Slaton Schools Have Enrollment Of 1,300 Pupils

Approximately 1,300 pupils are now enrolled in the four Slaton public schools, according to L. T. Green, superintendent. The enrollment has risen to this figure from an initial enrollment of slightly more than 1,000 when the year's work started on Sept. 1, Mr. Green said. New pupils are yet being enrolled almost daily.

Besides the public school enrollment, there are about 150 pupils in the Catholic school, which employs five teachers. The public schools, including the fine arts departments, have more than 40 teachers.

The scholastic enrollment for the district this year was 1,466, a handsome gain over last year.

Local Poultrymen Showing at Fair

According to press reports, the following Slaton people are showing poultry this week at the Lubbock fair:

John C. Burton, C. T. Potts and C. Potts, Jr., Willie Houchins, Germaine Wicker, W. P. Splawn, Charley Splawn, Verna L. Crossland, Pierce Youngblood, A. A. DeVore and E. L. Hicks.

DeVore, Hicks and Youngblood on some splendid premiums last week at the West Texas Fair at Abilene, and they, together with other Slaton exhibitors, may bring back a number of ribbons from the fair at Lubbock this week, it was indicated.

'Uncle' Sankey Johnson Buried Thurs. Afternoon

Funeral services for Sankey Thomas Johnson, 75 year old pioneer of Lubbock County, were conducted Thursday afternoon at three o'clock from the Union Methodist church, with the Rev. J. B. Thompson, of Wilton, in charge.

The deceased resided nine miles east of Slaton in the Union community, where he had made his home for almost twenty years. He was well-known in Slaton to his many friends as "Uncle Sankey".

Mr. Johnson was found dead in bed Monday morning. He had been receiving treatments for heart trouble for some time, but his death was a shock to relatives and friends.

The deceased was the father of thirteen children, five of whom live in Lubbock county. They are, Ruth, Ed, Wright and Linas, all of the Union community; Mrs. Charles Bartlett, of Slaton; Milo Johnson, of Little Rock, Ark.; Sankey Johnson, of Paris, Tex.; Mrs. Roberta Richards, of Deco; Hardy Johnson, of Hiawatha, Okla.; Mrs. Edgar Doolin, of Paris, Tex.; Mrs. Burma Maples, of Ft. Smith, Ark.; Grover Johnson, of Lawton, Okla.; and N. T. Johnson, of Abilene.

Interment was made in Englewood cemetery, with the Masonic lodge in charge of the grave.

WEATHER.

Many sections have suffered by prolonged drouths this year, and in states of the middle west it is estimated that the loss by dry weather for the past two months will be as high as $150,000,000.

After the farmer has toiled and labored and thought and worried, he is left with the inexplicable forces of nature to deal with, and of course he is more or less helpless. But nature is not constantly so to extremes. A man who farms industriously and diligently year after year, is pretty sure of a living, and he is better fed and housed than the average of city

Monday night the elements blustered with lightning and thunder, and finally decided to empty a few clouds over Slaton, but it was light, not enough to cause any delay on cotton picking. But welcomed.

A. J. Butler has returned from Deco, Ark., where he had been for several weeks at the bedside of his father, who has been seriously ill, but somewhat improved at present.

Former Slaton Man Is Now Tutor at University of Texas

According to an item appearing in The Daily Texan, H. M. Pevehouse, former principal of the Slaton High School, has been selected as a tutor in the Economics Department at the University of Texas for the current year.

Mr. Pevehouse holds a Bachelor of Arts and the Bachelor of Business Administration degrees from the University.

Mrs. Pevehouse is doing student work in the University.

Light Rates Reduced for Slaton Started Oct. 1st

I. R. Kelso, of St. Louis, president of the Texas Utilities Company, at a meeting of the city commissioners last Wednesday evening, announced reductions in residence and business electric light rates for Slaton and all cities of the South Plains which are served by this company.

The reduction will be from 10 to 50 percent, depending upon the amount of current used by the customer. The reductions on the business schedule range from 11 to 15 percent.

Rates for residences will be as follows:

First 25 KWH, 11 cents, a reduction of 14%.

Next 25 KWH, 8 cents, a reduction of 10%.

All in excess, 3 cents, a reduction of 50%.

Commercial lighting rates have been set as follows:

First 50 KWH, 11 cents.

Next 200 KWH, 9 cents.

Next 750 KWH, 5 cents.

Next 1000 KWH, 4 cents.

All in excess, 3 cents.

Heating, cooking and refrigeration in residences will all be on a rate of 4¢ per KWH on the new schedule.

The new reductions announced are applicable to the forty-six West Texas cities which are served by the Texas Utilities Company.

Football.

Wellington, Kansas vs. Slaton, Texas.

The blooming Sunflowers of Wellington, Santa Fe Football Champions, come to Slaton to dress down the Santa Fe Buckaroos, locally known as the G. R. M. Apprentice club. This is to take place at the new Hi Athletic Park, Sunday, 3 p. m. The little ticket of admission only costs four bits, do your bit. The Buckaroos have never craved publicity as a bunch of pig skin hitters and punchers, but really they have been considered as a gang of cow punchers, not goat herders. We feel sure they will bend the Sunflowers.

This is the first time that Slaton division point has entered into competition with other points of the system. While our boys have played basketball and baseball, always making a good showing, still there is no reason why they cannot make an effort with football. Just watch them. The line up as near as possible will be as follows:

Gerald Woolever, Full Back.
Oval Canon, Quarter Back.
C. H. Cleveland, R. Half Back.
Paul Houston, L. Half Back.
C. C. Hoffman, L. Half Back.
Ben Porter, R. Half Back.
Hypo Wilmesmeier, Center.
Luke Shelby, R. Guard.
Byron Deavers, L. Guard.
Charley Splawn, R. Tackle.
Skinnay Woolever, Tackle.
Wilburn Napps, Tackle.
Otis Splawn, R. End.
Leon Austin, L. End.
Sir Bill Huckabay, Full Back.
J. E. Armes, R. End.

Truck Overturns On Lubbock Street

A large six wheel trailer truck overturned Monday as the driver made the curve from Ninth to Lubbock Street. After being righted by the aid of a wrecker and the crowd of bystanders, it was found to be undamaged while the driver, except for a very slight skin abrasion, was unhurt.

Tigers Will Play Plainview Eleven Saturday, Oct. 5

The Slaton High School Tigers, a Class B team, will meet the Plainview eleven, a Class A aggregation, in a game at the Lubbock fair, on Saturday afternoon of this week. The two teams are old-time rivals, although not in the same interscholastic class, and the outcome of the game will in no way affect the standing of either team so far as the league is concerned.

In former years, Slaton has won from Plainview as many or more times than she has lost, and the Tigers are working hard this week in preparation for the game Saturday afternoon. A large number of Slaton people are expected to attend the game.

The Tigers have thus far played only two games, winning over Big Spring Steers, 12 to 0, at Big Spring, and then walloping the Clovis, N. M., High outfit, 21 to 0, here last Friday.

Slaton Tigers Scalp Another Class A Team

Friday afternoon, September 27th, at 3 bells, under a beautiful summer sky, being excellent cotton weather, but excessively hot for football, the Slaton Tigers met the dapper lads who live in Clovis, which is in New Mexico. The new athletic park was the scene of the conflict. The pushers that promoted the park deserve great credit, not only in obtaining the location but in whipping the grounds into line in such a short time. Those who contributed for this purpose must have been doubly repaid for their generosity. We kind of got off talking about a foot ball game, so we get back on.

The warriors from the North came in goodly numbers. We will say they were a good bunch of sports, but to their undoing, as the Tigers finally got their scalp, and now two Class A scalps adorn the Tigers' Lair.

First Quarter.

Capt. McMennany chose to defend the north goal. Demp Cannon kicked off for 39 yards, our boys gained 60½ yards, by carrying the ball. There were two complete passes, and one incomplete pass. Tigers made 3 first downs. Score 0-0.

Second Quarter.

Tigers made 10 yards by carrying the ball. Tigers made one first down. They did not pass the ball in the second quarter. At the half, score 0-0. The Laddies and Lassies Pep Squad gave everyone a thrill during the two halves. They did fine.

Third Quarter.

Tigers gain 123½ yards by carrying the ball, Austin makes a sensational run of 40 yards. There were five first downs made by the Tigers. Austin makes first touchdown. Rucker makes the extra point. The Tigers did not pass the ball during this quarter. Demp Cannon adds another touchdown. Score 13-0.

Fourth Quarter.

Scott makes an extra point. The Tigers gain 40 yards, by carrying the ball, two complete passes by Demp Cannon, and makes a touchdown off of a pass. O. Cannon kicks goal for the extra point. Tigers make 1 first down, Tigers penalized 15 yards; Clovis 5 yards, Score 21-0.

Stonewall Jackson had the misfortune, when someone tried to frame his face with slats, that his beauty was a little disarranged, however, he is a fighter.

Thus ends a perfect day, and the scalp trophy hangs high.

Six Slaton Gins Had 1,374 Bales At Noon Saturday

The six cotton gins in Slaton had received a total of 1,374 bales of this season's cotton when a total was compiled last Saturday at noon. This shows cotton harvesting to be one month earlier than it was a year ago, since on the same date in Oct., 1928, the six gins here had received exactly the amount of cotton which they had handled up to last Saturday.

Weather conditions for picking have been ideal and all gins have been running constantly, several of them ginning far into the night. If favorable weather should continue through this month, the bulk of the crop will be harvested by Nov. 1 or 15, it has been estimated by farmers and ginners. Late cotton would not be finished by that time, however.

The crop is said to be turning out better than was expected at first. Even in some sections that were hit by hail the damage is not proving so bad as it was first believed to be, according to reports given by farmers living in that area.

Harvesting of cotton and feed crops is under way throughout the Slaton territory, causing farmers to be in their busiest season just at this time.

Part of Equipment of Mercy Hospital Completed

Mr. J. Pannell, in charge of the erection of the new elevator at the Mercy Hospital, assisted by Nolan E. Mosher, made the statement that they were ready to turn over the completed work to the proper authorities. The elevator was installed by Hunter & Haynes Co., of Dallas, Texas, southwest distributors for the American Elevator & Machine Co. This is the first elevator of a passenger type to have been erected in Slaton. It is a one speed machine of the latest type, having a capacity of 2,000 pounds, its dimensions are 5 feet 2 inches by seven feet 4 inches. It has a 100 foot lift per minute, with motor driven brakes, and is also equipped with a safety brake worked from the elevator platform, it has four steel cables that have a test of 10,000 pounds each, and all run by a nine horsepower motor.

Mrs. A. F. Grisham, who was the first woman to arrive at Slaton, had the honor of being the first woman to take a ride on the lift, in company with her niece, Miss Della Brewster. Later, having pictures taken at various points on top of the Hospital and on the grounds.

Work is steadily progressing, with much yet to be done, before the building is ready for occupancy. It is quite evident that the building and equipment will not be ready for use by November 1st. As one approaches the site, one becomes impressed with the nature of work that has been done and the great blessing that will be Slaton's when finally completed.

Garza Co. Won First at Abilene Fair

The Garza County exhibit on display at the West Texas Fair at Abilene won first prize among all county exhibits, according to reports.

The exhibit was under the direction of secretary of the Post Chamber of Commerce, Mr. George Sampson, who has had exceptional success with county exhibits in the last few years.

Garza County and Mr. Sampson are to be commended on such an achievement.

J. Lindsay Nunn, of Amarillo, and Dorrance D. Roderick, of El Paso, were business callers Tuesday for a short time. Mr. Roderick had a short visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Roderick. Dr. J. E. Nunn, also of Amarillo, father of J. Lindsay Nunn, remained at Lubbock. We are sorry to have missed the Dr. They had quite a long drive on their itinerary and the Doctor was resting for that occasion.

4-H Dairy Judging Team Attends the Tri-State Fair

Jack Stalcup, of this city, in company with James Potts and Fred Elliott, all Lubbock County boys, who compose the Texas 4-H Dairy Judging Team, were in Amarillo during the Tri-State Exposition doing practice judging and observing the placing of dairy cattle.

These boys will represent Texas at the National Dairy Show in St. Louis this month.

The Amarillo trip was made as an aid to the boys in preparing them for the competition at St. Louis with 4-H club teams from other states.

Baptist Revival To Close Sunday

The series of revival services which began Sept. 22, at the First Baptist church here will come to an end on Sunday night, it is expected. Dr. W. R. White, pastor of the First Baptist church of Lubbock, has been speaking twice daily during last week and this week.

Morning services are held at 10 o'clock and the evening services begin at 7:30. These will continue through Sunday, and Dr. White will speak Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service, it is announced.

Several additions to the membership of the church have been had so far, and others are expected before the meeting ends, according to the pastor of the local church, Rev. B. G. Holloway.

Dr. White has been conducting a Bible study lesson each morning, and the attendance has been growing daily since the meeting started.

Rotary Education Topics Discussed At Luncheon Meet

A series of four-minute talks were given by members of the Slaton Rotary Club at the luncheon meeting last Friday. J. Tom Overby, Walter B. Hestand, P. G. Stokes, John W. Hood and Robert H. Tudor were the speakers. Three others who were scheduled to be on the program, but who were absent, were Jess Swint, W. H. (Bill) Smith and Will P. Florence.

Overby and Hestand gave a discussion of the subject, "Should Rotary have a Local Program of Policies to be Pursued?" Each speaker brought out splendid suggestions. It was their belief that the club might profitably decide upon certain phases of work to be done, avoiding conflicts with other organizations, and in this way accomplish more than if such a program of work were not mapped out.

In discussing the subject, "Should Rotary Seek to Exert a Political or Religious Influence in an Effort to Bring About International Peace," P. G. Stokes said he believed Rotary should steer clear of political or religious entanglements, as it is not the purpose of Rotary to be in any sense a sectarian or political organization. Merely by exercising Rotary influences in the "Rotary way" will get better results in realizing world peace, the speaker thought.

John W. Hood, in speaking on "A Frank Discussion of Ways in Which the Slaton Rotary Club Might Make Improvements," brought out many very worthwhile suggestions which, if adopted by the club, would help the organization in many ways. His suggestions, although numerous, were none the less practical and timely. Club members expressed the hope that many of his ideas might be made a part of the club's regular practice.

"A Very, Very Frank Discussion of Things I Have Heard Members Say They Do Not Like About the Slaton Rotary Club's Programs, and What Changes They Would Suggest for Improvement," was the subject upon which R. H. (Bob) Tudor gave a talk. He had heard few criticisms, he declared, and therefore had few suggestions, but those he made were considered quite helpful.

The subject discussed by P. G. Stokes was also to have been Jess Swint's subject. W. H. (Bill) Smith was to have talked on the same sub-

Slaton Men Take 4th of Poultry Prizes at Lubbock Fair

Five Slaton poultry growers and breeders, A. A. DeVore, Pierce Youngblood, E. L. Hicks, W. P. Splawn and Charlie Splawn, won thirty-six premiums in the poultry division of the Panhandle South Plains Fair this week, according to press accounts of the winners. These awards did not include sweepstake prizes, which were to have been awarded Wednesday.

Not including sweepstakes, there were 145 premiums given to exhibitors in the poultry division, hence the five Slaton poultrymen, in winning thirty-six premiums, took more than 24 per cent of the premiums given. The five Slaton men's winnings included seventeen first premiums, which constituted 28 per cent of all the first prizes, not including sweepstakes.

Showing Dark and Light Barred Plymouth Rocks, A. A. DeVore walked away with six first premiums, four seconds and three thirds, thus bettering the record he made last week at the West Texas Fair at Abilene.

Pierce Youngblood, who showed White Wyandottes and Partridge Rocks, copped four first premiums, two seconds, two thirds and two fourths, also beating his record at the Abilene fair last week.

Exhibiting White Plymouth Rocks and White Wyandottes, E. L. Hicks captured four first premiums and two seconds. Hicks also won several splendid premiums at Abilene.

Charlie Splawn, showing Single Comb Rhode Island Reds and Black Cochon Bantams, took three first places and one third prize.

W. P. Splawn, who exhibited White Wyandottes, got two second premiums and one third.

Slaton Building Mark is $234,410 For Nine Months

Building activities in Slaton during the past nine months amounted to $234,410, according to records here. Of this amount, $46,000 came in the first quarter; $158,550 came in the second quarter; and the past three months' total was $29,860.

Improvements on municipal projects are not included in these calculations.

The largest single project of building here this year is the new Slaton hospital, for which the permit was $125,000. This leaves $109,410 for residences, brick business houses and various minor projects.

The average monthly amount of building, as seen by these figures, has been more than $26,000.

The year's total will exceed the total for 1928, it is believed certain. The 1928 total was $285,345.

Local Man's Relatives Killed in Accident

Rua Reynolds, of this city, has returned from Fairview where he attended the funeral services of a sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McCalley, and their six year old son, Tony, who were killed Sunday, Sept. 22, when the car in which they were riding was struck by a train in the city of Whitewright.

Milo Reynolds, a brother, who was driving the car at the time of the accident, was badly injured and is now a patient in the Katy Hospital at Denison. His condition is considered favorable.

All of the occupants of the car were deaf mutes except the child.

ATTENDED HOO HOO MEET.

Roy Cobb was in Amarillo the majority of last week, attending the meeting of the Hoo Hoo Organization of Lumberman, of which he is a member.

Mr. Cobb was accompanied to Amarillo by Thomas Pirtle of Lubbock.

A. M. Sprinkle, principal of the Slaton Hi School has been suffering with an illness that has kept him from his duties for practically a week. Latest reports given that he is improving.

I am a firm believer in anything my reasoning power tells me is absolute truth. Once my belief is established, my faith lays hold in earnest.

All bodies set in motion by outside influence, and left to themselves, tend to become still—in other words, they come to rest. If I drop a pebble in a still pond, ripples start very quickly. When the impact of the pebble is gone, the little waves gradually become placid again. That's because the force is not continuous.

The great planets floating in space are in constant motion. Some wonderful power must have set them to work. And, unless that power is perpetual, the large bodies would in time cease to move.

Our earth is rolling now—a thousand miles per hour—swifter than the most powerful airplane! It is also rolling around the sun in an almost incomprehensible orbit, every 365 days. Some stupendous power set the pace. It is still causing the big spheroid to move exactly on time, and with the same unerring precision. The power is at work right now, as it was "in the beginning".

I don't need any book to tell me that this power is still at work. Eclipses can be figured thousands of years ahead, far more accurately than any man-made chronometer can register. The past proves this.

Call the power God, or any other name—I know there is a supreme power. Since great good comes from the exercise of this power that makes universal life possible, I know it is a good power, for which "God" is by all earthly reason the best name.

Theorists and doubters may tell me with all emphasis that there is no God; I know better. And, I am willing to put my faith, and all that I am and have, in the power that gives me life, and the lives of those I hold most dear. Men may believe as they please—I do the same.

WELL FED HENS PAY DIVIDENDS

COLLEGE STATION.—It pays to feed hens during the summer months according to the records of 204 poultry demonstration flocks reported by county and home demonstration agents to the Extension Service. Eggs were produced by some 30,000 hens in these flocks for 12 cents per dozen feed cost during June and July. The average number of eggs laid each month per hen was about 14, and the profit per hen above feed cost was a little more than 22 cents each of these months.

"The real gain will come this fall and winter, however, for the well fed hens will then be producing when eggs are high in price, whereas hens poorly fed last summer will probably defer their laying until spring," E. N. Holmgren, Extension poultry specialist explains.

Another point brought out in the demonstration records is the fact that the production per hen was lower in flocks of less than 100 birds, and the mortality higher. The feed cost per dozen eggs was about the same but this is attributed to the fact that the laying hens in the larger flocks were charged with the feed bills of large numbers of growing stock.

PRACTICAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT LEGISLATION

On August 14, a new automobile casualty insurance law went into effect in California, which seems to be an intelligent model for this sort of legislation.

No motorist is compelled to carry insurance, but in case of an accident he must pay all damages and provide future insurance before he can drive again.

The increasing toll of deaths and injuries caused by the automobile has made it apparent that steps must be taken to curb the reckless and irresponsible. Unconditional compulsory insurance has been found an impractical and expensive failure. Several states have passed acts similar to the California law.

A fair liability law, coupled with rigid enforcement of adequate driving rules, should do much to prevent accident and indemnify the injured. Reckless drivers are a menace to the public safety. But legislation which places a burden on the careful and competent is unfair and foredoomed to failure.

PUBLIC OPINION FAVORS REFORM IN CALENDAR

Washington, D. C.—Adoption of a simplified calendar and participation of the United States in an international conference to provide the best method of simplification are favored by "a large and representative body of American opinion," is the conclusion stated by the National Committee on Calendar Simplification in a report submitted to the Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson. The report based on a year's investigation was presented to Secretary Stimson for his use in replying to an inquiry on the subject made by the League of Nations to the United States in 1927.

Although the report did not recommend that the United States enter an international conference committed to any definite plan, it is stated that public opinion preponderantly favors the 13-months fixed calendar, with each month having 28 days, the month beginning on Sunday. The new month would be placed between June and July; the 365th day of the year would be dated December 29, with the suggested name of "Peace Day" or "Year Day", and observed as an extra Sabbath. "Leap Day" would be placed on June 29 and observed as an extra Sabbath or holiday.

SENATORS AND SUGAR.

Although the sugar schedule proper will likely not be reached for many days, its friends and enemies are lining up on the Senate floor.

Senator Furnifold Simmons of North Carolina, veteran Finance Minority leader, has declared indignantly that the increase in duty on sugar alone would absorb the largest part of the increase afforded agriculture. Nobody challenged the statistics he read to prove his point.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chief tormentor of Senator Reed Smoot in the 1922 battle on the sugar tariff, is in his usual fighting form this season. In a speech on the Hawley-Smoot Bill, he recently attacked Senator Smoot for appropriating to himself the consideration of the sugar schedule on account of his well known personal interest in the subject.

"Can you name a single large staple crop of the South that will be benefited by this proposed tariff?" thundered Senator Walter F. George of Georgia. If Senators from Louisiana and Florida had any desire to voice their faith in protection for their cane growers, they must have thought it wiser to keep silent. Senator George is known to be a strong opponent of increased sugar tariff.

Among the Republicans the chief position so far has been defense of the bill as a whole, of course. Yet it is known that Senator William Borah of Idaho has had under consideration for some time a bounty plan as a means toward relief for the sugar farmer. Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota also recently advocated a bonus plan for beet growers rather than a higher tariff, as in his opinion a tariff increase will not help the farmers.

Senator Lynn J. Frazier is also inclined to the bonus plan. Washington observers expect the Progressives, in accordance with their often voiced sympathy for the farmer, to withhold their support of a tariff that will burden farming groups and yield practically no benefit to a small group of cane and beet growers.

NOT HEALTHY TO RETIRE!

Thomas A. Edison was recently asked whether he intended to retire. "No," he answered. "It's unhealthy."

These are wise words from a man of true wisdom. His inventions and discoveries have benefited the world for many years—at his advanced years many men stop working, and give themselves to rest and comfort, but he remains just as busy as ever.

He knows not only secrets of electricity, but also secrets of good living. He has learned that life is an experience glorious and vital—and that retirement means stagnation and death. His own splendid health and mental ability at an advanced age is a sterling example of what hard work can do for one.

"The Sage of Potato Hill"

ASOKA, BARBARIAN.
A SUGGESTION.
UNWISE NAPOLEON.

I have not been able to find an account of a man who was entirely intelligent, or of one who was entirely honest. The best example of an honest and intelligent man was possibly Asoka, a barbarian. It is said of him that though he conquered in battle as easily as did Napoleon, he grew to have a horror of war, and would have no more of it. Asoka had victory to his credit in full measure. No one could say he was a coward, or that he was not the best of commanders. He was rich, and regal in splendor of palaces, robes, jewels, and obedience from his subjects.

So the man chose to thereafter court fame by becoming a just and intelligent ruler, and this course met with so much success that he is at this distant day, best known and respected of the notables of his time.

Any page devoted to a summary of a thousand years of history gives brief mention of rulers much alike; so many victories, so many defeats, and through it all about the same thievery and oppression. But instead of the usual line given an ancient ruler in the necessary brief summary of history, Asoka gets a star in front of his name, and a footnote recording distinction no other king, president or chief has.

The history of Asoka is shadowy, and I somewhat distrust it, but it at least persists, and is a suggestion a modern ruler might have made reality.

Why should not a ruler acquire fame with honesty rather than with the roguery that has distinguished his class almost without variance? Napoleon was a rarely intelligent man. In the Russian campaign, which wrecked him, he took a chance that was surely unnecessary. He appreciated he could not successfully invade England because of the channel separating Calais and Dover, but overlooked a more serious handicap—Winter—in invading Russia.

Why was it impossible for Napoleon to be as wise as the barbarian Asoka, who, after becoming satiated with victory and power, chose to try for still greater glory, as a just and intelligent ruler? St. Helena is a good story, but an unnecessary tragedy: I regret Napoleon's history is not an inspiration to all men that honesty is the best policy. Had Napoleon adopted Asoka's plan as late as Austerlitz, he would have not only his present fame, but a great deal more, and of a better kind.

Says Orgatone Restored His Health
When Everything Else Had Failed.

T. H. Martin, who owns and operates a shoe shop at 809 Broadway, Lubbock, Texas, and who resides on Ave. H, 1934, talks interestingly of the benefits he has derived from Orgatone. In a conversation with the Orgatone representative, he said:

"I was in a general run-down condition and have had a severe chronic case of stomach trouble and indigestion for a long time, I was in such a low-spirited, run down condition my life was miserable. I had no appetite and could hardly eat anything unless I was troubled afterward with severe bloating spells and gas that formed on my stomach. I was constipated and was forced to take strong laxatives most all the time."

"I am getting wonderful results since taking Orgatone. Doctors told me I would have to be operated on for gall trouble but Orgatone has saved me from this. It, to my notion, has saved me hundreds of dollars and a lot of suffering. I eat anything I want now and it does not bother me at all. Gas does not form on my stomach any more and I eat anything I want now and it does not form on my stomach any more and I have improved with every dose till I feel now like nothing ever was the matter with me. I sleep and rest fine and am not nervous anymore. I will praise Orgatone for what it has done for me and I am telling all my friends about it. I am more than glad to give this statement for it has certainly made me feel like a new person."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Slaton by the Teague Drug Store who are direct laboratory agents. Adv.

EUROPE'S IDOL GRIPS HEARERS IN FIRST FILM

"Innocents of Paris," a romantic comedy-drama starring Maurice Chevalier, with Sylvia Beecher, Russell Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. George Fawcett, John Miljan, Margaret Livingston, David Durand and Johnnie Morris supporting. A Paramount all-talking picture, directed by Richard day, Monday and Tuesday.

When Maurice Chevalier, soldier of Wallace, at the Palace Theatre Sun-France, and lion of the continental stage, comes marching into the silver-sheet at the Palace Theatre, Sunday, he gives his audience a great big thrill, and keeps them enthralled every moment that his spirited voice—and body are before them. For with Chevalier it is not alone the animation of vocal tone which "gets" people, young and small—but it is also that temperamental language of the hands, the face, the feet. With Chevalier it is, well, we might say just "It," but the man's artistry calls for a more elaborate definition. It is genius born of spiritual inspiration.

In his current, and first, movie—"Innocents of Paris," at the Palace Theatre, Chevalier plays the part of a happy-go-lucky push-cart singer of the Flea Market district of Paris. He gets a chance to go on the stage with his songs and pantomime, and the plot affords him every opportu-ity to present the gorgeous values of his full repertoire of songs—lyrics and ballads which have established him in actual life as the reigning king of entertainment in Europe.

The picture is all-talking, and it might be added, all-Chevalier—but the work of his supporting cast is none the less adequate and pleasing. Sylvia Beecher, a beautiful young actress recruited from the stage, is the purveyor of the love interest with M. Chevalier.

The Rock Island Railroad will extend a line out of Dalhart.

...both beauty, like a dial hand, from his figure and no pace perceived.—Shakespeare.

After-Summer Figures.
How does your figure look at the end of the summer? Have you gained or lost—or, miracle of miracles—found a harmony between the body and kept the perfect weight? Most of you have probably gained, in spite of the fact that one exercises more in the summer and that weather menus are invariably lighter than cold-weather ones, more on take on weight in the summer at any other time of the year. Probably because summer is a season of laxity and self-indulgence in all of vacation pleasures and comfort. Reducing diets are forgotten. Poor exercises create hearty appetites and you succumb to the temptations of all sorts of delicious forbidden foods and drinks.

Do not quote ideal figures and diets in this article. I shall merely state that you consider your own weight carefully and apply common sense to your habits of eating. The new fall colors and lines will flatter slim figures and healthy complexions to carry them off easily. The right diet will take care of both these points, to a large extent. To be sure, a winter diet may be more substantial, generally, than summer diet. But you must not use the amount of food you eat in winter if you are over-weight. Be sensible, and cut down on food until your weight is somewhat normal for your height. Begin your diet with plenty of water. Drinking water facilitates the digestive processes and helps the muscles of the body to keep active and busy in their function. From six to eight glasses a day are necessary. Ten or ten are better. And twelve of all.

Here are a few suggestions for regular luncheons:
1. Egg omelet (100 calories).
2. A glass of milk (80 calories).
3. Lettuce and apple salad (25 calories).
4. A serving of clear soup (15 calories); with 12 oyster crackers, (calories).
5. A heaping tablespoonfuls baked sweet potatoes (100 calories).
6. A sliced pickled beets (25 calories).
7. A medium baked apple with one spoonful cream, no sugar (100 calories).
8. A heaping tablespoonfuls boiled beets or turnips (25 calories).
9. A serving of boiled lean beef such as cod or halibut (about calories).
10. A slice corn bread or brown bread, buttered (100 calories).

FARMERS BENEFIT FROM CROP REPORTS

How many farmers use crop reports? Probably no branch of the United States department of agriculture is more frequently criticized by the public than the one which prepares the crop reports. The complaint that it is only dealers and speculators who should be done away with is frequently heard. Such a view is unreasonable and unworkable, a writer declares in the September Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman. When production is large, the crop forecasts and estimates will be associated with falling or low prices for the just as surely result in low or high prices when they show a production. Growers of winter wheat certainly got some benefit from reports this year. Prices advanced in the face of record supplies being marketed. Buyers would not be ignorant of probable supplies if they were no official estimates. They would know approximately any crop, although the way would be open for getting out misleading reports. Dealers alone had the information they would have a decided advantage in trading. The individual grower would often be sadly misled by conditions in his own locality. Farmers who wish to do so will find plenty of advantage from the reports in their producing and marketing operations. The planting reports are particularly useful in making plans which will avoid over- or scanty production and the ups and downs in prices. Whether to sell at harvest or hold out must be decided by a study of supply and demand shown by the crop reports. They have shown that as much as 25 per cent of the change in prices in wheat depends upon the supply and demand, so that a reasonable expecttancy as to the probable average price for the season can be determined from the supply.

"Even those farmers who object to government crop reports obtain some indirect benefits from them."

Selection of Right Feeds is Puzzling

Modern Farmer Must Watch Chemical Analysis.

Feeders are often at a loss to know just what to look for in buying ready-mixed feeds, because of the great many varieties on the market, and because of the different food materials needed under various conditions. Regardless of whether the feed is mixed in a factory, at the farm or by a retail feed merchant, the principles remain the same. Certain ingredients are necessary, but they change in amounts under varying conditions. A balanced ration for a beef cow would not be a balanced ration for a heavy producing dairy cow.

The best way to secure proper feed is to watch the chemical analysis of the feed, whether it be ready mixed, or mixed in a batch. Be sure that the ingredients that are necessary for a certain animal are there. When buying feed for a beef cow be sure that there is plenty material for meat production; a dairy cow must have material for milk, such as butter fat, milk, sugar and curd, and so on. Proper amounts of feed are just as important as proper kinds. Feed cows in accordance with their production.

Heavy producing dairy cows need water in abundance; five times the amount of milk produced is the recommended quantity. They need carbohydrates and fat to make butter fat and milk sugar; this part is secured through regular home grown feeds in the ration, such as corn, oats, etc. Probably the most important part of milk, however, is curd. This material is secured from the protein part of feeds, but home grown feeds do not contain sufficient amounts nor the proper kind of protein and a high protein concentrate, such as linseed meal, must be furnished in the ration. A ration recommended for heavy producing dairy cows may be made up of 280 pounds ground corn, 280 pounds ground oats, and 440 pounds linseed meal. Feed one pound of this ration for each 3 or 4 pounds of milk per day, with timothy hay or silage for roughage.

WHY HE CAN'T PAY THE BILL.

"I have your statement showing that I owe you $769.80, and I am enclosing a check for $5.00 for which please send me a receipt. I am sorry that I cannot pay more at the present as I am unable to collect from my customers, as money is scarce right now. My own living expenses are terrible and I can hardly get along. I will try to send you another $5.00 when I sell my hay which should be in July. I cannot pay you more at that time for my daughter finishes at Bristol this year, and that costs a heap of money."

"I thought I could send you a check when I got my tobacco money, but it took all I could rake and scrape to put in Delco lights, as my wife didn't have electricity to run the sewing machine and vacuum cleaner. Then, too, we had to build a shed to put the Ford in so we could put the new Cadillac in the garage and build a concrete bridge over the brook in our front lot, as well as a new road so that we could get in and out better. "I can't send you the corn money in the fall, because my son is going to college, and, although the lads of today are very economical about hats and garters, still a coon skin coat costs the old man a lot and even junk yard Fords come rather high by the time they are decorated for College use. I might send you the hog money but the missus and I have planned a trip to Niagara in the fall, and after working hard all these years, I think she deserves a trip. We can't go before taking out all the red plush and putting in over-stuffed cane and mahogany. This is a terrible strain on my finances especially as the new well that was needed closer to the house and the new up-to-date barn have to be paid for.

All the farmers here are in hard shape financially with strawberries this season at seventy-five cents a quart and the price of gasoline as it is. Then, too, there is an epidemic among the married women to have their plain gold wedding rings platinumized and set with diamonds and everybody is having their tonsils and teeth removed."—Tulsa Bulletin.

POISON IVY TREATMENT.

Poison ivy rash is one of the most disagreeable ailments with which man can be afflicted. Ask any one who has had it. Some skins are more sensitive to poisons than others, and sometimes people come in contact with ivy without knowing it until irritation of the skin has commenced.

In discussing poison ivy in the "Health of the Home" column of the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman September 1, one of the middle-west's leading physicians declares that for both poison ivy and chiggers there is nothing better than a cake of soap.

Thorough washing soon after exposure to poison ivy reduces the danger of injury since the poison usually requires some time to penetrate into the tender layers of the skin. Until such penetration has taken place, much or all of the poison can be removed. It is best to use hot water if any is available.

Make a thick lather and wash several times with thorough rinsing and frequent changes of hot water, using ordinary alkaline kitchen soap. Running water is preferable for this purpose. If basin is used, the water should be changed frequently. Even after inflammation has developed, thorough washing should be tried in order to remove from exposed surface of the skin all traces of the poison that still can be reached.

For the inflammation, simple remedies such as local applications of solutions of cooking soda or of epsom salts, one or two heaping teaspoons to a cup of water, are helpful. Fluid extract of grindelia, diluted with four to eight parts of water, is often used. Solutions of this kind may be applied with light bandages or clean cloths. Such cloths must be kept moist and discarded frequently to avoid infection. When the inflammation is extensive or severe, it is best to consult a physician.

DINNER VS. LUNCH.

The word supper came from the fact that people in former days sopped the bread in the gravy. In elite quarters they have about quit eating their bread and gravy and so the word supper is coming into disuse. "They" tell me it's lunch time at noon time and dinner at the close of the day. I don't believe it. My mother used to blow the old horn for me to "come to dinner" every day at 11:45. The field was at least a half mile away, but I never failed to hear the "dinner" horn. And now they try to tell me that was a "lunch" horn. It was no such of a thing. It didn't take a horn to get me to supper, after plowing seven acres of cotton with a walking cultivator. Of course, I'm letting them teach my kids that it is lunch at dinner, but for me it is still dinner and supper, by Gatlins.—San Saba News.

The fellow who began calling a dinner a lunch should have been shot. He is responsible for some people calling supper dinner. Think of eating lunch at 12 o'clock. A lunch is not a meal at all; it's a biscuit and a piece of meat wrapped in a paper to eat when you are away from home and hotels. No greater insult can be given than to ask one to take lunch at noontime. At that hour one doesn't want a handout; he wants beans and peas, greens, hog jowl, onions, and such things. Think of a good old dinner horn calling you to "lunch". Dinner is the noon meal; supper the meal

ATTRACTIVE FARM HOMES.

In traveling about the country the writer has been impressed with the appearance of Lubbock county farm homes. Dooryards that were once runways for the chickens and hogs or storage fields for rusty equipment have been cleared up, attractively gardened, with beautiful little flower beds placed here and there, and majestic shade trees pruned to frame the home in an artistic setting.

Our rural neighbors like our town friends are placing more emphasis each year upon the value of beauty. They are coming to see that life means something besides finding shelter and sufficient income to keep one in a reasonable degree of comfort. They are learning that a beautiful homestead is something worth the effort, thought, and care required.

The effect of this renaissance in farm home-making is far reaching. It tends to give rural people a new sense of the beauties that their mode of living affords. It makes our countryside more attractive. And it gives thousands of people who are burdened with a continuous round of work a hobby that relieves the mind and brings one to a better understanding of the fundamentals of life.

How we all admire a beautifully kept estate and have long dreamed of the time when good fortune will permit us to live amid such surroundings. But our rural friends are demonstrating the fact that such a pleasant and desirable environment is attainable to an extent even by those with a modest purse.

We take much satisfaction in noting this change and trust that it may have a marked effect upon the future of rural life.

A STUDY IN FACES.

The doctrine of phenologists have long been discredited. Careful investigation has shown that the cranial "bumps" do not mean much. The man with a dome on the top of his head is not necessarily pious. The man with a big back head may be less animal than mental. The man who is wide between the ears doesn't necessarily possess the courage and combativeness of the bull or bulldog.

The physiognomists have fared better. There is today probably more belief than ever in the theory that talent and character can be read in the face, if the reader knows how. The country is full of "experts" and "professors" who will help prepare one for business or professional success by teaching him how to recognize different types and aptitudes simply by looking at a person.

A showdown test the other day in an eastern college rather shattered that doctrine. Photographs of various graduates were submitted to twenty experts in physiognomy, and they did about as badly as any of the rest of us might have done. They picked successful men for unsuccessful, and vice versa. They had poor luck in picking the professions the various subjects were fitted for.

Something, of course, can be told by looks. But not all; usually not much. The fellow with the "strong jaw" is as likely as not to be a moral weakling; the broad, high forehead may prove to have nothing in it; the narrow, sloping forehead may conceal genius; the delicate nose may cover coarseness. It is the inside that counts, not the outside.

OUT OF SWADDLING CLOTHES

Gas house-heating, according to Eugene D. Milener of the American Gas Association, is emerging from its swaddling clothes and is now available in nearly every section of the country.

In many large cities house-heating absorbs as much as 10 per cent of the entire gas production, and the proportion is growing rapidly. Automatic heat, with its economy, efficiency and time and labor saving qualities, has taken the American home by storm.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK.

The American people have a way of putting through to success the movements which they take up seriously. They hate to admit themselves to be stumped on any proposition, the success of which would be for the public good.

For a number of years a movement has been conducted to reduce the terrible loss by fires, which has reached so high a point that it may be considered as a national disgrace. This movement has had considerable success for the past two years, yet the total loss would have been considered beyond all reason a few years ago. Much remains to be done to educate public sentiment properly on this question.

The prevalent dishonesty of the times shows itself in this matter. Many of these fires are fraudulent ones, set to collect insurance money. But that is not the principal element in this loss, which is chiefly due to the heedless and "don't care" attitude taken by so many of the American people.

If our people are not moved by the tremendous money loss caused by preventable fires, they might at least consider fires annually cause a loss of about 15,000 lives. They bring sorrow into all these homes. They destroy the earning power of families, reduce many people from comfort to beggary, they stop the operations of workshops and throw people out of employment, and are one of the principal curses that afflict the nation. It is about time for people to wake up to this great evil and ask themselves individually whether they have any habits that involve fire peril. President Hoover has issued the annual proclamation appointing the week beginning Oct. 6th, as Fire Prevention Week. Let us give it attention here in Slaton.

THOUGHTS OF YOUR HOME TOWN.

If you support the business places of your home town with your purchasing power, they will help support you with their friendly service, and their energy applied to community purposes. The past few days saw public spirit fully aroused, men gave of their time and means to have a Foot Ball Park, that is simply the spirit that wins, either in sport or business.

Buying goods without seeing what the sellers are advertising, is a good deal like buying stuff without looking at it.

The people who haven't a dollar to give to some home town cause, can frequently find five or ten to go on a junket with.

The spirit of fault finding is well developed in some. They desire community progress, yet tend to hamper that progress, by their constant fault-finding about their home town. They see the defects and do not ask whether such faults are inherent in any community of that type, or whether they are remediable. Any town has its lack. You cannot expect a community like Slaton to provide things that can be had in Chicago or New York. But a town like ours can provide many advantages that New York and Chicago lack. The thing for us to do is to dwell on our advantages, to absolutely ignore defects that are beyond our power to remedy, and to work heartily and earnestly for the removal of those defects which we could easily get rid of.

Enlarge your trade. The tendency of the times is to concentrate trade. Business is uniting in larger units. People will travel or send a long distance to buy goods, if they think they can save a dollar. They may lose in so doing, but you must prove that they could do better to buy their stuff near home. Any community will draw in more trade, if it formulates a comprehensive plan for enlargement of the same. The business men of every live town should constantly get together, and consider what other cities are doing to get trade, what plans prove successful elsewhere, and try out the best plans for their own location or city.

KICKERS.

We have heard of kickers who criticize their wife's biscuits or knock on their own home town, but the youth who, evidently in pursuance of his ideas of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, kicked out the plate glass window of the E. & A. Dry Goods Company is a new and even less understandable variety. It is to be deplored that the law does not punish such Juvenile performances with a sound—a very sound—spanking.

WHAT YOU INVEST.

You'll get out of this organization just what you put into it. You must invest effort and interest to collect dividends of pleasure and satisfaction.

Most of us have heard something like this upon joining an organization. Bromide that it is, it is fundamentally true. Everywhere in life we reap returns commensurate with effort expended.

It is true of an organization. It is equally true of a community. The satisfaction, pleasure and pride you take in your town are determined largely by the interest, thought, and unselfish service you devote to its welfare.

Invariably those who dislike Slaton and find it an unsatisfactory town in which to live are those who do nothing for the improvement of the community. Conversely those who are enthusiastic boosters for the town are those who derive the greatest amount of pleasure and satisfaction out of living here.

There's nothing like living in a live, progressive town, and there is no way of learning to see the good points of your community like boosting its assets at every possible opportunity.

ARE YOU THE MISSING CYLINDER

How exhilarating it is to drive a perfectly tuned motor car. What a wonderful feeling of power it gives one to feel that magnificent motor quietly lift one over the hills and heavy grades ahead.

Likewise how thrilling it is to work in a community in which everything is in perfect adjustment. How elated we become while engaged in any community enterprise when everyone is contributing his share to the job.

On the contrary how exasperating it is to drive your car when a cylinder is sputtering and missing; and how unpleasant it is to try to accomplish anything for the community when some of its citizens absolutely refuse to work with the others. In other words it is as impossible to scale the high hills on the road of progress with a few citizens knocking as it is for a motor car to scale the rocky mountains with one or more cylinders missing.

USE ALL THE POWER.

Power unused, in a sense, is power wasted. At least it can be said that when the farm power available is not utilized to the fullest extent, it is not being given an opportunity to produce the greatest possible returns.

No man would think of hitching four horses to a one-row cultivator when only two are needed to pull it, and when the same four head could handle a two-row without trouble and do twice the amount of work. Using a tractor to pull equipment which requires only one-half to two-thirds of its rated power, by the same line of reasoning, is just as uneconomical.

The man who has a tractor capable of pulling a three-bottom plow but who uses a plow of only two bottoms is not taking full advantage of the power he has available. With a three-bottom plow he could do 50 per cent more work in the same amount of time and with no more labor. His cost of plowing 3 acres with the three-bottom outfit would be little more than for plowing 2 acres with two bottoms because his investment in equipment would be only slightly greater and his fuel requirement not much more.

The same tractor with power enough to pull a tandem disc and harrow, or a pulverizer, single disc and drag, is not doing the work it should when used to pull only a single disc. This same thought might be applied to other types of field equipment as well as to belt-power equipment, such as feed grinders. Exception must be made, of course, when some piece of equipment is used for only a small amount of work—too small an amount to justify the purchase of larger equipment to utilize the maximum power of the tractor.

Ample farm power yields greatest returns when efficiently used. One way to promote efficiency is to maintain a proper and logical proportion or ratio between the equipment to be operated and the belt and drawbar power available.—Farm & Ranch.

The trouble with the present is that there are too many $2,000 men looking for $20,000 jobs.

SLATON MAN SAID, "MY CAR IS PAID FOR"

Uncle George Marriott had a grin that would not come off, as he stated, "My Ford is paid for, it is mine and Pardon's." We questioned his statement, but the old ticket puncher said, "See this, that is the release." And he continued to grin. "I have driven 15,534 miles since the 4th of September, 1928, and have only had an outlay of 35c for repairs covering that period. Why man, I have made two round trips to Shreveport, La., two round trips to Marshall, one round trip to San Angelo, one to Carlsbad Cavern, and one to Santa Fe, New Mexico, and we have always had a load. Of course I do not say how many round trips we have had between the Santa Fe Reading Room and the City of Slaton. Pardon has that count, just ask him, but honestly, no joking now, you took a shot at me when I started for Shreveport because I had that double decker on the rear, and made the statement you thought I was in the chicken business, and you made a dive at me when I put a beautiful horn on the car, the notes of which were as clear as a bell, and would do for a fire siren, but I am telling you, if I was to buy another car, it would be none else than a Ford. You can laugh, but that is the dope I am giving you, I have had more fun out of that car than I ever had putting on a buck and wing or a clog. Now do you get me. Yes, sir, she is paid for."

HOOVER'S CAMP AN HISTORIC SITE

When General Robert E. Lee wanted a post of observation during the Civil War, he chose Clark's Mountain overlooking the Rapidan River in Virginia. The banks of the river were the scene of the war itself. When President Hoover desired a fishing camp, he selected the upper waters of the Rapidan. It is reported that he may take Premier Ramsay MacDonald there to confer on a disarmament agreement looking toward permanent peace. One would never guess that the sunny country through which the Rapidan flows ever heard a cannon boom or a rifle crack.

There are other historical traditions connected with the famous stream. It is said that General Stonewall Jackson actually drew his sword in battle for the first time at Cedar Mountain near the Rapidan. The river was originally named for Queen Anne of England (the "Rapid Anne"), but the Post Office Department, with an eye to practicality rather than romance, abbreviated the name to its present form. Other streams whose names are derived from the renowned Queen are the Northanna, the Southanna, the Fluvanno, and the Rivanna.

This war between China and Russia is going to be quite a hardship for proof readers and linotype operators.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT advertising is a trade getter and a trade builder. Build your business by advertising.

THAT the best sellers are always advertised; that is why people read the ads before they buy.

THAT constant advertising creates an ever-increasing demand.

THAT forward looking merchants recognize the demand for quality merchandise and keep a standard of quality goods that is the best, and then they ADVERTISE!

THAT they can supply the best on the market at all times.

THAT the old saying, "the best is none too good" is fully recognized by the up-to-date merchant. It is as true today as it always was, and will remain true forever.

When you find well-advertised merchandise you find merchandise that is already in demand, and the demand is being increased by advertising.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhoea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

ELEVENTH INSTALMENT

Dear Wife, he wrote her mother. The Lord giveth and taketh away. I have lost you and my darling daughter and my loneliness is hard. I still can say, "Thy will be done."

I think you should know, however things are here. Otherwise I should not write you. But I am afraid that the daughter that was yours might tire of the husks of life and wish to come home repentant. Her bitterness filled my soul when I read that she was leading a life of riotous mockery, and when I saw the picture of her smiling in a gown of the side of that French general, I had it in my heart to curse her. I write in this to repent my hardness of heart and bowed my head in humble prayer when I read your angry reply. I had lost your love and your affection, but that was deserved punishment for the idolatry that I had grown up in my head-to-your-words; and for the mistakes I must have made in not giving our erring daughter a better care.

But now it has pleased the Lord to pour out the vials of his wrath on the gray hairs. The old mortgage on the church fell due long ago, but enclosure had been postponed in time to time. We gave a benediction to pay it off, but everybody was poor to respond, and it did not cost expenses.

The manager of the motion-picture house here offered to share the profits on the showing of a picture in which, as he had the influence to tell me, my daughter played a part. But while it would have drawn money for curiosity it would not have responded to a Christian appeal, I felt that it would be a compounding with evil, and I put Satan behind me and ordered the fellow out of the house.

The church is to be closed. What shall I do next or how take care of the little children that still cling to home, the Lord has not yet told me in answer to my prayers. I still have faith that in His goodness He will provide a way or call a servant home, and I hope you will not take this letter as a plea for pity.

My cup is full and running over, and my chief dread is that unhappiness and want may be your portion as well as mine, and that I shall fail utterly after providing so anxiously for you all your days. I can only pray that my fears are the result of loneliness and age and sadness.

And now may the Lord shield you with his ever-present mercy, or at least give us the strength to understand that in all things he knoweth best.

Your loving HUSBAND.

When she read this letter and saw the lines of the heavy brows of her old father, saw the bald spot new clothes and a rest."

"Rest and the clothes can wait."
Her mother kept a miserable silence for a long while before she could say: "Your father will never accept money that you have earned from the pictures. He'd rather die."
This gave Mem only a brief pause. She answered simply:
"Doctor Bretherick got me into this business by making up the pack of lies that brought me out here. Now he can make up a few more and save poor daddy from desperation."
She sat down at once and wrote the doctor a letter, telling him what he must already know of her father's helplessness. She inclosed a money-order for two hundred and fifty dollars. She wrote a check at first, but she was afraid to have it put through the bank at Calverly lest her father hear of it. She instructed the doctor to make up another of his scenarios about a repentant member of the congregation wishing to restore some stolen funds—or anything that his imagination could invent.
Then she set the wheels in motion to secure an immediate engagement with the next to the greatest comedian on the screen, Ned Ling, a reader of important books; a debater of art theories—but above all a man afraid of nothing so much as he was afraid of love.
It was a period of dead calm and torpid seas, and so Mr. Bermond willingly arranged to "rent" her to Ling, who wanted her at once at first sight.
Meanwhile, through Claymore, Terry Dack was about to be struck off in innumerable portraits and showered upon a grateful world.
At the age of five he would commence his business career with a salary of two or three thousand dollars a year.
One of Mem's pictures was shown soon after at a theatre in Los Angeles, and she sat in a vast throng. She saw with pride a fat woman sniffle and thought it a beautiful tribute. She saw a bald-headed man sneak a handkerchief out and, pretending to blow his nose, dash his shameful tears away. And that was beautiful to her with a wonderful beauty.
The papers the next day in their criticisms gave her special mention. A marvelous thing to see one's name in print and with a bouquet tied to it. She had but a little while to revel in this perfect award, for in a few days a letter came to her, forwarded from the studio.
Her heart plunged with terror as she read:
I seen your pictur last nite and it made me sick youre awful innasent and sweet in the pictur and you like buter wouldn't melt in your mouth but I know beter for Im the guy who held you up wen you was with that other guy and took your wedin ring off you I didnt know who you was then and I dont know who he is yet but Im wise to you and all I got to say is Ive got my eye on you and you better behave or els quit playin these innasent parts jeered at her sublimities of purity. Her highest ambitions were doomed to sneering mockery.

After a day in Ling's studio, he took her to "The Beggar's Opera."
She had so lost her orientation at the end of the seductive villainies, that she did not faint when Ned Ling said:
"I've laughed myself hungry. I haven't ordinarily an appetite. Let's go to my house and have a bite."
"To your house?"
"Yes. It's all right. I'm quite alone there. Just a Jap. Very secluded."
She wanted to say: "You tell me not why I should go, but why I should not. And I won't."
But it seemed a silly little-girlish, old-maidish, prunes-and-prisms thing to say so she said, "All right," and got into Ling's car.
When he said, "Home," to the driver she almost swooned, but not quite.
The Jap showed no surprise at the late arrival of his master with a lady. Evidently it was the ordinary thing. Mum longed for a mask for a fire escape or a gun. She glanced about for weapons of defense.
But Ned Ling said: "Some scrambled eggs and bacon—some wine. Would you rather have red or white?—or a little champagne? Let's have some champagne—yes? Yes, we'll have some champagne—native California—but good."
She was hungry, out he kept one of her hands prisoner and preferred to talk.

Afterward they went into the beautiful living room, a strange room for a clown; more like what she imagined a millionaire's room to be, judging from what millionaires' rooms she had seen in the movies.
He made her sit down on a long couch and snuggled close to her. She was curious rather than alarmed. He took up her hand again and studied it, talking in the rather literary manner he sometimes assumed: "Each separate finger has its own soul, don't you think? Hands are families. Queer things, fingers. Your right hand and your left-hand aren't the least alike and your face is a third person."
Before Mem quite realized how solemnly ludicrous a couple of comedians could be—if anybody had been looking—except God—and perhaps that Jap valet—Ned Ling's head was on her breast and his eyes were turned up into hers—like a baby's. He was in a new-born prattling humor. That was a secret of his success. He was a baby with all a baby's privileges of impropriety, selfishness, hatefulness, adorableness.
He could revert to infancy and take his audience with him, make old men and women laugh at the simple things that had tickled their childish hearts. And withal there was an amazing sophistication. He was a baby that calculated and measured, triumphed and yet wept and wanted always, the next toy. He was thinking of Mem as his next toy and she was thinking of him as her next child.
His warm head and his brown eyes, like maple sugar just as it is liquefied to syrup, and with the same gold flecks glinting—they were quaintly babyish to her in spite of his old talk.
"I want to love and be loved, but not to love too much. I'm afraid of love. It has hurt me too bitterly.

Some of them haven't been true to me, and that hurt me horribly. And I haven't been true to some of them—and that hurt me still worse. I don't know which is ghastlier—to see a woman laugh or cry at you. Marriage is no solution. I don't see how it can help being the end of love. Love ought to be free—like art and speech. Of course art isn't free. There's the censorship. Well, marriage is like censorship. Everything you do and say and feel must be submitted to the censor. They call this a free country and have censorships and marriage!"
She smiled. He was more like a prattling baby the more cynical he grew. His heavy head made her breast ache and yearn for a baby. But he wanted only the froth of life without the body and the dregs.
"Could you love me just enough and not too much?" he pleaded.
If he had said, "Marry me tomorrow!" he might have had her then. But she had not his opinion of marriage. She had played the game without the name—endured the ecstasy and the penalty without the ceremony. She had escaped public shame by a miracle of lucky lies and accidents. The hunger remained for the rewards of marriage, the honesty of a home, the granite foundations of respectable loyalty.

So when he pleaded with her for love that cheated and played for fun and not for all, for a kiss, for caresses, she shook her head—mystically as he thought—but very sanely and calmly, in truth.
Finally she yawned in the face of his passion and said, "I'll be going home now, please."

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhoea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

FIFTEENTH INSTALMENT

Dear Wife, he wrote her mother. The Lord giveth and taketh away. I have lost you and my darling daughter and my loneliness is hard. I still can say, "Thy will be done." I think you should know, however, how things are here. Otherwise I should not write you. But I am glad that the daughter that was once ours might tire of the husks of life and wish to come home repentant. Bitterness filled my soul when I read that she was leading a life of riotous mockery, and when I saw the picture of her smiling in a gown of tulle at the side of that French general, I had it in my heart to curse her. I write in this to repent my hardness of heart and bowed my head in humble prayer when I read your angry reply. I had lost your love and your affection, but that was deserved punishment for the idolatry that I grew up in my head to you—pride; and for the mistakes I must have made in not giving our erring daughter a better care. But now it has pleased the Lord to pour out the vials of his wrath on my gray hairs. The old mortgage on the church fell due long ago, but because it had been postponed in time to time. We gave a bond to pay it off, but everybody was poor to respond, and it did not pay expenses.

The manager of the motion-picture house here offered to share profits on the showing of a picture in which, as he had the influence to tell me, my daughter played a part. But while it would be drawn money for curiosity it would not have responded to a Christian appeal, I felt that it would be a compounding with evil, so I put Satan behind me and ordered the fellow out of the house.

The church is to be closed. What shall I do next or how take care of the little children that still cling to home, the Lord has not yet told me in answer to my prayers. I still have faith that in His goodness He will provide a way or call a servant home, and I hope you will not take this letter as a plea for pity.

My cup is full and running over, my chief dread is that unhappiness and want may be your portion as well as mine, and that I shall fail utterly after providing so anxiously for you all your days. I can only pray that my fears are a result of loneliness and age and weariness.

And now may the Lord shield you with his ever-present mercy, or at least give us the strength to understand that in all things he knoweth best.

Your loving HUSBAND.

She read this letter and saw the lines the heavy brows of her old father, saw the bald spot

Her mother kept a miserable silence for a long while before she could say: "Your father will never accept money that you have earned from the pictures. He'd rather die."

BEATING THE HEN AT HER OWN GAME

Incubators When Properly Handled Provide Many Advantages While Improper Handling May Cause Serious Loss; Adequate Methods are Therefore, Extremely Important.

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

Because an incubator is of a more or less mechanical nature, there is undoubtedly a temptation to treat it as if it were almost entirely automatic in its action. A good incubator will accomplish much with astonishingly little attention, but it must have a reasonable amount of the right kind of care if the best possible results are to be obtained. Quite often I have seen an incubator condemned as a failure when the operator was really at fault. Proper attention is just as essential in the artificial incubation of eggs as it is in any other mechanical operation. I shall, therefore, give a few pointers which I hope may show at least a few of my readers how to get better results than they have been able to obtain heretofore.

First of all, I want to say a word to those who have not yet used incubators but expect to do so. Above all things, don't select your first machine with price as the principal consideration. Poor construction almost always goes hand in hand with a too cheap price and the first saving is soon lost many times over.

Secondly, I advise getting a machine that is plenty large enough for present needs and those of the immediate future. One big machine is cheaper to run and gives better results than two small ones. When making your purchase, therefore, take future needs into consideration. Of course, it would be foolish to buy a machine out of all proportion to your needs.

I have no special preference as to the brand of incubators, nor do I consider that it makes any difference in results whether the hot air or hot water type is used. Either, if properly tended, will prove entirely satisfactory.

Caring for the incubator is not a hard task, but it does require attention to details, good common sense and judgment. The machine should be visited at least three times a day to be sure that whatever source of heat may be used is functioning properly, that temperature remains constant and that conditions generally are as recommended by the manufacturer.

Large hatcheries usually have specially constructed houses or cellars for their incubators. Smaller operators cannot afford the expense of constructing such quarters, and, indeed, do not require them. An incubator should, however, be placed in the most favorable position possible to secure best results. The room or cellar used should be well ventilated, but free from draughts, should be so arranged that temperature can be kept even at all times, and must have a goodly amount of moisture. The temperature where incubators are operating should never fall below 40 degrees; between 50 and 70 degrees is good, and an unvarying temperature of 60 degrees is ideal.

Incubators should never be operated in a room where there are odors of grasses such as come from oils, vegetables or decaying matter, nor dust nor dirt of any kind should be permitted. Baby chicks should never be brooded in a incubator room or cellar. The shells of eggs are porous and their contents would rapidly absorb odors with harmful results.

An incubator must be absolutely level to secure even distribution of heat within. Eye judgment should not be trusted. Use a spirit level and be sure to secure a level in all directions—not merely from front to back or from side to side.

When all details of installation are completed, a good dip and disinfectant should be sprayed into every portion of the inside of the machine to kill all disease germs. Then the machine should be closed up and operated for a day or two at about 102½ degrees before eggs are placed in it. The next step is to get the temperature up to the point recommended by the manufacturer and regulate the thermostat so it will keep the temperature constant.

Any incubator will be accompanied by detailed instructions for operating, maintaining heat, regulating the source of heat, what heat and moisture to maintain at various stages, and all other details of operation. It is not necessary, therefore, to give minute instructions on those points. I receive hundreds of letters from people all over the United States asking how they should operate their incubators. My answer is always the same, "Follow the manufacturer's instructions closely and you will be successful." The manufacturers of each machine should know more about the minute details of operating their machines than I do, therefore, their directions should be followed closely in every detail.

An incubator is a real convenience and a wonderful time saver when properly operated. One attendant will consume no more time caring for an incubator containing 2,000 eggs than would be necessary to give adequate attention to a dozen hens. On the other hand, because individual hatches are quite large, carelessness or lack of proper understanding may cause material losses. It is easy to see, therefore, why the manufacturer's instructions should be carefully followed in every detail.

"Very Latests"

BY CECILE

In the Black-and-White group—a most impressive collection at the Fall Fashion Promenade—were many charming and original coats, suits and ensembles.

Black velvet allied themselves with white furs; back woolen-featured the trimming touch of white moire or pique. Sheer white hoffsins combined with black Chantilly lace for evening, and for afternoon, lustrous black satin was shown with an accent of dull white.

One of the smartest of these costumes is illustrated—a daytime frock which Stein & Blaine have designed in black satin and white crepe bemberg. With it is worn a modified beret with black cord trimming. A silver-tipped fox scarf gives just the right finishing touch.

For all ages this season black and white is "good". Chic as a foil for exuberant youth and brilliant complexions; modish for in-between years which refuse to number themselves; dignified and aristocratic for the older woman—Whether we be crowned with brown hair, golden, gray or silver white, this charmed combination is not only appropriate for the age and occasion—but is most unusually smart.

Fur-Trimmed Edges Featured.

Forming the collar and band-cuff, extending up and down the front and around the bottom of a trim little jacket suit there runs a narrow fold of black caracul echoing the line-check of black in the olive-tan fabric. The bodice top is of soft black satin, the skirt of the black and tan. A black felt hat, a scarf of white and citron-colored crepe, a bag of black antelope, black suede gloves and shoes are harmonious accessories.

Tri-Corne Lines Emphasized.

When the command is for an off-the-face hat with widened sides, it follows logically that the result must resemble one or t' other of the various tricorn shapes that have pursued us down the years. And certainly there is no more charming model for the youthful face or classical features. In black and brown these types are most popular this season, although there is also a goodly showing of hunter's green and deep sapphire blue. Instead of the usual pins or grosgrain ornaments with which to match back the tricorn brim, a simple fold or loop of felt is now most frequently used, the hat relying on its unusual shaping for individuality.

Schoolward Bound.

Tricky little jacket suits and ensembles in velveteen, tweed and novelty woolens display themselves for school girls. Yellow with brown is a beloved combination for the youngsters; soft wood brown or green mixtures with here and there the contrast of a shepherd's plaid in black and white with a pique blouse and jacket of black velveteen. Over tweed designs in soft gray and white a bright red or pencil blue coat is most effective.

Cloth Dress Important for Fall.

No autumn wardrobe should be without its smart street frock of wool which this season may be found in most interesting coat and cape models. One cape-frock in purple tweed—a London Trades design—has its cape section finished with a rolling pique collar which criss-crosses over the chest and buttons at either side.

For the most part capes are removable, which makes the wool dress do double duty as wrap and indoor garment.

Gloves Grow Longer.

Eight-button gloves for afternoon wear, long gloves for evening—both are Fashion's prescription for Autumn, 1929. And if the costume has a touch of black—say a biege frock worn with a black hat and scarf of black fur—then choose black suede gloves. If the gown is black—then you are actually commanded to wear black suedes.

Choosing Hosiery Colors

One stylist gives us the following guide to correct color combinations: With brown tweed, turf-tan hose; with green wool suit, sand hose; with red-brown ensemble, rose-biege hose; with a blue evening gown, French nude hose; with eggshell or white evening costume, shell or ivory hose; with black, a soft pale tan; with light navy, mauve-tan hose.

Four-Dollars-a-Year MEN

The energy distributed as electrical service by the electric light and power companies of the United States is available at an average cost of $4 per man-power per year.

These four-dollars-a-year men are most efficient laborers the world has ever known. They are the only workers whose wage is less than before the war.

No task is too great and none too mean for them. Their capacity for beneficial service is unbounded. They are one reason why the workmen in America receive the highest wages in the world, produce the greatest output per man in the world, and enjoy the best living conditions in the world.

Look where you will—in the home, school, factory, street, office, fields, underground—you will find these laborers at work cheaply and efficiently.

The electric light and power companies are concerned in giving efficient service quite as much as the public is in having

Cow's Record Is Made in the Dry Period

Care Before Freshening Often Determines Future Production.

Experience has shown that the next milk record of a dairy cow is made during the time she stands dry. If a cow is well cared for and well fed during the time she is dry, she is going to produce well during her next lactation period.

Many dairymen leave a cow to shift for herself during the dry period. They fail to realize that this is an important time and a cow will produce more if she is not only in a good thrifty condition at calving time, but also carries a fair amount of fat. During the first few months of milk flow, a good dairy cow will change this body fat into milk fat, thus increasing her yield.

Feed then, is important for dry cows, as well as cows in milk. A cow about to freshen needs protein and minerals for the unborn calf, and a cooling, laxative ration to keep her system in condition. Under late fall or winter conditions, the best ration for a dry cow is a good legume hay and corn silage, with enough of a suitable concentrate or grain mixture to get her into good condition by calving time. The mixture which seems to be most popular of all among dairymen fed feeding at this time is one of equal parts by weight of linseed meal, wheat bran, ground corn, and ground oats. Hominy feed, ground barley, or ground sorghum grain may be substituted for the corn.

A cow should receive from 2 to 4 pounds of this concentrate mixture a day with good legume hay and corn silage, unless she is in a run down condition. With poor roughage this should be increased to 5 to 8 pounds. About ten days before calving, the ground corn should be withdrawn from the mixture, and not over 4 to 5 pounds a head daily fed. During these few days before freshening, it is extremely important that a cow be fed lightly and with a ration that is laxative and which has no tendency to produce a feverish condition.

AMAZING FACTS.

When one visualizes a railroad grade crossing accident, it is to see a gigantic, speeding locomotive crash into a small automobile destroying the car and maiming the occupants. But this is not always the case.

Last year more than 25 per cent of all grade crossing accidents resulted from automobiles running into trains, either standing or in motion. The increase in such accidents was several times greater, when compared with 1927, than the increase in accidents caused by trains striking cars.

The public, in spite of intensive accident prevention efforts by the railroads and others, grows steadily more careless and indifferent to danger.

It is an economic truth that to eliminate all grade crossings would be a financial impossibility. The taxpayers and the railroads have spent tremendous sums reducing grade crossings, only to have more grade crossings demanded than ever before.

The railroads have spent millions installing safety devices to warn the public. Courts have now held that responsibility for seeing that a train is not coming at a railroad crossing rests on the driver of the automobile. A little care on the part of motorists and all such accidents would be prevented, and thousands of lives saved each year.

CURBING THE RECKLESS DRIVER.

In Texas, at least, the reckless driver—the driver who ignores stop signs and signal lights and jeopardizes both life and property through his indifference to the rights of others—may be fined for the violation of traffic rules, but he can keep right on taking chances. In some States every driver must carry a license and must show it to any officer who makes the request. Continued violation of traffic laws, careless and reckless driving forfeits this license for varied periods of time and driving without a license means going to jail.

Farm and Ranch has advocated the drivers' license system for Texas. We do not suggest that drivers must be examined, nor would we sponsor a license fee of more than nominal size. We believe automobile owners are over-taxed as it is. Yet, something must be done to save the lives of our citizens and to prevent the crippling of hundreds of other citizens through no fault of their own. We know of no better way than to take away the right to drive a motor car from persons who do not display ordinary common sense when at the wheel.

We would suggest that the first conviction should carry a fine as a minimum punishment; that a second conviction, forfeit a driver's license for not less than three months nor more than six, and that a third conviction forfeit the license for not less than one year or more than three. With such a law on the statute books and diligence on the part of officers in making arrests, drivers would soon learn to have more consideration for others. Many a man or woman can find the money to pay a fine, but there are mighty few who will take chances of being prohibited from driving their car.—Farm and Ranch.

A NATURAL TREND.

The great modern inter-connected systems, serving millions of people and hundreds of localities, are the natural outgrowths of our industrial age.

If our social and economic civilization develops, electricity is constantly more necessary to the individual, the manufacturer and the farmer. An adequate supply of power at a low price is imperative to progress, in fact it must precede general progress. The small local plants of the past, with their lack of facilities, their comparatively high operating cost, and their inefficient service, could not meet changing conditions and growing demand.

The modern electric system, far from being an octopus, represents the accumulated money and work of millions of our citizens in all walks of life. It is a monument to the achievements made possible by individual genius and ambition. And, most important of all, it is an unrivalled institution of public service.

The modern trend of electric development is giving every small town an opportunity to secure industries, as such communities should have the advantages of low taxes and good living conditions. Large inter-connected electric systems, give equally good service in localities of a few hundred people or a few million.

Mass production, with elimination of waste, duplication of effort and exorbitant profits, is the key to industrial progress. The electric utilities are leading the way and are being followed by numerous other businesses. The consumer reaps the benefit.

"CALIFORNIA MAIL" ON WAY TO SLATON

Romance of gold and its transportation, the thrill of the early day mines, the men and the story of the stage coaches that fed the steady stream of the precious yellow metal to the Union Army during the Civil War is the theme of "The California Mail", the latest Ken Maynard western feature coming to the Palace Theatre on Friday and Saturday.

The stage coach played a tremendous part in the development of the west. The early day express companies which were a later expression of the pony express, are still remembered by the oldtimers. The days when signs were posted in all vehicles and stations to the effect that passengers must tote their own weapons and be responsible for same.

Both Charles R. Rogers, producer of the Maynard series for First National Pictures, and his star feel that in "The California Mail" they are presenting their most thrilling and romantic western feature.

A real all star cast of supporting players in Dorothy Dwan, who has the only feminine role in the picture, Paul Hurst, Cap Anderson and of course Tarzan, the wonder horse.

Albert Rogell, who has directed the majority of Ken's best pictures, handled the megaphone on "The California Mail."

GIRLS WORTH MARRYING.

Once I was young but now I'm old, but I have never seen a girl that was unfaithful to her mother that came to be worth a one-eyed button to her husband. It is the law of God; isn't exactly written in the Bible; but it is written large and awful in the many miserable lives of the many misfit homes. I am speaking for the boys now: If one of you chaps come across a girl with a face full of roses who says to you as she comes to the door: "I can't go for thirty minutes yet, for the dishes are not washed," you wait for that girl. You sit right down and wait for her, because if you don't some other fellow may come along and carry her off and right there you lose an angel. Wait for that girl and stick to her like a burr to a wooly dog.—Ex.

ject used by John W. Hood, and Will P. Florence was scheduled to help Bob Tudor discuss the last subject on the slate. These three talks are scheduled to be given at the meeting on Friday of this week. At that time, also, L. T. Green, superintendent of Slaton schools, will speak to the club on problems connected with improving the Slaton public schools. A song-fest also will be held after the addresses are finished.

Visitors at last Friday's meeting included: Hubert L. Allen, of the Lubbock club; Judge I. R. Kelso, of St. Louis, president of the Texas Utilities company; Dr. W. R. White, pastor of the First Baptist church, Lubbock; Charlie Whittaker, of Lubbock; L. J. Krietz, of Slaton; and C. P. Haynes, of Lubbock.

Dr. White and Judge Kelso responded with brief talks. The former is speaking in a series of revival services at the First Baptist church here, and Judge Kelso was here on business.

In his talk, Judge Kelso said this section of the Plains has made faster progress than any part of the United States he has seen. He declared that when he came to this country in 1915, there were only 10,000 people in a large area around Slaton and that the same territory now has over 100,000 people.

"Your section of the state is building more fine homes, more fine churches and more fine schools than any other part of the great Southwest," Mr. Kelso said, and added that there is more evidence here of progress being made in development of the agricultural industry than he had seen in all of his travels over other parts of the country.

POLITICS THIS WEEK.

The Tariff Bill, the writing of which took comparatively little time behind closed doors, isn't making much headway in open debate. Nobody is intentionally filibustering it to death, but the difference between that time-worn political strategy and drowning it in a flood of oratory is not highly noticeable.

The sponsors of this 1929 Model of Protection are trying to speed matters by lengthening the sessions and conceding a few things to the opposition. Most important of these has been their abandonment of "conditions of competition" as the basis of flexible tariff changes for the old "costs of production" phrase. Compromises will undoubtedly help matters, but what with spending hours on a single small amendment like the manner of marking imports, and frequent diversions from the business at hand to decide upon the President's attitude toward tariff, or little side excursions into prohibition and the Vore case, it begins to appear probably that the consumer may eventually be spared any form of relief whatever.

Senator Couzens of Michigan has made the most startling revelation so far: that the Chairman of the Finance Committee voted in Committee meeting against the majority of high rates. Presumably the Senator from Utah is willing to leave the tariff feast to others—asking only to be allowed his desert of sugar duty.

Such movements as sensible dress reform for men look rather senseless.

NOTICE!

On account of the Jewish New Year, our stores at Slaton and Lubbock will Close for Business from sundown, Friday, October 5th, to sundown, Saturday, October 6th. Stores will again be opened about 6 o'clock, Saturday evening.

KESSEL'S

JEWISH NEW YEAR.

The Jewish New Year, according to the Jewish Calendar is the year 5690, which falls on Saturday, October 5th, of this year, 1929. In Hebrew this is called "Rosh Hashana". The Jewish calendar is set up and in use, reckons from the Creation, which is practically 3,760 years and three months, before the Christian era.

Both the Orthodox and Reformed Jew observe this period. The observance is practically the same as under our plan of welcoming the New Year. Upon the arrival of sundown Friday evening, all business is set aside, the Jewish families commence the celebration, and this is carried out until sundown of Saturday evening, which is the closing of the Jewish Sabbath. The next event of the New Year is the Day of Atonement or in Hebrew (Yom Kippur) which occurs on Oct. 14th. Other days likewise are celebrated as they are arranged according to the calendar.

Enough to Carry.
