Spur Bulldogs Meet Defeat Before 3,000 Fans

The Royal Bengal Tigers Defeat the Brownfield Cubs In Fast Game Here

Meeting the second time of the season to play off the tie for supremacy in sub-district 2, class B, the Brownfield Cubs and the Royal Tigers gave the fans many thrills. While there was some wind that probably upset the Cubs' passing, still what tries were made fell short of the objective. The Tigers took the game to the Cubs in dead earnest. Never have we seen our own Tigers display better football. Every man was on his toes from the first kickoff to the last.

Johnson, Rucker and Cannon carried the blunt for the touchdowns, all made possible by the smoothly working machine. They had the skids well greased and when they got the Cubs in position they slid. "Snappy" Frank Johnson made great gains through a broken field of Cubs materially assisting by his stellar work to make the final score 31 to 0.

Cannon and Rucker, running true to form, delivered the insured parcel post for the other touchdowns. They did fine work.

Are we blue? We say NO. Brownfield played a mighty good game, but the fans will have to admit that our Tigers did out play them. There must have been some mighty fine playing by the back field to have made all this possible and every Tiger comes in for a large share of credit and praise. That line sure can hold. They did it. It was a sure wall.

The Tigers had a total of 22 first downs. That is, going some. The Cubs registered 6.

Hackabe and Neil for the Cubs were the main stays during the performance. Their gains were outstanding features of the game, but always the Tigers were there to cause an interruption on their way to the goal. The passing of the Cubs was not functioning properly and they were unable to get it going. As Will Riggs states: "They had head-wind."

The Cubs gained sixty-three yards through the line and around ends. The Tigers piled up a total of 439 yards, sweeping the field clean for that amount. There were some penalties. Brownfield drew nine for a total of 55 yards, the Tigers drew eight for a total of 75 yards.

Coach Wright is to be commended for the untiring work in getting the Tigers whipped into shape. We can now state that the Royal Tigers are the winners and champions of sub-district four. There is another game in the offing.

Are we pulling for you? Yes! And pushing, yes. Are we giving absent treatment? You bet! Our hopes are with the TIGERS!

The pep squad, band and all the trimmings were on hand, even reserved seats were provided for the mothers of the squad.

How proud we are to win and we would be just as proud of our boys should they lose. We are for them in a solid formation.

Inspector Praises Schools of County

Miss Mae Murphy, county superintendent of Lubbock county schools, and Mr. G. L. Huckaby, state inspector from Austin, visited the rural schools of Lubbock county Monday.

Mr. Huckaby spoke exceedingly favorable of the schools of this county, stating that they were the cleanest schools he had visited and also the largest. Lubbock county boasts of twenty-three rural schools and all are brick buildings, with only one having as few as two teachers.

He also complimented the system as being splendid, and has recommended $18,000 for the rural schools of the county.

This is Mr. Huckaby's first trip as an inspector of the schools in this county.

Want To Let Your Cow Out For Feed?

If there are any farmers around Slaton who have more milk cows than they need, and do not wish to sell such cows, the Slaton Chamber of Commerce is able to help such farmers place these cows with Slaton families who will take care of them through the winter in order to have their milk.

About 30 Slaton families have said they would be glad to take milk cows for their feed, if the cows are available.

Sometimes ago the local Chamber of Commerce suggested that this plan might be helpful to a number of farmers who otherwise would be forced to sell their cows on a low market because they could not feed them thru the winter. There is no desire, however, to take cows from anyone who needs them. Then plan was suggested merely for the purpose of helping to prevent a sacrifice of milk stock.

Any farmer who is interested in placing their cows with a reliable Slaton family for her feed during the winter, is invited to notify the Slaton Chamber of Commerce, it was announced yesterday by L. A. Wilson, secretary.

Legion Auxiliary Membership Drive

The American Legion Auxiliary met Friday night at 7:30 in regular business meeting with Mrs. F. B. Tudor presiding. It was reported that within the past two weeks the organization has donated about twenty-five dollars worth of clothing to needy of Slaton besides sending a number of coats, sweaters, etc. to the Veterans hospital at Kerrville.

Membership plans were discussed and each member was requested to pay her own dues for 1931 and do her best to secure at least one new member.

Our next meeting, Friday, November 28, at 7:30 p. m., will be a social meeting with Mrs. E. C. Foster and Mrs. J. A. Elliott in charge of entertainment.

A voluntary visiting committee for November was named, composed of Mrs. E. H. Dobson, Mrs. A. K. Green, Mrs. E. C. Foster and Mrs. W. H. Vandell.

Legion Post To Seek Members In Annual Drive

At a meeting of the Luther Powers Post, American Legion, of Slaton, last Friday night, the annual membership campaign of the Post was inaugurated and will continue until December 1, all local dues being suspended until that time. The total fee now required for a year's membership is $2.25, according to J. A. Elliott, Post commander. Of this amount, $1.00 is for state dues, $1.00 for National dues and 25 cents for a year's subscription to the Texas Legion News, official organ of the Texas Legion department.

After December 1 the annual dues automatically become $3.00 annually, instead of $2.25, since the local Post's annual dues per member is 75 cents. All those who have held membership during the past year are expected to reaffiliate for the coming year. The local Post's quota this year has been set at 75 members. There were 81 enrolled during the past year.

The American Legion Auxiliary also is conducting its annual membership campaign. Officers of that body hope to complete their campaign by November 28, which is the date of the next meeting.

Debate Is Held At Luncheon of Rotarians Here

"Should an Employee be Remunerated for Time Lost Because of Illness?" This was the subject of a debate held last Friday at the luncheon meeting of the Slaton Rotary club.

W. M. "Bill" Cates and H. G. McCaskey were slated as the champions of the affirmative. In McCaskey's absence, T. A. Worley, Jr., became a pinch hitter in his stead. P. G. Stokes and Abe Kessel were the negative defenders, but in Stokes' absence from the luncheon, John W. Hood was a substitute speaker. The discussion was lively and interesting.

Several visitors were present from the Lubbock club.

At the luncheon meeting on Friday of this week, a Thanksgiving program will be observed. J. T. Pinkston is to speak on the "Origin and History of Thanksgiving Day," and W. F. "Billie" Ferguson is to discuss "The Value to the Individual and to the Nation of Observing Thanksgiving Day."

West Ward P.-T. Association To Give Play Here

The West Ward Parent-Teacher association will present a colorful three-act musical comedy Tuesday evening, November 25, at the high school auditorium. This is a Wayne P. Sewell production.

The scene is laid in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Evans (Mr. Wilkitt and Mrs. K. L. Scudder), in Green Pond, South Carolina. Mrs. Evans is anxious to marry her daughter, Magnolia (Evelyn Stallings), to Burton Hill (Claude Gentry), a prominent gospel singer. Dr. Evans however, believes Hickory Staunt (Clark Self), to be a good match for Magnolia until Miss Blue Bonnet (Nadine Smith), arrives with her latest theories on psychology to teach Magnolia, as well as the rest of Green Pond, how to get anything they want. Her lectures are so convincing that the whole town is under the spell of her enthusiasm. It develops that Magnolia and Blue Bonnet are in love with the same man and how Blue Bonnet handles the situation, diplomatically and psychologically, forms the clever and unique plot of this highly entertaining musical comedy.

Mrs. R. W. Ragdale is very funny as Minerva, the village gossip. You will enjoy Ralph Nix, Everett Young, Cora Senly, Vinita Bowen, Ruby Lee Walker, Clarice Smith and Edith Marrs.

Frog chorus—Aline Martindale, Lavein Turnbow, Zerva Smith, Marion Bechtel, Louise Simpson, Marie Wild, Jackie Harold.

Poultry Breeder Estimates 2,000 Birds At Show

The first annual Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry show to be held in Slaton during the early part of December, beginning on the 10th and continuing for three days, bids fair to have a record number of birds entered. The prediction of a local poultry breeder in a statement made to a representative of the Slatonite was that this will be one of the finest exhibitions ever held on the Plains and that he felt positive that over 2,000 birds would be shown. He stressed the fact that some of the finest birds in Texas are on the Plains, in the hands of bird fanciers, showing the dual qualities both for production and show purposes. The Chamber of Commerce, with the assistance of local fanciers and those in other counties are bending every effort to make this the outstanding show of the year.

The local Chamber of Commerce, through its secretary, L. A. Wilson, who is show manager and secretary-treasurer, has covered the Plains country thoroughly with catalogs and premium lists, these having been mailed through the Chamber of Commerce office to bird fanciers in all the Panhandle-Plains counties.

The citizens of Slaton welcome the exhibitors and visitors to the first annual show.

Ginnings Now At 2,718 Bale Mark

Unfavorable weather during last week hindered cotton picking in the Slaton section, causing Slaton gins to receive only 78 bales during the week, thus bringing the season's total to 2,718 bales for the season up to last Saturday.

Estimates by ginnings said approximately 80 per cent of the crop has been picked in this territory. It is thought the final total here may reach 3,500 bales. Figures compiled Saturday did not include the gins at Posey, McClung and Union.

Union Woman Has Unique Record In Canning

What is believed to be one of the most remarkable records ever made by a Texas farm woman in growing and canning fruits and vegetables for home use is the record made this year by a Slaton woman, Mrs. E. R. Slater, who lives eight miles southwest of here in the Union community. She is a member of the Union Women's Demonstration club, the members of which are supervised and assisted in their work by Miss Ruth Stockton, Lubbock county home demonstration agent.

Because of her most untiring year's record, Mrs. Slater is competing for a first prize in the county, and a first prize in the state. The judging for the state prize will be done by Texas A. & M. college. The prize is to be a washing machine. Mrs. Slater's friends say she is certain to win the county prize and that they believe she has an excellent chance to win the state prize.

During the past season, Mrs. Slater has canned 1,507 quarts of vegetables and fruits, including thirty different kinds. Also, she has canned nearly 100 quarts of meat. Beans, peas, potatoes, tomatoes, spinach, carrots, okra, corn, peaches, berries, plums and other foods are among the variety. The entire lot of 1,507 quarts of canned foods stored in her pantry, shown to visitors, make them realize what it really means to live "at home" on the farm. This display makes a most unusual and very interesting exhibit. Its value, rated by government figures, is $544.10.

Practically everything in the pantry was produced on an one-half acre plot of ground, under irrigation, the water being supplied from a windmill. Besides the canned foodstuffs she stored away for winter use, Mrs. Slater sold $101.42 worth of fresh vegetables from the half-acre plot, and supplied her family's table throughout the growing season.

Seed, labor and fertilization expense amounted to only $34.45, leaving a net profit, if the canned foods were marketed at government price estimates, of over $600.00.

In addition to the half-acre project, Mrs. Slater had a small crop of watermelons and cantaloupes, from which she realized $55.00 net between May 1 and October 1.

Blackeyed peas also proved to be an excellent source of revenue be-

Game Was Classic of the Season—Next To Be Thanksgiving

The much heralded Bulldogs, who hail from the city of Spur, were humbled by the Bengal Tigers, of Slaton, on the Tech field at Lubbock, Thursday afternoon.

It was a grand game. There was not a place but where the Tigers were masters of the mighty Bulldogs. Did they pick the daisies? They did, and wove garlands around the Bulldogs in the shape of first downs, in fact, every phase of the game.

Let this be a fine lesson to sports writers, that the personal equation need be lacking in giving the news. As Charley Taylor stated, "Just put in the Slatonite, 'Just Too Bad.'" They surely will know the meaning of that, after sober reflection.

The Slaton fans are only sorry that the two men who did not play were eliminated. This, of course, will be an alibi for the Bulldogs, but we feel sure that the story would have been the same so far as results are concerned.

The Tigers played a most masterful game. It was team play and that is what counts, not the star who makes a touchdown.

We pay our respects to the Bulldogs' ashes.

Just a short synopsis of what did happen during the game:

Score: Slaton, 26; Spur, 6.

First downs, Spur, 6 while Slaton was chalking up 16 first downs.

Spur carried the ball 30 times for a gain of 227 yards; Slaton carried the ball 55 times for a yardage of 232.

Spur attempted 9 nine passes and was successful in completing 8 for a gain of 8 yards and with five incomplete and two intercepted. Slaton succeeded in completing 3 out of 14 passes for 96 yards, 10 incomplete and 1 was intercepted.

Spur punted 15 times for an average of 28 yards; Slaton punted 8 times for an average of 32 yards.

Spur received five penalties for a total of 35 yards while Slaton was penalized three times for a total of 25 yards.

Panhandle Lumber Company To Aid the Home Builders

Announcement has been made by John E. Hill, general manager of the Panhandle Lumber company with offices at Amarillo, that they have a plan whereby more money will be put into circulation as well as a great help to the unemployed situation.

His plan briefly is this: For every $100 spent with his company for home repair work, the company will advance $200 to pay for having the work done, taking an easy payment mechanic's lien from the home-owner. By this method, homes of the city may be kept in good repair, employment will be furnished Slaton citizens and the money put into circulation immediately, while the home owner pays at his convenience. Only Slaton labor can be used, under the company's contract.

Anyone interested in a proposition of this kind can obtain the necessary information by calling at the office of the local yard, where all details will be gladly given.

Between May 1 and October 1, the net income from a small plot of peas reaching $37.56, yet the family had all they could use and 65 pounds of dried peas were gathered for winter eating.

Mrs. Slater attributes much of her success to early planting and intensive cultivation.

NATION-WIDE "GO TO CHURCH" MOVEMENT NOW UNDER WAY

The Nation-wide "Go to Church" Movement, which is considered by its founders as the greatest and most comprehensive "Go to Church" appeal ever made to the American people, will continue until every person in the country has had the opportunity to participate. While primarily inspired as a means of making the general public more church-conscious and increasing church attendance, the Movement incidentally represents a great potential source of revenue for all churches participating. It also serves to bring revenue to ministers' retirement or pension funds, missionary and extension societies, or other denominational funds of which the public seldom hears about.

GOOD MORNING DOCTOR

One day when I was working at my first job and was—needless to say—hard up, I developed a severe pain. A stranger in New York, I had read in the newspapers the name of a diagnostician who was internationally famous. I went to his office, which was in his beautiful home, at eight o'clock in the morning. The waiting room was already full. There was a rich man who tugged impatiently at his watch. There was a haughty woman. And there were also a half a dozen shabbily dressed folk, including a poor mother with a very sick baby. Without favoritism, each was ushered into the consultation room in the order of his arrival. Presently my turn came. I said to the doctor: "I can not afford to consult you, but my health is my entire business capital. Therefore, I feel that I simply must come to headquarters."

He gave me an examination, wrote a prescription, and told me that I would be all right again in a few days. I pulled out my pocketbook, which contained two weeks' salary. "How much are you earning?" he asked.

I told him $25 a week. "Well, if you'll promise not to tell anybody," he answered, "I'll charge you five dollars."

In the intervening years I have become the father of three children, and my salary has been raised a couple of times. I have had occasion to employ several physicians and three different surgeons. Some of the bills have amounted to hundreds of dollars. But I have never received a bill that seemed to me unreasonable or even adequate, considering the importance of the service rendered.

I have known several doctors who married rich wives, and some who made money in real estate or the stock market. I have met a number who gained modest fortunes from their practice, but none who became really rich.

And the amount of free work done by even the biggest men in the profession has always been a marvel to me.

As an advertising man and a former sales manager, I feel that the health business is still too much an old-fashioned one.

I should like to see dozens of big clinics in every city, each with its group of specialists. I should like to see them use newspaper advertising, and draw most of their revenues from the healthy rather than from the seriously ill. I believe that if we Americans paid twice as much to good doctors every year it would be the best money we could possibly spend.

Some developments of this sort will come in the next generation. They are beginning already. Meanwhile, I feel a great sense of gratitude to the doctors. If my experience is typical, they are a swell group of men.

Another Wichita Man Testifies

Wife Gains On Argotane, Wouldn't Be Without It, He Says

Still another well known Wichita Falls man comes forward with his unqualified endorsement for Argotane. This time it is J. R. Terry, who resides at 1020 Bond street, that city.

"My wife actually improved so much since she started taking Argotane that it is almost unbelievable," said Mr. Terry in an interview, "and has benefited so much in every way that I am glad to make this statement which I hope will be the cause of others who may be suffering as she did before getting relief."

"She had been in such run-down condition for the past fifteen years that she felt like she should have been in bed most of the time. She was subject to frequent attacks of dizziness and sick headaches. She also suffered intense pain from the gas on her stomach, and she was habitually constipated. She had a tired, aching feeling all the time, which left her so weak she could hardly stand up.

"She had been wonderfully benefited by Argotane, in fact, I consider it remarkable the way she has been built up, for she has been relieved entirely of stomach trouble, headaches, and that aching feeling. I am delighted more than I can tell with what Argotane has done for her and we would not be without it for anything. It is by far the best medicine she has ever taken."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Slaton at Teagues Drug store.

Corpus Christi Lady Glad To Praise Konjola

Old Resident Eager To Tell What New Medicine Did For Her After Others Failed

MRS. H. L. DYER

"I was badly run-down and even the simplest foods brought on attacks of indigestion," said Mrs. H. L. Dyer, for more than fifty years a resident of Corpus Christi, Texas, residing at 1337 Ocean Drive, in that city. "I bloated terribly after meals and suffered severe belching spells. Constipation was a source of constant worry and I had severe pains in my abdomen after meals. I was unable to sleep at night."

"I have taken Konjola but a week and I can say that every ache and pain in my stomach is gone. I can now rest well at night and eat what I wish without any of my former miseries. I have never used a medicine like Konjola and although I am 68 years of age I can do plenty of work. I am more than glad to pass my praise for this medicine on to others."

This is not an exceptional case. Konjola does work quickly and none the less thoroughly. It is best in most cases to continue the treatment over a period of six to eight weeks.

Konjola is sold in Slaton, Texas, at the Red Cross Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

"Looney" Sayings

By LOONEY, "Himself"

Here we are with tassels on again. This week we start off with the usual midnight preview of "Monte Carlo" with the beautiful Jeannette MacDonald; and folks it's just one round of romance after another—and what comedy furnished by Jack Buchanan, another Maurice Chevalier.

Followed by one of the sweetest films of the year, "Song of My Heart" featuring John McCormack and Janet Gaynor's only rival, little Maureen O'Sullivan. She was the sweet little kid in Will Roger's picture, "So This Is London. Now, isn't she Janet's only rival?"

Coming; Pronto, we have Harold Lloyd's latest mirth-quake, "Feet First." This actually beats any of his past work. The press dope is so funny that I can't write any of it so you can guess what the picture is.

You folks, most of you, if any of you read this think it is a lot of advertising and not what I really think of a film. I want to say here that I am as much of a show fan as any of you. I see the first show and enjoy it as much as any of my patrons, if it is good. If it is not I feel the same

"I'm A Producer And A Shareholder In The Swift Family"

"You can't blame me if I take more than an ordinary interest in the affairs of Swift & Company. I'm interested in two ways. First—as a producer. Second—as one of 45,000 shareholders."

"I'm glad to belong to this big family. And if you'd ask me to sum up why, I think I'd say—"

- 1—Swift & Company is one of the most efficient organizations in America. Only an exceptionally well run concern could possibly thrive on an average margin of less than 2 cents on every dollar of sales.
- 2—As a producer I receive the going market price for the best butterfat, eggs and poultry I can deliver. Swift's nation-wide distribution, because of their 600 car routes and 400 branch houses, assures me of an ever ready market. I am not subject to local glut or shortages.
- 3—Swift & Company employs 58,000 people who receive just wages. These employees live in the communities where they work. Many of them are our own neighbors. They spend their money with our merchants, build their homes here, pay taxes like you and me. They contribute to the well being of this town.
- 4—As one of 45,000 shareholders, I receive a return on my investment.

"You can see that there are many benefits in having contact with Swift & Company. I'll keep on taking my butterfat, eggs and poultry to the nearest produce plant. The more I raise, the more I make. No wonder I'm glad to be in the Swift family."

village planning as distinct from strictly county or rural planning, than Massachusetts. Among the Bay State towns which in recent years have rearranged civic centers, town halls, libraries, parks and other community adjuncts into new patterns are West-ton, Hadley, Cohasset and Stockbridge.

Stockbridge has probably had a greater influence for good on the beauty and cleanliness of other towns than any village in the country.

This town has about 1,800 population and is approached thru an attractive stone railroad gateway, station and park. The visitor finds a broad, leafy main avenue more than a mile long. A 13-acre fenced field contains baseball fields and tennis courts. A 10-acre wooded knoll near the center of the town has been converted into a park and playground with a natural amphitheatre where festivals are held annually. There are triangular parks at street corners and intersections.

All of these features and hundreds of others are due to the Laurel Hill association of the town, organized in 1853 and said to have been the first town improvement society in this country. Before this committee was organized, Stockbridge was a commonplace, rather dirty and unattractive small town.

Its example can be followed by almost any rural communities that want the same things and sets out energetically to get them.

Rural Villages

Many Communities Have Set a Splendid Example for Others
To Follow

By CALEB JOHNSON

A 36-square mile rural township should have within its borders 1,000 families if it is going to have the larger community life which rural conditions at their best provide.

Common sense and a little foresight applied to community planning in rural areas can make them many times as profitable and attractive to live in as they are now.

These are the twin gospels of sociologists who have devoted years to a study of the circumstances of rural life. And they can cite you example after example of what community action can do when it is in earnest about making an attractive town.

The merit of community betterment however, is not the 36-mile square township of the average state. Rather it is the village which can function effectively for social purposes.

General propositions with regard to this work are easily stated. Villages ought to be easily reached and their approaches direct, durable and enjoyable. Housing conditions should be sanitary, convenient and economical.
Public buildings should be built with a view to their relationship to each other and the needs of the community, both from a viewpoint of doing business and attractiveness. Points of historic interest should be preserved and restored. Dump heaps and congested places should give way to open spaces, and recreation spots in abundant should be easily accessible.

Above all, a community plan should be adopted, a plan which the majority wants and will help to make effective, and one sufficiently flexible to allow for growth and change.

One instance of community improvement is Wamego, Kansas, a "farmers town" where big summer picnics and Chautauque courses attract hundreds of people from a large territory.

Although Wamego has a splendid modern hospital financed by local contributions, its pride is the city park.

Since 1901 this little city of 1,700
persons has spent $2,500 for a 4-1-2 acre lake, 4-1-2 foot deep; $225 for a children's wading pool; $1,900 for an electric fountain with three basins of stone gathered from nearby hills; $1, 400 for a women's rest house and about the same for one for men; $950 for a circular band stand; $400 for playground equipment; $125 for three drinking fountains; $150 for three stone dining tables; $100 for two stone ranges; $125 for mounting a granite glacial stone hauled in from nearby;
and varying amounts for a dancing platform, athletic field, camping grounds, benches and walks. The average annual maintenance cost is only $1,500 a year.

Over a period of 25 or 30 years such expenditures impose no great strain on such a community and in many instances the resulting park returns direct financial benefits which will perhaps equal the expenditures.

Even more striking in some ways is Fairy Dell Highway Park in Sauk county, Wisconsin, where only $200 of actual money was spent in opening the park and a negligible maintenance sum is contributed every year by the county. A persistent patrolman who organized working bees and aroused the interest of the neighborhood resulted in creation of a beautiful natural park there. The work involved clearing of underbrush, construction of a dam, bridge, pavilion, tepees, paths and piping a spring. It has drawn visitors from all over the United States and from foreign countries.

The Armada, Mich., community fair furnishes another instance. The plant at Armada is valued at $16,000 and draws about 10,000 persons when the fair is on, although Armada contains only 700 souls. The Armada Agricultural society bought the ground in 1878 and has conducted more than 50 annual fairs. Membership fees in the society are but $1.50 per year.

THANKSGIVING

Once more the people of the United States have been called upon by their President to observe the last Thursday in November as a day on which to give thanks for the manifold blessings which we have been vouchsafed.

Thanksgiving is one of the few days which is celebrated as a holiday in every part of the United States. Of New England origin, dating back to the days of the Plymouth Colony, more than 300 years ago, its appropriateness has appealed to all Americans.

For we of this country have been abundantly blessed than have been the people of any other nation in the world. We may grumble at "hard times" and point to inequalities as between man and man, and think we are pretty badly off, but we must remember that by comparison with any other part of the world we are exceedingly well off, that the inequalities which divide our people into the successful and unsuccessful are far less marked than the inequalities that exist elsewhere between the upper and the lower classes.

The Pilgrim Fathers gave thanks to God on Thanksgiving Day for material blessings with which their physical condition had been ameliorated. We are all too prone today to take all of the credit for material progress to ourselves. Few today rely upon Divine Providence to take care of them, in spite of the express promise:

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

Our faith is less simple than that of our forebears. We do not look for direct and instantaneous answer to prayer. But down deep in our hearts we, as a people, still believe that somehow, if each does his individual best to live up to the spirit of religion, he will not suffer for lack of food and shelter and the normal comforts of life.

There is still faith in the words of the Psalmist:

"I have been young, and now I am old; yet have I not seen the righteousness forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

This particular Thanksgiving Day of 1930 seems to us to be one upon which the religious origin of the occasion should be kept in mind. We have been through a hard year. We are still not "out of the woods" so far as material prosperity is concerned. But we have lost nothing which counts if we have not lost the faith in ourselves, in our neighbors, in our Nation and its ultimate high destiny, which all of our history justifies. So long as we hold to that faith and continue to believe that something higher than human power is still guiding us, we have every cause to be thankful.

PATRIOTISM

With control of Congress equally divided as between Republicans and Democrats, there is something both novel and refreshing in the offer of seven Democratic leaders to cooperate with President Hoover and the Republican party in every legislative effort to relieve economic conditions and restore prosperity.

This seems to us to be a symbol of a new era in American politics. The Democrats reserve their right to take sharp issue with the Administration and with Republican legislators on all matters which are part of their party's program. But on subjects which are not partisan in their nature they promise what amount to a coalition government.

There are hundreds of such questions to be decided by every session of Congress. It has been the custom in the past for the party whose representative does not occupy the White House to oppose everything which the Administration wants, regardless of its merits. In the past this has resulted in delay and sometimes the complete failure of programs which would have benefitted everybody, merely because their sponsors were of a different political faith. Legislation has been partisan rather than business like.

We hope both parties will prove their patriotism by living up to the promises which the Democrats have made and the Republicans have accepted.

UNFAIR COMPETITION

In addressing the American Bankers' association in Cleveland, recently, President Hoover said:

"I have never believed that our form of government could satisfactorily solve economic problems by direct action—could successfully conduct business institutions. The Government can and must cure abuses."

What a howl would go up from the business world if the Government of the United States, merely because it happens to have the necessary facilities in its navy yards, should go into the business of building merchant ships, in competition with the commercial ship builders. The United States government owns an excellent airplane manufacturing plant in which it builds experimental planes for the navy. Suppose the government should go into the airplane manufacturing business for the general public? It would be perfectly obvious to everybody that this was something which the government has no business to do.

Printing of government documents, maps, postage stamps and money, are a proper function for the government's printing establishments. But when the government of the United States engages in the business of printing return envelopes for private citizens, it is unfairly competing with the job printers of the nation. It would be unfair competition even if a fair commercial rate were charged for the work; it is worst than unfair when this work is done at less than cost.

The National Editorial association, and practically every other association of newspaper publishers and printers, have protested for years against this practice. This year a more determined effort than ever is being made to induce the Congress to elect, if not the one already in office, to take Uncle Sam out of this petty competition with his nephews.

THE BILLBOARD NUISANCE

Westchester county, New York, has set an example which every county in the United States might well follow.

Poster and billboard advertising is absolutely controlled by the county authorities and is prohibited except under certain conditions where outdoor advertising is not an offense to the eye and a blot upon the landscape.

During the recent election primaries, some of the politicians in Westchester county decided that the law was meant for ordinary folks and not for them. They had the shock of their lives when their campaign posters, tacked up in the customary manner on fences, trees and telegraph poles along the roadside were torn down by county officials of their own party. They blustered and protested, but to no avail. Some of them were wise enough to avoid antagonizing public sentiment and made no fuss about their inability to display their electioneering handbills.

Times have changed, indeed, when politicians cannot violate even a simple law like that with impunity. The history of politics in America is that the man in political office immediately regards himself, not as a servant of the people, but as their master. The worst of it is, he frequently gets away with it. But there are some things in which public sentiment is crystallizing so strongly that even the politicians do not dare to run counter to it. One of these things is offensive billboard advertising. Some day advertisers will also wake up to the fact that most people are offended rather than impressed by advertising matter forced upon their eyes when they are trying to enjoy the beauties of the out-of-doors.

Mrs. Delma Hodge returned Sunday from California where she visited her sister, Mrs. Ray Cullar, of Los Angeles, and her brother, L. T. Sikes, of Exter, California, and friends at other points in that state.

NEW CHEVROLET ON DISPLAY IN SHOWROOMS

Thousands of people who thronged showrooms throughout the nation for the past week to get their first view of the new 1931 Chevrolet commented particularly upon the features new to the low priced field achieved in the current line of Fisher-Chevrolet bodies.

First remarked among the new features are the increased size and roominess made possible by the longer wheelbase, while numerous other changes not obvious to the eye combine to make the bodies stronger, more rigid, and as completely squeak-proof as human ingenuity can devise.

A surprising amount of hand-work goes into every individual body in the new Chevrolet series. In the application of the exterior finish, alone, 22 individual steps have to be taken along the line, ranging from the cleaning of the metal with an acid solution on through the glazing and wet-sanding operations, the dry-sanding and application of a mist coat, to the final Ducoing, touching up and striping.

The combination steel-and-hardwood method of body construction, the most durable and desirable known to the industry, is continued, although with important changes at vital points. The new roof construction, for example, is now a separate assembly known as the slat-and-bow type, the stongest known to the industry. The bows, instead of being steam bent, are cut to the shape so that they will retain their shape indefinitely. Double steel braces easily accessible for servicing, replace the wood strainers formerly used along the sides of the roof, and strong steel braces are now used at the corners to add to the roof rigidity. The roof structure is thoroughly padded to prevent drumming, and is covered with a material consisting of two layers of fabric bound by an inner layer of rubber.

Anti-squeak material in liquid, rubber dough or friction form is used between all steel braces and their respective wood parts. As a further aid to quietness, insulating material is used wherever wood touches metal.

Exclusive patent rights just obtained by the Fisher Body corporation for a new type of spring never before used in automobile seat construction assure greater comfort for the passengers. The coils of these springs are larger, with strips of burlap running lengthwise to separate the rows of coils.

Option of broadcloth or mohair upholstery trimming is provided with every closed body in the new Fisher line. Curtains on all bodies have a high luster, and curtain tassels are provided in the special sedan and the sport coupe.

All interior hardware has been newly designed and beautified. Exterior handles have the Protalok feature which foils the would-be thief. Doors are locked from the inside simply by lifting the door handle.

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK

The Red Cross is making its annual appeal for funds. In a few days Christmas seals of the association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis will be offered everywhere.

These are two noble causes, to which everybody ought to contribute.

The work of the Red Cross is continuous. Wherever there is life to be saved, homeless to be sheltered, victims of catastrophe to be re clothed, fed, and started out anew in life, the Red Cross is the first agency in the field and the one which does the most good. By virtue of his office, the President of the United States, whoever he may be, is also President of the Red Cross. It is, in effect, an unofficial arm of the Federal government.

The recent drought gave the Red Cross an opportunity for service. So did the Mississippi flood of a couple of years ago, the hurricane disaster in Florida, Porto Rico and Santo Domingo. And hundreds of minor disasters, constantly occurring, keep this organization busy. It has no money except what the public gives.

The work of the Tuberculosis organization is of almost equal importance. Tuberculosis is diminishing, but only because of the constant watchfulness and educational work of the devoted men and women who are giving their lives to that work. Buying Christmas seals for a cent apiece is an easy and practical way for everybody to help.

GEORGIA FARMERS FIND SOLUTION TO DEPRESSION

Georgia has a county where a banker says the farmers would not know there had been a depression this year if they had not read about it in the newspapers. The banker gives as a reason a balanced agricultural program; and the fact that the county seat provides a cash market every day in the year for every product of the farm.

This county is Colquitt, in South Georgia. It has a population of 30,569 and an area of 529 square miles. The county seat is Moultrie. The county and county seat have issued invitations for the rest of the State to come to a harvest festival and see just how the thing was done.

After the World War and the drop in the price of cotton many of the Colquitt farmers found themselves unable to meet their obligations. Bankers agreed to renew their notes, but made these conditions to which each farmer agreed:

"Ten acres of corn, velvet beans and runner peanut (peanut crop for the hogs to run on and feed themselves); five acres of oats followed by peavine hay; five acres of sweet potatoes, cane millet and home garden; three acres of watermelons or tobacco or Spanish peanuts (depending on market accessibility); two acres of truck; five acres of cotton; three to five acres of low wet lands for pastures; three to five milch cows; two brood sows and fifty purebred hens.

Last year Colquitt county farmers sold 50,000 head of hogs for $2,650,000.00.

NOISE

Hiram P. Maxim, son of one great inventor and nephew of another, and himself the inventor of the gunman's pet, the Maxim silencer for firearms, has found a way, he tells the world, to keep the noise out of the house even with the windows open.

The principal use of such an invention will be, of course, in the large cities, where noise interferes not only with sleep but with the health of those who get no respite from it thru the twenty-four hours. But everywhere there will be a demand for a silencer of this sort, for hospitals and rooms from which all external noises must be excluded, as well as for places near railroads and other sources of noise.

Some people in this town acted with forethought last year about this date. They started a Savings Account, depositing a small amount each week, or pay day—a sum so small they never really missed it—and they have found that they have amassed an ample amount for all their holiday shopping. Lucky? No, just wise. Try it for a year! You will be more than surprised.

Since no one has threatened to run me out of town because of my little article in the last issue of Splinters, I will put out a few more of my ideas on the times. Most of us attended the Slaton-Brownfield football game and enjoyed it because it was a good, fast, clean game, but I wonder how many of us have thought of how the principles of this great game can be applied to our business. We have all noticed that the players will hit the line perhaps for the gain of a yard, maybe for the gain of several yards, or even to lose a few yards. If they can't gain ground through their opponents line they will try end runs or passes and no matter what the result of the play they are always fighting to reach the goal. What would you think of a team, if when they found they could not gain thru their opponents line, they would give up and quit trying. Well, we surely would think and say a plenty. During these so-called "hard times" a good many of us have given up and have just quit trying. Let's take a lesson from our football boys and fight to make business good. If one method won't work try something else. Now let's hit the line, make an end run, throw a pass and make our score read, "Good Times."

The president says we should get ready to be thankful for our "physical well being." And so many of us with a bad case of sniffles.

Just the Boost That Is Needed

By Albert T. Reid

Former Slaton Coach Writes

Trinidad, Colo., Nov. 13, 1930.
Mr. Harry Fry, Slaton, Texas.
Dear Harry:
I was mighty glad to hear from you. We played our last conference game day before yesterday and won it by a score of 27 to 0. We have played every team in our conference by a margin of two touchdowns and have had only seven points scored against us, so we have won a clear cut title.
We play Hugo for the championship of three districts on November 22, here, as we have already won the bi-district championship by defeating the winner of that district.
We have to hurry the season along up here before it gets too cold. Hugo has averaged scoring a little over 100 points per game in their conference this year. Their backfield weighs 168 pounds and their line 173, so I'm a bit uneasy about this game. A salesman was through here the other day who had bet $30 they would win the state championship.
My team averages 162 pounds—this is stripped weight which is very evenly distributed. My heaviest man weighs 195 and the lightest, 155. There isn't two pounds difference in the weight of any one of my backfield men.
Give our regards to everyone. I will probably drop you a card about the Hugo game. Your friend, GUS MILLER.

Mrs. Wolfskill, president presided. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Montague, the minutes were read by Mrs. Lott. After the business session Dr. W. E. Payne addressed the audience on "Prevention of Contagious Diseases." This was a timely address and it is regretted that every parent was not present to hear it. Dr. Payne consented to give this address in the absence of the Health Nurse, from Lubbock, who was to have spoken, but was unable to attend at this time. However, she has promised to be with us at a date in the near future.

We are anxious to enlist the effort of every individual interested in child welfare and cordially invite you to attend these meetings which are held on the first Tuesday afternoon and the third Tuesday evening of each month. Problems of interest to every parent are discussed and we shall be glad to have more come and join in the discussions.

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT

Through his friend Lombard, Giles Chitttenham meets the "other Julie," the notorious woman who ruined Rodney's life. She tells him that she is going to die; the doctors have given her up as incurable and she is leaving England. She is worried about her cousin, the girl Chitttenham loves. That Julie—his Julie—is going in fast company, among them a common little American girl named Sadie Barrow.

And Sadie Barrow is Giles Chitttenham's wife. He did not know that she was in England. That night he meets her at a party at his mother's home. They pretend to be strangers.

Giles learns that Sadie Barrow, his wife, has gone for spiritualism and is attending seances by a medium named Chryer.

He calls on Julie, who is cold to him. He reproaches her for her reckless life. They quarrel, and she leaves with Lawrence Schofield. Her friend, Mim Lennox, tells Giles that Julie really loves him. Lombard calls on him and says he is in need of money.

He threatens that if Chitttenham does not give him money he will spread the tale that he and Julie had spent the night together at St. Bernard Pass. Giles is indignant and shows Lombard out. Later Julie and Schofield go to a movie together and the pictures remind Julie of the Alps. She finds Chitttenham waiting for her. Schofield becomes suspicious. On the way home they get a newspaper which contains the death abroad of the other Julie. At her flat she finds Chitttenham waiting for her. She confesses to him that she loves him.

The two men made no attempt at a greeting. Chitttenham merely said: "You're in rather a hurry aren't you? However, you've saved me the trouble of sending it to you. You can have your two hundred."

Lombard smiled—an unpleasant smile.

"I want five hundred." "You agreed for two." "The price has gone up since last night."

There was an eloquent silence, and Lombard said calmly:

"Five hundred is not a high price to pay, surely—I cannot imagine that Schofield would crap at it in return for the favor you received last night." He shrugged his shoulders as he saw the passionate rage in Chitttenham's face.

"It was you outside Miss Farrow's flat last night?"

"I waited three hours—very patiently, you will admit."

With an effort Chitttenham controlled himself.

"I give you just five seconds to get out of here," he said.

"Very well. You know what I intend to do. I shall tell Schofield what happened in Switzerland and again last night—"

"Tell him and I'll break every bone in your body."

Lombard went on evenly, not heeding the violent outburst.

"And I shall tell Miss Farrow that the woman she has been making her friend is your wife."

Chitttenham was white to the lips, but he laughed.

"You can spare yourself the trouble. I have already told her myself."

For a moment the two men glared at one another, and it took all Chitttenham's will power to maintain his self-control, then Lombard said hoarsely:

"I'll make you sorry for this before I've done!"

"Get out, or I'll make you sorry for it now."

The door closed between them.

For some moments after Lombard had gone Chitttenham stood staring at the closed door.

He would see Julie at once and tell her the whole truth. But fate was against him. He went to Julie's flat only to find that she had gone out to lunch. He went to several restaurants where he thought she might be but could not find her. There was nothing for it but to wait till the afternoon when they would meet at his mother's house.

He purposely arrived rather late. Mrs. Ardron, who was near the door, crept to him and whispered that he must be very quiet.

"It's so wonderful!" she breathed; she squeezed his hand excitedly.

Giles stood beside her, angry and silent.

Now he was more accustomed to the darkness he could see that there were about a dozen people in the room sitting in a ring, and apparently holding hands. There was a queer aromatic scent in the air, and a curious feeling of nervous tension.

He saw now that the light from the shaded lamp was falling on the face and figure of a man whom he supposed must be the great Chryer. A strange-looking man with a pale asstetic face and long dark hair, who lay back in the chair, his eyes closed and his hands clasped against his breast.

Presently he began to speak in a sing-song dreamy sort of voice.

"Two women and one man—one man and two women—they stand before me in the darkness not knowing of the tragedy that divides and will still divide their lives—" He drew a quick breath and there followed a little silence, broken again almost at once by the same sing-song voice—"Two women and one man—in the darkness all of them, and two of them will come out into the light, but the third will never see the sunshine again. Darkness—blindness! The blindness of the eyes—here, close beside me—"

His clasped hands released one another, and moved forward in a curiously groping fashion as if seeking to find something. Giles did not know whether to be amused or angry. What fools women were, to be taken in by such a charlatan. He had moved back a step to find the switch of the light when suddenly those groping hands swooped down with a curious pouncing movement and fastened on something or some one in the silent ring of listeners.

A piercing scream rang through the silence of the room, a scream in the frightened voice of a woman, and then the cry of his own name; "Giles! Giles!"

It seemed an eternity until his fingers came into contact with the switch and still that cry went in: "Giles! Giles!"

It was Sadie's voice, he knew, and when at last the room was flooded with light he saw that she was standing up, her hands covering her face, her childish body swaying to and fro as if in great pain or terror, while the wailing repetition of his name came from her lips monotonously again and again.

It was like a scene in a dream—the ring of half frightened women—and the strange figure of the man Chryer as he rose slowly to his feet, a shocked, awakened look in his somnolent eyes. Then Mrs. Ardron began to cry hysterically, and the whimpering sound seemed to break the spell which was upon everyone.

Giles took a quick stride forward: "Sadie!"

She turned swiftly at the sound of her name, her hands outstretched and when he took them in his, she clung to him, sobbing and shaking like a frightened child.

He kept protecting arms around his wife's slim figure as he glared around the room with ferocious eyes.

His mother, Doris and a half a dozen other women whom he knew slightly and—Julie!

Julie was standing up, very stiff and straight, looking at him across the room, a pitiful, wondering question in her pretty eyes, her face quite colorless, her hands gripping a chair back.

And then for a moment nobody moved or spoke, but Chitttenham's arms fell from his wife and he took an involuntary step away from her.

She looked up her face white and distorted.

"Giles!"—and then before anyone could move to help her she fell fainting at his feet.

Chitttenham was very pale and his voice was rough and uneven as kind hands carried Sadie from the room.

He was conscious of impending disaster.

"It's only an ordinary faint," Doris said contemptuously. "I'm surprised at Sadie being such a fool."

The others had all gone and Chitttenham stood with an elbow on the mantel-shelf staring down at the grate which was filled with flowers and ferns. He could think of nothing but that pitiful, wondering question in Julie's eyes.

What was she thinking? What had she guessed?

What a fool he had been not to tell her the truth last night; she would have understood and forgiven him then. Would she understand or forgive him now?

It seemed an eternity until the door opened behind him and Julie came in. Chitttenham turned. He made a swift movement towards her as if to take her in his arms, then stopped.

This was not the woman who had clung to him only last night and whispered how much she loved him—this was not even the wild, broken Julie who had hurt him with her utter recklessness during the past unhappy weeks—this was a woman whom he had never seen before, with cold eyes that accused him harshly even before she spoke.

"Sadie is no better. The doctor has just come. Would you like to go to her now?"

Giles flushed scarlet. It was such an unexpected challenge.

"Why should I go to her? What do you mean?" he asked roughly. They were the last words he meant to say and yet for the life of him he could not have controlled their utterance.

Julie shrugged her shoulders. "I only thought—in the circumstances—"

He covered the ground between them in a stride and caught her by the shoulders.

"Julie—have you forgotten last night? How can you speak to me like this? How can you look at me in such a way?"

He felt her slim body stiffen beneath his grasp, and her eyes met his unflinchingly.

"How long have you known Sadie? Why did she call out to you and run to you like that? What is she to you?"

There was an agonized question in her voice though she tried desperately to keep it unconcerned.

She moved back a step when he would have touched her and both their faces were white.

"There's no need to pretend any longer," she said with a harsh breath. "Julie—" Chitttenham broke out again desperately then stopped as the door opened beneath his mother's agitated hand.

"Giles—they want you at once—the doctor sent me for you—oh, Giles!" she caught his arm with ineffectual hands. "I don't understand! I feel as if I am going mad, or as if every one else is—what do they all mean? And if it's the truth why didn't you tell me? Sadie is saying awful things, too—she must be light-headed! She says she's your wife! How can she be your wife when you are not married?"

Giles turned on his heel and strode out of the room. Mrs. Ardron turned to Julie, both white, useless hands outstretched.

"Is it true?" she appealed helplessly.

She forgot her dislike for Julie. In her present distress she would have turned to her worst enemy for consolation. "You heard what I said. Sadie declares she is my son's wife. How can she be when he is not married? He never liked women—he has said so scores of times."

"I think it's quite true," Julie answered with stiff lips. She took Mrs. Ardron's hands and held them, hardly realizing what she was doing. "I'm quite sure it's true that Sadie is his wife," she said again gently.

She was utterly grateful when just as she felt she could bear no more the doctor came into the room. Mrs. Ardron at once turned her attention to him and Julie slipped away. She took her coat from a maid on the landing and went out into the street. "She is my wife—"

They seemed to be the only words that would take form and find utterance in her brain—

For Chitttenham she had sent Lawrence Schofield away. For Chitttenham she had deliberately dashed Schofield's happiness to the ground.

"I have changed my mind. I can't marry you. I don't care for you enough." She had told Lawrence that only this morning. And now once more the brief dream was ended—or—wasn't it? After all, nothing was really altered. He had deceived her about Sadie, it was true, but apart from that things were in no wise changed. Chitttenham still loved her and she loved him—and if he still wanted his freedom and Sadie was willing to give it to him—

"Giles—Giles—" The memory of Sadie's agonized cry came back to her, ending afresh the peace which she was trying so hard to regain. It had been the cry of a woman to a man she loved, or so Julie told herself in bitterest jealousy and she remembered how often Sadie had spoken of Giles—and in what a queer, rather shy way—as if—even then it had seemed to Julie almost as if there might have been something between them. And now she knew. Sadie was his wife. The one woman of all the many in the world who had a right to him and to his love and his protection—the protection she had claimed only that afternoon in her hysterical fear.

The maid came tapping at the door. "Aren't you very wet, Miss? Can I dry your clothes for you?"

"No, no, I'm not wet, and I don't want anything, you need not wait."

She heard the girl move reluctantly away and then a moment later the shutting of the front door. But it was a long time before Julie moved or stirred. The room was quite dark save for the yellow light from the street lamp outside, and the fitful rain had settled into steady downpour and was beating against the window. Continued Next Week

13TH BRINGS GOOD LUCK TO CLAUDE GENTRY

Luck happened to be with Claude Gentry on the 13th. He was in Lubbock on the evening of the 12th and had the misfortune of losing his billfold containing over twenty-two dollars.

After a long, unsuccessful search, Claude returned home much the worse by the trip to the city, but Thursday morning, the 13th, Vaughn Wilson, county attorney, called the loser and eased his pain by telling him that he had found the missing wallet and money and would return same that afternoon.

Claude was seen wearing a broad smile, instead of the woe-be-gone expression, and is also a great believer in the 13th as being a lucky day.

When Farmer Wheatley saw an ad in the paper: "For $5 we will tell you how to cure your horse of slobbering," he sent in the money. A few days later he received the information: "Teach him to spit."

Miss Polly Taylor, of Brownfield, spent the week-end here as the guest of her brother, Charlie Taylor, and family.

Texas on World's Fair Commission

To secure state-wide cooperation and enlist additional expert assistance in the work of properly exhibiting Texas resources at the Chicago Fair, the Texas World's Fair Commission this week is creating an advisory board composed of leading men from the larger towns not now represented on the Governor's Commission. Chairman Kennedy has requested members of Commerce of these communities to name an outstanding man in each town to serve on this board.

Responses received indicate the wide interest taken in this proposition and the growing determination in all parts of the state that this great opportunity to advertise Texas shall not be neglected.

On November 24, the ways and means committee of the Commission met at Dallas to adopt definite plans for action by the Commission. In addition to Chairman Kennedy, this committee includes A. M. Matson, of Dallas; Walter Beck, of Ft. Worth; W. V. Crawford, of Waco; and Porter H. Whaley, of San Antonio.

Announcement that Texas will not be required to erect a State building as the fair management plans to erect handsome structures in which to house various state exhibits should result in a financial saving for the state exhibiting.

Urge Early Entries In Poultry Show

The superintendents of the first annual Texas Panhandle-Plains Poultry Show here on December 10, 11 and 12 are urging exhibitors to mail entries as early as possible. Another Accident On Highway No. 7

Mrs. L. A. Alvey and daughter, Wilda Kane, age 19, who has been attending Tech, met with an accident Monday on Highway No. 7 near the Klattenthorff farm northwest of Slaton. In trying to pass a truck Mrs. Alvey got off the pavement onto the soft ground with her car turning over a couple of times and in the turn over the daughter, Miss Wilda, received a fracture of the left collar bone. Passersby took the two to Lubbock to a hospital. Mr. Alvey has recently arrived in Slaton from Moran to take charge of the Cities Service distributing plant.

LOCAL MAN CANNOT QUALIFY AS FISH-EATER

Uncle George Marriott claims to be quite versatile and his proficiency covers numerous things, but one of the things he is lacking in is being able to eat fish without running around of the bones.

Uncle George attended the Baptist convention at Amarillo last week and while there tried eating fish with just one bone in the slab. He was very unfortunate in having it lodge in his esophagus and was taken to a surgeon who removed same very nicely. Uncle George states it was quite a tickler but he is still biting on all four.
