

A WEEK AT A TIME

By J. M. RANKIN

OF FRIENDS I HAD

Twenty-one years after the first Armistice, I wonder about friends that once I had. Not strange it is that most of them should be old people and young women and children. For these friends I wonder about lived in Europe along the historic rivers; the sparkling Allier the southbound Rhone, the dreadful Meuse, the bloody and fatal Marne, the leaping Isere, the slow Moselle, the broad and turbid Rhine.

At Vichy

I wonder about friends in Vichy, the stylish watering place in the Midi. The Jeweler's daughter, Denise? She would be married now surely, for French maidens whose parents have a good business always are primly married and have one or two children. That was twenty-one years ago, and now her son perhaps is with the tri-color, a sous-officer or a lieutenant. And her timidity has changed to a dreadful resignation as Europe marches again to war.

At Grenoble

I wonder about the young Albert of Grenoble, in whose home I had a room for a few months. He was eighteen then and a star athlete. He twisted a knee in a soccer game and got a leave of absence. Visited in his home, bunned his mother every day for money she earned making fine furs. We laughingly called him The Badly Wounded One. He was a corporal then. He would be a grizzled soldier of forty now. His father would long ago have drunk himself to death on the red wine he guzzled so constantly. His mother, too, was old. She'd be eighty now. But the Badly Wounded One would be marching again or stationed in the Maginot Line.

At Sehl

And my old friends at Sehl-Bei-Cochem-an-der-Mosel? They took us in so graciously though we were of the conquering army that had turned the tide of defeat against their Deutschland. They showed us through their famous wine cellars where huge casks held the sweet white wine of the Moselle. They drew from the casks of marriage wine, aging since their own marriage forty years before. And they made us their welcome guests. They showed us with pride and grief the four Iron Crosses that Germany had sent them for the four sons they had lost in the War. That was all their family—all dead for "Koenig and Vaterland." I wonder about them. But no use. They were old then and that was twenty years ago. Now they would sleep with their fathers. Or they would be so feeble that even the cataclysm of war would move them even less than a late meal or cup of wine by a sunny window.

At Brussels

And I wonder about Jacques, the lace merchant of Brussels. He joined our company after the collapse of his own army. Not much of a soldier, as merchantmen frequently are not. But intensely patriotic and full of first hand stories of German atrocities in Belgium. But he would be past fifty now. And Belgium is not in the line of march this time. Perhaps I'll hear from him this winter. I always do about Christmas. Last year from Paris.

At Hillscheid

I wonder about the fourteen-year-old redhead at Hillscheid on the other side of the Rhine. She never forgave us for being Americans, and for crossing the Rhine. But she wouldn't refuse the white bread so rare, or the sweets so lavishly piled on our mess-kits and shared with whoever occupied the house with them—or did they occupy the house with us. She was born to be partisan, and she would be a Nazi today. Bitter, unflinching.

At Dalheim

I wonder about the peasant fam-

TIGERS TO FACE BROWNFIELD IN CRUCIAL GAME SATURDAY

Tigers At Home But Underdogs

Slaton's Tigers will meet the severest test of the season so far when they entertain the Brownfield Cubs at Tiger Field Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Both teams are up to this date enjoying a perfect record as far as conference games are concerned. The Tigers have Tahoka safely tucked away with a score of 28-0 on the books, and Post was sidetracked by the small but safe margin of 6-0. Brownfield has left Tahoka, Post and Levelland all with bad cases of second place, and now has only the Tigers to subdue to have a perfect score for the south half of the District. Coaches Hamilton and Miller have been occupied through the past weeks trying to nurse the squad through 22 days without competition so they won't bloom out Saturday with an attack of stage fright or some other ladylike affliction the Cubs would probably be quick to take advantage of. All members of the starting line-up are ready to start and no serious injuries show up to dampen the ardor and hopes of the local gridiron fans.

Preparing for the game, the Student Councils of the two schools have exchanged visits recently with the avowed purpose of making more cordial the relationships between the two schools in the presence of their intense rivalry. The Brownfield delegation visited in Slaton, Wednesday of last week, and the Slaton students returned the visit, Wednesday of this week. Tickets for the game are on sale at the three drug stores in town and at Wilson, Southland and Cooper. Adult tickets may be bought for 50c in advance of the game, but at the gate they will be 75c. Student tickets are 25c.

Slaton Band In Fall Concert

The Slaton High School Band will present its annual fall concert, Monday evening, November 13 at 7:30 in the high school auditorium, Director Jim Nevins announced this week. Dicky Ragsdale and Frankie Todd will assist Nevins in the evening program. The public is invited to attend, and no charge for admission will be made.

ily in Luxembourg at Dalheim. One of the boys may be in the army now. The Grand Duchess recently brought it up to full war strength of three hundred men. The furnishings of that peasant kitchen were a revelation in simplicity. A rude table, two benches, wooden dishes, wooden forks and spoons, one iron kettle in the fireplace. That was all. Bread was baked at the village bakery and soup could be cooked in the iron kettle. But I wonder about those who were young then. Will their land again be a highway for clanking armies, their homes rendezvous for arrogant militaires, their roads gateways of Death?

At Hahr

At Hahr-bei Coblenz-an-der Rhein was a gracious family, the Steins. The gentle father, a professor in the city high school, the mother eager to impress us with her potato cakes—and successful at it too—the lovely daughter, a young woman wondering if out of war's scarcity would come a mate for her. And Edward, I wonder about him. A brilliant fourteen-year old student in the University. Facile in five languages, burning with dreams of coming to America, asking us if we could get him a job. Feeling that opportunity was gone in improvised Germany. But now unless he did come to America, he would be an officer in that Nazi army or he would be in a concentration camp if he let slip some unguarded word in that land of dreadful tyranny. I wonder about him. And all the others. But those doors are closed, and Death marches again in Europe.

Burglaries Solved By Lubbock Arrest

Recent burglaries in Slaton were solved this week when juveniles at Lubbock confessed to some thirty-five "jobs" on the South Plains within the past three months. The latest thievery here was the robbery of the Plains Lumber Company's store on South Ninth St. A number of high grade hatchets and hammers were taken with other merchandise. Traces of this merchandise were found, but none of it has been recovered. On the night of the Lumber Company burglary, two wheels and tires were stolen from the car of B. G. Guinn on W. Lubbock, but the boys in custody deny any knowledge of this.

Two gangs seem to be identified in the crime wave that came to an abrupt stop with the arrest of "eight or nine" juveniles; one group seems to have specialized in the residential section of Lubbock, the other in the business section. It is not known which one visited in Slaton.

Miss Esoleta Alcorn Honored At Shower

On Thursday, November 2, at 4 o'clock at the Club House, Miss Esoleta Alcorn, Bride-elect of Elton Smith, was named honoree for a miscellaneous shower. Misses Helen Argo and Opal Mosley, Mesdames Jack Cooper, A. Kessel, A. Dennis, W. D. Gerson, W. F. Martin, T. O. Petty and the Junior Department of the Baptist Sunday School were delightful hostesses to some seventy-five guests.

Mesdames Stallings, Petty and Martin greeted the guests at the door while Miss Lillian Austin presided over the Bride's Book, which had as its cover, an oil facsimile of the cottage in which the couple are to live. It was painted by Mrs. A. Dennis.

The tea table from which Mesdames A. Kessel and Jack Cooper poured tea, as the guests arrived, was covered with a lace table cloth centered with a three-tiered brides cake decorated at the top by a miniature bride and groom. Silver candle sticks with tall tapers, silver tea service and crystal completed the artistic table arrangement.

Huge baskets of yellow chrysanthemums were attractively placed about the Club House, while on one side, the white ship of matrimony with the Smith flag on high was anchored safely in the harbor of Love, and was scheduled to set sail for life on November 19.

After the guests were seated, Miss Opal Mosley took charge of the following program: Reading—"Learning to Drive," Billy Ann Mosley. Vocal Duet, "Moonlight and Roses," Laura Belle Tucker and Jimmie Faye Ward, accompanied by Mrs. K. S. McKinnon. Toast, "Sailing the Sea of Matrimony," by Mrs. R. L. Smith, jr. Accordion Solo, Miscellaneous selections, Juanita Elliott.

The bride-to-be was then presented with innumerable gifts, which bespoke the love and esteem of the couple's many Slaton friends.

Mrs. Young Hostess To Alathean Class

The Alathean Class of the First Baptist Church met Monday evening with Mrs. Clifford Young, 1005 East Dayton.

Mrs. Jeffercoat lead in prayer, and Mrs. C. V. Young brought the devotional in the form of Bible questions which were answered by the group. Mrs. Walter Hord was in charge of the recreational hour.

Refreshments were served to the following members: Mesdames C. V. Young, Walter Edwards, Melvin Abernathy, Conner, Long, Anderson, Martin, Meeks, Walter Hord, Blaylock, two visitors, Mrs. Jeffercoat, Mrs. F. D. Young and the hostess, Mrs. Young.

PROCLAMATION

By the President of the United States
Whereas, in the tragic situation which the world finds itself today, with the destructive forces of war once again unleashed, it is appropriate for the people of the United States to reflect upon the hour of November 11, 1918 when the voices of war were silenced, and to look forward even now to a time when a just and enduring peace shall be established among all the people of the earth;
Now, therefore, I Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do hereby direct that on November 11, 1939, the flag of the United States be displayed on all Government buildings, and I invite the people of the United States to observe the day in schools and churches, or other suitable places, with appropriate ceremonies.

SUNDAY SERVICES WILL CLOSE METHODIST CONFERENCE YEAR

Reports For Year Will Be Given

This next Sunday, November 12, will bring to a close, the Conference Year. Rev. J. O. Quattlebaum will give the sermon at the morning hour and Mrs. L. A. Harral will be in charge of the Evening Service, which will be given by the choir.

This year has been a good year, and the pastor will be able to give a full report when he reports the activities of the Slaton Church at the Northwest Texas Conference. Rev. Quattlebaum has worked unceasingly and patiently with the Church, and with its members.

Many projects have been undertaken and fulfilled during the past year, and it is with pride we give our commendation to Rev. Quattlebaum.

Methodist members are urged to attend one hundred percent, and to bring with them their friends, for it will be a very interesting report, the Pastor will give. The salary is paid, and it is expected that all the Benevolences will be paid by Sunday night. Forty members have been received into the Church this conference year, and there is hope that more will be united this last Conference Sunday.

Mrs. Harral reports that the choir will sing three anthems; "Rejoice in the Lord" by Norman; "The Earth is the Lord's" by Holton, and "I Will give you Rest" by H. Vonberge. Other special hymns will be offered, also, and everyone is invited to attend.

Safety Week Observed By Woodrow Wilson P. T. A.

The Woodrow Wilson Parent Teachers monthly meeting was held Thursday evening, November 2, at the school building.

There were sixty-four members and visitors present. After dispensing with all business the following program was given:

Safety songs by the children. A talk on Safety by Lieut. Major Highway Patrolman for this district.

This was followed by informal group singing.

Games were directed by Miss Joan Drewry. The closing feature of the meeting was a social hour, at which time, sandwiches, cookies and coffee were served from a lace covered table decorated with daisies.

Mrs. Gunter's room won the attendance prize. The next regular meeting will be held Thursday, December 7. All parents are urged to attend.

JUST ARRIVED to Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Young a seven pound grandson, Kenneth Neal, at Oakland, California. Kenneth Neal's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Nealon Young, formerly of Slaton. Mrs. Young was the former Ila Mae Everett of Cross Plains.

Ginning Records Must Be Kept

Failure of farmers to present to ginner their cotton marketing cards when they have their cotton ginned and see that the ginner properly records the form serial number on his record may cost farmers considerably on their 1940 marketing allotments, says a statement issued by the county AAA committee.

The failure to present the cards to the ginner and to see that he records the correct farm serial number for all cotton ginned from your particular farm, may result in the cotton produced in being credited to another farm.

Since future cotton yields and benefit payments will be based on reports prepared by the ginner, failure to get cotton you have produced credited to your farm may result in a lower yield and lower payments to your farm.

Farmers will be requested to supply the following information: 1. Whether all cotton produced on the farm in 1939 has been ginned. 2. Number of bales ginned in 1939. 3. Gross weight of each bale ginned. 4 Name and address of gin at which each bale of cotton was ginned. 5 Number and pounds of seed cotton sold. 6 Name and address of the person to whom seed cotton was sold. 7 Amount of cotton on hand, (seed and bale cotton) or under the loan.

The farmers cooperation in helping handle the cotton this season will be greatly appreciated by the committee.

Chas. Whittaker At Brownfield

Chas. Whittaker, 19th District Commander of the American Legion of Texas, will meet with the Brownfield Post, Thursday, November 16, at 7:30 P. M. Rations will be issued and a program presented to which all South Plains Legionnaires are invited according to reports from P. G. Meading, Adjutant of Slaton Post. Monday of next week is regular meeting day for Slaton Legionnaires.

GIGANTIC PARADE TO BE HELD IN SLATON ON ARMISTICE DAY

Clean-Up Move Gains Approval Streets, Alleys And Walks Are Improved

A clean-up campaign that has been in progress in Slaton the past week is receiving many compliments from citizens of the city. The City Commission approved Mayor Teague's suggestion that all facilities available be combined with the labor available and clean up the trash that was accumulating frightfully in streets and alleys.

"The work will be carried as far as funds and labor will permit," said Mayor Teague, Wednesday afternoon. "We're just doing the best we can with what we have." Besides hauling off the trash and dirt accumulated in gutters and alleys, the city maintainer has been used to throw back the soil that had been encroaching on the walk along Texas Avenue to the Santa Fe depot. Other measures are making the streets look cleaner, and the excuse if one were needed might be that we may have company this winter and ought to have housecleaning done.

Mother of John C. Jenkins Dies Mon.

Mrs. J. J. Jenkins, 80, resident of the South Plains 22 years, died at 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at her home in Morton after a week's illness.

Funeral services were conducted at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Central Baptist Church, Lubbock, with Rev. Ben F. Thompson, Baptist minister of Mineral Wells, and Rev. Jeff D. Welch, pastor, officiating. F. F. Roland Funeral Home of Morton directed burial in the Lubbock cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins moved to Morton about five years ago and formerly lived in Shallowater.

Surviving are the husband; five sons, R. L. of Lubbock, J. C. of Slaton, Joe of Lorenzo, J. C. of Christoval and W. C. of Los Angeles, Calif.; two daughters, Mrs. F. A. Ballard of Shallowater and Mrs. C. C. Reynolds of Morton; and fourteen grandchildren.

F. F. A. Hosts To City Service Club

In order that the Rotarians might have a better knowledge of the Vocational Agriculture work, which is being done by the Slaton department, the local chapter presented a program consisting of brief talks to the City's Service Club at the Community Club House on Thursday, November 2nd.

President R. C. Hall, jr. gave the history of the local chapter since the Vocational Agriculture department was originated in 1936. Raudin McCormick then spoke on the program of work which had been set up for the year. The high spot of the program came when Douthit Grinstead reported on his one-vacriety cotton project. He told of exhibits of twenty bolls each which he showed in the Panhandle and South Plains Fair and at the Texas State Fair in Dallas. He placed second in the Lubbock Fair and second in two divisions of the State Fair. As proof of his winnings Douthit is carrying around with him $17.00 prize money.

CONGRATULATIONS TO: Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Castleberry

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Castleberry on birth in the Mercy Hospital early Monday, November 6, of twins. A son weighed six pounds, four ounces, a daughter six pounds. The father is manager of the Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Co.

The Art Club will sponsor a 42 party next Monday night at the Slaton Club House, at 7:30. Mesdames C. F. Anderson, T. K. Martin, M. L. Turnbow and Miss Docia Tucker will serve. Everyone is urged to attend.

Education Parade To Start Big Day

Plans drew nearer completion today for the gigantic parade to be held in Slaton Saturday, Armistice Day, preceding the gridiron tangle between the Slaton Tigers and Brownfield Cubs, with the student body election of pretty Miss Evva Jean Enlow, senior, 17-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Enlow, to carry a prominent part in the parade as queen of the day. Miss Enlow is five feet, three inches high, weighs 110 pounds and has light brown hair.

With this information came the announcement that at least one dozen floats representing various departments of all three of Slaton's public schools will participate in the parade beginning at 10 o'clock on north Texas avenue, near Slaton's Santa Fe railway depot. Floats entered, sponsored with funds secured from the Slaton chamber of commerce, merchants and business men, were from the social studies department, science department, home economics department, high school athletics department, West Ward schools, junior high athletic department, guidance committee of the ward and junior high schools, the high school student council, commercial department, East Ward schools, and the school parent teacher associations working jointly.

Attire for the queen will be furnished by the chamber of commerce, which has also furnished money for materials for other floats. The Tiger football squad, with Coach Curtis Hamilton and Assistant Jack Miller, will ride the float entered by the high school athletic department.

In the parade will be Slaton's colorful bands and the first superintendent of schools in Slaton, W. P. Florence.

Contest to decide the virtual champion of the southern half of District 5-A will begin at 2:30 in the afternoon and is expected to draw a record crowd of spectators from surrounding towns and cities, including virtually hundreds of Tiger and Cub fans. A large crowd of Brownfield supporters are expected to arrive in Slaton early Saturday to participate in the parade and other activities of the day.

The game will be dedicated to Ray Hickman, who was injured when a section of the stands fell at a game between the two teams in Brownfield last year.

Coach Hamilton announces his lineup to include James Stotts, center, 150 pounds; W. H. Mudgett, left end, 160; R. W. Wicker, left tackle, 160; Rolfe Carter, left guard, 160; Oscar Lee Clark, right guard, 150; Van Smith, right tackle 225; Earl Blassingame, right end, 160; Harry Bell, left half, 125; Charles Austin, right half, 135; Lealand Scott, fullback, 165; and J. B. Ward, quarterback, 150.

Only comparison of scores that is available included games with Tahoka, Brownfield trounced the Bulldogs, 28 to 6; Slaton shut out the Lynn county crew, 28 to 0.

Modern Inn Under New Management

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Macklin announce the formal opening of the "Modern Inn", Saturday, November 11, located on the Post Highway, just outside the city limits on South Ninth Street.

The Inn has been newly decorated, and Mr. and Mrs. Macklin have had several years experience in this line of work. Delicious sandwiches, sizzling steaks, and in-between-snacks, expertly prepared, will be served.

Private or Club parties can also be arranged by seeing the management in advance. A small cover charge will be charged on Saturdays, Sundays and all holidays.

Only carefully selected foods will be served, inside or curb service, so give these newcomers a chance to get acquainted with Slaton by your patronage. Now open for business.

Climb to the Attic Brought Possibilities

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE bride came home, but not to weep on Mother's shoulder. "There are too many bare spots in our house," she said; "and I want to rummage in your attic."

A golden oak dresser; a fish bowl; an old portier; a chromo in a wide gold frame; and an old piano stool; were carted away.

Varnish remover and plain drawer pulls transformed the dresser into a good-looking chest of drawers. A glazier put a mirror in the oval gold frame. Those are dusky pink branches in the fish-bowl—lovely against the rose-red brocade hanging.

Bruckart's Washington Digest Investigation of Un-American Activities in U. S. Bearing Fruit

Gives New Perspective on Foreign Influences at Work In Our Midst; Shows How Our Citizens Are Used To Promote Ends of Dictatorship.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—The long, and sometimes wearisome, investigation by the special house committee on un-American activities, headed by Rep. Martin Dies of Texas, has begun to bear fruit.

I have a feeling that when the committee's work finally is brought to a close, most of us will have a new perspective on the foreign influences that have been at work in our midst.

For another thing, it is now evident that whatever else the Dies committee has done, it has disclosed how thoroughly easy it is for a few rat-eyed, scheming foreigners to feed upon American resources and use our citizens to promote the ends of dictatorship.

The testimony has brought out the fact again that one of the simplest things in the world is to "organize" Americans. Some vague promises, delivered with oratorical fervor; citation of some wrongs and theories for correcting them, stated only in generalities, and a group of active organizers, working for pay—that is what you have to have to "organize" in the United States.

Activities of Nazis and Communists in U. S. Revealed

The committee has been attacked, threatened. Even President Roosevelt characterized some of its operations as a "sordid procedure."

Let us look back over the record. It shows that the "German-American Bund" is a tool of the Nazi leaders, if not directly of the German government.

It appears there is more scandal, more evidence of violation of law, yet to come. Largely, because of the committee's exposures there probably will be prosecutions of various foreigners or officials of so-called American organizations because they have failed to comply with our law.

In addition to all of these, the committee has made a ghastly expose of communists within the offices of our own government. It published the names of 563 persons, on the government payroll, who are members of the American League for Peace and Democracy, with the assertion that part of them, at least, were avowed communists.

Publication of Names Considered Grave Mistake

Publication of the list stirred official Washington. It was an action that was undoubtedly a grave mistake, because anyone can examine the list and find "victims" of the racketeering organizers — persons who were misled, persons who believed they were serving a sincerely fine purpose.

It was about this action that President Roosevelt spoke, although it has been known for months that he had little respect for the Dies committee program.

ordinary horse sense ought to have shown him and his committee that only a comparatively small number of those people were "guilty."

In other words, this bad mistake by the Dies committee has done much to nullify the good it has done, otherwise.

I am hopeful that the department of justice will be forced into the position where the real leaders, behind the scenes, will be kicked out of their government jobs from which they have been promoting destruction.

Operations Are Directed From Moscow and Berlin

But how did the Russian "Comintern" operate to get into these various organizations and promote its nefarious schemes toward world revolution in a so-called intelligent race of people here?

The processes, according to the testimony by Browder and others before the committee, were very simple. The American Communist party sends delegates to the Communist International in Moscow.

American "Fuehrer" Kuhn, of the German-American bund, appears to have had something of the same system. He nevertheless insisted before the committee that his organization had no connection with the Nazi party leaders and was not guided in any way by them.

There has been considerable suspicion that both Browder and Kuhn have many men and women in their organization who can be described only as racketeers. That is to say, they have numerous "workers" who are fully aware of the general purposes but who are willing to engage in the "movement" solely because they have well-paying jobs within the ranks—which, in my opinion, rates them as completely dirty crooks.

Confidential Information Available to Foreigners

But to get back to the Dies committee list of alleged communists, or fellow travelers, within the government itself. Those of us who have been in constant contact with individuals in various official capacities recognize the dangers that are inherent in their situations.

It is not information that belongs to any one government employee or official and that person has no right to use it or disclose it to others, except as the laws require.

I believe, therefore, it does not take a vivid imagination to see how such information can be used destructively by one of the rats who secretly owes allegiance to the Soviet or the Nazis or to the Fascists, of Italy.

ONE-TWO-THREE-FOUR CAKES See Recipes Below.

Let's All Have Tea There's something so social about serving tea! Friends and neighbors drop in for a bit of rest and relaxation, conversation flourishes, and the whole house is aglow with hospitality.

Serving tea is one of the simplest and most gracious ways of entertaining — whether you invite one guest or fifty. It may be a cozy, informal affair with only a few "handpicked" friends invited, and simple bread and butter sandwiches, with a cup of perfectly brewed tea for refreshment.

Formal or informal, large or small, you'll find that beforehand preparations and carefully laid plans help to make this kind of entertaining easy. Admit the limitations of your budget, your equipment, your time and strength, and don't plan more than you can carry out comfortably and sensibly.

Keep sandwiches, muffins, cakes and cookies small and dainty. If your invitation list numbers a large number of guests, bake your favorite cakes in jelly roll pans, frost, and cut into small, diagonal pieces.

To make these clever little cakes, use the thin fingersnap or cookie ordinarily sold on the market. Allow from three to five to a serving. Put together with sweetened whipped cream in the same manner as in frosting a miniature layer cake.

Soak the gelatin in the cold water for five minutes. Dissolve sugar in boiling water and add to the gelatin, stirring until dissolved.

Miss Alcorn YWA Hostess

The Y.W.A. girls met in the home of Miss Esolita Alcorn on Monday, November 6. The house was called to order by the president, Miss Laura Belle Tucker, and prayer was read by Rev. Ferguson.

The Lottie Moon Christmas Offering was discussed, and the members decided to start bringing their offering for this. A report on the YWA Associational Meeting was given.

The meeting was then turned over to the program chairman, Miss Opal Mosley, who read the devotional. Those on program were Misses Esolita Alcorn, Jimmie Fae Ward, Lucy Woodlie, and Margaret Smith. Laura Belle Tucker read the closing prayer. Refreshments were served and the meeting was adjourned.

YOUR FOODS DEMAND EFFICIENT REFRIGERATION the Year 'Round

Approximately 7 families out of 10 heartily endorse economical electric refrigeration—not only for the summer months—but for every month of the year as well.

ACTUALLY, your refrigeration needs increase during the fall and winter months because of the holiday season—which means MORE foods and MORE 'left-overs' to be crammed in your refrigerator.

Buy your new Westinghouse now and be prepared for the holidays... because you'll need your new Westinghouse refrigerator MORE in November than you will next June. Buy now... and in the meanwhile pocket your savings.

Board of City Development and Chamber of Commerce News

RAYMOND LEE JOHNS, MANAGER

This week-end brings to Slaton a great scene of activity on the side of education and gridiron classics. We have all been looking forward to celebrate education week, November 5-11, with an appropriate parade put on by the various departments in the schools and the school bands the morning of November 11, Armistice, at the same time observing this patriotic occasion and staging a preliminary event before the eagerly anticipated football game Saturday afternoon, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, between our own Slaton Tigers and Brownfield's Cubs, which game may decide the champion of the southern part of District 5. The Cubs are the defending champions at present.

It is a matter of course that we all want to observe Armistice Day with grave seriousness during this uncertain period of world conditions, and it is still another matter of course that we want to observe the occasion in Slaton, OUR HOME TOWN. Everyone however thoughted has some interest in the educational training of our youth, and they in turn have some interest in acquainting us whenever possible with the activities in which they engage in their educational pursuits.

TOMORROW every Slaton citizen is going to be given an opportunity to engage in a community affair which heighten his interest in Home Town affairs. Take the suggestion and advice of your Chamber of Commerce: Get up tomorrow morning with a fiery ambition to spread patriotic fervor about you during the day, attend the Educational Week Parade put on by our local schools and participated in by the School Faculties, school children, and local merchants. Then at 2:30 go to the ball game and root for Slaton!

This is the first in a new series of articles tended to more completely educate our public in the field of work to be done by any chamber of commerce:

The Larger Concept

While chambers of commerce are created and supported largely by business men, and while they deal primarily with questions that directly affect the business world, they have been led to deal with a wide range of activities that are not in themselves commercial but that are the concern of business because they affect the general welfare of the community.

Does business stop with buying and selling, with producing and distributing? On the contrary, it is interknit with the whole social and economic fabric of our times. A chamber of commerce in a city of Ohio, let us say, puts on a campaign to speed up repairs and improvements. One man means agrees to spend several thousands of dollars in improving his estate. Does that affect local business alone? No, his improvements may involve the ordering of stone from Indiana or Minnesota, cement from Illinois, or Iowa, ornamental devices, seeds and plants from other states—which in turn affects labor, markets and transportation in these several distant communities.

So with the larger aspects of business; so with the relationship of the chamber of commerce to business. Directly and forcefully through certain of its activities it serves the interests of commerce, trade and industry; it serves those same interests through its concern in matters of community, state and national interest. Business is affected by state and national legislation, by governmental policies, by social conditions and the manner in which people live, by the degree to which they are educated and even the extent to which they are happy.

So, while the chamber of commerce is essentially a business institution, its horizon extends a little beyond pure business alone. There are imponderable factors involved that embrace loyalty, civic pride, community service, and the willingness of individuals to perform work they do not have to do in order that others may be a little more prosperous, better educated, more comfortably housed, surrounded by conditions of greater safety and sanitation, and afforded not only better commercial opportunities but richer possibilities of getting the most out of life.

This is the larger concept of the work of the chamber of commerce. SUPPORT YOUR SLATON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Soviet-U. S. Relations Strained By Molotov's Attack on FDR; Italy Protects Her Neutrality

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EUROPE: Double Feature

All Hallow's eve found every European ear cocked to Moscow, awaiting history-making utterances from Premier Vlachoslav Molotov. Adolf Hitler had 1,500,000 men poised at the front; so did the allies. But war hung in abeyance. For as Russia swung so would the war, because every other European state had declared its status, neutral with leanings either toward Germany (like Italy and Hungary) or toward the allies.

Stolen Thunder

A few short hours before Molotov's speech, Il Duce Benito Mussolini pulled a coup that must have stunned his erstwhile colleague in Germany. Ousted was Propaganda Minister Dino Alfieri, close friend of Nazidom's Propagandist Paul Joseph Goebbels. Ousted were Fascist Secretary Achille Starace, close friend of Deputy Fuehrer Rudolf Hess and the man who gave a signal for the Italian chamber's demonstration against Germany. He said Nazi-Russian friendship was getting thicker. Next day it was revealed trade discussions were going forward successfully. One report from Stockholm said Russian submarines would be given the Nazis in exchange for German merchant ships, providing a subtle way of staying "neutral."

Poland. He said there can be no question of restoring Poland and that it was absurd to continue the war for that cause. Two days earlier, Britain's Prime Minister Chamberlain had acknowledged Russia's right of invasion to "protect" her Polish blood brothers from Germany.

Balkans. He gave no hint of expansion there, but shook a nasty finger at Turkey for signing mutual assistance pacts with the allies after shunning a treaty with the Soviet.

United States. He precipitated a heated argument which observers thought might end with severance of Soviet-U. S. diplomatic relations. Commenting on President Roosevelt's earlier note expressing hope for continued amicable Finnish-Rus-

France last winter: Gen. Alberto Pariani, friend of Hitler's Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch and author of the Italian "blitzkrieg" plan for a German-Italian-Spanish drive against France; Gen. Giuseppe Valle, friend of Field Marshal Hermann Goering. Replacing them were middle-of-the-roads like Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, chief of staff. Retained were other favorites like Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano (Mussolini's son-in-law) and Count Dino Grandi, minister of justice.

In Paris there was a feeling the Rome-Berlin axis had broken down completely. London was also happy, for a few hours earlier Italy's Ambassador Giuseppe Bastianini had made a strong anti-Communist speech. In the Balkans it was thought Mussolini disapproved Russia's expansionist policy, especially since Il Duce did not even wait until Molotov spoke. But in Italy it was a simple indication that Mussolini had his ear to the ground; Italians wanted no pact with the allies, they merely wanted strict neutrality.

Ominous Talk

First allied reaction to Premier Molotov's speech was relief over his failure to declare a military alliance with the Reich, even though he did charge Britain and France

RUSSIAN DEMANDS

The Soviet would give Finland part of Karelia (1) in exchange for moving back Finnish frontier northwest of Leningrad (2); Russia wants (3) islands of Seiskari, Hogland, Lavansaari and Tytarsaari; would lease land (4) at mouth of Finnish gulf for naval bases; asks for Finnish part of Rybach peninsula (5).

were warring not to preserve democracy or restore Poland, but to safeguard their world empires. But sober reflection made the allies worry about:

Finland. Molotov revealed, much to the Finns' chagrin, the stalemate proposals which have occupied these two countries for the past month. Besides a mutual assistance pact, Russia wanted territorial exchanges (see map) which Finland declared would "rob us of the chance of defending the independence . . . of our land."

sian relations, Molotov said: "One finds it hard to reconcile that with the American policy of neutrality . . . One might think that matters are in better shape between the United States and . . . the Philippines . . . than between the Soviet Union and Finland, which has long ago obtained both freedom and political independence . . ."

Next day, while Massachusetts' Rep. John McCormack demanded from the house floor that Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt be recalled from Moscow, the President dug from his files an exchange of notes with Soviet President Michael Kalinin last April, when Kalinin cabled an unsolicited "expression of profound sympathy" with the President's efforts to safeguard peace. This cable had come one day after Mr. Roosevelt sent peace pleas to Dictators Hitler and Mussolini. Thus the U. S. put Kalinin on record as supporting the President's peace efforts in contrast to Molotov's declaration. Suggested White House Secretary Steve Early: "It would seem that he (Molotov) had the embargo in mind rather than what he termed the President's moral support of Finland."

(Unspolitized, the neutrality bill wormed its way through the house which voted 237 to 177 for sending it to conference with the senate, conferees to have definite instructions. One instruction: To repeal the arms embargo, by a vote of 243 to 131. Thus congress expected to get out of town immediately. Britain hailed the repeal; Nazidom was enraged. One suddenly discovered danger of cash-and-carry is that the allies will indeed buy more arms but will cut other imports from the U. S. One Britcher thought imports of U. S. industrial products and foodstuffs may fall off $150,000,000 a year.)

Western Front

Abandoning purely defensive positions, German "shock troops" stormed the French frontier at scattered points as murky weather gave way to sunshine. Fears grew that Belgium and the Netherlands might be invaded. The Dutch proclaimed a state of siege in eight provinces, flooding frontier positions to check any Nazi advance.

At Sea

While the embattled U. S. S. City of Flint steamed carefully down the Norwegian coast to Germany under a Nazi prize crew, the U. S. asked both the Reich and Britain to protect her interned American crew. Washington also reported 27 U. S. ships have been detained by belligerents since the war began. The war at sea came too close to American shores when the British freighter Coulmore was reportedly torpedoed 450 miles off New England. Nazi planes and U-boats continued successful raiding of allied shipping, but Britain retaliated by naming Lord Nuffield (her "Henry Ford") to a key post in the air ministry. His instructions: To intensify the navy's North sea blockade against Germany.

NEWS QUIZ

Know your news? One hundred points if you can answer all these. Deduct 20 for each complete question you miss. You can't boast about a score of 40 or under.

- 1. Aviation News: (a) Who are Clyde Schlieper and Wes Carroll, shown above, and why are they so tired? (b) What was the intended destination of a nonstop flight that left New York, and did it succeed? 2. What happened to Mrs. Homer Stout, Oklahoma farm wife who tried the "freezing" treatment for cancer? 3. True or false: The Mexican revolutionary party has asked for return of all lands expropriated from American-owned companies. 4. Choice: Sen. James Mead of New York introduced a bill proposing that $139,000,000 be set aside by the treasury for small loans to: (a) business firms; (b) distraught farmers; (c) municipally owned power plants; (d) "little theater" groups. 5. True or false: No food rationing will be needed in Britain during the winter. (Answers at bottom of column.)

POLITICS: Candidate-of-the-Week

Rooseveltian third-term talk, which took a back seat in early days of the war crisis, loomed again in San Francisco when Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace boomed the President for re-election. Next day Secretary Steve Early made it clear that Franklin Roosevelt wanted no boom, and Iowa's Sen. Guy Gillette left a White House conference where the President had reportedly asked that Iowa's delegation to next year's convention go unpledged. The deduction: That Mr. Roosevelt will not seek re-election, and certainly wants the matter hushed for the present.

But Henry Wallace had started the political pot boiling again. Into the Republican picture jumped Oregon's Sen. Charles McNary, who tentatively consented to run. Into the Democratic picture jumped a brand new name, Montana's Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, who tried to win the vice presidency with the elder LaFollette in 1924.

next month in Salt Lake City. C. I. O.'s John Lewis gave, among other reasons: "The slight to Senator Wheeler and other great liberals of the west, who have not been consulted . . ."

Lewis apparently considered the meeting (some of whose participants may be violating the Hatch "no politics" act) as a third-term boom. Certainly it was made clear that Senator Wheeler should be consulted in any future "liberal" discussions about 1940. Washington observers, realizing that Lewis support may be a kiss of death to any political aspirations the senator may entertain, nevertheless admitted he has A. F. of L. backing, a big railroad following and plenty of friends in the senate.

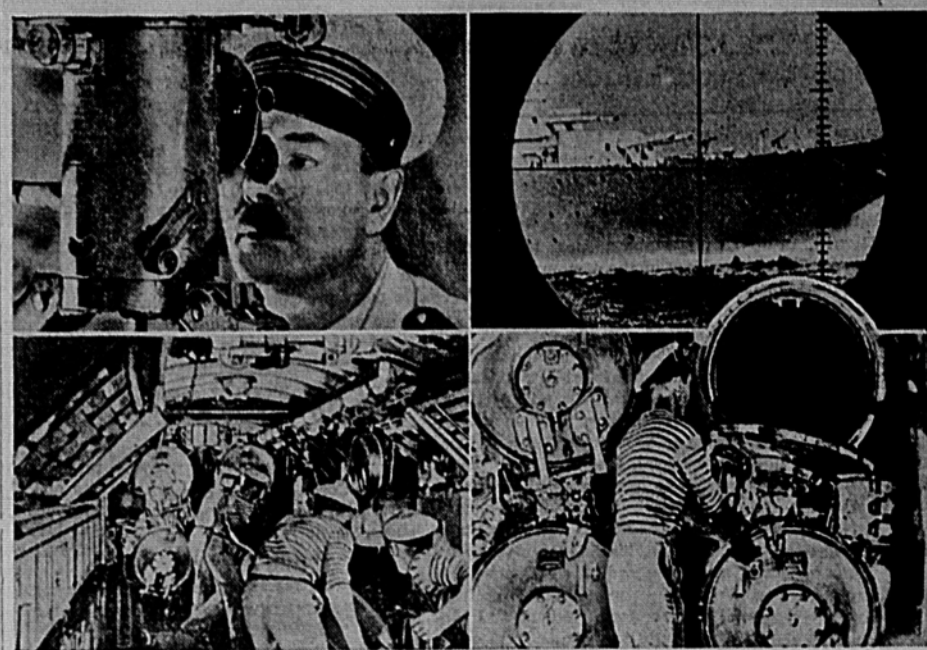

COMMUNICATIONS: Twisted Wires

Following an ultimatum from Chicago's District Attorney Thomas J. Courtney and U. S. District Attorney William J. Campbell, the American Telephone and Telegraph company barred Moses Annenberg's race betting information service from using its facilities. The Illinois Bell Telephone company followed suit.

France Demonstrates Undersea Fighting Technique

Accent is on undersea fighting in the present European conflict, and France, with some of the world's finest submarines, is prepared for whatever may come. Here is a graphic idea of the fighting technique of an undersea warship. Upper left: Brains of the submarine is the man at the periscope. He navigates her into firing position. Upper right: Here's what the navigator sees. The periscope's crossed lines spot the target, the "ladder" gives him the range. Lower left: The torpedo crew slides one of the deadly "fish" into its tube. Lower right: The torpedo is in place and all is set for the order to "fire!"

War in Europe Influences American Christmas Toys

The influence of war was distinctly noticeable in the preview of American Christmas toys held in New York recently. In addition to guns, tanks and planes, there were toy ambulances and other first aid equipment. A little war nurse in toy uniform inspects her battlefield casualty—a doll. A young soldier has the time of his life with front line equipment.

Igloo Dwellers Go Modern—in New York

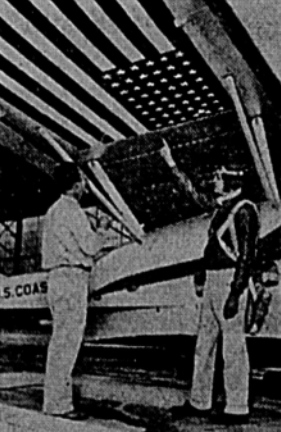

The Mayokoks, only full-blooded Eskimo family in the United States, were saved from a dangerous 7,000-mile journey to blizzard-swept Cape Prince of Wales, Alaska, when the husband found a new job. During the closed season Mayokok will serve as caretaker of the World's fair carrier igloo in New York.

"My dear child," Mrs. Follette said, "have lunch with me. Mary has baked fresh bread, and we'll have it with your berries, and some Dutch cheese and cream."

"I'd love it," Jane said; "I hoped you'd ask me. We are going at four to Delafield Simms for the weekend. I shall have to be fashionable for forty-eight hours, and I hate it."

Mrs. Follette smiled indulgently. "Of course you don't mean it. And don't try to be fashionable. Just be yourself. It is only people who have never been anybody who try to make themselves like others."

"Well," said Jane, "I'm afraid I've never been anybody. Mrs. Follette, I'm just little Jane Barnes."

Her air was dejected.

"What's the matter with you, Jane?" Mrs. Follette demanded.

Jane clasped her hands together. "Oh, I want my mother. I want my mother." Her voice was low, but there was a poignant note in it.

Old Mary came out with the tray, and when she had gone, Mrs. Follette said, "Now tell me what's troubling you?"

"I'm afraid."

"Of what?"

"Oh, of Mr. Towne's big house, and—I think I'm a little bit afraid of him, too, Mrs. Follette."

"Why should you be afraid?"

"Of the things he'll expect of me. The things I'll expect of myself. I can't explain it. I just—feel it."

Mrs. Follette, pouring ice-cold milk from a silver pitcher, said, "It is a case of nerves, my dear. You don't know how lucky you are."

"Am I lucky?" wistfully.

"Of course you are lucky. But all girls feel as you do, Jane, when the wedding day isn't far off. They wonder and wonder. It's the newness—the—"

"Laying flesh and spirit . . . in his hands . . ." Jane quoted, with quick-drawn breath.

"I shouldn't put it quite like that," Mrs. Follette said with some severity; "we didn't talk like that when I was a girl."

"Didn't you?" Jane asked. Well, I know you were a darling, Mrs. Follette. And you were pretty. There's that portrait of you in the library—in pink."

"I looked well in pink," said Mrs. Follette, thoughtfully, "but the best picture that was ever done of me is a miniature that Evans has." She buttered another slice of bread. She had no fear of growing fat. She was fat, but she was also stately and one neutralized the other. To think of Mrs. Follette as thin would have been to rob her of her duchess role.

Jane had not seen the miniature. She asked if she might.

"I'll get it," said Mrs. Follette, and rose.

Jane protested, "Can't I do it?"

"No, my dear, I know right where to put my hand on it."

She went into the cool and shadowy hall and started up the stairs, and it was from the shadows that Jane heard her call.

There was something faint and agitated in the cry, and Jane flew on winged feet.

Mrs. Follette was holding on to the stair-rail, swaying a little. "I can't go any higher," she panted; "I'll sit here, my dear, while you get my medicine. It's in my room on the dresser."

Jane passed her on the stairs, and was back again in a moment with the medicine, a spoon, and a glass of water. With her arm around the elder woman she held her until the color returned to her cheeks.

"How foolish," said Mrs. Follette at last, sitting up. "I almost fainted. I was afraid of falling down the stairs."

"Let me help you to your room," Jane said, "and you can lie on the couch—and be quiet—"

"I don't want to be quiet, but I'll lie on the couch—if you'll sit there and talk to me."

So with Jane supporting her, Mrs. Follette went up the rest of the flight, and across the hall—and was made comfortable on a couch at the foot of her room.

Jane loved the up-stairs rooms at Castle Manor. Especially in summer. Mrs. Follette followed the southern fashion of taking up winter rugs and winter curtains and substituting sheer muslins and leaving a delightful bareness of waxed floor.

"Perhaps I can tell you where to find the miniature," Mrs. Follette said, as Jane fanned her; "it is in Evans' desk set back under the row of pigeonholes. You can't miss it, and I want to see it."

Jane crossed the hall to Evans' room. It faced south and was big and square. It had the same studied bareness that made the rest of the house beautiful. There was a mahogany bed and dresser, many books, deep window-seats with faded velvet cushions.

Evans' desk was in an alcove by the east window which overlooked Sherwood. It was a mahogany desk of the secretary type, and there was nothing about it to drain the color from Jane's cheeks, to send her hand to her heart.

Above the desk, however, where his eyes could rest upon it whenever he raised them from his writing, was an old lantern Jane knew it at once. It was an ancient ship's lantern that she and Baldy had used through all the years, a heritage from some sea-going ancestor. It was the lantern she had carried that night she had found Evans in the fog!

Since her return from Chicago she had not been able to find it. Baldy had complained, "Sophy must have taken it home with her." But Sophy had not taken it. It was here. And Jane knew, with a certainty that swept away all doubts, why.

"You are a lantern, Jane, held high . . ."

She found the miniature and carried it back to Mrs. Follette. "I told you you were pretty and you have never gotten over it."

She had regained her radiance. Mrs. Follette reflected complacently.

"I hope it won't rain," Edith said.

ly that girls were like that. Moods of the moment. Even in her own day.

She spoke of it to Evans that night. "Jane had lunch with me. She was very tired and depressed. I told her not to worry. It's natural she should feel the responsibility of the future. Marriage is a serious obligation."

"Marriage is more than that, Mother."

"What do you mean?"

"Oh, it's a great adventure. The greatest adventure. If a woman loved me, I'd want her to fly to me—on wings. There'd be no fear of the future if Jane loved Towne."

"But she does love him. She wouldn't marry him for his money."

"No, she wouldn't," with a touch of weariness. "It is one of the things I can't make clear to myself. And I think I'd rather not talk about it, Mother."

They were in Mrs. Follette's room. She had told her son about her heart attack, and he had been anxious. But she had been quite herself after and had made light of it. "I shall have Hallam over in the morning," he had insisted, and she had acquiesced. "I don't need him, but if it will make you feel better."

CHAPTER XV

Lucy was still to Eloise Harper the stenographer of Frederick Towne. Out of place, of course, in this fine country house, with its formal gardens, its great stables, its retinue of servants.

"What do you do with yourself?" she asked her hostess, as she came down, ready for dinner, in revealing apricot draperies and found Lucy crisp in white organdie with a band of black velvet around her throat.

"Do?" Lucy's smile was ingenuous. "We are very busy, Del and I. We feed the pigs."

"Pigs?" Eloise stared. She had assumed that a girl of Lucy's type would affect an elaborate attitude of leisure. And here she was, instead, fashionably energetic.

They fed the pigs, it seemed, actually. "Of course not the big ones. But the little ones have their bottles. There are ten and their mother died. You should see Del and me. He carries the bottle in a metal holder—round."—Lucy's hand described the shape,—"and when they see him coming they all squeal, and it's adorable."

Lucy's air was demure. She was very happy. She was a woman of strong spirit. Already she had interested her weak husband beyond anything he had ever known in his drifting days of bachelorhood. "After dinner," she told Eloise, "I'll show you Del's roses. They are quite marvelous. I think his collection will be beyond anything in this part of the country."

Delafield, coming up, said, "They are Lucy's roses, but she says I am to do the work."

"But why not have a gardener?" Eloise demanded.

"Oh, we have. But I should hate to have our garden a mere matter-of-mechanics. Del has some splendid ideas. We are going to work for the flower shows. Prizes and all that."

Delafield purred like a pussy-cat. "I shall name my first rose the 'Little Lucy Logan.'"

Edith, locking arms with Jane, a little later, as they strolled under a wisteria-hung trellis towards the fountain, said, "Lucy's making a man of him because she loves him. And I would have laughed at him. We would have bored each other to death."

"They will never be bored," Jane decided, "with their roses and their little pigs."

They had reached the fountain. It was an old-fashioned one, with thin streams of water spouting up from the bill of a bronzed crane. There were goldfish in the pool, and a big green frog leaped from a lily pad. Beyond the fountain the wisteria roofed a path of pale light. A peacock walked slowly towards them, its long tail sweeping the ground in burnished beauty.

"Think of this," said Jane, "and Lucy's days at the office."

"And yet," Edith pondered, "she told me if he had not had a penny she would have been happy with him."

"I believe it. With a cottage, one pig, and a rose-bush, they would find bliss. It is like that with them."

The two women sat down on the marble coping of the fountain. The peacock trailed by them, its jewels all ablaze under the sun.

Adelaide, in her burnished tulle, tall, slender, graceful as a willow, was swinging along beneath the trellis. The peacock had turned and walked beside her. "What a picture Baldy could make of that," Edith said, "The Proud Lady."

"Do you know," Jane's voice was also lowered, "when I look at her, I feel that it is she who should marry your uncle."

Edith was frank. "I should hate her. And so would he in a month. She's artificial, and you are so adorably natural, Jane."

Adelaide had reached the circle of light that surrounded the fountain. "The men have come and have gone up to dress," she said. "All except your uncle, Edith. He telephoned that he can't get here until after dinner. He has an important conference."

"He said he might be late. Benny came, of course?"

"Yes, and Eloise is happy. He had brought her all the town gossip. That's why I left. I hate gossip."

Edith knew that pose. No one could talk more devastatingly than Adelaide of her neighbor's affairs. But she did it, subtly, with an effect of charity. "I am very fond of her," was her way of prefacing a ruthless revelation.

"I thought your brother would be down," Adelaide looked at Jane, poised on the rim of the fountain, like a blue butterfly,—"but he wasn't with the rest."

"Baldy can't be here until tomorrow noon. He had to be in the office."

"What are you going to do with yourself in the meantime, Edith?" Adelaide was in a mood to make people uncomfortable. She was uncomfortable herself. Jane, in billowing heavenly blue with rose ribbons floating at her girdle, was youth incarnate. And it was her youth that had attracted Towne.

The three women walked towards the house together. As they came out from under the arbor, they were aware of black clouds stretched across the horizon. "I hope it won't rain," Edith said, "Lucy is planning to serve dinner on the terrace."

Adelaide was irritable. "I wish she wouldn't. There'll be bugs and things."

Jane liked the idea of an out-of-door dinner. She thought that the maids in their pink linen were like rose-leaves blown across the lawn. There was a great umbrella over the table, rose-striped. "How gay it is," she said; "I hope the rain won't spoil it."

When they reached the wide-pillared piazza, no one was there. The wind was blowing steadily from the bank of clouds. Edith went in to get a scarf.

And so Jane and Adelaide were left alone.

Adelaide sat in a big chair with a back like a spreading fan; she was stately, and knew it, but she would have exchanged at the moment every classic line for the effect that Jane gave of unpremeditated grace and beauty. The child had flung a cushion on the marble step, and had dropped down upon it. The wind caught up her ruffles, so that she seemed to float in a cloud.

She laughed, and tucked her whirling draperies about her. "I love the wind, don't you?"

Adelaide did not love the wind. It ruffled her hair. She felt spitefully ready to hurt Jane.

"It is a pity," she said, after a pause, "that Ricky can't dine with us."

Jane agreed. "Mr. Towne always seems to be a very busy person."

Adelaide carried a little gauze fan with gold-lacquered sticks. When she spoke she kept her eyes upon the fan. "Do you always call him 'Mr. Towne'?"

"Of course."

"But not when you're alone."

Jane flushed. "Yes, I do. Why not?"

"But, my dear, it is so very formal. And you are going to marry him."

"He said that he had told you."

"Ricky tells me everything. We are very old friends, you know."

Jane said nothing. There was, indeed, nothing to say. She was not in the least jealous of Adelaide. She wondered, of course, why Towne should have overlooked this lovely lady to choose a shabby child. But he had chosen the child, and that settled it as far as Mrs. Laramore was concerned.

But it did not settle it for Adelaide. "I think it is distinctly amusing for you to call him 'Mr. Towne.' Poor Ricky! You mustn't hold him at arms' length."

"Why not?"

"Well, none of the rest of us have," said Adelaide, deliberately. Jane looked up at her. "The rest of you? What do you mean, Mrs. Laramore?"

"Oh, the women that Ricky has loved," lightly.

The winds fluttered the ribbons of Jane's frock, fluttered her ruffles. The peacock on the lawn uttered a discordant note. Jane was subconsciously aware of a kinship between Adelaide and the burnished bird. She spoke of the peacock.

"What a disagreeable voice he has."

Adelaide stared. "Who?"

"The peacock," said Jane.

Town Dependent on Glacier for Water Supply

Boulder, Colorado town, claims it is the "only city in America—and perhaps in the world—that owns a glacier for its water supply."

Boulder, home of the University of Colorado, 30 miles northwest of Denver, and one of the "gateways" to the northern Colorado Rockies, holds the unique position of having an unmeasurable and unlimited supply of water for public use, stored up in one of nature's best refrigerators—the Arapahoe glacier and five smaller companions.

By an act of congress in 1919, the city of Boulder was given full title to the glacier, and since that time has built up one of the most elaborate and productive water systems of any city its size in the United States.

Thirty miles west of Boulder, nestled in the valley between the North and South Arapahoe peaks, lies the Boulder watershed—a strip of land taken from the Roosevelt National forest, and guarded by heavy fences—comprising an area of 6,020 acres of virgin land. Within this section lies the Arapahoe Glacier and five smaller bodies of ice, draining into nine large mountain lakes, at an altitude of from 11,000 to 13,000 feet. The lakes have a capacity of more than a billion gallons of nearly pure drinking water in storage for use in the future by Boulder residents.

Four 12-inch pipes carry water to the two reservoirs overlooking the city, passing through settling stations at several points on the 18-mile journey, so that the terrific gravity pressure of the water may be reduced.

Fire hydrants in the city normally have a pressure at the nozzle of nearly 100 pounds to the square inch. The drop of 6,000 feet in 18 miles exerts enough pressure to shoot a stream of water over some of the larger buildings of the city without the use of fire-fighting force pumps.

Coming as it does from high altitude lakes, the water is virtually germ free and needs little treatment.

Arapahoe glacier is said by geologists to be moving at a rate of from 12 to 27 feet a year.

Greenwich Village

The settlement of Greenwich Village was first named Bossen Bouwerie. After the English took over the rule of the city, the name was changed in 1721 to Greenwich, which means green village.

PUTTING GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:19-34. GOLDEN TEXT—But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness.—Matthew 6:33.

Said the Robin to the Sparrow: "I should really like to know Why these anxious human beings Rush about and worry so."

Said the Sparrow to the Robin: "Friend, I think that it must be That they have no Heavenly Father Such as cares for you and me."—Elizabeth Cheney.

Most men are rushing about madly. Worry presses them down. They wonder whether life is worthwhile, whether somewhere there is not relief from this nervous tension that is destroying mind and body. Well, there is relief and it consists of but one ingredient. Give God His proper place, the first place in your life, and "all these things" (Matt. 6:33) will take their rightful places. Seeking first the kingdom of God will settle every problem about money, about food and clothing, and about the future.

I. Money (vv. 19-24).

The word in our text is "treasures," and we know that it has a broader meaning than money, but since in our day men seem to translate all values into dollars, we feel free to use that word "money" to express our thoughts.

The treasure is something that one has placed somewhere in order to keep it for himself. It is not a thing gathered for the purpose of using it to serve others or to serve God, but something put away on the shelf to be kept for one's own enjoyment.

There are two places in which a man can lay up treasure, on earth or in heaven; but it is only as he hoards treasure on earth that he becomes selfish. That which he sends on to heaven by his devotion of life and in service to Christ, by his sacrificial giving to the cause of Christ, by his encouragement of those who are witnessing for Christ, all this is done for the glory of God and without hope of reward. How great will be the surprise of some when they come to heaven and find what they have thus laid up for eternity.

Laying up treasures on this earth, on the other hand, leads to covetousness, to enslavement to one's possessions (be they great or small), and to the evils that follow like a train in the wake of a love of money.

II. Food and Clothing (vv. 25-32).

Some who have no great desire to amass riches are nevertheless in constant anxiety about food and raiment for the morrow; in fact, it is true of some who have great riches that they live in fear lest next month or next year or ten years from now they may be in need.

What is the answer of the Lord Jesus? Consider the birds. They are not able to work nor are they able to pray, but God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers of the fields, for not even a king can dress himself in such beauty. "Are you not much better than they?" (v. 26).

"As far as known, no bird ever tried to build more nests than its neighbors; no fox ever fretted because it had only one hole in which to hide; no squirrel ever died of anxiety lest he should not lay up enough nuts for two winters instead of one; and no dog ever lost any sleep over the fact that he did not have enough bones laid aside for his declining years" (Public Health Service).

Proper forethought is good and right for we are intelligent beings, but anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God.

III. The Future (vv. 33, 34).

Why will we fret ourselves about the future? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Even tomorrow, with its needs and its blessings, with its joy and its sorrows, is not yet here, and when it does come, there will be God's gracious provision for each passing hour.

Unsaved friend, will you not take the Lord Jesus Christ just now as you put the kingdom of God first? Christian friend, if you too have been bearing burdens which are not honoring to God, will you not tell Him just now, and put them down at the feet of the Lord Jesus? "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (I Pet. 5:7), which might properly be translated, "Casting all your worries (or distractions) on Him, for He worryeth about you."

Be Still Then and Know

Only in the sacredness of inward silence does the soul truly meet the secret, hiding God. The strength of resolve, which afterwards shapes life and mixes itself with action, is the fruit of those sacred, solitary moments when we meet God alone.

—F. W. Robertson.

Some who have no great desire to amass riches are nevertheless in constant anxiety about food and raiment for the morrow; in fact, it is true of some who have great riches that they live in fear lest next month or next year or ten years from now they may be in need.

What is the answer of the Lord Jesus? Consider the birds. They are not able to work nor are they able to pray, but God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers of the fields, for not even a king can dress himself in such beauty. "Are you not much better than they?" (v. 26).

"As far as known, no bird ever tried to build more nests than its neighbors; no fox ever fretted because it had only one hole in which to hide; no squirrel ever died of anxiety lest he should not lay up enough nuts for two winters instead of one; and no dog ever lost any sleep over the fact that he did not have enough bones laid aside for his declining years" (Public Health Service).

Proper forethought is good and right for we are intelligent beings, but anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God.

III. The Future (vv. 33, 34).

Why will we fret ourselves about the future? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Even tomorrow, with its needs and its blessings, with its joy and its sorrows, is not yet here, and when it does come, there will be God's gracious provision for each passing hour.

Unsaved friend, will you not take the Lord Jesus Christ just now as you put the kingdom of God first? Christian friend, if you too have been bearing burdens which are not honoring to God, will you not tell Him just now, and put them down at the feet of the Lord Jesus? "Casting all your care upon him; for he careth for you" (I Pet. 5:7), which might properly be translated, "Casting all your worries (or distractions) on Him, for He worryeth about you."

Be Still Then and Know

Only in the sacredness of inward silence does the soul truly meet the secret, hiding God. The strength of resolve, which afterwards shapes life and mixes itself with action, is the fruit of those sacred, solitary moments when we meet God alone.

PUTTING GOD'S KINGDOM FIRST

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 6:19-34. GOLDEN TEXT—But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness.—Matthew 6:33.

Said the Robin to the Sparrow: "I should really like to know Why these anxious human beings Rush about and worry so."

Said the Sparrow to the Robin: "Friend, I think that it must be That they have no Heavenly Father Such as cares for you and me."—Elizabeth Cheney.

Most men are rushing about madly. Worry presses them down. They wonder whether life is worthwhile, whether somewhere there is not relief from this nervous tension that is destroying mind and body. Well, there is relief and it consists of but one ingredient. Give God His proper place, the first place in your life, and "all these things" (Matt. 6:33) will take their rightful places. Seeking first the kingdom of God will settle every problem about money, about food and clothing, and about the future.

I. Money (vv. 19-24).

The word in our text is "treasures," and we know that it has a broader meaning than money, but since in our day men seem to translate all values into dollars, we feel free to use that word "money" to express our thoughts.

The treasure is something that one has placed somewhere in order to keep it for himself. It is not a thing gathered for the purpose of using it to serve others or to serve God, but something put away on the shelf to be kept for one's own enjoyment.

There are two places in which a man can lay up treasure, on earth or in heaven; but it is only as he hoards treasure on earth that he becomes selfish. That which he sends on to heaven by his devotion of life and in service to Christ, by his sacrificial giving to the cause of Christ, by his encouragement of those who are witnessing for Christ, all this is done for the glory of God and without hope of reward. How great will be the surprise of some when they come to heaven and find what they have thus laid up for eternity.

Laying up treasures on this earth, on the other hand, leads to covetousness, to enslavement to one's possessions (be they great or small), and to the evils that follow like a train in the wake of a love of money.

II. Food and Clothing (vv. 25-32).

Some who have no great desire to amass riches are nevertheless in constant anxiety about food and raiment for the morrow; in fact, it is true of some who have great riches that they live in fear lest next month or next year or ten years from now they may be in need.

What is the answer of the Lord Jesus? Consider the birds. They are not able to work nor are they able to pray, but God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers of the fields, for not even a king can dress himself in such beauty. "Are you not much better than they?" (v. 26).

PATTERN SEWING CIRCLE DEPARTMENT

AN EXTREMELY new and very becoming dress fashion is yours in pattern No. 1848. It has the smart double swing skirt, is cut on a true princess line that whittles down your waist, and offers a choice of two necklines—one with a tailored collar, the other high and collarless. Also, you can make it with long or short sleeves. The row of buttons down the front is very Victorian—therefore much in fashion. Velvet, flat crepe,

Posey Paragraphs

Mrs. S. N. Gentry, Correspondent

Quite a few farmers in this community are sowing wheat, others are bedding land and getting the land in shape for another year's crop. Almost every one has their crop gathered. We are wondering what the men will do with so much idle time this winter after having finished their plowing so early.

Those on the sick list this week are Mrs. Willie Wilkie, Mrs. T. A. Johnson, M. P. Gentry, and Ruth Gentry.

We are losing one of our neighbors soon. Mr. Raymond Hayes and family are moving to the Barton community, where Mr. Hayes has bought a farm. Mr. Jay Carroll has purchased the farm that Mr. Hayes is moving from. We welcome this good family to our community.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Johnson and children left Saturday for Wichita Falls, to visit Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson, formerly of this community, whose son, Harold (Buck) was injured in a car wreck recently. At the last report, Buck was reported improving.

Mrs. Cora Kerr from Idalou visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Johnson, Thursday. Mr. Johnson is our new principal in our Posey School.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Allen and daughter, Doris Dell, were visitors in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Morrison, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Richardson has as their guests last Saturday, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Odom from Crosbyton. They all motored to Bledsoe and Lovington, N. M. Mr. and Mrs. Alton Ainsworth of Morton, also accompanied them.

Brunk's Comedians To Close Week's Engagement Sat.

Fred G. Brunk's Comedians have been showing here all this week in Slaton under the auspices of the Fire Department. They have been showing to exceptionally large audiences and are acclaimed as giving the best line of shows since showing in Slaton for a good many years. They are closing their engagement this week on Saturday night with the funniest comedy drama of the week, "The Ghost of General Burbeck." Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, a matinee, "The Jail Bird." Friday night, a comedy that will please everyone "Back From the Grave," will be presented.

The show starts each night at 8 p. m. and the Big Tent Theatre is heated. A complete change of plays each night and vaudeville acts and musical programs.

ADULT DEPARTMENT TO OFFER DEVOTIONAL

The Business and Professional Men and Women's Class of the First Methodist Church will conduct the devotional in the Adult Department next Sunday, November 12. Howard Hoffman will offer special violin selections, and it is urged that all members be present. Rev. J. O. Quattlebaum will teach the Sunday School lesson.

There was a fair crowd out Saturday night for the Bible Study conducted each Saturday night by Rev. Joe R. Goodin. He invites every one who can to come out and take part in this Bible Study.

Mr. and Mrs. Elzie McGinnis of Denver, Colorado, have moved back to the Posey community, and we welcome this young family back with us. They brought back with them a new baby daughter, one month old, whose name is Bunny June. Mrs. McGinnis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boyce, the former Frances Boyce, and once a reporter for this column.

Mrs. Raymond Johns Hostess To Civic Club Monday, 6th

Mrs. Raymond Lee Johns entertained the Daughters of the Pioneer Study Club Monday evening, November 6 at her home on Ninth St.

After the business, the meeting was turned over to the program leader, Mrs. Ray Darwin, who gave a very interesting talk on outstanding Artists in the United States. She then presented the drama of the evening, Miss Lorene McClintock, who gave a talk on American Art, and also arranged an Art display. She gave some of her experiences while she was in New York, which was very interesting and unusual.

Mrs. G. Branaman Hostess To Fidelis Matron's Class

The Fidelis Matron's Class met at the home of Mrs. Glen Branaman, Wednesday, November first.

Christmas plans were discussed. A salad plate was served to the following members: Mesdames C. L. Heaton, Vern Johnson, Jr., Earl Reasoner, Levi Self, J. P. Halliburton, Herschel Crawford, Edwin Haddock, Ray Darwin, A. A. Sparkman, Misses Joan Drewry, Margaret Hannah, Docia Tucker, Lea Beth Drewry, Gertrude Legg, Evelyn Mansker, Naydiene Smith, Myrtle Teague, two guests, Mrs. Brazel, Miss McClintock, and the hostess, Mrs. Johns.

Mrs. J. B. Huckabay made an interesting talk on duties of the class officers.

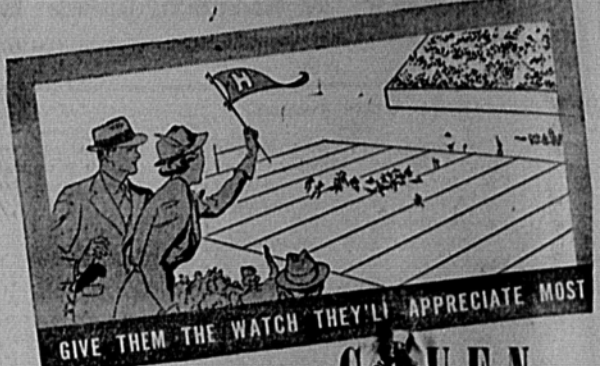

Mrs. Cullen Brown conducted the social hour.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames Fred Stephens, Ben Taylor, Haskell Cooper, Red Taylor, Cullen Brown, Frank Young, Bell Wampler, W. T. Ward, Ira McCarver, Alma Allen, J. B. Huckabay, and the hostesses Mesdames Chester Odom and Glen Branaman.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bruner and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Symes and daughter, Caroline, of Lubbock spent Sunday visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tess Bruner.

Mrs. B. A. Hannah, Mrs. Joe Teague, Jr., Mrs. Courtney Sanders and daughter, Catherine Ann, and Miss Myrtle Teague spent Monday in Earth visiting Mrs. M. E. Kelley.
