more quickly, usually in four to nine months.

But the home is not the only place where gadgets are liable to break down. The Labor Department predicts office machines are also going to need increasing attention as businesses and state and local governments buy and use more equipment to handle a growing volume of paper work which has to be typed, tabulated, copied, and perhaps even shredded. At least one year of training is required in this repair field due to the complicated and ever-changing technology involved.

High schoolers and others about to plan careers would do well to consider the rapidly growing medical field. Employing over 3.5 million people, the outlook is excellent for qualified job seekers due to an increasing health consciousness among Americans made possible by more widespread insurance coverage, either private or through federal programs of health care.

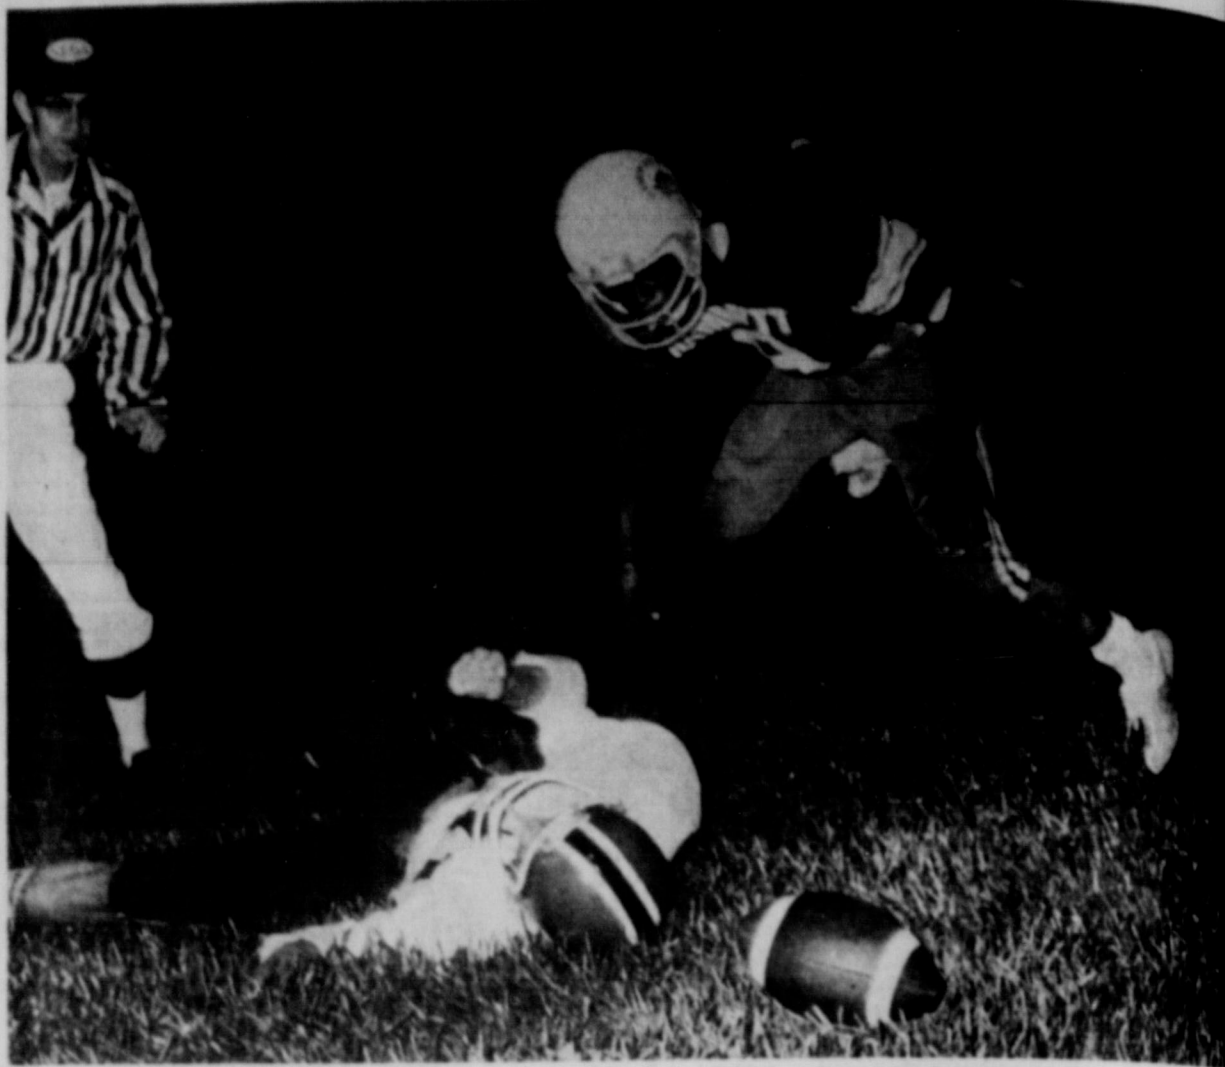

Besides physicians and nurses, millions of paramedics—medical assistants, operating room technicians, medical secretaries, nurses aides, dieticians, dental assistants, and many others—carry out the work of administering health care; and all are expected to be in very great demand over the next decade!

Because of the maze of specialties, each requiring equally specialized training, many good jobs are passed over by young people. After all, how many children grow up wanting to be an optometric assistant?—only about 11,000 as of 1972, yet this field offers a secure and interesting career.

An equally little known field—respiratory therapy—is in much demand, with good chances of advancement. Yet, only 1,800 respiratory therapists are available for the many thousands of hospitals and clinics.

While a B.A. may be obtained in respiratory therapy, shorter concentrated courses are given at vocational schools, reducing the time for training from four years to 18 months.

There are literally hundreds of similar careers going unnoticed by many Americans.

Home Burglary, Wrecks Probed

A Slaton residence where belongings of a deceased woman had been stored was burglarized, it was reported last week, with articles valued at a total of $825 stolen. Among items missing were 30 pieces of antique silverware, silver serving trays and pitcher, an overnight case and some rings.

Two auto mishaps were reported. In the 100-block of N. 9th St. Monday a collision involved a 1972 Buick driven by Myrtle Thomas Klattenhoff, Rt. 1, and a 1971 Ford driven by Kathy Fields Lindsey, 430 W. Garza.

On Sept. 9, from a report previously not on file at the police department, a collision involving a 1967 Mercury driven by Reta Adkins Mayo, Slaton, and two parked 1969 autos was listed. The cars were a Pontiac owned by Jimmy Wayne McMillion, 905 W. Crosby, and a Ford owned by Jimmie Fay Boyd, 910 S. 13th.

arrested as a shoplifter at Handy Hut Tuesday and charged with theft under $5. He was released in custody of his mother.

Slaton officers Tuesday recovered a 1974 pickup which had been stolen in Big Spring.

HOW GOLF STARTED

Scotland is known as the home of golf, and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews controls the rules under which the game is played throughout the world. Yet, Teacher's Scotch Information Centre blushes to admit, golf is not really a Scottish game at all.

Hitting a ball about goes back as a pastime into the mists of time. But the theory of how the game came to Scotland and was developed there goes back a few hundred years to the days when there was a thriving trade between Scotland and Holland.

Cooper Librarian Initiates Changes

By Melinda Ray
Ron Hogue, new librarian for Cooper Schools, has reorganized the schools' library systems. Through the changes Hogue says he hopes to be better able to meet individual student and teacher needs.

One of the changes in the high school library is a new book arrangement. The fiction and story collection books have been placed in a separate section in the southeast corner of the library. This separates them from the non-fiction and reference sections which now occupy the larger center section on the library's east wall.

Another new feature is the management of the audio-visual material by the library. The equipment, which includes filmstrip and movie projectors, opaque and overhead projectors, records, tapes and ordered films, has been placed in a special room inside the library. All materials are available to individual students and teachers for use in special reports, projects, and lectures.

In the near future, Hogue hopes to buy a glass display case for the library to be used for student and cultural exhibits. He requests that anyone who has a collection, hobby, or just an idea about future exhibits to come by and talk about it.

He is also starting a separate general reference section to be used in the library only. This section will contain books on famous quotes, dictionaries, thesauri, and books on general knowledge about many subjects. These books and all other reference material will be for use during school hours only. An older set of encyclopedias will be in circulation for overnight use.

END OF THE ROAD—Gary Aycock halts a Dimmitt runner as Loran Roberts (70) and Mark Ethridge look on.

Christ's entrance into Jerusalem...

And when they drew nigh unto Jerusalem, and were come to Bethpage, unto the mount of Olives, then sent Jesus two disciples. Saying unto them, Go into the village over against you, and straightway ye shall find an ass tied, and a colt with her; loose them and bring them unto me. And if any man say ought unto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them, and straightway he will send them. All this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet saying, Tell ye the daughter of Sion, Behold, thy King cometh unto thee, meek, and sitting upon an ass, and a colt the foal of an ass. And the disciples went and did as Jesus commanded them. And brought the ass, and the colt, and put on their clothes, and a very great multitude spread their garments in the way, others cut down branches from trees, and strawed them in the way.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Someday, man may be able to predict, and even to control, the fury of the storm. But for now, violent storms remain an unpredictable threat to our homes and families. And the most dangerous time of the year lies just ahead.

We've been fairly lucky this year. Texas has been spared from the frightful toll of natural disasters, although several tornadoes have struck and there has been unusually heavy rainfall, flooding and hail in some parts of the state. As the hurricane season approaches, your Texas Department of Health Resources reminds you to stay vigilant—the worst might be just ahead.

Any natural disaster is capable of causing unforeseeable numbers of victims, requiring immediate medical attention, food, and shelter. A natural disaster also can result in disease, unsanitary conditions, the disabling of public utilities, contamination of water supplies, and the disruption of medical services. Floods can produce a rapid buildup in the population of waterborne pests, such as mosquitoes, which aggravate the health hazards.

When a disaster strikes, the health department joins with other state and local agencies and organizations to fight back with efforts to restore affected areas to normalcy. State disaster headquarters is in a sub-basement at the Department of Public Safety in Austin, where a core of public officials coordinate disaster activities.

In the Department of Health Resources, the Disaster Health Services Program of the Emergency Medical Services Division provides additional resources at the point of need. This is a part of the Texas plan for disaster health and medical care.

Seventeen disaster relief districts, each with a physician directing disaster medical care, are tied into a district Civil Defense Council which coordinates activities of state agencies with disaster functions. In case of disaster or severe threat—such as an impending hurricane along the coast, the Civil Defense Council is mobilized. Within each district are zones from which supplies and personnel requests emanate.

The Department of Health Resources sends representatives of the Disaster Health Services Program to each disaster area to help coordinate activities of other health department personnel. In the case of hurricanes, program personnel are pre-positioned in cities along the Texas coast to await and plan for the expected arrival of the storm.

The Texas Department of Health Resources and its local and regional units have responded quickly and effectively in past disasters. With the resources and personnel at its command, it stands ready always to meet the future emergency needs of the citizens of Texas.

BIRTHDAY HONOREES—These three residents of the Slaton Care Center were Tuesday with a birthday party. Joe Moeller, Ida Day and Ethel Spooner all celebrated their birthdays in September. (SLATONITE)

Home Decorating News

QUALITY in home furnishings, the most important consideration of all to the buyer, is something you can judge a lot better than you think. You can look - and you can ask questions.

For instance, you know quite a bit about good fabrics, just from selecting clothing for many years. And you can judge tailoring. Take a good look at that chair you like. Check the evenness and neatness of the welting. See if the fabric is properly centered on the back, seat and arms. See how well it fits.

Then inspect whatever wood trim or frame shows. See how well the wood is finished. If you don't know what kind of wood it is, ask. Then read the manufacturer's label that tells you what the cushion content is, whether foam, cotton, felt, down, urethane foam, or a mixture. And ask more questions of the salesman.

Alspaugh To Receive American Farmer Degree

Joe Alspaugh, who is scheduled to receive the highest degree awarded in a diversified farming program. Here he is with some of his cattle, which are anxious to be photographed. (SLATONITE PHOTO)

Joe Alspaugh of Slaton has been nominated to receive the American Farmer Degree, highest degree presented by the National FFA Organization. Alspaugh was nominated for the degree by the Texas FFA Association. The nomination was approved at a recent meeting of the National FFA Board of Directors in Alexandria, Va. One of 701 FFA members nominated for the American Farmer Degree, Alspaugh will receive the degree in a special ceremony in Kansas City, Mo. on Thursday, Nov. 13, pending a final vote of approval of 119 student delegates who represent FFA members in Convention Business sessions. Joe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Alspaugh and is currently farming in partnership on the home farm about a mile north of Slaton. The farm is set up as a corporation, with Joe, his brother Curtis and his father among the stockholders. Joe is a sophomore agronomy major at Texas Tech, where he made the dean's honor list in the spring semester. The American Farmer Degree is a coveted honor because it is awarded to only one in every 700 members nationally and presented only to those who have demonstrated exceptional agricultural and leadership ability. Each recipient will be presented a gold key and certificate by the National FFA organization. The American Farmer Degree is the fourth and highest degree in FFA. Alspaugh was a Star Greenhand, earned the Chapter Farmer Degree and as a junior in high school, earned the Lone Star Farmer Degree. To qualify for the American Farmer Degree, a candidate must have been out of high school for at least one year, be currently engaged in farming, and have a diversified farming program while in college.

Joe qualifies on all counts, and his project program includes cotton, milo, cattle, sows for pig production and pigs for pork. Leadership Among other requirements are that the degree candidate must be a scholastic and community leader, leader in church and FFA organizations, and must invest productively some of his money made from the project program. According to Paul Johnson and Don Mitchell, young Alspaugh's high school agriculture instructors, Joe knows all phases of farming well. Joe himself credits not only his high school instructors, but also his parents with helping him learn the farming business. He said he was appreciative of the fact that his parents always insisted that he do all of his own work while they provided counsel and financial aid to get started. Joe's father received the Honorary Chapter Farmer degree last year from the Slaton High School FFA Chapter for his help in advancing the program locally. He has exhibited livestock throughout the state, participated in livestock, dairy cattle and poultry judging, was in the state FFA judging contests at Texas A&M four years, as a sophomore tied for high individual in poultry judging at Texas Tech, and was a winner of the Citizens State Bank scholarship in his senior year. Joe also was a high school athlete, and for his work as a defensive half-back in his senior year, earned the Fighting Tiger Award.

ON THE BALLOT
Revising the separation of powers, legislative executive provisions of the Texas Constitution, Article II, Section 1, and judicial provisions, Article III, Section 1, as otherwise provided by the constitution, members of one or more branches may not exercise their powers properly at either of the efficiency of the executive branch. The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows: "The constitutional amendment revising the SEPARATION OF POWERS, LEGISLATIVE, AND EXECUTIVE PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution." If adopted by the voters, will become effective January 1, 1976, except Article III, Section 5, which becomes effective January 1, 1981.

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the judiciary provisions of the Texas Constitution, Article V, The Judiciary is amended to: Establish a unified judicial system consisting of the supreme court, court of appeals, district courts, and circuit courts. Existing county courts and county judges are continued until otherwise provided by law. All judges (except municipal judges), district attorneys and district clerks must be elected by the people. The supreme court and the court of criminal appeals are merged into a single court of last resort, and this supreme court is authorized to provide for efficient administration of the judicial system and to balance case loads. Individual rights for a trial by jury and appeal by the accused are continued. The state is granted the right to appeal in criminal cases in limited circumstances, and the legislature is permitted to establish methods of appeal to the courts from decisions of state agencies. The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows: "The constitutional amendment revising the JUDICIARY PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution." If adopted by the voters, will become effective September 1, 1976.

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the voting and election provisions of the Texas Constitution, Article VI, Voter Qualifications and Elections, is amended to: Provide for registration and qualifications for voting including voter residency requirements to be established by law. A citizen of the United States who is at least 18 years of age and who meets the registration and residence requirements provided by law is a qualified voter unless the person has been convicted of a felony and for that felony is incarcerated, on parole, or on probation, or unless the person is mentally incompetent as determined by a court. Voting by the people in all elections must be by secret ballot, and the legislature shall provide by law for residence, registration, and absentee voting requirements, for the administration of elections, and for the protection of the electoral process. The general election for state and county officers is to be held in even-numbered years on a date prescribed by law. The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows: "The constitutional amendment revising the VOTING AND ELECTION PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution." If adopted by the voters, will become effective September 1, 1976.

PROPOSITION NO. 4 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the education provisions of the Texas Constitution, Article VII, Education, is amended to: Provide that the Permanent and Available School Funds and the county public school funds are continued for the support of the free public schools. The State Board of Education is retained and the Permanent and Available University Funds are continued for the benefit of The University of Texas and Texas A&M Systems. A new Higher Education Fund for Texas is established for the benefit of colleges and universities outside The University of Texas and Texas A&M Systems. The state ad valorem tax of ten cents on $100 evaluation is continued as the source of revenue for the Fund. The ten cent higher education tax may be changed by law within the ten cent maximum. The legislature may allocate by law a portion of the Higher Education Fund to certain state vocational and technical institutes. The article provides that the public education system must furnish each individual an equal educational opportunity, but a school district may provide local enrichment of educational programs exceeding the level provided by the state consistent with general law. Authority to issue Permanent University Bonds is continued but the bonds may not exceed 30% of the Permanent University Fund.

PROPOSITION NO. 5 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the finance provisions of the Texas Constitution, Article VIII, Finance, is amended to: Provide that state taxes may be levied and collected only by general law and to prohibit any state ad valorem tax on real property or tangible personal property except the ten cent tax provided for in Article VII and a tax of two cents on the $100 assessed valuation to provide funds for the State Building Fund. Provides that all real property and tangible personal property must be taxed equally and uniformly in proportion to market value. Existing exemptions from ad valorem taxation are continued. The present deduction of motor fuel taxes for highway purposes and the Available School Fund is retained. The "pay-as-you-go" principle for the operation of state government is retained. The legislature shall establish separate formulas for appraising land to promote the preservation of open-space land devoted to farm or ranch purposes and may establish separate formulas for appraising land to promote the preservation of forest land devoted to timber production. The $3000 exemption from state ad valorem taxation for residential homesteads is continued and the legislature by law may increase this amount. A separate $3000 exemption from ad valorem taxation is provided for the residential homestead of persons at least 65 years of age and the political subdivision may increase this amount. The legislature by law may exempt from ad valorem taxation certain property owned by veterans' organizations, non-profit water corporations, and persons in need because of age or disability, and economic circumstance. The legislature may also exempt property to preserve historical, cultural or natural history resources. Taxpayers are provided a new method of correcting inequitable tax assessments by paying ad valorem taxes under protest and suing for a refund in a district court. State debt may be authorized by law only if approved by a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature and submitted to and approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the state voting on the question. Public funds and public credit may be used only for public purposes and no public funds or public credit may be used to influence the election of a public officer. The article prohibits a retail sales tax on agricultural machinery or parts, fertilizer, feeds or seeds, prescription drugs or medicine, or food, except food sold by restaurants for immediate consumption. An assessment voted by marine food or agricultural producers on their product sales is not a tax if provision is made for the individual producer to receive a refund of the assessment when the producer does not desire to be assessed. The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows: "The constitutional amendment revising the FINANCE PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution." If adopted by the voters, will become effective on September 1, 1976, except Article VIII, Section 2, Subsections (b) and (c), which becomes effective January 1, 1978, and Article VIII, Section 6, Subsection (c), which becomes effective January 1, 1979.

PROPOSITION NO. 6 ON THE BALLOT

Revising the local government provisions of the Texas Constitution, Article IX, Local Government, is amended to: Provide that the counties of the state are those that exist on the date of adoption of the local government article and that county boundaries may be changed if approved by a majority of the qualified voters in each affected county who vote on the question. Counties may be merged or county seats relocated if approved by two-thirds of the qualified voters in each affected county who vote on the question. The present elected constitutional county offices are retained and four year terms of office are provided. The voters of a county may create additional offices, eliminate offices, or combine the duties and functions of offices. The voters may also grant ordinance making power to the governing body of the county. Cities and towns having more than 1,500 inhabitants may become home-rule cities. Tax limitations are established for operating purposes for cities and counties and the legislature is required to fix debt limits for cities, towns, counties, and school and community junior college districts. The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows: "The constitutional amendment revising the LOCAL GOVERNMENT PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution." If adopted by the voters, will become effective on September 1, 1976.

tribute more than 10%. A policy that the quality of the environment of the State of Texas is to be protected is established, and the legislature is required to implement and enforce this policy. No state funds may be used to remove surface water from the river basin of origin if the surface water is necessary to supply the reasonably foreseeable water requirements of the basin for the ensuing 50 years, unless the removal of water is sufficiently replaced to the point of removal from outside the state or is on a temporary, interim basis. The seaward beaches of the Gulf of Mexico and coastal submerged lands belonging to the state are held by the state in perpetual trust for the people, and subject to reasonable limitations prescribed by law, the public has the free and unrestricted right of use and benefit of the beaches. The provision is continued that, except as otherwise provided by law, a rate of interest in excess of ten percent a year is usurious, and that if a contract does not specify a rate of interest, the rate under the contract may not exceed six percent a year. Discrimination against handicapped persons is prohibited, and a goal of the state is established to provide every resident access to adequate, comprehensive health care. The wording of the proposed constitutional amendment as it will appear on the ballot is as follows: "The constitutional amendment revising the GENERAL PROVISIONS of the Texas Constitution." If adopted by the voters, will become effective September 1, 1976.

College Alternative: Vocational Education

Proving that what goes up doesn't necessarily come down, college costs are expected to rise six to 12 percent for an all time high during the 1975-76 school year.

A four year private university now costs a hefty $4,391 in tuition, board and room, and other fees, according to the College Entrance Examination Board. A public university carries a price tag of $2,679 for one year of attendance.

The total cost of college or university training can be even more staggering. One recent B.A. graduate estimated the four years he spent at a Midwestern university cost more than $30,000 including tuition, living expenses, interest on educational loans and foregone income (salary he could have earned if he were working). Graduate school might easily have tacked on another $17,000, since by then foregone income would have increased through raises.

Even with new government programs of assistance, many students are finding it difficult or impossible to finance college. Along with the escalating costs, a growing belief that college no longer is the passport to a secure, good paying job makes it questionable as an investment for many. As a result, students are searching for alternatives to the traditional college route. One increasingly popular solution to the high cost of college is the "no frills" vocational education offered in a variety of public and private institutions. Vocational education offers the benefits of post-secondary education without the high costs of college. It concentrates training in a specialized career such as computer programming, commercial piloting, fashion merchandising, advertising, commercial art, even wastewater technology. There are hundreds of careers requiring only vocational training (and not a college degree). Shorn of "extras" such as expensive student centers, sports teams and liberal arts courses, vocational schools are able to offer high quality education at a lower cost.

For example, a student interested in commercial art may attend a college or university for four years, taking a total of 96 credits. Less than half of those credits will have been earned in commercial art subjects with the majority in such courses as English lit, science, phys ed and other non-related, but required courses. A career school student only pays for courses he or she needs to enter the job market.

The savings can be substantial, in this case two years of tuition. An average year at a vocational school costs $1,500 to $2,000. But not only does the commercial art student at a vocational school pay a lower cost, he is out in the job market earlier and earning an extra two years of salary.

Unlike college, vocational training is unabashedly employment-oriented. In addition to being taught only those skills needed for entry into the job market, career students are given "hands on" training which places them in actual work environments either with co-operating employers or in the school's own shop. There, students learn by doing and as a result get practical work experience which often gives them the edge over academically-trained students.

With all the emphasis on employment, placement is high in accredited vocational schools. According to the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools, an organization of accredited vocational schools, more than 70 percent of graduates find employment in their fields shortly after graduation but the figure is probably higher since many grads leave the school area for jobs and cannot be reached. By comparison, the Department of Labor estimates only 60 percent of college grads obtain employment in their field.

In fact, the job market is increasingly becoming glutted with teachers, history majors, psychologists and others. Recent reports from the Labor Department indicate the number of grads threatens to exceed demand by 800,000. While 15.3 million students will graduate from a college or university between 1972 and 1985, the labor force needed during that time is pegged at only 14.5 million. Less than a quarter of the 61.2 million job openings during that time will require college and only a third of all white-collar job openings will be filled with degree holders.

According to Herbert Bienstock, Assistant Regional Director for the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, college graduates will increasingly be forced into fields not related to their training, such as sales, clerical and service jobs. The result will be underemployment and job dissatisfaction as grads, out of economic necessity, seek employment in areas where their training is not fully utilized. Employment growth through 1985 is predicted to center on the service-producing areas with a 55 percent increase in the need for craftsmen, repairmen, auto mechanics, technicians, paramedics and others.

The major factors contributing to this demand are the growing population accompanied by increasing urbanization with its emphasis on the need for more city services and, finally, a rising standard of living has accelerated the demand for all types of services. For a listing of vocational schools, consult the Office of Education, Department of Postsecondary Education, which is available from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402 for $1.00. A free 104-page directory of Accredited Technical Schools is available from NATTS, 1000 Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

I have just bought another car. Will my present auto insurance provide coverage?
 When you buy a car you must call your agent and report certain information to him... including the motor number of the auto. If you have sold one car and bought another, this must be reported in order to take the old car off the policy and to insure the new car. If this car is to be a second car, it needs to be added to your present policy. If the two cars are the same year model, the liability insurance premiums will usually be the same. If you have sold an older car for a newer one, your premiums will generally be higher, particularly in the case of comprehensive and collision insurance.

Rules of the Game

Teams playing in this week's contest games are listed in the ads and are numbered 1 through 44. Use the entry form at the bottom of the page and circle the numbers of the teams you think will win. To pick a tie, circle both numbers of the teams playing.

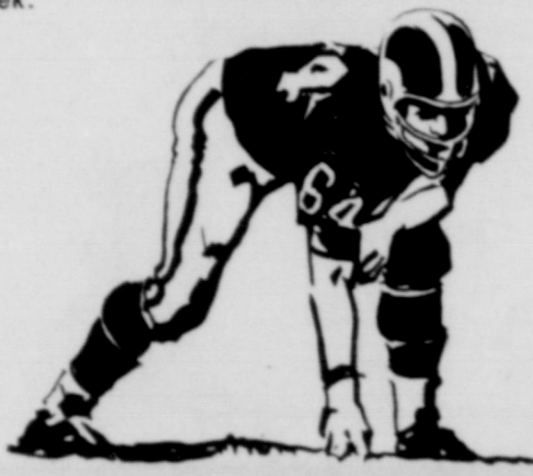

Be sure to guess total score on the "tie breaker" game. In case of ties, the entrant nearer to that total score will be the winner. If ties also occurs on total score, prize money will be split between place winners. This also applies to "jackpot" winner.

Have your entry blank signed or stamped by a participating merchant, and get it to The Slatonite office by 5 p.m. Friday before the games are played. Only one entry per person; all persons 12 years old or older are eligible except Slatonite employees and their families. Each entrant eligible for one prize, and prize money must be picked up at the Slatonite office by 5 p.m. on Monday after the winners are announced Thursday. No two members of the same immediate family and living at the same residence may win prizes the same week.
